Marcus fixed her with eyes angry beyond description. Her own blazed back at him as she pointed toward the door.

"Scoot out," she repeated, "an' don't be comin' again."

MacKenzie lifted his riding whip threateningly, and every man with a growl started forward; but as the whip fell back to his side, they sank down again.

Then it was that he shifted the whip to his left hand and took from his pocket a shining pistol; and although Polly whitened, she held her ground.

"And you, you impudent huzzy," snapped MacKenzie, "what have you got to do with it? What are you, anyway?"

In spite of the deadly thing held in the white, strong fingers, Polly's head went up a bit.

"I'm the littlest mammy in the world," she said simply. "I'm mammy to this hull settlement. An' us squatters lives in the Silent City—see?"

The pistol came up with a [illegible], and MacKenzie, [illegible] beyond control, [illegible] Pollyop two stinging blows with the riding whip. [illegible] than Old Marc that he would help them. And thus she brought smiles back to the faces of her miserable friends; and as they went away, each woman kissed her, and each man reverently placed his hand on her curly head in blessing.

[illegible]

CHAPTER VIII.

Then came the days through which the inhabitants of the Silent City lived with nothing to comfort them but Polly Hopkins. Scarcely an hour passed without strangers walking over the rough road through the settlement and every one knew that these men, so curious and yet so unwilling to speak even a "good-day," were doing service for Marcus MacKenzie.

At last one day, crushed with apprehension and despair, Jeremiah Hopkins decided that one of them should go to Robert Percival to ask his aid in keeping the settlement together. Polly was so sure he would keep his word to her—now they would give him the chance.

"It's a choice of the three of you, Poll," said Lye Braeger, "you or your daddy or Larry Bishop."

"He wouldn't listen to me, lassie," Hopkins mourned. "Mebbe he would to you. I dunno, but mebbe."

Before the girl's sensitive mind flashed the face of Robert, and she hid her red cheeks against the speaker's knee.

"Oh, I couldn't never go to 'im, Daddy honey," she murmured. "Please, Daddy."

"We ain't got a chance without some one's help, Poll," insisted Braeger. "You go along, an' do your d—dest for the squatters!"

"All right, Lye," she managed to say. "I'll go after Jerry's in bed, an' the supper's over."

So it came to pass that nightfall found Polly Hopkins struggling up the hill to the railroad tracks. She turned south on the boulevard and stole cautiously along the edge of the road. She had no desire to meet Old Marc or Evelyn. As she went on she murmured to herself some of the love words Granny Hope had planted in her memory, and when she turned into the carriageway leading to the Robertson home, she held her head a little higher and walked with less nervousness.

Around and around the house she crept, until with trepidation she mounted the steps leading to the front porch and tiptoed to a long French window. It was partly open and there, seated before a table, was the man she sought.

Polly knocked once, but the sound was so faint Robert did not hear it.

"Hist," came from between Polly's lips, and the young man glanced up. At the sight of her he got to his feet slowly. Then Polly shoved the window open a crack and squeezed into the room.

A strange mixture of conflicting expressions swept over his face, but pleasure at the sight of her predominated them all.

"Pollyop!" he exclaimed. "Polly Hopkins, what's the matter?"

"Old Marc's goin' to turn us all out, mister," she whispered huskily, searching his face, "an' Daddy sent me to ask you to help us."

Robert drew one hand across his brow helplessly.

"I've said everything I could to make him understand the crime of it all," he apologized. "He's like a crazy man! I can't see how he can think of such a thing, even though your people were willing to go, Polly."

"We ain't; we can't go," she replied, quivering. "There ain't a place in the world for squatters but the Silent City."

"I know it," he returned [illegible].

"And can't Love do nothin' for [illegible]" [illegible] the girl. "Granny Hope says it can, an' once I—I heard you say [illegible]—the—"

[illegible]

"You've got to sit down," he said gruffly. "I want to talk to you."

"In a minute, then," returned Marcus. "I'll get the book first."

Very white, Robert walked before MacKenzie to the bookcase. Then with one sweep of his arm he moved aside the curtain and with it—Polly Hopkins. He could feel beneath the thick material the slender, quivering body. And there, as the two men stood facing the shelves laden with the masterpieces of the world, and Marcus was running his eye up and down, Robert felt that first wonderful protective love that comes to a man when he is shielding a woman.

"Evelyn said it was here," observed MacKenzie carelessly. "Let me look! A—B—C—Here's D. It ought to be on this shelf."

He read aloud the names of the books under his eye while still the strong hand of his companion held up the curtain and the girl.

"Ah, here it is," came in exclamation. "There! Thanks, Bob! Now I'll sit down a minute."

He walked back to the table, and Percival carefully dropped the draperies. Keeping his eye on the other man's back, he ran his fingers over the curtain until he came to the curly head of Polly Hopkins. Two tender pats fell upon it. Then he, too, crossed to the center of the room.

"You're a hospitable chap, Bob," laughed Marcus. "Heigh-ho! but today I've been some busy. I'll bet you a quarter of a dollar it won't be three months before I get every squatter off that shore. The fact of it is, I've only got to catch Hopkins, and the rest'll be easy. He's a bad actor; and that girl of his is a saucy baggage."

"She's a very good girl," Robert interposed in deep tones, "and very pretty, too."

The bookcase draperies moved ever so little. Polly Hopkins almost burst with joy when she heard those words.

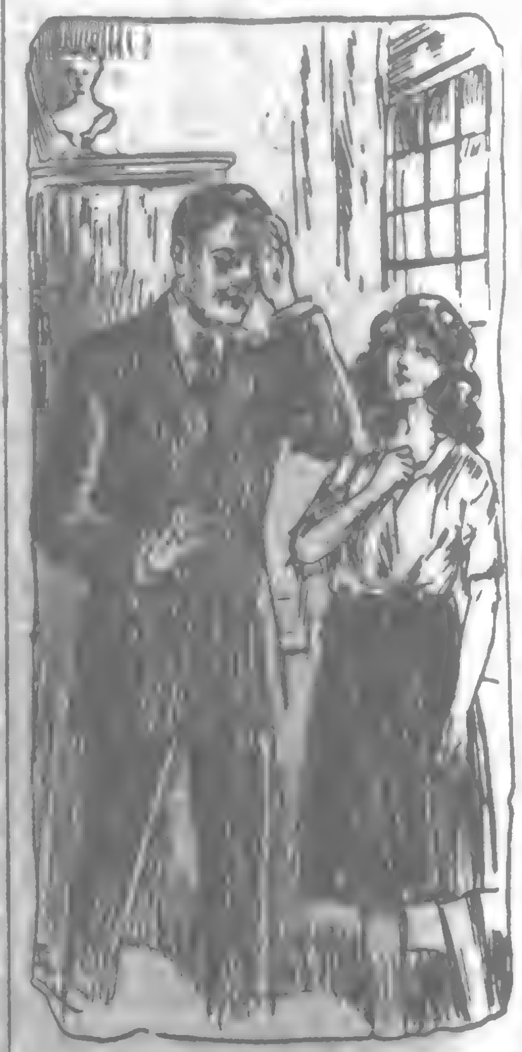
"Pretty enough, I suppose," Marcus conceded, "but not good. She's like the rest—bad clean through."

The curtains moved a little more; and Robert caught the sway of them out of the tail of his eye. He felt that if MacKenzie did not go soon, he would throw him out. What the girl would do if Marc started a tirade against her father, Robert did not dare contemplate.

"Look here, Marc," he burst forth, "you're all wrong about those people, all dead wrong. They don't harm any one, as I can see. Why can't you live and let live?"

His eyes flashing, Marcus stood up.

"No harm, no harm, you say," he flared. "Why, they steal everything in sight, and in a few more years there won't be a fish left in the lake. There won't be anything to catch in season or out, if the squatters keep up their infernal [illegible]. Hunting and fishing are [illegible], my dear Bob! Don't [illegible]."



Robert Drew One Hand Across His Brow Helplessly.

"[illegible] be d—d!" ejaculated Robert, [illegible] the curtains swayed [illegible] feet and started [illegible].

"[illegible]," he continued, "perhaps we can't agree on this matter at all, but [illegible] heart-to-heart talk [illegible]. It's not now! The [illegible] I was busy when you came [illegible]."

[illegible] pleas for [illegible] man [illegible] remem[illegible] twenty-five [illegible] scamp [illegible] I get [illegible] twen[illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] speaker [illegible]

[illegible]

"Poor little girl, poor little Polly," murmured Robert, brokenly. Then as she swayed toward him, his arms went around her, and for a moment he pressed her head against his breast.

"Polly, Pollyop," he whispered, kissing her hair. "Oh, God, if I owned that lake property I'd—I'd—"

A certain deep tone in his voice brought up Pollyop's head, and she saw in his eyes an expression that made her struggle from his arms. Fleeing to the porch window, she was gone before Robert could stop her.

* * * * * * *

"Bob's a queer fish, Eve," laughed MacKenzie, as he came into the music room where Evelyn Robertson was waiting for him. "If I hadn't kept my temper just now, we should have parted bad friends."

"That's like you, dear," she smiled. "But then, of course, you wouldn't let him bother you. Fussing about the squatters again, I suppose."

Evelyn took his big fingers in her hand and occupied herself in examining the white spots on one of the polished nails.

"My big man mustn't mind Bob," she exclaimed persuasively, noting the frowning lines that had come in his face. "He's sentimental, Robert is, full of half-baked notions about brotherly love and helping the downtrodden, and that sort of thing."

The man laughed indulgently. It delighted him to have the girl of his choice express his own sentiments so well.

"You precious!" he murmured. "They can't fool my Eve much, can they?" By a simple twist of his wrist he captured her hand. Then he took up a favorite topic with new zest. "I want to improve my property, dear. The Silent City's an eyesore! If I could get the squatters off the lakeside and buy the Bennett farm, I could make my place the handsomest in the county."

At the suggestion about Oscar's farm, a different light flashed into the girl's eyes. Her hand twitched in his.

"That would be wonderful, dear," she ejaculated. "If—if the squatters weren't there, you could make a very lovely drive right along where their road runs, couldn't you?"

This had been MacKenzie's idea, also. What a capable girl Eve was! He took her pretty face between his hands and kissed her once and then again and again.

"You darling!" he murmured. "You're the wisest little woman in the world! My whole ambition is to make our home just to suit you. I was talking to one of those landscape chaps up at the college the other day, and he said the lake section could be made charming. We can build our house on the hill just above there!"

"And the farm," Evelyn interposed, "that would just round out your place perfectly. Oh, honey, do that right away. Mr. Bennett will ask more for it as soon as you get rid of the squatters."

Marcus lighted a cigarette thoughtfully.

"The Bennett farm wouldn't be of any use to me," he explained slowly, "unless I can make a clean sweep of the whole thing. It's a crime, I tell you, Evelyn. Think of it! I had to send out of the county to get my men to watch those fellows down there. Ithaca makes me tired. It's a good thing I came back to put some snap into the fight against the squatters."

The girl's white lids made a curtain between his shining eyes and her own. Evelyn was wishing, oh, how very much she desired that Marcus would buy the farm. Then Oscar could leave the country, and in another state he would set her free! She studied MacKenzie's face covertly through half-closed eyes, considering what to say and how to say it.

MacKenzie flung his cigarette into the grate. He found the suggestion of her veiled look so alluring that he gathered her into his arms and rained kisses upon her face.

"I love you so, sweet, I could almost eat you!" he panted.

A happy sigh, like the perfumed breath of a rose, slipped from her parted lips, and when she laughed again, his deep chuckles joined hers.

> "Look at me, dearie. I love you, little gal."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Traded Pipes for Land.

The [illegible] of Bristol, Eng., [illegible] entirely closed down [illegible] the Seventeenth century, [illegible] quantities of [illegible] exported to the [illegible] clays [illegible] Indians [illegible]

[illegible]

Highway Improvement

PUBLIC ROAD CONSTRUCTION

About One-Half of All Highways Being Built Are Being Aided by the Government.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What the new federal highway appropriation to be expended under the direction of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, will mean to the country is accurately gauged in a synopsis prepared by the bureau, showing the use to which the $275,000,0000 previously appropriated by congress has been put. Up to December 31, $212,077,246 had been put to work in projects either entirely complete or under construction. To match that amount the states appropriated $285,379,312, making a total of $497,456,558.

Construction of a Rock Road.

If placed end to end the roads to be paid for by this money would encircle the earth at the equator and extend as far as from New York to San Francisco on the second lap. The total mileage of roads under construction and completed, the department's records show, was approximately 27,000 miles. Of this milage 9,555 miles was in projects entirely completed. The balance of 17,445 miles was in projects which were still under construction but reported 69 per cent complete October 31. In those projects there was the equivalent of 12,000 miles of completed roads, so that the completed road to date was more than 21,000 miles, or nearly enough to encircle the globe.

Prior to five years ago the federal government took no active part in the road construction of the country. Today about one-half of all roads under construction are being aided financially by the federal government, and the construction is subject to inspection and approval of federal engineers.

APPROVE HIGHWAY PROJECTS

According to Announcement of Bureau Every Type of Construction Is Represented.

Ninety-three road construction projects in 28 states were approved for federal aid during October by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, according to a compilation just made public. Virtually every type of construction is represented in the approved projects.

The states in which these projects were approved and the number of projects approved in each state follow: Alabama, 8; Arkansas, 8; California, 2; Colorado, 1; Florida, 1; Idaho, 1; Kansas, 8; Maryland, 5; Massachusetts, 2; Minnesota, 15; Mississippi, 6; Missouri, 4; Montana, 1; Nebraska, 2; Nevada, 1; New Mexico, 2; North Dakota, 2; Ohio, 2; Oklahoma, 1; Pennsylvania, 5; South Carolina, 5; South Dakota, 1; Texas, 3; Utah, 1; Virginia, 12; Washington, 1; Wisconsin, 2, and Wyoming, 1. The longest single stretch of roadway approved in one project during the month was an earth road in Calhoun county, Mississippi, 35.3 miles long; the shortest, 0.9 mile, was a brick road in Stark county, Ohio.

GOOD USE FOR SUBSTITUTES

Gravel and Macadam Can Be Employed Until More Durable Type of Road Is Built.

It will require several years for the [illegible] to carry out the plans for a comprehensive system of hard-[illegible]. [illegible] such time [illegible] of [illegible]

[illegible]

STRENGTH—VITALITY—HAPPINESS

A Message to People in Poor Health Who Want to Be Well

If you are in poor health merely from a general run-down condition, get some Gude's Pepto-Mangan of your druggist and take it with your meals for a few weeks or until you feel right again. Pepto-Mangan is a wonderful tonic and blood-builder and is very pleasant to take. It does not act like a miracle. Its effects are gradual, but real and sure. It contains iron in a form easily digested and absorbed by the system. For thirty years Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been used by physicians as a tonic for run-down people. Don't continue to be weak, nervous, and headachy—take Gude's Pepto-Mangan and restore your good health. Thousands have been helped back to health by it—you can be benefited if you will accept this truth and act now. Sold in both liquid and tablet form. —Advertisement.

Emulating Ostrich.

The children were playing hide and seek. Three of them, Jane, Robert, and Helen—were huddled together in a hall clothes press in front of which hung a curtain.

Margaret was tiptoeing about in the next room looking for them.

Dead silence for a moment—then from behind the curtain in a voice like a steam calliope: "Wobert, shut yer eyes! Don't 'cha know if ya don't shut yer eyes Margaret will see ya?"

Too Much Talk.

"Why did the lady member of the legislature resign?"

"Couldn't stand the gab."

Is Backache Crippling You?

Is that dull, nagging backache making it hard for you to get around? Are you lame, sore and tortured with sharp, rheumatic pains? It's time, then, you gave some attention to your kidneys! A persistent backache is often Nature's first signal of kidney weakness. You may have headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities, too. Kidney troubles, if treated early, are usually easily corrected. Begin now with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

F. M. Reeves, 310 W. Huntington St., Montpelier, Ind., says: "My kidneys troubled me for some time and I almost got down with my back. I couldn't do any heavy lifting or stooping work. I had a constant, dull aching across the small of my back and my kidneys acted too often both day and night. I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They were just what I needed and soon had me free from the backaches and put my kidneys in good order."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

100% Pure Varnish Will Save You Money and Time

Why buy a varnish that is adulterated with rosin, benzine or other detrimental ingredients when for the same money you can get Martin's 100% Pure Varnish? Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes go farther, look better, hold their lustre and wear longer, because they contain only pure gums, oils and turpentines, and are made by experts in the most modern of varnish plants. Look around your home—see how many things could be improved with a 100% pure varnish. Then consult your dealer as to kind and quantity needed. If you do not know the Martin dealer write for name of one

MARTIN VARNISH CO.

Makers of 100% Pure Varnishes

Chicago Illinois

Ask your Dealer

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

NR Tonight, Tomorrow Alright

[illegible] in the Cellar, [illegible] in the Pantry, Cockroaches in the Kitchen

[illegible]

APRIL

Stubborn Cases of Stomach Trouble Yield Promptly to

TANLAC

25,000,000 Bottles Sold

Ask Your Dealer for

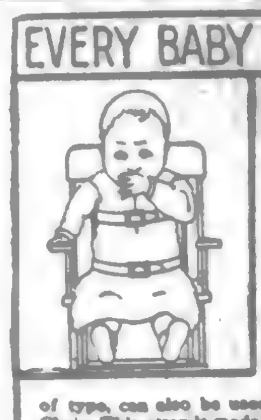
Nu-Way & Excello RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS

Year's Wear Guaranteed

The Nu-Way Line
Nu-Way and Excello Suspenders—75¢
Men's Garters—50¢
Ladies Hose-Outdoor Hose Supporters 25¢
Ladies' Corset "Sew-on" Hose Supporters 25¢

A [illegible] No rubber to rot. Phosphor Bronze Springs give the stretch. If your dealer hasn't Nu-Ways or Excellos, send direct, giving dealer's name. Accept no substitute. Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

EVERY BABY NEEDS ONE



The only High Chair Safety Strap made that will prevent your baby from standing up or falling out of High Chair. BABIES are falling out of High Chairs every DAY because the old style strap does not hold them in the Chair Safely. This device is so formed that it is quickly and easily adjusted, will fit any High Chair regardless of type, can also be used on ordinary Kitchen Chair. This strap is made from a fine quality of web goods and is very strong and durable. We Guarantee this Safety Strap to hold your Baby in High Chair or refund your money. DON'T WAIT until Baby falls out of Chair. Do it now fill out coupon below and mail with 60 cts. to DELL & HAAS, 125 Griffith St., Jersey City, N.J.

☐ FOR HIGH CHAIR ☐ KITCHEN CHAIR

NAME

ADDRESS

TOWN

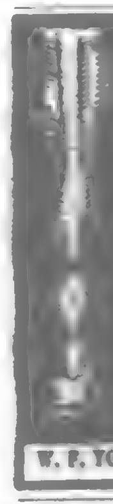
Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

PILES, FISTULA, ULCERATION, CONSTIPATION, bleeding, itching, cured at home. Trial free. S. TARNEY, AUBURN, IND.



ABSORBINE

Will reduce Inflamed, Strained, Swollen Tendons, Ligaments, or Muscles. Stops the lameness and pain from a Splint, Side Bone or Bone Spavin. No blister, no hair gone and horse can be used. $2.50 bottle at druggists or delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and interesting horse Book 3 A free.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

"Lock-It-Open" Window Locks Protect Your Home, 50c. Liberal terms to agents. Lock-It-Open Co., 326-330 Collins Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

TEMPERED COPPER! 80 per cent Copper Chisel. Cuts steel. Unaffected by heat. Big seller. Send 25c for agent's sample and full particulars. WM. J. EBERLE, M. M. & M. Bank Bldg., MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN.

Insure Your Dogs and poultry; death from every cause, incl. loss by theft and disappearance. Protection. Prompt service. Lloyd's Underwriters, Western Div., Springfield, Ill.

Intelligent Teeth.

"Here's an extraordinary coincidence. A pedestrian was struck by a motorist. His false teeth flew out of his mouth and he couldn't find them."

"I see nothing so unusual in that."

"Wait a moment. The next day that motorist was passing the same spot and the teeth bit a hole in one of his tires."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The war has made table linen very valuable. The use of Red Cross Ball Blue will add to its wearing qualities. Use it and see. All grocers.—Advertisement.

Sure Signs.

"Billy's face is quite wrinkled." "Sign of care." "And his clothes are wrinkled, too." "Sign of don't care."

Persons of leisure are deprived of a great deal of good company in business hours.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Seen and Heard In Indiana

Indianapolis.—A junior church, the membership of which is limited to persons between six and sixteen years old, with the preacher the only adult present, is being successfully operated in this city. The plan was launched by Rev. N. S. Sichterman of Grace Presbyterian church. According to Doctor Sichterman, there are 60 children ranging in age from six to sixteen years who are members of the junior organization. They have their own room for services, which last 30 minutes, and have their own officers. The plan was put into operation in January and Doctor Sichterman is so pleased with the results that he expects soon to double the membership.

Indianapolis.—Since 1912 the horse population in Indiana has decreased about 12 per cent, George C. Bryant, state agricultural statistician, said. It is hard to find one buggy horse on a hundred farms in some parts of the state, he said. The number of horses is larger in those parts of the state where the farmers are not prosperous enough to buy automobiles and tractors, and where the roads are bad. In the last few years, Mr. Bryant said, farmers have been taking advantage of the fact that mules are easier to raise than horses and that they are stronger and tougher.

Indianapolis.—After spending more than 22 years in prison for a murder of which he still maintains he was innocent, Albert Musser, life-termer, was granted a parole by Governor McCray. Musser was sentenced to the state prison from Blackford county January 6, 1899, for life for the slaying of Louisa Stulz at Portland. The actual slayer was able to prove an alibi, and thus escaped sentence. His name is not recalled. Musser, however, was held as an accessory in the crime and convicted.

Indianapolis.—An Indiana wheat crop of approximately 35,000,000 bushels and a rye crop in excess of 5,000,000 bushels are indicated for this year by the report of George C. Bryant, state agricultural statistician, in cooperation with the Indiana legislative reference bureau and the United States Department of Agriculture. Breeding sows show 14 per cent increase over last year and the farm labor supply and demand is in much better condition than a year ago, the report says.

Indianapolis.—Placing the danger signals on roads which parallel steam or electric railroads, but do not cross the tracks is not required by the state law, according to an opinion submitted to Lawrence Lyons, director of the state highway department. The opinion was solicited in view of the fact that in places where a highway paralleling a railroad is intersected by a road crossing the tracks, it has been customary to erect danger signals on both roads.

Wabash.—D. B. Newman of near Twelve Mile, Miami county, lays claim to a Hoosier record in point of continuous residence in one place. Newman was born in a log cabin seventy-three years ago. The cabin was moved to make room for a new house on the same spot, which the man now occupies. "I have only made one move," he says. "That was from the old house to the new." The old log cabin is still standing.

Indianapolis.—Contracts of 16 bridges which are to be constructed on state highways at a cost of approximately $360,000 were awarded by the director of the state highway department, who was empowered to act for the state highway commission. The most important structure for which a contract was awarded is the Hazelton bridge over White river on the Dixie Bee Line road in Knox county.

Jeffersonville.—The Jeffersonville Rotary club closed a deal for the purchase of six acres of land on Silver creek, five miles west of Jeffersonville. A boys' club will be established which will be held in trust by the Citizens' Trust company and which will be available for boy scouts and other organizations of boys under responsible supervision.

South Bend.—Money to finance the boy scout movement in South Bend for the next year was pledged by South Bend citizens. The sum, approximately $20,000, is a memorial to J. W. Taylor, scout executive; Vern Murphy and Judson Taylor, scout masters, and the five boy scouts who lost their lives by drowning in Magician lake recently.

Lafayette.—Gov. Warren T. McCray will have two entries in the annual Purdue egg show which will take place here May 1-4. The governor will have eggs from his farm at Kentland entered in the commercial and fanciers' classes.

Anderson.—A call for the state convention of the [illegible] party, which will be held [illegible] and 21 in Anderson, has been [illegible].

Seymour.—The plant of the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—The campaign of the Indiana Tuberculosis association and the Marion County Tuberculosis association to have persons afflicted with tuberculosis "get well in Indiana" is meeting with some degree of success, according to reports received by the association. The custom of patients to make trips to the west and southwest in search of cures for tuberculosis is discouraged, since the area visited in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and other western states is unable to care for the great numbers who go there. The associations dealing with the disease assert that by observing proper instructions at home where there are comforts not to be obtained away from home, tuberculosis yields to treatment more readily oftentimes than in the reputed "cure" areas.

Seymour.—Early fruit trees in Jackson county are in full bloom and give promise of heavy crops. Cherry, plum, pear and peach trees are in unusually heavy blossom and the trees would not be able to support the fruit if all of the blooms matured. Orchard men say it is yet too early to make any accurate forecast as to the probable crop, but they assert that the indications are the best for many years. The blooms on many trees were killed last spring by a late freeze and as the trees have not borne fruit for two years it is thought that they are in a healthy condition this year to bear heavily.

Indianapolis.—The state board of health condemned 26 school buildings in various parts of the state as insanitary and unfit for school purposes. The action of the board was based on recommendations made by Dr. W. F. King, assistant state health commissioner, and H. R. Condrey, inspector. The majority of the buildings condemned were old one-room township schools. Bad floors, inadequate lighting, glass out of windows, leaks in roof and broken stoves and outdoor toilets with no vaults were the chief causes of the condemnation orders, the board said.

Jeffersonville.—The county assessor has compiled average valuations for taxation on farms and improvements in each of the 12 townships of Clark county, based on selected lists of 20 good farms from each township. Averages run from $20 an acre for land and $28, including improvements, in the poorer townships, to $101 an acre for land and $113, including improvements, in the richer. In all cases the valuations are reduced from 10 per cent to 20 per cent from the figures of three years ago.

Indianapolis.—An early return to normalcy as far as Indiana farmers are concerned is looked for by Governor McCray, according to an opinion expressed in a telegram to E. A. Strout, president of the Strout Farm Agency, Inc., New York. Governor McCray's telegram said: "In answer to your inquiry, conditions are improved and prospects brighter in Indiana. Some inquiry for farm lands to be developed. On the whole, good outlook for early return to normalcy."

Gary.—With Gary steel plants getting back to normal the number of jobless men is decreasing. The Gary municipal free employment bureau went out of business three months ago and free lodgers at the police station are scarce. It is estimated that 5,000 Gary men, who were idle in January, are now at work. The eight-hour day has also been supplanted by the ten-hour day. The employees received an increase in wages.

Jeffersonville.—The board of trustees of the Indiana reformatory recently paroled 64 persons out of an eligible list of 74. Of the men paroled, nine were at the Indiana State prison and nine were at the Indiana State farm. The reformatory population a few days ago was 977, and even with the paroled men going out during the month, the rate of arrivals will carry the total over 1,000 before the last of the month.

Shelbyville.—Negotiations between officials of a starch company at Edinburg, and representatives of farmers' associations of Bartholomew and Shelby counties for the manufacture of oil and meal from soy beans at the Edinburg plant have been dropped, for the time at least. The farmers and company officials were unable to agree on a fixed price to be paid for the soy beans.

Evansville.—A reduction of 10 cents on 100 pounds has been announced by ice manufacturers and distributors in Evansville. The price to housewives delivered is 40 cents a 100, as compared to 50 cents last year. The price to business houses this summer will be 35 cents a 100, as compared to 45 cents last year.

Brazil.—At a conference of operators of wagon coal mines and the executive board of district No. 8, United Mine Workers of America, held in Brazil, it was decided that all wagon mines should remain closed until further orders of the executive board.

South Bend.—A nine months' term of school is requested for the rural [illegible]

[illegible]

IN BUYING ASPIRIN ALWAYS SAY "BAYER"

Look for the Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" can be taken safely for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Joint Pains, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross."

The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

Different.

Chairman—Ladies and gentlemen, Miss Discordant will sing "Only Once More."

Green—Oh, thank goodness for that—she can't sing a bit!

Chairman (coming forward again)—Ladies and gentlemen, instead of singing "Only Once More," Miss Discordant will sing "Forever and Ever."

Collapse of Green.—London Tit-Bits.

Cuticura Soothes Itching Scalp.

On retiring gently rub spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your everyday toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Advertisement.

His Natural Dome.

"That football player seems to be wearing a helmet, but I see nothing to protect his ears."

"He's a rare bird on the gridiron."

"What's that?"

"A baldheaded halfback."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

If you use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry, you will not be troubled by those tiny rust spots, often caused by inferior bluing. Try it and see.—Advertisement.

WOMEN THROWING OFF YOKE

Emancipation of the Sex Has Been Making Rapid Strides Throughout Palestine.

The emancipation of women in Palestine is taking place very rapidly. Women were not very seriously regarded heretofore. They were looked upon as a bit of chattel to be given little more regard than a dog or a cat about the house. They were bought and sold to the whims of the lord and master of the domestic establishments. They dared not leave the premises without special permission of the "husband." They were not even given any work to do, but of recent years a change has come over the scene and the women under the impetus of some greater freedom have developed into able artisans.

An exhibition of the work of the women of the country was held recently at Haifa and the results were greater than were hoped for by the most ardent supporters of the enterprise. There were many beautiful specimens of pottery, weaving, embroidery and other domestic accomplishments. Women have demanded and are receiving equality in the home and are entering into a line of activities from which they have been heretofore barred.

Kill Cooking Odors.

A gift much appreciated by a housewife living in a small apartment where cooking odors are hard to conquer is an atomizer and a bottle of the best lavender water. After airing the rooms thoroughly spray once or twice with the lavender, which is not only refreshing and clean, but a real tonic for tired nerves.

A cheap suitcase looks cheaper every twenty-four hours.

AFTER EVERY MEAL
WRIGLEY'S
WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT THE PERFECT GUM
THE FLAVOR LASTS
MINT LEAF FLAVOR
WRIGLEY'S P-K
JUICY FRUIT
C29
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT

Satisfies the sweet tooth and aids appetite and digestion.

Cleanses mouth and teeth.

A great boon to smokers, relieving hot, dry mouth.

Combines pleasure and benefit.

Don't miss the joy of the new WRIGLEY'S P-K—the sugar-coated peppermint tid bit!

Save the wrappers

Good for valuable premiums

MATTER OF GREATER MOMENT

Heckler's Query Concerning the Bolsheviks Surely Should Have Had Right of Way.

President Philip T. Dodge of the International Paper company, said at a reception in New York:

"Sentimental Socialism, the doctrine of Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells, used to be all the go, but we don't think quite so much of Sentimental Socialism today. We have found that the under dog, after all, isn't so very much better than the upper dog, and when the under dog gets on top—

"Take the Bolsheviks, for instance. Wouldn't you rather be ruled over by President Harding or Lloyd George than by Lenin and Trotzky?

"The Bolsheviks! A Bolshevik sympathizer was haranguing from a soap box the other afternoon.

"'The Bolsheviks are our brothers,' he yelled. 'Our brothers, our Russian brothers, are starving. Who will give them their meals?'

"'Who?' interrupted a heckler, 'will give them their deserts?'"

Man who pays as he goes must remember the rules against going too fast.

No man is contented with himself, but some conceal the fact.

APPLES MAY HAVE RIPENED!

But No One Was Unkind Enough to Question Young Matron About That Peculiar Pie.

The Woman was week-ending at the suburban home of the Young Matron. Six or eight friends were having dinner with the couple.

For some months the proud bridegroom had been singing the praises of the Young Matron's experiences in the culinary art, particularly her pie-making ability.

"My husband insisted that I make an apple pie for you people, and I do hope it will be good," she explained. "The apples were a bit green and I am so afraid I did not put enough sugar in it."

When the much-discussed pastry appeared it looked promising indeed. The crust was flaky and browned to perfection, and the bridegroom's face bore an "I-told-you-so" expression. Sinking the knife deeply in it, the Young Matron lifted out a generous piece of (how the apples had ripened!) juicy, mince pie.—Chicago Journal.

When a man bows to the inevitable he is also in danger of sitting down and staying there.

Be slow in convincing a man he is wrong if it profiteth not.

The Boy Who Started to Town With a Hundred Dollars

The advice they gave him for getting on in the world was simple and familiar enough: "Keep what you have, and build on it. Be careful what you do and it will grow into more."

It's a safe rule—with money or health, but a good many overlook the rule with health, until they have lost what they had. Then it's hard to get a new supply.

Postum is a [illegible]

Thousands of people who think it wise to be as careful of their health as [illegible] of Postum. [illegible] and it's free from any disturbing element.

You can begin with Postum today, with an order to your grocer. The road to health is a good road for anybody to travel. "Keep what you have and build on it," is sound policy for everybody.

[illegible]

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

APRIL

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Herbert Curie, Earl Smith and Grant Baltz were Sunday guests of Merritt Sechler.

Rev. and Mrs. S. D. Steffy and two children of Spencerville were Sunday guests of St. Joe friends.

For Sale—A few bushels of good early seed potatoes. Nice large potatoes. W. H. Northrup.

Mrs. John Knight and daughter Dorothy were week-end guests of the Dr. Sheffer and Craig Sheffer families.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pepple of Auburn were over Sunday guests of his daughter Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and family.

Have you selected a patch for pickles yet? You had better be thinking of it.

Merritt Milliman of Fort Wayne was a Sunday dinner guest of Charles Bassett.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Baxter were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cochran.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Monroe and little son of Marion came Saturday evening to spend over Easter with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler.

Mrs. Lena Meek and Mrs. Belle Woodcox have both been quite ill for the past several days.

D. J. Baker and wife of Fort Wayne were over Sunday guests of their daughter, Mrs. F. R. Bowman and family.

William Ballinger of Indiana University of Bloomington, was an over Sunday guest of Miss Mabelle Schmaizried.

Miss Lenore Moore entertained her sister Miss Blanche Moore, a teacher in the Mishawaka schools, Friday night and Saturday.

Floyd Ridgway, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, Mrs. Olive Frye and daughter Virginia were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mason at Auburn.

Mrs. Foster Gee unfortunately injured her left foot while helping to move a stove recently which dropped in moving.

Ed Woodcox of Logansport spent Saturday and Sunday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Washington Woodcox.

Mr. and Mrs. Fordyce Daub and little daughter of Hicksville spent over Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Eppler and little son of Fort Wayne spent Sunday as guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Have you contracted for pickles yet? Now is the time. They will make you money.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Lew Carpenter visited his son, Darrel and family at Butler, Saturday.

Mrs. Fred Keller is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ora Baker and family for a few days.

Mrs. Frank Curie, and Mrs. John Engle attended the district convention of Rebekahs, held at Garrett, Tuesday.

Robert Baldwin and wife, of Coldwater, Mich.; and Mrs. F. R. Burdeno, and son Dale and wife, of Sturgis, Mich; visited from Saturday until Tuesday at Wm. Staman Sr., and Jr. Mr. Dale Burdeno bought with him a radio outfit and on Sunday it was set up and a concert was heard from Detroit. On Monday reports and concerts were heard from Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis, Toledo and other points.

For County Assessor.

I am asking for the nomination for County Assessor on the republican ticket at the primary, May 2.

I was born and raised on a farm in Jackson township and for thirty-four years have lived on a farm in Butler township. Except four years that I worked at the carpenter trade my life has been spent on the farm and I have been a life-long resident of DeKalb county.

I am the son of a soldier and both my boys were soldiers. I have been Township Trustee, Township Assessor, and have superintended the construction of about twenty miles of public drainage.

Now that you are acquainted with me, any support you can give me will be appreciated.

Wm. J. Carnahan.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

A number of St. Joe people attended the Beveridge speech at Auburn, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Haifley and baby, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of his mother, Mrs. Harriett Haifley, and other friends.

The total of the Sunday School and church collection of the M. P. Church went for Home Mission work, which amounted to $111.57.

Tanlac corrects stomach disorders, strengthens the nerves, and restores health through its effect on the appetite and nutrition of the body. At Sheffer's.

The Misses Josephine and Esther Johnson, who are attending school at Adrian, Michigan, are spending their Easter vacation with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer and Mr. and Mrs. Putman spent Saturday night at Butler. Master Basil Sheffer was an over night guest of his grand parents, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, during their absence.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices.
S. S. Widney.

Frank P. Seiler
Democratic Candidate for the STATE LEGISLATURE

To Tax Payers of DeKalb County:

I trust you will accept the following brief statement in a kindly spirit of democracy for the success of the Democratic cause at our next election. If I did not feel confident and able to do my expected part in our next session of Legislature, believe me, I would not ask you for your support.

I have lived in DeKalb County nearly all my life, and am known all over this country as Seiler, the Real Estate Man. What I have to say in regard to my qualification and fitness for your Representative is up to your unbiased judgment. I have been a farmer, and work with farmers and laboring men a great deal in my present business. I completed a course in Business Training at Eastman College, New York. I have taught in the public schools of Northern Indiana for over ten years. I was Deputy County Treasurer, of Elkhart County, two years, and your County Auditor four years. How I managed your business of that office are secrets to none who know me. I took charge of the affairs of the office in the fall of 18[illegible] with a [illegible] indebtedness of $23,30[illegible] and a [illegible] levy of 44 1-3 cents [illegible]. On January 1, [illegible] I turned over the business of the office to my [illegible] with the county out of debt [illegible] in the treasury [illegible] 60, and the [illegible] 1-3 cents, the [illegible] the county [illegible] improvements [illegible] them. [illegible] the taxable [illegible] only $1[illegible] the total [illegible] and the [illegible] You will [illegible] Total [illegible]

I have [illegible] study to [illegible] Estate [illegible] a lower [illegible] Real Estate [illegible]

[illegible]

SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40 and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Rev. C. O. Johnson was in Auburn, Tuesday afternoon.

S. S. Widney has been sick since Sunday with an attack of the flu.

Rolla Wiers, wife, and children, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodenbaugh.

Found—Pair of glasses. The owner can have same by claiming and paying for this advertisement. Charles Kech.

Samuel Andress, of Auburn, was a Tuesday dinner guest in the Bert Jackson home. He will remain for a few days visit with other relatives.

Sam Armstrong received word Wednesday morning of the death of his aunt, Mrs. John Deardorff, of Hicksville, who died at the home of her daughter in Garrett.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

THE W.L. DOUGLAS SHOE
WHIRL LAST

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

H. O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.
OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN
FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

FOR SALE- SETTING EGGS
From Pure Bred
Single Comb
RHODE ISLAND RED CHICKENS

From the Pioneer Strain, which won all prizes, including the silver cup at the Chicago Poultry show in January of this year.

We have a fine park flock besides the large utility flock.

If interested call for arrangements and prices of
MRS. FRED STRUBING,
Phone No. 82, Spencerville, Indiana

The New Sensation

An OIL STOVE that has proven, without a doubt, to be the most economical one of its kind on the market today—the

Florence Automatic Wickless

We have them in all sizes. The prices will surprise you. Remember an iron-clad guarantee goes with every stove. A hotter heat and no smoke are the hobbies of the Florence. Come in and see it demonstrated.

Chick Coops and Chick Feeders and Waterers of most all kinds, and our prices are right.

Fence! Fence! Fence! farm fence, poultry fence, and fences in the right size, at greatly reduced prices.

Garden Seeds
The famous Leonard Garden Seeds of all kinds—[illegible] more for your money

Garden Plows
[illegible]

Lawn Mowers
[illegible]

Galvanized
[illegible]

Ladders
[illegible]

If we haven't it
[illegible]

WM. CURIE, - St. Joe, Ind.

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, APRIL 21, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

[illegible]

NEWS SUPPLEMENT

APRIL 20, 1922

Legal Publications

Sheriff's Sale on Decree

4369

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

Eli M. Keener vs Fred H. Donely and Mary Donley.

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me, directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in the cause wherein Eli M. Keener is plaintiff and Fred H. Donley and Mary Donley are defendents requiring me to make the sum of One thousand Two hundred ninety two and 00-100 dollars, with interest and costs, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, on the 27th day of April 1922, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day at the door of the Court House, in the City of Auburn, County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, the following described realestate, in said County and State, to-wit:

Ten (10) acres of land off of the north end of the west half of the north-west quarter of Section twenty-four (24) in township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, and bounded as follows:

Commencing at the north-west corner of said section Twenty-four (24) thence running south forty-four (44) rods, thence east thirty-six (36) rods, thence north forty-four (44) rods, thence west thirty-six (36) rods, to the place of beginning, containing ten (10) acres. Also sixty-five one hundredths 65-100 of an acre lying south of the Baltimore and Ohio Right-of way, in the south-east corner of the south-east corner of section fourteen (14) Concord Township, all in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sum sufficient to pay and satisfy said decreed interest and costs, I will at the same time and place offer for sale at public auction the fee simple of said real estate.

Said sale to be made without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws.

T. L. HOODELMIER,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.
Dated March 28th, 1922.

Willis Rhoads, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2414.

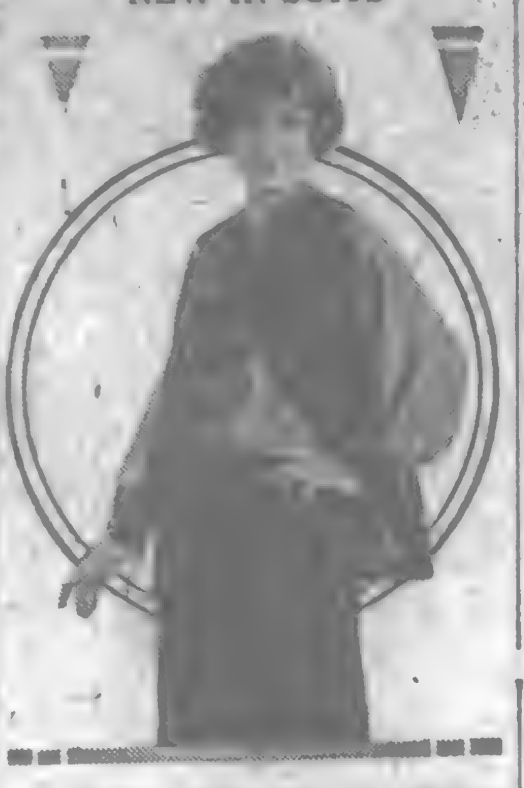
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of James M. Milliman, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 15th day of May, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 30th day of March, 1922.

S. S. WIDNEY,
Administrator:
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Hundreds of Thousands of WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL [illegible]

NEW IN SUITS



If clothes could speak the slip-over dress might truthfully boast: "I came, I saw, I conquered," for it made a complete triumph last summer. It was a long step in the direction of comfort for wear in warm weather. And now enters its near-of-kin in suits, traveling in the same direction. This new arrival is a two-piece affair in which a sleeveless coat is worn with a skirt to match and a blouse, usually of crepe or other silk, made in one with the skirt. The dress is complete in itself and can be worn without the coat. But some women object to going coatless on the streets, and this suit fits their needs. The model pictured is of poiret twill with beige-colored blouse of crepe de chine. Silk embroidery in navy and beige finishes the edges of the coat and adorns the narrow cuffs.

March Term Closes.

The March term of the DeKalb circuit court was closed Saturday by judge Dan M. Link after a session of six weeks. Judge Link and Jas. R. Nyce, court reporter, went to Angola on Monday morning for the opening of the April term of the Steuben circuit court This term will be four weeks in length Then the May term of the DeKalb circuit court will be opened and will continue until the end of August 200 Take Examination.

Over 200 pupils in rural schools of DeKalb county have the privilege of taking the eighth grade examination this year. The first was held Saturday and two others will be held later at which those who failed in the first examination will have another trial.

The following are the names of pupils who took the examinations Saturday from Concord and Spencer townships:

Concord township—St. Joe, Clyde Hart, teacher; Walter Brown, Lucile Curie, Paul Fetters, Goldie Hughes, Flossy Hull, Henry Keesler, Ida Kinsey, Velma Kinsey, Hilda Koch, Edward Lysher, Robt. Morr, Russel Reasoner, Zella Sheehan, Frank Shull, Charles Todd, Harry Todd, Carl Tustison, Keith Yeiser. No. 5, Lois Murphy, teacher; Clark Bassett, Tracy Bassett, Velma Carper, Gladys Snyder, Roy Snyder, [illegible] Tucker.

Spencer township—[illegible] Zona Horn teacher; [illegible] Lois [illegible] Dora Hahn, [illegible] Timmerman, [illegible] and George [illegible]. No. 4, [illegible] Walker, teacher; [illegible] [illegible]

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS.

[illegible]

Get your campaign cards printed at the News office.

Mrs. O. E. Cannon is quite sick again and has been taken to a hospital in Ft. Wayne for treatment.

F. H. Langley of Chicago spent the week-end with his wife and her mother, Mrs. Alice Warner.

Mrs. S J. Zimmerman of Auburn is visiting her brother, M. T. Bishop, for a few days.

The subscription price to the Hunter-Trade-Trapper is $2.00 for one year. Give your order to Wm. S. Quance.

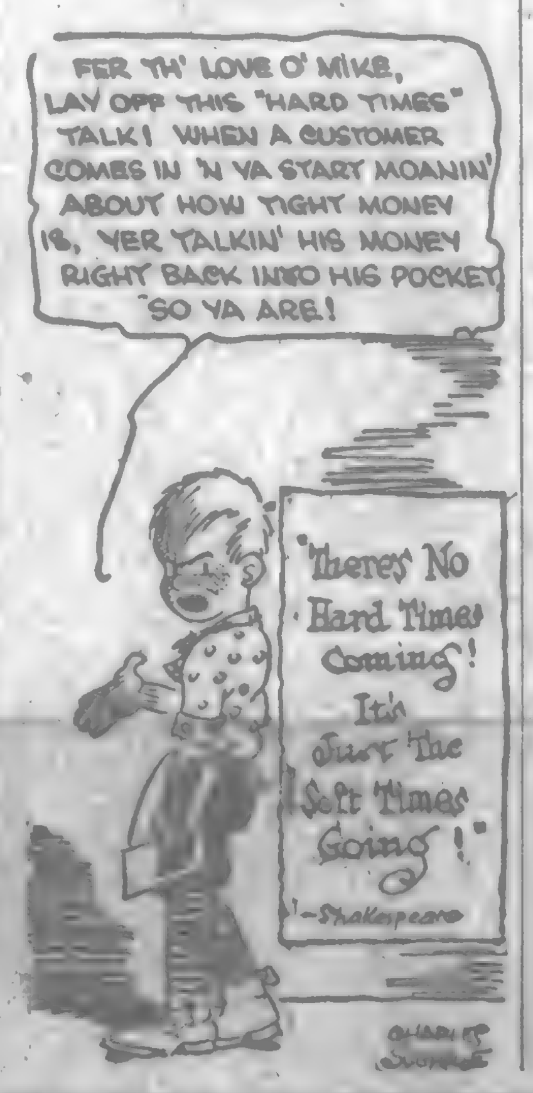
Chas. Rice, Chas Reasoner, C.C. Bassett, Earl Smith, Isaac Meese and James Harter were Auburn visitors Friday afternoon.

Special prices on box stationery for Saturday, Apr. 22 only--23 and 47c the box, at the News office.

Edwin White of Springfield, Ohio; Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg and son, Walter, ate Sunday dinner with H. S. Bowman and family.

Miss Beulah Latson of Angola, and Miss Dorothy Bowman, who is attending school at Angola, visited over the week end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bowman

MICKIE SAYS



FER TH' LOVE O' MIKE, LAY OFF THIS "HARD TIMES" TALK! WHEN A CUSTOMER COMES IN 'N YA START MOANIN' ABOUT HOW TIGHT MONEY IS, YER TALKIN' HIS MONEY RIGHT BACK INTO HIS POCKET, SO YA ARE!
"There's No Hard Times Coming! It's Just The Soft Times Going!"
—Shakespeare
CHARLES SUGHROE

Tanlac is the ideal strengthener and body builder for old folks. At Sheffer's.

The natural, refreshing sleep of a healthy body is enjoyed by those who take Tanlac. A B. S. Sheffer's Drug store.

Clayton Hathaway, a student of Wittenburg College, Springfield, O., spent his Easter vacation visiting his parents at Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway, and with relatives and friends in St. Joe.

Mrs. Pauline Miller of Detroit came on Saturday for a two weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Andress. She came at this particular time to attend the commencement exercises of the graduating class of which her sister, Melba Andress, is a member.

APPROPRIATE GIFTS
For the Graduates
Sometimes it is hard to know just what to give for a Commencement Gift.
AT OUR STORE we have so many lovely things for you to choose from. A few suggestions—
NEW STYLE WATCHES for Girls and boys--Rings, Pearl Beads, La Vallieres, Bar Pins, Cuff Links, Belt Buckles, Scarf Pins, Waldemar Chains, Gold and Silver Pencils, Parker Lucky Curve and Moore's Non-Leakable Fountain Pens, Souvenir Spoons, Ivory, Cut Glass and Fancy Pottery.
Jeweler of Merit. -P. J. MURPHY- Hicksville Ohio.
Successor to F. A. Patterson.

Pure yeast now concentrated in small dose

With the introduction of Yeast Foam Tablets you don't need to eat large quantities of baking yeast to secure its great health-corrective properties

If you are one of those who have been eating large quantities of baking yeast—and perhaps finding it troublesome to get and unpleasant to take—you will be happy to know that in this new yeast, dried and highly concentrated, you can get the same tonic effects, without any inconveniences and with several extraordinary advantages.

This yeast corrects a wide-spread disease

Vitamin deficiency, that the leading medical men are all discussing, is a disease that thousands of people nowadays suffer from, but which has only recently been recognized.

Unlike other diseases, which come from germs or infections, vitamin deficiency comes from a lack in modern foods of the recently discovered element, vitamin.

Its symptoms are failing appetite; indigestion; loss of weight, strength and vigor; unhealthy skin; nervous troubles and other signs of a "run down" condition.

If you are suffering from any of these disorders, your trouble may simply be vitamin deficiency, and in all such cases Yeast Foam Tablets are recommended because they are made entirely from pure, whole yeast—the richest source of the essential vitamin.

Yeast Foam Tablets rebuild tissues

By supplying this vitamin, which many foods wholly lack, Yeast Foam Tablets stimulate the appetite, aid digestion, enable you to get strength and energy from the food you eat and thus rebuild the sick tissues and tone up the whole body.

Extraordinary advantages of Yeast Foam Tablets

The only pure whole yeast in easy-to-take tablet form.

They contain no drugs or other ingredients.

They do not form gas nor cause belching.

They are the only pure whole yeast suitable for children; they do not cause fermentation.

Each lot is tested to insure high and uniform vitamin potency.

The purity and vitamin potency of Yeast Foam Tablets is guaranteed by the world's largest manufacturers of dry yeast—the makers for 45 years of the famous baking yeasts, Yeast Foam and Magic Yeast.

This guarantee is your protection, so be sure you ask for and get Yeast Foam Tablets. They are sold by all druggists.

Northwestern Yeast Co., Chicago
Makers of the famous baking yeasts, Yeast Foam and Magic Yeast.

Yeast Foam Tablets
the only pure whole yeast in convenient tablet form

For the Man or Young Man That Wants a Suit Under $30

We have taken from one of the famous makers of Rochester 600 of their newest Spring styles and fabrics, not a suit but what is "all wool," and there is more hand work on these garments than many other lines that sell at $35 and $40, and while the cheapest suit this firm makes sells regularly at $30—

We Have Marked the Entire Lot

Not a suit in the $18 lot under a $25 value $18 and $25 Not a Suit in the $25 lot under a $35 value

[illegible] New Spring Shirts, $1.00 to $7.50

Patterson-Fletcher Co.
[illegible] FORT WAYNE

[illegible]

APRIL

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1922 No. 17

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!
NO MORE
MAIL-ORDER GOODS
FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

HIGHEST Market Prices paid at all times for Corn, Wheat, Oats, Rye and Barley.
Bring your grain to us.

WE HANDLE Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL.---If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.
Best Virginia and Hocking Valley Only.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Robbers!

Robbers do not disturb people who have nothing.

A man with a thousand dollars in the bank and only a check book in his pocket has nothing for robbers to take; yet his check is as good as the money which his neighbor carries in his pocket.

It is not safe to carry money on your person when among strangers, and neither is money safe in the house.

Money in the bank is safe and is always available by means of a check book, and this assurance of safety costs you nothing.

[illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

C. E. Took Charge

The Christian Endeavor society took charge of the entire evening service Sunday night at the Christian church upon accepting an invitation extended it by Rev. R. B. Daily, the pastor of that church.

There was no regular Christian Endeavor meeting at six o'clock as usual. At 7:00 o'clock the services began with Robt. Johnson as leader. The members of the society were assembled in the choir box excepting those members who comprised the orchestra, and they occupied the other end of the platform.

The programe was as follows:

Songs	Congregation
Prayer	Mr. Borthwick
Orchestra Selection	"The Pearless"
Introduction	Robert Johnson
Reading of Christian Endeavor pledge by members in concert
Vocal Solo	Miss Dorthea Scholes
Talk	Miss Luetta Daily
Violin Duet	Misses Doris Keesler and Juanita Kinsey
Talk	Vernon Woodcox
Cornet Duet	Luetta Daily and Robert Johnson
Talks	Harry Hursh, Wm. Quance
Orchestra Selection	"The Pasan of Triumph"
Song	Congregation
Christian Endeavor Benediction.

The service was a splendid one and the first of its kind in years. The society is proud of its president, for it was through his earnest effort and endeavor to arrange the program and encourage a good attendance that this service was a success.

The membership of the society is comprised of young people from the three churches of the town, and it is growing each week. Invitations to others are always extended.

Appointed Administrator

Roy Wade of St Joe has been appointed administrator of the estate of his late mother, Sarah Jane Wade, who died April 14th, last, at Spencerville.

The estate consists of $400 in personal property and $3500 in real estate.

The following children are the heirs who will share in the estate: Gertrude Scott, Hicksville, Ohio; Myrtle Cole, Hillsdale, Mich.; Bertha Coburn, Spencerville, Ind.; Roy Wade, St. Joe; Lloyd Wade, Spencerville; Clifford Wade, Claypool, Ind.; Stearle Wade, Hicksville, O.; Jessie Benjamin, Peru, Ind.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

Child Breaks Her Arm.

F. M. Monroe and wife received word that their litte neice, a daughter of Stanley Monroe and wife of Williamsport, Ind., fell, last week Tuesday, from a porch of their home, and broke her right arm just at the elbow. Only a year ago the same little girl fell from a [illegible] bench and broke her left arm. The latest word received was that she was getting along nicely.

S. LeRoy Scoles Addresses Class '22

A good sized [illegible] [illegible] Thursday evening [illegible] [illegible]

The thought of the address was along the line of the pesent school conditions of the state as he has found them to be in his work here and there. He also went into detail how so many conditions could be bettered, which must be before proper education facilities can be attained.

Clarence Green, Sup't of DeKalb County Schools, gave a brief but pointed talk to the class, wishing them well in their future calling, whatever that might be. The diplomas were presented by Roy E. Maxwell, principal of the St. Joe schools.

The room was very nicely decorated with ribbons in the class colors, and with flowers. The music was rendered by the high school orchestra.

Alumni Gives Reception

The reception given by Alumni society of the St. Joe High school on Saturday evening last at the school building, in honor of the graduating class, was well attended.

About 105 members and friends were entertained with a fine literary program, and a generous potluck lunch served in cafateria style. The lunch consisted of sandwiches, two kinds, dill pickles, ice cream, cake and coffee.

A number of folks were disappointed in not getting to go because of the fact that the ticket sale closed Thursday night, and these folks came around after that time. The ticket sale was closed early for the benefit of the lunch committee who thought it necessary to know definitely how many to plan on.

There is some talk among members of the society of going back to the banquet style next year which was gotten away from at the time of the war. If this is done, perhaps it will be open to members only.

Alumni Ode

TUNE "AMERICA."

Alumni unto thee
Our loved Society
Doth praise belong.
Echo, ye verdant vales
Repeat, ye hills and dales,
Upon your wings, ye gales,
Bear this our song.

We have just pride in thee
Our loved Society
Young and yet strong.
Thine aims are brotherhood,
Culture and social good
All righteous things that would
Wean us from wrong.

With hopeful hearts and light,
We feast those that unite
With thee this hour.
Yet 'mid our revelry
We pray for them and thee
"Bright may your future be
And full of power".

E. E. SHERER, '02.

For Recorder

Ladies and Gentlemen voters, remember the name of Theodore C. Kressly for Recorder on the republican ticket. I have lived in DeKalb county for 35 years, having lived in Auburn for 15 years. Am a [illegible] by trade, working for the Auburn Auto Co. I have a good high school education and am a good [illegible], and can run a typewriter, so [illegible] your ballot for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Theodore C. Kressly
Auburn, Ind.

[illegible]

Three Killed in a Week

The New York Central railroad claimed the lives of three men in three different Indiana towns in the past week.

Tuesday morning Stantford Jolly of Waterloo was instantly killed when an automobile which he was driving was struck by the Twentieth Century Limited on the Main street crossing of the New York Central at Waterloo. Mr. Jolly's son, 20 years old, who was also in the truck, was seriously injured but will probably recover.

Tuesday morning at La Porte James Boots, aged 70, was killed when the automobile which he was driving was struck by the Twentieth Century Limited at an unguarded crossing of the New York Central tracks.

The third fatal accident took place Friday morning when Scott Iddings was killed at Kendallville. A fast east-bound mail train struck the heavy Standard Oil truck which Mr. Iddings was driving, and the truck was totally demolished.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mrs Belle Ridgway spent Sunday with Grover Curie and wife.

L. W. Yeiser, republican candidate for auditor, will appreciate your support at the primaries.

Mrs. G. M. Barney of this place, accompanied by Mrs. B. O. Shook, left Tuesday to attend the Grand Chapter of Eastern Stars, both representing the chapter of that order at Spencerville.

Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C Hull, Representative, St. Joe.

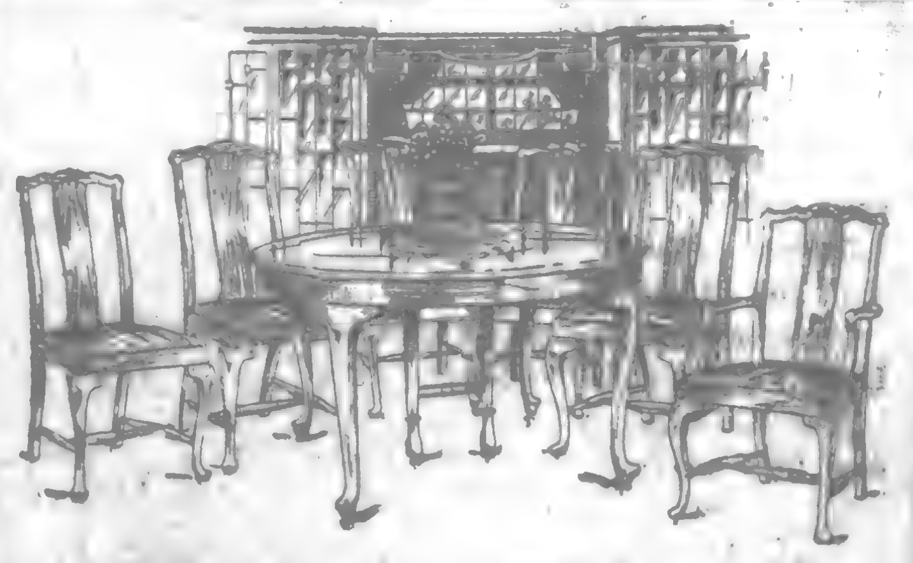
St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

TUBES ARE LOWER
Let us make you a price

Now is a good time to have that Tractor looked over and adjusted for the spring work

Strictly a Service Garage

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.



--"Queen Ann"--
Walnut Dining Room Set

If you are fitting out your dining room this spring see us for the most attractive furnishings.
The "QUEEN ANN" will set it off.

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana

APRIL

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Jeffersonville.—Certain land in Clark county, whose value was greatly enhanced when it was found that it was first class tobacco land, may suffer a reversal in value. The land is along the river bluffs, which are several hundred feet high. Owners or renters set out small tobacco patches which yielded good crops. Kentucky tobacco growers about two years ago bought up the bluff land. Timber and undergrowth were cleared and tobacco was set out. Robbed of the natural protection of vegetation, the steep bluffs are being scoured by the rain and soon will lose all the valuable top soil in many places, it is said. There is said to be much land in the county, chiefly along the river, equal to the best Kentucky soil for raising white Burley. During the war tobacco acreage in the county increased tenfold, but it has since fallen off.

Hammond.—For the first time since the signing of the armistice, help wanted placards are beginning to appear on the entrance gates of big plants in the Calumet region in Indiana. There are few unemployed seeking jobs in Gary, East Chicago, Hammond and Indiana Harbor. There is a scarcity of laborers for the first time since the war. Some industries in Gary, because of the labor shortage, are unable to increase their output. Many foreigners have, during the depression, returned to Europe. The dearth of laborers, too, is ascribed to prevailing wage scales, a minimum of 28 cents an hour being the scale in some industries.

Chicago.—Gov. Warren T. McCray of Indiana favors a comprehensive forestry policy for his state in order to put idle acres unfit for agriculture and dairying to work growing timber which future generations will need, William A. Guthrie of Indianapolis, chairman of the Indiana conservation commission, told delegates from eight central states at a forestry conference here. He said Governor McCray looked favorably on the state investing $50,000 in forest lands in the hill country of Indiana for the creation of state forests, providing this land can be bought at a reasonable price.

Evansville.—Evansville leads a list of 20 of the larger cities of the state in the expenditure per capita for library service, according to a statement by the state public library commission. Logansport and Gary rank next in this table. South Bend leads the list in the book circulation per capita, with Gary, Terre Haute and Elkhart next in order. The figures are taken from the last annual reports of the 20 libraries in the state's largest cities.

Lafayette.—After deliberating 24 hours and failing to agree on a verdict, the jury in the Charles G. Ward embezzlement case, which was tried here in the Tippecanoe Circuit court, was discharged by B. B. Berry, special judge. It was the first jury on which women served in the county, there being four who sat in the case. The vote from the beginning was 11 to 1 for conviction, one of the men voting for acquittal on every ballot.

Lafayette.—Green worms, known as the clover leaf weevil, which were so abundant, and in some parts of Indiana very destructive to clover early last spring, are apparently generally abundant again this spring. Already a number of complaints have been received from farmers in the southern end of the state by the agricultural experiment station at Purdue university.

Lafayette.—Farmers of Tippecanoe county are considering planting a soy bean crop in place of the regular planting of oats, as a result of the continued rain and the extreme wet conditions of the ground during the last two weeks. Predictions are that the 1922 oats crop will be one of the smallest in history.

Jeffersonville. — Information from Pendleton, where the new Indiana state reformatory is to be built, indicates that a number of inmates of the present institution at Jeffersonville may be transferred there between May 1 and May 15 to start work on excavating for the walls to enclose the 32-acre tract.

Indianapolis.—One hundred and sixteen pupils will be graduated from the high schools in the townships of Marion county, not including Indianapolis, at the township commencement exercises this spring, it was said at the office of the county superintendent of schools.

Anderson.—Township assessors, now completing the canvass of personal property and real estate in Madison county, report there is a sharp shrinkage in stocks of merchandise, industrial equipment and material in addition to lower valuation of farming land in the county.

Noblesville.—The Noblesville Heat, Light and Power company announced a reduction in rates of from 15 per cent to 20 per cent to consumers of current [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Terre Haute.—Valuation of Vigo county farm lands for assessment purposes was fixed at a meeting here of the various township assessors with W. C. Nusbaum, representative of the state tax board. The figures agreed on were reached by working out an average price an acre on 20 of the best farms in each township. Assessors were instructed to use the figures as an assessment basis. The figures concerning acre valuations by townships follow: Sugar Creek, $90.55; Linton, $67.50; Otter Creek, $132; Honey Creek, $136.60; Prairieton, $73.08; Prairie Creek (without improvements), $82.36; Riley, $76.20; Pierson, $69.50; Lost Creek, $119.55; Nevins, $75, and Fayette, $85.60.

Indianapolis.—A bumper crop of peaches, pears and plums is in prospect for Indiana this year, says Harry F. Dietz, assistant state entomologist in the conservation department. Peach, pear and plum trees are heavily blossomed this spring in all parts of the state, according to reports. Only an exceptional amount of inclement weather will prevent the state from having the greatest fruit crops in the history of the state, Mr. Dietz says. Many farmers made the mistake of quitting their spraying work after the first freeze, Mr. Dietz says. The spraying schedule should be continued, because in many instances the spring freezes did not harm the crops.

Indianapolis.—The total amount of money collected in Indiana for taxes during five-year periods from 1900 to 1921 increased 410 per cent, and the total net amount of taxable property increased 340 per cent during the same years, according to a tabulation made public by Charles Kettleborough, director of the state legislative reference bureau. The total amount of money collected for taxes in Indiana in 1900, the tabulation shows, was $21,825,127, as compared with $111,459,767. The total net taxables in 1900 was $1,326,055,245, while in 1921 the amount was $5,838,717,040, according to Mr. Kettleborough.

Indianapolis.—Vegetable market reports from the Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cincinnati markets soon will be sent to Indiana vegetable growers by radio twice daily, according to H. B. Brown of Lafayette, secretary of the Indiana Vegetable Growers' association, who presided at a meeting of the heads of organizations of vegetable growers, held here. The vegetable market reports will be sent from radio station WOH at 10:15 a. m. and 4 p. m., in conjunction with the live stock market reports now being sent out daily by the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations.

South Bend.—The Indiana and Michigan Baseball league, which will play only Sunday baseball, is being organized. The circuit will include ten cities and towns, most of which are connected by electric railways. The members of the league will include South Bend, Mishawaka, Laporte, Kendallville, Elkhart and Fort Wayne in Indiana; Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Sturgis and Three Rivers in Michigan. In case Laporte does not come into the organization Allegan, Mich., will be included.

Shelbyville.—The average valuation placed on household goods in Shelby county for purposes of taxation by the township assessors is $133, according to a report by the county assessor. A total of 2,244 households have been assessed, with a total valuation of $298,559. The average valuation on farming implements is $140, and on automobiles the average is $202. Horses average $67, mules $65, sows $27, other hogs $9, sheep $6 and cows at $40.

Indianapolis.—The number of known dead as the result of the tornado which swept over central and southern Indiana has been increased to 21. More than 300 persons were reported injured in the storm, which struck the state near the Indiana-Illinois line and lifted soon after it left Williamsport, leaving in its wake a mass of wrecked property, the damage to which it is believed will amount to more than a million dollars.

Noblesville.—Notice received from the office of the postmaster general ordered the office at Eagletown and Jolietville closed on April 28. No reason was assigned in the orders for the discontinuance, but it is believed the primary reason was the discontinuance a few weeks ago of the mail trains on the Central Indiana railroad.

Laporte.—Lloyd Poindexter, superintendent for the state highway commission over the state roads in Laporte county, has received instructions from the Indianapolis office to [illegible] the Lincoln highway through Laporte county to 18 feet between Laporte and New Carlisle. The road along many stretches is only 12 feet wide.

Evansville.—The city school board of Evansville has decided to [illegible] new east side high school, to be built this year, in honor of [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR APRIL 30

ISAIAH'S SUMMONS AND RESPONSE.

LESSON TEXT.—Isa. 6:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Here am I; send me.—Isa. 6:8.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Gen. 12:1-4; Ex. 3:1-4:17; Josh. 1:1-9; Jer. 1:4-10; Matt. 10:5-20.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—God Calls Isaiah to Help Him.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Young Man Who Was Ready.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Our Response to the Call for Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Service to Which God Calls Us.

I. Isaiah's Vision of Glory (vv. 1-4).

So definite was this vision that the prophet remembered the very time of its occurrence. It meant so much to him that he could ever look back to it as a day when his ministry took on a new meaning.

1. He Saw the Lord on His Throne (v. 1). Though the death of Uzziah left Judah's throne empty it was made clear to the prophet that the throne of God was occupied. The Lord was high and lifted up, showing that He is above all kingdoms. This was a peculiar preparation of Isaiah for his work. The one who has really seen God can never be the same again; life has a fuller meaning ever afterward.

2. He Saw the Seraphims Above (vv. 2, 3). Just who these beings are we do not know. The word signifies "fiery," "burning." They were glorious beings whose business was to wait upon the Lord, to go on errands for Him. They had six wings—two for flight; two to cover their face, showing reverence; and two to cover their feet, showing humility. These three pairs show that reverence and humility are of equal value before God, with activity. The song of the seraphims shows that they saw holiness as God's supreme attribute. The thrice "holy" perhaps refers to the Trinity. The first choir sang, "Holy, holy, holy," and the second choir responded to this by saying, "The whole earth is full of His glory."

3. The Manifestation of Majesty (v. 4). "The posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke." The smoke, no doubt, signified God's wrath against man's sinfulness (see Psalms 18:8; 74:1).

II. Isaiah's Conviction of Sin (v. 5).

The vision of God brought the prophet to see himself. It is only in the light of God's holiness that we see our unholiness. When Peter got a glimpse of who Christ was he begged Him to depart from him, saying, "Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O lord" (Luke 5:8). The prophet not only realized that he was a sinner, but that the nation was a nation of sinners. What the world needs today above all things is a vision of God.

III. Isaiah's Cleansing From Sin (vv. 6, 7).

The taking of the coal from the altar shows that it was connected with sacrifice. The fire that consumed the sacrifice was holy fire. When a sinner gets a vision of God in Christ, the Holy Spirit applies the merits of Christ's shed blood and cleanses from all sin.

IV. Isaiah's Call (v. 8).

Immediately following his cleansing came the call. Men must be cleansed from sin before they shall be called to God's service. Though God has many angelic beings who willingly go on errands for Him, yet He has errands upon which only cleansed human beings can go. The only ones who can really declare the gospel of God's grace are those who have experienced its saving power. God is asking this same question of men and women. Isaiah readily responded to his call by dedicating himself to the task. He said, "Here am I; send me."

V. Isaiah's Commission (vv. 9-13).

1. The Sending (vv. 9, 10). He had a most discouraging task before him. He is assured that the people will hear his message, but be unmoved by it. They will even increase in blindness and deafness to the divine warnings—they will neither be converted nor healed. Such a hopeless task would only be undertaken by one who had had a vision of God.

2. The Encouragement (vv. 11-13). Facing this discouraging outlook the prophet raised the inquiry, "Lord, how long?" The Lord in His reply showed him that it would [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

SPRING PARADE

"We're here," said the wild geese. "We have come to join the spring parade.

"Of course we do not all come together, for you know that is not the way in a parade.

"The different kinds of creatures are in different parts and sections of the parade."

"And the ones belonging together usually go together. So we're the wild geese section of the parade."

"Yes," said Mistress Spring, "I like to sit in the Spring grandstand and have all my dear friends pass me in the parade.

"I move my grandstand about, too, so I can see those who like to parade in the woods and those who like to parade near the marshes and brooks.

"Let me see. Who are coming next?"

"Here we are," chirped the robins. "We're in the spring parade."

"Of course you are, you darlings," said Mistress Spring.

"We're in the spring parade," said the red-winged blackbirds.

"Glad to see you," said Mistress Spring.

"You're great friends of mine," she added.

"Here we are," said the fox sparrows."

"Good," said Mistress Spring.

"And you've noticed us, we hope," said the crackles.

"Yes, indeed," said Mistress Spring.

"We're here," said the spring peepers, as Mistress Spring moved her grandstand nearer the ponds and the marshes.

"Hello, Little Garden Friend."

"Oh, you dear little cheery creatures," said Mistress Spring.

Then a few mourning cloak butterflies went by.

"Hello, Mistress Spring," they called.

"Hello," said Mistress Spring, "it is always a pleasure to see the butterflies."

"Croak welcome spring and Mistress Springtime, or Mistress Spring, for both are your names," said the wood frogs in chorus.

"Greetings, Mistress Spring," said the Leopard Frogs, wearing their handsome suits and looking very distinguished and fine.

"Greetings to all my dear frog friends," said Mistress Springtime, or Mistress Spring. Either name can be used for her. In fact any name can be used as long as it makes you think of the lovely springtime and the waking-up-time of so many little creatures and of the arriving time for many of the travelers.

"Hello," said Mr. Fowler's Toad and his family.

"Hello," said Mistress Spring.

The woodland flowers and shrubs and trees all came forth to hear her more clearly, and so did everything that belonged to the spring.

They care so much for the sound of her voice that even though they may be sleepy they open one eye and then the other until they are quite, quite awake for Mistress Springtime.

But Mistress Springtime doesn't hurry her creatures too soon.

She likes them to take little additional dozes and naps. There is nothing about Mistress Springtime that is like an alarm clock.

Besides colder days may come. No, she doesn't want to hurry her creatures [illegible] get so excited in their beds that the creatures all come out to see what it is about.

"Greetings, dear Miss Spring," said the American Toad.

[illegible]

LAND OF AMAZING FERTILITY

American Settler in Western Canada Tells of Splendid Crops Raised Year After Year.

Harold J. Gregory, of Lowe Farm, Manitoba, writes as follows:

"When I came to Canada from Lexington, Ill., in the fall of 1913, it was with the spirit of adventure and through curiosity. I always imagined that crossing the boundary line took me beyond the limits of civilization into 'No Man's Land,' and that this country abounded with bears, moose, caribou and other wild game. Imagine my disappointment when I reached my friend's home just in time to help him through a month of harvest—wheat, barley, flax and oats. I realized then the possibilities that this almost untouched territory held open to the home-seeking settler, with its rich, virgin soil, good markets, railroad systems, graded roads, etc.

"In the spring of 1914 I came back with the intention of testing out my judgment concerning the soil's grain-growing powers. This I did with complete satisfaction. I am now farming 480 acres of land at Lowe farm, and have raised crops of equal value to the purchase price of the land on which it was raised two or three different times. I have found this land to be superior in fertility to any land that I have ever seen, and I have seen land in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Wisconsin, and parts of Minnesota and North Dakota.

"The present low prices of machinery make this year an exceptional one in its opportunities to the man who wants to make a new start under favorable conditions. Why raise corn for 50 cents a bushel on $300 per acre land, when you can get good improved wheat land for $50 per acre, and wheat selling for $1.15 at your local elevator? I was enabled to purchase a Gray Dort automobile from the profit of a hay crop produced in one year. This district offers good facilities for stock raising and there are special opportunities for the hog raiser."

Information regarding all districts of Western Canada may be had from any agent of the Canadian government.—Advertisement.

The Privileged Ones.

"The middle class of citizenship usually has the hardest time," said the economic investigator.

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "The man whose status in the scale of wealth is midway between the private car and the flivver is the only one who can't keep touring so as to spend every summer in Florida and every winter in Maine."

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

"Science is nothing but trained and organized common sense."—Thomas Huxley.

The hands soon tire when the heart is weak.

A WOMAN'S NERVOUS SYSTEM

You Cannot Afford to Overlook One Word of This:

South Bend, Ind.—"It is a pleasure for me to recommend a medicine that has proved so beneficial as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has from the time I developed into womanhood. It not only built me up in health and strength but toned up my nervous system. Not only do I recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription on my own account but my sister's as well. Her suffering at times was terrible. The doctors had given her up when my mother gave her the 'Favorite Prescription' and it helped her at once and eventually cured her."—Mrs. Helen Bennett, 617½ Wenger St.

If you are run-down, nervous, see how quickly your nerves and strength are built up when you take this famous "Prescription" in tablet or liquid form. All druggists.

A Scratched Record.

One day recently Mary Birdella, age five, were visiting their grandmother, whom they call mamma. Mary Birdella was singing to one of her dolls when mamma joined in on the refrain. Harriet Jane looked up and said, very soberly, "Aw, mamma, your record's scratched."

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin

Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Advertisement.

Important Omission.

Young lady (telephoning)—Oh, doctor, I forgot to ask you about that eye medicine you gave me.

Doctor—Well?

Young Lady—Do I drop it in my eyes before or after meals?—Cornell Widow.

However things may seem, no evil thing is success, and no good thing is failure.

Well planned work is half done.

If You Need Strength and Reserve Power Take

TANLAC

The World's Greatest Tonic

PAINT

SAVE MONEY - ORDER BY MAIL DIRECT FROM MAKERS

Our 32 page Illustrated Booklet, "The Magic Story of Paint and Varnish" will tell you how best to select paint for the longest wear, for best results, at the lowest price. It contains full instructions compiled by an old master painter, for the application, as well as other essential things to know about paint and its uses. This valuable book together with sample for testing and color cards FREE.

WRITE TODAY

C. E. LIVELY & CO., 429 United Bank Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wanted—Wide Awake Agents to handle our line of imported Pocket Razors and Thermos Bottles

BIG PROFITS

EXCLUSIVE TERRITORY

Write for full particulars

C. C. HALL, INC.

347 Blossom Road - Rochester, N. Y.

Sell Motor Car and Tractor Oils

grease, paint specialties. Full or spare time. Samples free. Should have car or rig. The knack of selling will yield desirable earning. THE IVISON COMPANY, CLEVELAND, O.

NR Tonight

Tomorrow Alright

Get a 25c. Box.

Nature's Remedy

A. H. LEWIS MEDICINE CO.

25 TABLETS

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Phila., Pa.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I was weak, nervous, dizzy and had headaches. I was troubled in this way for two years and was hardly able to do my work. My friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am very sorry that I did not take it sooner. [illegible]

[illegible]

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is likely to make a woman lose confidence in herself. [illegible]

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound [illegible]

[illegible]

APRIL

PROMISING NEW TREATMENT FOR ERADICATION OF SAN JOSE SCALE

By A. L. QUAINTANCE, Entomologist in Charge Fruit Insect Investigations, United States Department of Agriculture.

The San Jose scale is just now exceedingly abundant and destructive in many orchards in the Bentonville, (Ark.) section, and growers state they are unable to adequately control the pest with the usual dormant tree treatments with lime-sulphur spray. While the bureau of entomology believes that thorough spraying with dormant tree strength of lime sulphur will control the San Jose scale, yet to meet the desire of orchardists for other than lime-sulphur treatments, a number of experiments with sprays were undertaken. The purpose of the present article is to call attention to results secured in the treatment of the scale by the use of a spray containing 2 per cent of lubricating or engine oil emulsified with potash fish-oil soap.

Remarkably Effective Spray.

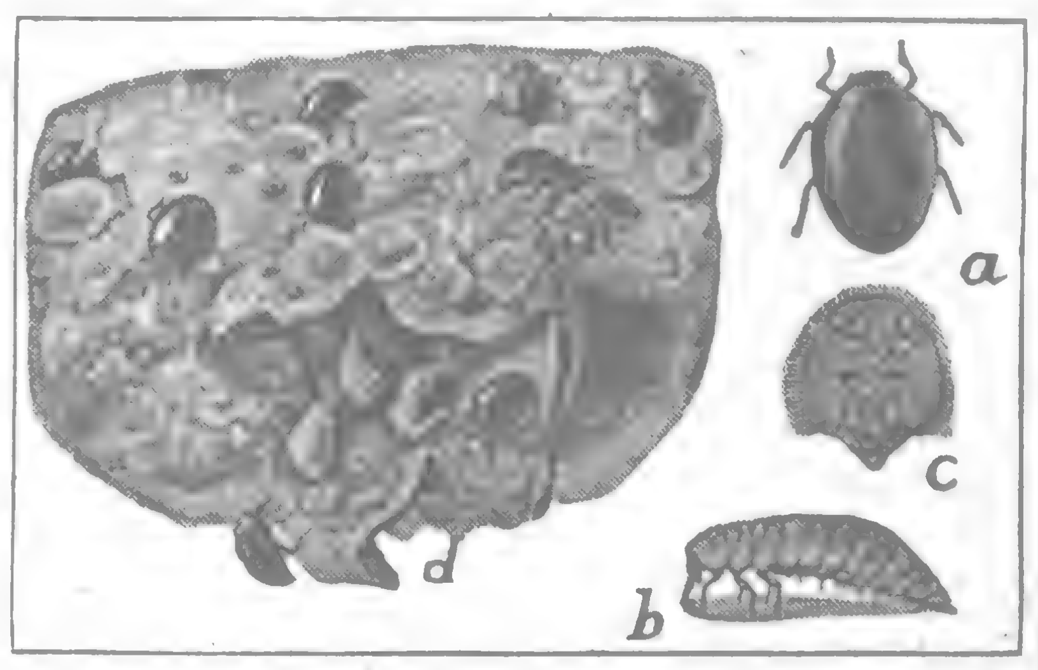
The careful experiments in Florida by W. W. Yothers with various sprays for the control of citrus scale insects and the orange white fly, as published in Farmers' Bulletin 933, resulted in a formula of engine-oil spray which has been found remarkably effective in view of the small amount of oil used, treatment containing 2 per cent of oil.

In order to render the treatment available to orchardists who may wish to test it on a small scale, the following directions for making the stock emulsion are given:

Formula for Stock Emulsion.

Red Engine Oil, or oil of similar grade	gallon 1
Water	do.. ½
Potash Fish-Oil Soap	pound 1

The oil, water and soap are placed in a kettle or other receptacle and heated until the contents come to a boil. A brown scum appears on the surface of the mixture as it first begins to boil. After boiling for a few minutes the brown scum begins to disappear and at this stage the kettle is removed from the fire and the entire mixture is pumped twice under pressure of about 60 pounds while still very hot. A proper emulsion cannot be made by stirring nor should the mixture be allowed to cool before it is pumped. Too much pumping will often break up the emulsion. During pumping, ordinary pump packing is burnt up rather quickly by the hot oil mixture. For making the stock emulsion on a large scale an all-metal pump would be necessary.



San Jose Scale With Larvae and Adult Beetles Feeding on Them—A, Adult Beetle; B, Larvae; C, Pupa; All Enlarged.

namely, 1 per cent, emulsified with potash fish-oil soap. Mr. Yothers found that any one of several oils of the lubricating type, when thoroughly emulsified and used at the dilution indicated, was quite effective against these scale insects and the white fly, and these sprays have now come into large commercial use in Florida.

The surprising efficiency of a spray containing such a low per cent of oil suggested the desirability of testing sprays of this character against the San Jose scale. The abundance and destructiveness of the scale in the Bentonville section of Arkansas and the desire of growers for other than lime sulphur sprays, has offered excellent opportunity for testing various dilutions of engine oil sprays against this pest. The experiments were carried out by A. J. Ackerman, of the office of deciduous fruit insect investigations, and have included tests of lubricating oils of a strength of from one-half per cent to 4 per cent or 5 per cent, thoroughly emulsified with potash fish-oil soap. The results showed practically complete killing of the scale by one thorough application of the spray of a strength as low as 2 per cent of oil.

Injury by Oil Spray.

A point yet to be established in connection with the present experiments is the possibly injury from oil spray which may result to the trees, twigs, or fruit buds, and several seasons' experience will be necessary before a final decision on this question can be reached. In view of the experience in Florida in spraying citrus trees in foliage with 1 per cent of oil, it is felt that dormant deciduous trees will probably stand without injury one annual

The stock emulsion contains 66 2-3 per cent of oil. To make a 2 per cent emulsion for use in a 200-gallon spray tank it is necessary to use 6 gallons of the stock emulsion.

Precaution should be taken to prevent the stock emulsion from freezing, which occurs at a temperature of about 15 degrees F. above zero.

Use Soft Water.

In case difficulty is experienced in making a proper emulsion, due to hardness of the water, the water used should be softened by the addition of 1 pound of caustic soda or lye per 100 gallons of diluted spray. The caustic soda should be dissolved in 2 or 3 gallons of water and then added to the spray tank and thoroughly stirred, after which the proper quantity of stock emulsion can be added.

Any one of the following, or similar oils, may be used, some one or more of which can doubtless be obtained in most parts of the country:

Diamond Paraffin Oil.
180 Red Neutral.
Jr. Red Engine Oil.
Nabob Oil.

An oil which has given excellent results in the experiments herewith reported has approximately the following characteristics:

Sp. gravity (20° C.)	.914
Flash Point	173° C.
Fire point	204° C.
Viscosity (20° C.) (Engler, H_2O=100)	17.81
Volatility (loss at 105° C.—4 hrs.)	3.8 per cent.
Acid or corroding substances	None.
Distillation 300—370° C.	48 per cent by volume.
Above 370° C.	52 per cent by volume.

PLANT PEAS FOR ALL SEASON

Soil Should Be Prepared the Same as for Other Crops.

Some Fertilizer Should Be Scattered Where Row Is to Be Planted and Then Raked In—Scatter Seed Along in Furrow.

In planting garden peas first prepare the soil the same as for other crops, then scatter a little fertilizer where the row is to be planted and rake this into the soil. Next stretch a line and make a deep mark with the corner of the hoe. The bottom of this mark should be at least three inches across so that the seed can be spread somewhat and not crowded too closely together. Scatter the seed in this furrow 15 to 20 seeds to the foot, then cover about three inches deep and [illegible] firm the soil over the seed with the back of the hoe. About two weeks will generally elapse before the sprout appears above the ground.

At least three, and preferably four, plantings should be made at intervals of two weeks in order to keep up a continuous supply, advises the United States Department of Agriculture. If the first planting is of Alaska the second should be of Gradus or Thomas Laxton, while the third should be of Excelsior and the fourth of Telephone or some similar variety. This will guarantee a continuous supply.

There is nothing particularly difficult about the [illegible] of peas—just keep them [illegible] erly trained upon the [illegible] trellis to keep them off the ground. After the peas are all gathered the vines and trellis can be [illegible] the ground planted to [illegible] late cabbage, [illegible] snap beans, or [illegible] or fall months.

Facts are [illegible]

PUPILS SAVE $52,000 IN ONE YEAR

[illegible]

GOOD HIGHWAYS

GRADING AND PAVING ROADS

Average Figures for Whole of United States Given Out by Bureau of Public Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What part of the cost of a road goes into grading and structures that are more or less permanent, and what part goes into the paving, which may eventually wear out?

This question is answered fully by statistics compiled by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture on 1,850 completed federal-aid roads, involving 7,500 miles of road, at a total cost of $112,000,000. Of the total cost, 21 per cent went into grading, 14 per cent into structure, 62 per cent into paving, and 3 per cent for engineering. These are the average figures for the whole of the United States, but there is considerable variation in different sections.

In the Middle Atlantic states, where grading is not heavy and paving must be built for heavy traffic, the cost of the paving rises to 75 per cent and the grading and structures fall to 15 per cent and 9 per cent, respectively.

In the Mountain states the problem is very different, much of the work being new construction with heavy grading, and the highest type of surface is not necessary. In this group of states the cost of grading amounted to 33 per cent, structures 20 per cent and paving 42 per cent.

An Improved Road in the Rocky Mountains.

TRAFFIC CENSUS OF TRUCKS

Information as to Speed and Size of Average Vehicle Obtained in New England.

How large is the average truck and how fast does it travel? This question and others of interest to truck owners and users of the highways are answered by information obtained in a recent traffic census taken by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, on one of the most traveled highways in New England. The census discloses that 40 per cent of the trucks were of 1 ton capacity or less; 33 per cent between 1 and 2½ tons; 5 per cent between 2½ and 5 tons; and that less than 2 per cent of the trucks were of more than 5 tons capacity.

On a level stretch of road, over which the speed of motor vehicles was timed, it was found that more trucks traveled at a speed of 20 miles an hour than at any other rate. Thirty-seven per cent traveled 20 miles an hour or faster. One truck, whose driver said he was in a hurry to get there, was found to be traveling at a speed of 45 miles an hour.

TREES FOR STATE HIGHWAYS

If Planted 50 or 60 Feet Apart They Will Not Harm Roads and Will Add Pleasure.

The Minnesota forestry department [illegible]

Suits of Blue; Hats of Yellow

The American woman does not wait to begin to display her fresh, new spring frocks and suits; already she is beginning to appear in seasonable clothes, which have only just been turned out by those who create these things with young enthusiasm each year.

But, hidden away in the corners of shops and studios, there are more and more lovely things waiting for what are known technically as "the exclusive." They are not too different from the styles of last year, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, but they are sufficiently changed to have an unmistakable newness of thrill about them.

The discussion and the game of short skirts versus long ones goes merrily on. No one can tell exactly what lengths they are going to be, or are, for that matter. At one fashion showing you will see skirts that cover the ankles and at the next you will see them rising to the knees. The whole performance leaves you with a sense of bewilderment and a feeling that there is nothing reliable in this direction upon which to base your theories of good style. However, it leaves a golden advantage for women to wear their skirts at exactly the lengths they wish and to look their best in the style that best suits them.

As for sleeves—well, as far as evening gowns are concerned, there are none whatever. There are merely apertures where the sleeves should be, and, in the dresses for the new season, these armholes become more and more severe and squared off. They are strangely becoming in spite of their severity, even though one might not expect them to be so. It is a fashion that you become used to and find that your original fears against it were founded upon sand.

In one of the very latest evening gowns there were these plain, carved-out armholes, into which flaring sleeves made of one layer of tulle were set. On the ends of the sleeves three wide bands of crystal bead embroidery were set so that they weighted the layer of nothingness in the most delicate, exquisite fashion.

Of sashes and girdles there are any number, and they are all surprisingly beautiful, for, along with the general simplicity of all of the more formal dresses, there goes this stunning opportunity to make the belt tell the whole story. When the dress is of some dull or indefinite color, then the waistline will, invariably, show some sparkling bit of color that makes the design a thrilling thing.

Unadorned Frocks.

Simplicity is a word that has been used overtime in connection with the newer styles, but really that ideal (even though we can find no better word) has reached the height of its expression in the newer gowns. They are all matters of line and color and out. Anything else—any trimming or [illegible] sleeveless lines, are nevertheless integral parts of the whole costume.

Charming Gray Crepe Dress Embroidered With Gray Silver.

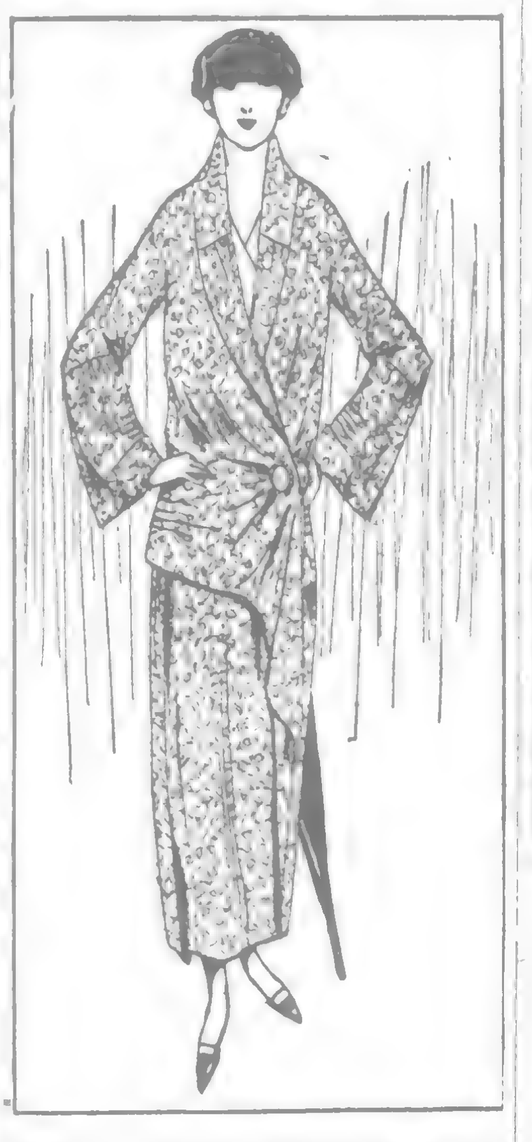
The dresses that are parts of these costume suits are as important by themselves as they are when worn in connection with the wraps designed to go with them. That is part of their charm, and most probably it is the reason why they have proved so extraordinarily popular. You see, when you buy a costume suit, you have not only a street dress, but one which does quite nicely for an indoor dress or for any occasion when it becomes necessary to wear a dress without a coat.

New Figured Silks.

So many times we see the dress for a costume suit made from a combination of some woolen material and silk. Then the wrap will be lined with that same silk, so that the whole arrangement harmonizes in a charming way. The silks are either plain or figured. So much depends upon the general character of the suit, but this is so: That the costume suit has given an excellent opportunity for using these pretty new figured silks, so that they look just right in connection with the whole design. Sometimes a figured silk, if it makes a whole frock, gives a little too much of a pattern, but when it is combined in this way with some plain material it shows off to excellent advantage.



One of the Popular Suits Draped From a Patterned Material.

The sport clothes for spring are, perhaps, the most conspicuous of all of the American creations, for they have developed a character that is entirely unique. They represent the innate personality of the American woman. They tell her particular story of simplicity with the utmost conviction, and there is hardly one among us who does not feel pleasantly at home when wearing clothes of this sort.

The tweed and homespun suits (homespun is the more attractive material for spring and summer) are made in all sorts of bright and interesting colors, and, more than any other of the spring clothes, they carry with them that feeling of the season which every one likes to inject into some part of their wearing apparel. There will be a gray-blue suit worn with a pink hat, or there will be a yellow-tan suit worn with a bright yellow hat, or there will be a combination of a cream-colored suit with a violet hat. And all of these things are so plain and well done that they slip into the scheme of dressing with the utmost ease.

Flower-Garlanded Hats.

Many of the hats turn away from the face and rise into a peak at front, while at the sides they show that graceful curve and droop which brings their lines gracefully curving to meet the shoulders. There are many hats with brims and crowns that are quite plain, but others of them show lace [illegible] and veils that supply the picturesque touch.

For later in the summer there will be [illegible] hats that droop all around the face and are trimmed with [illegible]

All Played Out at Quitting Time?
You Need
TANLAC
The World's Greatest Tonic

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Pat. Process Lloyd LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now For 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept. E
Menominee, Michigan (17)

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

REPRESENTATIVES
For line of widely used Ford accessories. High grade, live, guaranteed articles with [illegible] demand. Big profits—all or spare time. Wide awake effort means more than previous experience. Territory being [illegible] rapidly. Write now. BILT-RITE MANUFACTURING CO., Indianapolis, [illegible]

When two women begin to exchange compliments it's the recording angel's cue to get busy.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

SQUEEZED TO DEATH
When the body begins to stiffen and movement becomes painful it is usually an indication that the kidneys are out of order. Keep these organs healthy by taking
GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES
The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Famous since 1696. Take regularly and keep in good health. In three sizes, all druggists. Guaranteed as represented. Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

New Shoes
Old Shoes
Tight Shoes
all feel the same if you shake into them some
ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE
The Antiseptic, Healing Powder
Takes the friction from the shoe, freshens the feet and gives new vigor. [illegible]

Comfort Baby's Skin
With Cuticura Soap
And Fragrant Talcum
[illegible]

APRIL

L 912

NEWVILLE

Carl Clark has obtained employment in Auburn and commenced work there last week.

Mrs. Neva Gaff is with her late husband's parents at the present time, the two children being with Sam Wyatt and wife.

The school term closed here Saturday, both Mr. Koch and Miss Bernice Hart being highly appreciated as teachers.

Mrs. Jane Hatch, Mrs. Viola Harter and children were visitors of Frank Snellbaker and wife at Swanton, Ohio, recently.

Archie Sechler moved last week to the Gilingham place west of town. Mr. Sechler will run the huxter-wagon for Keesler store.

Dewey L. Miller has a fine 3-year old colt for sale, partly broke to single harness. Colt will be found at John Miller's barn.

Mrs. Elmer McDonald and little Harold Mendenhall of Butler were the guests Friday night of Dewey Miller and wife, and Saturday guests of the John Miller family.

(Intended for last week)

Alvin Keesier and wife had for their guests last week the latter's parents of Leo.

Ira Mendenhall, of Butler, was a guest in the John Miller home Saturday night, and the guest of Dewey Miller and wife, Sunday.

Mesdames Fern Elton and Dorothy Clark, and Miss Hilda Tarney have secured employment with the Double Fabric Tire Company at Auburn, and commenced work last week.

Dewey Miller and wife moved Thursday to the H. T. Smith house orth of town. Dewey was taken very ill the same night with an acute attack of appendicitis. Dr. Farnham, of Butler, was called, when he got to Newville was informed that he could not get to the home of the patient by auto. Byron Miller got a horse and buggy and drove him over. The Dr. gave relief and the patient was able to get out of bed Sunday.

A good Easter entertainment was held at both churches, Sunday, but on account of sickness in the family we were prevented from attending and cannot give a good report. Correspondent.

COLETOWN

(Intended for last week)

Mary Brown spent Sunday with Opal Walker.

Gladys Conine spent Monday with Mrs. Mildred Kling.

Clarence Baron ate dinner with Lester Pierman and wife, Monday.

Mrs. Ada Mann returned Saturday from an extended visit in Eastern Ohio.

Alvin Walker and family, and Vere Nelson, wife and daughter Betty, called on Elton Brown and family, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Clair Miller and daughter Georgia Evelyn, of Auburn; and Mark Murphy, wife and son Derrill, spent Sunday with the ladies' parents, Wm. Sauers and wife.

Edwin Guthrie and family, and Henry Kling and family spent Sunday evening with Elton Brown and family.

Eugene Newton ate Sunday dinner with Ross Pierman. They called on their uncle, Henry Murphy, in the afternoon.

Herbert Mills and wife, and Irving Ginther and wife visited Sunday with Emmet Ginther and family. The gentlemen returned to Ft. Wayne, Sunday afternoon, and the ladies remained for a longer visit.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs S. A. Abel is visiting her son [illegible] Abel and family near Newville for a few days.

[illegible]

Notice of Ditch Sale.

State of Indiana, } ss.
DeKalb County, }

Before the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana.

In the Matter of the Petition of Ora D Baker for Change and Repair of Adolphus Widney Drain

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, superintendent of construction, to whom was assigned the construction of the ditch and drain described in the report of the drainage commissioners in the above entitled petition, will, on the 6th day of May, 1922, at the hour of two o'clock p. m. of said day, at the office of the St. Joe News, in the the town of St. Joe, Indiana, receive bids for the construction of the said proposed ditch.

Said contract will be let to the lowest and best bidder.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

Dated this 18th day of April, 1922.

O. K. Shull,
Superintendent of Construction of said drain.

Notice of Ditch Assessment.

State of Indiana, } ss:
DeKalb County, }

Before the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana

In the Matter of the Petition of Ora D. Baker for change and repair of the Adolphus Widney Drain.

The undersigned, superintendent of construction, appointed by the said Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana, in the above entitled proceedings to construct a certain ditch and drain in the said county of DeKalb as described and reported in the report of the drainage commissioners therein made to the said Board of Commissioners on the 8th day March, 1922, and confirmed by said court on the 5th day of April, 1922, hereby gives notice to the landowners whose lands are assessed for the construction of said drain that the assessments against said lands and the respective landowners affected thereby are as follows, to-wit:–

Ora D. Baker	$285.90
Jacob Krabill and Ruby Krabill	15 00
Henry W. Stroyer	122 10
William M. Malone	66 90
Thomas E. White	42 50
Samuel A. Mumaw	81.00
Byron E. Widney	87.00
Samuel L. Widney	266.15
David L Carpenter	10 80
Ephriam W. Baker	140.00
Frank R. Bowman, Trustee of Concord Civil Township of DeKalb Co., Ind.	80.00

Each of the foregoing persons named as affected and assessed for the construction of the said drain are hereby notified to pay said assessments to the undersigned at The St. Joe Valley Bank, in St. Joe, in DeKalb County, Indiana, and in installments of ten per cent per month, the first of said installments to be paid on or before the 29th., day of May, 1922, and one of said installments to be paid on or before the 29th. day of each and every month thereafter until the whole of said sum of said assessments is paid or until a sufficient amount is paid to construct said drain.

Dated this 18th., day of April, 1922.

O. K. Shull,
Superintendent of Construction of said drain.

FOR JUDGE OF THE CIRCUIT COURT

DeKALB-STEUBEN COUNTIES

In presenting my name as a candidate for Circuit Judge, at the Republican Primaries, May 2, 1922, I have been impressed that the dignity of that office does not sanction on a "button-hole campaign"; even though available time and highway conditions made it possible for me to personally confer with every voter.

However, I do feel, that above all to know who their candidates for Judge are, and what they stand for. With that object in mind, for the benefit of those who have never met me personally, I wish to announce the following:

I was born in Stark County, Ohio, 1867; graduated from the High School in 1884; and from the Northern Indiana University in 1893.

When fifteen years of age, through force of circumstances, I was thrown upon my own resources. I worked my way through school and college. I taught school twelve years, of which seven years were as superintendent and principal of High Schools.

In 1895, I was admitted to the bar to practice law, at Auburn; later I was admitted to the bar of the Indaina Supreme Court, and to the bar of the Federal Court.

For twenty-seven years I have engaged in the active practice of law at Auburn. During these years I have waged many legal contests; and have built up one of the most lucrative practices, if not the largest, now enjoyed by any attorney in this Judicial Circuit. I have been zealous of the interests of my client, and for a number of years the large per cent of my cases won, has aroused favorable comment from those who have watched my career, and is evidence of my ability to correctly interpret the law.

I have never been a "policy man," but I have aimed to maintain the courage required to do my duty regardless of selfish interests. I have taken an active part in problems of community welfare, and in the work of the church, Y. M. C. A., Commercial Club, and schools. The official positions in these organizations, entrusted to me, is evidence of the confidence reposed in me by friends who know me best.

For the past four years I have been president of the Auburn School Board. I entered upon that service at a time when finance problems, presented, appeared almost unsurmountable. Today the people of Auburn point with pride to their splendid new High School building, completed, and the rapid advancement and the high rank attained by our schools during these four years.

If elected Judge, I pledge my earnest effort to do my duty. I courteously invite your careful scrutiny of my fitness for Judge, and your active support.

Respectfully,
J. E. Pomeroy.

Republican Candidate

FOR AUDITOR

OF DEKALB COUNTY

14 years a resident and merchant of Auburn.
A University student in accounting and auditing.

H. Lee Lawrence

solicits your support on the grounds of EFFICIENCY Primary, May 2

MONTE L. GREEN

President Garrett Savings, Loan & Trust Co. Garrett, Indiana, [illegible] nomination on the Democratic ticket at the primary, May 2, 1922 [illegible]

COUNTY TREASURER

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

H. C. SPRINGER

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Prosecuting Attorney, 35th Judicial District, DeKalb and Steuben counties.

Born at Huntington, Ind., 1894.

Received law education at the University of Indiana.

Served with U. S. troops on the Mexican border in 1916.

Enlisted as a private in World's War, and served overseas and discharged as a captain of infantry.

Has practiced law at Garrett for the past three years.

Your support will be appreciated

For Prosecuting Attorney

CHARLES S. SMITH

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit, DeKalb and Steuben counties, subject to primaries May 2nd.

Graduate of Indiana Law School.

Admitted to bar in 1900; also a member of bar of Supreme Court of Indiana, and Federal Court and the United States Circuit Court.

Has been in the active practice of law in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, for over twenty years, and served as Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit of Indiana for four years.

Received education in the common schools of Indiana and the Indiana State Normal and taught eight years in the public schools of Indiana.

For Recorder

Please announce my candidacy for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the primary, May 2nd.

Byron Platt,
Franklin Township.

For Sheriff

I desire to announce through the News that I am a candidate for nomination for county sheriff on the democratic ticket, subject to the will of the voters at the primaries on May 2.

I acted as deputy sheriff under Frank Baltz for 4 years to the satisfaction and good of the county.

My home prior to my appointment to public life was in Jackson township. Your hearty support will be greatly appreciated.

Charles Davis, Auburn.

For Recorder

Mason S DeLong of Fairfield [illegible] his name for the [illegible] nomination for recorder of [illegible] county at the primaries, May 2nd.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

[illegible]

Better than Pills

YOU WILL NEVER wish to take another dose of pills after having once used Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easier and more pleasant to take, more gentle and mild in their action and more reliable. They leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by severe constipation, requiring a constant increase in the dose. Every bottle guaranteed by your druggist.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Obituary

Lawrence O. Gaff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orange Gaff, was born in Allen County, Eelriver Township April 5, 1893, and departed this life April 17, 1922, at the age of 29 years and 12 days. At the age of 11 he moved with his parents to DeKalb County, where he since resided. On June 22, 1913 he was united in marriage to Neva L. Wyatt. To this union were born two children, Kenneth, age 6, and Eileen, age 3.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides a faithful wife and two children, a father and mother, one brother, two sisters, and a host of friends.

During his quest for health no sacrifice was thought too great if only he might regain his former health. For nearly four months he took medical treatment at Fort Wayne A little encouragement was received here but, like a shadow before the sun, it soon passed and the inevitable claimed its own.

Funeral services were held from the Newville U B Church Thursday, April 20, Rev. P A Hubbart officiating, E R. Kinsey funeral director. Burial in Riverview Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The relatives wish to extend their heartfelt appreciation to the friends and neighbors for their kindness in service, which seemed so untiring, during the illness and death of their loved one.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

John Sechler, wife and sons spent Sunday at Mooresville guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pifer.

Why drag around feeling half sick and no account all the time when you can get Tanlac? At Sheffer's drug store.

Little Miss Marion Miller left on Saturday morning for her home at Ottawa, Ohio, after having finished her school year at this place.

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a rarm.

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many [illegible] before occupying [illegible]

[illegible]

Mrs. Lulu Reichelderfer of Harlan spent over Sunday here with her brother, S. S. Widney and also others.

Notice:—It is the duty of every voter of the county to be out at the primary, May 2, and while there don't overlook the name of William H. Brecbill for county commissioner, on the democratic ticket.

For Sheriff.

I wish to announce to the readers of the News in DeKalb county that I am a candidate for sherifi subject to the wishes of the democratic voters at the primary, Tuesday, May 2nd.

William G. Morr.

For Recorder

Please announce that I am a candidate for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the wishes of the voters at the primary, May 2.

A. V. Smith.

For Trustee Concord Twp.

I wish to announce to all the men and women voters of Concord Township that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for trustee, subject to your decission in the primary, May 2nd.

Ray D. Herrick.

For Assessor

I wish to announce my name as a candidate for the democratic nomination of county assessor at the primaries on May 2nd.

Francis M. Wiltrout.

For Recorder

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for county recorder, from Grant township. Your support will be appreciated.

Mrs. Mary Miser.

For Representative.

Vote for Cleve H. Grube of Stafford township for nomination for state representative on the democratic ticket in the primary May 2. He will appreciate your support.

For Sheriff

I will be a candidate for sheriff of DeKalb county, subject to the wishes of the voters of the democratic ticket at the primary, May 2.

Dallas Trevey, Auburn, Ind.

For Assessor

My name has been solicited for assessor of Spencer township on the democratic ticket, subject to the primary May 2d, 1922. Your support will be appreciated.

McClellan Hart.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket subject to their nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county in the May Primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Recorder.

George J. Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Auditor.

I [illegible] that I am a [illegible] Democratic nomination [illegible]

[illegible]

APRIL

In the First Place save

Then you have the right to Spend

Get the habit of saving something Each Week

Saving with an object in view is a splendid duty.

We will aid you to realize your ambition by starting now with us
A Saving Account
you will be proud of.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

The Ladies Guild will hold a business meeting on Thursday afternoon at the M. E. Church.

Mr. and Mrs. R. U. Bowser visited the former's brother, Homer Bowser and family, of near Huntertown.

The young people of the Epworth League of the Huntertown M. E Church will give a play at this place, May 3.

School closed on Saturday with the High School Commencement Saturday evening. Prof. Grose, of DePaw University, gave the address.

The intermediate room surprised the teacher, Ross Able, by bringing well filled baskets on the last day of school. The pupils were assisted by their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Bets spent Monday the guests of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Billman.

Don Kimes and Otis Koch spent Saturday and Sunday, the guests of their parents. The boys are employed at South Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Vallieu and family entertained on Sunday at thier home: Mr. and Mr. Frank Parsons and daughter, Jeanuette, Mr. and Mrs. William Vallieu and daughter, Bevere, of Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wise, of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Wise and daughter, of Waterloo.

Conkey's
BUTTERMILK
STARTING FEED

Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed saves little chicks and starts them on the road to [illegible] the sensitive digestive organs of the little chicks and helps to prevent White Diarrhea.

Conkey's is Different—No Dried Buttermilk

Conkey makes the only, original Buttermilk Starting Feed. Conkey never uses [illegible] THE ORIGINAL process which is exclusively used by Conkey [illegible] thoroughly incorporated with the other ingredients. [illegible] alone—it's THE ORIGINAL Conkey process of combining them that produces such wonderful results.

We also have Conkey's Feeders,
Roup Remedies, White Diarrhea
Remedies, Lice Powders,
Poultry Tonic, Noxicide.
SPRAYERS

Remember we carry a full line of CONKEY'S Buttermilk Feed and Remedies; also Charcoal and Grit in Baby Chick sizes, which all baby chicks must have to be grown [illegible]

We have in our office Conkey's Poultry Books, which [illegible]—FREE TO YOU

You cannot go wrong on CONKEY'S.
STEWARD GRAIN [illegible] - Spencerville, Ind.

The Spencer Township Sunday School convention was held at this place on Sunday afternoon and evening. The officers elected to serve for the next year as follows: Pres., M. H. Howey, Sec. and Treas., Mrs. Ered Hart, Sec. of young people, Miss Elisabeth Mhorne, Adult Sec., George Beams, Sup't of Education, Floyd Coburn, Sup't of Instruction, Claude Laub.

Mr. Lane Opposses The Fairfield Plan

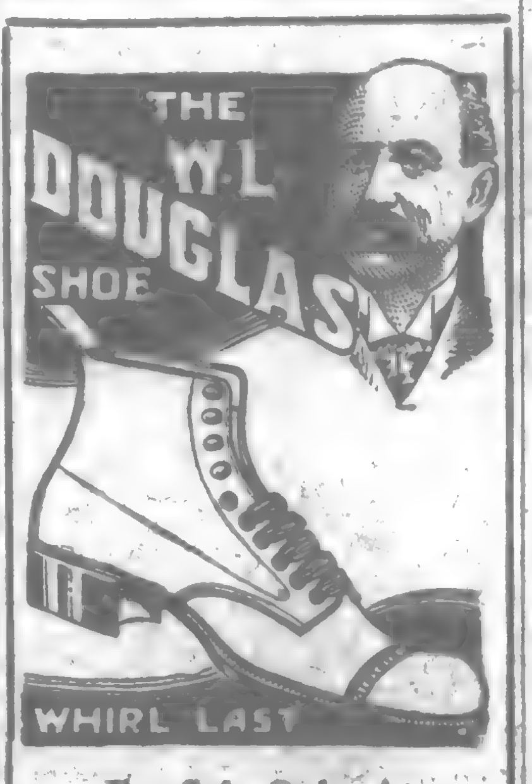
Dear Mr. Editor:-

In item No. 4 of my platform as shown by the advertisement in this issue of your paper, your readers find reference to Mr. Fairfield's proposition to cut down Indiana's membership in the house from thirteen to twelve. The growth of some states makes it proper to give them more congressmen, but while I have no objection to keeping the house at its present size by enlarging the districts and the voter unit, I have a strong objection to cutting down Indiana's membership to give it to democratic Oklahoma, which---poor fish---spawns all the political heresies in the catalog and makes them constitutional. If Mr. Fairfield's pet plan prevails, the next legislature of Indiana in redistricting the state will add Adams and Wells counties to our district, the twelfth, and as they have democratic majorities of 4500 to 5000, there would never again be elected a republican congressman from this district. The only way to beat the plan is to beat Fairfield in the primary, May 2. The republican leaders of Indiana have argued and pleaded with him to save the state from congressional loss, but he refuses to chauge his mind.

In his letters to republibans received here last week, Mr. Fairfield said that he "steadfastly held his ground."

I do not believe the republicans of the twelfth district approve his plan. The republicans of the eighth district which now includes Adams and Wells counties would be glad to get rid of them, but we don't want them in the twelfth. A vote for me May 2 will guarantee that they won't be tied to our district.

C. R. Lane.



For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

J. Y. W. McCLELLAN
For County Assessor,
Democratic Ticket,
Primary May 2nd.

Has been connected with farming all his life.

Has been a member of the County Council.

Has been superintend't of dredge drains.

Has been executor and guardian of estates.

Has been identified with public welfare work for several years.

Has served two terms as mayor of Auburn.

His administrations speak for themselves.

Was urgently requested to run for third term, but refused.

For honesty, integrity and ability he refers to the voters of his neighborhood, and people all over DeKalb county who have known him for years.

Three things help to make a successful public servant: Initiative, Backbone and Decission.

Democrats, your votes are respectively solicited.

For County Assessor.

I am asking for the nomination for County Assessor on the republican ticket at the primary, May 2. [illegible] with me, any support you can give me wil. be appreciated:

Wm. J. Carnahan.

M. P. Church Notes

ST. JOE, IND.

The prayer meeting on Thursday evening will begin at 7:30. The text for the evening, is found in Matt. 5. The Beatitudes, are they practical. The pastor is anxious to have a good attendance at this service. Let us keep up the good start we made during Lent.

The third quarterly meeting of the charge will be held at Concord on Sunday p. m., May 7th.

The National convention of the young people's organisations of the Methodist Protestant church will be held at Indianapolis, May 11th to 14th. Owing to this convention there will be only a one day session of the state association. The state meeting was to have been held here this year.

Good attendance at the Sunday school and church services Sunday. Preaching next Sunday evening.

Christian Church Notes

The Martha society is meeting this (Thursday) afternoon with Mrs. Virginia Lawson. Unless otherwise notified feel free to bring your own work.

The Loyal Boys and Girls had a new member added to their number Sunday in the person of Miss Allen Douglas.

Twenty-three, including members and their children, of the Loyal Sons and Daughters, met in an all day session for their monthly class meeting Sunday last with Foster Gee and wife, a pot luck dinner being served at noon. The regular business session was held in the afternoon, and a pleasant social time was enjoyed afterward.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Tanlac makes people strong, sturdy and well by toning up the vital organs. At B. S. Sheffer's.

WOOL
WANTED
HIGHEST Price Paid
Jack Beams,
Spencerville,
Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Ford size
Batteries

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Watch for our RADIO PHONE Announcement!
We are going to sell outfits soon. Radio is all the go, now.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

Get a SQUARE DEAL
When You Buy
FENCE
SQUARE DEAL FENCE

Buy the Fence You Know —you can depend on—one that will stand up tight and trim the whole year 'round —one that will give and take with sudden strains and season's changes—one that will last more years, cost less for repairs, require fewer fence posts, turn all kinds of stock better, hold its shape and resist rust louger—in short, give you the most for your money in real fence service and satisfaction.

That's the kind of fencing we have to sell—we want your patronage and we want to sell you fencing that will give you the best in value, service and satfaction, that's why we handle

SQUARE DEAL FENCE

Come in and let us show you the superior qualities of SQUARE DEAL FENCE—how the SQUARE DEAL LOCK locks the strand and stay wires four ways and positively prevents slipping and sagging of the wires
This feature also gives you a rigid fence with fewer posts.

For Sale By
SPENCERVILLE LUMBER CO.
Spencerville, Indiana

Yeiser for auditor.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Wanted—to hear from owner of farm for sale. State price. Mrs. W. Booth, Box D, Hipark, Des Moines, Iowa.

C. A. Fatterson and wife of Ft. Wayne were last Sunday guests of J. P. Buckingham and wife.

Virgil Perry, wife and brother, Wilbur Perry, of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives here.

Dan Myers, wife and children and Ira Driver spent last Saturday as guests of the Garrell sisters at Ball's corners.

William Henley and wife entertained in honor of the latter's sister, Mrs Maude DeLauder, of Durand, Mich., who came Thursday to visit until May 1st, Ross Mohr and wife, and the Misses Marjorie Evens and Jane Merrick of Elkhart and Holland Sherrick of Aburn.

An equation: Work well done equals satisfaction.

E. P. Brown, wife and children spent Sunday in Fort Wayne.

Are you going to raise pickles this year? Get your contract at the News Office.

Mrs. Alice Warner and Mrs. F.H. Langley were last Sunday guests of Rolland Bears and wife.

Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
[illegible] STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.

APRIL

L 912

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

"I JUST COULDN'T"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted, Polly's feeling being adoration. Oscar kills Polly's lamb and Percival thrashes Oscar. MacKenzie orders the squatters to leave. Evelyn plans to marry MacKenzie.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

—8—

"Darling," he broke forth, "I'm just so happy, I can't have a row with Bob. Why don't you talk to him about the squatters? He'll listen to you, Eve! But, darling, that's a detail." He took one of her hands and kissed the tips of her slender fingers. "The most important thing to be considered now is when are you going to marry me? I can't, I simply can't wait much longer! Oh, Eve, Eve, I want you!"

Fiercely he drew her head against him; and the silence that followed was fraught with rapture for them both. Oh! She wanted to be his wife, to forget the past two wretched years. If Oscar did not stand in her way, how quickly she would give this man the happiness he craved and drink deep of it herself.

"When, my love?" breathed Marcus thickly, caressing her. "When, dear?"

Gravely she lifted her head and looked into his eyes for a few seconds.

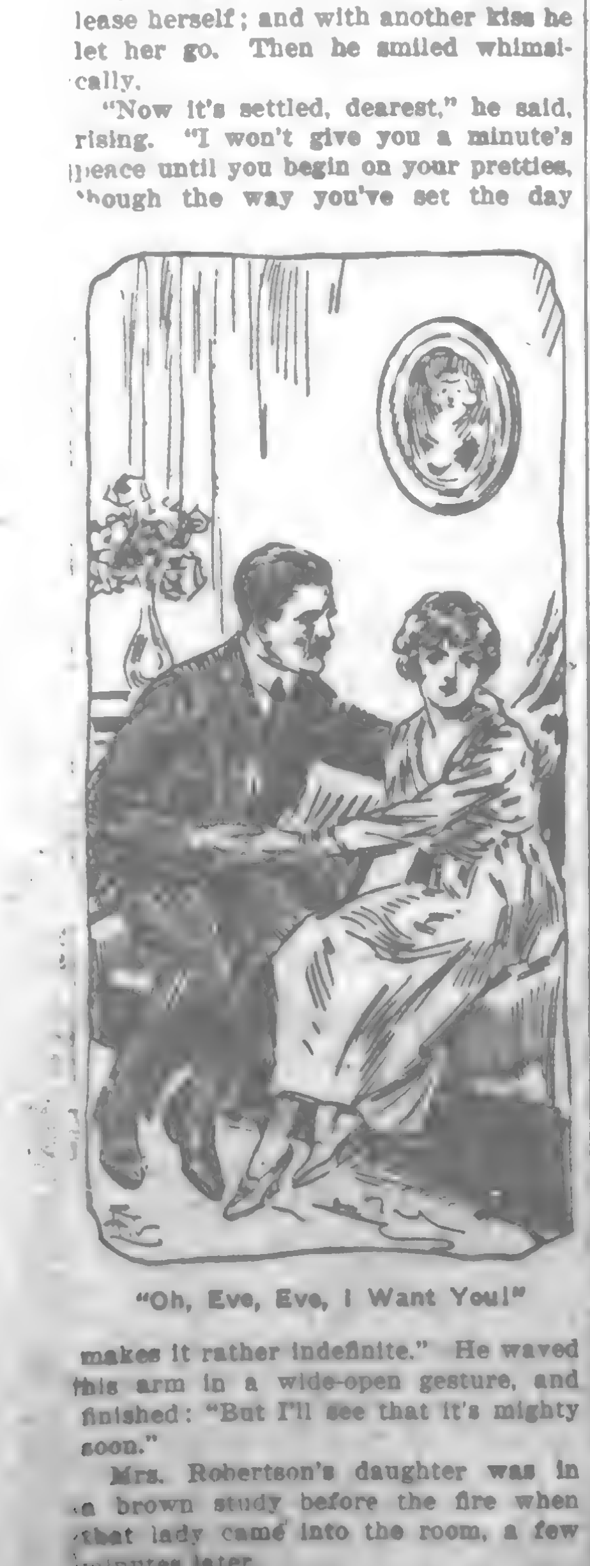
"When you buy the Bennett farm," she ventured. "It—it—"

"And get rid of the squatters too, I suppose," he laughingly interrupted.

"And get rid of the squatters too," nodded Evelyn. Then she kissed him softly and whispered, "My sweetheart!"

A moment later she moved to release herself; and with another kiss he let her go. Then he smiled whimsically.

"Now it's settled, dearest," he said, rising. "I won't give you a minute's peace until you begin on your pretties, though the way you've set the day makes it rather indefinite." He waved his arm in a wide-open gesture, and finished: "But I'll see that it's mighty soon."



"Oh, Eve, Eve, I Want You!"

Mrs. Robertson's daughter was in a brown study before the fire when that lady came into the room, a few minutes later.

"Marc went early tonight, didn't he, Eve?" she questioned, as she dropped into a chair.

"He had to go and meet someone about those tiresome squatters," Eve answered. "I'm sick of the sound of their names. Marcus says if he can't get rid of them, he'll leave Ithaca."

A step in the hall closed the conversation for the time being, and a moment later Robert Percival joined them. In silence Mrs. Robertson studied his face. She wondered what had changed him so perceptibly in the last little while. He looked almost haggard to her searching eyes. She was about to question him as to his health when the young man turned to Evelyn.

"Eve, dear," he began hesitatingly, "I want something done very badly, and perhaps you can accomplish it for me."

A lazy smile stole to Evelyn's lips.

"And you know, Bob, I'll do it if I can," she responded. "Tell me what's on your mind, honey."

"Certainly; why, yes, indeed," interjected Mrs. Robertson. "You know, Bob, Eve and I will do anything we can for you!"

The expression of anxiety, which his face had worn since he had seen the last of Polly Hopkins, lifted a little.

"That's fine!" he exclaimed heartily. "There's nothing like a fellow's own women folks, is there? And you're just as good to me as if I belonged to you."

Mrs. Robertson bridled consciously, pleased with her nephew and pleased with herself.

"Why, Robert, dear," she returned, "you do belong to us. God bless you, boy, you're my baby and Eve's little brother. Now tell us what's bothering you."

"It's Marc's row with the squatters! I can't get the poor devils out of my mind. Eve, can't you get him to leave the settlement people alone? I'd let them have some of my land, but it doesn't touch the lake, and they couldn't make a living on it."

Evelyn arose and crossed the room to the table. She had not expected this. Her promise to MacKenzie flashed into her mind!

"I don't like interfering with Marc's business, Bob," she demurred. "Besides, he wants to improve the property down there, and he can't while the fishermen stay on the shore!"

Gently, for Robert had always been like a younger brother to her, and she loved him dearly, Evelyn explained MacKenzie's plans and showed how impossible it was for her, under the circumstances, to interfere with them. Then she crossed to his side and bent over him.

"Robert, dear," she begged. "Forget about the squatters. They aren't anything special to you!" To head off an objection that she saw in his eyes, she hurried on: "They're poor and unfortunate, I know. I'm sorry for them. We all are; but you can't deny they're worthless and filthy, and worst of all, they haven't any right to be where they are. You won't let them come between you and Marc and me, will you?"

Without giving the man a chance to answer, Mrs. Robertson interrupted:

"Mercy, Eve, why of course he won't! Marc will soon be one of the family. People of our social standing don't wrangle over such cattle as the squatters." She turned smilingly to the young man and ended sweetly: "You feel that way, don't you, Bob?"

Disregarding both the lady and her question, Robert got up, his lips grim and his fine brow corrugated with lines. Evelyn and Marcus could do as they pleased; he would take his stand right there.

"Evelyn," he said slowly, "I should be sorry to have anything come between us. You've always been like a dear sister to me. I suppose it's natural and right for you to see this the way Marc does. You're engaged to him, but you can tell him for me I'm going to help the squatters any way and every way I can."

Too angry to listen to any more arguments, he pushed his chair to one side and left the room.

Mrs. Robertson looked daggers at her daughter and as soon as she could get her breath, broke out:

"Now, Evelyn, see what a storm you've stirred up! Why didn't you use a little diplomacy? That was the least you could have done. You get Marc and Bob by the ears, and where'll you be!"

"Oh! I don't know! I don't know!" moaned Evelyn. "Don't talk to me any more. I'm just about crazy. I'm going to bed! Good night!"

CHAPTER IX.

In spite of the weight of apprehension that pressed upon the Silent City, Polly's soul insisted on singing with gladness. She found opportunity, even in the midst of her busy hours, to live over and over the adventures of that evening in the Robertson house. When she remembered how Robert had held her in his arms, her happiness made her almost faint.

She allowed Jerry's gingham blouse to fall neglected in her lap, as in imagination she dwelt on every incident of her visit. She recalled the thrilling tenderness in Robert's words, and her face grew soft in delightful revery.

A sound at the door brought her thoughts back and she glanced up startled. Unnoticed, the blouse dropped to the floor as Evelyn Robertson came in. Embarrassed and in silence, Pollyop arose and offered her a chair.

"You ain't feeling well, I bet," she burst out, wiping the dust from the rope seat of the rocker with her skirt. "You look white like the moon does before a rain. Go on, an' sit down!"

Sinking back, Evelyn looked steadily up at her. Then she caught at the hand resting on her shoulder.

"Pollyop, I've come to you because you're the only friend I have," she exclaimed, tears misting her eyes.

"I'm awful glad you come to me," Polly breathed softly. "You want me to run to Oscar again? I can't stand the sight of that duffer, but I'll go just the same. Have you got a letter?"

Wiping her eyes, Evelyn shook her head.

"No, but Oscar wants to see you," she replied. She paused and studied the girl. "Polly," she continued, "don't you want to do something for—for your people? There's a way, Pollyop, that you can—"

Impulsively Polly could not wait.

"Do you mean help Daddy Hopkins an' the rest of 'em?" she interrupted.

Evelyn nodded.

"Yes, every one in the settlement."

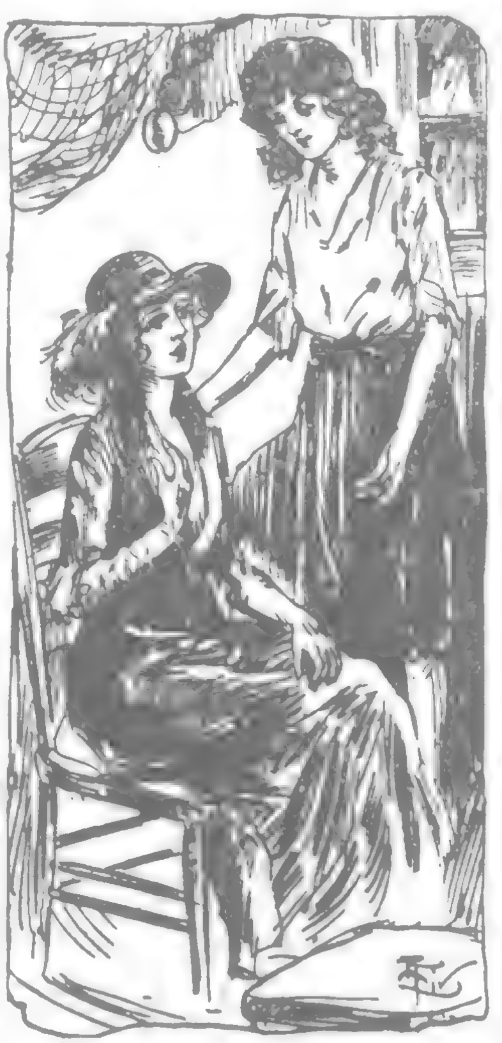
A brilliant smile lit up Pollyop's countenance.

"I'd give inches out of my hide to do that," she declared. "Go an, an' yap it to me."

"Then sit down, dear," entreated Evelyn, "and don't stare at me so!"

To have saved her life, Pollyop could not drag her eyes away, but obediently she sat down on the floor. Evelyn fidgeted under the searching, honest gaze.

"You know, Polly," she stammered, "how it is between Mr. MacKenzie and me. I can make him do anything I say. Oh, if I were free from Oscar Bennett!"



"I'm Awful Glad You Come to Me," Polly Breathed Softly.

"Then you could marry Old Marc, huh?" Polly interposed with a bob of the chestnut curls, "an' boss him, I bet."

"Something like that, Polly," Evelyn admitted. "That's why I've come to you. When I'm free, I can make Mr. MacKenzie let up on your people."

Anxiously weighing every word, Polly's quick mind ran on ahead.

"An' to do that," she threw in, "you got to get shut of Oscar! I don't blame you for wantin' to, but how be you goin' to work it, Miss Eve? I can't see no help for the squatters if your marryin' Old Marc's part of it."

"That's what I'm trying to tell you, Polly," was the quick retort, "but I want your promise. You help me, and I'll help you and your people. Oscar says he'll free me if—if—you'll marry him."

For an instant Polly's head whirled as if it had been suddenly struck and over her came a weight almost unbearable. Then slowly she shook her curly head.

"I couldn't do that, ma'am," she choked. "I just couldn't."

"But you said you would," retorted Evelyn sharply. "You must. I can save the squatters, and I will; but only on condition that you help me get rid of Oscar Bennett. Mr. MacKenzie is going to buy the Bennett farm, and—"

"An' Oscar'll be goin' away somewheres else?" put in Polly. "Is that it? He'd take me away from Daddy Hopkins an' from—"

She caught herself just in time. She had it on the tip of her tongue to add the name of Robert Percival, but of course she did not.

"I couldn't ever do that," she ended. "Never, never!"

The blue eyes looked into the brown eyes [illegible].

"Oh, yes, you can," insisted Miss Robertson. "Oscar's not the worst in the world. [illegible] a lot of money [illegible]. He [illegible] make life easy and [illegible] for you."

A thoughtful moment or two passed, while Polly Hopkins gazed at her hands locked together in her lap.

"You can't tell me nothin' about Oscar," she remarked at length. "I know the dirty duffer, an' I don't know nothin' good about him, you can bet your boots on that." She paused while through the open doorway her eyes were fixed upon a fleecy cloud, high up in the deep blue sky. "But that don't make no difference," she continued. "If I linked up with Oscar, would that pup, Old Marc, let the squatters stay in the Silent City?"

"Why, Polly, dear, of course he will! I talked with Oscar last night, and I'll speak to Mr. MacKenzie just as soon as you promise to do what Oscar wants."

Again the smiling face of Robert Percival cut across Polly Hopkins' mental vision, and through the silence of the shanty she head his voice—deep, low and like music. Then the evil face of Bennett wormed itself into her mind. Her lids drooped, and she shuddered.

"I couldn't do it, ma'am," she wailed. "I just couldn't do that!"

Evelyn arose and stood over her.

"You must, Polly," she asserted again. "Good heavens, it's the chance of your life! Of course you'll do it, Polly Hopkins. Take a little time to think it over. I'll bring Oscar to see you some day when Mr. MacKenzie and my cousin Robert are away."

At the sound of that beloved name, Polly's head fell forward.

"Scoot now," she said, her curls hiding her face. "I'll think about it."

After Evelyn had gone, Polly mechanically resumed her sewing. It seemed that her heart's joy had wholly died within her. Patiently she tried to turn her attention to the work in her hands, but again and again she caught herself sitting with idle fingers.

Finally, worried by the conflicting emotions that were crowding in upon her, Polly flung herself into the open and ran swiftly along the ragged rocks to a little glen where many a time she had been before. Here she waded through the brook and sank down beside it. Mind-picture after mind-picture passed before her. She saw Daddy Hopkins happy with Jerry in the shanty, no longer afraid to fish and hunt. Then she visioned the Silent City, safe at last, and saved by her. Her head sank into her hands; and sobs racked her slender body.

But it was not long before she sat up and tossed back her curls. It seemed as if she had heard a voice. She turned her head slowly; and lo, Robert Percival was standing across the creek, smiling at her.

"I followed you, Polly Hopkins," he called, and springing across the water, he added: "You ran so fast I lost you at the corner of the ragged rocks, and it's taken me all this time to find you."

He sat down beside her and took her hands; but Polly could not look up at him. Embarrassed beyond utterance, she withdrew her fingers, letting them fall listlessly. Robert laughed. Her lovely face, first white then scarlet, only told him that she was glad to see him, and spoke of girlish innocence, dear to all men.

"You went away so suddenly the other night," he ran on. "I didn't have a chance to say half I wanted to. I had something for you, too, but couldn't get away until today to bring it down."

He pulled a little roll of paper from his pocket and handed it to her. Wonderingly she opened it, and there was an exact reproduction of "The Greatest Mother in the World."

Polly was so overcome she continued silent.

"Don't you like it, little Pollyop?" queried Robert, putting his fingers under her chin and raising her face to his.

"Yep!" she whispered, blushing. "Sure, sure I do. I love it."

"Then why don't you smile?" he demanded; and as she shyly complied with his request, he ran on: "I've talked with MacKenzie, and he's so set— Confound it! He makes me so hot I can scarcely listen to him. But, Polly dear, I'll do everything I can. I've got money and friends, as well as he has, and I'll use 'em too. Will you trust me, sweet?"

She bowed her head in grateful assent. How she thrilled at the touch of the warm, white hand!

"Look at me, dearie," he begged, and, when she did flash him a rosy glance, he caught her to him. "I love you, little girl," he whispered.

"An' love's the greatest thing in Ithaca, ain't it?" she murmured in trembling confusion.

"Yes, yes," he breathed. "Little girl—oh, my littlest dear—"

His voice trailed away, and his passionate kisses made Polly Hopkins forget everything but him. Primeval passion rose within her. She had found her man, and nothing should take him from her.

"I'll keep the baby an' the shanty 'till you get back, Daddy darlin'."

[illegible]

[illegible]

In Homes where there are children

SANITARY walls are essential. Germ laden walls may be the cause of much illness. Why take a risk when it is so easy to have Alabastined walls—beautiful, artistic and absolutely sanitary.

Alabastine

—Instead of Kalsomine or Wall Paper

Alabastine, either in simple single colors or the many hued onyx effect so rich and so easily produced by the new Alabastine Opaline process, will give you walls which are germ proof—walls in harmony with your rugs and draperies—any tone or tint to please your taste or fancy.

To obtain Alabastine effects you must use genuine Alabastine. Be sure to look for the cross and circle printed in red on every package. And, be sure to ask your dealer or decorator to show samples of the truly beautiful Alabastine-Opaline Process.

The Alabastine Company
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Safety first—a conspiracy to rob the doctor, hospital and undertaker.—Hoover.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Ignorant.

Husband—Did you ever notice, my dear, that a loud talker is generally an ignorant person?

Wife—Well, you needn't shout so, I'm not deaf.

Supply and Demand.

"You said you wouldn't marry the best man living."

"Maybe it's a case of sour grapes," confided Miss Cayenne. "It's highly improbable that I'd have the chance."

Red Cross Ball Blue should be used in every home. It makes clothes white as snow and never injures the fabric. All good grocers.—Advertisement.

Nothing to Forget.

Bess—A wife makes a man forget a whole lot of trouble.

Bob—That a bachelor never has.

Use your brain now and save your feet later on.

She Discovered It, Too

"After 10 years of hit or miss baking with various other brands of powder I at last discovered that the bitter taste sometimes found in hot breads was caused from alum in cheaper grades of powder. So I am now an ardent booster for Royal Baking Powder."

Mrs. L. A. J.

ROYAL
BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

Contains No Alum — Leaves No Bitter Taste

Send for New Royal Cook Book—It's FREE

Royal Baking Powder Co., 130 William St., New York

Just So.

"Money talks."

"And yet a bank seems unusually quiet."

Money is the most important substitute for brains.

Poverty comes mostly from thoughtless spending.

If every one in the world would go to work, problems of strikes and unrest would vanish.

Constant nagging soon hardens the softest heart.

A piece of ice always feels better down the back of somebody else's neck.

Genuine

BAYER

Bayer-Tablets of Aspirin
The Bayer Company, Inc.
117 Hudson St. NY

Aspirin

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin. Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Headache — Colds — Rheumatism
Toothache — Neuralgia — Neuritis
Earache — Lumbago — Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

APRIL

A SUMMONS HOME

Everything Else She Tried and Failed—But Her Last Trick Won Success.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

MRS. THADDEUS CLAYTON came softly into the room and looked with apprehensive eyes upon the little old man in the rocking chair.

"How be ye, dearie? Yer hain't wanted fer nothin', now, have ye?" she asked.

"Not a thing, Harriet," he returned cheerily. "I'm feelin' real pert, too. Was there lots there? An' did Parson Drew say a heap o' fine things?"

Mrs. Clayton dropped into a chair and pulled listlessly at the black strings of her bonnet.

"'Twas a beautiful fun'ral, Thaddeus—a beautiful fun'ral. I—I 'most wished it was mine."

"Harriet!"

She gave a shamed-faced laugh.

"Well, I did—then Jehiel and Hannah Jane would 'a' come, an' I could 'a' seen 'em."

The horrified look on the old man's face gave way to a broad smile.

"Oh! Harriet—Harriet!" he chuckled, "how could ye seen 'em if you was dead?"

"Huh? Well, I—Thaddeus"—her voice rose sharply in the silent room—"every single one of them Perkins boys was there, and Annabel, too. Only think what poor Mis' Perkins would 'a' given ter seen 'em 'fore she went! But they waited—waited, Thaddeus, jest as everybody does, till their folks is dead."

"But, Harriet," demurred the old man, "surely you'd 'a' had them boys come ter their own mother's fun'ral!"

"Come! I'd 'a' feasted her eyes on 'em. Thaddeus"—Mrs. Clayton rose to her feet and stretched out two gaunt hands longingly—"Thaddeus, I get so hungry sometimes for Jehiel and Hannah Jane, seems as though I jest couldn't stand it!"

"I know—I know, dearie," quavered the old man, vigorously polishing his glasses.

"Fifty years ago my first baby came," resumed the woman in tremulous tones; "then another came, and another, till I'd six. I loved 'em an' tended 'em, an' cared for 'em, an' didn't have a thought but was fer them babies. Four died"—her voice broke, then went on with renewed strength—"but I've got Jehiel and Hannah Jane left; at least, I've got two bits of paper that comes mebbe once a month, an' one of 'em's signed 'your dutiful son, Jehiel, an' the other, 'from your loving daughter, Hannah Jane.'"

"Well, Harriet, they—they're pretty good ter write letters," ventured Mr. Clayton.

"Letters!" wailed his wife. "I can't hug an' kiss letters, though I try to, sometimes.

"Well, well, wife, mebbe they'll come—mebbe they'll come this summer; who knows?"

She shook her head dismally.

"You've said that ev'ry year for the last fifteen summers, an' they hain't come yet. Jehiel went West more than twenty years ago, an' he's never been home since. Why, Thaddeus, we've got a grandson 'most eighteen, that we hain't even seen! Hannah Jane's been home jest once since she was married, but that was nigh on ter sixteen years ago. She's always writin' of her Tommy and Nellie, but—I want ter see 'em, Thaddeus; I want ter see 'em!"

"Yes, yes; well, we'll ask 'em, Harriet, again—we'll ask 'em real urgent-like, an' mebbe that'll fetch 'em," comforted the old man. "We'll ask 'em ter be here the Fourth; that's eight weeks off yet, an' I shall be real smart by then."

Two letters that were certainly "urgent-like" left the New England farmhouse the next morning. One was addressed to a thriving western city, the other to Chattanooga, Tennessee.

In course of time the answers came. Hannah Jane's appeared first, and was opened with shaking fingers.

Dear Mother (read Mrs. Clayton aloud): Your letter came two or three days ago, and I have hurried round to answer it, for you seemed to be so anxious to hear. I'm real sorry, but I don't see how we can get away this summer. Nathan is real busy at the store; and, some way, I can't seem to get up energy enough to even think of fixing up the children to take them so far. Thank you for the invitation, though, and we should enjoy the visit very much; but I guess we can't go just yet. Of course, if anything serious should come up that made it [illegible]—why, that would be [illegible] you are sensible, and will understand how it is with us.

Nathan is well, but business has been [illegible] and he is [illegible] As long as he's [illegible] he don't mind, but I [illegible] might rest a little sometimes, and let some one else do the [illegible]

Tom is a big boy [illegible] and with a [illegible] Nellie loves her [illegible] girl of eleven, [illegible] we think.

I must close now. [illegible]

Your loving daughter,
HANNAH JANE.

[illegible]

A week later Mrs. Clayton found another letter in the rural delivery box. Yes, it was from Jehiel.

She drew a long breath. Her eager thumb was almost under the flap of the envelope when she hesitated, eyed the letter uncertainly, and thrust it into the pocket of her calico gown. All day it lay there, save at times—which, indeed, were of frequent occurrence—when she took it from its hiding place, pressed it to her cheek, or gloried in every curve of the boldly written address.

At night, after the lamp was lighted, she said to her husband in tones so low he could scarcely hear:

"Thaddeus, I—I had a letter from Jehiel today."

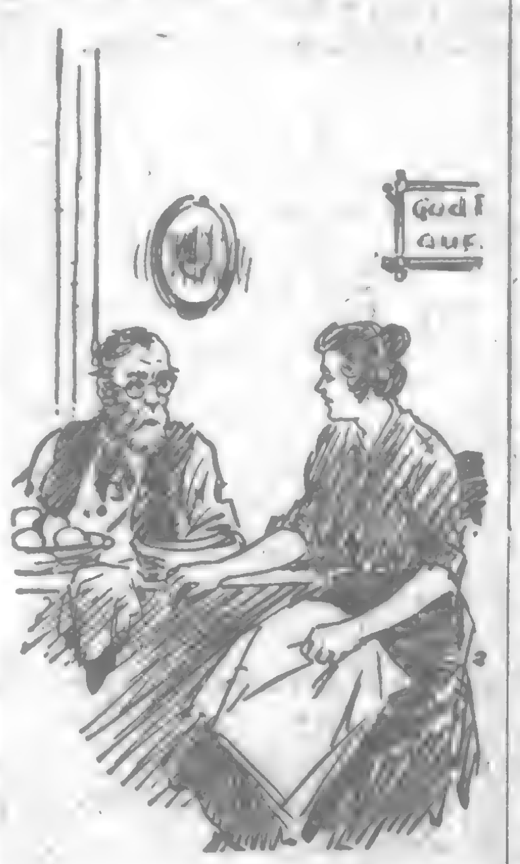
"You did—and never told me? Why, Harriet, what—" He paused helplessly.

"I—I haven't read it, Thaddeus," she stammered. "I couldn't bear to, someway. I don't know why, but I couldn't. You read it!" She held out the letter with shaking hands.

He took it, giving her a sharp glance from anxious eyes. As he began to read aloud she checked him.

"No; ter yerself, Thaddeus—ter yerself! Then—tell me."

As he read she watched his face. The light died from her eyes and her chin quivered as she saw the stern lines deepen around his mouth. A minute more, and he had finished the letter and laid it down without a word.



"A Fun'ral—It's Murder!" He Gasped.

"Thaddeus, ye don't mean—he didn't say—"

"Read it—I—I can't," choked the old man.

She reached slowly for the sheet of paper and spread it on the table before her.

Dear Mother (Jehiel had written): Just a word to tell you we are all O. K. and doing finely. Your letter reminded me that it was about time I was writing home to the folks. I don't mean to let so many weeks go by without a letter from me, but somehow the time just gets away from me before I know it.

Minnie is well and deep in spring sewing and house-cleaning. I know—because dressmaker's bills are beginning to come in, and every time I go home I find a carpet up in a new place!

Our boy Fred is eighteen tomorrow. You'd be proud of him, I know, if you could see him. Business is rushing. Glad to hear you're all right and that father's rheumatism is on the gain.

As ever, your affectionate and dutiful son,
JEHIEL.

Oh, by the way—about that visit East. I reckon we'll have to call it off this year. Too bad; but can't seem to see my way clear.

Bye-bye,
J.

Harriet Clayton did not cry this time. She stared at the letter long minutes with wide-open, tearless eyes, then she slowly folded it and put it back in its envelope.

"Harriet, mebbe—" began the old man timidly.

'Don't, Thaddeus—please don't!" she interrupted. "I—I don't want ter talk." And she rose unsteadily to her feet and moved toward the kitchen door.

For a time Mrs. Clayton went about her work in a silence quite unusual, while her husband watched her with troubled eyes. His heart grieved over the bowed head and drooping shoulders, and over the blurred eyes that were so often surreptitiously wiped on a corner of the gingham apron. But at the end of a week the [illegible] woman accosted him with a face full of aggressive, yet anxious, [illegible]

[illegible]

ter be the one ter do it, 'cause I'm [illegible] ter be the dead one, an'—"

"Harriet!"

"There, there, please, Thaddeus! I've got ter see Jehiel and Hannah Jane 'fore I die!"

"But—they—they'll come if—"

"No, they won't come. We've tried it over an' over again; you know we have. Hannah Jane herself said that if anythin' 'serious' came up it would be diff'rent. Well, I'm goin' ter have somethin' 'serious' come up!"

"But, Harriet—"

"Now, Thaddeus," begged the woman, almost crying, "you must help me, dear. I've thought it all out, an' it's easy as can be. I shan't tell any lies, of course. I cut my finger today, didn't I?"

"Why—yes—I believe so," he acknowleged dazedly; "but what has that to do—"

"That's the 'accident,' Thaddeus. You're ter send two telegrams at once—one ter Jehiel, an' one ter Hannah Jane. The telegrams will say: 'Accident to your mother. Funeral Saturday afternoon. Come at once.' That's jest ten words."

"Now, that's all true, ain't it?" she asked anxiously. "The 'accident' is this cut. The 'fun'ral' is old Mis' Wentworth's. I heard terday that they couldn't have it until Saturday, so that'll give us plenty of time ter get the folks here. I needn't say whose fun'ral it is that's goin' ter be on Saturday, Thaddeus! I want yer ter hitch up an' drive over ter Hopkinsville ter send the telegrams. The man's new over there, an' won't know yer. You couldn't send 'em from here, of course."

Thaddeus Clayton never knew just how he allowed himself to be persuaded to take his part in this "crazy scheme," as he termed it, but persuaded he certainly was.

It was a miserable time for Thaddeus, then. First, there was that hurried drive to Hopkinsville. Though the day was warm he fairly shivered as he handed those two fateful telegrams to the man behind the counter. Then there was the homeward trip, during which, like the guilty thing he was, he cast furtive glances from side to side.

Even home itself came to be a misery, for the sweeping and the dusting and the baking and the brewing which he encountered there left him no place to call his own, so that he lost his patience at last and moaned:

"Seems ter me, Harriet, you're a pretty lively corpse!"

His wife smiled, and flushed a little.

"There, there, dear! Don't fret. Jest think how glad we'll be ter see 'em!" she exclaimed.

Harriet was blissfully happy. Both the children had promptly responded to the telegrams, and were now on their way. Hannah Jane, with her husband and two children, were expected on Friday evening; but Jehiel and his wife and boy could not possibly get in until early on the following morning.

All this brought scant joy to Thaddeus. There was always hanging over him the dread horror of what he had done, and the fearful questioning as to how it was all going to end.

Friday came, but a telegram at the last moment told of trains delayed and connections missed. Hannah would not reach home until 9:40 the next morning. So it was with a four-seated carryall that Thaddeus Clayton started for the station on Saturday morning to meet both of his children and their families.

The ride home was a silent one; but once inside the house, Jehiel and Hannah Jane, amid a storm of sobs and cries, besieged their father with questions.

The family were all in the darkened sitting room—all, indeed, save Harriet, who sat in solitary state in the chamber above, her face pale and her heart beating almost to suffocation. It had been arranged that she was not to be seen until some sort of explanation had been given.

"Father, what was it?" sobbed Hannah Jane. "How did it happen?"

"It must have been so sudden," faltered Jehiel. "It cut me up completely."

"I can't ever forgive myself," moaned Hannah Jane hysterically. "She wanted us to come East, and I wouldn't. 'Twas my selfishness—'twas easier to stay where I was; and now—now—"

"We'be been brutes, father," cut in Jehiel, with a shake in his voice; "all of us. I never thought—I never dreamed—father, can—can we see—her?"

In the chamber above, a woman sprang to her feet. Harriet had quite forgotten the stove-pipe hole to the room below, and every sob and moan and wailing cry had been woefully distinct to her ears. With streaming eyes and quivering lips she hurried down the stairs and threw open the sitting-room door.

"[illegible] Hannah Jane! I'm here, right here—[illegible]

[illegible]

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

"They Satisfy"

20 for 18c
10 for 9c
Vacuum tins of 50 – 45c

Odd Coincidence.

After the war, while hunting souvenirs in a deserted village in Lorraine, I found a billfold, evidently lost by a German soldier, with a picture taken somewhere in Lincoln park. In the foreground was a girl, and in the background sitting on a bench were my mother and sister, both looking on.—Chicago Journal.

For your daughter's sake, use Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. She will then have that dainty, well-groomed appearance that girls admire.—Advertisement.

Thorns.

Luther Burbank brings out a thornless blackberry bush. What will the blackberry bush do about this? Probably a lot.

The blackberry, desiring to multiply, protects its berry seeds by thorns on the avenue of approach, the stem of the bush, just as the luscious, slow-moving turtle grew a hard shell to keep fast-moving prowlers from eating it.

It may take decades, but the blackberry, disarmed of its thorns, will produce some other form of protection—probably a bitter berry. Nature cannot be fooled for long in her devices for protecting the reproduction of life.

Interpreter of Nature.

The inhabitants of a frog pond close at hand, says the Youngstown Telegram, awakened two little girls who were spending their first night in the country. First came the high, piping voice of a little "peeper."

"What's that?" asked Winnie.

"I think it's a bird," Susan ventured to reply.

Just then a basso-profundo frog sang one of his lowest notes.

"What's that?" Winnie asked in a startled whisper.

"I'm not sure," replied Susan, "but I think it is either a cow or an automobile."

Lawyers and doctors usually profit by their own advice.

Accidents do not just happen; they are caused.

Enthusiasm is contagious.

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

Round Trip for Single Fare Plus Two Dollars

Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month

A splendid opportunity is now offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to look over

Western Canada's Farming Possibilities

Recent advances in the price of farm products and the possibility of further increases will warrant an increase in the price of Western Canada Farm Lands, now exceptionally low considering their producing value.

The depression is now over, and normal times are at hand. Western Canada came through the late trying period with a stout heart and a preparedness to take advantage of the better times that we are approaching.

To take advantage of the low rates now in force, and for other information, apply to

W. S. NETHERY, R. 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.;
M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Term. Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Authorized Canadian Government Agents

Faint Praise.

"What do you think of it?" asked the bard of the editor who sat reading his manuscript with a dubious air.

"You write well."

"Thank you. My friends tell me I have some literary talent."

"Yes," continued the editor, ignoring the last remark, "you make a pretty capital 'D,' and your 'y's,' which so many people stumble over, are as perfect specimens of penmanship as I ever saw."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Sad Case.

Mrs. Jones (sobbing)—The gas company collector was around today and got his money.

Jones—Well, that's good. What's the matter? Why weep over a paid bill?

Mrs. Jones—Oh, my dear, boo hoo—oh, dear! You see, he was held up just outside and came back and—oh, dear—collected it all over again.—New York Sun.

Circumstantial, but Not Convincing.

The mother of two boys, aged respectively five and seven, had a hard question to settle the other day. The younger boy came to her, crying with exasperation, and said that he was "a nickel short."

"Well, what's the use of yelling about it?" said his older brother, who was calmly eating candy. "You don't think I took it, do you?"

"I don't say you did," the little fellow replied, "but I'm a nickel short, and you're eating candy."—Youth's Companion.

Flirtation Spoiled.

"Ah, little one," said the facetious patron, "I could sit here all day and let you work on my nails."

"I'm afraid you couldn't," said the fair manicurist.

"The large barber up in front is my husband. I can tell from the way he's shuffling his feet that as soon as he gets through shaving the man he's working on he's going to stroll back here."

Mr. Jenkins Took a Cracked Club To Tame Lions

The exhibition ended rather badly. It very nearly was a big day for the lions and a sad day for Mr. Jenkins—all for want of proper care in getting ready.

Many a man who has business to do and a living to make and a job to fill is as careless how he feeds his body as Mr. Jenkins was in picking out a club.

Some foods are too heavy, some are too starchy, many lack necessary elements, and so starve the body [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] digests quickly and wholesomely. Served with cream or good milk, it is a complete food—crisp and delicious.

Grape-Nuts is just the food for those who care to meet life's situations well prepared in health. [illegible]

Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder
"There's a Reason"
[illegible]

APRIL

YEISER for Auditor

TWO YEARS AGO the southeast part of DeKalb County gave me a big vote for County Commissioner and I have did my best to serve you faithfully. Possibly I have not met the expectations of all, but I did my best and I come to you with "clean hands" asking your support at the primaries, next Tuesday, for the Republican nomination for a more remunerative office, that of County Auditor. I believe I am fitted by business experience for the position, and if nominated and elected I promise efficiency, courtesy and economy in the conduct of the office. I haven't been able to see all to solicit their support, but a good vote by the home people will be very gratifying to me.

L. W. YEISER

The New Sensation

An OIL STOVE that has proven, without a doubt, to be the most economical one of its kind on the market today—the

Florence Automatic Wickless

We have them in all sizes. The prices will surprise you. Remember an iron-clad guarantee goes with every stove. A hotter heat and no smoke are the hobbies of the Florence. Come in and see it demonstrated.

Chick Coops and Chick Feeders and Waterers of most all kinds, and our prices are right.

Fence! Fence! Fence! farm fence, poultry fence, and fences in the right size, at greatly reduced prices.

Garden Seeds
The famous Leonard Garden Seeds of all kinds—100% more for your money

Garden Plows
Cultivators, etc., are now in stock.

Lawn Mowers
genuine Ball-Bearings, at new low prices.

Galvanized
Aluminum, Cast wares, at pre-war prices.

Ladders
including step-ladders—most any size you want.

Fertilizer
We will have a car load in Friday or Saturday.

WM. CURIE, - St. Joe, Ind.

Shelf paper—News office.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Chas. Cochran, wife and little granddaughter were Sunday guests of Butler relatives.

Grover Ward, wife and son Clifford were Sunday evening guests of Foster Gee and wife.

Mrs. Chas. Jordon and little son went to Ft. Wayne, Sunday, where they will spend the week.

For Sale—A few bushels of good early seed potatoes. Nice large potatoes. W. H. Northrup.

Miss Marjorie Brown of Montpelier, Ohio, spent over Sunday a guest in the Frank Kinsey home.

Durwood Ridgway and C. C. Bassett spent a couple of days the first of the week in and near Harlan repairing pumps.

E. Inhoff and wife, O. D. Inhoff and wife of Butler were Sunday afternoon callers in the Samuel Armstrong home.

Wm. Horstmeyer and wife of Ft. Wayne spent last Sunday with the latter's sister and husband, Charles Rice and wife.

Mrs. C. B. Leighty and daughter Miss Grace have moved east of town with their son and brother, Harp Leighty.

For Sale—Garvas winter onion sets, the kind that multiplies at the roots. W. H. Northrup.

Miss Ione Brown of Montpelier, Ohio, spent from Friday evening until Sunday evening a guest in the O. K. Shull home.

Pickles were one of the most profitable crops raised in the vicinity of St. Joe last year. In fact, the most profitable one. Try a patch this year.

Miss Hilda Koch received the highest average of her class in the 8th-grade examination, which was 92.5%. She also took the honors of the class in the year's school work with an average of 95.5%.

Mrs. Olive Frye and little daughter Virginia left Sunday for Hobart where they will be in the home of her sister, Mrs. Vet Chandler. Mrs. Frye has a position with the Telephone company there.

Mrs. Foster Gee and little son, Gerald, spent Wednesday at Butler with her sister, Mrs. Geo. Packer, who, with her two children, returned here to be guests in the Gee home until Friday night.

The pair of shell rimmed glasses which were found by Chas. Koch, south of Kinsey's corners, and advertised in last week's News, belonged to Paul Krise who proved property and paid for the ad.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices. S. S. Widney.

Five mail robbers, who recently attempted to steal the $120,000 payroll of the Standard Oil company at Whiting, Ind., are in custody, according to Chicago police, following raids in Whiting and in Chicago.

Mrs. Golden Benninghoff and little son of Fort Wayne spent the past week here in the home of her parents, H. S. Bowman and wife. Mr. Benninghoff joined her here on Saturday, all returning home on Sunday.

For Commissioner
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
MARION S. CLARK
Primary May 2nd

—SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS—

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40% and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Envelopes at the News office.

For Sale:—Sow and 12 pigs. T.A.Northrup, phone No. 22-13.

Will Price and wife spent Monday last with Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Claire Coburn and Edgar Lysher spent Sunday night and Monday at Hicksville.

Mrs. Margaret Thomas, who has been spending the winter in eastern Ohio, arrived here Monday.

Have you contracted for pickles yet? Now is the time. They will make you money.

Frank Baker, wife and children of Jackson township were Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. Anna Dilley.

One of the most noteworthy features in connection with Tanlac is the large number of men and women who have reported an astonishingly rapid increase in weight as a result of its use. At Sheffer's drug store.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox and daughter, Martha, and sons Malcolm and Vernon Woodcox, and Miss Alma Lawson, spent Sunday at Waterloo.

Mrs. O. J. Burnier of Auburn, who is at the Sacred Heart hospital in Garrett after an operation performed last week Wednesday, is recovering satisfactorily.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE

Friday, MAY 5, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
[illegible]
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

L 912

Supplement to the St. Joe News

C. E. Gallatin Explains His Stand on Political Issues

Cyrus E. Gallatin, of Garrett, candidate for the democratic nomination for Congress, made the following powerful appeal to the thoughtful men and women of the Twelfth Congressional District in an address delivered before the Jefferson Club at Ft. Wayne.

Andrew Carnegie was once asked to explain the secret of building up such a marvelously efficient business organization. His reply was: "There is no secret, I have learned to judge men."

James Bryce, author of the American Commonwealth and Modern Democracies, who was not only one of the fairest but probably one of the keenest critics, of our governmental system, in accounting for our inability to maintain our government to the high ideals, as set forth by its founders, in the Declaration of Independence and Constitution, unhesitatingly attributed this weakness to our inability to judge men, in choosing our presidents, members of Congress and those who have to do with the making and executing our laws.

As voters of this district you have but a few more days to decide who shall be your standard bearer during the coming campaign. In this choice you have the opportunity to exercise the very highest order of citizenship. In the Bible, we are told to pray for our rulers. When the Bible was written that was about the only way people had to influence their Lords and Masters. Today the people choose those who are to make their laws and now our masters are, in theory at least, our servants. It is still our duty to pray for them, but to prayer, we have added criticism, some constructive, some destructive, the effect of either being about the same. Neither kind has had an appreciable effect on the golf played on the links at Washington. On May second you will be the sovereign power, the masters if you please, upon your judgment of men may depend whether the democratic or republican party will be successful in November. If the democratic party is successful, then upon your choice may depend whether your representative be a leader among men and be able to obtain recognition of those measures so necessary to our well being or whether he will be a man that will drift with the current. I do not say this to in any way disparage the two splendid men who are my rivals in seeking this nomination, but to emphasize the fact that there is a vast difference in men and the responsibility of this choice rests with you and not with the candidates.

Professor Woodburn of our State university, says in his book "Parties and Party Problems in the United States" that "It is not in the abundance of material wealth, but the courage of the national conscience, that, in the last resort must be relied upon to save the national life." When the Priest and Levite "went down on the other side" they did precisely what good men and good women have been doing in all ages. That stinging rebuke administered by our Savior was not based upon their lacking in goodness or to their lack of religion but as a recognition of that great fact, that good men can become so absorbed in their affairs and even in their religious activities that they become blind to the needs and the suffering of those about them The crying need of the times is for men and women of courage and principle to dedicate their talent to the service of the state. There are scores of very religious people who might just as well be enjoying themselves in heaven, as far as any real service they are rendering humanity on earth, to make the world better. To pray: "Thy Kingdom come, Thy Will be Done on Earth as it is in Heaven" and then stay away from the polls or wait to be hauled there in an automobile, furnishes a combination which should make common, ordinary decent people blush. It is the business of the church to make men Christlike It is the business of christians to carry this spirit out into the affairs of men and its highest expression has always been found in just laws enforced alike upon the weak and upon the strong. When a man says "You cannot make men good by legislation" he is using the argument of the crook. Whenever you find one man taking unjust advantage of another man it is either due to his taking advantage of a bad law, or, to his violating a good law, or to the fact that the state has failed to function in not doing its constitutional duty in "Establishing Justice" between members of its citizenship.

Ours is a practical world. In theory the people choose their candidates. In practice the candidates, must in some manner or other, insinuate themselves upon the people. The man who waits to be chosen, lands politically where the old maid has landed matrimonially. Most people rely much upon the editors of newspapers to keep them informed on men and measures, but some editors are really human. It is said that when a man does something he is ashamed of, he must pay the editors to keep his name out of the papers, while if he aspires to do something helpful, he must pay to get his name in the papers. This may, to some extent, account for the fact that much of our progress is backwards. At least, it has forced candidates to the dire necessity of saying many things about themselves and much they say is of a very flattering nature. Some have gone so far as to get very near the outskirts of that realm known as modesty, while others come dangerously close to that line which separates truth from falsehood. But one trait is common to all. They all "came from the people." They all "love the people" they all promise, with briny eyes, to "serve the people" so whoever is elected, one thing is assured, the people's interests will be cared for!

In introducing myself, I shall tell you that I was born. This I consider a most important event in the history of a candidate. If I get the nomination I shall tell you where, and when; also whom I married, and the number of children I have, and whether they are all boys or girls. This part of my biography I am sure the voters will await with breathless anxiety.

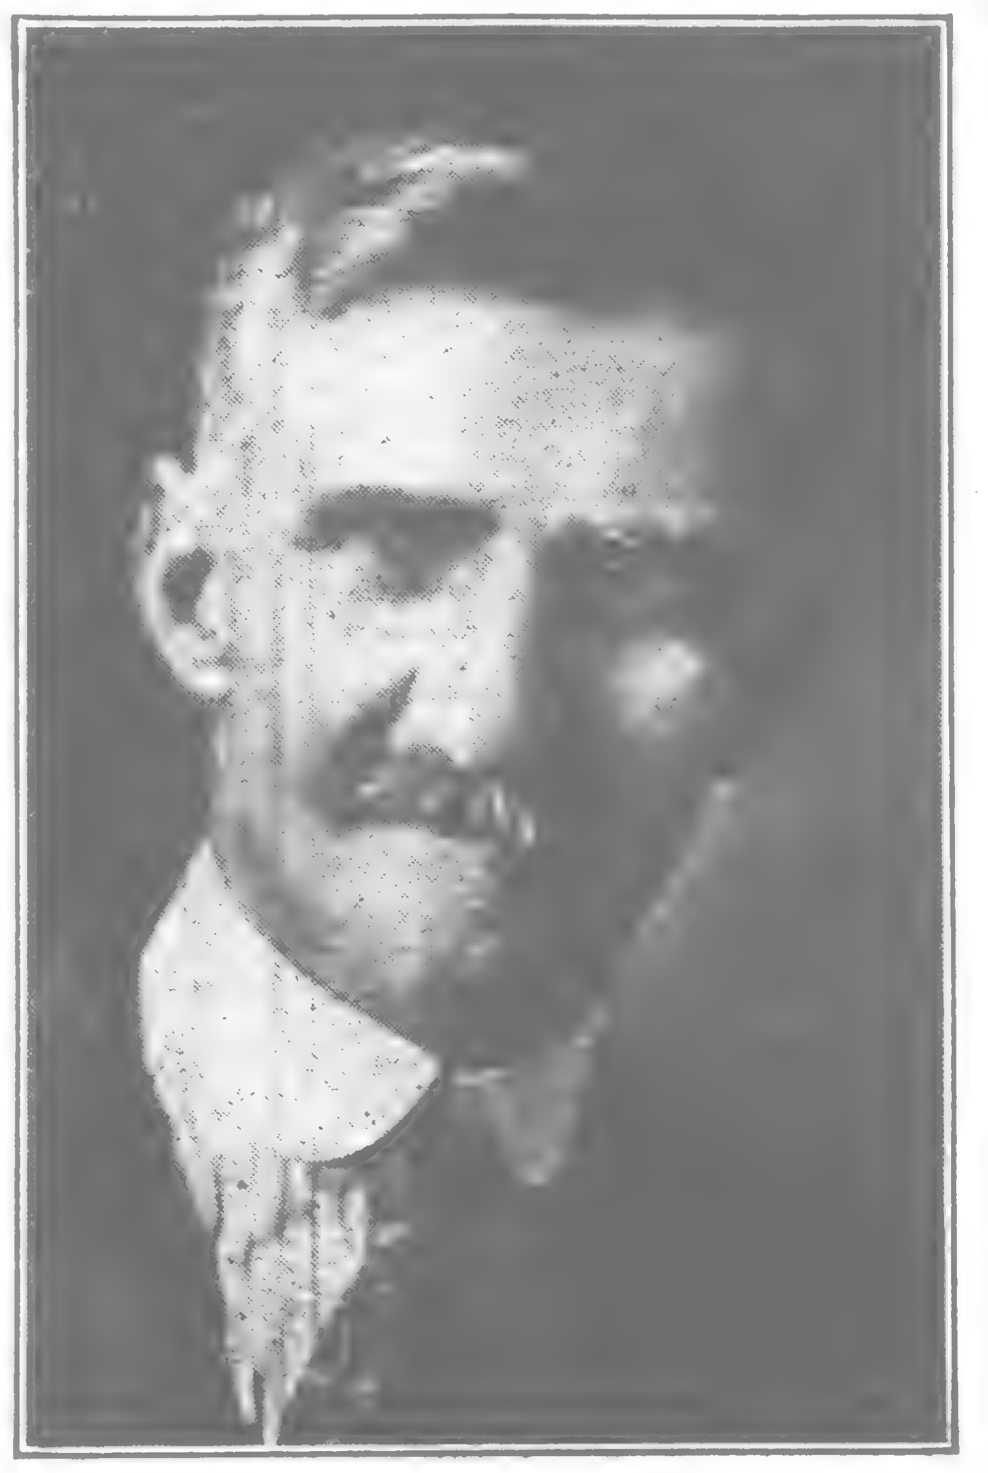
I have never been convicted for any devilitry in which I have been engaged. In this I feel highly fortunate. I was reared on a farm by splendid parents. I recall that my father was quite particular about my clothing. At times he would dust my trousers—always when I was inside of them. I believe when he had finished that he had all the dust out of them. When still a young man, I entered Westfield College, a United Brethren institution. I learned very rapidly. Indeed it was not long until I knew more than the president, who was a very scholarly gentleman. At least, he called me into his private office upon several occasions to obtain information. His thirst for knowledge was so great that at times he became embarrassing to me.

I have worked for nine different railroads. It was my custom to work awhile on the railroad and then go back to college. In 1899 I matriculated in economics in the University of Illinois, where I was not permitted to remain long. However, before leaving, Professor Kinley, who held the chair of political economy, and who is now president of that institution, kindly assisted me in outlining a course of reading in economics sociology and history, which I diligently followed.

In 1900, I accepted a position as locomotive engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, where I have since worked. During that time I have pulled a freight train more than eight hundred thousand miles, or more than the distance of thirty-five times around the earth. In addition to this in 1911, I purchased a farm near Garrett where I reside, and practically all of my layover time at Garrett has been spent working on the farm. In addition to my agricultural work and railroad work, I have accumulated a very fine library on the subjects in which I have specialized.

In 1896 I became interested in political questions and have taken an active part, speaking in almost every campaign since that time.

I represented the Locomotive Engineers of this state as their Legislative representative in the legislatures of 1907 and 1909, working for our present electric headlight, the full crew bill, boiler inspection bill, and other measures intended to safeguard the lives of those who have to do with railroads. During the campaign of 1908, Mr. Brown, president of the New York Central lines with other railroad heads held what was termed a non-partisan railroad men's meeting in the Masonic Temple at Chicago. The Democratic National Committee, under whose auspices I was speaking at the time, became distrustful of this affair and wired me to come to Chicago and if possible reply to Mr. Brown. Railroad men were brought to Chicago from every direction and the hall was packed. Mr. Brown's address turned out to be a bitter attack upon Mr. Bryan, and through a ruse that worked to perfection, I was called upon to respond to Mr. Brown. The suprise was so complete that Mr. Brown dismissed the meeting without presenting the resolutions which he brought from New York for that purpose.



CYRUS E. GALLATIN

About two years ago I was invited to deliver an address before the students of Perdue university, on the subject "The Conflict Between Capital and Labor and the Ultimate Solution." I had a splendid audience and in about ten days received a letter of appreciation which in part is as follows: "May I send my appreciation of your services rendered a week ago. Sunday. While every one was not in accord with what you said yet the expressions which have reached my ears indicate general approval of your address. Doctor Enwall the pastor, was so impressed with your remarks that he gave a sermon on "The Church and Labor" last Sunday. I trust you will see fit to put your thoughts in a book. I believe they will be well received. If you have anything that you think will be of interest to my students in the future, I shall be glad to have you with us again."

Signed: Ralph W. Rogers, Methodist Student Pastor at Purdue.

This, in a brief manner, indicates the doings of a very busy man. You will understand that I have had very little opportunity to cultivate the personal acquaintance of very many of the voters of my district. I am circulating this address as my only means to lay before you my views on the vital questions of the hour. My convictions are strong and if you agree with me upon the fundamentals herein expressed I shall appreciate your support on May 2nd. If you are really interested in my candidacy, and believe I would be able to lead an aggressive campaign during the summer and fall; and that if elected would carry these sentiments to men of influence, I ask you to multiply your influence by telling this to your friends and urge them to join you in the cause of militant Democracy.

About eighteen months ago, I had the pleasure to hear that great man, John R. Mott, at the International Y. M. C. A. convention at Richmond, Va., In concluding his address he made the prophesy that within the next five years, things would be done or left undone, that would vitally affect the welfare of millions for centuries to come.

On the twelfth day of April 1917, Lloyd George addressed the American Luncheon club in London, and during his remarks made this statement: "There are times when this old world goes along so leisurely that it seems for centuries to stand in one place. There are other awful times when it whirls along with giddying pace covering the track of centuries in a single year. These are the times we are living in now." The truth of these remarks are painfully apparent to every student of the times.

In a few eventful years our own country has been hurled forward, probably a century, in her economic development. With these economic changes every social relation has been cast in a new mould. Ideals which for centuries have modified and directed the affairs of men, have been cast aside as an old garment. Today without chart or compass, we sail an unknown sea. A fear has taken hold of thoughtful people and the thoughtless have turned to jazz, as a solace to their empty lives.

While these conditions exist, those who should be our statesmen conceal their ignorance, by talking glibly of deflation, and reconstruction, while millions of hands are idle and those dependent upon them look in vain for the necessaries of life.

Let us view briefly some of the principal economic changes which have taken place. Prior to 1914 hundreds of millions of foreign capital was invested in American industries. In order to pay interest and dividends on these securities, cargo after cargo, of our products were accepted. In the twenty year period prior to the war, we exported but a little over three hundred million of our gold and silver and the balance of trade in our favor averaged about five hundred million a year. During the seven years since 1914, our exports have exceeded our imports by the stupendous sum of over nineteen and a half billions of dollars. American securities held abroad have all been repaid, and in addition we have received more than seven and a half millions of gold and silver. But this did not pay the bill, and on January first of this year, foreign nations owed us ten billions of dollars, besides overdue interest amounting to more than nine hundred million dollars. The Old World has no money to pay the interest, and we refuse to receive her products. In the four year period beginning with 1917 the American farmer received for his products fifty three billions of dollars more than for the four years prior to the war. Today, he is without credit, and without money, or the means to make money. During and since the war, common unskilled labor earned as high as four hundred percent more than pre war wages. This increase in the pay of unskilled labor was not caused by the demands of organized labor, nor through any effort upon the part of the worker himself. Through the feverish demands for war products the question of price was never asked. In turn, because of the enormous profits, our manufacturers were exacting, the price of labor was not even a consideration, anything to get out the product. Great corporations were bidding against each other for labor. This was the situation when we entered the war. Then what happened? The big hand of our government reached out and plucked four millions of the flower of our working men out of our industries, to fight in the Old World. This not only crippled every industry in our land, but in addition to the incentive caused by huge profits and large wages, was added the incentive of patriotism. Every man, woman, and child, who did not do the maximum of labor was called a slacker. Sentiment ran high but people cannot long exist upon sentiment. We had many old people living on small fixed incomes; we had many men working on fixed salaries; also a great number of men were members of labor organizations who were working under ironclad contracts entered into before the war and who were working at pre war wages. To all of these the cost of living became intolerable. The farmer was told that "food would win the war" but he saw his crops rotting for the want of labor. When he did hire, wages and other increased expenses ate up his profits, but no one had time to think. Finally, on that great day in November, the bells rang and the whistles blew. It was all over. The boys had gone over the top, the victory was won. "America had made the world safe for democracy." "Autocracy had been crushed." Then amidst a carnival of rejoicing the soldier boy returned. Communities fairly outdid themselves in extending a welcome and pledging the fat of the land as his rightful heritage. At this juncture appeared, probably the strangest psychological phenomena hich ever affected the minds of the people of any nation. With one mighty voice the word went forth: "We have been robbed." The people awoke to the fact that their high wages and the high price of farm produce was only nominal and that by the time they paid for their living they were no better off than before. Through the indignation which followed ideals were scoffed at. "The world safe for Democracy" became a byword. Men who stood high in our intellectual, social, religious and political life, scoffed when "International Oblifications" were mentioned. The small nations of the world who stood shoulder to shoulder with our country in winning the war, were treated as pawns in the international game and tossed to one side as coins without value. To again quote Dr. John R. Mott, who was in Europe when our government turned its back upon the tremendous obligations incurred in participating in the war, Dr Mott said that "The people of the old world could find no language to express their amazement, and amazement turned to distrust and distrust to hatred." We had billions of dollars to spend, and sacrificed the lives of more than one hundred thousand young men snatched from American homes to destroy certain governments in the Old World. When the moral obligation came to reconstruct and put in concrete form the fruits of our victory, for the heritage of mankind, we turned a deaf ear, and in our retreat left behind a harvest of bankruptcy, famine, anarchy and hatreds that will be held against America for centuries to come

In President McKinley's last address delivered to the American people at Buffalo, on September 5th. 1901, he used these words: "The wisdom and energy of all the nations are none too great for the world's work" and later "God and man have linked the nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other." These are beautiful words and high ideals, but what have words and ideals got to do with a people who have allowed one million of their number to obtain as much wealth as the remaining one hundred and four millions.

In the light of what has been said let us take another inventory of our gains and our losses. First: the financial center of the world has been shifted from London to Wall street. Second: from a peace loving people, we have become the greatest military power upon the face of the globe and are spending an amount upon our military establishment that would have made the Kaiser and his War Lords turn green with jealousy, at a time German Militarism hung like a pall over the nations of the earth and for what: God only knows. Third: we have repudiated the treaty entered into by our legally accredited representatives, and some fifty of the nations of the civilized world, and while we repudiate every obligation contained in the treaty of Versailes, which imposes responsibility upon us, we stoutly insist and demand that every obligation the associated nations owe us through this instrument shall be scrupulously and religiously fulfilled. Fourth: in repudiating the treaty we have destroyed the hope of men and women of all ages who have prayed for the realization of that great Christian principal; the federation of the world, and the overthrow of that demon WAR which is and has been the world's greatest scourge. Fifth: we have unconsciously slept while the greatest of business autocracies has resolved itself into what Roosevelt characterised "The Invisible Government" which is our real government, whose business it is, to choose candidates for presidents, members of the supreme court and members of congress. Whose business it is to see that the laws effecting the working man are scrupulously enforced, while Federal judges are found to enjoin silence upon those who would expose their own lawlessness. It is their business, through a commercialized press to pit class against class and while the farmer and the city worker view each other with distrust they are carrying the swag away by the millions; and last but not least, it is its business to tell this country when there shall be a panic or when prosperity shall reign and woe unto the man who does not heed its warnings.

Last September, James M. Beck, Solicitor General for our government, delivered an address in Cincinnati before the American Bar Association in which he gave statistics showing the enormous increase of crime and lawlessness which is sweeping over our country. In the course of his remarks he quoted from an address delivered by the late Pope to the College of Cardinals a short time before. The Pope declared that the world was afflicted by five plagues. These five plagues should be printed in large letters in every church and every schoolhouse that they might sink indeliably into every heart. They are as follows: First: "An unprecedented contempt for authority." Second: "Hatred between man and man." Third: "An abnormal aversion for work." Fourth: "An excessive thirst for pleasure." Fifth: "A gross materialism, which denies the spiritual in the affairs of men."

These, the Pope gave as world plagues But where is the intelligent man or woman who cannot see them at every turn in our own American life. Back of it all lies the great producers realize that they are not getting a square deal Who is going to respect authority which comes from the strong to oppress the weak? How many working men will respect the law which the rich can violate with impunity? Who is going to love those who ar edefending, directly or indirectly, those who are robbing him of the fruits of his toil What is the incentive [illegible] reward [illegible] live in [illegible] the [illegible] lack of [illegible] zation will [illegible] historical [illegible] Ages.

After a [illegible] ions of many men and women wh[illegible] authorities [illegible] signs of [illegible] the conclusion that [illegible] is going to [illegible] producing millions [illegible] sent order [illegible] of servi[illegible] have the power nor the [illegible] from their deplor[illegible] lions of this kind can [illegible] our own [illegible] and [illegible] American coun[illegible] World. Second: Somewhere [illegible] most unexpected mo[illegible] fall, and we may like a [illegible] clear sky experience in this c[illegible] what France experienced in [illegible] 1792. and what Russia [illegible] through at present. He who will s[illegible] at this idea is mighty poorly post[illegible] on the temper of our times. One [illegible] alternative remains and that is to get back once more upon our old discarded Constitution and stand where our fathers stood as interpreted by Lincoln in his Gettysburg address "Lest we forget:"

"When our constitution was framed the world's greatest statesmen sat around the council table and the product of their toil has been extolled and copied wherever the thirst for freedom has had an opportunity to dominate the hearts of men. Like all great men their ideas were expressed in plain language. The constitution thy proposed to build was to serve the people and safeguard their sacred rights. That there might be no misunderstanding as to their purpose they framed a preamble and in this preamble is contained what is known as the "Spirit of the Constitution." Their first object was to form a more perfect union. Second, establish justice. Third, Insure domestic tranquility. Fourth, provide for the common defense. Fifth, Promote the general welfare and sixth and last, secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

Subject to the most critical analysis, there is not a crumb of comfort or a cintilla of justification for the present power ledged in the hands of a few men to override and dominate the people. If we would search still closer for the spirit of this preamble we would go back to the Immortal Declaration of Independance and find that the dominating principal came from the idea that men ALL MEN, if you please, were endowed by their Creator, with certain inalienable rights which no man nor set of men nor government had a moral right to take away. This and this alone is Americanism. This is Democracy.

Here is the issue of the hour: The Constitution says it is the business of government to establish justice. Big business says "hand off of business." The Contitution says it is the business of the government to "Insure Domestic Tranquility." That is if the people become dissatisfied to assertain the cause and find a remedy. Big business says, if the worker is dissatisfied he is an I. W. W. with bolshevist tendencies and should be carefully watched by the government. A few days ago our vice president deliverered an address in which he said that the government had quit meddling in private business. Had he said where private bubsiness and the government conflict that it is the place of the government to step aside, he would have conveyed the same thought, so it would thus have been more easily understood.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., has told us that it is inconsistent to expect an autocracy in business and democracy in government. Shall we allow big business to dominate our government and use it as the private tool of the capitalist or shall we create a government strong enough to control industy inr the interest of all the people?

This is the overshadowing issue in the coming campaign.

NEWS SUPPLEMENT

APRIL 27, 1922

Public Notice!

To Electric Light & Power Customers:—

In conformity with authorization granted by the Public Service Commission of Indiana, in their Order No. 6769, approved under date of August 22nd, 1921, the electric light properties in the municipalities of Butler, St. Joe and Spencerville have been consolidated under the name of the INDIANA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY. All bills for electric and water service supplied after May 1st, 1922, will be presented in the name of the new Company.

It will further interest you to know that the new organization proposes to construct a heavy transmission line, during the coming Summer, west from Hicksville to St. Joe, thence North to Butler. Arrangements have also been concluded with The North Western Ohio Light Company relative to certain changes in the construction of their line between Delphos and Hicksville, Ohio.

Extensive experiments conducted by national experts have developed features which some of the larger companies report, as having eliminated 85% of the interruptions formerly experienced in transmission line service. Definite plans have been made to install the new devices on the lines mentioned, with a view of improving the service and reducing the number of outages.

Butler Utilities Company,

Indiana Power & Light Company.

Local Briefs

Mrs. Virginia Lawson spent last Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Harvey Lindley and family.

Merle James of Ft Wayne spent a couple of days the last of the week with Grover Ward and wife.

Mrs. Lena Meek is able to be out again after being ill for the past week. Mrs. C. C. Woodcox and S. S. Widney are also improving.

Mrs. Sam Hart and Mrs. Sake Waterman of Hicksville spent last Friday with Mrs. Alice Warner and daughter, Mrs F. H. Langley.

Mrs. Otto Cannon returned home from the Lutheran hospital Friday evening where she had been the past few weeks taking treatment.

Geo. Simonton and wife, James Harter, Mrs. Samuel Armstrong and daughter Mary, attended the funeral of Lawrence Gaff, which was held at Newville U. B. church on Thursday afternoon.

Leon Kees of Marion is here spending the week with relatives.

Archie Erickson, wife and two sons of Garrett, spent Sunday with her parents, Frank Scholes and wife at this place.

Born, to John Hart and wife of Fort Wayne a baby girl, weight 10½ pounds. This is the tenth child in the family.

Found—A fence post hole plunger near St. Joe recently. Owner can have the same at the News office by paying for this ad.

Miss Kathryn Curie recently spent the forenoon at Hicksville and Everett Mavis returned here with her for a few days' visit with his grand-parents, Jacob Sechelr and wife.

Mrs. Vern Monroe and small son left last Friday for their home at Marion Ind. The former's mother, Mrs. Frank Sechler, accompanied them as far as Fort Wayne, where she remained over Sunday with the other children.

GEORGE J. KAYSER

Democratic Candidate for the nomination
for RECORDER.
DeKalb County Primary May 2nd.
[illegible]
GEO. J. KAYSER.

MEN AND WOMEN
Vote for
C. R. LANE
May 2, 1922.
THE ONLY REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR Congress
From Allen County.

PLEASE READ MY PLATFORM

1. I will support President Harding and the Republican principles whether nominated or not.

2. If nominated and elected I will visit every township in the district at least once a year to find out what the people are thinking about.

3. If nominated and elected I will obey the law of Indiana and appoint no relative to office.

4. I will not agree to the joining Adams and Wells Counties to this district—which the plan to reduce Indiana's membership in Congress would make necessary. That would make the district Democratic forever.

5. Give Allen County, with half the population in the district, a chance—36 years since the election of Captain White in 1886, and the only Allen County Republican ever elected in this district.

6. Word to Women: This is your first Congressional Primary vote. Vote for Lane, May 2.

7. I favor full justice to ex-service men.

For Recorder

Samuel F. Morr, a farmer of Fairfield township, is asking the support of the democratic voters in the primary, May 2nd.

MILO J. THOMAS of Corunna, Richland Township,
For Representative.

Mr. Thomas was born and reared in Richland township, and is now past sixty years of age.

Taught school in Richland township for a number of years, and at the close of his last term of school bought a hardware store at Corunna in 1888; has conducted a successful business for thirty-four yrs.; has filled offices of trust and honor during these years, but has not asked for any political office.

Mr. Thomas has spent a life of service with the farmer and laboring man; his business interests are numerous; being a heavy tax payer himself he is offering his service and experience to the tax payers of DeKalb county as their representative to the State Legislature, with the hope of having spread upon the statute books of Indiana some laws that will bring relief instead of adding a burden.

To those who are not familiar with the ability of Mr. Thomas to serve in this office, he says, "ask my customers," many of whom have traded at his store for the past thirty-four years.

May 2nd is the fatal day, or the day of decision for the democrats of DeKalb county to place in nomination such men as will serve best; look well to your ballots.

For County Commissioner

Vote for [illegible] for Commissioner from the [illegible] at the primary May 2nd. [illegible]

[illegible]

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	90	$ 4.53
M. P.	82	8.83
Lutheran	99	5.37
M. E. Spencer	91	6.25
Lutheran	101	5.00
Coburntown	66	2.78
Newville U. B.	81	3.51
Christian	92	3.75
Concord	42	1.98
Rehoboth	80	4.66
Mt. Pleasant	100	3.61

John Bets is having an outside chimney built on his restaurant building this week.

Federation meeting at the Spencerville school house, Friday evening, April 28th. To be a Good Roads meeting.

The wind storm which swept through different sections of Indiana at a destructive speed last Wednesday evening did little damage in this vicinity outside of tearing limbs from trees. The top of Jas. Harter's automobile was torn off as he was returning from the Wabash depot at about 8:30 in the evening. In Ft. Wayne and other towns the storm resulted in damages amounting to large sums of money.

Does Your Child go to Sunday School?

THE RIGHT OF A CHILD
—RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

"Children's Week" was so successfully observed in this state last year, and so far reaching in beneficial results, that it is to be promoted by the Indiana State Sunday School Association again this Spring, the week of April 30—May 7. An organized effort is being made to spread the movement into more counties than participated last year.

The effort in Indiana is a part of a Continent-wide program formulated by the International Sunday School Association. While the purpose of the movement is to emphasize the religious education of children and to bring them into the Sunday Schools in greatly increased numbers, the scope of the activities will reach parents of children who are not considering religious nurture of their children and to survey communities to learn who are and who are not attending Sunday School.

All of the leaders, including officers and teachers of each school, are to have an active part in the campaign. Mass meetings for fathers and mothers are to be held, when the importance of religious education for children will be emphasized. The program will include pageants, plays, a street parade, a festival of song, story hours and similar features, which call more attention to children.

Pastors are to open the week with sermons on what religious education of children means to the spiritual and civic welfare of a community. All features of the week are to be made to emphasise the purpose which will culminate with the Sunday morning session, or the closing day of the campaign, which is held for the reception and recognition of new members of the schools, and to point out a follow-program as Daily Vacation Bible School, Parent-Teachers groups, Educational Exhibits, Supervised play ground work, and Story Hours for children.

Sterling Tires

I have made direct factory connection with the Sterling Tire Corporation, Rutherford, N. J.
for fourteen years manufacturers of

Exceptionally High Grade Tires and Tubes

The 30x3 1-2 casings are extra large and heavy, being built of 5-ply 17 1-4 oz. fadric, cured on air bags, and weigh 15 lbs. 8 ounces.

The 30x3 1-2 cords are six ply instead of the standard four ply.

The STERLING line is fully guaranteed by the factory and by me.

By reason of my direct factory connection I am enabled to offer STERLING tires and tubes at the following remarkably low prices:

PRICE LIST

FABRIC CASINGS

Size	Sale Price	Red Tube Price
30x3	9.24	1.68
Extra Ply
30x3 1-2	10.48	2.00
31x4	14.59	2.40

CORD CASINGS

Size	Sale Price	Red Tube Price
30x3 1-2	15.00	2.00
32x3 1-2	20.00	2.08
32x4	24.00	2.48
33x4	24.60	2.56
34x4	25.00	2.64
32x4 1-2	28.80	3.20
33x4 1-2	29.60	3.32
34x4 1-2	30.40	3.44
35x4 1-2	31.20	3.60
36x4 1-2	32.00	3.72
33x5	34.40	4.00
35x5	36.00	4.20
37x5	37.60	4.48

J. L. RHODENBAUGH.

Abundant vitamin now contained in small yeast tablet

Yeast Foam Tablets are from 4 to 5 times as concentrated as the ordinary baking yeast. The necessary vitamin potency, therefore, is contained in a much smaller dose.

"I CONGRATULATE YOU," writes a well-known physician, "on your new therapeutic yeast. I am sure it will be welcomed by the medical profession and by thousands of people who dislike eating such large quantities of [illegible] baking yeast—as well as by [illegible] who sought in vain for [illegible] benefits in many drug-laden and so-called 'vitamin' preparations."

[illegible]

Foam Tablets there is nothing but pure whole yeast—millions of these tiny plants being concentrated in each tablet.

The vitamin potency of this new yeast is therefore high and, consequently, its tonic and reconstructive properties are most unusual.

Yeast Foam Tablets are made by the world's largest manufacturers of dry yeast, [illegible]

They are the result of two years of experiment conducted under the guidance of some of the country's leading medical scientists. Recommended by physicians and sold by druggists everywhere.

Extraordinary advantages of Yeast Foam Tablets

[illegible]

Yeast Foam Tablets

MAY

MAY

L 91

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1922 No. 18

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

WOOL!

We will be in the market for your WOOL at the highest possible market price. Bring your wool to us.

COAL! Market on COAL is going up daily—the fact is, it is hard to buy at all. We are not advancing our price while the coal we have on hand lasts, but willl have to if the market continues when we ship again.

GRAIN! Highest market prices paid at all times. There is no better grain market anywhere.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

You Cannot Lose

No matter how much or how little money you may have it will cost you no more to pay it out by means of check than it will to use the hard cash. Checks are [illegible] just as readily as money.

A checking account is absolutely safe. If a check should be lost [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Northern Indiana Congress, Church of Christ

Auburn, Ind., April 26, 1922.

By Rev. Daily

The meeting was called to order by A. C. Shaw, pastor, Church of Christ, Auburn, Ind. Bro. R. B. Daily, St. Joe, led in devotional service, after which Bro. Shaw announced the purpose of the meeting. The convention was organized by electing John H. Clark, Osceola, as chairman, and H. S. Sheffer, of St. Joe, as secretary. Welcome address was given in a few well chosen remarks by Bro. A. C. Shaw, and responded to by Bro. H. R. Belles of Mets. This was followed by song, "Loyalty to Christ." Bro. J. O. Rose, of Angola, was called to stand and make an earnest and forceful plea for the "Principals and Practice of New Testament Christianity," where he showed, all authority was given to Jesus, by God, and this authority was delegated to His Disciples, (The Apostles,) and they were not allowed to use it until they were endowed with the Holy Spirit.

General discussion: Bro. Couch, of Butler,—Wouldn't it be better in preaching, to leave off the speculative, and just preach the Gospel? Bro. Rose—The teaching of the Gospel began at Jerusalem and overcame obstacles as great, perhaps, as we have today. Bro. Lappin—The Jews asked for signs, the Greeks for wisdom. We preach Christ and Him crucified. Preach this to the common people and it will win.

Business Session.—Appointment of committees.

Committee on Resolutions, with Bro. G. A. Townsend, chairman, J. O. Rose, A. C. Shaw, Eva S. Sheffer and Bro. W. Monroe.

Order of Business.

Bros. Clark and Shaw. Adjournment to 1:30 P. M.

Afternoon Session

Devotional was led by Bro. E. P. Couch, of Butler.

Address—A. L. Martin, Lafountaine, Ind. "Making the Evangelistic Meeting Effective." Bro. Martin said, "The work of the evangelist is to teach, that of the church to work."

Discussion

Bro. Lappin stressed the difference between Evangelism and Revivalism. The latter resulted in failure.

Bro. Couch—"Is not emotional method necessary as well as the teaching?"

Chairman—"Yes.—By an illustration."

Bro. Martin—"Yes teach them,

(Continued on Page 4)

Township Returns Of Primary

We are unable to obtain the returns more than the combined figures of the ballots from the two precincts of the township.

The winners on the democratic ballot were as follows:

U. S. Senator, Ralston, 100; U. S. Congress, Peters, 62; Judge, Stump, 139; State Representative, Smith, 69; Auditor, Erick, 124; Treasurer, Green 81; Recorder, Morr, 69; Sheriff, Morr, 103; Coroner, Hinklin, 99; Surveyor, Kain, 129; Assessor, [illegible] 138; Commissioner, [illegible], 136; Commissioner [illegible], Brecbill 161; [illegible] Large, [illegible] 71; [illegible] 4 St. Clair [illegible]

[illegible]

Patrons Praise C. A. Woodcox

"The patrons of the Convoy Schools were afforded a rare treat last Friday evening when the High School Chorus made its first appearance at the High School auditorium. The chorus numbers were interspersed with special numbers by individuals who showed talent of a high order which gives much promise for future attainment. The chorus work was well rendered and was especially commendable because the practice was all done in school hours and was a part of the regular work. Mr. Woodcox certainly deserves great praise for the way in which he is handling the musical training and study of our young people."

The above paragraph is a clipping from one of our exchanges, "The Convoy Signal," and the Mr. Woodcox mentioned is the one well known to all of St. Joe and Concord Township as "Coxie." He has taught for many years in and around St. Joe in the common school, and several years in the St. Joe High school, where he conducted the manual training, music and art classes. Also he was a fan in all phases of athletics and did much for their advancement here. In all we can say he was very successful.

And we take it that he has met with like success at Convoy. He has taught there two years and has been asked to stay a third. That's good recommendation.

Should Coxie ever come back to the St. Joe Schools, his experiences in other places larger than our own will enable him to give the greatest satisfaction.

The Salvation Army

Perhaps there is no more self sacrificing class of people on earth than the officers of the Salvation Army. The reward of the Army Lassie and Laddie is not an earthly one except in the consciousness of doing something for others. Whenever there is human misery and distress they are there to alleviate it. They believe that while both men and women may be down they are not out. None can excel them in the work of alleviating suffering and rebuilding wrecked lives and changing human derelicts into normal human beings, who themselves become helpers of others when rescued.

But this is not all they do. There is never a great calamity but they are there. In the Pueblo disaster they were the first to rush two car loads of food in from Denver and so well did they do their work that the whole mess camp was turned over to them. They help relieve the labor situation through their free labor bureaus. Last year they placed over 70,000 persons in positions free of cost.

They are now in the field of prevention as well as rescue. The Young Women's Boarding Homes are such agencies. These homes are not only safe and comfortable retreats for young women, but the best employers consider their residence in these homes as a sort of recommendation regarding character. The cost is exceedingly nominal.

The Salvation Army has no great organised mass in its own membership aside from its consecrated officers. Its members are all workers. Their personel is not composed of prosperous business men and those who have retired in opulence hence they rely upon the public to aid them in carrying on the great work for the people. Protestant and Catholic and Jew are all alike to them when it comes to service. There is no distinction. They feel that all the people need an opportunity to help and they will respond.

The Salvation Army Advisory Board of Concord Township is presenting [illegible] claims of the Army [illegible] and are urging a [illegible] response to the appeal. No [illegible] tell when we may need [illegible] service ourselves. Who can [illegible]

There is a national financial drive [illegible]

[illegible]

Clarence C. Woodcox Vernon F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage—Boost St. Joe

☞ SERVICE

☞ QUALITY

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

May Release

Columbia Records

Dance Music	Popular Music
"She's a mean job." "If you knew."	"Time After Time" "You Can Have Every Light On Broadway"
"Lola Lo." "Doo Dah Blues."	"Pick Me Uy And Lay Me Down" "Alabamy Mammy"
"California" "An Old Fashioned Girl"	"Angel Child" (song) "Angel Child" (orch'stra)
"Dear Old Southland" "Virginia Blues"
"Song India" "To A Wild Rose"

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Local Briefs

Mrs. [illegible] Hamilton and Mrs. Ada [illegible] were Hicksville visitors Wednesday.

Walter Lawson was a Friday evening [illegible] guest of his mother, Mrs. Virginia Lawson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dilley and [illegible] were recent guests of Mrs. Anna Dilley.

[illegible]

Miss Carrie Davison is visiting Auburn relatives for an indefinite time.

Mrs. Huldah Reasoner will entertain the Lutheran Missionary Society Saturday afternoon.

Miss Jane Thompson, of Hicksville, came Saturday for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Link Smith and family, of Auburn Junction, spent Sunday with Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Anna Dilley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Brown and [illegible] Sunday and Monday at [illegible] at the home of her parents, [illegible] father being quite ill.

[illegible] and children left [illegible] for a two weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

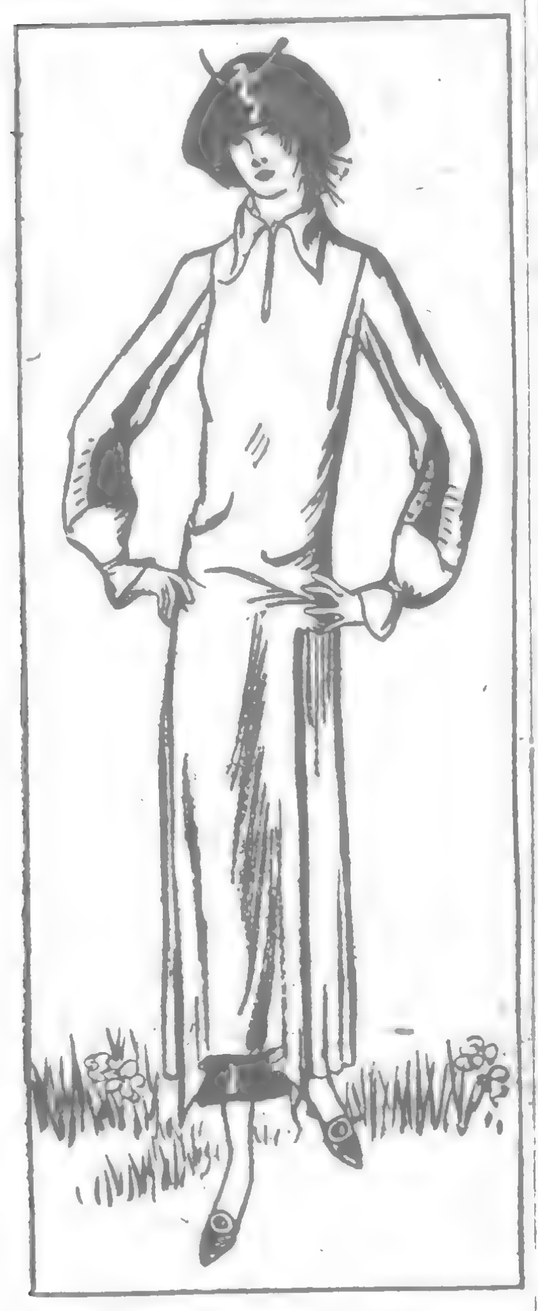
[illegible]

MAY

L 912

French Note in Spring Clothes

No rigid rules govern the spring fashions. Elasticity is the predominating idea, declares a Paris fashion writer in the New York Tribune. "Pay your money and take your choice," tersely summarizes the Paris dressmaker's attitude toward this spring's fashions. Everybody seems to be, as it were, practicing an electric method or system, choosing whatever seems best in present and past dresses with a view to presenting models that include the excellencies of all previously tested styles and the deficiencies and failures of none. Thus the dressmakers are showing both the short and the long skirt, with all varying degrees of length between the two extremes of high-shoe-top and floor-touching length.



Street Dress Showing the Russian Influence in Sleeves—Blue Serge and Black Satin.

Likewise, the full gamut in sleeve variations is sounded. There are dresses entirely sleeveless and those with sleeves so long that they form twin trains. There is an indication that the wide sleeve is on the wane. The long, fitted sleeve is offered in its place, but that it will usurp the place of its predecessor is only a prediction. It remains for women to indicate which they prefer.

Worth makes a feature of fancy sleeves, some of which are very long—that is, much longer than the arm. One can scarcely imagine a lady dining in a dress of this sort with any degree of comfort, as the sleeves are usually gathered in the hand or held as a shawl or mantle. Worth is no exception in showing this type of exaggerated sleeve.

Renee gives to some of her models a distinct note of the Italian renaissance through sleeves which trail on the floor in the form of twin trains. One very striking model of this character in red satin shows sleeves solidly embroidered in white crystal beads, this embroidery weighting them so that they train in majestic fashion on either side of the wearer. The dress has no embroidery other than that on the sleeves. In spite of these long sleeves the arms are practically bare, as the sleeves are open from the shoulders.

Russian Note Prevails in Dress.

The Russian influence is seen everywhere. There are dresses and suits of pure Russian style, many of them bearing significantly Russian names. Russian embroideries and Russian designs prevail more than any other kind of ornamentation. The color combinations found in trimmings and their mode of application in the form of broad girdles and the [illegible]-like ornamentations all show Russian artistry as the source of their inspiration.

In the use of materials there is the same variation in quantity or yardage employed. Some of the new dresses can still be cut from three and one-half meters, while in other models from five to six meters of two-yard-wide goods will be required.

In point of decoration there is the same wide range of [illegible]

[illegible]

there is the brilliant red of the spectrum, the natural, vital flame color and in its train numerous other reds having an admixture of yellow or of blue or of brown, thereby establishing several distinct red series of multiple tones. In rose shades there are geranium, coral and copper, each one in all possible diversity.

Navy Blue Again in Limelight.

Deep royal blue is another favorite, especially in combination. As for beige and castor, these tones are as the sands of the sea. There is not one that does not seem to have representation. Navy blue is coming back into its own, notably navy blue serge combined with red; also blue crepe marocain and crepe de chine three-piece suits. Black has its advocates. Gold and silver in both the bright and softened or vielle tones, together with steel, copper, bronze and gun metal, are very important.

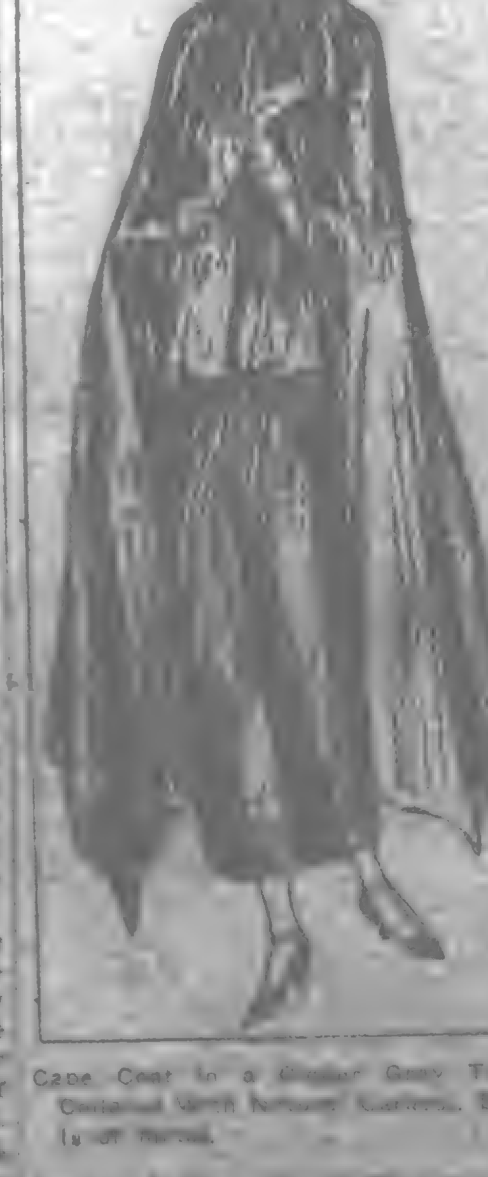
A very large proportion of the new blouses, whether they are separate or designed for a special suit or are a part of a three-piece costume, are Russian. From a fashion standpoint there is an interesting trend toward the use of the blouse. This has been brought about by the fact that all of the great French dressmakers in their recent openings stressed the tailored suit and also because of the real Russian blouses, which became the rage through being sponsored by the best-dressed women in Paris.

Distinctly new in both cotton and silk blouses for spring are the Russion models embroidered in designs taken from Russian documents. Many of the new models are made of cotton crepe, which makes them more than ever resemble the Russian peasant garments, despite their Paris origin. Any number of these are being brought out by French manufacturers and selling in quantities for distribution in large American stores. They are worn with white serge as well as with white cotton skirts for sport wear.

Among the materials used in blouses are white organdie embroidered in deep yellow, yellow tussah embroidered in white and yellow linen. There are the pure white crepe de chine and crepe georgette blouses. One interesting tailored model is of fine white linen stitched in lines imitating Scotch plaid. There are blouses made of printed mousseline and then there are the pure white, exquisitely made, linen blouses of the type known as chemisier; that is to say, shirtwaist.

Blue Enamel Trims Black Slippers.

A Paris shoemaker is featuring slippers of patent leather with designs in colored enamel. Small wreaths of flowers form buckles at the front and straps at the sides. Other models show straps which cross and button high on the sides. These are made of the enameled leather, the designs being in conventional flowers. The but-



Cape Coat in a [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MAY 7

ISAIAH'S REMEDY FOR A WORLD AT STRIFE

LESSON TEXT.—Isa. 2:2-4; 11:1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord.—Isa. 2:5.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Ps. 46; Mic. 4:1-5; Phil. 4:8, 9; Gal. 5:22, 23.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—How to Be a Peacemaker.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Swords Beaten Into Plowshares.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—How to Make Peace and Keep It.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Conditions of Permanent Peace.

Isaiah does not set forth merely an ideal for a world at strife, but foretells what shall actually take place in the latter days, which shall put an end to all earth's strife. In these Scripture texts he reveals the fact that Jesus Christ shall come and establish His kingdom and remove from men's hearts the cause for strife.

I. The Kingdom Established (Isa. 2:2-4).

By "mountain" in the Scriptures is meant "kingdom" (Dan. 2:35; Rev. 18:1; 17:9-11.)

1. Its position (v. 2). It shall be in a place of supremacy. It stands at the head of all kingdoms. In fact the kingdoms of this world shall then become the kingdom of Christ (Rev. 11:15).

2. The restored nation the teacher of the Gentiles (v. 3). God called Israel that He might make His name known among other nations. Now after many centuries of apostasy and rebellion the chosen nation comes into its own. God's favor will be so outstanding as to gain the attention of the whole world and cause the people to come up to Jerusalem to hear the law of God.

3. The divine judge (v. 4). The problems of the nations of the world shall be adjudicated by One who is all-wise, and He shall rebuke many people. Because of this rebuke they shall convert their implements of war into implements of husbandry and they shall learn war no more.

II. The King (Isa. 11:1-5).

1. His lineage (v. 1). He is of royal stock, of the house of David. From the fact that the "branch" grows out of David's roots, it is shown that Messiah shall come when the fortunes of the nation are very low.

2. His qualifications (vv. 2-3a). The Holy Spirit shall rest upon Him in His completeness, qualifying Him for His work. "Wisdom and understanding refer mainly to the clearness of intellectual and moral insight; counsel and might to the qualities which give sound practical direction and vigor to follow and carry through the decisions of practical wisdom; while the knowledge and the fear of the Lord define relation by its two parts of acquaintance with God founded on love and reverential awe which prompts to obedience." He shall have quick understanding in the fear of the Lord and His delight shall be to do God's will. This has fulfillment in Jesus Christ in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge (Col. 2:3).

3. The character of His reign (vv. 3b-5). (1) "Not judge after the sight of his eyes." His knowledge is perfect; his judgment pierces through the problems, even seeing the motive which lies back of the act. (2) "Not reprove after the hearing of the ear." The word "reprove" means "decide." His decisions, therefore, will be on the basis of fact, not on hearsay. He cannot be deceived nor imposed upon. He knows all things, even from the beginning. (3) "With righteousness shall judge the poor." He will mete out impartial justice to them. Many times now the poor suffer because the wealthy are able to bribe the judge, but when Christ shall reign as King the poor shall get justice. The poor shall not suffer in [illegible] because he is poor nor [illegible] because he is [illegible]. (4) [illegible] equity for the meek." [illegible] doubtless means [illegible] the earth [illegible]. (5) "Smite the earth with the rod of his mouth." [illegible]

[illegible]

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Hammond.—When the new construction of the National Tube plant at Gary is completed it will make 8 miles of unbroken industrial frontage on Lake Michigan extending from East Chicago to Gary. The line begins with the plant of the Universal Portland Cement company, which with its immense furnaces, mills, warehouses and yards, covers more than a mile of lake front. Then comes the Stockton storage yards, where millions of tons of coal are stored for use in the Gary furnaces. Next to the east is the large American Sheet and Tinplate company's plant, the largest in the world, stretching for nearly two miles along the shore. The Gary works of the United States Steel corporation take up another mile and a half and the Gary Tube mill site runs eastward to Miller beach. The industries all belong to the United States Steel corporation which will have nearly $200,000,000 invested there when the $40,000,000 tube plant is completed.

Indianapolis.—Filling in the commissioned and enlisted personnel of the organized reserves in Indiana, though not completed, is well under way, according to Maj. J. F. Taulbee, acting chief of staff of the Eighty-fourth division. The organized reserves, which include the officers' reserve corps and the enlisted reserve corps, constitute one of the three units of the United States army, recognized as the third line of defense. The reserves can be called to active duty only in case of a national emergency declared so by the congress or may be ordered to a training camp in time of peace, for a period not to exceed 15 days.

Hammond.—Closing the negotiations for the purchase of a 1,000-acre site for the location of the new $20,000,000 Jones & Laughlin steel plant in Hammond, deeds were received by the East Chicago company from the secretary of war, whereby the government conveys the west branch of the ship canal to the company, which originally gave it to the government. This means that the steel company, which has contracted for acreage from the East Chicago company, will be enabled to fill in the canal to Wolk lake, long abandoned as a canal project, although the government held the title.

Indianapolis.—Judge James A. Collins of this city sentenced Richard C. Sipe, who formerly was Marion county clerk, to serve two sentences of two to fourteen years and one of one to five years at the Indiana state prison on charges of embezzlement and conspiracy to embezzle county funds. The total of fines on the three charges was $7,000. A shortage of about $140,000 in the trust funds held by Sipe was discovered more than a month ago, and Sipe resigned his office soon after.

Indianapolis.—The state commission which is selecting a site for the new school for industrial aid for the blind may not complete the purchase of a site at Ethel and Thirtieth streets, in Indianapolis. Protests from persons in the vicinity caused Governor McCray and the commission to consider other sites in the city because, the Governor believes, it would be unwise to locate the school in a neighborhood that is opposed to it.

Indianapolis.—James B. Curtis, a member of the law firm of Baldwin & Curtis, of New York, a former resident of Indianapolis and captain of the Indianapolis light artillery, later known at Battery A, in the Spanish-American war, and at one time speaker of the Indiana house of representatives, was found dead in his room at an Indianapolis hotel apparently as a result of an attack of heart disease.

Columbus.—The Kiwanis Clubs of southern Indiana will meet in Columbus May 8 in an intercity meeting. The clubs of Bedford, Bloomington, Franklin, New Albany and Columbus will take part in the gathering. Guests from other clubs in the state are also expected to be present and the club is preparing to provide entertainment for more than 500 Kiwanians.

Indianapolis.—The number of graduates from Indiana high schools this year will exceed by several hundred the record of 12,[illegible] graduates last year, Benjamin J. Burris, state superintendent of public instruction, has announced. Mr. Burris said that he based his [illegible] on the enrollment this year, which is greater than ever before.

Indianapolis.—The state finance board [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Reports from various districts of Indiana show that the assessment on farm property will be between 20 and 35 per cent lower than the assessment made four years ago, according to members of the tax committee of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations. The committee is composed of ten representatives from as many districts in Indiana. These representatives have been working with the county assessors in making out the new assessment. The assessment on improvements will be about 5 per cent lower than at the last assessment, according to the reports. In some parts of the state the reduction, committeemen said, will be more than 35 per cent and in a few instances the reduction will not be more than 15 per cent.

Indianapolis.—Lawrence Lyons, director of the state highway commission, awarded the contract for the concrete construction of the Dunes highway between Gary and Michigan City to the General Construction company, of Gary, and to the Chicago Heights Coal company, of Chicago Heights, at a total cost of $384,535. The contract was awarded in two sections, the section from Gary to Balleytown, in Lake and Porter counties, 8.993 miles long, being awarded to the General Construction company, at a cost totaling $178,390, and the section from Balleytown to Michigan City, in Porter and Laporte counties, 10.7 miles long, being given to the Chicago Heights company, at a total cost of $206,145.

Indianapolis.—Contracts for approximately 215,000 barrels of cement, to be used by the state highway commission in the construction of about 48 miles of 1922 hard-surfacing program, were awarded by the director of the commission, to be Louisville Cement company, of Louisville, Ky.; the Universal Cement company of Chicago, and the Indiana Portland Cement company, of Greencastle. The Indiana Portland company received the contract for 48,000 barrels of cement, to be used on the Brazil to Reelsville cut-off, and on the Manhattan to Mt. Meridian section, in the National road, at a cost of $2.39 a barrel delivered.

Valparaiso.—Fruit prospects in Porter county appear to be unusually bright despite the cold weather and hard freezes of the last week. This is the opinion of fruit men in various parts of the county. An examination of fruit buds has disclosed that the condition of the fruit is unusually good. Apples, pears, cherries, plums, peaches and grapes and all sorts of berries are budded the heaviest for many years, and they are alive and vigorous.

Indianapolis.—The grain appeal to Indiana farmers for corn for starving Armenian children has been a gratifying success, according to a report just made to G. I. Christie, chairman of the grain committee. The report states that 63 Indiana counties responded to the appeal. The five counties which rank highest are: Elkhart, 7,377 bushels; Shelby, 6,962 bushels; Hancock, 4,650 bushels; Noble, 4,447 bushels; Morgan, 4,023 bushels.

Indianapolis.—The maintenance division of the state highway department is making a survey of the damage done to state roads and bridges by the high waters of the last six weeks. Form blanks were sent to all district engineers and division superintendents, with instructions to report on the condition of approximately 3,500 miles of the state highway system.

Indianapolis.—Southern Indiana, this year, will produce one of its greatest fruit crops, if present prospects mature. Harry Dietz, assistant state entomologist in the state department of conservation, announced on his return from an extended trip through the southern part of the state where he visited orchards around Paoli, Mitchell, Salem and Orleans.

Marion.—Asbury E. Steel, first mayor of Marion, is dead at the soldiers' home in Danville, Ill., where he was transferred several months ago. He was eighty years old and was a brother of George W. Steel of Marion, ex-representative in congress from the Eleventh district and governor of the home. Mr. Steel was mayor of Marion in 1889 and 1890.

Whiting.—Work will soon begin at Whiting on a community service house donated to the city, and dedicated to the Whiting men who served in the late war. The building is to be of southern Italian architecture and will cost nearly $500,000. It will contain the most modern facilities and equipment.

[illegible]—Indiana posts of the American Legion will co-operate with [illegible] in observing Boys' week, to be held in various cities during the [illegible], according to reports received [illegible] F. H. Henley at [illegible] headquarters.

[illegible] Zella and Joe [illegible] charged with con[illegible]

[illegible]

THANKFUL FOR A LITTLE CHILD

Mrs. Mertz Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Kutztown, Pa.—"I wish every woman who wants children would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has done so much for me. My baby is almost a year old now and is the picture of health. She walked at eleven months and is trying to use her little tongue. She can say some words real nice. I am sending you her picture. I shall be thankful as long as I live that I found such a wonderful medicine for my troubles."—Mrs. CHARLES A. MERTZ, Kutztown, Pa.

Many cases of childlessness are curable. Perhaps yours may be. Why be discouraged until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a faithful trial?

Spoken and written recommendations from thousands of women who have found health and happiness from its use have come to us. We only tell you what they say and what they believe.

We believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well adapted to the conditions which might cause your trouble that good will come to you by its use.

Merit is the foundation of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has behind it a record of nearly fifty years.

SLOW DEATH

Aches, pains, nervousness, difficulty in urinating, often mean serious disorders. The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

bring quick relief and often ward off deadly diseases. Known as the national remedy of Holland for more than 200 years. All druggists, in three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

THICK, SWOLLEN GLANDS that make a horse Wheeze, Roar, have Thick Wind or Choke-down can be reduced with also other Bunches or Swellings. No blister, no hair gone, and horse kept at work. Economical—only a few drops required at an application. $2.50 per bottle delivered. Book 3 A free.

ABSORBINE

W. F. Young, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

The Tides of Fundy.

Extraordinary stories are sometimes told of the immense tides in the Bay of Fundy. The scientific facts in regard to them have been published by the Canadian geological survey. The bay is about 145 miles long and gradually narrows and becomes shallower as it penetrates the land. The upper part divides into two main branches, and several small side bays exist. The highest tides at the mouth of the main bay reach 18 feet. Going up the bay, they increase in height. At Digby Neck they attain 22 feet, and St. John, 27 feet, at Petitcodiac river, 46 feet, and at Noel river, in Cobequid bay, 53 feet, the maximum. Some branch bays are left empty at ebb tide.

She Knew Him.

Milliner—"I know that hat would please your husband." Customer—"Not unless you took $30 off the price."

An Expert Writes:

"I used to be called a poor cook, and never pretended to bake a cake worthy of praise, but now I am called the champion cake baker of my community, thanks to the Royal Baking Powder."

Mrs. R. W. P.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

Contains No Alum Leaves No Bitter Taste

[illegible]

MAY

L 91

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

THE FRAMEUP.

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennet, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted, Polly's feeling being adoration. Oscar kills Polly's lamb and Percival thrashes Oscar. MacKenzie orders the squatters to leave. Evelyn plans to marry MacKenzie. Percival and Polly confess their love.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

—9—

Then while Robert was telling her of his hopes and plans, rehearsing his love for her and his desire to help her read and study, they walked slowly back along the ragged rocks in the direction of the shanty.

They were almost at Polly's home before he left her. She watched him stride up the hill, and, after he had disappeared, she threw herself flat upon the earth; and mingled with the bird's song in the willow trees, and the rippling of the waves upon the shore, came her cry:

"Oh, God dear, I can't marry Oscar, I can't! You'll have to help the squatters some other way, darlin'."

* * * * * * *

The days that followed, bringing with the spring flowers flocks of summer birds, seemed an eternity to Polly Hopkins. She went about her duties as one in a dream. In spite of Robert's efforts, several of the fishermen had been sent to the Ithaca jail for petty crimes.

Two men had been trapped in the Bad Man's ravine and taken off to the jail without so much as a farewell to their families. Polly had groaned with their women and wept over their babies. She was quite sure Percival was doing everything anybody could do; but sometimes the thought of Evelyn's demand intruded on her mind, and she wondered if she were doing right in refusing it.

One morning at daybreak Polly saw her father lift his gun from the wall and sit down to clean it. Now, why was he doing that, when he knew very well he could not use it? She stood looking down upon him, her heart beating rapidly.

"You ain't goin' to hunt yet, honey," she protested, squatting down beside him.

"Yep," returned Hopkins glancing up. "There ain't no one astir so early, an' I'll bring back something, mebbe a woodchuck or a skunk. We ain't had enough to keep a mess of flies alive since Old Marc got back."

That was true! No one knew better than Pollyop how they had missed the little she had received from Bennett. Sick at heart, she snatched at his hand.

"We might best be without grub, Daddy," she said passionately. "Aw! Don't start [illegible] dressed Wee Jerry at Jeremiah's command, and then, troubled in spirit, watched him stride away in the keen morning air.

[illegible]

It had been decided among the squatter men that to keep the breath of life in their women and children they must hunt and fish, but that nothing should be caught that the law forbade. It was this thought that was running through the squatter's mind as he crept up to see if a woodchuck had ventured out. One was sitting up, taking a suvey of the neighborhood, when Hopkins lifted his gun; and with one sharp crack and a belch of smoke the furry fellow tumbled over.

The squatter strode forward and was in the act of picking it up when three men appeared as if they had sprung from the earth and with raised pistols closed in upon him.

Jeremiah's huge jaw dropped at the sight of them, and Wee Jerry's fingers caught tight hold of his shaggy hair.

"Drop that gun," cried one man, and the still smoking rifle fell to the earth.

It took but a moment to snap a pair of handcuffs about the dazed man's wrists. It was while Jeremiah's face was turned upward to quiet the screaming Jerry that one of the men quickly substituted a dead squirrel, and another went away with the dead woodchuck. Then the third slipped a chain around one of Daddy's wrists and led him down the hill to the ragged rocks, the child still clinging to his neck.

Polly was standing under a willow tree as her eyes caught sight of Daddy Hopkins and Wee Jerry between two men. One of them strode along, a little dead body dangling from one hand, while held in the other hand was her father's gun. She ran toward them, giving spasmodic cries of dismay.

"Daddy!" she screamed.

No answer came from the blinking squatter.

"We caught him with the goods on," one man sneered at her.

"But you're goin' to leave him with me," she shrilled, making her appeal to the man who stood close to Jeremiah. "Daddy'll promise not to hunt no more, won't you, honey? Oh, God! You said you wouldn't shoot nothin' the law said you couldn't."

"I didn't, brat," grunted Hopkins.

Then his eye caught sight of the squirrel, and his jaw dropped. A hoarse groan fell from him.

"I didn't shoot no squirrel, Poll," he cried out to her. "I got that big chuck I were tellin' you about." Then, turning glaring, fury-filled eyes on the man who had sneered at the girl, he continued, "You planted that d—n little critter on me, mister. I never shot him."

Pollyop's lids widened in terror. She lifted one hand and caught the child's shoulder.

"Jerry, baby," she cried madly, "you was there! Tell Pollyop what Daddy shot!"

"Sure I was there," he sobbed, drawing his sleeve across his face. "'Twas a big woodchuck settin' up by his hole, an' my Daddy Hopkins—"

The officer who had the squirrel in his hand, put it into his pocket and [illegible]

[illegible]

stant. She knew the planting system had been practiced on the squatters before. At last the law had her best beloved.

"Daddy never killed that squirrel," she raved. "He didn't; an' you d—n duffers know he didn't. You can't get by with nothin' like that. It's crooked! Here, you—you—you gimme my daddy!"

Like a wildcat unloosed upon them, Polly flew first at one, then at the other. She bit at them, tore at their clothes and kicked out with her strong, bare feet; but it was like a small force attacking a mighty mountain. Strong hands pinioned her arms, and while she stood raging at them, she saw Wee Jerry snatched from his father's shoulders and set on the ground. Then they led Daddy Hopkins away. Dazed for a moment, Polly stood shaking from head to foot. Grasping Jerry by the hand, she ran swiftly after them, crying out in despair that Daddy must go home with her and the baby.

At the lane Hopkins turned and spoke to her.

"Brat," he choked, swallowing hard, "kiss your daddy, an' let me smack Wee Jerry too. Go on home. I'll be comin' back after a bit. Tell Larry they got me, an' that I said for him to look after you an' the kid!"

With her arms about his neck she gave the promise squatter women make their men when the majesty of the law steps into the Silent City.

"I'll keep the baby an' the shanty till you get back, Daddy darlin'," she sobbed. "Give your girl-brat kisses, an'—here's Wee Jerry!"

Even the officer who had the squirrel turned his head as the girl clung to the big squatter.

Afraid to lead their prisoner through the Silent City, the deputies marched him up the lane toward the railroad tracks. As they turned into the boulevard, Hopkins looked back down the hill. Pollyop was still in the road, and Wee Jerry was in her arms, his face pressed against her neck.

CHAPTER X.

As in a nightmare the squatter girl blundered along the path, back to the hut, carrying Wee Jerry in her arms.

Granny Hope was hobbling from the coop-hole when the girl stumbled over the threshold.

"Something awful's happened, huh, Pollyop?" the woman faltered, and limping across the floor, she bent and gathered the thin small boy to her. "Come to grandma, Jerry dear," she coaxed, "an' hear a wee bit about Love."

The crooning voice, choked with entreaty, touched the edge of Polly Hopkins' soul. She swayed forward to her knees, caught the one withered hand extended to her and clung there.

"I'll set, my bird," mumbled Mrs. Hope weakly, and she dropped into a chair with Jerry in her lap. "There! Aw! Don't cry that way, honey. Listen, dear heart. God's everywhere! An' His love too! Can't—"

Out of the shower of glistening curls appeared a wan, tearful face.

"Daddy's been took to jail, Granny Hope," Pollyop burst out. "God can't go in a dirty jail, God can't! Old Marc—"

Mrs. Hope's sudden trembling broke off the girl's words; and Polly wept again in hopeless misery as the woman repeated almost dully:

"God can't go in a dirty jail."

Then her face, [illegible] by a radiant thought, lost its [illegible] and for a time she stroked the bowed young head. Then:

"Be your daddy lovin' you an' the baby?" she [illegible]

[illegible] children!

[illegible]

shimmering chestnut curls mingled with thready locks of gray; and then two quivering wizened lips fell upon a trembling rosy mouth.

"Say something more, little Granny," whispered Pollyop. "Oh, God'll do what you say He will—mebbe, huh?"

Weary with unusual emotion, the woman's head bobbed forward.

"With God, Pollyop," she whispered faintly, "there ain't no mebbe. When you get a swat from a hand like Old Marc's, then a angel from Heaven—"

Instantly Polly Hopkins was on her feet. An angel from Heaven! A blessed angel would help Daddy Hopkins!

"Darlin'," she murmured, bending over Mrs. Hope, "get on my bed an' take Wee Jerry. I'm goin' out."

Polly Hopkins was in the Robertson grape arbor before she fully realized the task which she had undertaken. To thrust herself into the presence of Robert Percival was not so easy as she had anticipated.

"Just let Pollyop find 'im alone, Jesus dear," she prayed, and then stepped out from among the vines.

It was a cosy scene that met her eyes when she ventured into the house. The family were at breakfast; and Marcus MacKenzie in his riding suit was drinking coffee. At the sight of her he put down the cup and rose to his feet; and instantly Percival got up too. Evelyn went white; and an ejaculation fell from Mrs. Robertson's lips.

"He Can, an' He Will, Poor Brats," Answered Mrs. Hope.

Throwing a questioning glance from one to the other, the girl's eyes settled at last on Robert's face.

"They've took my Daddy Hopkins to jail," she faltered, "an' I've come to get 'im back."

The loud laugh that burst from MacKenzie's lips brought a glare from Robert.

"Thank God, we've got him at last," Marcus exulted.

The expression of woe died in the squatter girl's eyes as Robert Percival came toward her.

"What!" he ejaculated, and then as though conscious of the hate that was directed at the newcomer by Marcus MacKenzie, he added in a lower tone: "Poor little girl! Come into my study, Polly, and tell me about it."

"Nonsense, Bob," interrupted MacKenzie rudely. "Let her tell her lies here. I'd like to hear what she has to say."

A flush mounted to Robert's face as he turned angrily on the speaker. During the moment he was struggling for composure, Mrs. Robertson and her daughter hung on the scene with bated breath.

[illegible] into his chair with a [illegible].

"I didn't come to tell lies, Mr. MacKenzie," Polly broke out [illegible]. "I've come to tell God's truth." Then the recollection of her father's desperate need overwhelmed her, and she [illegible]. "Your men planted a squirrel [illegible], sir; Daddy said so, an' Jerry [illegible]

To Percival, watching the man and [illegible]

[illegible]

CROPS AND PROFIT

PROBLEMS JUST NOW PRESSING ON AGRICULTURISTS

Farmer on Low-Priced, Fertile Lands, Still to Be Had, Is in Best Possible Position.

The economic problems connected with the advantageous marketing of farm crops and the financing of the movement of those crops are pressing upon agriculture most severely. They will be solved, however, and while that solution is being worked out it is simply good sense on the farmer's part to make his efforts toward production tell to the very maximum, as best carrying him through the period of depression and hard times and placing him in the best position to take the greatest possible advantage of the better times to come. We may repeat that the cheapest farm crop, whether from fields or from live stock, is almost invariably the largest crop which can be obtained. Or in other words, the greater the crop, the greater the net profit. To attain such crops and to place himself in the advantageous position referred to above, the farmer must study, and must apply the results of his study to such problems as soil fertility, its conservation and increase; soil moisture, its control; cultural methods, suitable and productive varieties, etc., etc.

The question is how can you best accomplish and secure these things? Can they be done on high-priced lands, by paying high rents, with the prices you get for your produce no greater than may be had from that grown and raised on much cheaper lands, whose production is fully as great as that of the high-priced lands? The answer is unquestionably in favor of the low-priced lands, when they are selected because of their soil fertility and the other requirements necessary. It is not the purpose here to point out merely that the lands of Western Canada would prove a splendid and ready solution, but to emphasize the fact that in order to overcome your present difficulty, to remove some of the burden that you are laboring under, you must secure some line of cheaper operation, whether it be removal to other parts in your own country where such opportunity may offer, or take advantage of that which Western Canada affords.

For information regarding these advantages apply to any Canadian government agent.—Advertisement.

Afraid of It.

"You had a good start at college; you were on the highway to a well-rounded education. Why did you give it up?" "I heard that it was folly to be wise."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

As Usual.

"What are cold-storage eggs selling for now?" "Strictly fresh, as usual."—Boston Transcript.

Blue-sky laws can never be adequate so long as there is so much blue sky to be sold.

You'll Get A Year's Wear or more,
when you buy
Nu-Way or
EXCELLO
RUBBERLESS
SUSPENDERS
No rubber to rot. Phosphor Bronze Springs give the stretch. Ask Your Dealer for Nu-Way Suspenders, Garters and Hose Supporters. If he hasn't them, send direct, giving dealer's name. Every pair guaranteed.
Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.
Nu-Way
The Stretch is in the Spring

PILES, FISTULA, ULCERATION, CONSTIPATION, bleeding, itching, cured at home. Trial free. S. TARNEY, AUBURN, IND.

TO KILL RATS and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air. Rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs and ants destroy food and property and are carriers of disease.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

Let Cuticura Be Your Beauty Doctor

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

A girl in love is often unable to express her thoughts, but it's quite different after marriage.

AUTO HITS TEAM

Laurel, April 18.—Unable to see a team driven by Lester Briscoe, 1303 Myrtle avenue, yesterday in the heavy mist, a large touring car driven by an unknown man ran into the team and seriously injured the driver and killed one of the mules. The accident occurred on Main street near Johnson's hardware store. A crowd quickly gathered and one of the by-standers was heard to remark that a person should be punished for not protecting himself against such an accident. He said that he knew of a preparation called "SEE THRU" that could be bought for a dollar from a concern in Baltimore, Maryland, called the Baltimore See-Thru Corporation that would have prevented the accident as no matter how hard it should be raining a wind shield treated with this preparation would always remain as clear as on a bright summer day and that every person who drove a car should not endanger life by going without it. He said that he had driven over from Govanstown several nights before and could not understand how the driver of the jitney could make such speed on a rainy night until he told him he always used "SEE THRU". After the driver explained to him how simple it was to have a clear wind-shield and guaranteed to be so as long as it rained he said he did not lose any time sending off his dollar for a box and that he found that it certainly did the trick. Advertisement.

Some men spend half their time framing promises and the other half in making excuses.

"O Happy Day" sang the laundress as she hung the snowy wash on the line. It was a "happy day" because she used Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

Propriety.

The gay Lothario, having been asked to sing, approached the careful girl.

"Will you accompany me on the piano?" he asked.

"Not without a chaperon," answered the careful girl.

Because she was a very, very careful girl.—American Legion Weekly.

Genuine
BAYER

Aspirin

WARNING! "Say Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

[illegible]

Church Congress

(Continued from Page 1.)

then play on their emotions."

Address, S. S. Lappin, "The Sacred Cows." Bro. Lappin likened the infection in the religious movement to the tuberculous infection in the king's herd. Neither the cows nor the U. C. M. S. are sacred. A very able address.

The committee on resolutions reported the following which were adopted:

I.—That, appreciating the labor necessary in caring for a gathering of this nature, we wish to thank the Auburn Church for their hospitality, and the sisters for their efficient care of our temporal needs.

II.—Whereas, there is much confusion existing in the Religious world concerning finality and authority — Resolved, that this Congress go on record as standing firmly for the Scriptures as the Word of God, and the all sufficient and alone sufficient authority in Religion.

III.—Resolved, that we welcome the formation of a Tract Society, and we urge the Churches and brethren everywhere to give it liberal support, to the end that the Principles of that New Testament be given the widest possible circulation.

IV.—Resolved that it is sense of this Congress that we commend the board of Managers of the U. C. M. S. for their action in passing the Resolution known as the Sweeny Resolution, and we urge upon the Executive Committee of the U. C. M. S. the carrying out fully of the intentions and provisions of that resolution. Sig. Com.—Geo. A. Townsend, chairman, J. O. Rose, A. C. Shaw, Eva S. Sheffer, per. W. Monroe, sec'y.

Closing prayer, S. S. Lappin.

Evening Session

Devotional was conducted by A. E. Hendershot, Newville, Ind.

Announcement was made from the chair in which Bro. Shaw read a letter requesting a series of conferences and that a committee be appointed to serve with others as a committee on Program arrangement. The recommendation was approved and Bro. J. O. Rose was appointed on that committee. The evening offering was taken.

Solo, by H. E. Hendershot.

Address by S. S. Lappin, "The State of Our Missionary Society," which was really a continuation of "The Sacred Cows," wherein he showed that the missionary society was a business proposition and subject to the same rules as other business.

Announcement by Bro. Montgomery, of Dowagiac, Mich., which was a Sermonette on Group Evangelism.

This was followed by an instrumental duette by Robert Johnson and Louetta Daily of St. Joe, Ind.

Then Bro. C. H. McKay, of Dowagiac, Mich., came forward and gave us a splendid address on "The Best Means of Extending New Testament Christianity." He showed the fact that every Disciple should be a preacher.

A few commendatory remarks from our chairman, and then the congregation sang, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Bro. S. S. Lappin pronounced the Benediction.

Tom Coale and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday evening with Roy Koch and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh and Clayton Wyatt were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Andress.

Ralph Sechler and family, of Ft. Wayne, spent from Saturday until Sunday morning as guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler.

J. C. F. Abel and wife spent Sunday afternoon and Monday as guests of Wayne Sharp and wife, at Edgerton, Ohio.

M. A. Hull attended the Mispah Shrine Chanters at Fort Wayne, Friday night. The order took on one hundred candidates last week.

Farm wanted:-I want to hear from party having farm for sale. Give price and description. G. B. Louden, Champion, Illinois.

C. J. Hadsell and wife, and Van Hadsell, wife and children, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	100	$ 7.29
M. P.	72	9.33
Lutheran	92	4.66
M. E. Spencer	72	5 18
Lutheran	89	4.57
Coburntown	71	2.50
Newville U. B.	93	4.44
Concord	72	2 18
Rehoboth	85	6.20
Mt. Pleasant	105	4.04

Sacred Production Shown.

The sacred story of "From the Manger to the Cross" in motion pictures is to be shown next Monday and Tuesday nights at the Methodist Church at Hicksville beginning at 7:30 p. m. The people interested in this wonderful production are cordially invited. No admission charge will be made but a free will offering will be taken.

CONCORD

Mabel Jackson has been on the sick list the past two weeks, but is better at this writing. Grandma Timmerman is also quite poorly.

Lois Murphy went to Angola, Monday to attend the Normal.

George Johnson and family visited at Cedarville, Sunday at the home of Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Johnson's mother.

Mrs Sarah Geisinger of Garrett, visited her sister, Mrs. Anna Adams a few days last week.

James Wyatt and wife of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Ira Bone and wife.

Charles Jackson and family entertained Sunday, Bert Jackson, George Kees, wife and baby of St. Joe and Mrs. John Timmerman and daughter of Spencerville.

COLETOWN

Patronize the advertisers.

Mrs. Jay Hart called on Mrs O. E. Cannon, Sunday evening.

Henry Kling and family, Chas. Walker and wife called on Alvin Walker and wife, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Grace Miller and daughter Georgia Evelyn, and Mrs. Blanche Nugen, of Auburn, were weekend guests of their parents.

Fine Clothing

While we feature, advertise and talk at all times about FINE CLOTHING, we do not want any man or young man to get the impression that we carry "High-Priced Clothes." Nothing in our store is "High Priced," but we carry the "BEST QUALITIES" that money will buy. Our volume allows us to sell on a very small margin of profit, to give our customers extra value for every dollar they invest.

Hart Schaffner & Marx
SUITS
$30 $40 $50

For the men and young men who want to pay less than THIRTY DOLLARS for a suit
WE'RE FEATURING A SPECIAL LINE OF SUITS
$18 and $25

[illegible]

Patterson Fletcher Co

[illegible]

Why tonic value is greater in this yeast

Yeast Foam Tablets are made entirely of pure whole yeast —the richest source of the tissue-building vitamin

The amazing tonic properties of yeast, and its consequent popularity everywhere, have offered opportunities which patent medicine makers and others have been quick to capitalize.

The resulting flood of so-called vitamin preparations reveals many products which contain precious little yeast and insignificant quantities of vitamin.

Remember these facts

It is of utmost importance to you to remember that Yeast Foam Tablets are made entirely of pure whole yeast — that their vitamin content is proved by actual test to be both high and uniform — that they are endorsed by leading medical scientists — and that they are made by yeast experts, the world's largest manufacturers of dry yeast.

By virtue of these facts you are definitely assured that Yeast Foam Tablets have an exceedingly high tonic value — and that is what you really want.

You may take them with the positive knowledge that they will aid assimilation, promote growth and the formation of firm, healthy tissue, and that through these processes you will experience an energizing and generally upbuilding effect.

Take Yeast Foam Tablets for these conditions

Yeast Foam Tablets, which are so rich in the tonic and tissue-forming vitamin, are recommended for loss of appetite; indigestion; lack of physical strength and energy; anaemia; skin disorders; nervous troubles and many forms of vitamin deficiency and general ill health known as "run down" conditions.

The name, Yeast Foam Tablets, is your protection. It is your guarantee of purity and known vitamin potency. Ask for this yeast by its full name. There is nothing just the same or "just as good." Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Yeast Foam Tablets
Vitamin

Northwestern Yeast Co.
Chicago
Makers of the famous baking yeasts, Yeast Foam and Magic Yeast

Yeast Foam Tablets
the only pure whole yeast in convenient tablet form

John Verner was a business caller at Auburn, Saturday.

Mark Murphy, wife and son Derrill, were Sunday guests of Will Sauers and wife.

Elias Inlow was a Saturday night and Sunday guest of Jay Hart and family.

Sam Smith and wife spent Wednesday evening with Will Sauers and wife.

Sherman Meek and family and Gladys Repp were Sunday guests of Lester Pierman and family.

Henry Kling called on Elton Brown, Sunday morning.

Herbert Ginther came home from Akron, Sunday, where he has been teaching school.

NEWVILLE

Born April 29 to Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Keesler, a 9-lb. boy.

Plans are being made to hold the Rural Chautauqua.

The W. C. T. U., will meet Tuesday, May 9th. in the afternoon with Mrs John Miller. A good crowd is desired.

John Miller and Malcom Richmond each made a business trip to Auburn, one day last week.

Byron [illegible] Mr. Keesler [illegible] Tuesday [illegible]

Wm. [illegible] have now taken [illegible] They are [illegible] know how [illegible] attractive.

Dewey [illegible] Sunday [illegible] ter and [illegible]

[illegible]

Resolution of Respect

Whereas, God in his all wise Providence has caused Mrs. Emma Abel, His faithful servant, to hear the command: "Come ye blessed of my father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

Be it therefore resolved, that we, the members of the St Joe Valley Rebekah Lodge extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and commend them to God, who is the true source of comfort and consolation.

Resolved, that we as a lodge humbly submit to this dispensation of Providence, and say with the poet: "Be still sad heart and cease repining; Behind the clouds the suns still shining."

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our beloved Sister, and a copy be recorded on the minutes of the Lodge.

Com. { Cora Curie.
Mary Bets.
Mary Meek.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

WANTED:-A water cream separator. D. C. MCCANN, St. Joe, Ind.

Carl Perkins spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Clarence Hart and family.

Mrs. W. H. Randall called on Mrs. Oscar Burnier at the Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett, last [illegible] Mrs Burnier expected to be able to go to her home on Tuesday.

Alfred Reasoner and wife, and George Wade were Sunday dinner guests of James Harter and wife.

Beginning Saturday, you will be able to get your garden plants at the News Office. Also Geraniums.

L. E Cole and son Harry, of near Five Corners, were Sunday guests of their son and brother, Glen Cole.

Roy Maxwell, wife and little son spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Will Maxwell and wife.

Miss Waneta Moon, of Logansport, spent from Friday night until Monday the guest of her aunt, Miss Martha Moon.

Tom Brunson, wife and daughter Violet, and Mrs A. D. Brunson, were Saturday evening supper guests of C. C. Bassett and wife.

The Martha Society of the Christian Church will give a variety Bake Sale, next Saturday forenoon, at the Mrs. Berry Cream Station.

The Misses Alice Timmerman and Elizabeth Thorne, of Spencerville, were Saturday afternoon guests in the home of Will Koch and wife.

Get rid of that indigestion, stomach trouble, and nervousness, build up your system and regain that lost weight. Take Tanlac. Sheffer has it.

Mesdames Frank Kinsey, Harry Hursh, Albert Wade, and Lloyd Miller, the latter of Detroit, were Friday dinner guests in the home of Byron Widney and wife.

Mrs. Della McDonald has been re-elected to serve a second term as county attendance officer by the board of education. Her present term closes July 31 and her new term will begin August 1.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

[illegible]

L 912

Cash In Hand

Has a knack of melting away for little things that you would not buy if you had to draw a check to pay for them.

Cash In This Bank

Has a knack of growing because of the discouragement of small unnecssary spendings. Open an account here and you'll save money in spite of yourself.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Joe and John Webb spent Monday in Fort Wayne.

Kermit Steffey was a Sunday dinner guest of Paul Dean.

F. W. Silberg and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, Friday.

Miss Ellen Lake spent Sunday in the Gerry Wasson home.

Mrs. Asbur Culp and children are visiting relatives at New Paris.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

William Chapman, of Fort Wayne, is a guest at the L. M. Chapman home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Steward and children were guests of friends at Fort Wayne, Sunday.

Mrs. Golden High will act as hostess to the members of the C. C. Club on Friday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. Lingstrom were Sunday guests of the Jack Henderson house.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beams and children, of Fort Wayne, were callers on friends here Sunday.

Miss Leone Widdifield, of Fort Wayne, spent the week en with her parents here

Mrs. John McNabb and son, Kenneth were Tuesday evening guests in the B. F. Markle home.

Miss Mary Smith was a Thursday night guest of Miss Garnett Beams.

Daniel Myers and family of St. Joe, were Saturday afternoon guests of B. F. Markle and family.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Baumgartner of Decatur, were Friday guests of their son, Dr. C. R Baumgartner.

The funeral of George Lampman of Napoleon, Ohio, was held at this place Tuesday morning.

Frank Bai[illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Carol Book and children, of Garrett, spent Sunday with James Valieu and family.

Roy Walker and family, of Fort Wayne, were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Sophia Miller.

Clarence Bice is to work for the summer near Butler, and Miss Blanche Bice left last week to work at Fort Wayne.

Roscoe Walter and family and Mrs. S. E. Koonts visited in the John Moudy home, at Robison Chapel, Sunday.

Allen Dorsey and wife of Scipio and Oscar Rupert and family of Antwerp, were guests on Sunday of Charles Scott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Baltshi and son, Marcell and, Miss Lucy Zimmerman, all of Fort Wayne, were over Sunday guests of John Backmans'.

Miss Marcella Zimmerman, who has been visiting in Fort Wayne the past week, returned home Saturday.

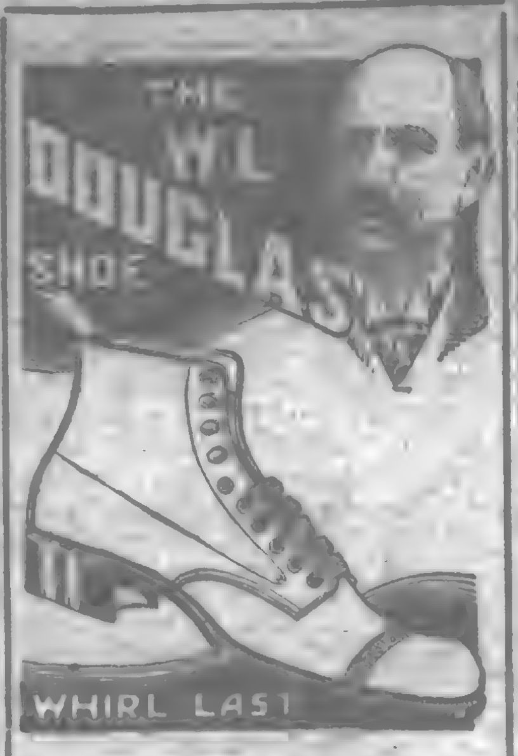
Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Wearley and daughters, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday the guests of relatives and friends at this place.

Don Kimes, who is working in South Bend spent Sunday with his parents. Clarence Widdifield returned with Don where he expects to work.

Mrs John B[illegible] and [illegible] daughter, Miss N[illegible] [illegible] of [illegible]ville, [illegible] Pauline Moody and her daughter Miss Baker [illegible] for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs Charles Boston, and Mrs. Kate House, of Michigan, came last week [illegible]

[illegible]



For Sale Only At

Chaneys'

Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Miss Ida Reed and her brother, James, were Thursday evening visitors at the Vern Wilmot home.

Found—A fence post hole plunger near St. Joe recently. Owner can have the same at the News office by paying for this ad.

Thousands of people who had lost hope of ever being well again have been restored to health and happiness by Tanlac. At Sheffers'.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boston, of Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perkins and son, Lloyd, were Sunday dinner guests of Joel Bets and wife.

Mrs. Elma House, who has been visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Verne Wilmot and family, left Friday for her home in Michigan, accompanied as far as Fort Wayne by her mother and brother.

Over fourty friends of Miss Ailleen Askey gave her a farewell party at her home on last Wednesday evening. Mr. Askey has accepted work at Whitehouse, Ohio, and the family will be moved on Friday of this week.

L. B. Heller and wife moved their furniture into the basement of the Coolidge Department Store on Saturday from St. Joe. Mrs. Heller will make her home with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C Hull, Representative, St. Joe.

Obituary

Port Russell Vallieu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. C. Vallieu, of Spencerville, was born on the 25th day of July, 1919, and passed to the beautiful realms of heaven on the 18th day of April, 1922, aged two years, 9 months and 24 days.

Though tarrying only a brief time [illegible] not understand the way of suffering.

He was a member of the M. E. Sunday school being enrolled in the Cradle Roll Department.

[illegible]

[illegible]

To Pay $1,788 Back Taxes.

George Scattergood, assessor of DeKalb county has placed $12,000 worth of sequestered property owned by the estate of W. J. Orr on the tax books of Spencer township. Mr Orr was burned to death several months ago when his barn was completely destroyed by fire.

The property was found in the form of certificates of deposit in the banks at Ft. Wayne and Hicksville, Ohio, and in mortgages at Orr's former home in Paulding county, Ohio. Taxes on the property are due since the year 1914, when the deceased man moved to DeKalb county, and amounts to $1,788.

Mr. Orr was a bachelor and a nephew in Illinois is claiming his property. A half-brother in Ohio may also make a fight for a share of the estate. Orr always claimed that he was "hardup" and he spent but little money during the time he resided in DeKalb county.

After his death, the bank certificates and mortgages were found among his belongings. Clyde Hart of Spencer township was appointed administrator of the estate.

In addition to the personal property found, Orr owned the 160-acre farm on which he lived in Spencer township, and the sale of stock and farm implements after his death amounted to $2000.

He also owned $1,600 worth of property in Illinois. Quite a large sum of money which Orr carried under his belt was burned in the fire in which he lost his life.

His estate is worth over $30,000.

The following amounts of taxes are due for the various years:

1914, $231.60; 1915, $240; 1916, $272.40; 1917, $266.40; 1918, $282; 1919, $112.80; 1920, $178 80; 1921, $204.—Auburn Star.

WOOL WANTED

HIGHEST Price Paid

Jack Beams,
Spencerville,
Indiana.

C. R. Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
[illegible] HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE, - IND.
Phone [illegible] No. 7

[illegible] D V M

Ford size Batteries

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.oo.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Watch for our RADIO PHONE Announcement!
We are going to sell outfits soon. Radio is all the go, now.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

FIX UP- PAINT UP

"I was very particular to use the best finish and doors in my house, but somehow it doesn't look just as good as it did." Have you ever done any thing to preserve the beauty of the wood except to wash it? A good coat of varnish will make it look like new. If it is too far gone for varnish, try enamel. If it is full of dents and bruises, get new woodwork put in. It doesn't cost much, and your whole house will look like new. New woodwork is like a clean collar-makes you look, feel, and act respectable, even if you are not

Spencerville Lumber Co.

HERE AND THERE

Patronize the Advertisers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkens spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Tel Elson.

Mrs. John Guisinger, of Garrett, is here visiting relatives for a few days.

Mrs. Anna Bachtel and daughter Josephine were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton.

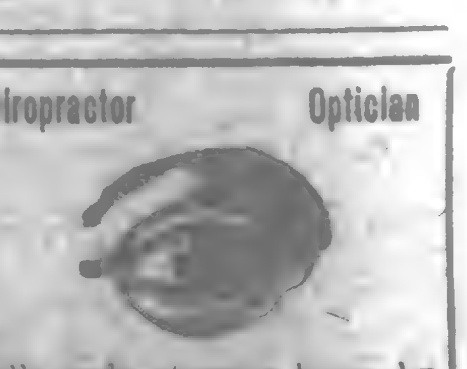
Mrs. Anna Adams, of Concord, was a Sunday afternoon guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koch.

Will you need any garden plants, such as cabbage, tomatoes, etc., to set out. We will have them at the News Office after Saturday.

Charles Bassett spent Friday afternoon at Hicksville.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter Louetta, Mesdames Sam Keesler and Will Hamilton were Hicksville visitors, Saturday afternoon.

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
[illegible] AND BOYS [illegible]
[illegible] Street
Fort Wayne, Ind.

MAY

L 91

A COUPLE OF CAPITALISTS

They Saved and Saved to Get the Thing They Wanted, and Then Found It Didn't Satisfy.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

ON THE top of the hill stood the big brick house—a mansion, compared to the other houses of the New England village. At the foot of the hill nestled the tiny brown farmhouse, half buried in lilacs, climbing roses, and hollyhocks.

Years ago when Reuben had first brought Emily to that little brown cottage, he had said to her wistfully: "Sweetheart, 'tain't much of a place, I know, but we'll save and save, every cent we can get, an' by an' by we'll go up to live in the big house on the hill!" And he kissed so tenderly the pretty little woman he had married only that morning that she smiled brightly and declared that the small brown house was the very nicest place in the world.

But, as time passed, the "big house" came to be the Mecca of all their hopes, and penny by penny the savings grew. It was slow work, though, and to hearts less courageous the thing would have seemed an impossibility. No luxuries—and scarcely the bare necessities of life—came to the little house under the hill, but every month a tiny sum found its way into the savings bank.

Reuben never smoked. While other men used the fragrant weed to calm their weary brains and bodies, Reuben—ate peanuts. It had been a curious passion of his, from the time when as a boy he was first presented with a penny of his very own, to spend all his spare cash on this peculiar luxury; and the slow munching of this plebeian delicacy had the same soothing effect on him that a good cigar or an old clay pipe had upon his brother-man. But from the day of his marriage all this was changed; the dimes and the nickels bought no more peanuts, but went to swell the common fund.

It is doubtful if even this heroic economy would have accomplished the desired end had not a certain railroad company cast envious eyes upon the level valley and forthwith sent long arms of steel bearing a puffing engine up through the quiet village. A large tract of waste land belonging to Reuben Gray suddenly became surprisingly valuable, and a sum that trebled twice over the scanty savings of years grew all in a night.

One crisp October day, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Gray awoke to the fact that they were a little under sixty years of age, and in possession of more than the big sum of money necessary to enable them to carry out the dreams of their youth. They began joyous preparations at once.

The big brick house at the top of the hill had changed hands twice during the last forty years, and the present owner expressed himself as nothing loath to part, not only with the house itself, but with many of its furnishings; and before the winter snow fell the little brown cottage was sold to a thrifty young couple from the neighboring village, and the Grays took up their abode in their new home.

"Well, Em'ly, this is livin', now, ain't it?" said Reuben, as he carefully let himself down into the depths of a velvet covered chair in the great parlor. "My! ain't this nice!"

"Just perfectly lovely," quavered the thin voice of his wife, as she threw a surreptitious glance at Reuben's shoes to see if they were quite clean enough for such sacred precincts.

It was their first evening in their new abode, and they were a little weary, for they had spent the entire day in exploring every room, peering into every closet and trying every chair that the establishment contained. It was still quite early when they trudged anxiously about the house, intent on fastening the numerous doors and windows.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the little woman nervously, "I'm most afraid to go to bed, Reuben, for fear some one will break in an' steal all these nice things."

"Well, you can sit up if you want to," replied her husband dryly, "but I shall go to bed. Most of these things have been here nigh on to twenty years, an' I guess they'll last the night through." And he marched solemnly upstairs to the big east chamber, meekly followed by his wife.

It was the next morning when Mrs. Gray was washing the breakfast dishes that her husband came in at the kitchen door and stood looking at her thoughtfully.

"Say, Emily," said he, "we'd ought-er have a hired girl. This is a poor place to be doin' work like this [illegible]"

Mrs. Gray gasped—and [illegible] pleased—and shook her head, but her husband was [illegible].

"[illegible] you had—an' [illegible] [illegible]. An' you must [illegible] [illegible]—lots of [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] lumps of money here, and [illegible] [illegible] chance wear [illegible] [illegible] things."

[illegible]

"Well, Mis' Steele, I don't know what to do. Reuben says I ought to have a hired girl; but I hain't no more idea where to get one than anything, an' I don't know's I want one, if I did."

And Mrs. Gray sat back in her chair and rocked violently to and fro, eyeing her hostess with the evident consciousness of having presented a poser. That resourceful woman, however, was far from being nonplussed; she beamed upon her visitor with a joyful smile.

"Just the thing, my dear Mrs. Gray! You know I am to go south with May for the winter. The house will be closed and the doctor at the hotel. I had just been wondering what to do with Nancy, for I want her again in the spring. Now, you can have her until then, and by that time you will know how you like the idea of keeping a girl. She is a perfect treasure, capable of carrying the entire work of the household, only"—and Mrs. Steele paused long enough to look doubtfully at her friend—"she is a little independent, and won't stand much interference."

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Gray departed, well pleased, though withal a little frightened. She spent the rest of the afternoon in trying to decide between a black alpaca and a green cashmere dress.

That night Reuben brought home a large bag of peanuts and put them down in triumph on the kitchen table.

"There!" he announced in high glee, "I'm goin' to have a bang-up good time!"

"Why, Reuben," remonstrated his wife gently, "you can't eat them things—you hain't got no teeth to chew 'em with!"

The man's lower jaw dropped.

"Well, I'm a-goin' to try it, anyhow," he insisted. And try it he did; but the way his poor old stomach rebelled against the half-masticated things effectually prevented a repetition of the feast.

Early on Monday morning Nancy appeared. Mrs. Gray assumed a brave aspect, but she quaked in her shoes as she showed the big strapping girl to her room. Five minutes later Nancy came into the kitchen to find Mrs. Gray bending over an obstinate coal fire in the range—with neither coal nor range was the little woman in the least familiar.

"There, now," said Nancy briskly, "I'll fix that. You jest tell me what you want for dinner, and I can find the things myself." And she attacked the stove with such a clatter and din that Mrs. Gray retreated in terror, murmuring, "Ham and eggs, if you please," as she fled through the door. Once in the parlor, she seated herself in the middle of the room and thought how nice it was not to get dinner; but she jumped nervously at every sound from the kitchen.

On Tuesday she had mastered her fear sufficiently to go into the kitchen and make a cottage cheese. She did not notice the unfavorable glances of her maid-of-all-work. Wednesday morning she spent happily puttering over "doing up" some handkerchiefs, and she wondered why Nancy kept banging the oven door so often. Thursday she made a special kind of pie that Reuben liked, and remarked pointedly to Nancy that she herself never washed dishes without wearing an extra apron; furthermore, she always placed the pans the other way in the sink. Friday she rearranged the tins on the pantry shelves that Nancy had so unaccountably mussed up. On Saturday the inevitable explosion came:

"If you please, mum, I'm willin' to do your work, but seems to me it don't make no difference to you whether I wear one apron or six, or whether I hang my dish-towels on a string or on the bars, or whether I wash goblets or kittles first; and I ain't in the habit of havin' folks spyin' round on me. If you want me to go, I'll go; but if I stay, I want to be let alone!"

Poor little Mrs. Gray had to [illegible] seat in the parlor, and for the rest of that winter she did not dare to call her soul her own; but her [illegible] [illegible] set and [illegible] [illegible] was as neat as wax.

The winter passed and Reuben began to be restless. One day he came in from the post office fairly bubbling over with excitement.

"Say, Em'ly, when folks have money they travel. Let's go somewhere!"

"Why, Reuben—where?" gasped his wife, [illegible]

[illegible]

quite awe-inspiring to his wife. He had visited Boston as a boy, and so had a dim idea of what to expect; moreover, he had sold stock and produce in the large towns near his home, and on the whole felt quite self-sufficient.

As the long train drew into the station, and they alighted and followed the crowd, Mrs. Gray looked with round eager eyes of wonder at the people—she had not realized that there were so many in the world, and she clung closer and closer to Reuben, who was marching along with a show of indifference.

"There," said he, as he deposited his wife and his bags in a seat in the huge waiting room; "now you stay right here, an' don't you move. I'm going to find out about hotels and things."

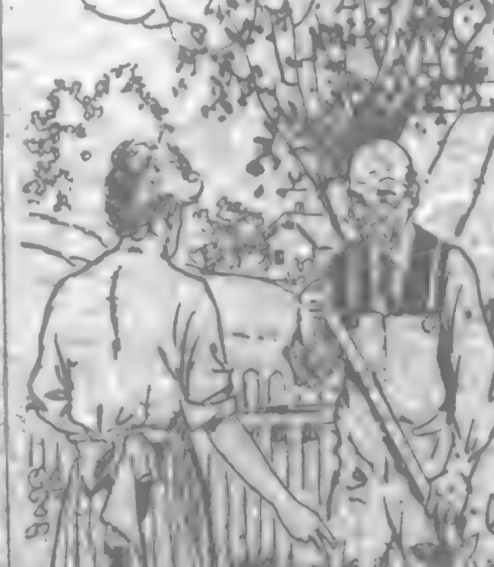
He was gone so long that she was nearly fainting from fright before she spied his dear form coming toward her. His thin, plain face looked wonderfully beautiful to her, and she almost hugged him right before all those people.

"Well, I've got a hotel all right; but I hain't been here for so long I've kinder forgot about the streets, so the man said we'd better have a team to take us there." And he picked up the bags and trudged off, closely followed by Emily.

His shrewd Yankee wit carried him safely through a bargain with the driver, and they were soon jolting and rumbling along to their destination. He had asked the man behind the newsstand about a hotel, casually mentioning that he had money—plenty of it—and wanted a "bangup good place." The spirit of mischief had entered the heart of the newsman, and he had given Reuben the name of one of the very highest-priced, most luxurious hotels in the city.

As the carriage stopped, Reuben marched boldly up the broad steps and entered the palatial office, with Emily close at his heels. Two bellboys sprang forward—the one to take the bags, the other to offer to show Mrs. Gray to the reception room.

"No, thank you, I ain't particular," said she sweetly; "I'll wait for Reuben here." And she dropped down into the nearest chair, while her husband advanced toward the desk. She noticed that men were looking curiously at her, and she felt relieved when Reuben and the pretty boy came back and said they would go up to their room.



"Why, Reuben Gray! Whatever in the World Are You Doing?"

She stood the elevator pretty well, though she gave a little gasp (which she tried to choke into a cough) as it started. Reuben turned to the boy.

"Where can I get somethin' to eat?"

"Luncheon is being served in the main dining-room on the first floor, sir."

Visions of a lunch as he knew it in Emily's pantry came to him, and he looked a little dubious.

"Well, I'm pretty hungry; but if that's all I can get I suppose it will have to do."

Ten minutes later an officious head waiter, whom Emily looked upon with [illegible] awe, was seating them in a [illegible]

[illegible]

The next morning before breakfast Reuben manfully paid his—to him astounding—bill and departed for more congenial quarters, which they soon found on a neighboring side street.

The rest of the visit was, of course, delightful, only the streets were pretty crowded and noisy, and they couldn't sleep very well at night; moreover, Reuben lost his pocketbook with a small sum of money in it; so, on the whole, they concluded to go home a little before the two weeks ended.

When spring came Nancy returned to her former mistress, and her vacant throne remained unoccupied. Little by little the dust gathered on the big velvet chairs in the parlor and the room was opened less and less. When the first green things commenced to send tender shoots up through the wet, brown earth, Reuben's restlessness was very noticeable. By and by he began to go off very early in the morning, returning at noon for a hasty dinner, then away again till night. To his wife's repeated questioning he would reply, sheepishly, "Oh, just loafin', that's all."

And Emily was nervous, too. Of late she had taken a great fancy to a daily walk, and it always led in one direction—down past the little brown house. Of course she glanced over the fence at the roses and lilacs, and she couldn't help seeing that they all looked sadly neglected. By and by the weeds came, grew, and multiplied; and every time she passed the gate her throat fairly choked in sympathy with her old pets.

Evenings, she and Reuben spent very happily on the back stoop, talking of their great good fortune in being able to live in such a fine large house. Somehow they said more than usual about it this spring.

One day, in passing this same little house, Emily stopped a moment and leaned over the gate, that she might gain a better view of her favorite rosebush.

She evinced the same interest the next two mornings, and on the third she timidly opened the gate and walked up the old path to the door. A buxom woman with a big baby in her arms, and a bigger one hanging to her skirts, answered the knock.

"How do you do, Mis' Gray. Won't you come in?" said she civilly, looking mildly surprised.

"No, thank you—yes—I mean—I came to see you," stammered Emily confusedly.

"You're very good," murmured the woman, still standing in the doorway.

"Your flowers are so pretty," ventured Mrs. Gray, unable to keep the wistfulness out of her voice.

"Do you think so?" carelessly; "I s'pose they need weedin'. What with my babies an' all, I don't get much time for posies."

"Oh, please,—would it be too much trouble to let me come an' putter around the beds?" queried the little woman eagerly. "Oh, I would like it so much!"

The other laughed heartily.

"Well, I really don't see how it's goin' to trouble me to have you weedin' my flowers; in fact, I should think the shoe would be on the other foot." Then the red showed in her face a little. "You're welcome to do whatever you want, Mis' Gray."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed Emily, as she quickly pulled up an enormous weed at her feet.

It took but a few hours' work to bring about a wonderfully happy change in that forlorn garden, and then Mrs. Gray found that she had a big pile of weeds to dispose of. Filling her apron with a portion of them, she started to go behind the house in search of a garbage heap. Around the corner she came face to face with her husband, hoe in hand.

"Why, Reuben Gray! Whatever in the world are you doing?"

For a moment the man was crushed with the enormity of his crime; then he caught sight of his wife's dirt-stained fingers.

"Well, I guess I ain't doing no worse than you be!" And he turned his back and began to hoe vigorously.

Emily dropped the weeds where she stood, turned about, and walked through the garden and up the hill, pondering many things.

Supper was strangely quiet that night. Mrs. Gray had asked a single question: "Reuben, do you want the [illegible]?"

A [illegible] light leaped into the old man's eyes.

"[illegible]—would you be willin' to?"

After the supper dishes were put away, Mrs. Gray, [illegible] [illegible] to her husband as [illegible]

"[illegible], I think we'd better [illegible] down [illegible]."

A few [illegible]

[illegible]

AFTER EVERY MEAL

WRIGLEY'S P-K

This new sugar-coated gum delights young and old.

It "melts in your mouth" and the gum in the center remains to aid digestion, brighten teeth and soothe mouth and throat.

There are the other WRIGLEY friends to choose from, too:

C28

WRIGLEY'S P-K CHEWING SWEET
PACK 10 PIECES
WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT CHEWING GUM
WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM

WESTERN CANADA

Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying

are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc.

For illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, reduced railway rates, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. JOHNSTONE, 210 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

Smiles that won't come off are apt to become monotonous.

A rich man is often jolly—and has reason to be.

Uniforms are a successful education against patches.

Even a fat man may be successful at dodging an issue.

111 one-eleven cigarettes

Three Friendly Gentlemen

TURKISH

BURLEY

VIRGINIA

10¢ FOR FIFTEEN

[illegible]

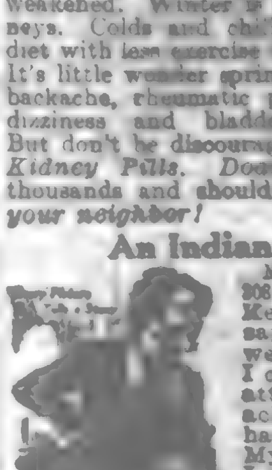
MAY

L 912

WHY THAT BAD BACK?

Does spring find you miserable with an aching back? Do you feel lame, stiff, tired, nervous and depressed? Isn't it time then, you found out why you are unable to enjoy these fine spring days? Likely your kidneys have weakened. Winter is hard on the kidneys. Colds and chills and a heavier diet with less exercise tax them heavily. It's little wonder spring finds you with backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities. But don't be discouraged. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case



Mrs. J. A. Storey, 308 E. Sargeant St., Kendallville, Ind., says: "My kidneys were weak and if I overworked I had attacks of backache so bad I could hardly keep going. My back ached so I couldn't rest and I felt lame and dull mornings. My kidneys acted too freely. Doan's Kidney Pills soon gave me relief and benefited me in every way."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Uncle Eben's Philosophy.

"When I works," said Uncle Eben, "I gits along better wifout a helper, unless I kin find enough foh him to do to keep him f'um thinkin' he's a audience."

Fresh, sweet, white, dainty clothes for baby, if you use Red Cross Ball Blue. Never streaks or injures them. All good grocers sell it.—Advertisement.

Only One That Counted.

Tommy had a little brother and a little sister.

One day a neighbor met him going to the market and pleasantly asked: "Are you the only child?"

"Nope," he importantly replied, "but I'm the only one working."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Always the public has one great privilege: Indignation.

As the bride and what she married leave the church trouble gets busy and follows them home.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

is indispensible in all cases of Cough, Cold, Influenza, Distemper, Pink Eye, Heaves and Worms among horses and mules. Give an occasional dose as a preventive. Excellent for Dog Distemper and Chicken Cholera. Write for Free Booklet

Sold in two sizes at all drug stores.

PAINT

SAVE MONEY - ORDER BY MAIL DIRECT FROM MAKERS

Our [illegible] page Illustrated Booklet "The Magic Story of Paint and Varnish" will tell you how best to select paint for the lowest cost, for best results, at the lowest price. It contains full instructions compiled by an old master painter for the application [illegible] to know about [illegible] together with samples for testing and color cards FREE.

WRITE TODAY

C. E. LIVELY & CO., [illegible] Bank Bldg. Cincinnati, Ohio.

ESTABLISH YOURSELF. Opportunity to enter mineral bath business. Large financial returns. Send for literature. Superior Bath Co., 1724 Columbus, Rd., Cleveland, O.

RE-NEW-TONE for Your Victrola Records

A remarkable new invention in liquid form that will thoroughly clean any make of playing records, removes scratches, keeps records looking new. Guaranteed to renew the tone of old records, also will loosen the tone of violin strings. One bottle will convince as to its merits. [illegible]

FARM BARGAINS

[illegible]

HELP WANTED

[illegible]

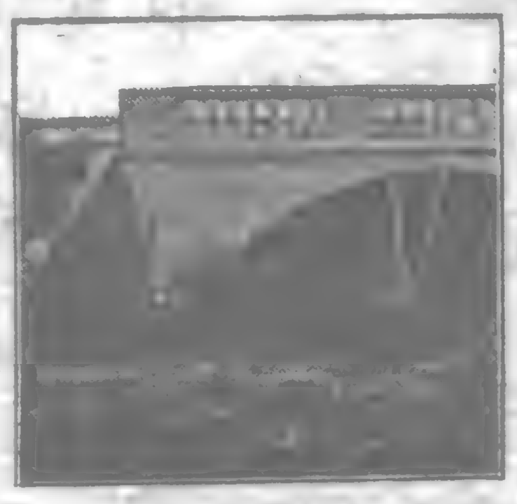
ROAD BUILDING

PROBLEM OF SKEWED BRIDGE

Methods Used for Calculating Stresses and Proportioning Are Not Approved.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Methods of calculating the stresses and proportioning the size of skewed concrete-arch bridges which have been considered good practice in the past may be incorrect and result in the collapse of the structure, according to engineers of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. A skew bridge is one in which the center line of the bridge is not perpendicular with the abutment on which the bridge rests, and is used when a bridge crosses a stream or railway track diagonally. The bureau is jointly responsible with the several state highway departments for the correctness of the design of all structures on federal-aid roads, and for this reason the problem is being carefully studied.



Skewed-Arch Bridge Used for Stream Crossing Road Diagonally—Note Position of Railing on Opposite Sides of Road.

WIDER HIGHWAYS WIN FAVOR

Originally Engineers Considered 10-Foot Roadway Adequate—Now Urge 20 Feet.

Former Superintendent of Illinois Highways S. E. Bradt of DeKalb, Ill., who has done much to boost the good roads movement in his state, says engineers originally considered a 10-foot highway adequate to meet the needs of traffic between populous centers.

Then they learned the folly of this contention and boosted the width. It was finally made 16 feet. Roads are being built 18 feet in width and now come prominent engineers advocating a 20-foot highway.

The shoulder maintenance is a prominent factor entering into this problem. The upkeep of a shoulder usually exceeds the original cost of the extra two feet of pavement, it has been learned by experience. For this reason highway experts are going on record advocating the wider pavement for trunk line highways. The upkeep of shoulders is very high, especially where there is heavy truck traffic.

PAVED ROADS AND DAIRYING

As More Improved Highways Are Constructed Milk Routes Are Being Extended.

Paved roads and dairying go hand in hand. As more improved roads are constructed, milk routes are extended and the farmer farther from the city is prodvided with a market for his milk. Over unimproved routes requiring wagon delivery, the longest route possible is only approximately 15 miles while over paved highways, traveled by motortrucks, routes covering as high as 40 miles are established. Large areas of prospective dairy country are waiting only the construction of more hard surfaced roads. When these are built, many more farmers, now cut off from their market, will receive the benefit of the economical and rapid transportation made possible by the motortruck and the paved highway.

HIGHWAYS ON PACIFIC COAST

Various Western States and Government to [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE FOND TOADS

"Goog-a-room, goog-a-room," said Mr. Fowler Toad. "Ah, let me sing to you, Miss Toad, for I would love to tell you in song how I love you."

"Goog-a-room," said Miss Toad softly.

Now Mr. Fowler Toad was a handsome young creature, so thought Miss Fowler Toad, but she did not want to seem too eager. She wanted to make him urge her to be his mate.

Then when he had urged a great long time she would consent. Oh yes, yes, indeed, she would consent!

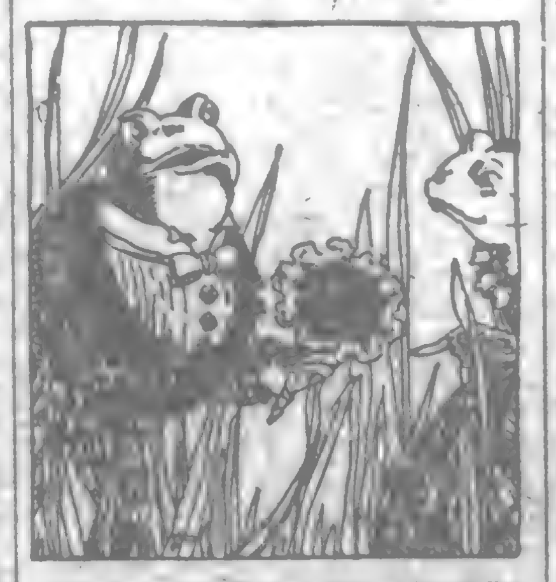
It was the springtime and Mr. Fowler Toad was very happy and rested, too, for he had had a fine sleep. He wore a dull brownish suit with some stripes and spots for decoration. His throat was usually puffed out as he was usually singing on these springtime evenings.

It was warm, it was pleasant, and he loved to sing. He didn't expect Miss Fowler Toad to sing, for he knew the ladies could neither sing nor could they croak. That was not to be held against them. It simply wasn't their way.

"I would like to sing you a song," said Mr. Fowler Toad, "about the joy of the spring, the joy of love and the joy of being a toad.

"There are three joys, three perfect joys. Will you heed me, Miss Fowler Toad?"

"I will hear what you have to say," said Miss Fowler with a very indifferent manner, but with her little toad heart beating fast.



"Puffed Out His Little Throat."

"I will listen to you, Mr. Fowler Toad."

So Mr. Fowler Toad puffed out his little throat and with his eyes bulging affectionately at Miss Fowler Toad he sang this song:

"It's the springtime, it's the springtime,
It's the time for love and rhyme.
It's the season for Toads' singing
Of the way their love they're bringing
To the beautiful Miss Toads.

'Now I love only you,
Indeed, indeed that's true.
My little heart is beating
Because of this, our meeting,
Because of dear Miss Toad.

'Miss Toad, will you mine?
And show by a sign,
That my Toad love you won't refuse,
For if you did 'twould give me blues.
Dear Miss Toad, accept!

'My song may sound quite sad,
But it's my singing that is bad,
My music sounds strange maybe,
But I do keep on the key,
Say yes, dear Miss Toad!

'Oh, Miss Toad, please marry me,
And we will very happy be.
We'll be such loving toads, ah yes,
That when you look at your wedding dress,
You'll say, 'I'm glad I wedded him.'

'May I cease my song for awhile
And watch your sweetest, best Toad smile?
And will you say you love me true,
As I love you, as I love you,
My dearest dear Miss Toad?"

Now Miss Toad could not keep quiet any longer. Of course she could not sing as Mr. Toad could, but she could tell him her answer and talk to him.

And he understood without her having to croak or sing. Oh yes, Mr. Fowler Toad understood.

"We mustn't be [illegible] in our happiness," said Miss Toad on the day of the wedding. [illegible]

[illegible]

HARDIN PUT BACK ON HIS FEET TWICE

Was Relieved of Both Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble by Tanlac, States Los Angeles Man.

"For the second time Tanlac has put me on my feet, and you may know by that what I think of it," said William T. Hardin, 1409 Garden St., Los Angeles, Calif.

"Three years ago, I had rheumatism in my shoulders and neck so bad I could hardly work. I tried medicine after medicine only to get worse, but finally I got hold of Tanlac, and I haven't had a trace of rheumatism since.

"Then last summer my stomach got out of order, I lost my appetite and what little I did eat made me feel bloated, all stuffed up and miserable. I always felt weak, tired and worn out, and was so nervous I couldn't sleep.

"Well, Tanlac did a good job for me before, so I just got some more of it, and now it has again fixed me up, and I'm feeling strong and energetic like I used to. I'll tell the world Tanlac's the medicine for me."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

An apple (of discord) a day is the devil to pay.

ASPIRIN INTRODUCED BY "BAYER" IN 1900

Look for Name "Bayer" on the Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The name "Bayer" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.—Advertisement.

Taking Chances.

The Gob and the Leatherneck had come ashore from the U. S. S. New Mexico to spend a few hours liberty in San Francisco. The first thing they thought of was chow. Dropping into a restaurant they were approached by a hard-boiled waiter.

"What's yours?" he asked the Gob.

"Hash," was the short response.

The waiter swung around and yelled to the cook: "One guy, takin' a chance!"

Then he looked inquiringly at the marine.

"Make mine the same," said the Leatherneck.

"Another sport," yelled the waiter.—The Leatherneck.

Little Mabel's Query.

Little Mabel, eight years old, has passed much of her young life in the company of grown-ups, and had acquired many of their oldish ways by imitation. An elderly lady visited the aunt with whom Mabel lived. Mabel had heard the stereotyped expression, "Well preserved," used concerning old people. So, after this old lady took her departure, Mabel sprang a surprise upon her elders by remarking: "Auntie, isn't Mrs. Brown a well-pickled old lady."—Judge.

Why Not?

The human fly was scaling the outside of the tall building at a dizzy height and an anxious throng watched in the street.

"What's he doing?" asked an old gentleman.

"He's going to the top of the building," said a bystander.

"Well," asked the old party, "why don't the darned fool take an elevator?"

A Deficit.

"The money in circulation per capita is said to be $62.48."

"Somebody has my $62."

Many a sharp retort is made in blunt language.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

If you have been waiting and hoping for the day when you could get better tires for less money, now is your time.

Goodyear Tires are at their best. They are bigger, heavier, and more durable than ever. Their quality is at its highest level.

And these better Goodyear Tires today sell for less money than at any previous time in our history.

The prices listed below established a new low level for Goodyears, averaging more than 60 per cent less than the prices of Goodyear Tires in 1910.

These would be low prices for any good tires. They are almost unbelievably low for Goodyears.

You have never had such an opportunity before to buy fine and lasting tire performance at such low cost. Call on your Goodyear Service Station Dealer, and take advantage of this opportunity today.

30 x 3½ Cross-Rib Fabric	$10.95	32 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord	$25.50
30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Fabric	$14.75	32 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord	$32.40
30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord	$18.00	33 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord	$33.40

Manufacturer's tax extra

GOODYEAR

Sparkling Gems.

The humorist contributor looked in upon the editor of Answers upon his busy day. The humorist contributor should not have looked in upon the editor of Answers on his busy day. The editor of Answers can't feel humorous and busy at the same time.

What was more, the humorist contributor would not go.

At last the editor of Answers decided to stop being busy for one moment and be sarcastic.

"That was a gem, that joke you sent me," he said in his usual dry tone.

The contributor drew himself up with pride.

"Sir," he said, "you flatter me!"

"Not at all," replied the editor. "You should have seen it sparkle when I put it on the fire!"—Answers.

Prepared for Death.

The suburban lady heard an airplane whizzing overhead. She called Cottie, the colored maid, to see it.

"Has you all ever been up in one of those contraptions, ma'am?"

The suburban lady said "No," and in turn asked Cottie if she wouldn't enjoy a ride in one.

"No, siree, ma'am," she answered. "Seems like when I went up that high, I'd like to be ready to jes keep right on going up."

American Museum Acquisitions.

Two treasured additions to the American museum are an incomplete skull of the European bison or wisent, and a fine skull and jaws of the urus or extinct wild ox of Europe, which is probably the remote ancestor of our domestic cattle. Both these came from the Cambridge (England) Museum of Zoology.—Scientific American.

Yes, Alfred, when a man meets his wife downtown he always wonders what it will cost him.

Real friendship doesn't see faults.

To "mean well" isn't enough; one has to know.

A Lady of Distinction

Is recognized by the delicate fascinating influence of the perfume she uses. A bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water to thoroughly cleanse the pores followed by a dusting with Cuticura Talcum powder usually means a clear, sweet, healthy skin.—Advertisement.

Not the Man for the Job.

Thomas Robertson, an official of the Eagles club, recently sent notices to several lodge members appointing them members of a committee to visit the sick. The next day one of those thus notified halted Robertson on the street.

"I'm chosen for the sick committee?" he asked.

"Yes—why not?"

"Well," the member replied, "I don't mind serving, but my business—"

"Can't you serve after business hours?" Robertson interrupted. "By the way, what's your business?"

"I'm—I'm an undertaker."

"Excused," said Robertson.—Kansas City Star.

Deliberately Unfriendly.

"Why is Mr. Grumpson so unpopular?"

"Because he's eccentric."

"Yes?"

"He carries around a pocket Bible. When a golf player starts to tell about his score Mr. Grumpson takes the Good Book out and asks him to lay his right hand on it."

If you would become a student of human nature begin by studying your own.

How is it that we so seldom hear the denial of a story first? It would help much.

A sermon that is long drawn out is apt to be narrow.

At What Age Should You Take Needless Risks With Your Health?

Is that a queer question?

Then many people are doing a queer thing —and often it turns out to be a serious thing.

The Federal Bureau of [illegible] says in its rules for the health of [illegible] that children should not drink coffee or tea.

[illegible]

[illegible]

MAY

CHICK TIME IS HERE

This is headquarters for Ful-O-Pep-Mash, Steel cut oats, Bone meal, Oyster shells, Chick scratch feed, Cracked corn, Tankage, and Fresh meal at the LOWEST PRICE.

Give us a call. We can save you money. Call and get our prices.

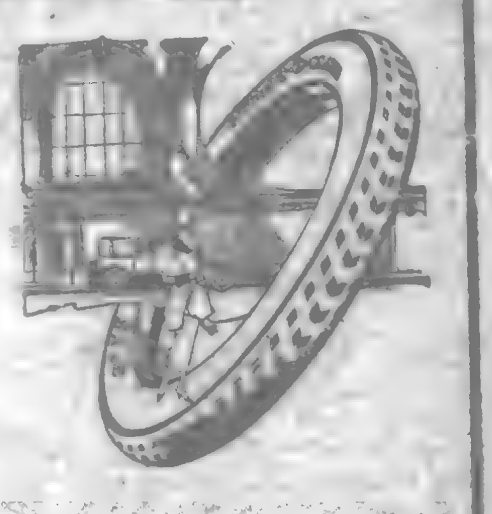
Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
St. Joe, Ind.

Plants! Plants! Plants!

Early Cabbage plants with a good thrifty start to supply the town's demand.
Tomatoe and other garden plants in like quantities

ALSO Potted Geraniums
These plants will be on sale Saturday and thereafter during the summer season at the

NEWS OFFICE



Someone, Somehow, Sometime may make a better Tire than the Sterling

We may do it ourselves, but it does not now seem possible all STERLINGS are extra heavy carcasses, are heaviest treads made, are cured (even to the 30x3's) by the long 3 hours air bag process.

Adjustments of STERLING Tires in 1921 were less than one in each 3000 tires sold.

STERLING Tire Corporation
Dealers Prices Direct to Consumers

PRICE LIST

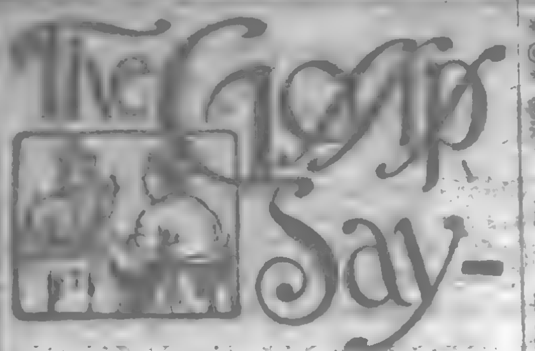
FABRIC CASINGS

Size	Sale Price	Red Tube Price
30x3	9.24	1 68
Extra Ply 30x3 1-2	10.48	2 00
31x4	14.59	2.40

CORD CASINGS

Size	Sale Price	Red Tube Price
[illegible] 1-2	15.00	2 00
[illegible] 1-2	20.00	2.00
[illegible]	24.00	[illegible]
[illegible]	24.00	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

L. L. RHODENBAUGH



The Gossips Say-

For Sale: Driving horse. See Ora D. Baker.

Dale Widney and wife, of Albion, spent Sunday with their parents, H. M. Widney and wife, and Mrs. Alice Copp.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch entertained nine young people a week ago Sunday at dinner in honor of their son, Brice's eleventh birthday anniversary. The event was a complete surprise to the boy.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

John Gruber and wife, Will Jackson and wife, and Mr. Jackson's father and sister, of Wayne, ate Sunday dinner and supper with Mrs. Kate Leighty.

Fire of mysterious orgin completely destroyed the residence of Reuben Clouse, just a short distance east of the corporation line of Auburn on East Seventh Street, at an early hour Monday morning.

Will Koch and wife entertained at Sunday dinner in honor of their two weekend guests Mrs. Jay Douglas, of Auburn; and Mrs John Guisinger, of Garrett:—Clay Coburn and family, and Roy Koch and family.

If you are all run down, weak, nervous, and out feel of sorts with everything and everybody, get back in line by taking Tanlac. Sheffers' Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. Eppler, of Wayne, spent Monday afternoon and Tuesday with the latter's parents, Frank Scholes and family. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Steinbocker, of Ft Wayne, were Tuesday supper guests in the same home and Mr. and Mrs. Eppler returned with them later in the evening.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton recently entertained the Coburn's Corners Ladies Aid Society. Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter, Louetta, Mrs. Mark Murphy, Mrs Howard Northrup, and Mrs. Will Price, were guests. At the close of the meeting the ladies presented Mrs. Daily with a beautiful black taffeta silk dress pattern.

The Central Grocery

Will give you the following dry goods inducements for the rest of the week:

Fancy dress gingham, plad or check	22c
Curtain scrim, princess cloth, 2 yards	25c
Creatone, for draperies	35c-40c
Tissue gingham	23c
Ladies ready made aprons	75c
Bath towels, extra large	45c
Wash cloths, fancy, 2 for	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Men's [illegible]	[illegible]
Men's overalls	[illegible]
Childrens [illegible] overalls	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1 [illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible] Week is [illegible] Week

COBURN'S CORNERS

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. McClellan Hart, this week.

A. D. Perry and wife entertained the Ray Herrick family, of St. Joe, last Sunday.

John Ulm and wife were Sunday evening guests at the Clyde Hart home.

Claud Laub and family were guests of relatives in Butler, Sunday.

Mrs. Will Hamilton is confined to her bed at present with illness of grippe.

Mrs. Chas. Inlow is recovering from an attack of gall-stones, suffered last Saturday night and Sunday.

Fred Hart accompanied Rev. R. B. Daily to Ashley, last Sunday evening, where Mr. Daily preached to a large congregation.

Preparations for Childrens' Day will be begun, shortly, Mrs. Faye Wilmot and Miss Gladys Place will have charge of the program.

Lawrence Pflaumer, Glen Hart, Fred Ulm, William Lake, and Carl and Bernice Hart will leave Tuesday, for the Tri-State Normal. Lehr Wilder will attend summer normal at Defiance, O.

Mr. and Mrs Abner Trostel entertained the following relatives, Sunday, Will Petty and wife, Chas. Petty, wife and sons, Fred and Harry. The party motored from Roann, Wabash county.

Two members from Coburntown Church were in attendance at the Christian Congress held at Auburn, last week, Mrs. Fred Hart and Ella Wilmot. Mrs. Hart had charge of the singing for the day's session

Lee Tustison, wife and son Keith, Earl Tustiron, wife and daughter Erma, were guests at the home of their parents the first of the week. Mrs. Chas. Tustison's condition has not been so well the past few days.

Mrs. Harry Urmson, of Akron, Ohio, who has been visiting the past week at the home of her father, O. J. Baker, and other relatives here, will go to Auburn, Wednesday, and return home the last of the week.

Mrs. Matie Gee and father entertained at a family dinner, Sunday, the following were present:—J. R. Baker, wife and daughters, A. S. Coburn, Mrs. Harry Urmson, Fred Gee and Meade Baker and wife.

Mrs. Clyde Hart very pleasantly entertained the R. H. C., last Thursday afternoon. The day being Gen. Grant's anniversary, a tribute of quotation or incident was given as responses at roll call. Two guests were present—Mrs Faye Wilmot and Miss Bernice Hart. A dainty luncheon of cream puffs and huckleberries, sandwiches and coffee was served. Mrs. Lela Northrup will entertain in two weeks.

Many Fail in Examination.

The county superintendent reports that of [illegible] manuscripts graded as a result of the eighth grade examination held April 22, 63 showed failures in geography, 32 in civics, 14 in [illegible] in reading, [illegible] in grammar, [illegible] in arithmetic and [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40% and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Commencement, June 15.

The commencement of the 8th., grade graduates of DeKalb County will be held in the Court theatre in Auburn on the afternoon of June 15. The program will include besides the address by Rev. Pontius, of Jacksonville, Illinois, a former pupil in the Fairfield township schools, music and the presentation of diplomas by county superintendent, Clarence Green. It is expected that about 200 graduates will recieve diplomas.

Entertained Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs J. W. Hart had as visitors, Sunday afternoon:—Roscoe Conine and wife, of Hicksville; Mrs. Martin Koch and daughter Mary, Mrs. Fred Hart and sons, Glen, Robert and Dale, Mrs Clarence Hart and daughter Florence, Mrs. Alice Hart, Henry and Jesse Hart, and Carl Johnson, of near Bicksville.

Mrs. Ada Goodwin and daughter Margaret, were Fort Wayne visitors, Friday.

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE — NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, MAY 5, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

[illegible]

MAY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1922 No. 19

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

WOOL!

We will be in the market for your WOOL at the highest possible market price. Bring your wool to us.

COAL! Market on COAL is going up daily-the fact is, it is hard to buy at all. We are not advancing our price while the coal we have on hand lasts, but willl have to if the market continues when we ship again.

GRAIN! Highest market prices paid at all times. There is no better grain market anywhere.

The St. JOE ELEV[illegible]OR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

You Cannot Lose

No matter how much or how little money you may have it will cost you no more to pay it out by means of check than it will to use the hard cash. Checks are accepted just as readily as money.

A checking account is absolutely safe. If a check should be lost it becomes worthless [illegible] payment on it can be stopped [illegible] and nothing of intrinsic value is lost. If the money is lost however, there are no "stop payment" [illegible] available. You lose.

We invite you to open a checking account at this bank. Come in and let us explain how you can save money by means of a checking account.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Concord Township S. S. Convention

PROGRAM

Of the Concord Township Sunday School Association, held Sunday, May 14, 1922, with every Sunday School in Mass Meeting.

MORNING SESSION, 9:30

Adults meet at Lutheran Church—Music by Lutheran orchestra.

Song Leader .... Floyd Reasoner

Children and Young People's Division will meet at the M. P. Church, under direction of Lena Meek and M. T. Bishop—With Christian Orchestra.

Lutheran Orchestra.... Special Music

Men's Chorus.

Inspirational Address—"The Challenge"

(a) What Do You Know?
(b) What Can You Do?
(c) Can You Love?

Miss Pauline W. Roth, Fort Wayne.

Remarks by.......... Geo. Beugnot, County President

Announcements.

Offering.

Appointing of Nominating Committee.

Song—Adjournment.

Persons bringing basket dinners will be given eating privileges in church basement.

AFTERNOON SESSION, 1:30

Lutheran Church

Music by St. Joe Choral Society.

Devotional ...... Mrs. Belle Woodcox

Congregational Singing.

Address, W. H. Bransford, Hicksville, O.—"Four Great Purposes of the Sunday School."

Announcements.

Offering.

Report of Township Department officers.

Report of Nominating Committee.

Adjournment.

Song.

EVENING SESSION, 7:30

Lutheran Church

Song Service .... Floyd Reasoner

Supported by Young Peoples' Choir

Methodist Orchestra.... Special Music

Devotional .... Harry Hurah

Cornet Quartet........ Daily, Johnson, Perkins.

Address, Pauline W. Roth, Fort Wayne—"Relation of the Church to the Young People.

Cornet Solo.......... Robert Johnson

Offering.

Song—Adjournment.

Ushers—Derwood Ridgway, George Wilmot, Byron Widney, Curtis Watt.

Old "Jim Crow" Is Dead

Old "Jim Crow" died at his home in St. Joe on Tuesday, May 2, at the age of fourteen years.

Old "Jim Crow" was the large black crow that has been a pet with the Shuff family for the past twelve years. Harry found him lying on his back as he went to the pen at the usual time of day with feed.

The bird was caught by Frank Milliman about thirteen years ago, when it was thought to be about one year old. It was kept by the Milliman family for about one year and then given to John Shuff, who left it with his parents when he went to California about eleven years ago.

Harts' Girl Band To Go To Atlantic City

O. V. Hart, manager of the famous Harts Girl Band, of Hicksville, Ohio, has closed a contract to fill an engagement of 15 weeks at Atlantic City, the great resort on the Atlantic coast, this summer.

This is a remarkable engagement for an organization from a country town to accept, but one that it is not in every way capable of filling. Mr. Hart has taken his band on a summer tour for the past few seasons and its reputation has spread world wide.

Miss [illegible] a young lady [illegible]

What Did Kayt

[illegible]

Band Concerts On Saturday Nights

At a meeting of the business men Tuesday evening, officers were elected for the carrying out the summer's activities. William Curie is chairman; William Quance, secretary; Frank Bowman, treasurer and Lessie Meek, Ed Leighty and E. R. Kinsey, finance committee.

The only business discussed was the band concert proposition and the final decision was that we have the concerts on Saturday evenings, beginning with next Saturday, May 13, and that the time of beginning the concert will be 7:30 o'clock up to the second Saturday in June, when it will be changed to 8:00 o'clock.

Every citizen of St. Joe and community, we feel, will be interested enough in this project to help in a financial way or other wise, support our local band. The boys are worthy of all the encouragement we can extend.

Gray Line Buss Burns

The large Gray Line buss, operated by Charles Putman, Sr., between Ft. Wayne and Butler, met with an accident near Newville last Wednesday evening, when the wheels of one side became embedded in the loose dirt at the side of the road and caused the machine to turn turtle over a steep embankment and to be completely destroyed by fire in a short time.

The machine was running at the time Mr. Putman noticed it begin to slide toward the ditch and finding that he could do nothing to prevent it from up setting leaped from the door just in time to save himself. Fortunately there were no passengers in the machine at the time, having unloaded the last at Newville.

The valuation of the buss was estimated at $2,000 while only $1,600 insurance was carried. It has not been learned whether or not a new buss will be put in operation, but it is hoped that there will be for it's services are greatly missed by its patrons.

Teachers for 1922-23 Term.

Feeling satisfied with the teachers who conducted the schools here last year and encouraged with the success it met, the trustee gave each of the corps a chance to return. All except two, Miss Venus Shultz and Miss Helen Smith, the intermediate teachers, have contracted to come back.

The vacancies made by Misses Shultz and Smith will be filled by Miss Lois Murphy, who taught the Hay's school last year, and Miss Nugen, of Auburn.

The scholars, patrons and officials are looking forward expectedly to a better and even more successful year in the next one than any of the past.

Stanley Kach at Huntington.

[illegible] son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] has accepted a position [illegible]

[illegible]

Clarence C. Woodcox Vernon F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-

Boost St. Joe

We are greatly pleased to announce that we have taken the agency for The New Series Of THE GOOD

MAXWELL AUTOMOBILES

TOURING	ROADSTER
$941	$941
COUPE	SEDAN
$1385	$1485

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

Take The Drubgery

Out of washday by using A Wonder Washer

Electric irons, Sad irons, Ironing boards, Clothes Baskets, and Stompers, Boilers, Wash tubs, wringers.

Buy A Perfection Oil Stove

Protect your household against the deadly fly by using Our Screen Doors, all sizes. Adjustable Screen Windows. Screen Wire, all widths.

STOP!
LOOK!
AND LISTEN!

[illegible] Paints

[illegible] White Lead

[illegible] Linseed Oil

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

[illegible]

MAY

A NEW ENGLAND IDOL

They Had Something to Sell; He Had the Price—But There Was No Deal Made After All

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE Hapgood twins were born in the great square house that set back from the road just on the outskirts of Fairtown. Their baby eyes had opened upon a world of faded portraits and somber haircloth furniture.

From babyhood to girlhood the charm of the old place grew upon them, so much so that the thought of leaving it for homes of their own became distasteful to them, and they looked with scant favor upon the occasional village youths who sauntered up the path presumably on courtship bent.

Rev. John Hapgood—a man who ruled himself and all about him with a rod of rigid old-school orthodoxy—died when the twins were twenty; and the frail little woman who, as his wife, had for thirty years lived and moved solely because he expected breath and motion of her, followed soon in his footsteps. And then the twins were left alone in the great square house on the hill.

Miss Tabitha and Miss Rachel were not the only children of the family. There had been a son—the first born, and four years their senior. The headstrong boy and the iron rule had clashed, and the boy, when sixteen years old, had fled, leaving no trace behind him.

If Rev. John Hapgood grieved for his wayward son the members of his household knew it not, save as they might place their own constructions on the added sternness to his eyes and the deepening lines about his mouth. "Paul," when it designated the graceless runaway, was a forbidden word in the family.

Years had since passed—years of peaceful mornings and placid afternoons, and Paul had never appeared.

On the 10th of June, their thirty-fifth birthday, the place never had looked so lovely. A small table laid with spotless linen and gleaming silver stood beneath the largest apple tree.

Rachel came out of the house and sniffed the air joyfully.

"Delicious!" she murmured. "Somehow, the 10th of June is specially fine every year."

In careful, uplifted hands she bore a round frosted cake, always the chief treasure of the birthday feast. The cake was covered with the tiny colored candles so dear to the heart of a child. Miss Rachel always bought those candles at the village store, with the apology:

"I want them for Tabitha's birthday cake, you know. She thinks so much of pretty things."

Tabitha invariably made the cake and iced it, and as she dropped the bits of colored sugar into place she would explain to Huldy, who occasionally "helped" in the kitchen:

"I wouldn't miss the candy for the world—my sister thinks so much of it!"

So each deceived herself with this pleasant bit of fiction, and yet had what she herself most wanted.

Rachel carefully placed the cake in the center of the table, feasted her eyes on its toothsome loveliness, then turned and hurried back to the house. The door had scarcely shut behind her when a small, ragged urchin darted in at the street gate, snatched the cake, and, at a sudden sound from the house, dashed out of sight behind a shrub close by.

The sound that had frightened the boy was the tapping of the heels of Miss Tabitha's shoes along the back porch. The lady descended the steps, crossed the lawn and placed a saucer of pickles and a plate of dainty sandwiches on the table.

"Why, I thought Rachel brought the cake," she said aloud. "It must be in the house; there's other things to get, anyway. I'll go back."

Again the click of the door brought the small boy close to the table. Filling both hands with sandwiches, he slipped behind the shrub just as the ladies came out of the house together. Rachel carried a small tray laden with sauce and tarts; Tabitha, one with water and steaming tea. As they neared the table each almost dropped her burden.

"Why, where's my cake?"

"And my sandwiches?"

"It's burglars—robbers!" Rachel looked furtively over her shoulder.

"And all your lovely cake!" almost sobbed Tabitha.

"It—it was yours, too," said the other with a catch in her voice. "Oh, dear! What can have happened to it?"

The sisters had long ago set their trays upon the ground and were now wringing their hands [illegible]. Suddenly a small figure [illegible] before them holding out four [illegible] sandwiches and half of a [illegible] cake.

"I'm sorry—awful sorry! I [illegible] [illegible] tried to arrange it in an orderly fashion.

[illegible]

"There, ma'am—that looks pretty good!" he finally announced with some pride.

Tabitha made an involuntary gesture of aversion. Rachel laughed outright; then her face grew suddenly stern.

"Boy, what do you mean by such actions?" she demanded.

His eyes fell and his cheeks showed red through the tan.

"I was hungry."

"But didn't you know it was stealing?" she asked, her face softening.

"I didn't stop to think—it looked so good I couldn't help takin' it." He dug his bare toes in the grass for a moment in silence, then he raised his head with a jerk and stood squarely on both feet. "I hain't got any money, but I'll work to pay for it—bringing wood in or somethin'."

"The dear child!" murmured two voices softly.

"I've got to find my folks, sometime, but I'll do the work first. Mebbe an hour'll pay for it—'most!"—He looked hopefully into Miss Rachel's face.

"Who are your folks?" she asked huskily.

By way of answer he handed out a soiled, crumpled envelope for her inspection, on which was written, "Rev. John Hapgood."

"Why—it's father!"

"What!" exclaimed Tabitha.

Her sister tore the note open with shaking fingers.

"It's from—Paul!" she breathed, hesitating a conscientious moment over the name. Then she turned her startled eyes on the boy, who was regarding her with lively interest.

"Do I belong to you?" he asked anxiously.

"I—I don't know. Who are you—what's your name?"

"Ralph Hapgood."

Tabitha had caught up the note and was devouring it with swift-moving eyes.

"It's Paul's boy, Rachel," she broke in; "only think of it—Paul's boy!" and she dropped the bit of paper and enveloped the lad in a fond but tearful embrace.

He squirmed uneasily.

"I'm sorry I ate up my own folks' things." I'll go to work any time," he suggested, trying to draw away, and wiping a tear splash from the back of his hand on his trousers.

But it was long hours before Ralph Hapgood was allowed to "go to work."

His story was quickly told. His mother was long since dead, and his father had written on his dying bed the letter that commended the boy—so soon to be orphaned—to the pity and care of his grandparents. The sisters trembled and changed color at the story of the boy's hardships on the way to Fairtown.

That evening when the boy was safe in bed—clean, full-stomached, and sleepily content, the sisters talked it over. Rev. John Hapgood, in his will, had cut off his recreant son with the proverbial shilling, so, by law, there was little coming to Ralph. This, however, the sisters overlooked in calm disdain.

"We must keep him anyhow," said Rachel with decision.

"Yes, indeed—the dear child.

"He's twelve, for all he's so small, but he hasn't had much schooling. We must see to that—we want him well educated," continued Rachel, a pink spot showing in either cheek.

"Indeed we do—we'll send him to college! I wonder, now, wouldn't be like to be a doctor?"

"Perhaps," admitted the other cautiously, "or a minister."

"Sure enough—he might like that better; I'm going to ask him!" and she sprang to her feet and tripped across the room to the parlor-bedroom door. "Ralph," she called softly, after turning the knob, "are you asleep?"

"Huh? N-no ma'am." The voice nearly gave the lie to the words.

"Well, dear, we were wondering—would you rather be a minister or a doctor?" she asked, much as though she were offering for choice a peach and a pear.

"A doctor!" came emphatically from out of the dark—there was no sleep in the voice now. "I've always wanted to be a doctor."

"You shall, oh, you shall!" promised the woman [illegible], going back to her sister; and from that time all their lives were ordered with that one end in view.

The Hapgood twins were far from wealthy. [illegible]

[illegible]

"Why, sister!—sell? Oh, no, we couldn't do that!" she shuddered.

"But what can we do?"

"Do?—why lots of things!" Rachel's lips came together with a snap. "It's coming berry time, and there's our chickens, and the garden did beautifully last year. Then there's your lace work and my knitting—they bring something. Sell? Oh—we couldn't do that!"

But as the days and weeks flew by and September drew nearer, Rachel's courage failed her. Berries had been scarce, the chickens had died, the garden had suffered from drought, and but for their lace and knitting work, their income would have dwindled to a pitiful sum indeed. Ralph had been gone all summer; he had asked to go camping and fishing with some of his school friends. He was expected home a week before the college opened, however.

Tabitha grew more and more restless every day. Finally she spoke.

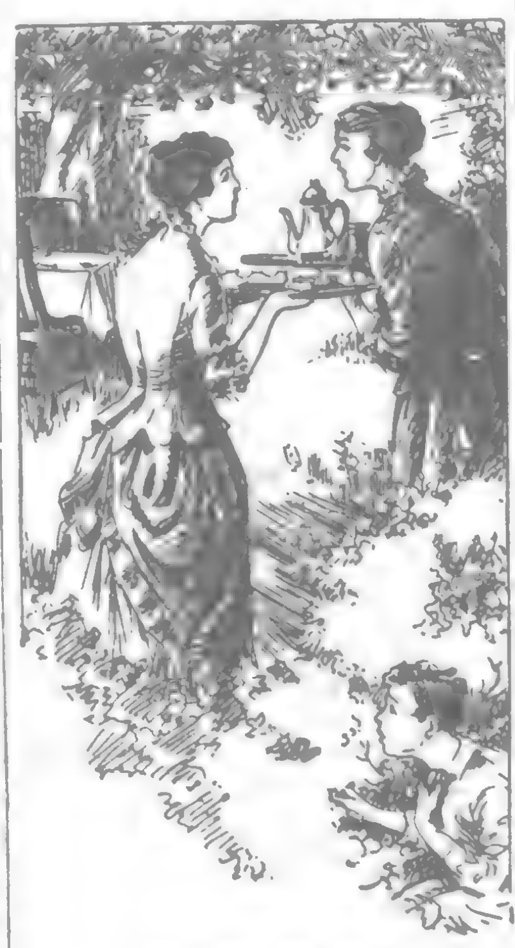
"Rachel, we'll have to sell—there isn't any other way. It would bring a lot," she continued hurriedly, before her sister could speak, "and we could find some pretty rooms somewhere. It wouldn't be so very dreadful!"

"Don't, Tabitha! Seems as though I couldn't bear even to speak of it. Of course, if I had an offer—a good big one—that would be qquite another thing; but there's no hope of that."

Rachel's lips said "hope," but her heart said "danger," and the latter was what she really meant. She did not know that but two hours before a stranger had said to a Fairtown lawyer:

"I want a summer home in this locality. You don't happen to know of a good old treasure of a homestead for sale, do you?"

"I do not," replied the lawyer. "There's a place on the edge of the village that would be just the ticket, but I don't suppose it could be bought for love or money."



"Where's My Cake?"
"And My Sandwiches?"

"Where is it?" asked the man eagerly. "You never know what money can do—to say nothing of love—till you try."

The lawyer chuckled softly.

"It's the Hapgood place. I'll drive you over tomorrow. It's owned by two old maids, and they worship every stick and stone and blade of grass that belongs to it. However, I happen to know that cash is rather scarce with them—and there's ample chance for love, if the money fails," he added, with a twitching of his lips.

When the two men drove into the yard that August morning, the Hapgood twins were picking nasturtiums, and the flaming yellows and scarlets lighted up their somber gowns, and made patches of brilliant color against the gray house.

"By jove, it's a picture!" exclaimed the would-be purchaser.

The lawyer smiled and sprang to the ground. Introductions quickly followed, then he cleared his throat in some embarrassment.

"Ahem! I've brought Mr. Hazelton up here, ladies, because he was interested in your beautiful place."

Miss Rachel smiled—the smile of proud possession; then something within seemed to tighten, and she caught her breath sharply.

"It is fine!" murmured Hazelton; "and the view is grand!" he continued, his eyes on the distant hills. Then he turned abruptly. "Ladies, I believe in coming straight to the point. I want a summer home, and—I want this one. Can I tempt you to part with it?"

"Indeed, no!" began Rachel almost fiercely. Then her voice sank to a whisper; "I—I don't think we could."

"But, sister," interposed Tabitha, her face [illegible], "you know you said—that is, there are circumstances—[illegible]" [illegible]

[illegible]

"I'll have the necessary papers ready to sign in a few days," said the lawyer as the two gentlemen turned to go. And Hazelton added: "If at any time before that you change your minds and find you cannot give it up—just let me know and it will be all right. Just think it over till then," he said kindly, the dumb woe in their eyes appealing to him as the loudest lamentations could not have done. "But if you don't mind, I'd like to have an architect, who is in town just now, come up and look it over with me," he finished.

"Certainly sir, certainly," said Rachel, longing for the man to go.

Mr. Hazelton appeared the next morning with two men—an architect and a landscape gardener. Rachel was in the summer-house, and the first she knew of their presence was the sound of talking outside.

"You'll want to grade it down there," she heard a strange voice say, "and fill in that little hollow; clear away all those rubbishly posies, and mass your flowering shrubs in the background. Those roses are no particular good, I fancy; we'll move such as are worth anything, and make a rose-bed on the south side—we'll talk over the varieties you want, later. Of course these apple trees and those lilacs will be cut down, and the summer-house will be out of the way. You'll be surprised—a few changes will do wonders, and—"

He stopped abruptly. A woman, tall, flushed, and angry-eyed stood before him in the path. She opened her lips, but no sound came—Mr. Hazelton was lifting his hat. The flush faded, and her eyes closed as though to shut out some painful sight; then she bowed her head with a proud gesture, and sped along the way to the house.

Once inside, she threw herself, sobbing, upon the bed. Tabitha found her there an hour later.

"You poor dear—they've gone now," she comforted.

Rachel raised her head.

"They're going to cut down everything—every single thing!" she gasped.

"I know it," choked Tabitha, "and they're going to tear out lots of doors inside, and build in windows and things. Oh, Rachel—what shall we do?"

"Do? Why, we'll stand it, of course. We just mustn't mind if he turns the house into a hotel and the yard into a—a pasture!" she said hysterically. "We must just think of Ralph and of his being a doctor. Come, let's go to the village and see if we can rent that tenement of old Mrs. Goddard's."

With a long sigh and a smothered sob, Tabitha went to get her hat.

Mrs. Goddard greeted the sisters effusively, and displayed her bits of rooms and the tiny square of yard with the plainly expressed wish that the place might be their home.

The twins said little, but their eyes were troubled. They left with the promise to think it over and let Mrs. Goddard know.

"I didn't suppose rooms could be so little," whispered Tabitha, as they closed the gate behind them.

"We couldn't grow as much as a sunflower in that yard," faltered Rachel.

"Well, anyhow, we could have house-plants!" Tabitha tried to speak cheerfully.

"Indeed we could!" agreed Rachel, rising promptly to her sister's height; "and, after all, little rooms are lots cheaper to heat than big ones." And there the matter ended for the time being.

Mr. Hazelton and the lawyer with the necessary papers appeared a few days later. As the lawyer took off his hat he handed a letter to Miss Rachel.

"I stepped into the office and got your mail," he said genially.

"Thank you," replied the lady, trying to smile. "It's from Ralph"—handing it over for her sister to read.

Both the ladies were in somber black; a ribbon or a brooch seemed out of place to them that day. Tabitha broke the seal of the letter, and retired to the light of the window to read it.

The papers were spread on the table, and the pen was in Rachel's hand when a scream from Tabitha shattered the oppressive silence of the room.

"Stop—stop—oh, stop!" she cried, rushing to her sister and snatching the pen from her fingers. "We don't have to—see—read!"—pointing to the postscript written in a round boyish hand.

Oh, I say I've got a surprise for you. You think I've been fishing and loafing all summer, but I've been working for the hotels here the whole time. I've got a fine start on my money for college, and I've got a chance to work for my board all this year by helping Professor Heaton. I met him here this summer, and he's the right sort—every time. I've intended all along to help myself a bit when it came to the college racket, but I didn't mean to tell you until I knew I could do it. But it's a sure thing now.

Bye-bye. I'll be home next Saturday.

Your aff. nephew,

RALPH.

Rachel had read this aloud, but her voice ended in a [illegible]

[illegible]

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me." —Mrs. WM. LOCKMAN, 513 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others." —Mrs. MARY MARK, 37 Hamilton Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Think It Over.

An eminent French doctor declares that love is a disease of the emotions. Not being cynics, we should describe marriage as a long and pleasant convalescence.—London Opinion.

Isn't that slightly cynical, though, cousin?—Boston Transcript.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE DOES IT

When shoes pinch or corns and bunions ache, get a package of ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes. It takes the sting out of corns and bunions, gives instant relief to Smarting, Aching, Swollen feet. 1,500,000 pounds of powder for the feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.—Advertisement.

Quite True.

Howell—"Do you think the wrist watch has come to stay? Powell—"I hope not. I want mine to go."

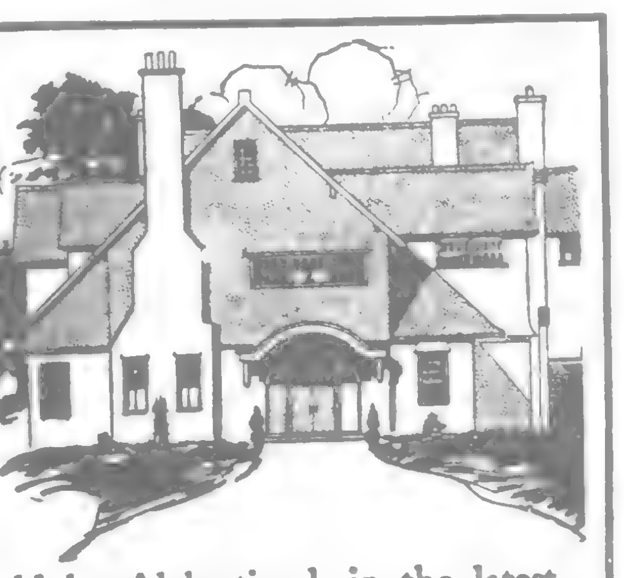
Letting Him In.

"Well, well, young gentlemen!" exclaimed the affable old person. "I'd give a great deal to be able to join in your sport."

"Stick around, grandpop," said one sturdy youngster. "If we knock this ball through somebody's window we'll let you go for it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

For true blue, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Snowy-white clothes will be sure to result. Try it and you will always use it. All good grocers have it. —Advertisement.

One of life's peculiarities is that the world is seldom watching a man when he is doing good.



Your New Home should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

It is absolutely necessary if you expect Alabastine results that you ask for and secure Alabastine.

Avoid kalsomines under various names and insist on the package with the cross and circle printed in red. That is the only way to be sure you are getting the genuine Alabastine.

Alabastine is easy to mix and apply, lasting in its results, and absolutely sanitary.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Better write us for hand-made color designs and special suggestions. Give us your decorative problems and let us help you work them out.

THE ONLY TOOL NEEDED TO APPLY

Alabastine Company
1655 Grandville Ave. Grand Rapids, Mich

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

Round Trip for Single Fare Plus Two Dollars

Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month

A splendid opportunity is now offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to look over

Western Canada's Farming Possibilities

Recent advances in the price of farm products and the possibility of [illegible] in the price of Western Canada [illegible] low [illegible] [illegible] of the low rates now in force, and for other [illegible]

[illegible] Columbus, O.; [illegible] Indianapolis, Ind.

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

"SWEETHEART!"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood, Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathises with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennet, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly, has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted, Polly's feeling being adoration. Oscar kills Polly's lamb and Percival thrashes Oscar. MacKenzie orders the squatters to leave. Evelyn plans to marry MacKenzie. Percival and Polly confess their love. MacKenzie's men arrest Polly's father on a framed-up charge.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

—10—

"You do something, ma'am!" she implored. "Please do it quick, an', an'—" A light leapt into her eyes and she burst out: "Mebbe some day you'll be askin' me a big favor, an' here's my word before God, I do it."

For a short space of time the two girls stared into each other's eyes, but Evelyn's fell first. She sank back limply.

"Take her away, Robert!" she groaned. "It's too dreadful."

After Pollyop and Robert had gone, she turned swiftly on Marcus.

"I wish they were all dead, those wretched squatters," she said fretfully, and frowning, MacKenzie continued his breakfast in silence.

Miserable days passed for the entire squatter settlement. That the right arm of the Silent City had been lopped off when Hopkins was imprisoned showed plainly in the abjection of its inhabitants. Every countenance was wrinkled with anxiety; and still the strange men hovered about the lakeside.

Ugly rumors circulated through the Silent City. It was said that to fix a felony on Hopkins, the officers claimed that in searching him, before shutting him up, they had found a revolver in his pocket. Every one that knew him scouted the idea, but Jeremiah Hopkins was promptly indicted for carrying concealed weapons.

The only concession Robert had been able to obtain was permission for Polly to visit her father, and day after day she carried Jerry to see him.

The day of Hopkins' trial Polly had to stay at home to care for Granny Hope and the baby.

Late in the afternoon, while she was rocking Wee Jerry, for there was no other way to keep him quiet, there came a rap on the door. Placing him on the cot, she called a soft: "Come in."

The entrance of Robert Percival filled her with apprehension, he looked so serious, so drawn and pale.

"It's about daddy," she exclaimed, forgetting for the moment how embarrassed she was.

Robert nodded.

"Sit down, Polly," he said gravely, "and I'll tell you."

Mutely she stood staring at him.

"Sit down, dear," he insisted.

"I don't want to sit down," she moaned. "Tell me about daddy. What's happened?—He's goin' to Auburn, huh?"

Had he been able, Robert would have [illegible]

[illegible]

cease, the more she kept up the incessant wail.

At the sound of her anguish, Jerry awoke and set up a loud screaming, and, ever true to her mother instinct for him and all others in her wild world, Pollyop took him up and seated herself, hushing and caressing him.

"The littlest mother in the world," breathed Robert tenderly, bending over her. "And a brave girl you are, too, Polly Hopkins."

"I can't be brave ever any more, I can't. I need my daddy so, I do. I'm thinkin' my heart just busted when they took him away."

He understood, and Robert's very soul melted in sympathy. Indeed, never had he worked so hard on any one thing as he had done to defend the squatter. It had been only after MacKenzie had outwitted him that he had come to the Silent City to break the bad news to Polly Hopkins.

"Pollyop," he began, much moved, "you do need your father; every girl does. But while he's gone, if he really has to go, I can make living without him much easier for you. You must take some of the money you have for yourself," he hastened on. "No one needs it more than you do. No, now don't shake your head, dear. Some one must help you—don't you see?"

"'Twas awful good of you to give me the money, an' let me help the squatter women," came distinctly from the sobbing lips, "but Jerry an' me couldn't take a cent of yours!"

Somehow Robert had expected this, but her refusal did not make him any the less determined to help her. For a time he was silent, as Polly slowly rocked Jerry back and forth.

After a few moments the boy fell asleep, and his sister laid him quietly on the bed again.

"Now what be I goin' to do?" she queried forlornly, looking straight at him. "Granny Hope says love's all powerful, an' every night I cry out to the good God to bring my daddy home. It's true, ain't it, Jesus can help a squatter girl?"

"Of course," Robert assured her. "Of course, and, oh, Polly, I want you to be different—"

"What do you mean by bein' different?" she stopped him quickly, and then she caught the look he cast around the room.

"I'll always be a squatter," she went on fiercely. "I love squatters, I do."

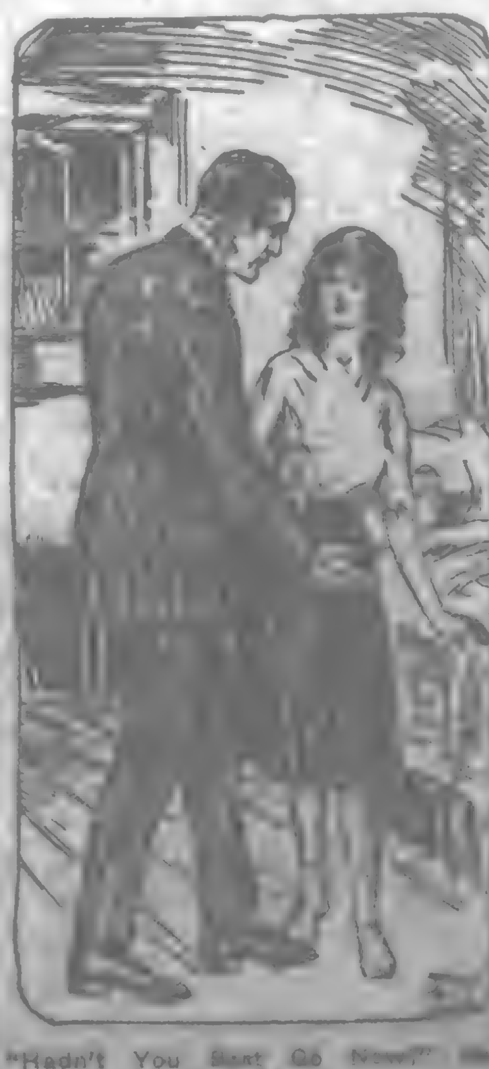
His face burned at the emphasis on her words, yet he liked her better for standing by her humble friends.

"And you love me too, don't you, Pollyop?" he asked, reaching out and taking one of her hands.

Didn't she love him? Ah, more than she even dared to admit to herself! A blush mounted to her curls.

"Yep, I'm lovin' you, too," she breathed. "You an' daddy—"

Robert stood up dizzily, bringing her up with him. What was there in this



"Hadn't You Best Go Now?" She Asked.

[illegible]

hope too. You hear, don't you, Pollyop?"

At that Polly clung to him. She had lost sight of the fact that she might have to marry Oscar Bennett to free Daddy Hopkins, and to keep her people in the Silent City. She only realized that she was in Robert's arms, and that he was telling her over and over and over that he adored her.

"Hadn't you best go now?" she asked. "Some one might catch you here. No! Please, please don't kiss me no more."

Without the slightest regard for her protestations, Robert, smiling, gathered her completely into his arms.

"Perhaps," he stammered, "perhaps, sweetheart, your father'll come back in spite of Marcus MacKenzie. Good-by, dear."

She followed him to the door and watched him go up the lane. Then she crept back into the shanty.

"Daddy," she cried, "I'm tryin' my best to save you, dear, an', an' I will, I will, darlin'. Your brat'll save you, Daddy—but oh, God, it seems as how I couldn't do it."

CHAPTER XI.

Over a week had passed since Hopkins had stood before his peers to be judged of a crime the law would not overlook. His lawyer, a good one and well paid by Robert Percival, had fought strenuously for a new trial; but after much deliberation on the part of the judge, the motion had been denied; and this was the last day of Jeremiah's stay in the county jail.

It was soon after luncheon time that a high-powered motorcar was carrying Evelyn Robertson and Marcus MacKenzie to the Bennett farmhouse. The purchasing of the farm had been settled, as far as Marcus was concerned, although Eve's pleading and Oscar's stubbornness had made him offer more for the place than it was really worth.

When the farmer walked up to the automobile, as it stopped before his door, Oscar paid no attention to Evelyn, sitting beside MacKenzie, save to give her an awkward bow.

"You've spoken to this squatter girl about what you want, Bennett?" asked Marcus, going to the point at once.

"Yes, sure I have," growled Oscar. "I told you that t'other day; but Polly seems to be always holding off for something. If she toes the mark, then I'll sell my farm and take her West. I won't have that brat of a Jerry, though, but I suppose Polly'll make a row when I tell her that."

"You won't be worried with the boy, Bennett. I'm going to have the Children's society take him. Hopkins will serve a long term, and if you marry Polly, the rest of the pests will scatter after a while. I'll be glad to be rid of the whole Hopkins tribe. But that girl is like a burr; she sticks tighter, the more you pull!"

"That's the bargain, Mr. MacKenzie. I sell the farm at the price we talked if I get Polly Hopkins. If I don't get 'er, then I won't sell. I can make a good living here for me and my mother, and I don't intend to leave this country without Pollyop."

The thought of his staying around Ithaca filled Evelyn with dread. She knew something of the tenacity with which he clung to any notion that might take possession of him. How could she have ever submitted to his caresses? And the words, "Until death do us part," rang in her ears, filling her with nauseating disgust.

"I wish he were dead this minute," she thought passionately.

She was waiting for Oscar to continue, but he evidently did not intend to; so, settling back as if anxious to start, she said coldly:

"I'll go to her then, as soon as I can."

"When—today, ma'am?" asked Oscar eagerly.

If she had to approach Polly Hopkins about this disagreeable matter, the sooner the better, Evelyn thought.

"Yes," she consented languidly. "I might go now, I suppose."

"But you won't find her home till night, Eve," Marcus informed her. "She's gone to see her father before he goes to Auburn. I tried to put the quietus on that, but Bob cut up so I told the sheriff to let her in."

"Then I'll telephone you later, Mr. Bennett," said Evelyn, lifting her chin haughtily as if he were really beneath her consideration. "Good afternoon!"

The hours passed slowly by! It seemed an eternity to Oscar while he waited the call from Evelyn. When he heard her voice over the telephone, he answered gruffly.

"Now, don't be nasty, Oscar," ordered Evelyn imperiously. "I'm doing the best I can. I'm in a booth talking, and if you'll meet me at seven, we'll go together to Polly Hopkins. Does that suit you all right?"

"[illegible] don't suit me very well," Oscar [illegible] into the receiver. "I'd like to give you the [illegible] of your life, [illegible]."

[illegible]

his to love or abuse at his own sweet will, for Oscar had little doubt that the squatter girl would eventually yield to his will.

Pollyop, meanwhile, quite unconscious of Oscar's vicious intentions, was already utterly overwhelmed with misery.

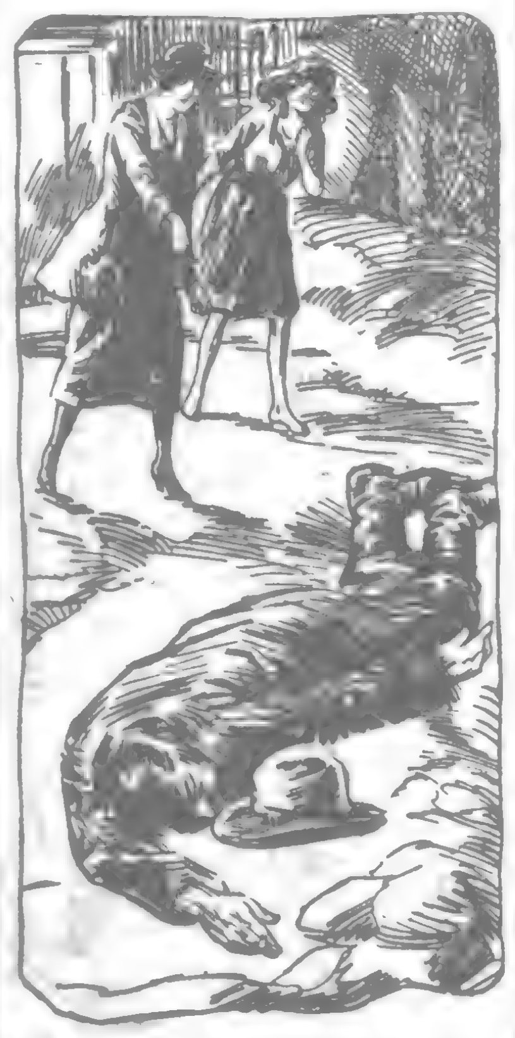
After the meager supper was over that night, she sat crouched near the wood-box, her arm around Billy Hopkins' stringy neck. Granny Hope was in bed and Wee Jerry, having cried himself to sleep, was in Jeremiah's room, rolled up in a blanket.

For the first time in her life Polly had seen her father weep. How impetuously she had kissed away his tears! How she had hung to his neck! When they had been forced to leave him, Jerry had shrieked his misery all the way through the streets of Ithaca.

To make the matter worse, it began to rain, to thunder and lighten. And now, a forlorn, lonely little creature, she sat listening to the tempest outside with no company but the billy goat.

How listless and hopeless she felt! Only when the thunder rolled over the lake, and the lightning flashed across the sky, did she lift her head. When she was happy, Polly loved the storms, but now, with Daddy in Auburn, how could she bear the thrashing rain and the moan of the willow trees as they swung to and fro over the shanty roof?

She found herself wishing fearfully that the storm would sweep off to the south and down behind the hills. Over and over in her mind went the thought that perhaps she could have helped Daddy if she had done what Evelyn wanted her to. Why hadn't she consented to marry Oscar two weeks ago? She knew why, and, blushing, blamed herself. She could not keep the image of Robert Percival from smiling at her.



In the White Light of It Polly Saw a Man Lying Face Down in the Path Leading to the Shanty.

All of a sudden a frightful flash of lightning made dim the flicker from the small candle, and was followed instantly by a thunderous roar that shook the very earth. Mingled with it came a woman's scream. Polly struggled to her feet. Some one was in trouble! Some squatter-woman was calling her. She dashed toward the door just as it flung wide open, and Evelyn Robertson rushed in.

"Polly Hopkins," she cried, grasping the squatter girl's arm, "Pollyop, something struck Oscar, and he's dead in the road."

Frantically she drew the dazed Polly over the threshold. The darkness was dense, and the torrents of rain pelted their faces. Another zigzag streak of fire ran across the sky, making a vivid picture as it blazed Cornell university into plain view. In the white light of it, Polly saw a man lying face down in the path leading to the shanty. He made no effort to get up as the two girls bent over him.

"Mebbe he ain't dead," muttered Polly, shuddering. "Let's lug him in the hut."

Between them they dragged the heavy, inert body into the shanty and shut the door. Oscar looked dead when they turned him over. His face was livid, and his eyes tightly shut.

"The thunder hit him, huh?" questioned Polly, awestruck.

Shudder after shudder ran over Evelyn.

"I don't know," she moaned. "Yes, I suppose so. Oh, it was dreadful!"

She began to cry, wringing her hands [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School ' Lesson '

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MAY 14

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

LESSON TEXT.—II Chron. 30:1-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away His face from you, if ye return unto Him.—II Chron. 30:9.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—II Chron. 29:31; ch. 32; 34:29-33; Amos 9:7-15.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—A King Who Worshiped God.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Hezekiah's Great Passover.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Putting Religion First.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Wise Methods of Reform.

I. Hezekiah Proclaims a Passover (vv. 1-18).

The way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united, is around the crucified Lord.

1. The Invitation Was Representative of the Nation (v. 2a). The king took counsel with the princes and the congregation to show that the proclamation was the expression of the nation's desire.

2. The Time Was Unusual (vv. 2b-4). There was not sufficient time to sanctify the people, nor to gather them together at the regular time, so they resolved instead of postponing it for a year to hold it on the fourteenth day of the second month. This liberty had been granted before in an exigency (Num. 9:6-13). This flexibility with reference to the holding of the passover shows that God's ordinances were made for man and not man for the ordinances.

3. The Scope of the Invitation (vv. 5-9). It included all of both nations who would come to keep the passover to the Lord God of Israel. "Israel" is now used to include both kingdoms. The effort was to win back the nation which had seceded. The posts who were sent with the message were authorized to supplement the proclamation with urgent exhortation to join as a united nation. This urgent invitation was tactfully put as follows:

(1) It touched ancestral memories—"Turn again unto the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel" (v. 6). Both kingdoms had a common ancestry. (2) Recent bitter experience—"Be not like your fathers, and brethren, who trespassed against the Lord God, and were given up to desolation, as ye see" (v. 7). This was a delicate subject, but their ruin was so marked that such truth could be pressed. (3) Yearning for captive kinsfolk—"Your brethren and children shall find compassion before their captors" (v. 9). (4) The instinct of self-preservation—"So that they shall come again into this land" (v. 9). (5) The forgiving mercy of God (v. 9). God will not turn any sincere seeker away from Him. "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out" (John 6:37).

4. Israel's Reception of the Invitation (vv. 10-12). This invitation in Israel met a mingled reception. (1) Some mocked. The urgent and sincere invitation only excited opposition and ridicule. (2) Some with humble hearts came to Jerusalem. This is ever the case. The gospel is a savor of life unto life and death unto death.

II. The Passover Kept (vv. 13-27).

1. Altars Removed (vv. 13, 14). In the time of Ahaz (ch. 28:24), these heathen altars were erected in Jerusalem. Before there could be worship of the true God all these traces of idolatry must be removed. This act of the people was voluntary, and shows that a right spirit actuated them.

2. The Passover Killed (v. 15).

3. The Priests and Levites Ashamed (vv. 15-20). The zeal of the people put to shame the priests and Levites. They were stimulated to perform their duties according to the law of God as given by Moses. They even took charge of the killing of the passover, since many of the officers were not sanctified so as to render this service for themselves. Though unprepared ceremonially, yet they took part in this most sacred service and were accepted as worshipers through the intercession of Hezekiah. God accepted the purpose of heart rather than the letter of the law.

4. The Praise of Glad Hearts (vv. 21, 22). They continued seven days with gladness: (1) The Levites and priests sang God's praise daily on loud instruments (v. 21). (2) Hezekiah's comforting words to the Levites (v. 22). He commended them and their teaching of the knowledge of God. (3) They made confession of their sins to God (v. 22).

5. The Passover Prolonged Seven Days (vv. [illegible]). The king's object in [illegible] the feast was to make as [illegible] as possible, so as to result in the thorough conversion of [illegible] to God.

[illegible]

HAS FIRST WELL DAY IN 6 YEARS

Huntington Citizen Could Neither Sleep Nor Eat With Any Satisfaction Before He Got Tanlac.

"Before taking Tanlac I had not seen a well day in six years," said W. R. Peoples, 328 22nd St., Huntington, W. Va.

"It seemed like I had lost my health for good. I could neither sleep nor eat with satisfaction. I was badly run down, nervous, had no appetite and had to force down every mouthful I ate. Even then my food soured. I would fill up with gas until I had intense pains in my stomach and chest. Headache almost drove me mad, rheumatism in my arms, shoulder and hips kept me in pain all the time, and I had to force myself to work.

"Tanlac went right after my troubles. On four bottles I gained ten pounds and the rheumatism and stomach trouble soon left me. My wife has given a statement about the good Tanlac did her, and I am glad to add my endorsement of this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Boiled or Unboiled.

A little girl attending the Second ward public school at Greencastle was asked last week to write a composition on the value of milk. Here is one sentence of her masterpiece: "Milk is good for infants and adults, boiled or unboiled."—Indianapolis News.

Why try to pull yourself out of a hole with a corkscrew?

Pat. Process Lloyd LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept E
Menominee, Michigan (16)

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed. DAISY FLY KILLER at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

DON'T DESPAIR
If you are troubled with pains or aches; feel tired; have headache, indigestion, insomnia; painful passage of urine, you will find relief in
GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES
The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles and National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.
Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

PILES, FISTULA, ULCERATION, CONSTIPATION, bleeding, itching, cured at home. Trial free. S. TARNEY, AUBURN, IND.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills
You can't feel so good but what NR will make you feel better.
Get a 25c. Box.

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

MAY

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Some one will have invent some sort of a shock absorber for modesties. They get so many shocks these days.

A few minutes each day devoted to the reading of advertising may shorten your road to fortune by many years.

The subscription price to the Hunter-Trade-Trapper is $2.00 for one year. Give your order to Wm. S. Quance.

They are in the United States 800 first-class offices, 2779 second-class, 10,737 third-class, and 7,733 4th-class, making a total of 52,050 post-offices.

It is said that Benjamin Franklin, the first man to hold the position that has come to be known as the posmaster general, used his hat as a postoffice for the distribution of the mail.

The man who tries to run his business without advertising is undoubtedly still cranking his car by hand. Incidentally, because he has that kind of a mind, he has that kind of a car.

"On every hill there's a little shtill,
"Where the shmoke goes up to the sky;
"You can aisy tell by a whiff of the schmell,
"There's whisky right close by."

A Suggestion

"Garden time is here and it is time for owners of chickens to see that they are kept shut up. And this might also include the many dogs that are allowed to roam over town at will. It's not very pleasant to put out a garden and have your neighbor's chickens scratch it out in about an hour after planting. Neither does it please the owner to have a dog or two tramp around over the garden and tear it up. Owners of dogs and chickens should not complain if they persist in letting them run at large, if said dogs or chickens come to bodily harm. Shut 'em up."

The foregoing is a hint the editor of the Hamilton News to the people of his town, and it will be very fitting to give as a way of suggestion to folks of our own town.

AGENTS WANTED.

$100.00 weekly possible through our exclusive representative plan. Fastest selling FORD accessory on market. "Masco" Splash Fender for front of Ford car eliminates rattling of front fenders, prevents radiator, lights and front of car becoming mud splashed, and induces greater volume air into radiator, reflects lamp's rays onto road in night driving, beautifies lines of car putting FORD car in higher priced class. The Ford car being the only car without a splash pan protection, every owner wants this essential attachment. Anyone can attach fender in few minutes. Retails $6 50. Send $4.00 for agent's sample and contract application for territorial rights. Give references. Mayer Auto Accessories Corporation, Manufacturers, 333-335 Washington street, Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

The Reigning Craze

RADIO FANS TO HAVE DEPARTMENT IN THE NEWS, BEGINNING THIS WEEK

Radio has taken the country literally by the ears. Nothing like it ever has been known in the history of the world. Receiving sets are being placed in city homes, farm houses, business offices, theatres, on moving trains, even in limousines, to catch winged words and meandering music from the air, at the rate of a hundred thousand a month.

The News, always on the lookout for the interest of its large circle of readers, has inaugurated a Radio Department which will contain brief articles covering something of the history of radio, the mechanics of radio, and the broadcasting and utilization of radio.

Here is an opportunity for the fans of St. Joe and vicinity to keep up to date and obtain a good deal of practical information in the construction and operation of radio "sets."

Young Farmer Arrested on Complaint of Girl

On an affidavit charging him with bastardy, Daniel W. Van Zile, residing at Sturgis, Mich., was arrested Friday by deputy sheriff H. H. Squires and brought to Auburn to face the complaint which was sworn to by Minnie Frederick, living near Spencerville.

Van Zile, accompanied by his father, came to Auburn Friday with Mr. Squires and asked for a hearing. On account of the condition of the complaintant, who was unable to appear, the case was set for May 17, and Van Zile's bond fixed at $800.

Being unable to furnish bond in this sum, it was arranged that Van Zile and his father return to Sturgis and procure the necessary surety and return. Van Zile stated Friday that he would fight the charges against him.

The Van Ziles formerly lived near Auburn, Mr. Van Zile selling his farm at a time when land brought a higher price and moved to Michigan.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

ST JOE

Christian and Catherine Curie to Grover C. and Lodema Curie, 75 acres pt S. 1-2 S. W. 1-4 Sec. 15, $1,600.

SPENCERVILLE

Grand lodge Knights of Pythias No. 487 to J. H. Benner, lot 49, Vienna, $50.

Closed Season on Bass and Bluegills in Indiana

Sunday, April 30, was the last day for legally fishing for bass and bluegills in the public waters of Indiana. The closed season on these species continues until June 15. In other words, it is unlawful to fish for bass and bluegills before June 16, according to George N. Mannfeld, chief of fish and game division of the state conservation department. Wardens are instructed to see this law is strictly observed, he says.

However, officials do not anticipate a great deal of trouble over the closed season. Most people recognize its value and that the period prohibiting fishing is for the reason bass and bluegills are spawning at this time. Unmolested they reproduce their kind by millions. If they are taken off the nest it means a lack of fine piscatorial sport in Hoosier waters.

DeKalb Sunday School Enrollment Over 7,500

George Beugnot, of Auburn, president of the DeKalb County Sunday School association, has compiled the following statistics concerning the Sunday schools of DeKalb county during the year 1921:

Schools—67.
Scholars enrolled—7,524.
Average attendance—3,985.
Boys enrolled, ages 3 to 12—910.
Girls enrolled, ages 3 to 12—1,031.
Boys, ages 12 to 25—921.
Girls, ages 12 to 25—1,078.
Adult men—1,171.
Adult women—1,651.
Schools with home departments—47.
Schools with cradle roll—61.
Young people's classes, chartered—105.
Adult classes, chartered—108.
Schools with teacher training—31.
Number of schools graded—55.
Using graded lessons—54.
Giving missionary instruction—56.
Making missionary offering—60.
Giving temperance instruction—58.
Schools observing decision day—46.
Added to church from Sunday school—305.
Schools holding workers' conferences—46.
Schools meeting their denomination requirements—33.

There are eighteen 100 per cent. International Sunday schools in the county. The average of the Sunday schools reporting was 75 10-65 per cent.

DeKalb county will be between 98 and 100 per cent. at the state convention.

DeKalb county's quota of delegates to the Evansville convention will be twenty-five.

Appointment of Firemen.

At a meeting of the town board, Monday evening, April 24, the following persons were appointed as active members of the St. Joe Fire Department:

F. D. Kinsey, Fire Chief.
Derwood Ridgway, Asst. Chief.
Ward Woodcox.
Vern Coburn.
E. R. Kinsey.
Roy Kinsey.
Roy Wade.
F. R. Bowman.
James Harter.
Frank Curie.
George Kinsey.
E. N. Miser.

NEWVILLE

LeRoy Kinny and family attended the conference of the Christian Church at Auburn, Sunday.

Argyl Sechler and wife were guests of Dewey Miller and wife, Sunday.

A washed gravel machine is being set up on the Benninghoff farm one mile southeast of Newville.

Roy Keller and family, of Mt. Pleasant, were the Sunday guests of D. D. Lummas and family.

John Miller, wife and son Byron, and little grand-daughter, were business callers at Butler, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Elmer McDonald and Master Harold Mendenhall were Saturday night guests of John Washler and wife.

Mrs. Rosa Reed, who broke her left wrist during the holidays which caused her to suffer a nervous breakdown, was able to attend services at the U. B. church, Sunday.

While shopping in Butler the first of the week, Mrs. Minnie Tarney slipped on the floor of the Racket Store and in falling dislocated her right knee. Mrs. Tarney has been a cripple since 7-yrs of age and has met with a number of serious accidents always suffering injury to the crippled limb.

Christian Church Notes

Mrs. Mary Meek will be hostess to the Martha Society, Thursday afternoon. There will be quilting to do.

Mrs. Eva Sheffer gave a very good temperance talk Sunday just after the lesson period at Sunday School.

The regular church services are given up next Sunday because of the Concord Township Convention which will be held at the Lutheran Church.

The Loyal Boys and Girls were Banner class for attendance, Sunday, while the Loyal Sons and Daughters had the honor for largest offering, their amount being $2.55.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	105	$ 6.22
M. P.	87	11.34
Lutheran	100	5.00
M. E. Spencer	92	5 72
Lutheran	112	4.76
Newville U. B.	82	3.51
Christian	75	3.04
Coburntown	89	3 57
Concord	38	1.97
Rehoboth	73	6 45
Mt. Pleasant	104	4.19

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $25 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full $2500 will be paid to your beneficiary.

Full parliculiars of this Perfect Policy given upon request by

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

BANK STATEMENT.

Emillus Case, President; Wm. Curie Vice President; F. R. Bowman, Casheir; Elgin Curie, Assistant Cashier. Report of the condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on May 5, 1922.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$136,053 65
Overdrafts	273 96
U. S. Bonds	1,971 45
Other Bonds and Securities	9,000 00
Banking House	5,281 00
Furniture and Fixtures	4,220 90
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	13,609 31
Cash on Hand	2,719 51
Current Expenses	1037 52
Taxes Paid	387 61
Interest Paid	1215 22
Total Resources	$175,770 13
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	4,542 00
Undivided Profits	146 27
Exchange, discounts and Interest	4,740 51
Demand Deposits	53,600 06
Demand Certificates	77,735 29
Bills Payable	10,000 00
Total Liabilities	$175,770 13

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, Frank R. Bowman, cashier of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a state bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

FRANK R. BOWMAN, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 9th day of May, 1922.

[L.S.] S. S. WIDNEY, N. P.

My commission expires Jan. 7, 1923.

WATCH

The Fort Wayne Daily Newspapers for the Detailed Announcement of Our Special Sale of
FINE CLOTHING

The Prices Featured Are $18
$25
and $35

A special purchase of more than $25,000 worth of fine clothing all marked at these prices

The average Merchant would pay these prices or more at wholesale for these garments

Not a Suit in the lot made to retail for less than $30 and the most of this great purchase is 35 to $50 values.

All New Models, All Good Fabrics, All Sizes

PATTERSON - FLETCHER CO.

[illegible]

Children's Ailments

D[illegible]

[illegible]

MAY

Cash In Hand

Has a knack of melting away for little things that you would not buy if you had to draw a check to pay for them.

Cash In This Bank

Has a knack of growing because of the discouragement of small unnecssary spendings. Open an account here and you'll save money in spite of yourself.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Miss Mary Comesky, of Robinson Chaple, came Sunday to spend a week with friends at this place.

Miss Aleen Rhodes has accepted a position in Ft. Wayne.

The river bridge will undergo a remodeling. Merritt Butler and his force here began Monday.

Mrs. Thornburg left Friday for her home at Anderson after spending the winter here.

George Wilmot left Sunday for South Bend to secure a position.

Miss Dora Hahn, Geo. Wilmot and Clarence Bice successfully passed the eighth grade examination

Roscoe Walters was among those that took an examination at Auburn for the Post Office. Miss Golden High will retire as soon as the vacancy is filled.

The remains of Mrs. John Means was brought to this place, Friday. The funeral was held at the M. E. church, Rev. Brewster, officiating. Interment in the White City cemetery.

Rev. Glenn Bryan, of Ashley, was a Friday dinner guest at the Raymond Rhodes home.

The C C club was pleasantly entertained Friday at the home of Mrs. Golden High. Two guests, Miss Nellie Baker, of Hicksville, and Miss Leone Widdifield were present to enjoy the occasion.

Wanted: A woman at the DeKalb County Home. Steady employment. Good wages and good room.

M. E. Leighty, Sup't.

Fred High and wife and Miss Nellie Baker Sundayed with Mrs. High's sister, Mrs. John Balts and husband.

Miss Mildred Annan of Purdue will give a demonstration in millinery at the M. E. Church on Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. James Vallieu and three sons and Miss Mamie Bair, spent Friday with Orla Woodring and family at Newville.

Mrs. Vol Hay went to Wayne Monday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Alva Place and husband.

H. G. Hursh and wife of St. Joe were guests of friends at this place Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Webber and Adam Watters and wife of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with R. U. Bowser and family. Miss Ada Bowser accompanied them home for a short visit.

Rev. Brewster, James Reed, Otis Koch, Beatrice Wasson, Cleo Bowser, Arminta Steward, Alleen Allen, Audrey Wasson and Elizabeth Thorne attended the Epworth League Banquet, Friday evening, at the First M. E. church at Fort Wayne.

Local Briefs

The members of the Lutheran church spent the entire day Wednesday cleaning the church and grounds getting it in readiness for the big Sunday School Convention next Sunday.

Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C Hall, Representative, St. Joe.

PATTERSON - FLETCHER CO.

START BIG SALE OF FINE CLOTHING

This issue of our paper carries an advertisement of Patterson-Fletcher Co. of Fort Wayne, announcing the beginning of a special sale of fine clothing. [illegible]

Chiropractor
Gymnaian

[illegible]

EARL T. [illegible]

[illegible]

Died In Oklahoma

Frank Barney died at Mountainview, Oklahoma, Saturday morning, May 6, and was buried there the afternoon of the same day. Mr. Barney was formerly a citizen of St. Joe, having moved to the west about twelve years ago.

St. Joe Memorial Plans.

Decoration Day services are to be held in the Methodist Church, Sunday afternoon, May 28th. The speaker for the occasion will be announced later. The various committees appointed are as follows:

Flowers: Chairman, Mrs. Kate A. Leighty, all Civil War widows and others selected by the committee.

Decorating church: Chairman, Rev. C. O. Johnson. Helpers to be selected by the chairman.

To procure Flags: Ed Leighty.

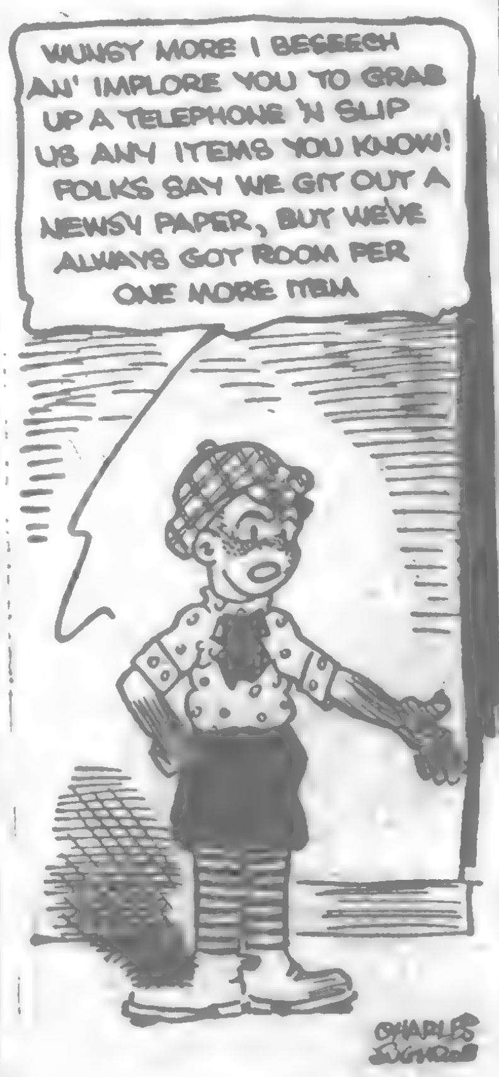
Officer of the Day: G. C. Curie

Music: Choral Sooiety.

Band: Chairman, E. R. Kinsey

H. M. Widney, President.

MICKIE SAYS



WUNST MORE I BESEECH AN' IMPLORE YOU TO GRAB UP A TELEPHONE 'N SLIP US ANY ITEMS YOU KNOW! FOLKS SAY WE GIT OUT A NEWSY PAPER, BUT WE'VE ALWAYS GOT ROOM FER ONE MORE ITEM
CHARLES SUGHROE

C R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwall, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State bank at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on May 5, 1922.

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts	163,416 48
Overdrafts	241 83
U. S. Bonds	585 31
Banking House	3,668 39
Furniture and fixtures	3,126 18
Due from Banks and Trust companies	28 029 50
Cash on Hand	6,879 28
Current Expenses	[illegible] 58
Taxes Paid	[illegible] 87
Interest Paid	[illegible] 64
Total Resources	[illegible]

LIABILITIES

Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	[illegible]
Undivided Profits	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

Obituary

Mrs. Emma J. Abel, daughter of Nelson Scholes and Mary Ann Scholes, was born east of St. Joe, January 30, 1854, departed this life April 29, 1922, aged 68 years, 2 months and 29 days. With the exception of 10 years residence at Hesperia, Mich., her entire life was spent in DeKalb County.

On May 11, 1873, she was married to Charles Abel at St. Joe, Ind. One daughter, Mrs. Arthur Woodcox, of Auburn, was born to this union.

Besides the daughter she leaves three brothers, Rev. Joseph N. Scholes, of Waynesburg, Pa.; Frank Scholes, of St. Joe, and John Scholes, of Burke, S. Dakota; two sisters, Mrs. Ida Williams and Mrs Flora Tustison, of St. Joe; five grandchildren and a large circle of friends to mourn her departure.

She united with the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners early in life and maintained an unwavering love for her Master until the end.

She was a good woman loved and respected by all who knew her.

The funeral services were conducted in the Church of Christ, St. Joe, by Rev. A. C. Shaw, minister of the Church of Christ, Auburn, assisted by Rev. R. B. Daily, of St. Joe. Interment in the Alton cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends, the members of the Rebekah Lodge and of the Christian church for their sympathy and beautiful floral offerings. Also Rev. A. C. Shaw and Rev. R. B. Daily for their words of comfort and helpfulness.

Arthur Woodcox and family.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Nineteen foreign born residents of DeKalb county will have their petitions for naturalization heard in the DeKalb circuit court by Judge Dan M. Link, Thursday, May 18th.

Thursday afternoon at 3:15 during the storm, the barn on the farm of Martin Miser, near Waterloo, husband of the republican nominee for county recorder, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

WOOL WANTED

HIGHEST Price Paid

Jack Beams,
Spencerville,
Indiana.

FIX UP- PAINT UP

"I was very particular to use the best finish and doors in my house, but somehow it doesn't look just as good as it did." Have you ever done any thing to preserve the beauty of the wood except to wash it? A good coat of varnish will make it look like new. If it is too far gone for varnish, try enamel. If it is full of dents and bruises, get new woodwork put in. It doesn't cost much, and your whole house will look like new. New woodwork is like a clean collar-makes you look, feel, and act respectable, even if you are not

Spencerville Lumber Co.

COMING!

KETROW Bros. Comedy Co.

PRESENTING

THE- Cowboy Swede

A 3 Act Western Comedy Drama with Good Singing and Dancing Specialties Between the Aets.

ST. JOE--One Night Only.

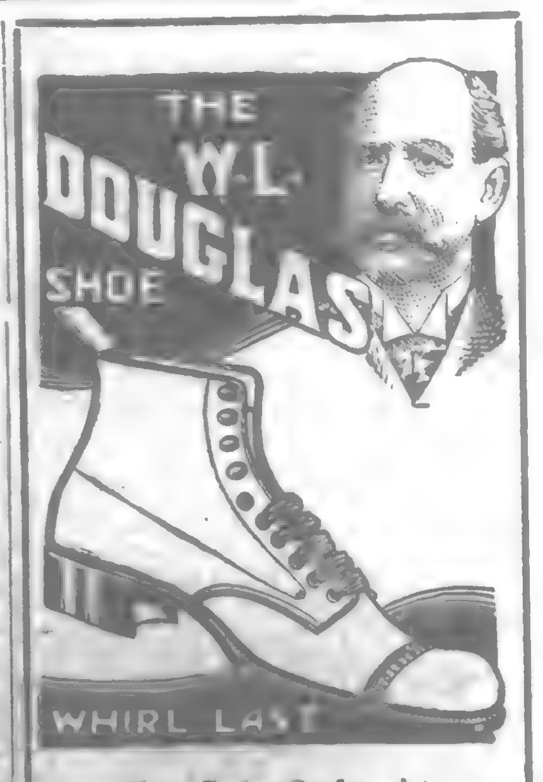
Wednesd', May 17.

Adm- 25 and 35 - DAN MYERS LOT on Main St-

Party Chairmen Selected

H. C. Hathaway, of Auburn, county recorder, was selected as chairman of the DeKalb County Republican Central Committee, at a meeting of the precinct committee men of that party in Auburn, Saturday afternoon.

Harvey O. Williams, of Auburn, former county recorder, was on Saturday afternoon elected chairman of the DeKalb county democratic central committee. Mrs. Helen S. Green of Garrett, wife of Monte L. Green, was made vice chairman, and Walter W. Mountz, of Auburn, former city clerk of Garrett and former county clerk, was chosen Secretary-treasurer. The officers were elected by the new precinct committeemen of the county, who held their meeting in the court room of the DeKalb county court house. The new county chairman will later make his appointments of committees.



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE
WHIRL LAST

For Sale Only At

Chaneys'

Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Patronize the advertisers.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1867
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.

MAY

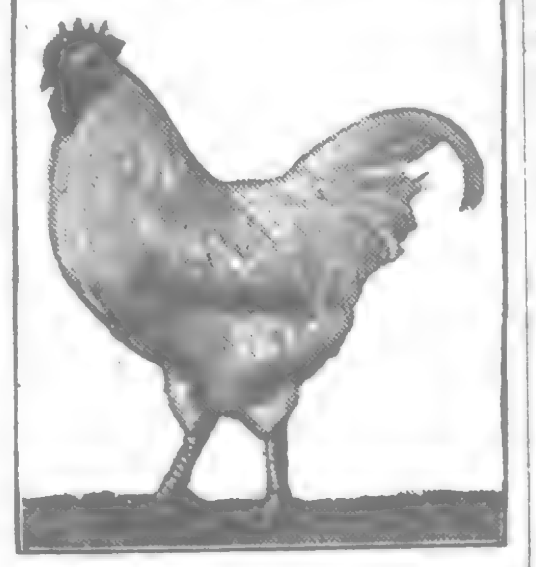
SUPERIORITY OF PUREBRED LIVE STOCK SHOWN BY RECENT INQUIRY

(By D. S. Burch, Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture.)

Purebred live stock has about 40 per cent greater earning power (apart from its breeding or sale value) than scrub stock.

The superiority of purebreds on a utility basis is due principally to: Better conformation and quality, increased production, more economical production, and earlier maturity.

When purebred sires are used to improve farm live stock the offspring is more salable than that of non-purebred sires and brings nearly 50 per cent greater returns.



White Rock Cockerel, a Prize Winner.

The foregoing are a few results of a recent inquiry conducted by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures are based on about 25,000 head of breeding stock owned by 525 experienced live-stock owners. Besides, the same persons own 30,000 fowls on which the poultry results are based. All of these stockmen have for several years—an average of nine—used purebred sires to head their herds and flocks. More than that, about 30 per cent of their female stock has been purebred. A small proportion of the remaining females are scrubs, the others being grades and crossbreds. Thus the persons furnishing the Department with their experiences were in a position to supply dependable information.

Figures Are Conservative.

The figures mentioned were obtained during the last part of 1921 in a period of marked depression in the live-stock industry. Partly for that reason they are considered conservative even though pointing to an unusually high value of purebreds over common stock.

The purpose of obtaining this new information was to supply an increasing demand for facts of greater scope than single short-time observations. With the development of the Federal-State campaign for "Better Sires—Better Stock" the Department has received an unusually large number of requests asking what purebreds can do for the man who does not aspire to become a specialized breeder. "What can I expect from purebred sires, or from both purebred sires and dams, as a utility proposition?" That is essentially what scores of thoughtful people want to know.

Character, Soundness and Good Conformation.

Superiority of Purebreds.

The superiority, based on utility, of purebred over common stock is evident from the following figures:

Class	Superior Earning Power. Per cent.
Dairy Cattle	47.8
Poultry	40.7
Swine	38.3
Sheep	37.8
Horses	37.2
Beef Cattle	36.8
Goats	26.8
Average for all classes (weighted)	40.4

The relatively high percentages representing the earning power of well-bred dairy cattle and poultry over scrubs are explained doubtless by the greater facilities for keeping production records of these classes of live stock, thereby contributing to their improvement.

A Profitable Investment.

The average reported increase in financial returns from live-stock operations traceable to the use of purebred sires, was 48.0 per cent. This result includes the returns from both the sale of breeding stock and of animals and products for market. The data appear to show exclusively that well-bred animals are good property not simply for the experienced breeder but for every farmer willing to give them the proper care and opportunity to prove their worth.

The bureau has abundant evidence corroborating this belief. One farmer relates that the impelling force which prompted him to acquire purebreds was the need for more income. He reasoned that ownership of purebreds was not the proverbial wealthy man's diversion, but the poor man's necessity. He obtained the best foundation stock within his means and gave it good care; it increased his returns 100 per cent.

A Purebred Sow.

While there are numerous similar cases and frequent greater successes, the general averages mentioned are presented as the best indication of profits to be reasonably expected. Briefly, good purebreds are more efficient than other stock, but their earning power in each case depends on two chief factors—(1) Their own quality, and (2) the human factor, especially skill in management. The evidence gathered by the Department shows that live-stock owners are becoming more and more insistent on records of production as a means of distinguishing desirable purebreds from those of less merit.

The inquiry shows that for the most part purebred animals of good type are readily obtainable. But special requirements or a desire for the less common breeds generally involve some difficulties and higher prices.

About 98 per cent of the purebred live-stock owners reporting to the Department were satisfied both with the purebreds themselves and the progeny, except when they expressed the desire for still better stock. As one breeder explained, the desire for improvement is necessary for progress. A few had unfortunate experience with purebreds of inferior quality and pointed out the need for making selections with great care. Practically all reports agreed on the principle that superior quality among purebreds themselves is invariably worth a higher cost.

In Breeding for Dairy Cows It Is Important to Have a Purebred [illegible] Represents Half the Value of the Herd From a Breeding Standpoint.

Teamage in Fields.
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]

PAGE CALLS KING "OLD BEAN"

[illegible]

BETTER ROADS

FEDERAL AID FOR HIGHWAYS

Sum of $211,135,276 Was Spent for Construction of 28,135 Miles of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

How the government has employed federal aid funds for road building through the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, among the various types of roads, is shown in a summary prepared by the department. The tabulation covers the expenditure of $211,135,276.31 of federal-aid funds from the beginning of the work when it was authorized by congress up to November 1, 1921, a period of four years four months. That sum was applied toward the construction of 28,135 miles of roads. The total cost was $496,151,683.43. The average cost was $17,630 per mile.

Nearly 36 per cent of the federal-aid funds, or $75,600,279.30, went into the construction of 4,653.6 miles of high-grade concrete roads. Next in size were total appropriations of $47,192,895.41 federal-aid funds applied to the building of 10,048.5 miles of gravel road, at a total cost of $104,614,066.71. Federal-aid funds to the extent of $24,721,020.92 were applied during the period to the construction of 6,864 miles of graded and drained roads, at a total cost of $55,704,253.78. High-grade bituminous-macadam roads, of which 1,828.2 miles were constructed, at a total cost of $41,412,557,88, claimed federal-aid funds to the extent of $18,646,066.17. For another high type of road—bituminous concrete—$9,299,864.82 was made available through federal aid. That sum went toward the construction of 772.5 miles of roadway, at a total cost of $23,445,874.88.

Rolling a Shell Road in Louisiana.

Toward the construction of brick roads, of which 444.6 miles were built, federal aid was available to the extent of $6,925,482.13; and toward the cost of 2,695.5 miles of sand-clay roads the federal government contributed $10,495,172.10. The total cost of sand-clay roads was $22,226,862.66.

CONCRETE ROAD VIBRATIONS

Experiment Started to Determine Amount of Moisture Increase Under the Road.

Does vibration caused by the movement of a vehicle over a road increase the amount of moisture in the earth under the road, and thus weaken its bearing power? This question will be answered when results are secured from an experiment just started by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Two similar concrete slabs have been constructed side by side, and on one there will be placed a gasoline engine with an unbalanced flywheel which will cause vibration. Soil samples will be taken from under the slabs and the amounts of moisture compared. This experiment is undertaken, not with the idea that road vibration can be prevented, but to determine whether sufficient increase in the moisture of the subgrade is caused by it to weaken the bearing power of the soil, and incidentally to develop new ways of testing methods of subgrade treatment.

MONEY WASTED ON HIGHWAYS

No Excuse for Community to Be Without Good Roads or to Permit Them to Deteriorate.

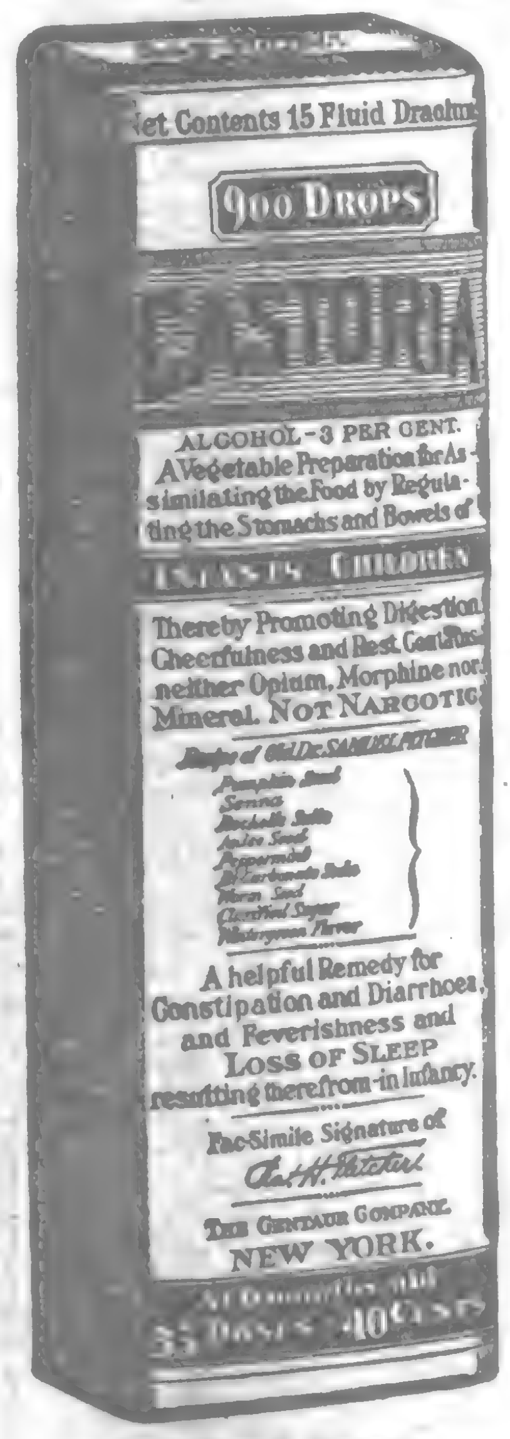
[illegible]

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES 40 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Have You Tried It?

Everybody has read the above headline; how many believe it? Have you a little-one in the home, and has that dear little mite when its stomach was not just right felt the comforts that come with the use of Fletcher's Castoria? You have heard the cry of pain. Have you heard them cry for Fletcher's Castoria? Try it.

Just help baby out of its trouble tomorrow with a taste of Castoria. Watch the difference in the tone of the cry, the look in the eye, the wiggle in the tiny fingers. The transformation is complete—from pain to pleasure. Try it.

You'll find a wonderful lot of information about Baby in the booklet that is wrapped around every bottle of Fletcher's Castoria.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Next Day, All Right.

She (during spat)—It's a story for you to say I grabbed you up quick. You know very well that when you proposed I didn't say "yes" until the next day.

He—That's right, you didn't. I proposed at 11:59 p. m. and you accepted me at 12:01 the next morning. —Boston Transcript.

A REWARD OF $5,000.00

Would be a small amount to pay for saving a man's life. If you could save your life for a dollar bill would you hesitate to spend it? You risk your life everytime you drive your car in the rain because you can't see through your windshield. A dollar bill sent to the Baltimore See-Thru Corporation, Baltimore, Maryland, will ensure you having a clear windshield for the next three years, as their preparation is guaranteed to keep your glass as clear as a summer's day. Nothing like it on the market. One application will last as long as a rain storm even if it lasts a month. It is absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. Send for it today and be prepared for the next rain storm.—Advertisement.

Brief and Comprehensive.

Ben Dierks has an express agency and [illegible] business in a village in Sonoma county, California. Recently he detailed one of his teamsters with a wagon and pair to take a San Francisco man and wife to their country place a few [illegible] out of town. The bill, as rendered by the teamster, read: "[illegible] grub, and people, three [illegible]."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

[illegible]

Nothing to Choose Between Them.

Husband—Ha, ha, ha! Did you ever see a funnier sight than a woman trying to drive a nail?

Wife—Yes; a man trying to wrap up a bundle for the laundry!—London Answers.

If you don't like what the future has in store for you, patronize some other store.

Lost Them Since.

Bobbie—How did ye hurt yer hand? Been fightin'?

Eddie—Yep. Those were awful sharp teeth Sammy Jones used to have.—Life.

An Elaborate Menu.

"I understand the Laplanders eat candles." "Must be a big to do over a birthday cake."

Genuine
BAYER
Bayer-Tablets Aspirin
The Bayer Company, Inc. 117 Hudson St. NY.

Aspirin

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Headache Colds Rheumatism
Toothache Neuralgia Neuritis
Earache Lumbago Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

111 one-eleven cigarettes

Three Friendly Gentlemen

TURKISH
VIRGINIA
BURLEY

10¢ [illegible]

[illegible]

MAY

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS
INDIGESTION

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Perfect for Floors

Martin's Amber-Lyte is the perfect finish for floors of maple and other close grained woods. Penetrates wood and forms a tough, long-wearing, velvety coating over the surface. Just the thing for the kitchen floor; also for schools and public halls and buildings. For finer work use Martin's 100% Pure Floor Varnish.

Leading dealers in most communities sell Martin's Varnishes. If your dealer does not, write for name of nearest dealer.

MARTIN VARNISH CO., Chicago, Ill.
Makers of 100% Pure Varnishes

"Vaseline" Carbolated Petroleum Jelly

is an effective, antiseptic first-aid dressing for cuts, wounds and insect bites. It helps prevent infection.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
(Consolidated)
State Street New York

Vaseline
CARBOLATED
PETROLEUM JELLY
CHESEBROUGH MFG. COMPANY

Salesman Wanted—For this territory. United Tire Distributors, Akron, Ohio. Give reasons why you think you can sell tires. All applications receive courteous consideration.

PERFECT COMB CLEANER cleans comb quickly, easily, lasts years; postpaid anywhere 25c coin, stamps. Warren & Howell, 23rd floor, 461 Eighth Avenue, New York.

Ladies Keep Your Skin Clear, Sweet, Healthy With Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Talcum

PREVENT AN EXPLOSION
A. T. SAFETY VALVE for your protection. Price $2.00 cash or money order. A. T. Products Co., 975 Gates Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

ESTABLISH YOURSELF. Opportunity to enter mineral bath business. Large financial returns. Send for literature. Superior Bath Co., 1724 Columbus Rd., Cleveland, O.

PAINT
SAVE MONEY - ORDER BY MAIL DIRECT FROM MAKERS
Our 32 page illustrated Booklet, "The Magic Story of Paint and Varnish" will tell you how best to select paint for the longest wear, for best results, at the lowest price. It contains full instructions compiled by an old master painter, for the application, as well as other essential things to know about paint and its uses. This valuable book together with sample for testing and color cards FREE.
WRITE TODAY
C. E. LIVELY & CO., 429 United Bank Bldg. Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lame, Perhaps.

Blobb—There is always room at the top.

Neville—Yes, but the majority of people are always waiting for a lift to take them up.—Answers.

A first-class price doesn't always indicate a first-class hotel.

Her Experience

"I was never able to bake a good cake until using Royal. I find other powders leave a bitter taste."

Mrs. C. P.

ROYAL
Baking Powder
[illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA State News

Carthage.—Oliver Johnson, fifty-four years old, shot and killed Mrs. Stella Bradburn, forty-three years old, because she refused to marry him. After shooting Mrs. Bradburn Johnson then turned the gun on himself and committed suicide. Johnson called at the home of Mrs. Bradburn's mother, with whom she had been living, and when she opened the door Johnson shot her twice. He then shot himself in the head and died almost instantly. Johnson was employed in a local paper mill.

Anderson.—Special agents from the office of the state fire marshal have begun an investigation of the destruction of the Lafayette Township Mercantile Exchange, a co-operative general store, maintained by Lafayette township farmers at the village of Florida. It is understood that officials of the farmers' organization in Lafayette township suspected the fire, which destroyed the general store, two cottages and a barn, was of incendiary origin. The loss on the stock and building, owned by the organized farmers, was estimated at $4,800, with insurance of $4,300.

Terre Haute.—Burial services for Mrs. Otela Grace Snyder of Brazil, who was killed March 28 at Shanghai, Chicago, by two Koreans attempting to assassinate Gen. Giichi Tanaka, former Japanese minister of war, were held at Highland Lawn cemetery here. Mrs. Synder was the wife of W. J. Snyder, an official of a Brazil (Ind.) coal mining company. She was leaving a boat at Shanghai with her husband when she was shot. As Mr. and Mrs. Snyder stepped from the gang plank, they were followed closely by General Tanaka. Two Koreans fired at the officer and the bullets struck Mrs. Snyder.

Logansport.—Charles W. Camp, Indiana state bank commissioner, in a statement said the White River bank here, which was closed recently, is insolvent. He said $40,000 in capital stock, $35,000 insurplus, and $10,500 in building fund of the bank had not been accounted for. In addition, $14,000 in bonds, which had been left in the bank for safe keeping and for which the bank is liable, is missing, the examiner said. The actual assets, Mr. Camp calculated, including notes, are $444,723. Of this amount $412,756 is in notes, $52,000 of which are regarded as bad. Of the total liabilities of $443,290, $336,010 was in the form of deposits. Notes calling for $45,227 were deposited in the city banks in the last 30 days.

Terre Haute.—L. N. Hines, president of the Indiana State Normal school, in an address here before the Terre Haute Ministerial association on education and what was being done along educational lines in Indiana, told of some of the present-day economic needs. Some people, he said, were criticising the efforts being made for better conditions and more wages for the teachers. These efforts, he said, were necessary in order to induce teachers to remain with their employment. "We have about 20,000 teachers in the public schools of Indiana, and of this number about one-fifth leave each year," Mr. Hines said. "That means that each year we have about 4,000 new teachers. The school system cannot be maintained as it should be under such conditions. This is one of our biggest problems."

Washington.—The Department of Commerce in a bulletin, announces that the total mortgage debt on owned homes and farms in the state of Indiana, according to the census of 1920, was $227,152,105 and the total value of these mortgaged homes and farms was $760,128,279, the mortgage debt thus representing 29.9 per cent of the total value. Rented homes, tenant farms, and farms that are partly owned and partly rented, it should be noted, are not included in this report. The total number of homes in the state other than farm homes was 520,676 of which 262,951 or 50.5 per cent were owned by the occupants; and of these owned homes 96,370 or 36.7 per cent were mortgaged. Information regarding the value of the home and the amount of mortgage debt was secured from 69,701 or 72.3 per cent of these mortgaged homes. The average mortgage debt of the homes for which mortgage reports were secured was [illegible] and the average value was [illegible] and on the basis of these averages the total mortgage [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Richmond.—L. C. Weldon, production manager of the municipal electric light plant at Richmond submitted his resignation and it was accepted by the board of public works. D. C. Hesse, commercial manager, will be entrusted with supervision of the plant, the board announces.

Indianapolis.—Hayden Fisher, age thirty-five, a tree surgeon, who lived in this city, was almost instantly killed when limb snippers which he was using to trim a tree in the rear of 3021 Prospect street came in contact with a high tension wire of the Indianapolis Light and Heat company. Twenty-five thousand volts of electricity passed through his body. A short time after the arrival of the police the high-tension wire parted and dropped to the ground, scattering hundreds of people standing nearby.

Indianapolis.—Cash assets amounting to $732.70, belonging to the Indianapolis War Chest, in addition to office fixtures and pledges, were turned over to the Community Chest at a meeting of the directors of the War Chest held at the Columbia club. It was estimated that collections on the pledges will amount to between $2,000 and $3,000. An auditing committee will report within a few days. The financial report, submitted at the meeting Monday, showed that subscriptions to the War Chest amounted to $2,766,926, in the four years since its organization. The amount paid on the pledges was reported to be $2,154,142.

Bloomington. — Indiana university alumni in all parts of the world celebrated the ninety-eighth anniversary of the opening of the university, with meetings at alumni centers which were addressed by the faculty or alumni representatives of the university. President William L. Bryan, Mrs. Bryan, and a party of faculty and student representatives were guests of the Indiana University Alumni association at Washington, at a banquet held at the University club. A reception preceded the banquet. More than 250 alumni of the university, residing in Washington, attended the reception and banquet. President Bryan broadcast his annual Foundation day message by wireless from the Washington post office radio station among more than 28,000 alumni of the state university residing in the United States.

Indianapolis.—Albert J. Beveridge, having won the Republican nomination for United States senator over Harry S. New by a majority of approximately 20,000, Indiana Republicans and Democrats alike rested on their oars in anticipation of strenuous pre-election activities. Ex-Senator Beveridge next November will be opposed by former Gov. Samuel N. Ralston, Democratic senatorial nominee, who defeated Beveridge for the governorship in 1912 when the Republican senatorial nominee was carrying the Progressive party standard in the state election. Both Mr. Beveridge and former Governor Ralston were swept into the nomination by majorities that surprised the electorate. Ralston won by a vote totaling more than the combined strength of his four opponents. In the Democratic race Mr. Jesse Sanders of Garrett, "unknown," but "wet," ran second.

Muncie.—The Christian churches of state will meet here in convention May 15 to 18. The meeting is under direction of the Indiana Christian Missionary association but the several auxiliary societies all have place and part in the four days' program. The convention is made up of persons from all the Christian churches of the state, and is always a gathering of large numbers. C. W. Cauble of Indianapolis is the head of the I. C. M. S., but Rev. Roy Deadman of Lebanon is the president of the convention; O. E. Tomes of Gary is vice president, and J. Francis Ashley of Poseyville is secretary. Rev. Aubrey Moore of Tipton is president of the Ministerial association which meets Monday, May 15, and occupies the first afternoon and evening of the gathering. The Muncie church has extended a warm invitation to the Disciples of Christ in Indiana to attend as has also Mayor John C. Quick and the pastor of the Muncie church, Rev. S. C. Fisher.

Lafayette.—Purdue university entertained more than 1,200 young Hoosiers who attended the fourth annual roundup of boys and girls' clubs in Indiana. The roundup brought together the boys and girls who had been engaged in the various rural club activities in connection with school work, including corn, pig, steer, cooking, dressmaking and home-making [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

20 for 18c
10 for 9c
Vacuum tins of 50 - 45c

"They Satisfy"

There is always some man around who is willing to second any kind of motion.

Just say to your grocer Red Cross Ball Blue when buying bluing. You will be more than repaid by the results. Once tried always used.—Advertisement.

BIBLE ASCRIBED TO SATAN

Evil One Declared to Have Assisted Monk to Perform Work, for a Fearful Price.

One of the most famous copies of the Scriptures in existence is the one which bears the curious title, "The Devil's Bible." It is an exquisite piece of workmanship, inscribed on 300 asses' skins, and was taken to Stockholm at the conclusion of the Thirty Years' war.

According to tradition this Bible was the work of a poor monk who was condemned to death for some defection, but was told that the sentence would be commuted if he would copy out on asses' skins the entire Bible in a single night. He agreed to try to do it but, finding the task too great, made a compact with the devil to exchange his soul for the required transcript. The devil kept his part of the bargain, and the work was finished on time. The monk's life was spared by his marveling judges, but tradition is silent as to how he kept his end of the agreement.

Reversed.

With very realistic sobs the weary tramp told the tale to the farmer's wife and she nearly believed him.

"But, surely, if you have an aged mother to support," she said sympathetically, "you could find some better way of doing it than begging? You know 'necessity is the mother of invention.'"

"Not in my case, I assure you," said the tramp, earnestly. "With me, lady, mother is the invention of necessity."—Pearsons.

Often the careworn man looks so because he isn't properly fed.

The man who has more than the other fellow should do more.

NEVER EVEN TOUCHED HER

Reader Must Figure Out for Himself Just What Caused Negress to Jump Over Railing.

A negress was charged with assaulting another negress.

"Luella Washington," said the judge, "what have you to say for yourself?"

"Your honah," replied Luella, "Ah nevah struck that woman. Ah nevah touched her. Ah had reprimanded her foh throwin' garbage out back, an' she kept on doin' it, an' this mawnin' Ah reprimanded her again. Ah come downstairs from mah flat up above, an' was holding up mah right hand jes' like the Statue of Liberty, jes' like Ah'm holdin' up mah right hand now, reprimanding that woman, an' as Ah come close to her, that woman jes' jumped head first ovah the railing. Ah nevah touched her."

"What did you have in the hand which you were holding up like the Statue of Liberty?"

"A hatchet."

His Great Mistake.

Joseph Levenson, head of New York's motion picture censorship, said at a luncheon:

"The movies do a lot of good. But they do harm, too, sometimes. Think of the love affairs they break off!

"'It's all over,' a young man groaned one day. 'It's all over now between Mabel and me.'

"'Sorry to hear that, old chap,' said a second young man. 'What caused the split, may I ask?'

"'I took Mabel to the movies last night, and she said that the heroine of the serial called 'The Pact of Death' was a beautiful girl.

"'Well?'

"'Well, I agreed with her.'"

"Luciferous," Illuminated.

Lloyd George is said to have used the word "luciferous." An unusual adjective, but not, we think, an invention of his. An Englishman asked an acquaintance what he would understand by "a luciferous story." The other replied: "Like one of yours; a devilish bad one."—Boston Transcript.

Don't try to kill two birds with one stone. Use a shotgun.

Chronic kickers soon develop a whine that won't wear off.

Shave With Cuticura Soap
And double your razor efficiency as well as promote skin purity, skin comfort and skin health. No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no waste, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving bathing and shampooing.—Advertisement.

MATTER OF PROPERTY RIGHT

Negro Had His Own Good Reasons for Bestowing Care on His Headgear.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge said in a recent address in Cambridge:

"Communism has proved its worthlessness in Russia. After Russia no tub-thumper will ever say again that private property is a mistake and it is better for us that everything should be owned in common.

"Private property! Why, that is one of our most ineradicable instincts.

"A Southern planter once gave an old top hat of his to one of his slaves. He saw the slave returning from church the next Sunday in a rainstorm. The slave's head was bare. Rain beat on it and dripped from it in torrents. As for the top hat, he carried it carefully sheltered under his coat.

"'Washington,' called the planter, 'why don't you protect your head from the rain instead of protecting that worthless old hat?'

"Wash chuckled.

"'Boss, man,' he called back, 'hit's like dish-yere. Mah haid belong ter you, but de ole hat's mah own.'"—Detroit Free Press.

His Sad Dilemma.

The disheveled stranger made his way into the police station.

"Are you the sergeant in charge?" he asked.

"I am," replied the stout man in uniform, who was seated at a desk and writing in a large ledger.

"I'm lost," said the disheveled man.

"You are—eh?" replied the stout man in uniform as he continued writing. "Well, if you can prove that anybody's missing you we'll take up the case."

The Thrifty Citizen Who Caught the Plugged Nickel

MR. BROWN had swallowed his lunch and had paid his bill. Cautiously he counted his change. "Here!" he said, sharply. "Take back this plugged nickel and give me a good one!"

Mr. Brown walked proudly out. They couldn't fool old Brown.

But old Brown had fooled himself.

Brown's day was heavy and dull. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts is a scientific food [illegible]

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts—The Body Builder
"There's a Reason"
[illegible]

MAY

CHICK TIME IS HERE

This is headquarters for Ful-O-Pep-Mash, Steel cut oats, Bone meal, Oyster shells, Chick scratch feed, Cracked corn, Tankage, and Fresh meal at the LOWEST PRICE.

Give us a call. We can save you money. Call and get our prices.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
St. Joe, Ind.

FLOWERS FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Place your order with us for Carnations, Swansonias, Snap Dragons, etc., for Mothers' Day not later than Friday noon, and they will be ready for you Saturday noon.

Fix up your lawn boxes and porch baskets now for you can get plants and vines here to make them attractive. We also have Cabbage, Tomatoe, and Celery plants of the early varieties.

NEWS OFFICE

Crockery

We just received a car-load of Crockery, consisting of Jars, from 1-2 to 12 gallon in size; Butter crocks, jars, and churns, in the right sizes; Flower pots; Harvester jugs; Cuspidors; Combinets; etc., at the right prices. Don't fail to see this assortment of stone-ware

ANOTHER SHIPMENT

of Florence Automatic Wickless oil stoves, just received, in any size burner you wish. We sold our other order clear out. Come in and see this stove demonstrated. Less fuel, no smoke, and a hotter heat, and priced lower than most common wick stoves. An Iron-clad Guarantee with every one sold.

And don't forget
We still have some fertilizer in stock at new low prices.
Window screens, Screen doors, and Screen wire in the different sizes and kinds. Our prices are right.

Wm. Curie
ST. JOE, INDIANA

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

We believe in Tanlac and so will you if you try it. Sheffer's.

C. C. Bassett spent Saturday forenoon at Hicksville.

For Sale:—Quarter-sawed oak dresser. Mrs. Rolla Weirs.

F. H. Langley and M. J. Ryding spent over Sunday here with their wives at the Mrs. Alice Warner home.

Mrs. Isaac Meese is home again from a few weeks visit with her son at Davenport, Iowa.

John George and family, of Auburn, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reasoner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miser and family were guests of Waterloo relatives Sunday.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mrs. Hartzog, of Fort Wayne, spent part of Friday a guest of Mrs. Mary Bowman.

Mrs. S. D. Gee and aunt, Mrs. Martha Forkner, spent Friday afternoon in Auburn.

Mrs. Ella Patterson is home after a two weeks visit with her children at Springfield, Ohio.

For good glasses see Grieat at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Ada Loftus, of Pleasant Lake, came Friday evening to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bleeks.

Sam Keesler, daughters Doris and Jane, and son Henry were Sunday guests of his sister, Mrs. Ralph Furnish and family, below Spencerville.

Merritt Maxwell and family are moving here from Stroh, Indiana, and will occupy the Bennett Leighty property for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Knight and daughters Evelyn and Dorothy spent Sunday afternoon with Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz entertained the latters parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cox, of near Defiance, from Friday until Monday morning.

The big reputation of Tanlac has been made by doing what other medicines failed to do. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of Fort Wayne, spent over Sunday here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler and Mrs. Anna Dilley.

Mrs. Eva Shull and son Garth spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Mercer and children, near Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Thayer and two daughters, of Fort Wayne, were afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee.

There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac. Sheffer's Drug Store.

C. C. Woodcox and wife entertained at Sunday dinner Miss Alma Lawson.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter Louetta were Hicksville visitors Saturday, the latter remaining the guest of friends until Sunday afternoon.

The Misses Jessie and Pauline Moffett and Messrs Ray Rhoedeffer and Paul Adams, all of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sommers.

O. J. Baker and daughters, Mrs. Harry Urmson of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Matie Gee and son Fred spent Thursday with their daughter and sister, Mrs. Anna Frank, and family at Auburn.

C. R. Brunson, of Fort Wayne, was a Saturday evening supper guest in the home of his sister, Mrs. C. C. Bassett, and family. He visited his mother, Mrs. A. D. Brunson, and other relatives before returning home.

The Central Grocery

Is Offering For The End Of This Week....

[illegible]

Arthur Rainier, of Auburn, spent Sunday afternoon with John Betz.

Mrs. Mary Cook is a new subscriber to The News.

Mrs. William Brown spent all day Monday in the Walter Baker home at Concord.

J. C. Hull and wife spent Sunday with the latter's brother, J. O. Quance and family, at Ft. Wayne.

J. P. Buckingham and wife were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook at Spencerville.

Lester Pugsley, wife and son Carl, were Sunday dinner guests of Craig Sheffer and family.

You get your money's worth when you buy Tanlac, because it produces results. Dr. Sheffer's.

T. A. Northrup, wife and little son were Sunday dinner guests of J. R. Shilling and wife.

Paul Curie, wife and little son spent Sunday with her parents, Chas. Grimm and wife, of Waterloo.

For Sale:—22½ acres of good land in Spencer Township. A bargain at $75 an acre. Mrs. Mary Shuff, St. Joe, Ind.

Fred Jenkins and wife entertained at Sunday dinner in honor of the former's birthday anniversary, Ed Leighty and wife.

Tom Cool and family, of Auburn, and Miss Lorette Funk, of Concord, spent Sunday with Roy Koch and family.

Vance Woodcox, wife and baby, of Detroit, spent Sunday at the home of their parents, C. C. Woodcox and wife.

The Central Grocery has purchased a new Ford truck with which it will do its own trucking and delivering.

Mesdames Ada Berry and Mary Betz spent Sunday and Monday in Ft Wayne with Carl Hatch and wife.

Mrs. H. C. Borthwick and sons, Russell and Ronald, spent Friday and Saturday guests of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Fulmer and family, at Hicksville.

Among those who called on C. C. Curie, Sunday, who isn't in very good health were, Dr. C. S. Johnson, Martin Tustison and Jacob Sechler.

Orange Herrick, wife and a sister of Mr. Herrick, Mrs. Margaret Thomas, of St. Joe, were guests of Dan Herrick and wife, of Auburn, Sunday.

C. C. Woodcox and wife were at Detroit, Friday and Saturday. They drove a new Maxwell car home. Mr. Woodcox is the Maxwell dealer.

Lloyd Farver, wife and two children, of west of town; Mrs. Sebring, and Wm. Brown, of Auburn, spent Sunday with William Brown and wife here.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baker, of Concord, a six pound boy, Monday morning. Also an eleven-pound boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Fetters, Sunday morning.

Emilus Case was taken to the Sanitarium at St. Louis, Michigan, Tuesday of this week, for treatment. He was accompanied by his nephew, Stanley [illegible], and Dr. B. O. [illegible].

George Kinsey, wife and daughter Juanita, spent Sunday with Harry Kinsey and family, at Fremont. Little [illegible] Kinsey, who had been her [illegible] guest for a while, returned home with them.

Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible]

SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40% and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Miss Marie Goldsmith recently had as guests Mrs. Herman Muessinger and daughter Genevieve and Mrs. Jacob Couch of Kendallville, and Mrs. Fred Cook of Auburn Junction.

Earl Smith left Wednesday for New York City, where he will meet his wife and little son, who have been visiting the last six months with relatives in France.

Mrs. Harold Myrtle and little son, of Oaklawn, Illinois, and Mrs. Frank Myrtle, of Waterloo, were Friday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Randall.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kosht and daughters Phyllis and Marguerite, of Decatur, spent from Saturday evening until Monday morning as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hindman and other relatives.

Films Shown.

Benjamin H. Repp, County Agent, is showing motion pictures on the following subjects during the fore part of the month of May:

1. Chinch Bugs.
2. Farm Bureau Comes to Pleasant View.
3. Cured by Canning. (Girls' Club work.)
4. Her Novel Idea (Comic)

Friday evening, May 12, they will be shown in St. Joe at the High School building, and on Tuesday evening, May 16, at Spencerville at the High School building.

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

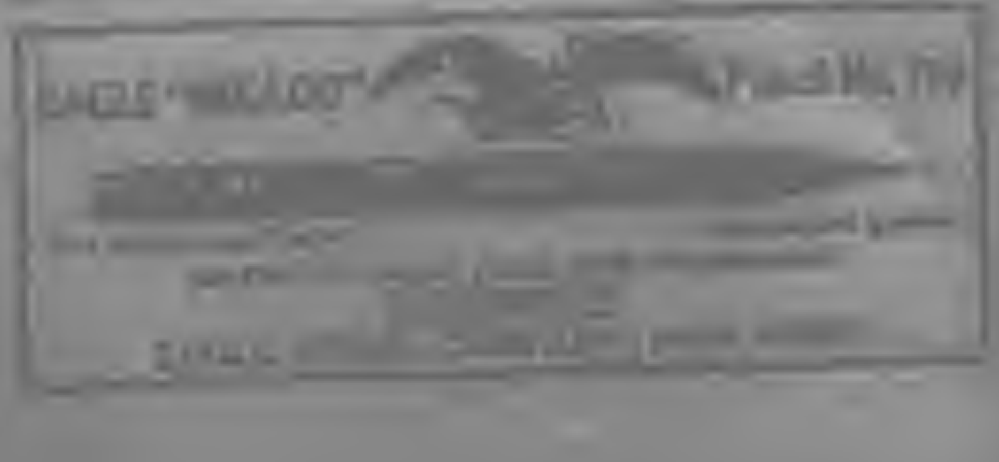
HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, MAY 19, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL



MAY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1922 No. 20

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL

Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN

No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED

Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL

Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

You Cannot Lose

No matter how much or how little money you may have it will cost you no more to pay it out by means of check than it will to use the hard cash. Checks are accepted just as readily as money.

A checking account is absolutely safe. If a check should be lost it becomes worthless because payment on it can be stopped immediately, and nothing of intrinsic value is lost. If the money is lost however, there are [illegible] protection available.

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank - State Bank

Township S. S. Convention Was Very Successful

One of the very best Township Conventions ever held in Concord township was held Sunday, May 14, 1922. Beginning with a union Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. with the adults meeting in the Lutheran church and the children and young people's divisions in the Methodist church. The attendance in the latter division was 158 and the offering $6.64. The adult division had an attendance of 120 with an offering of $8.05. M. T. Bishop, Mrs. Lena Meek and B. E. Widney had charge of the children and young people.

Just before the study period Miss Pauline W. Roth, of Fort Wayne, gave a story to the young people in a very impressive way. Immediately after the class period the young people assembled at the Lutheran church with the adults and listened to a very instructive talk by Miss Roth, her subject being "The Challenge," which was divided in three parts. "What do you know," "What can you do" and "can you love."

Just before Miss Roth's address county president George E. Beugnot gave a short talk announcing the county and state Sunday school conventions. He also told the convention that DeKalb county had again reached the 100 per cent standard.

The morning session closed with a song and a prayer by Dr. B. S. Sheffer.

The afternoon session opened with a song service. Mrs. Belle Woodcox led the devotional by reading a passage of Scripture on "Love" and gave an excellent short talk on that subject and offered prayer. Mrs. J. H. Knauer of Corunna gave a talk on the work of the Children's Division in the county, she being County Superintendent of that division. She was followed by J. W. George, County Adult Superintendent, who talked briefly about the work in his division.

The principal address of the afternoon was given by W. H. Bransford of Hicksville, who spoke on the Four Great Purposes of the Sunday School. After his address, which was excellent, the various reports were given. Mrs. Lena Meek reported for the Children's division 57 on the Cradle roll and 109 in the rest of the children's division. M. T. Bishop reported for the Young People's classes 147 young people in the four schools, 51 of that number taking teacher's training work. J. R. Shilling reported 13 adult classes with a total enrollment of 206 with 28 in the Home Department.

The Educational report was given by the Secretary, who reported each of the four schools as having Missionary instruction and offerings and temperance instruction. Two schools, the Lutheran and Christian, reported teachers training classes with an enrollment of 52. The Christian church also reported 4 graduates from the personal Evangelistic class. The amount of money raised for Missions in the township was $208.50.

As chairman of the nominating committee George Wilmot reported the following names to submit to the convention:

President—F. B. Leighty.
Vice President—Ed. Pflaumer.
Secretary-Treasurer—Ada Bassett.
Children's Division Superintendent—Dora Daily.
Young People's—M. T. Bishop.
Adult—J. R. Shilling.
Educational—Miss Martha Moon.
Administrative—Curtis Watt.

These officers were installed by Miss Roth, all being present in the convention.

The evening session was but a continuation of the good things of the day. The Devotional was led by Harry Hursh, who read the Scripture lesson from Mark 14: 22-45 which he followed by a talk and call to silent prayers for the upbuilding of the young people's work in St. Joe. This was followed by a cornet solo by Robert Johnson. Miss Roth then gave the evening's address on the subject of "Relation of the [illegible] to the Young People." [illegible] A [illegible]

[illegible]

Christian	10.00
May 14 offering from Children and Young People's division	6.64
May 14 offering from adult classes	8.05
Morning offering	5.62
Afternoon offering	4.70
Total	80.56
Expenses
Postage and stationary	1.77
To Miss Sadie Coy for State and County work	35.68
For Mother's Day Buttons	6.00
Printing	2.25
To Miss Roth	10.00
To Mr. Bransford	5.00
Total	60.70
Leaving a balance in Treasury	$19.86

Ada Bassett Sec'y.-Treas.
F. B. Leighty President.

Life Of Frank Barney

Frank Barney, son of George and Jane Barney, was born in Spencerville, Indiana, January 13, 1852, and departed his earthly life at Mountain View, Oklahoma, May 6th, 1922, at the age of 70 years, 3 months and 23 days.

He lived in Spencerville with his parents until his father became treasurer of DeKalb county in about 1860 and moved his family to Auburn. Later they moved back to Spencerville.

In 1872 he and his brother, Sol, opened a general store in St. Joe, and were in business for several years. He was postmaster at the time of Cleveland's administration. The brothers disolved partnership, Sol keeping the store, and Frank went into the grain business. He ran the St. Joe elevator until 1910 when he moved to Mountain View, Oklahoma, where he lived till his death.

On October 17, 1883 he was united in marriage to Ida F. Stevenson, of St. Joe, Indiana, to which union were born three sons, Roscoe, who preceded his father in death June 30, 1914; Emmons, who lives at Dunright, Oklahoma; and Carter, who lives at home, and one daughter, Gladys Reynolds, of Mountain View, Oklahoma. His wife, three children, three grand-children, and a host of friends remain to grieve the loss of the deceased.

At Mountain View he was active in politics and was chairman of the Democratic convention at Hobart, Okla. He was interested in the loan business and did some of it.

At one time he was a member of K. of P. lodge, I. O. O. F. and Mason lodge at Spencerville. In the latter he was a Master Mason.

He was the last of a family of seven boys and one girl to pass away. Stephen M. and George W. died in infancy; John S., a private of the 11th I. V. I. from Camp Ford, died in a Confederate prison of starvation in October 1864; Lucius O., a captain in the 100th I. V. I., died October 5, 1869; Mark died in 1910; Mary died Dec. 22, 1869; and Solomon who died at St. Joe, Indiana, Oct. 13, 1920. This family was one of the earliest and best known in DeKalb County. The father came from New York state and the mother (Jane Bratton) from Pennsylvania.

In late years Frank preferred the farm and home life of Mountain View, Oklahoma, to the city and the political life, and he enjoyed improving his ranch and keeping a nice herd of cattle. He took pride in being a good farmer from Indiana. His interest in good roads led him to become President of the Good Roads Association of his township. He was offered the office of township trustee but declined with the statement that he would boost but not lead.

It will be remembered that he took great interest while in St. Joe in base ball. He was one to promote the in[illegible] of St. Joe schools and had the distinction of being president of the first school board there.

For some months he had been in [illegible]

[illegible]

Clarence C. Woodcox Vernon F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage—Boost St. Joe

Just a few of the items on which we can save you money—

Tires	Steering wheels	Pistons	Tubes
Cement	Piston Rings	Tape	Hot Shots
Gaskets	Wind Shield cleaners	Patches	Timers
Boots	Bulbs	Locks	Spark Plugs
Porcelains	Batteries	Pumps	Lenses
Hose	Moto Meters	Spot lights	Fan Belts
Wire	Anti-Rattlers	Ford Parts	Grease
	Oil	Gasoline

Strictly a Service Garage

WELDING Done While You Wait

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36, Nights 76.

Take The Drubgery Out of washday by using A Wonder Washer

Electric irons, Sad irons, Ironing boards, Clothes Baskets, and Stompers, Boilers, Wash tubs, wringers.

Buy A Perfection Oil Stove

Protect your household against the deadly fly by using Our Screen Doors, all sizes. Adjustable Screen Windows. Screen Wire, all widths.

STOP!
LOOK!
AND LISTEN!

Flies are disease carriers.
Live and breed in all kinds of filth.
Infest food and drink by germ laden feet.
Each female fly can lay 150 eggs.
Screens should be used to keep them out.

Lowe Bros.'s Paints
Carter's White Lead
Pure Linseed Oil

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

[illegible] brakeman and this is his second marriage, his first wife having died in 1907. Miss Smith was born in South Dakota. Mr. and Mrs. Hamm will make their home in Garrett.

Clayton Hathaway Graduates

Clayton B. Hathaway of Auburn, will be among the large class of [illegible] to graduate from Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio, early in [illegible] ceremonies [illegible] on the college [illegible] He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Hathaway of South [illegible]

[illegible]

Wednesday.

During his student career at Wittenberg, Mr. Hathaway has been prominent in many activities of the student life. He was a member of the college football squad, playing center and guard last fall, and gave a good account of his game. He is also a member of the varsity "W" association which is restricted to only those men who have made a letter in some activity at Wittenberg. He was also a member of the Boost Wittenberg association, a student governing body.

Mr. Hathaway was prominent in scholastic work, especially in the science departments where he did his major college work. Fraternally he is a member of the Dormitory league, the largest student group on the campus at Wittenberg.

Notice.

[illegible]

MAY

L 912

RADIO

THINGS BEGINNERS MUST LEARN FIRST

Explanation of Terms Used in Radio and of Its Basic Principles.

Due to the great interest taken in radio since broadcasting stations have been started, many radio terms are seen and heard that may be unfamiliar to the novice. Some of the most commonly used terms are explained and defined below.

Like light, heat and sound, radio energy is propagated in the form of a wave motion. Every one is familiar with the wave motion set up on the surface of a still body of water by the dropping of a stone into it.

Every time a point on the surface of the waves goes through a complete set of motions and starts to repeat those motions the wave is said to have gone through a cycle.

The number of complete cycles gone through per second is the frequency.

The human ear is responsive to sound frequencies up to a few thousand cycles per second but is not capable of responding to the higher frequencies encountered in radio. Arbitrarily a frequency of less than 10,000 cycles has been called an audible frequency—one which can be heard—and frequencies above 10,000 cycles, radio or inaudible frequencies—because they cannot be heard by the human ear.

The particular type of wave which propagates radio energy is an electro-magnetic wave. All of us have seen bits of iron and steel attracted by the little toy magnets made up in the form of horseshoes. This attraction of the magnet for the bits of iron and steel showed the existence of a magnetic field about the tips of the magnet and this same kind of a field propagates the electro-magnetic force, except that unlike the toy magnet, its power comes off in the form of wavy motions. This electro-magnetic force propagates radio energy in all directions.

The medium that transmits the electro-magnetic waves is the same medium that transmits light—the ether. This medium is supposed to fill all space, even that occupied by fluids and solids. Little is known about its properties.

In radio it is more common to speak of wave length than frequency. The wave length of any wave motion is the distance between any two successive crests in the same direction. The wave length depends upon the frequency. If the frequency is high the wave length is short. On the other hand if the frequency is low the wave length is long. Numerically the wave length is equal to the distance traveled by the wave in one second divided by the frequency. Suppose, for example, that it were desired to know the wave length of an electro-magnetic wave having a frequency of 835,000 cycles. Electro-magnetic waves travel at the same speed as do light waves, that is, 186,000 miles per second. Dividing the 186,000 by 835,000 the wave length would be .223 miles or 396 yards. In radio work it is measured in meters. A meter is equal to approximately 1.1 yards. Converting 396 yards into meters the wave length would be 396 divided by 1.1 or 360 meters. This is the wave length on which KDKA operates. It also means that the electro-magnetic waves sent out from this station have a frequency of 835,000 cycles.

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

In a radiophone transmitter there are two requirements that must be fulfilled. First, there must be a source of high-frequency current, say, between 15,000 and 1,500,000 cycles so connected to an antenna and ground system that energy in the form of electro-magnetic waves will be radiated. Second, there must be some method of controlling this high-frequency current or modulating it so that the variations in the amplitude of the high-frequency current will be directly proportional to the voice or music to be transmitted.

The high-frequency current is known as the carrier-wave and its function is to radiate into space in the form of electro-magnetic waves and by its variation in amplitude carry with it the variation in the tone at the transmitting station.

It is the frequency of the carrier-wave that determines the wave-length on which a radiophone station is transmitted. By experiment it has been found that electro-magnetic waves travel at the same velocity that light waves travel, that is, 186,000 miles per second. Wave-length is the distance between any two similar points on two successive waves; for example, the distance from crest to crest of any two successive waves in the same direction, measured in meters, a unit of length equal approximately to one and one-tenth yards. Converting 186,000 miles to meters, the equivalent is 300,000,000 meters. The length of an electro-magnetic wave is equal then to 300,000,000 divided by the frequency. Suppose a station was transmitting on a wave-length of 360 meters. The frequency of the carrier-wave would be approximately 835,000 cycles.

Just as a violinist tunes his instrument, that is, makes a certain string emit a note of higher or lower pitch, or, technically speaking, a sound wave of higher or lower frequency, by adjusting the tension on the string, so may the electrical constants of the antenna circuit of a radiophone transmitter be changed in order to have the station emit a carrier-wave of a different frequency.

If a tuning fork having a natural period corresponding to middle C be placed near a violinist who is playing, the fork will vibrate when the musician plays middle C, but all other times it will remain quiescent. This phenomenon of the tuning fork vibrating whenever the musician plays the corresponding note on the violin is known as mechanical resonance. If a radio receiver be adjusted so that electrically its natural period of vibration will be 835,000 cycles (360 meters wave-length) every time a station transmits on a wave-length of 360 meters, current will be set up in the receiver by electrical resonance. Stations transmitting on any wave-length other than 360 meters will not cause a current to be set up in the receiver.

The portion of a radio receiver that changes the wave-length at which it is electrically resonant is called a tuner. Suppose that "A" station transmits on a wave-length of 200 meters and "B" on a wave-length of 360 meters. By adjusting the tuner until the constants of the receiver make it electrically resonant to a 200-meter wave or a 360-meter wave, either of the two stations can be picked up, but both stations cannot be picked up simultaneously. This is the reason that more than one transmitter can be operating at one time and yet only one can be heard on a receiver without interference from the others.

The other necessary part of a radio receiver is the detector. The function of this portion of the receiver is to utilise the small currents in the tuner that are set up by a transmitting station and make them audible through the medium of a telephone receiver. If the telephone receiver were connected directly to the tuner the high-frequency current would not operate the diaphragm of the receiver and even if the diaphragm were set in motion it would be too fast a motion to be picked up by the human ear.

In a simple receiver the detector usually consists of two pieces of mineral in contact or a piece of mineral in contact with a metallic spring. Either combination is known as a crystal detector. A detector of this type is nothing more than a rectifier; that is, when an alternating current is applied at the terminals the current is allowed to flow only in one direction.

Amateur Radio Operators Erecting Aerial on the Roof.

How One Editor Uses Radio.

The editor of a paper in an isolated town in the northwest is using the radio in a most ingenious and effective way. An aamateur radio friend in a big city 50 miles away buys the latest editions of the city papers as soon as they are off the press, reads the best news into his transmitter, and a typist in the country office copies the news as it comes in over the office receiver. The editor, through this ingenious plan, is always "First With the Latest" in his home town.

HER WEDDING JOURNEY

What She Most Wanted in Life, She Worked for Years to Get—But When the Chance Came . . .

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THERE was never a time that honeymoon trips had not possessed a wonderful fascination for her. As a child, she had eagerly devoured every available bit of information concerning the wedding journeys of the entire village, and in time it became a settled thing for each returning bride to subject herself to the admiring questions and worshipful homage of little Matilda Jones.

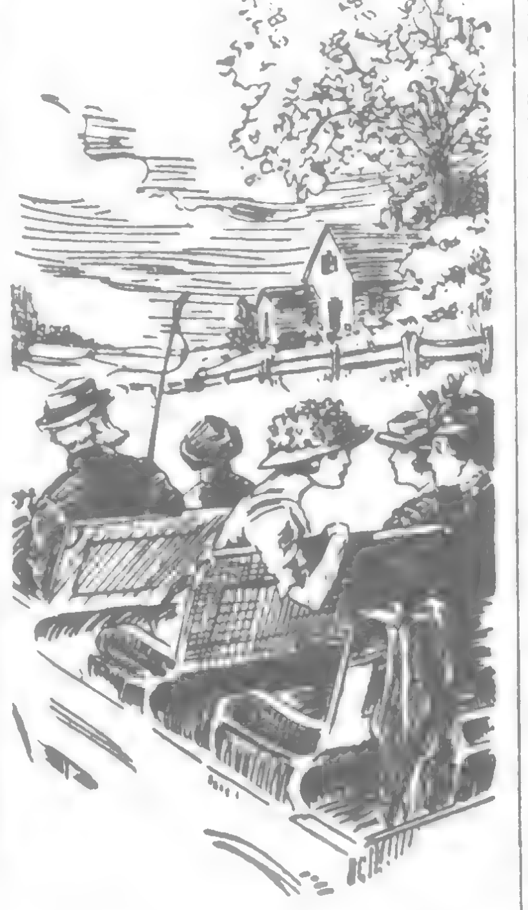
When it was that the idea of her own wedding trip first came to her, she could not tell, but it grew with her growth and strengthened with her strength, until it became the best part of her life. The supposedly necessary adjuncts of a man and a marriage never occurred to her—

To be sure, as she grew older, a village youth would now and then shamble diffidently up the garden walk on Sunday afternoon, or shyly offer his escort home from evening service at the little church. But all these things only frightened her, and by and by the young men ceased from troubling.

Then one day her mother died, and she was left all alone in the little white cottage at the end of the lane. As time passed, the thin little face wore a look of placid contentment, and the faded blue eyes looked out serenely—Matilda was about to take her wedding journey.

Away in the top of the tiny house, far back in a bureau drawer, lay a little pile of money. She could tell the history of almost every penny there.

This was the dollar her pickled pears had brought, and that was the quarter saved on the trimming for her black alpaca dress. All this little pile of nickels and dimes she had earned selling blackberries.



"We Can't Take Any at All, Miss Matilda."

She made daily pilgrimages to the shrine at the top of the house, and lovingly fingered her accumulated treasures. She thought—she was almost sure—she had enough now. There were nearly twenty whole dollars! She caught her breath at the audacity of spending such a fortune.

When people took wedding trips they wore new things. She looked doubtfully at her black alpaca; brushed it—sponged it—pressed it—and regarded it with a dubious sigh. It would have to do—she certainly could not afford a new dress. But in some trepidation she did invest in white cotton cloth and embroidered edging, and her cheeks grew pink with the excitement of making the unwonted finery.

Her evenings were especially delightful. She would go into the parlor and bring out the big atlas, and reverently turn the pages until she came to the map of her own state. There her slim forefinger would find the black dot which stood for the little village, and her eyes would gloat over the unknown world before her.

Just above that dot—where all those black lines met—was the junction, and sometimes she held her breath as she carried her finger away out along one of those lines, and stopped with a little gasp of delight at the extreme end of the map. Then she would draw a long sigh and shake her head, and, giving a quick little hitch to her chair, would settle herself to the delightful task of marking out her wedding journey.

She would go to the junction by stage. Then she would follow one of those black lines until she came to that large round ring with a dot in the middle.

Such a bit of a way it looked to be on the map, but she knew it was forty miles from home, and a big city!

Her breath came fast and she trembled a little when she thought of a hotel. Yes—she should go to one! She had never been to a [illegible] [illegible] hotel—she thought, regarding the village inn with fine scorn. She was not quite sure she would know how to behave—but she should certainly go. Who ever heard of a wedding trip without a hotel!

She decided to stay three days, perhaps four, and she looked fondly at the little round ring on the map, which contained so many delightful possibilities.

Then she would close the book and go to bed only to dream of wonderful electric-car rides to the moon.

At last the great day came. It dawned clear and cloudless, and a very happy Matilda climbed the stairs for her treasure. Joyously she grasped the precious pile with eager hands, then looked ruefully at the empty spot in the drawer. She hesitated a moment, quickly found the dingy nickel, and smiled content as she placed it back in its old corner and closed the drawer.

With trembling hands she arrayed herself in her wedding garments and seated herself on the doorstep to wait for the stage.

"Matilda Jones looked almost handsome this morning, with her cheeks so pink," said a pretty girl on the back seat to her companion, as the coach stopped for its passenger.

"Why, Nellie," said Matilda to this same pretty girl, as she clambered in, "am I going to have you to ride with? That will be nice, I'm sure!"

"Yes, I am going up to the junction to do some shopping—you know I'm pretty busy these days," said she, with an adorable blush, which suddenly reminded Matilda that it was nearing Nellie's wedding day. This warmed her heart to her at once, for was she not on her own wedding trip? She beamed anew on Nellie as she settled herself comfortably for the two-mile drive.

How the sun shone and the birds sang, and how good the air was to breathe.

"Are you going away for long, Miss Matilda?" inquired Nellie politely.

"No—only a little trip," she replied, trying to look unconcerned, as if trips were an everyday occurrence with her; but the red deepened in her cheeks, and her voice trembled a little as she asked abruptly:

"Where are you going to take your wedding trip dear?"

The girl colored painfully.

"We can't take any at all, Miss Matilda—isn't it dreadful?" and the young face looked pinched and drawn with woe. "You see, Jim's money, that he'd been saving up to go with, got all burned up in the fire, and—and—we've had to give it up!" she finished with a wail that clearly told her disappointment.

Miss Matilda sat very still. She thought her heart had stopped beating—then it gave a big thump, and there was a strange, tight feeling in her throat. She did not say anything, and by and by Nellie looked out at the scenery with a grieved expression on her pretty face. When they reached the junction, the young girl turned her head, and said constrainedly, as she jumped lightly from the coach: "I hope you'll have a nice time, Miss Matilda."

"Thank you," she murmured without smiling, and clambered slowly down. Then she walked along the platform, and sat down on an old settee on the shady side of the building.

By and by a train rumbled in—shook itself of passengers—gathered a new lot—and rumbled out again. One—two—three trains did the same thing, and the forlorn little woman still sat on the old settee.

"Didn't you want to take one o' them trains?" good-naturedly asked the blue-coated man, who had been curiously watching her for some time.

She looked at him with dull eyes, and shook her head.

When the stage coach made its evening trip to the village Nellie was surprised to find Miss Matilda on the back seat.

"Why, I didn't expect to see you so soon! Didn't you go?" asked the young girl pleasantly.

"No, I had—I had a headache—I mean a throatache," stammered Matilda in confusion.

The next night Nellie burst into her mother's room with an excited face, holding an open letter and a pasteboard box in her hand.

"Mother—what do you think! I told Miss Matilda yesterday how we couldn't take any wedding trip, and she never said a word, and then I felt real cross, 'cause I thought she didn't care a bit; but just see what that dear old maid has done!"

My Dear Nellie:

I think wedding trips are the nicest things in the world, and I don't want you to give up yours. I had a little extra money that I did not know what to do with, so I send it to you for your wedding trip. I hope you will have a nice time.

Your friend,

MATILDA JONES.

And Nellie's tears dropped fast on the dimes and nickels that rolled out of the pasteboard box.

Away at the top of a tiny house, in a bureau drawer, a lone nickel keeps guard over a dainty pile of wedding garments.

AFTER EVERY MEAL

WRIGLEY'S

P-K

It's a DOUBLE treat—Peppermint Jacket over Peppermint gum

10 for 5c

Sugar jacket just "melts in your mouth," then you get the delectable gum center.

And with Wrigley's three old standbys also affording friendly aid to teeth, throat, breath, appetite and digestion.

Soothing, thirst-quenching. Making the next cigar taste better.

THE FLAVOR LASTS

C30

AFTER EVERY MEAL

O-So-Easy to Use
Colors Silk, Wool and Cotton
All at the Same Time

Putnam Fadeless Dyes 10c Package

Why Pay More For Any Dye?

Buttons Long in Use

John J. Jones, a waiter in the dining cars of the Pennsylvania railroad, asked the other day for a new set of brass buttons to use with his white duck coat. When he turned in his old buttons in exchange it was noticed that they were not only unusually bright, but also that much polishing and use had almost worn off the lettering and that the front of each button was actually worn through in one or more places. Asked how long he had worn the buttons, he replied: "About twenty-nine years." They had been issued to him in 1892 by Maj. J. F. Trout, then superintendent of dining cars and restaurants.—New York World.

Poetry of love is transformed into prose when matrimony reaches the paregoric stage.

Foxy Old Boy.

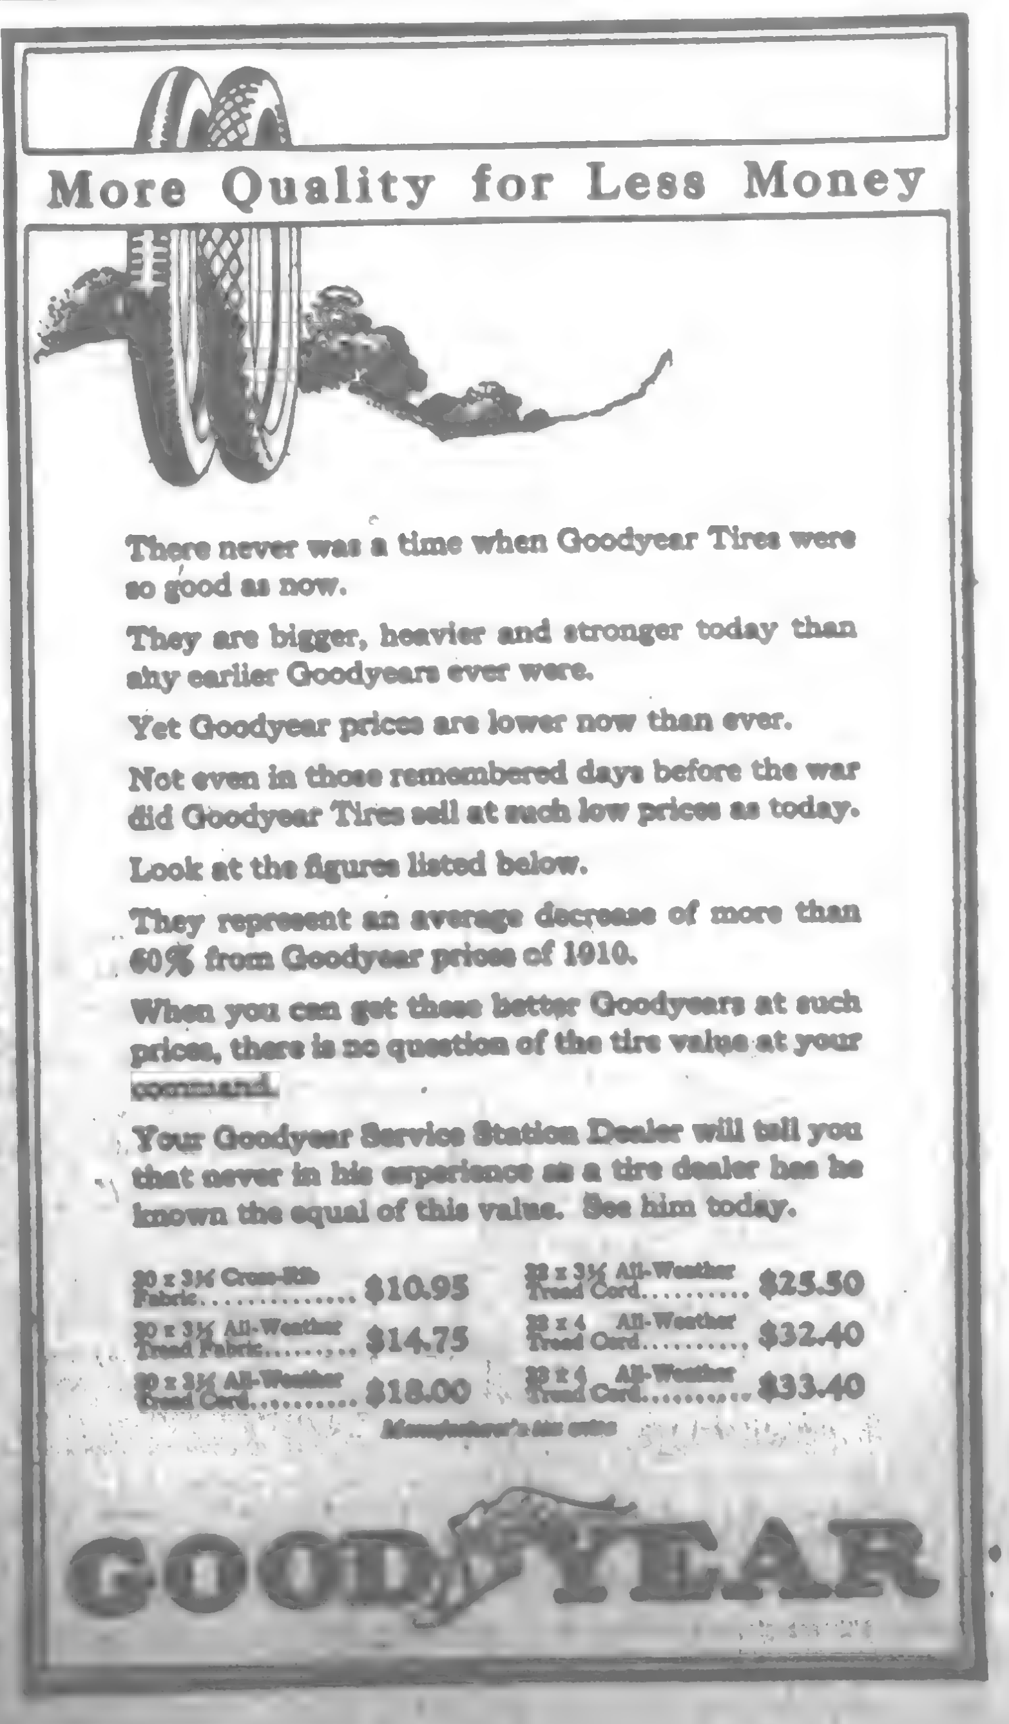
"And you are ninety-five years old!" she exclaimed. "How wonderful! You look so well, so strong, so young. How have you managed to do it?"

"My method is very simple," the venerable gentleman replied. "I have never let any of my friends know it if I didn't happen to be feeling well, consequently I've never had to take any of the things they would have recommended if they had known I was ailing."

Changing Figures.

"What is the population of Crimson Gulch at present?"

"No telling," replied Cactus Joe. "It was eighty-seven last night. But if Cactus Joe is as unforgivin' toward Three-finger Sam as he was when the poker game broke up, I reckon maybe by this time it's only eighty-six."



More Quality for Less Money

There never was a time when Goodyear Tires were so good as now.

They are bigger, heavier and stronger today than any earlier Goodyears ever were.

Yet Goodyear prices are lower now than ever.

Not even in those remembered days before the war did Goodyear Tires sell at such low prices as today.

Look at the figures listed below.

They represent an average decrease of more than 60% from Goodyear prices of 1910.

When you can get these better Goodyears at such prices, there is no question of the tire value at your command.

Your Goodyear Service Station Dealer will tell you that never in his experience as a tire dealer has he known the equal of this value. See him today.

30 x 3½ Cross-Rib Fabric $10.95

30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Fabric $14.75

30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord $18.00

32 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord $25.50

32 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord $32.40

33 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord $33.40

Manufacturer's tax extra

GOODYEAR

"ON EASY STREET"

Women "Farmerettes" Make Money in Western Canada.

Many Are Taking Advantage of the Opportunity Offered by the Fertile Land and Fine Climate.

In many parts of Western Canada are to be found women owning and running farms for themselves, and what is more, making them pay. May Hazlett, an English girl, who lived on a farm in the Touchwood hills, in Saskatchewan, for the past four years, looking after her stock and cultivating her land, is one of these. The farm was originally her brother's homestead, at which time Miss Hazlett was a stenographer. Her brother was killed while fighting with the Canadian forces at Vimy Ridge. Neighbors advised Miss Hazlett to sell the farm, but she decided that she was tired of the "eternal pounding" and became a farmerette.

Mrs. Mary J. Blackburn, a pioneer woman farmer of Alberta, has just added 160 acres to her farm near Hardisty. Coming from Eastern Canada, Mrs. Blackburn homesteaded a quarter section in 1902. She had two Holstein heifers, a bull, and $17 in cash. She lived in a tent the first summer and in a sod shack in the winter. Her first crop put her, as she tells the story, "on Easy street." In ten years she had a herd of 60 pure-bred Holstein cattle and was operating a prosperous dairy. A fine residence has supplanted the sod hut. "I milked my cows, raised my cattle, cut hay and stacked it all by myself," said Mrs. Blackburn. "I started on bare prairie with no money, and made good. I worked hard, but the experience was wonderful."

It has generally been conceded that farming is a man's job. It has long been considered that a woman's place on the farm was in the house, with a few attendant duties, looking after the chickens and the garden. But times are changing.

Demonstrative of the present feminine initiative, there are two young ladies farming extensively and with good profit too, in Western Canada. Some years ago a family located a 160-acre farm in the Oak Lake district, Manitoba. Later the father died, leaving his two daughters and aged wife a mortgaged quarter section. Instead of selling the effects and moving to town to take employment, the girls decided to work the place.

While the mother looked after the household duties the daughters did the farm work. They did the plowing, harrowing, seeding, haying, harvesting, stocking, feeding and other farm operations. Except at threshing time, the getting out of wood, the help of man was never sought. Instead of a 160-acre place, with seven horses and ten cattle, which they started with, they have a 1,120-acre farm, twenty-five head of heavy horses and nearly a hundred head of cattle, mostly pure-breds. Their farm buildings, equipment and well-kept fields would be objects of pride to the owners in any country.

Their accomplishment has not only been profitable but pleasant, and they have enjoyed every home advantage. They are two entertaining and bright girls, and have all the feminine charm of womanhood. Their manlike occupation has not given them a masculine character or appearance, as some of the older generations might imagine. Their gallant struggle for success signifies the truth in the oft-repeated maxim of Western Canada, "A little assistance and the soil, with its natural richness and God's sunshine will soon pay for the land itself."

If you wish to learn more of what Western Canada can do, write for a copy of "Canada West" which will be mailed to you free by your nearest Canadian government agent.—Advertisement.

An Athlete.

"Although you considerably outweigh your antagonist, you seem to have had the worst of the fight," said the sympathetic old gentleman.

"I was out of luck when I struck him," replied the man who was nursing a broken face. "Nobody told me he'd been playing for years in a jazz orchestra."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

TAKE ASPIRIN ONLY AS TOLD BY "BAYER"

"Bayer" Introduced Aspirin to the Physicians Over 21 Years Ago.

To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross." The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

No Place to Stay.

(Little Helen breaks in on her newly engaged sister and her beau.) [illegible]

[illegible]

SURVEY SHOWS DIFFERENCE IN COST OF TRACTOR AND HORSES

Horses Being Used to Prepare Seed Bed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cost of power on tractor farms in the winter wheat belt is somewhat greater than when horses are used for all the work, according to the results of a survey by the United States Department of Agriculture. A preliminary report just issued shows, however, that three-fourths of the tractor owners were of the opinion that their tractors were proving profitable.

This survey shows differences in the cost of power and labor due to the use of tractors, the work done with them, and the cost per acre for different operations both with horses and tractors. Some 354 tractor owners in northern Oklahoma, Kansas and southern Nebraska were visited and a complete record of all work done with tractors and horses during the year was obtained, together with statements concerning the farmers' opinions of the advantages and disadvantages of using tractors. The farms averaged about 500 acres in size, on which 352 acres of crops were grown in 1921, nearly three-fourths of the crop area being in wheat.

The cost of using tractors for drawbar work on these farms averaged $484 for the year, or $1.00 per hour. These farmers were keeping an average of 3.8 head of work stock in addition to their tractors and the cost per farm of keeping the work stock for the year was $541. Thus the total annual cost of power for drawbar work was $1,025. The tractors furnished the power for 40 per cent of the drawbar work.

Variations in Cost of Power.

There were great variations in the practices and costs on individual farms and the results indicate that often the cost of using the tractors and keeping the work stock was excessive for the amount of work done. Many tractor owners have not determined exactly what work they can use their tractors for most profitably and what should be done with horses.

Tractor Used for Disking.

The average cost per crop acre was $3.57 per year for drawbar power for all the farms. This cost ranged from $2.21 as the average for the fourth of the farms with lowest costs to $4.76 for the fourth of the farms with highest costs.

The tractors had been in use for 23 months on an average and the first cost had been $1,473, about one-third higher than the present price of tractors of the same size and type. During the year covered by the investigation the cost of fuel and oil was also somewhat higher than at present. On account of these lower prices it is estimated that the present cost of operating tractors purchased at current prices would be something like 25 per cent below the 1921 cost on these farms.

Tractors Reduce Horses and Labor.

The effect of the addition of the tractor to the farm equipment was shown in changes recorded after the purchase of the tractor. On an average, these farms had been increased by 30 crop acres and there had been a reduction of 1.4 [illegible] [illegible] been displaced and the value of the family and hired labor saved.

Had all the surplus horses been sold there would have been a further reduction of about $115 per farm in the cost of horse labor. On many of the farms there had been a reduction of feed for work stock due to the use of the tractor, and if this had been taken into account a further saving of about $47 per farm would have been shown.

The analysis of the cost per acre of power and man labor for different operations when done with tractors and horses gave the following averages:

Plowing spring and fall with tractors	$1.00 per acre
Plowing spring and fall with horses	1.38 per acre
Listing with tractors	1.10 per acre
Listing with horses	1.06 per acre
Disking (tandem disk) with tractors	.91 per acre
Disking (tandem disk) with horses	1.05 per acre
Drilling with tractors	.66 per acre
Drilling with horses	.53 per acre
Drawing binder with tractors	.87 per acre
Drawing binder with horses	.96 per acre

Cost of Power on Horse Farms.

A group of 85 farms where tractors were not owned, but comparable in size to those where tractors were used, were surveyed in order to obtain a direct comparison between costs on farms where tractors are owned and costs on farms of similar size and type where tractors are not owned. There was an average of 10.5 head of work stock on these farms, of which 10.1 head were needed for the work. One horse was needed for each 38 crop acres while the tractor owners were keeping one for each 42 crop acres and needed, in addition to their tractors, only one for each 54 crop acres.

The cost per head of keeping the work stock was $66 per year where tractors were not owned and $64 where they were owned. The horses worked 482 hours per head on the tractor farms and 624 hours on the other farms. The cost per farm of power for drawbar work where tractors were not used was $701 as compared with $1,025 where both tractors and horses were used.

What Farmers Think of Tractors.

The owners' opinions regarding the use of tractors showed that 75 per cent of the farmers interviewed believed that their tractors would be profitable investments, and 72 per cent of them intended to buy others when needed. The principal advantages mentioned were the ability to do more work in a given time, and the saving of horses in hot weather. Among the disadvantages, the first cost and depreciation and the running expenses were mentioned most frequently. The tractor was used as the primary source of power for field work by 59 per cent of the owners, while 41 per cent used the tractors as supplementary to horses. In 21 per cent of the cases the tractor owners believed that the tractors had been responsible for some increased yield per acre.

BARLEY BEING USED FOR FEEDING SWINE

Its Use for Brewing Purposes Has Fallen Off.

Department of Agriculture Takes Up Problem of Finding Relative Value of Light and Heavy Grades—It Is Cheap Crop.

Barley as a hog feed is coming on the markets in increasing amounts, probably for the reasons that its use for brewing purposes has fallen off and [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School 'Lesson'

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MAY 21

HILKIAH'S GREAT DISCOVERY

LESSON TEXT.—II Chron. 34:14-33.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Ps. 119:105.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Deut. 6:6-9; Josh. 1:8; Col. 3:16; II Tim. 2:15; 3:14-16.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—How the Lost Bible Was Found.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Hilkiah Discovers the Lost Bible.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—How to Make the Bible Our Own.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Authority and Influence of the Bible.

About a hundred years elapsed between the reformation under Hezekiah and that of Josiah. Some time during this time the book of God's law had been lost. Two wicked kings had reigned in this interval. The Lord had given Hezekiah much wealth. His son Manasseh, coming into possession of his father's property, and being ungodly, would naturally neglect the Bible, if not purposely try to put it from sight. Those who do not obey the law of God, are usually interested in putting it out of sight.

I. The Book of the Law Found (vv. 14-17).

1. The Occasion (v. 14). It was while repairing the temple during Josiah's reformation that the law was discovered.

2. The Book Delivered to the King (vv. 15-17). Upon making a report to the king of work done, the king was told of the finding of the book of the law by Hilkiah, and the book delivered to him.

II. The Effect of the Reading of the Law (vv. 18-28).

Shaphan the Scribe read the law before the king.

1. The King Rent His Clothes (v. 19). As the law was read before him he was led to realize more seriously the awful extent of the nation's departure from God. He knew that sin merited punishment. The function of the law is to reveal sin. The man who will honestly hear the demands of God's law will fall upon his knees before God and cry for mercy. The rending of the royal robes indicated that the king was penitently sorrowful.

2. The King Sent a Deputation to Make Inquiry of the Lord (vv. 20, 21). The king included himself in the guilt before God. "Go inquire for me and for them that are left, for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us." His sense of sin was so keen that he sent them to inquire as to whether there was any means of averting the judgments of the Lord. Instinctively the human heart turns from God's threatening judgments to a means of escape. The soul that sorrows for sin inquires for a way of escape. The law prepares for the gospel. The law is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ. The soul under condemnation inquires, "What must I do to be saved?"

3. The Message of Huldah, the Prophetess (vv. 22-28). (1) Confirmation of what the law said (vv. 22-25). She said that all the curses written in the law must fall, for the sins had been so flagrant that God's wrath could not be restrained. Destruction was hanging over Jerusalem and it was too late to avert it. It was not too late to repent to obtain mercy from God, but the outward consequence of sin must be realized. This finds fulfillment on every hand today. The murderer must hang. His soul may go directly to heaven, provided he has accepted Jesus Christ. (2) Acceptance of Josiah's repentance (vv. 26-28). Because of his tenderness of heart and deep penitence, the Lord said he should be gathered to his grave in peace, and should not see all the evil to be brought on Jerusalem and its people. What Huldah said was true even though Josiah died in battle (35: 23-25). When God accepts a man and forgives him, his death is a peaceful one even though it may be on the battlefield. God's presence is with him and he thus will go straight to the heavenly home.

III. The Law Obeyed (vv. 29-33).

1. The King Read the Law (vv. 29, 30). He gathered together the inhabitants of Jerusalem, including the priests, Levites and elders, and read unto them the law.

2. The King Made a Covenant Before the Lord to Keep His Commandments and Testimonies (vv. 31, 32). This was done sincerely—with all his heart and soul. He caused all that were present to stand to it.

3. The king took away all the [illegible] out of all the countries [illegible] to Israel (v. 33). All [illegible] they departed not from following after the Lord.

[illegible]

Genuine

BAYER

Aspirin

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Headache Colds Rheumatism
Toothache Neuralgia Neuritis
Earache Lumbago Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Foolish and Untimely.

"Mary," said Mrs. Gadder to her maid, "who was that man at the door just now?"

"I don't know, ma'am, whether he was an agent or a preacher. He said he had a message for you from the hereafter and wanted to know if you were thinking about your immortal soul."

"Dear me," exclaimed Mrs. Gadder. "What a foolish question to ask a woman who is packing her trunks for a trip to Palm Beach!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

A Bad Combination.

Trollope—I know a combination which you may always take it for granted is bent on mischief.

Needham—What combination is that?

Trollope—A small boy and a pin.

Smiles being sunshine, frowns are cloudy weather.

One Last Request.

They were sitting close together and suddenly, unable to resist the temptation, he kissed her. She was furious.

"Leave me; I never want to see you again!" she shrilled. "You are no gentleman to take advantage of a poor girl that way. Leave me, I say; leave me at once! After this I do not know you."

"All right," he agreed meekly, "but before I go may I beg one last favor of you? I shall never see you again. Will you grant it for old times' sake?"

Her just rage abated a trifle.

"If it is not too much I will try."

Then, with a pleading look in his eyes, he begged:

"Darling, before I go won't you please take your arm from around my neck?"—American Legion Weekly.

Modest merit may be recognized, but it takes longer.

You'll Get A Year's Wear or more, when you buy Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS

No rubber to rot. Phosphor Bronze Springs give the stretch. Ask Your Dealer for Nu-Way Suspenders, Garters and Hose Supporters. If he hasn't them, send direct, giving dealer's name. Every pair guaranteed.

Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

YOU CAN color your hair easily, quickly and safely by using Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. Safe to use as water. Makes you look young again. At all good druggists, 75 cents, or direct from HESSIG-ELLIS, Chemists, Memphis, Tenn.

MORE MONEY

Special improved, time-saving home study. Become DOCTOR OF CHIROPRACTIC; new methods of instruction, correspondence or residence school. SUCCESS awaits our students.

CENTRAL SCIENTIFIC COLLEGE,
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

*111 one-eleven cigarettes

TURKISH
VIRGINIA
BURLEY

Three Friendly Gentlemen

10¢

Guaranteed by The American Tobacco Co. INCORPORATED

*111 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK CITY

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands of home seekers and their families [illegible]

[illegible]

New Officers Named for DeKalb County Bankers

At a meeting of the DeKalb County Bankers' association held Wednesday at the Commercial club, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, William Curie, of St. Joe; vice-president, A. W. Gallatin, of Garrett; secretary, Frank Brandon, of Auburn; and treasurer, Willis Rhoads of Auburn.

At the close of the business session, the bankers enjoyed a chicken dinner at the American cafe.

St. Joe Locals

Patronize the Advertisers.

Miss Louetta Daily spent Monday night and Tuesday with Hicksville friends.

Fred Randall and family, of Harlan, spent Sunday afternoon with Wm. Randall and wife.

Mrs. Vernon Wilmot, of Spencerville, is a guest in the Charles Tustison home, this week.

FOR SALE—6 H. P. I. H. C. gas engine, mounted on steel truck. Price reasonable. See Ray Farver, Spencerville.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway and Mrs. Ida Woodcox are in Indianapolis, this week, attending Grand Lodge of the Order of Rebekahs.

Mrs. Lillie Jones, who has been confined to the Lutheran Hospital for five weeks will visit with Mrs. John Fetters, her sister, a few days before going to her home.

About 600 members and visitors were in attendance at the banquet of the Auburn Commercial Club, Monday evening, at Auburn. The visitors were greatly pleased with the community spirit shown in the club.

A get-together meeting of the DeKalb County Churches of Christ will be held in Auburn, on Wednesday, May 24th. Two or more delegates from each church are expected, but a cordial invitation is extended to any member who may wish to attend. This is a preliminary meeting to make arrangements for a county-wide evangelistic campaign.

The renomination of Louis W. Fairfield in the Twelfth district to succeed himself was received with genuine pleasure by the many devoted friends of the gentleman in Washington. Mr. Fairfield has won many friends in this city during his tenure of office in the House, and especially among the permanent residents, for he has taken a personal interest in their welfare.

Charles Koch entertained Sunday: Stanley Koch and wife, of Huntington; and Joseph Koch and LaVerne Rhodes of Spencerville.

James Rhodenbaugh and wife, and Miss Susan Sechler will go to Marion the latter part of the week to visit relatives for a few days.

Dr. John W. Morr, of Albion, is taking treatments at a Ft. Wayne hospital for a skin disease similiar to boils about the head and nose.

F. R Bowman, E. R. Kinsey, Ed Leighty and Fred Jenkins attended the banquet given at the Commercia Club Rooms at Auburn, Monday night.

Butler—The DeKalb County Sunday School Association will hold its annual convention in Butler this year in the U. B. Church on Monday and Tuesday, May 22 and 23. A splendid program has been prepared and a state speaker has a part in every session. E. T. Albertson, of Indianapolis, the general secretary for the state of Indiana, will be here for every session. Wayne G. Miller, also of Indianapolis, superintendent of the young people's division, is also to be here for the entire session. Mrs. Phoebe A. Curtis, of Chicago, for years on the faculty of the International Sunday School Training School and author of many children's books, will be here. J. E. Sturgis, manager of the music department of the Standard Publishing Co., will have charge of the singing.

Lee O. Tustison, wife and son Keith, of Defiance; and Earl Tustison, wife and daughter Irma, of Hicksville; were Sunday afternoon guests of the gentlemen's parents, Charles Tustison and wife. Mrs. Lee Tustison and son remained over until Monday evening when her husband joined her at the Wm. Hamilton home where they were supper guests.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Union	278	25.00
M. E. Spencer	105
Lutheran	94	4.20
Newville U. B.	112	10.33
Christian
Coburntown	94	3 51
Concord	49	2 26
Rehoboth	83	4 75
Mt. Pleasant	140	6.29

LAXATIVE
for Aged
People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Newville Couple Married Friday

The following will offer explanation for the fact that Miss Shultz would not contract to return to St. Joe to teach in the public schools.

"Paul Rex, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm Rex of Newville, and Venus O. Shultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shultz, of Butler, were united in marriage at the St. Mark's Lutheran parsonage in Auburn, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. S. E. Slater performed the ceremony. The groom is a merchant at Newville and the young people will make that place their future home."

A Great Purchase and Special Sale of Men's and Young Men's

SUITS

Marked at prices that give you the most wonderful clothing values ever offered

Not a suit in the entire lot made to retail for less than $30 and up to $55, but we have taken the entire purchase and marked them

$18 $25 $35

EVERY SUIT A NEW SPRING STYLE—HUNDREDS OF FANCY AND MANY STAPLE PATTERNS

There's a size, a style and a model for the young man that wears from a size 32 to the man that wears a 50 long stout. Hundreds of sport models for the young men and men in every good, new style. Regulars, stouts, stubs, longs, short stouts, long stouts—we can fit you.

PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MAY

Cash In Hand

Has a knack of melting away for little things that you would not buy if you had to draw a check to pay for them.

Cash In This Bank

Has a knack of growing because of the discouragement of small unnecssary spendings. Open an account here and you'll save money in spite of yourself.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

I am reopening the DeKalb TANKAGE PLANT AT Auburn Junction and ask that all farmers having dead stock, please notify me by telephone, reversing the charges.

Phone 180

G. Becker, Jr.

SPENCERVILLE

Joseph Gorden, wife and children of Garrett, spent Sunday with the her sister, Mrs. Frank Balts and husband.

Frank Wertman and wife Sundayed at the home of Chas. Gibbons'.

Mrs. Mary Hawk, of Akron, O., came last week to spend a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. J. D. Sommers.

Miss Bina Zimmerman, who is a student of the Tri-State College of Angola, spent the week-end with her parents here.

About 15 members of the M. E. Sunday School met Monday night at the parsonage and organised an orchestra.

Mrs. Hattie Beams was taken last week to the Lakeside hospital at Cleveland where she is improving.

Roy Moor, of Lansing, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craiger, of Butler, were Snnday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charler McCrory.

Mrs. Glenn Glock, Walter Fredrick and Miss Edith Glock, of Roanoke; Edward Fredricks and family, of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests at the home of Joel Betz and wife.

The Recent Windstorms

hereabout prompt us to suggest the importance of Windstorm Insurance.

You can fight fire; you can build upon a hill, out of reach of a flood; but a little puff of wind will show us all up. We are puny little things, after all, when a hurricane comes along.

A windstorm policy will not keep the wind [illegible]

Spencer's Lumber Co.

Miss Ada Bowser, who spent the past week at the home of her cousin, Mrs. J. A. Waters, returned home, Sunday.

Harvey Beam and wife, Mrs. Nancy Rummel, Rilla Beam and Louis Hutchison visited Wm Timbrook and family, of near Hicksville, Sunday.

On Friday evening, Rev. Walfred Lindstrom, of Pleasant Lake, will deliver one of his new lectures entitled "The Spirit of America." There will be special music.

"I have sold over 2,000 bottles of Tanlac and have never had a dissatisfied customer," writes Smiser's Drug Store, Columbia, Tenn. B. S. Sheffer.

The following guests were entertained Sunday to dinner by Ray Farver and family:—J. L. Farver and daughter Zella, Floyd Farver and family, Harold Farver, Earl Stiman and family, and Sam Potts and family; and the afternoon guests were Mrs. Elisabeth Bishop, of Auburn; Edward Conkel and family, of Garrett; E J. Armstrong and wife, Wesley Zimmerman and family, Audry Smith and family and Clarence White.

NEWVILLE

Robert Wyatt and wife were Newville visitors, Sunday.

Guy Smith was at home from Ft. Wayne over Sunday.

The Rev. Hubbart and family are entertaining his mother.

Byron Miller and Howard Smith have employment with the B. & O. R. R., at Willard, Ohio.

John Miller's residence was re-roofed, last week. Also John Gillingham's residence and barn recently.

Mrs. M. Della Moots, of Sherwood, will lecture on Law Enforcement at the U. B. Church at Newville, Sunday evening, May 21.

Mother's Day was observed at both churches, Sunday, with good songs, recitations and readings. A good crowd attended both places.

Mesdames Vera Miller and Geneva Sechler were Butler visitors, Monday, and Hicksville visitors, Tuesday.

Mrs. Mino Brinenger and three children, and her brother, Paul Smith, and his boy friend, all of Lansing, Mich., were recently the over Sunday guests of Omo Richmond and wife.

Memorial Services will be held May 30th., at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Denham, of Edgerton, delivers the sermon at the Christian Church, Sunday evening, May 28; and Rev. Hubbartt will preach the Decoration sermon at the U. B. church. A good program will be arranged.

CONCORD

The new babies and mothers are doing fine.

George Johnson and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mike Wagner.

We understand, Jerry Douglas has gone to Logansport where he has accepted a job.

Lloyd Draggoo and family spent Sunday with Kent Provines and wife.

Vernon Culbertson and wife are the proud parents of a baby boy, which came to their home Sunday night.

Mrs. Sarah Widney returned home recently from Michigan where she has been visiting two weeks.

[illegible] Jackson and wife, of near [illegible] Jackson, wife and [illegible] Jackson [illegible] Jackson and [illegible] of St. Joe.

Another Chance May 20

[illegible]

Buy NOW -Pay as you RIDE

R. & L. Plan of Time Payments Enables You to Spread the Purchase Price of Your FORD Over a Whole Year and to Get Delivery with First Payment.

You can get dividends of pleasure out of A FORD CAR for your family. You know that as well as we do, but maybe you feel—as many other good business men do—that this is not a time to tie up a considerable sum of cash money where it won't bring in a cash return.

That's why we have made arrangements to give our customers the benefit of the R. & L. Plan—backed by a great Chicago financial house of unlimited resources and great business experience.

On the R. & L. Plan you can buy a Ford without tying up any great sum of cash at all and you can pay for it—by the month—for the year—in installments that are so small that you will not notice them.

Let us give you full particulars at once. See us at your first available opportunity, or let us send a representative to see you.

You can buy Ford Commercial Cars on the R. & L. Plan, too! Over 50% of the Cars Built To-day are sold on Time.

The Sign on the Windows of Live Ford Dealers Everywhere is a Seal Lock, reading "BUY YOUR FORD CAR — R. & L. Plan — $1 A DAY" and an attached Key, reading "Small Payment Down — Unlock The Door To Opportunity."

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

FRANK W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R [illegible], D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL

SPENCERVILLE, - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W [illegible] D V M

ST. JOE NEWS.

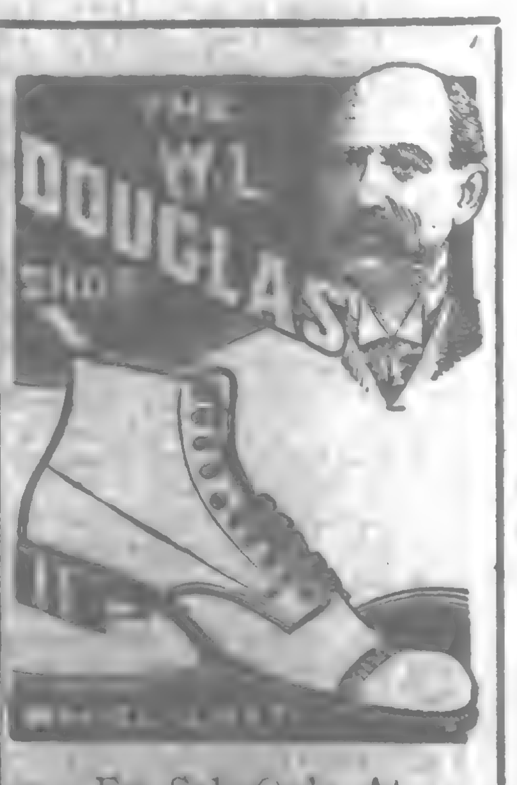
Wm. Randall and wife, and Mrs. Derwood Ridgway were Hicksville visitors, Monday forenoon.

The Lutheran Sunday School and church services will be held in the High School auditorium, next Sunday. The church is being redecorated.

Dr. C. S. Johnson attended the Young Peoples Convention at Indianapolis from Thursday night until Monday night. This week he is on business at Pittsburgh, Pa., to return Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Skilling, of Baltimore, Md., came Friday, and Mrs. Harry Henderson and son came Saturday, called here by the serious illness of the ladies' father, [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. [illegible] entertained in their home Sunday, [illegible] Miss [illegible] and Mr. [illegible], of [illegible] and [illegible], Iris [illegible] Benning- [illegible] and Mr. Mo- [illegible]



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE

For Sale Only At

Chaneys'

Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Patronize the advertisers.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MAY

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

—11—

Shaking off her superstitious terror, Evelyn touched the prostrate man. Perhaps he was dead; and out of somewhere a thought shot into her mind that if he were, her troubles were over.

"I don't know," she whispered. "But he looks so!"

Pollyop shoved Evelyn aside and slipped her arm under Bennett's head. She seemed to have lost all aversion to him. She realized then only that a human being was suffering, perhaps dead. At her tender touch the man's eyes flew open; and, panic-stricken, Pollyop withdrew her arm and was back beside the other girl before she spoke.

"He's got life in him, Miss Eve," she chattered between her teeth. "Look at his eyes! God, ain't it awful!"

Quietly Oscar lay gazing at the girls as they stared at him. Polly was the first to go to him.

"Feel awful sick, eh, Oscar?" she asked in a low tone.

The man did not answer even by a movement of his lids.

"He can't talk," she went on, looking around at Evelyn. "He ought to have a doctor. Can't you go up to the boulevard an' get Doc Bacon?"

A fresh burst of tears so choked Evelyn Robertson that for a space she could not answer.

"No, I can't go out in this awful storm again," she finally replied. "Of course, I can't," she repeated, swallowing. "I'm afraid. I won't go! I won't take a step. If any one goes—"

"Then stay by him," interjected Polly, dully, "an' I'll go!"

Ashamed to declare that she was afraid to be left alone with Oscar, Evelyn watched Pollyop as she went out and softly closed the door behind her.

Polly Hopkins lingered several moments to accustom her eyes to the night's blackness. Beyond to the east Lake Cayuga rushed on toward Ithaca as if its intentions were to swallow the little town in one huge mouthful. Pollyop crooned over mechanically words which fell hourly from Granny Hope.

"Ask an' it shall be given thee," she whispered. "Then if that's so, let me get some one to help Oscar!"

Through the clatter of the elements she heard the sound of footsteps off in the dark road. An answer to her prayer was about to step out of the night gloom. She hoped it was Larry Bishop or Lye Braeger. Opening her lips, she gave the weird, crying, squatter-call of the Storm country; and a voice that clutched at her heart answered her.

Then, by the next flash of jagged lightning, she saw Robert Percival coming toward her.

"Is that you, Polly?" he called. "What's the matter?"

"Yep," she faltered timidly. "I got some one sick in the shanty."

Of all the people she had expected to see, he was the last. As she waited for him to approach, Pollyop's active mind grasped the fact that now Robert would know what his cousin had done. She saw no way to keep him in ignorance of Evelyn's relation to Oscar, and she was too excited to think of an excuse to keep him outside.

"Pollyop," commenced Robert, "I had to see you if only for a few minutes. Wait a second before you go in."

Confused and agitated, the girl did not stir a step until he was bending over her. One arm went around her shoulders, one tender hand pressed her head against his breast.

"Daddy's gone!" she choked almost inaudibly. "They've took him to Auburn, huh?"

"Yes, dear child," answered Robert, his own throat full with emotion. "But what I came to tell you is this, dear. I've already set things moving to bring him back. I couldn't sleep tonight until I saw you."

A long shudder ran the length of Polly's body; her legs grew so weak she would have fallen but for the strong arms holding her up.

"I want him awful bad," came up in a breath to the pale young man.

"And I say, Polly dear, that he's coming home," repeated Robert, "and every day I want you to expect him. Will you trust me, darling?"

He had asked her that question once, but that was before Old Marc had railroaded Daddy Hopkins to Auburn.

"Will you, Pollyop?" urged Robert passionately, lifting her face and laying his warm lips on hers.

[illegible]

engaged his hands and had lifted the latch.

Trembling from head to foot, Pollyop followed him into the hut.

When Robert caught sight of his pale cousin, he stopped short.

"You're not ill, Eve, dear?" he cried, going to her quickly. "Polly said some one was sick here."

He glanced around the shanty. A throb of happiness made his pulses beat faster. "The Greatest Mother in the World" still held her place on the wall. While he was contemplating the wonder of the picture, his thoughts went back to the day he had given it to his Littlest Mother in the World. Billy-goat Hopkins mousing in the wood-box brought his thoughts back, but not soon enough to catch the meaning glance that Evelyn shot at the squatter girl, who was gazing steadily at her. With a fling of contempt Miss Robertson walked to him and laid her hand on his arm.

"No, I'm not the least sick, Bob, but—but just now—" she hesitated, then continued hurriedly: "There's a little boy here; and I often bring him food and candy. When I got here," she whirled around and flung her hand toward the cot, "this man was so terribly sick that I told Polly Hopkins she ought to get a doctor. Naturally, I consented to stay until some one else came, but I never expected—you!"

The explanation brought a groan from Pollyop.

Slowly Robert drew his gaze from Oscar's pallid countenance and turned to her. He looked so shocked and hurt that she impulsively moved toward him.

"How'd he come here?" Robert exclaimed, going to the bedside. "Why, it's Bennett! What's he doing here?"

So passionate were his tones, so full of that demanding quality that Evelyn, fearing Pollyop would tell the truth, again caught hold of him.

"He's in love with Polly Hopkins, Bob," she offered, trying to speak calmly, "and really it's none of our business. Is it? But I do think he ought to have a doctor."

Robert staggered back, flashing a glance at the squatter girl which seemed to burn her through and through.

"Are you married to him?" he demanded of her.

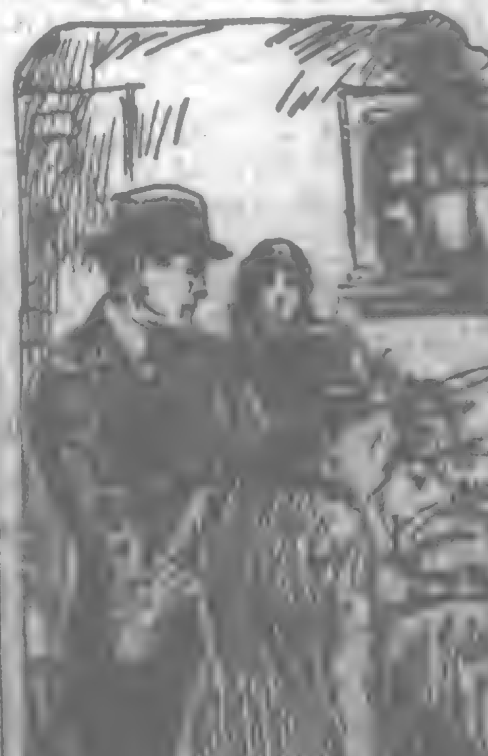
Her pale lips framed the single word, "No."

"Then how in God's name came he here in your—"

Two strides brought him so close that Polly felt his hot breath against her cold face. She cried out in anguish and started to speak; but Evelyn broke in upon her in frantic haste.

"Now listen to me, Bob," she insisted. "You are very unkind! What's happened here is none of your business nor mine! Every squatter woman has a man, and you can't expect Polly Hopkins to be an exception. All you can do is to get a doctor."

Robert passed his hand over his face. He looked dazedly from Pollyop,



"All Right," He Replied Gruffly.

so silent and pale, to the man so horribly still on the cot.

"All right," he replied gruffly. "Come on. This is no [illegible]"

[illegible]

ed that she should trust him, yet at the very first trial of his faith, he had flung away and left her alone.

Blinded by tears, she felt her way to the cot. Bennett lay in the same position, his wide-open eyes holding an expression of horror.

"She's got a lily liver all right, Oscar," Polly hissed through her teeth. "Did you hear all what she said?"

Such is the power of habit over a nature like the squatter girl's that Robert faded from her mind, and Oscar Bennett, suffering and dying, absorbed her whole attention.

"Can't you hear anything, Oscar?" she questioned. "Listen, mebbe you'll get well. If you do, take your old mammy an' get out quick. Eve ain't worth one of your toe nails. You've been a mean duffer, Oscar, but you're too d—n good for her. God, but she were a wicked woman, wasn't she, huh?"

Not a move of the heavy head on the pillow gave evidence that she had been heard.

She was still standing by Bennett's side when, without knocking, Robert opened the door and came in, followed by the doctor. Polly recognized the stranger instantly as the medical man who lived a short distance down the boulevard. In anxious inquiry she glanced at Percival.

Observing that she had been weeping, his anger flared again. It never occurred to him that his own cruelty had drawn the tears from her eyes. There was the huge farmer stretched out on the bed; and the squatter girl crying beside him! She was mourning over the stricken man! Robert frowned; and hopelessly, in silence, Polly moved aside to give the doctor the space she had occupied.

After a hasty examination of the patient, Doctor Bacon turned to Polly Hopkins.

"Something struck him," he said shortly. "You've been quarreling with him, eh, girl? What did you hit him with?"

Accusation rang against her not only in the speaker's tones but in Robert's inarticulate cry.

"Why did you strike him, Polly Hopkins?" he demanded hoarsely. "Did you? Speak! Did you?"

That he should believe such things of her crushed her completely. Her head fell forward, but not until Robert spoke again harshly did she answer.

"Nope," she breathed. Her tongue felt as if it were covered with ashes. "Nope, I didn't hit him!"

That was all she said. She looked up at him pleadingly through her thick lashes. Perhaps he did not really believe her guilty. Yes, he did! He was still fixing upon her that accusatory gaze.

"He'd better be moved out of this hole," observed the doctor, looking around, "but it's an awful night." He considered a moment and then added: "I'll telephone to Ithaca for an ambulance."

Sternly he directed a look of disgust at Polly. He hated attending the squatters anyway, and never would have consented to enter the Silent City if Robert Percival had not come for him.

Aghast at the horror of the emergency, Pollyop seemed not to notice the physician's contempt.

"Is he goin' to die, mister?" she queried plaintively.

"I don't know," he replied in gruff indecision, as he prepared a draught.

When everything within human power had been done for Oscar Bennett, Robert allowed the doctor to pass out of the hut before him. Then, like a shot, he turned back to Polly's side. His eyes blazed with jealousy; and quickly it crossed her mind that he was going to strike her. Oh! How she wished he would and then take back all the cruel words he had hurled at her!

"When you said you loved me, you lied," he gritted savagely. "You knew all the time you had him. You let me kiss you! You said love was the greatest thing in the world!—Oh, God! How I wish I could hate you!"

Polly [illegible], neither could she move. [illegible] lay in [illegible] been [illegible]

[illegible]

"Trust me!" she gasped. "Please trust me."

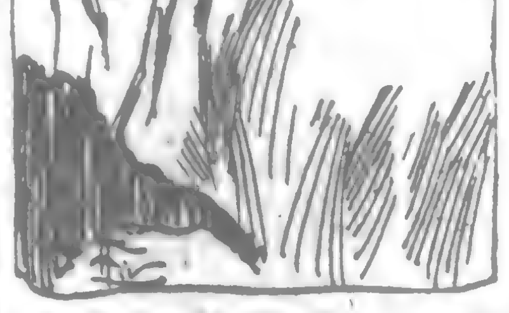
A contemptuous laugh fell from him.

"Trust you?" he grated. "That I will not! I'll never trust you again. But you're mine just the same. Do you hear? You belong to me. But after this I'll watch every step you take and—and—"

He almost crushed her into unconsciousness, and she hung in his arms a fragile, beaten thing, too tired to cry out, too weak to plead.

Then, all of a sudden, Robert loosened his hold upon her, strode to the door and, without a backward glance, opened it and was gone.

For a long time after he had left the hut, prone upon the rough shanty boards, she strained her eyes at the door, as if a ghost had just passed through it.



Large Drops Appeared on Bennett's Brow; and Granny Hope Lifted One Withered Hand and Brushed Them Away.

Granny Hope's voice called her name; and she came limping out of her room on her stick.

"I heard a lot of folks talkin', Pollyop," she said, "an' I got awful pains tonight. It's the storm, I guess."

Almost exhausted, Pollyop forced herself to stand up.

"You hadn't ought to be out of bed, Granny," she remonstrated. "Yep, I guess it's the rain what makes you ache."

Then Mrs. Hope noticed Bennett. His eyes gazed at her a moment and then moved back to Polly.

The old woman hobbled to the cot, and Polly came to her side silently.

"He's awful sick, I guess, ain't he?" observed Mrs. Hope, looking up into the girl's face.

"Yep!" The affirmative was but a breath.

"Goin' to die, huh?" whispered the other.

A deep sob rose to the girl's lips, brought almost to utterance by her intense suffering.

"Mebbe!" was all she could say.

"Poor man," the woman muttered, wrinkling up her face. "Dyin's awful hard thing for some folks."

A startled expression, smoothing away some of the hard lines, spread over Oscar's face. In the presence of death, which every squatter held in superstitious awe, Polly dropped down upon her knees beside the bed. Her own hurt had been overcome by the desire to help him if she could. And there, while the rain dashed its fury into the [illegible] and the wind shook the shanty, the three kept quiet vigil.

Large drops appeared on Bennett's brow; and Granny Hope lifted one withered hand and brushed them away.

"Love's [illegible] over weary places, big dear," she [illegible]. "It's all powerful, love is [illegible]"

Oscar's [illegible] lost something of the [illegible] had shown, as if he [illegible] comforted. Then [illegible] that look that [illegible] any man.

"An' [illegible] help you, too, honey," Granny Hope went on again [illegible]

[illegible]

ROAD BUILDING

LOCAL ROADS FOR LONG HAUL

Highways Now Being Improved Should Be Designed to Care for Increase in Traffic.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States is now in a period of great highway development, and in a few years many roads, which now carry only local traffic originating largely within five or ten miles of the road, will be carrying a large percentage of through traffic, much of it coming from outside the state. This is the opinion of officials of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, based upon the report of two traffic censuses taken by the bureau in co-operation with the state highway department of Connecticut.

The roads selected were part of a fairly complete system of highways. The first census showed an average of 2,907 passenger cars and 281 trucks passing the recording station a day; and the second, 3,832 cars and 511 trucks. Forty-seven per cent of the cars came from within the state. Drivers were questioned as to length of travel for the day, and results showed average figures of 70 miles and 52.4 miles for the two censuses.

The average haul for truck traffic was 47.5 miles, some of them hauling a distance of 250 miles. Officials point out that traffic of this nature has developed in a period of something like ten years on a road which prior to 1910 carried almost entirely local traffic. It must be concluded, therefore, they say, that roads which are now being improved to form part of through highway routes should be designed to take care of a great deal more than the local traffic or that which is expected to originate locally with the coming of better roads.

A Federal-Aid Gravel Road.

MORE WAR EQUIPMENT READY

Large Amount of Lumber and Other Material Made Available for Road Construction.

Five million board feet of lumber and $220,000 worth of other surplus war material, consisting of steam and gas engines and machine-shop equipment, all unused, recently was made available to state highway departments for road construction. The material is to be distributed by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, as were large quantities which were helpful to many states in road building last season. Most of the lumber was intended by the army for the construction of a pier at Charleston, S. C., and is suitable for highway bridges. The machinery and equipment are stored as ordnance supplies at the Picatinny arsenal, Dover, Del. This material is particularly in demand and an allotment has been requested by each of the 48 states.

FRENCH ROADS BROKE

Some persons have pointed to the macadam roads of France as the type of roads that America should adopt. Yet these persons have, perhaps, not thoroughly investigated present conditions. These roads, which have been a matter of pride to France for centuries, are all maintained by patrolmen. Each man devotes his time the year around to the keeping up of a few hundred yards of roadway. But, even so, these roads went to pieces when heavy traffic was put on them during the war. These roads were built for horse and foot [illegible] motor lorries [illegible] up these roads [illegible]

[illegible]

MRS. HATFIELD
SABINA, OHIO

In Pitiable Condition when she Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. I now feel fine and can do my housework without any trouble at all. You can use this letter for the sake of others if you wish."—Mrs. WELDON G. HATFIELD, R. R. 3, Sabina, Ohio.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble. Give it a fair trial. It surely helped Mrs. Hatfield, just as it has many, many other women.

SPOHN'S
DISTEMPER
COMPOUND

is endorsed by horsemen universally for Distemper, Influenza, Pink Eye, Cough or Cold among horses and mules. Excellent as a preventive. Equally good for Dog Distemper and Chicken Cholera.

Write for Free Booklet

Sold in two sizes at all drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO. GOSHEN, IND. U.S.A.

WATCH
THE BIG 4

Stomach-Kidneys-Heart-Liver

Keep the vital organs healthy by regularly taking the world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for centuries and endorsed by Queen Wilhelmina. At all druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Christmas as a Name.

There are 25 persons whose name is Christmas in the present London directory. "Their callings," he says, "vary from a stained-glass artist to a furniture broker." There have been some quite notable people whose name was Christmas. A Mr. Christmas was master carver in the navy in the time of Charles I and evidently had great privileges, even to the extent of impressing men for service on the ships. Then there was a Henry Christmas, for some years lecturer at St. Peter's, Cornhill; and a Miss Jane Christmas, a well-known author and zealous Protestant propagandist in the middle of the Nineteenth century.

As a rule when a man begins to look for trouble he overestimates his capacity.

Impertinence makes dignity throw up higher fortifications.

Why She Changed:

"I have always used the cheaper baking powders, supposing them just as good as Royal but I invested in a can of Royal Baking Powder and now find all my baking so much improved that I will use no other kind."

[illegible] L. L. S.

ROYAL
Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

Contains No Alum
Leaves No Bitter Taste

MAY

HAD TO STAY IN BED FOR WEEKS

Omaha Citizen Says He Is Now Rid of Troubles That Had Kept Him Miserable for Years.

"I was almost out of commission when I began taking Tanlac, but it has made me feel like a new man in a short time," said W. S. Meadville, 7604 North Twenty-ninth St., Omaha, Neb.

"My liver and kidneys were out of order and I had terrible pains in my back and sides and was so bad off I often had to stay in bed for two weeks at a time.

"The results I got from Tanlac were a very glad surprise to me. It benefited me in every way and I believe the improvement I received will prove lasting and I feel stronger and better than in many a day."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Headlines.

Sir Philip Gibbs, the art connoisseur, recently told a group of Chicagoans about the editor of a small paper who had the village carpenter make type large enough to tell of a village scandal. "Great show we made yesterday," he told the publisher of the paper after it was all over. "Yes," said the publisher quietly, "but I always thought we'd save something like that for the second coming of the Lord."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Are Men So Fickle?

Women members of the Republican county committee were discussing Assemblyman Steinberg's bill providing that no marriages should be performed until thirty-six hours after the issue of the license. Miss Mary Wood, prominent in politics, opposed the measure. "It gives a man too great a chance to change his mind," she said.—New York Herald.

Cuticura for Sore Hands.

Soak hands on retiring in the hot suds of Cuticura Soap, dry and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Remove surplus Ointment with tissue paper. This is only one of the things Cuticura will do if Soap, Ointment and Talcum are used for all toilet purposes.—Advertisement.

In Dry U. S. A.?

First Student—Teacher, if two parts of hydrogen and one part of oxygen form water, why isn't water inflammable?

Second Student—Because it's wet.—Science and Invention.

Nothing so stimulates industry as a healthy appetite.

Growing Old Too Soon?

Are you one of those unfortunate folks who finds yourself feeling older than you should? Do you feel lame and stiff mornings; drag through the day with a constantly aching back? Evening find you utterly worn-out? Then look to your kidneys. Present day life puts a heavy burden on the kidneys. They slow up and poisons accumulate and upset blood and nerves. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Ohio Case

H. L. Pitsinger, blacksmith, 428 High St., Eaton, O., says: "When I stooped I had sharp stabs of pain through my back and when I straightened quickly, my back cramped so I could hardly move. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly, so at night I had to get up several times. Friends praised Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got some. Doan's relieved me of all the pains and regulated my kidneys."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUF[illegible] N. Y.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

NR

TONIGHT

Tomorrow Alright

[illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Washington, D. C.—Among the 55 enlisted men whose bodies have been returned to the United States from France for burial in Arlington National cemetery, was that of Sergt. John Keller, who served in Company M, Three Hundred and Tenth infantry. Mrs. Mamie Myler of 716 East Tenth street, Evansville, is next of kin.

Indianapolis.—The second session of the Boys' Club Federation, in its sixteenth annual conference, got under way at the Claypool hotel with largely increased attendance. The delegation of about 100 representatives arrived from the New England states, New York and other points east, and was joined later by many representatives from Central states' cities.

Vincennes.—Ralph Mossman, receiver for the Vincennes State bank, a former banking institution of this city, has filed suit in the Knox Circuit court against Charles S. Nossette, former cashier, and the American Surety company, demanding judgment for $10,000. The complaint is written in four parts, judgment for $10,000 being asked in each.

Marion.—With the official canvass of primary returns completed in Grant county it was shown that Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, Republican, the first woman in Indiana to be nominated for the state senate, had received a total of almost 700 more votes than her opponent, Alfred Hogston. Mrs. Vayhinger's vote was 4,858, while that of Mr. Hogston was 3,055.

Indianapolis.—Positively identified by five victims, three men are being held at Indianapolis, charged with robbery and automobile banditry, as the auto bandits who terrorized motorists on the Madison road. The men under arrest are George Lang, twenty-four years old, 2140 South East street; John Kranzer, twenty-four, 18 Iowa street, and William Beville, twenty-four, 2140 South East street. All are being held at the city prison in default of $15,000 bond each.

Indianapolis.—The live stock terminal of the Producers' Commission association is expected to be open for business Monday, according to an announcement at the headquarters of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations. A force of men sufficient to care for as much live stock as can be shipped to the Indianapolis market by members of the association has been employed, it was said. David L. Swanson of Chicago will be in charge of the terminal, which is to be run under the supervision of the Farmers' federation.

Indianapolis.—Permanent headquarters of the Indiana department of the Disabled American Veterans of the Word war will be situated in Indianapolis, it was decided at the first state convention in session at the Hotel Lincoln. It is expected that the headquarters staff of the organization will have offices here within the next few weeks. The national constitution will be redrafted to meet the needs of the state organization. The next state convention will be held in Lafayette, five weeks prior to the national convention.

Hammond.—Representatives of seven steel companies figuring in the proposed independent steel merger visited at East Chicago and inspected the properties of the Inland Steel and the Steel and Tube companies. P. D. Block, president of the Inland, and Clayton Mark of the Steel and Tube, were in the party with other executives of the reported combination. The companies represented were Inland Steel, Steel and Tube, Brier Hill, Midvale, Lackawanna, Youngstown Steel and the Bethlehem. It is understood that this meeting was arranged to take a review of property valuations and the revising of committees' reports.

Indianapolis.—Mayor Shank has issued a proclamation setting aside Saturday, May 27, and Monday, May 29, as Poppy days, in honor of the memory of the Anderson soldiers buried beneath fields of poppies in France. He called on the citizens to wear poppies on the two days and he announced his intention to send poppies to the four orphans' homes in the city. The proclamation follows: "As Memorial day approaches the thoughts of our people turn to those who made the supreme sacrifice for our country. Thousands of our boys, worthy sons of worthy sires, sleep in the chambered halls of death in foreign soil. Over the graves of those who died in France the poppies bloom, reminiscent of the hope of immortality that springs eternal in the human breast. The poppy has been adopted as the flower to be worn in memory of our heroic dead and this year the various organizations of service men and their friends will sell the flowers to those who wish to purchase and wear them, on May 27 and 29. The money derived from the sale of the flowers will go for welfare and relief work among service men and their dependents."

Indianapolis.—The Republican [illegible] central committee meeting at Indianapolis, [illegible] elected [illegible] of Brook, its [illegible].

[illegible]

Huntington.—Volunteers are at work planting the first 100 of the American elms along the Maple Grove road west of the city. The trees will form a memorial avenue to Huntington county's soldier dead of all wars.

Brownstown.—Henry Merrill, age seventy-eight, for many years engaged in the nursery business here, was found dead in a shack at the edge of town in which he lived near the nursery. Merrill had a revolver clutched in his hand and it is believed he shot himself.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray has ordered a second appointment in the state oil inspection staff. The new appointee is Albert Einicke of Terre Haute, at $125 a month. Expenses of oil inspectors are paid by the state. Einicke will inspect oil in Terre Haute, Clay City, Libertyville, Jasonville, Rosedale, Clinton, Farmersburg, Shelburn and Riley.

Indianapolis.—An absolute decree declaring her marriage to Isaiah Moore, the "ace of bigamists," to be void was issued in Superior court by Judge Linn D. Hay to Harriet E. Evans of Mexico, the thirteenth wife of Moore. He was sentenced to the state prison for two to fourteen years by Judge James A. Collins of the Criminal court April 3 on charges of embezzlement and bigamy.

East Chicago.—King Callahan the First, is the title bestowed on Frank Callahan, East Chicago's mayor, by Mike Untri, a foreigner, who was being examined for naturalization papers before Judge Crites. "Who is the head of your city," the examiner asked. "The king," answered Untri. "Oh, have you a king?" queried the examiner. "Sure we got a king," said Mike, "King Callahan the First."

Newcastle.—Two women won nominations for important Henry county offices at the primary. Miss Adah Granger was the successful Republican candidate for clerk of the circuit court, and Mrs. Mary Caldwell, also a Republican, was chosen for recorder. They were opposed by men. Miss Granger won by 961 votes, while Mrs. Caldwell led the Republican ticket, polling 4,738 votes and winning by a majority of 3,441, the largest received by any candidate.

New Albany.—Miss Ellen Jones, teacher in public schools for 51 years and principal of one school for 34 years, who will be retired at the end of the present term, was surprised by more than 200 former pupils at her home. A purse containing $200 was presented to her. By resolution of the school board the school of which she was principal will be known hereafter as Ellen Jones school. She was valedictorian of the graduating class of 1871 and began teaching the same year.

Indianapolis.—Contrary to precedent, Governor McCray will sit with the pardons board when hearings are held on May 18 on a petition for clemency for William T. Donovan, sentenced to die June 1 for the murder of his wife at their home, near Bloomingdale, in Parke county, last July, it was announced here. Donovan was convicted by a jury in Montgomery county January 25, after a change of venue from his home county. The governor's unusual action, it was explained, is based on a desire to have first-hand knowledge of the facts in the eleventh-hour effort to save the doomed man from the electric chair.

Indianapolis.—Delberta Williams, age nineteen, of Muncie, who was wanted as a witness in the trial of the Muncie liquor conspiracy case last fall in the federal court, and who failed to appear in court, told Judge A. B. Anderson at Indianapolis that she had avoided testifying to protect Thomas V. Miller, formerly prosecuting attorney of Delaware county. "I shielded Tom Miller before the grand jury and I am sorry," she told Judge Anderson. "He asked me not to tell on him and when he was drunk he threatened me and told me he would get me locked up if I did tell. He lied about a lot of people in the Muncie cases and made them look worse than they really were." "Every one in the courtroom knew Miller was mixed up in this, but such people as you let him get away," Judge Anderson said.

Washington, D. C.—Passage by the senate of the federal aid roads bill received from the house would make available in the next two years more than $8,500,000 in federal funds for construction of highways in Indiana. The bill authorizes the appropriation of $65,000,000 for road construction throughout the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, and $75,000,000 to be similarly expended during the fiscal year following. Under the apportionment provisions of the bill, Indiana will be entitled to $3,056,722 for the two years, [illegible] 927 in [illegible]

[illegible]

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages Everywhere

Cuticura Talcum

Fascinatingly Fragrant

Always Healthful

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

COCKROACHES

Waterbugs

ANTS

Easily killed by using the genuine

Stearns' Electric Paste

Also SURE DEATH to rats and mice. These pests are the greatest carriers of disease. They destroy both food and property.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

YOU CAN'T CUT OUT

A Bog Spavin or Thoroughpin but you can clean them off promptly with and you work the horse same time. Does not blister or remove the hair. $2.50 per bottle, delivered. Will tell you more if you write. Book 4 A free.

ABSORBINE

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

TWO RICH PRINTER'S "BULLS"

Postmaster General Has Preserved Specimens of Work of the "Inspired Compositor."

Postmaster General Work has two choice specimens of typographical errors which he keeps on his desk handy to show to the discriminating. Like most everybody else in the world, Doctor Work appreciates that sort of thing.

Both of these "bulls" occurred in connection with printed portraits of Doctor Work when he was appointed to the highest position in the postal service. One of them bears the title: "Dr. Herbert Work, physician to the pope. Was with the late pope in his last illness."

Evidently the inscriptions of the two photographs got mixed up, and nobody caught the error, on account of the title of doctor of both physicians.

The other sample was a picture of the postmaster general, and an inscription which should have read: "Colorado Man Appointed Postmaster General."

But it got in like this: "Colored Man Appointed Postmaster General."

Inside Facts.

Alice had been to Sunday school for the first time, and had come home filled with information. She was overheard to say to her six-year-old sister, as she laid a wee hand over her heart. "When you hear something wite here, you know it is conscience whispering to you."

"No such thing," responded the six-year-old; "it's just wind in your tummy."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Money is everything to the poor fellow without a cent.

Rock Island

Greatly Reduced Fares

Colorado and West!

Summer Excursions—lowest in years—to Colorado, California and the National Parks. Choice of routes going and returning; stopover anywhere; superior service.

Rocky Mountain Limited to Colorado

Golden State Limited to California

Comfort and Courtesy are your fellow travelers on the

Rock Island Lines

Mr. L. M. Allen, Vice President
Rock Island Lines
748 La Salle Station, Chicago
Please mail me without charge, your publication on ☐ Colorado ☐ California
[Check the book or books you desire]

NOT CHICK'S TIME TO DIE

Raider of Garden Seemingly Had as Many Lives as Has the Proverbial Tammy.

My garden has flowers and fruits in it; my neighbor keeps chickens, but I do more than my share in keeping those hens plump. My son has an air-gun, and one evening recently a fowl foolishly met one of the shots halfway. We were anxious to dispose of her; we could not dream of eating her ourselves, so our neighbor on the other side promised to help us out by lifting the chicken after dark. That night we watched for his coming, and growing impatient, I started out to help. There was my neighbor quartering the ground without finding the bird; he had a flashlight and I a lantern.

Across the fence came the friendly inquiry, "Anything you are looking for?"

Like guilty conspirators we looked up to find the missing chicken safe in her arms. The hen evidently had recovered sufficiently to find her way home. We doused our glims and scuttled for beds.—Exchange.

Patriotic Solicitude.

"You have a great country," said the foreign visitor.

"We think so, of course," said the citizen.

"By the way, I'd like to see congress in session."

"My friend," said the citizen in great earnestness, "see Niagara falls, run out to Yellowstone park and the Grand canyon; inspect our huge industrial plants, our skyscrapers, our universities, but stay away from congress. I want you to go home still thinking we have a great country."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Getting into trouble is generally expensive, but some people just will have expensive things.

Our race is growing sturdier. Few people now faint.

Obeys Orders.

Boy Scout (on right guard)—Halt! Who goes there?

Voice—Officer of the day.

"Advance, officer of the day, and explain what you are doing out at night."—Answers.

Baby's little dresses will just simply dazzle if Red Cross Ball Blue is used in the laundry. Try it and see for yourself. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

MADE WISE CHOICE OF WIFE

John Brown's Helpmate Apparently Ideal Woman for a Man of His Stern Disposition.

John Brown, whose body later on lay "a-moldering in the grave," once described the lady who afterwards became his wife as a "remarkably plain but neat, industrious and economical girl." These latter virtues seem to have atoned for her want of physical charm, for he and Dianthe Lusk were married when she was nineteen and he was only twenty.

Dianthe was a strong-minded woman, but she made John an excellent wife, and their twelve years of married life—terminated by her early death—were most happy. He was a man of decided and violent disposition, and his wife is said to have possessed the faculty of getting him to do as she wished and causing him to believe that it was his idea all along. She died in 1832, twelve years after their marriage and just after the birth of their seventh child.

The Principal Inducement.

"What sends men into the far corners of the world?" asks one of the magazines. Our guess is that it is the hope of seeing their names in the newspaper headlines.

Fame is more lasting, but notoriety pays quicker.

The road to bankruptcy shows a few automobile tracks.

Here's Good Advice: Relieve Your Fatigue With Sleep. Avoid Stimulants

THERE is nothing in the world so reconstructive as sound, refreshing sleep. During sleep the system rids itself of the fatigue poisons that have accumulated during the day. The food elements are taken up by the various tissues that require rebuilding nutriment.

It is important that you get plenty of [illegible] sleep. [illegible] your [illegible] you—[illegible]

A [illegible] and [illegible] other elements found in both coffee and tea.

If you have an idea that coffee or tea drinking may be injurious to your health, why not stop it for a week or so, and drink delicious, fragrant Postum instead.

Postum is a rich, golden-brown, pure cereal beverage. It contains no harmful elements of any kind. You can drink Postum as many times a day as you or the children desire a grateful, refreshing beverage.

[illegible]

Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum for Health

[illegible]

MAY

Stop Look and Read

We will pay a Premium over
Market Price for Milling Wheat.

Feed Ful-O-Pep feeds for results and it is cheaper.
We handle all kinds of feeds.
Use Country Maid and Daily Bread Flour

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
St. Joe, Ind.

* * *

Central Grocery

Seed Potatoes—
Rural NEW YORK—Certified stock.

Pineapples and strawberries for canning, at the lowest prices.

DON'T FORGET—
that we are in the shoe business. We are specialists in foot upholstery. Call and see our goods and compare our prices.

* * *

All kinds of plants at The News Office.

Mrs. Adam was a recent guest of Mrs. Vernon Wilmot, of Spencerville.

Frank Kinsey and wife were Sunday guests of Geo. Wilson and wife, of Ft. Wayne.

Ed Miser, wife, daughter Martha and son Harcourt, were Ft. Wayne visitors Friday.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Crockery

We just received a car-load of Crockery, consisting of Jars, from 1-2 to 12 gallon in size; Butter crocks, jars, and churns, in the right sizes; Flower pots; Harvester jugs; Cuspidors; Combinets; etc., at the right prices. Don't fail to see this assortment of stoneware

ANOTHER SHIPMENT

of Florence Automatic Wickless oil stoves, just received, in any size burner you wish. We sold our other order clear out. Come in and see this stove demonstrated. Less fuel, no smoke, and a hotter heat, and priced lower than most common wick stoves. An Iron-clad Guarantee with every one sold.

And don't forget
We still have some fertilizer in stock at new low prices.
Window screens, Screen doors, and Screen wire in the different sizes and kinds. Our prices are right.

Wm. Currie
[illegible]

DEKALB COUNTY NOMINEES

ALSO FOR TRI-TOWNSHIPS

For the [illegible] we will give a complete list of the names of the [illegible] for both the Democratic and Republican parties. [illegible] your earnest consideration, for the man to get the office [illegible] who is best capable of filling it and who is worthy of [illegible] the voters to do the duties. The results of the primaries [illegible] as follows:

REPUBLICAN TICKET

United States Senator:
Albert J. Beveridge, Indianapolis.
Congressman, Twelfth Congressional District:
Louis W. Fairfield, Angola.
Judge, Thirty-fifth Judicial Circuit:
William P. Endicott, Butler.
Prosecuting Attorney, Thirty-fifth Judicial Circuit:
Henry C. Springer, Garrett.
State Representative:
Charles S. Arford, Butler.
County Auditor:
Harry Lee Lawrence, Auburn.
County Treasurer:
Carrie Pauline Weaver, Auburn.
County Recorder:
Mary Miser, Waterloo.
County Sheriff:
Twite L. Hoodelmier, Auburn.
County Coroner:
Harold Wilbur Johnson, Butler.
County Surveyor:
James Frank McDowell, Auburn.
County Assessor:
George Scattergood, Auburn.
Commissioner, Southeast District:
Ed. Leighty, St. Joe.
Commissioner, North District:
George E. Blaker, Butler.
Councilmen-at-Large:
Clare A. Bowman, Waterloo.
James H. B. Casebeer, Garrett.
Alva F. Grogg, Auburn.
County Council—District No. 1:
Joseph R. Wiley, Edgerton, Ohio.
County Council—District No. 2:
Charles P. Jennings, Butler.
County Council—District No. 3:
William Imler, Garrett.
County Council—District No. 4:
Harvey W. Kimes, Spencerville.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

United States Senator:
Samuel M. Ralston, Indianapolis.
Congressman, Twelfth Congressional District:
Charles W. Branstrattor, Ft. Wayne.
Judge, Thirty-fifth Judicial Circuit:
Walter D. Stump, Auburn.
Prosecuting Attorney, Thirty-fifth Judicial Circuit:
……………………
State Representative:
Milo J. Thomas, Corunna.
County Auditor:
Frank Shook, Waterloo.
County Treasurer:
Daniel E. Hershberger, Garrett.
County Recorder:
Byron C. Platt, Butler.
County Sheriff:
William G. Merr, Auburn.
County Coroner:
Howard A. Hinklin, Garrett.
County Surveyor:
Calvin C. Kain, St. Joe.
County Assessor:
Francis M. Wiltrout, Corunna.
Commissioner, Southeast District:
Everett D. Mullett, Butler.
Commissioner, North District:
Marion B. Clark, Ashley.
Councilmen-at-Large:
Seymour Fisk, Waterloo.
Edward S. Kelham, LaOtto.
Luther W. Knisely, Butler.
County Council—District No. 1:
William A. Oberholtser, Butler.
County Council—District No. 2:
Isaac Barker, Ashley.
County Council—District No. 3:
Edward Kelham, Garrett.
County Council—District No. 4:
John H. St. Clair, Auburn.

The nominees for Concord, Spencer and Newville townships are as follows:

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

Concord Township

Trustee:
Clarence H. Hull, St. Joe.
Assessor:
Marshall H. Andress, St. Joe.
Township Advisory Board:
William Bleeks, St. Joe.
Camuel A. Mumaw, St. Joe.
John Wineland, St. Joe.

Spencer Township

Trustee:
Frank Baltz, Spencerville.
Assessor:
McClellan Hart, Spencerville.
Township Advisory Board:
Franklin E. Rhodes, Spencerville.
Joseph D. Spitler, Spencerville.
Harry O. Waltz, Spencerville.
Justice of the Peace:
Reuben B. Renn, Spencerville.
Constable:
Clarence H. Gloyd, Spencerville.

Newville Township

Trustee:
William F. Benninghoff, Butler.
Assessor:
Adron Beree, Hicksville.
Township Advisory Board:
Harry T. Smith, Butler.
John M. Stafford, St. Joe.
Alvin W. Walker, Hicksville.

REPUBLICAN TICKET

Concord Township

Trustee:
Frank L. Milliman, St. Joe.
Assessor:
Oleus K. Shull, St. Joe.
Township Advisory Board:
M. D. Engle, St. Joe.
Edward Schrade, St. Joe.
George Walters, St. Joe.

Spencer Township

Trustee:
William O. Lake, Spencerville.
Assessor:
Vinton L. Miller, Spencerville.
Township Advisory Board:
Albert W. Beerbower, Spencer Twp.
Martin L. Koch, St. Joe.
William P. Stewart, Spencerville.
Justice of the Peace:
Merritt A. Butler, Spencerville.
Constable:
David W. Baughman, Spencerville.

Newville Township

Trustee:
Clarence Baron, Hicksville.
Assessor:
Stanley Davis, St. Joe.
Forrest F. Fusselman, Butler.
Township Advisory Board:
Homer Donley, St. Joe.
Ira K. Hook, St. Joe.
William H. Moore, St. Joe.

November 7, 1922, will be election.

Mrs. Otto Cannon spent Wednesday a guest of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mrs. Leon Sechler returned home Friday from a brief visit with Hicksville relatives.

Charles Cochran has opened a restaurant in Spencerville, having his opening day Saturday.

Mrs. Wesley Showers, of Auburn, spent Thursday and Friday with her daughter, Mrs. Ed Miser, and family.

Lost—A door key, one for a night lock. Anyone finding same please leave at News office.

Mrs. C. C. [illegible] [illegible]

STERLING TIRES

Cabbage 15c; Tomatoes 20c; Celery 10c., and other plants at reasonable prices at The News Office.

Mrs. Ebbon Brown was taken to the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne, Thursday, where she submitted to an operation.

Mrs. Anna Dilley spent from Wednesday evening until Saturday morning a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson at Spencerville.

Mrs. T. A. [illegible] submitted to an operation for [illegible] tumor, Thursday, at the Sacred Heart hospital at Garrett.

C. M. Pinchon, of Brookfield, Ill., was a Thursday [illegible] guest of his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Randall.

For Sale—[illegible] of good land in Spencer Township. A bargain [illegible]

[illegible]

SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40% and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

The MARTHA Society of the Christian church will hold a BAKE SALE at Mrs. Ada Berry's cream station, Saturday morning, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

From coast to coast Tanlac is known and honored and millions have taken it and pronounced it the greatest medicine of the times. Sheffer's Drug Store.

Notice has been given that the Board of Trustees of Butler Schools will sell $38,500.00 of its school improvement bonds June 1st.

Rev. R. B. Daily occupied the pulpit of the Christian church at Cedar Lake Sunday morning immediately following the Bible School.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters class of the Christian Sunday school will hold their regular monthly meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawson next Sunday. A pot luck dinner will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall and son, Harry Jr., of Ottawa, Ohio, spent Sunday afternoon with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Randall. They, together with C. P. Bassett, were supper guests in the Randall home.

Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C. Hull, Representative, St. Joe.

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS.
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE — NOTARY PUBLIC

HERTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE, IND.

WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE
Friday, MAY 19, 1922

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

[illegible]

MAY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 25 1922 — No. 21

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL

Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN

No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED

Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL

Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

You Cannot Lose

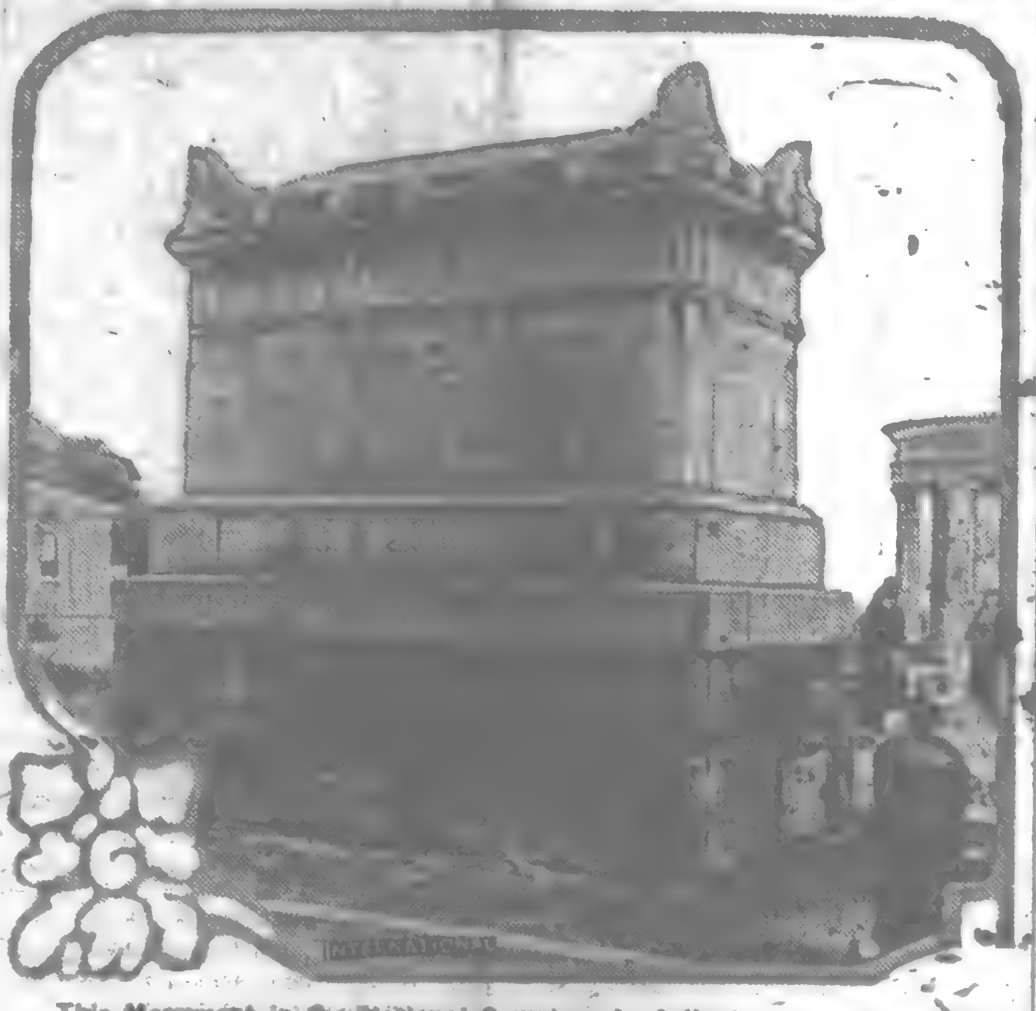
No matter how much or how little money you may have it will cost you no more to pay it out by means of check than it will to use the hard cash. Checks are accepted just as readily as money.

A checking account is absolutely safe. If a check should be lost it becomes worthless because payment on it can be [illegible] immediately, and nothing of intrinsic value is lost. If the money is lost however, there are no "stop payment" proceedings available. [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

To Unknown Civil War Heroes



This Monument in the National Cemetery in Arlington, Va., Was Erected to the Unknown Dead of the Civil War.

Memorial Services.

The Memorial Services for St. Joe will be held at the Methodist Church, Sunday, May 28, at 2 o'clock. Trusting that the weather will be fair a splendid crowd is expected and a good program is promised. The program will be as follows:

Opening prayer . . . . Rev. Johnson
Music . . . . Choral Society and Community Welfare Band.
Address . . . . Rev. W. H. Bransford, of Hicksville, Ohio.
All march to cemetery.
Decoration of graves.
Closing prayer at the monument.

A means of conveyance will be provided for the G. A. R. I. O. O. F. and K. of P. Orders are cordially invited to join in bodies.

Each church is expected to appoint a committee of one to take charge of the children from their respective church.

It's Time To Clean Up.

While many of the other towns about the county and elsewhere have already observed a general clean-up day or are planning one St. Joe has been very quiet on the subject.

It is true that the weather has been bad for cleaning up and fixing up about the premises of our business places or homes but never the less we have all had the time if we would but use it, to make the town a more respectable place to be in.

Many have gathered together the old tin cans and other rubbish accumulated during the long winter and have hauled it away, but just as many are content with the stuff, sore eyes to everyone about them, laying around where they kick into it every time they step into the back yard.

And while we are driving we might as well drive one [illegible] toward the [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible]. [illegible]

[illegible]

Concord S. S. "Get Together."

The "Get Together" meeting at Concord on Sunday, was a very interesting one. At the Sunday School hour 70 persons were present, more were present for the preaching service. Then at the noon hour, one of those bountiful repasts that Concord ladies know so well how to serve, was served to about one hundred people.

The afternoon service was a program in honor of Mothers' Day, closing with a sermon by Rev. J. B. Elson, of Garrett.

The special music of the day was furnished by the St. Joe Community Band. The boys did themselves proud in this part of the program. Concord folks feel that "this is our band" and take this means of thanking them for the day and ask them to come again. The one disappointing thing of the day was that Mr. Lawson lacked capacity to hold all the dinner. Come again.

A Testament Returned.

A pocket testament was received through the mail, last Friday by John Miller from some man in Louisville, Ky. A note accompanying it gave the information that it had been picked up on a battle field in France during the World War, and since it contained the address of John Miller, Newville, Ind., he was returning it.

Dewey Miller, son of John Miller, recognized the testament as one he had lost in Texas in 1916 while on duty there with U. S. Militia. But how the book happened to get to France is a mystery. Perhaps it had been picked up in Texas by another soldier who later carried it to France and there lost it.

Dewey was pleased to have the testament returned for he thought a great deal of it as a [illegible]. The [illegible] [illegible]

Improvement Completed

[illegible]

Clarence C. Woodcox — Vernon F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-

Boost St. Joe

Just a few of the items on which we can save you money—

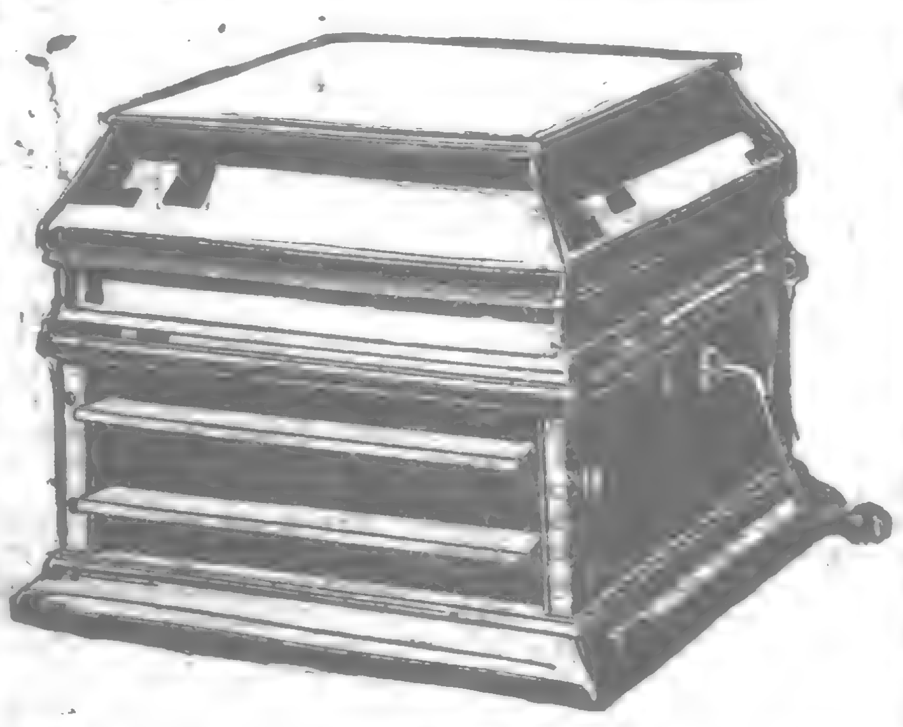
Tires
Cement
Gaskets
Boots
Porcelains
Hose
Wire
Steering wheels
Piston Rings
Wind Shield cleaners
Bulbs
Batteries
Moto Meters
Anti-Rattlers
Oil
Pistons
Tape
Patches
Locks
Pumps
Spot lights
Ford Parts
Gasoline
Tubes
Hot Shots
Timers
Spark Plugs
Lenses
Fan Belts
Grease

Strictly a Service Garage

WELDING Done While You Wait

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.



COLUMBIA GRAFONOLA

We are more than pleased to announce that we have secured the agency for the

Hoover Vacuum Cleaner

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Hardware — Furniture — Undertaking

Visits Infirmary and Jail

The grand jury of the May term of the DeKalb circuit court, in its report to Judge Dan M. Link Saturday filed a statement of its visits to the county farm and the county jail.

The report follows:

"We, the grand jurors of DeKalb county, Indiana, in session at the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

18, 1922, and found the same in first class condition and clean and neat, the prisoners well cared for and all conditions about said premises of the best.

"We have no recommendations to make."

The report was signed by Amos A. Frederick, foreman, Charles Newcomer, H. C. Kelley, William J. Hathaway, Dennis Neidig and Elmer McClish.

Notice.

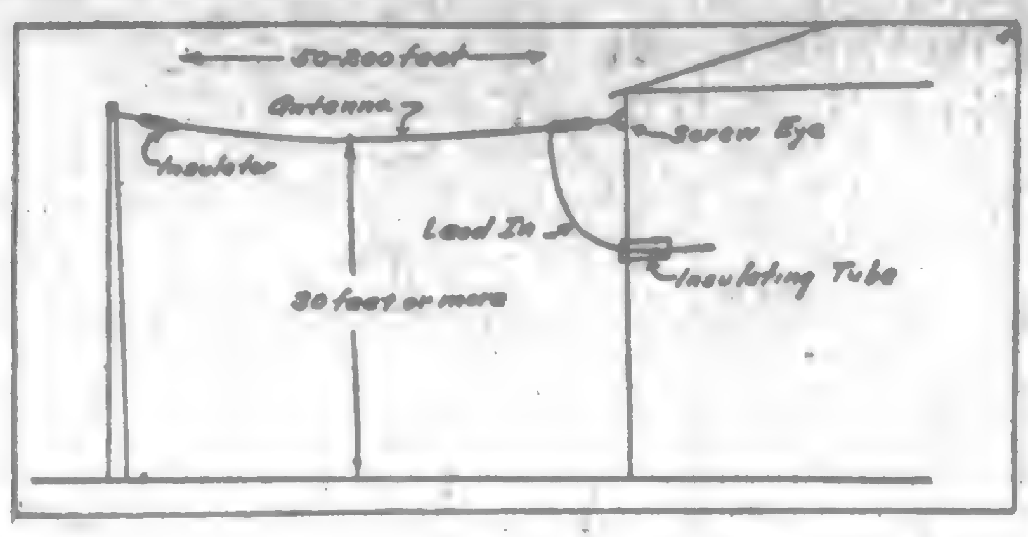
All persons knowing that they [illegible] the Riverside Cemetery [illegible] will please pay [illegible] to Wm Curie [illegible] May 30.

[illegible] of Trustees.

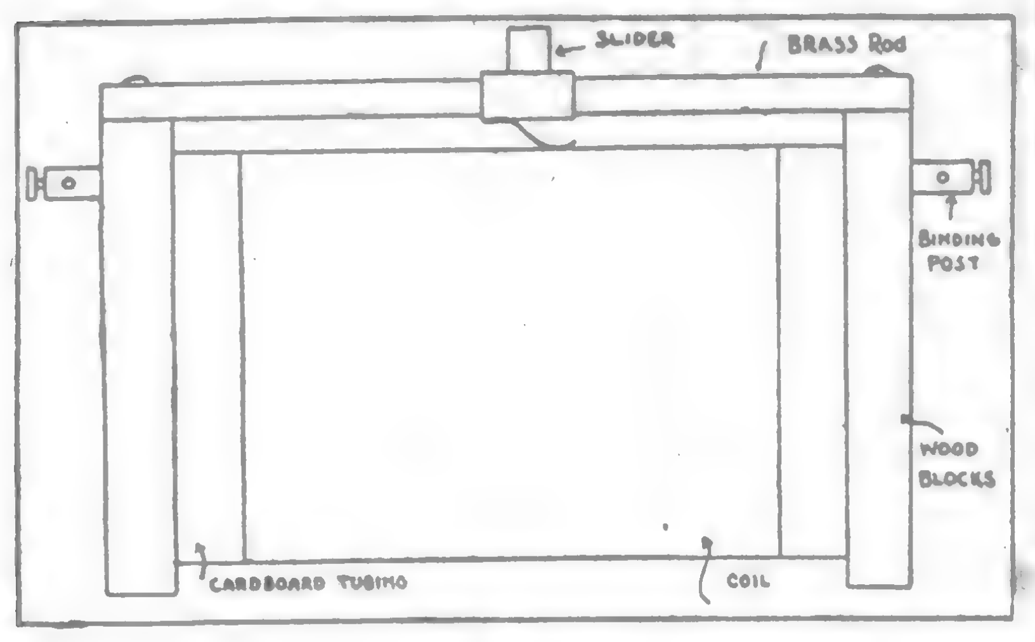
[illegible]

MAY

L 912



The Antenna.



The Tuner.

RADIO

HOW AMATEUR CAN BUILD A RECEIVER

Instructions for Setting Up the Antenna and for Assembling the Tuner.

In order to pick up sufficient energy with the simple radio receiving set it is necessary to connect one terminal to an antenna consisting of one or more wires suspended in the air and insulated from all grounded material and the other terminal to a ground, usually the water supply pipe. The height of an antenna used with a small receiver should not be less than 80 feet. As the received energy varies directly as the height of an antenna, the higher the antenna the louder will be the signals or voice produced. The length of an antenna for short wave reception should not be less than 50 feet nor should it be longer than 200 feet. The minimum wave length to which a simple receiver can be adjusted for electrical resonance will be above that used by amateurs if the receiver be connected to an antenna 200 feet or more in length.

A simple radiophone receiver capable of picking up radiophone stations similar to KDKA at East Pittsburgh, can be assembled by a novice for from $4 to $15, depending upon the builder's ability to use his hands. If the builder will construct most of his apparatus he will appreciate it much more and probably will understand more about its operation than if he buys a set already made. However, for those who have not the ability or the time to spend constructing their own apparatus the following description will not only give the details as to the construction of each component part of a receiver but also what standard ready-made parts can be purchased and used in its stead.

The material can be purchased at any electrical supply store.

In erecting a simple antenna for use with the receiver shown in the diagram, the antenna proper and the lead-in are of stranded hard-drawn copper wire, strand No. 22, costing about 1 cent per foot. The two insulators are of molded material and can be purchased for about 25 cents each. The antenna shown is supported between a house and a pole. It may be found more convenient to support it between a tree and a house, two houses or even between two chimneys on the same house. In bringing down the lead-in care should be taken that it is kept as far away from grounded material as possible and when bringing through the wall or under the window into the house it should be brought through some sort of an insulating tube, such as rubber or bakelite.

In making the ground connection the same kind of wire can be used as was purchased for the antenna. You can clean a section of the waterpipe thoroughly and solder the ground wire to it.

MAKING THE TUNER

To make a tuner for this receiver, the following raw material will be required:

Piece of cardboard tubing three [illegible]

[illegible]

Starting one-half inch from one end of the cardboard tube wind on the No. 22 D. C. C. wire within one-half inch of the other end of the tube. Fasten one end of the winding to the tube but allow some surplus wire on the other end for making a connection. After the winding is in place give it a coat of shellac or varnish to hold the turns in place. Assemble the circular-cut pieces of wood in the geometrical center of the square blocks and then shellac or varnish them for the appearance's sake.

When thoroughly dry slip the two end blocks into the wound tube and by means of a few finishing brads driven through the cardboard tube, fasten the end blocks to the wound tube. The slider is to be mounted on top of the coil and should be capable of making contact with any turn of the wire on the tube. In order to remove the insulation from the wire just under the rod where the slider moves back and forth, wrap a piece of sandpaper around a thin piece of wood and using another piece of wood as a guide, sandpaper the insulation from the winding. Drill a hole one-eighth inch in diameter through the slider rod about one-fourth inch in from each end so that the rod can be fastened by screws to the end blocks. After the slider rod is fastened in place see that the contact finger on the bottom of the slider can at all times make good contact with the winding. Mount a binding post on either end of the coil, attaching one by means of a wire to the slider rod and the other to the end of the wire wound on the tube and the tuner is complete. A tuner can be purchased already assembled for about $3.50 to $4.00.

LINKING MOVIE AND RADIO

British Scientists Have Some Success in Wireless Transmission of Motion Pictures.

British scientists are reported to have met with more or less success in developing a method of transferring motion pictures by radio. Some months ago a photograph was transferred by wireless from the Copenhagen newspaper, the Politiken, to England, and later from England to a ship in mid Atlantic, so that the possibility of linking the movies with the new art is not remote.

If perfected the new development of the already versatile art will make it possible for one to see on his own receiving instrument things that are happening at a great distance. For instance, a ship is sinking at sea. The transmitting station of the vessel, instead of sending a message of the disaster, sends a picture that anyone with a receiving set will be able to see just as the present broadcasting programs are heard.

That all sounds remote now, but the telephone was considered even more so, and the wireless, even after Marconi's immortal message had bridged the Atlantic, was generally believed to be akin to the idea of perpetual motion.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

A crystal [illegible] cannot be [illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA State News

Indianapolis.—Alden H. Hadley of Monrovia was elected president of the Indian.. Audubon society.

Evansville.—Dairymen of Vanderburg county and the surrounding territory who supply Evansville with milk will endeavor to have every cow used to supply Evansville milk consumers tested for tuberculosis.

Chicago, Ill.—Members of the Indiana Society of Chicago will go in a special train for their annual summer outing at Culver, May 27, to be guests of the directors and officers of Culver Military academy.

Vincennes.—Despite the earliness of the season, home-grown strawberries are selling on the retail markets at 25 cents for two quart boxes. Reports from all parts of Knox county indicate that the strawberry crop will be far larger this season than ever before. Commercial fruit growers who for years have been dealing in apples and peaches alone have started raising strawberries.

Lafayette.—Four more talks on agricultural and home economic topics will be broadcast from Purdue university radio station at Lafayette before the end of the college year. They are scheduled for every Friday night from 7:15 to 7:30 o'clock. Scores of Indiana receiving stations have reported hearing Purdue speakers the last few weeks, indicating the popularity of this feature.

Indianapolis. — Reservations for a summer camp to be held near Tremont, in Porter county, on the shore of Lake Michigan and in the heart of the Indiana dunes, are being made in encouraging numbers, officials of the state conservation department said. The conservation department is cooperating with the Indiana Federation of Clubs in promoting the camp, which will be from June 15 to 29.

Terre Haute.—A school for superintendents will be held at the Indiana State Normal school at Terre Haute the week of June 19. Invitation has been extended to all county school superintendents, superintendents of schools in the smaller towns of the state, members of educational boards, advisory boards, civic organiaztions, farm bureaus, labor organizations and trustees to attend the school. The school will study methods to solve school problems.

Lafayette.—Dr. Edward C. Elliott, chancellor of the University of Montana at Helena, has been selected as president of Purdue university at Lafayette. A meeting of the board of trustees of the institution was recently held to act formally on the recommendation of a special committee, which considered various educators. Doctor Elliott is to take the place of Dr. W. E. Stone, who was killed last summer in a fall while on a mountain climbing trip in the Canadian Rockies.

Logansport.—In the next two weeks the pool practically of the entire wool crop of Cass county will be completed. Several car loads of the wool will be shipped to an eastern concern at one time as soon as the crop has been assembled. By means of the perfect organization throughout the county and on the strength of the money saved in the three previous years by pooling wool, officers of the Cass county farm bureau have been able practically to enlist every wool grower in the county to place his crop in the pool.

Indianapolis. — An inspection of woodlands in Indiana to classify some as forest land, thereby making the tax assessment only $1 an acre has been started by Charles C. Deam, state forester in the department of conservation. For the purpose of encouraging private forestry and of preventing unnecessary clearing of the remnant of wooded lands in the state, the last general assembly passed a law enabling owners of wooded lands to have them classified as forest, to be assessed for taxes at $1 an acre. Hundreds of landowners have requested inspection of their wooded tracts to co-operate with the state conservation department in its reforestration program, Mr. Deam said.

Terre Haute.—Plans for the annual June tour of inspection and education given by the Vigo County [illegible] association are being [illegible]. The program is being arranged by A. [illegible]

[illegible]

Jeffersonville.—A large number of Clark county farmers who went into the burley tobacco pool for the 1921 crop and for four succeeding years have received their second payment, making two-thirds of the value of their tobacco.

Lafayette.—A Jersey heifer, Estelle Joan, in the Purdue University herd, recently broke the state record in the senior three-year-old division by producing 10,682 pounds of milk and 633 pounds of butter fat, exceeding by over forty pounds any record that has ever been made in Indiana by a Jersey at that age.

Evansville. — Practically all the wheat in Vanderburg county is headed, according to the marketing agent for the farmers of the county. About one-fifth of the spring plowing has been completed. Some of the farmers are working in the fields at night by the light of their tractors in breaking their ground for corn planting.

Petersburg.—Farmers near Petersburg are cutting their first crop of alfalfa for the season of 1922 under the most favorable conditions. The crop is two weeks early. The weather has been dry and the crop has been cured and most of it is in the rick or barn loft. The yield averaged from two to three tons an acre. Clover is unusually rank, and cutting will start early in June.

Terre Haute.—Changes in the standard schedule for payment of teachers of the Terre Haute schools, by which the major grade schedules will apply to all teachers who have had three years' experience, and at least three years' normal school work, have been established by the board of trustees. The former ruling has required four years' normal school training before the maximum grade scale could be obtained.

Warsaw.—Club women of the Thirteenth Indiana congressional district will meet next year at Akron. This was decided at the twelfth annual convention of the district Federation of Clubs in Warsaw. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Chairman, Mrs. E. B. Funk of Warsaw; vice chairman, Mrs. E. F. Norris, Mishawaka; secretary, Mrs. F. M. Neff, Milford; treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Vail, Michigan City.

Indianapolis. — Indiana's champion horseshoe pitcher is to be selected at the state fair in September, the state board of agriculture has announced. The board has voted $100 with which to buy championship prizes, and all the counties are expected to provide candidates for the contest. County fair officials have been asked to include horseshoe contests in their programs this summer. The winners of the county events would be eligible to contest at the state fair, it was said.

Muncie.—Fifty-six graduates of the Indiana State Normal school, eastern division, will receive diplomas at the fourth annual commencement exercises of the school at Muncie June 15. This will be the institution's largest graduating class. Eighteen young men and women will receive the degree of bachelor of arts in education, while 38 will receive certificates leading to provisional life teaching certificates, or for the two-year supervisors' course in music.

Greencastle.—Farmers, whose land adjoins the national road through Putnam county, are anxiously waiting completion of the brick paving work which now is well under way under the supervision of the state highway commission. Farmers whose land abutts this road already are talking of the increased property values as a result of the new road. One farmer who owns three-quarters of a mile fronting on the new road says his land will be enhanced at least $20 an acre by the improvement.

Franklin.—In an effort to make up for time lost during the rainy weather of a few weeks ago, Johnson county farmers are running their tractors day and night in order to speed corn planting. With favorable weather they say the usual acreage will be planted before the first of June. A large number of tractors are in use in the county, and many farmers are using two shifts of employees working twenty-four hours a day. The tractors are being used mostly to plow during the day and at night, with tractors equipped with strong headlights, they pull the discs or harrows. Wheat fields are in fine condition, also timothy and clover pastures.

Washington, D. C.—Redmond D. Stephens, co-receiver of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission to abandon operation of the Chicago and Indiana coal railway division of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, as to interstate and foreign commerce. [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MAY 28.

JEREMIAH SPEAKS BOLDLY FOR GOD.

LESSON TEXT.—Jer. 26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord.—Jer. 26:13.

REFERENCE MATERIAL. — II Sam. 12:1-14; I Kings 21:17-24; Jer. 7:1-15; Amos 6:1-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC. — The Story of a Brave Prophet.

JUNIOR TOPIC. — A Brave Prophet's Message.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC. —Jeremiah Speaks Boldly for God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC. —When and How Should Wrong Be Rebuked?

I. Jeremiah's Solemn Warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).

The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to provoke them to repentance (v. 3). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v. 6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place of the Lord and now fallen into decay and abandoned, so will it be with the temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words the Lord had told him and not to diminish a word.

II. Jeremiah on Trial (vv. 8-11).

1. Cause of Arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfully speaking all that the Lord had commanded. The one who speaks boldly what God commands shall be opposed. The time-server and self-seeker will not stand for such a ministry.

2. The Charge (vv. 8, 9). It was a capital crime. They said, "Thou shalt surely die." His guilt according to their charge was twofold: (1) Pretending to speak for God; (2) Speaking against the temple and the city. According to their charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege.

3. The Princes Sit in Judgment (vv. 10, 11). When the excitement reached the ears of the princes they came to judge of the merits of the case. Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and elders, but were partly controlled by members of the royal family.

III. Jeremiah's Defense (vv. 12-15).

1. Reiterates His Divine Commission (v. 12). He had nothing to deny, but to repeat what he had said. He plainly told them that in opposing him they were opposing God, for he was God's messenger.

2. His Exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God, and God would not bring upon them judgment. Their threats did not cause him to suppress or soften his message.

3. He Gave Himself Up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1). Knowing that he was sent of God he was content to trust God for deliverance. He did not fear what man could do unto him.

4. Warns of Fatal Consequence (v. 15). He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God. Resistance to God's prophet would be resistance to God. Woe would not only fall upon them, but the nation and city would suffer.

IV. Jeremiah Saved (vv. 16-24).

He was acquitted. God is able to raise up friends and advocates from the ranks of those who oppose us. All hearts are in God's hands.

1. Judgment of the Princes (v.16). They pronounced him not guilty, as he had spoken in the name of the Lord. Jeremiah's words convinced them that he was speaking the truth.

2. Speech of the Elders (vv. 17-23). As the princes probably represented the king, so the elders represented the people.

The elders plead for Jeremiah and adduced several cases in illustration: (1) Micah (vv. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but the king Hezekiah instead of putting him to death, repented and thus turned aside the punishment which was impending. (2) Urijah (vv. 20-23). Urijah prophesied against the city and land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who brought him back from Egypt whence he had fled and slew him.

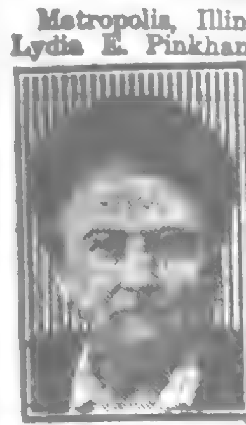
Though all this was done, judgment was not thus thwarted. Killing God's prophets does not prevent God's judgment, but intensifies it. In the case of [illegible] God's judgments were [illegible] through heeding the [illegible] of the prophet, and in the case of [illegible] judgment fell upon the [illegible] and maltreatment of the [illegible].

3. [illegible] (v. 24). [illegible]

[illegible]

CHANGE OF LIFE WOMAN'S TRIAL

Proof That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is of Great Help at This Period



Metropolis, Illinois.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time, when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the Change of Life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty, do all my housework, washing, ironing, scrubbing, and cooking, all there is to do about a house, and can walk two or three miles without getting too tired. I know of several of my neighbors who have been helped by your medicines."—Mrs. EMMA CULVER, 705 E. 7th St., Metropolis, Illinois.

Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Nervousness, irritability, heat flashes, headache and dizziness, are relieved by this splendid medicine.

16799 DIED

in New York City alone from kidney trouble last year. Don't allow yourself to become a victim by neglecting pains and aches. Guard against this trouble by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Holland's National Remedy since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Beauty in Every Jar

Freckles Positively Removed

by Dr. Berry's Freckle Ointment, giving beautiful complexion. Your druggist or by mail 65c; send for free booklet. Dr. C. H. Berry Co., 2975 Michigan Ave., Chicago

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair

60c and $1.00 at Druggists.

Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Vastly More So.

The man who improves the live stock of a community or gives it a better variety of corn is as deserving of praise as he who "plucks glory from the cannon's mouth."—W. A. Lloyd.

Snowy linens are the pride of every housewife. Keep them in that condition by using Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

Having a Heart.

"Ought we not to treat the flapper humorously?"

"I don't know," replied Miss Cayenne. "There are circumstances under which it seems cruel to laugh."

In One Issue.

He (romantically—"Shall I tell you the story of my life?" She (bored)—"Yes, if you make it snappy."

The Splendid Matches.

"[illegible] a splendid match."

"[illegible] is the man worth?"

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS

MAY

L 912

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

—12—

Pollyop's sobbing voice penetrated into the young man's darkening sensibilities, and the ghost of a smile crept to his lips. Then slowly his eyes closed. The strained muscles relaxed from about his mouth, leaving it more boyish; and thus did the Storm country give back to Evelyn Robertson her freedom.

* * * * * * *

After that came dark days for Pollyop. Even the reproduction of The Greatest Mother in the World, which hung in its accustomed place on the shanty wall, failed to lift the heavy lead that rested like a stone in her bosom. No more did she stand before it and dream—dream of a deep-toned voice telling her of love and a future, dream of Robert's arms about her and her head pressed against him.

Up and down she went through the Silent City, unable to smile, well nigh unable to speak a word of greeting to those she met. So sympathetic were her squatter friends that many a fish and pan of baked beans found their way into the Hopkins hut.

Several times Pollyop had made an effort to see Evelyn, but the rich girl never appeared as the little trill sounded just after nightfall in the Robertson garden.

In July came rumors that Evelyn Robertson was to marry Marcus MacKenzie; and that he had bought the Bennett farm of Oscar's heirs. Terrified whispers went from mouth to mouth in the settlement that he had boasted how he was going to clear the squatters from the Silent City before the coming of Christmas.

One night the dark messenger to whom no home is closed slipped into the Hopkins shanty and summoned Granny Hope. Although the absence of the old withered mouth made one less to feed, Pollyop missed the oft repeated assurance that somehow, some time, love would make crooked things straight.

Late one day, she took Jerry and the billy goat and walked through the Silent City and on toward the Bad Man's Ravine. The picture she had grown to love in those long-ago spring days still gazed out at her from Marcus MacKenzie's fence.

There for a moment Polly halted and solemnly contemplated the beautiful face. When she had been happy, and that was ages past, she had not realized what the call in the mother-plea meant. But as one after another, her loved ones had dwindled away, and none but Jerry was left, a clearer understanding took possession of her. The same cruel force had attacked her and the woman there. They were living in a warring world, trying by might and main to cling to their own, Pollyop and this giant mother. The woman asked aid for her vast army of sick sons; and Polly's sorrow, touched by her broad compassion, lightened a little.

Behind her she heard footsteps. Slowly she turned her head; and almost at the same instant the person stopped. Pollyop could not move or force a word of greeting from her tongue, for Robert Percival was looking at her, his serious white face holding no hint of smile or welcome. For a long minute they stared at each other; then the young man swung about swiftly and strode away.

Crushed almost into insensibility, Pollyop sank lower and lower until Jerry slid away from her shoulders to the ground. Her beloved had not spoken, nor had the pained lines about his mouth softened even a little bit!

Afternoon shadows began to stretch long over the lake and crowd down upon the Silent City, and still the squatter girl knelt and wept out her sorrow and loneliness with no one near but the large-eyed, sad little child, leaning across the thin back of Billy-goat Hopkins.

At length Pollyop arose, wiping her worn face on her sleeve. Then she hoisted Jerry to her shoulders and turned for a last look at the lofty mother of the world.

For a minute she gazed steadily. And then, through the gathering gloom, she thought she saw a smile hovering about the beautiful mouth. Pollyop went nearer by two steps. The woman was smiling at her, and the squatter girl, overwhelmed with a joy that hurt keenly like a knife's blade, smiled back, the first smile since Granny Hope had left her.

Holding Jerry by one arm, she thrust the other hand upward.

"Biggest an' [illegible] mummy in all the world," she [illegible] an' Jerry an'—an' [illegible] away off up in Auburn [illegible]."

[illegible]

CHAPTER XII

[illegible]

Polly was happier. She could not have explained, if she had been asked, why the agony of doubt had given place to a warmer glow about her heart when she thought of Daddy Hopkins. Away off up there in the gloom of the prison, he had received a mother's benediction; Polly believed this with all her soul. Jerry and she too had come in for their share; and this new confidence lifted the shadow from her eyes a little and lessened the stabbing hurt in her side.

The thing that tormented her most was Jerry's constant mourning for his father. Day by day she had racked her brains for ways to amuse him, but as soon as the novelty of the play had worn off, the old-time cry would begin:

"Want to play horse wif my Daddy Hopkins! Wee Jerry wants Daddy Hopkins!"

She was looking at him one morning after one of his spells of weeping, and wistfully considering if there might be a way to hurry him off to Auburn for a day, when Evelyn Robertson suddenly appeared in the shanty door.

For a long time Evelyn's conscience had made her uncomfortable. Even though her days were exceedingly busy, the remembrance of the squatter girl's pale, pleading face tormented her, and she was fearful Pollyop might not keep the promise she had made, and Marcus MacKenzie would be lost forever.

So astounded was Polly Hopkins to see the girl that she neglected to ask her in. Overlooking this, Miss Robertson stepped into the room in embarrassment.

"Pollyop," she began, catching her breath, "I just had to speak to you. I'm going to be married to Mr. McKenzie, and I came to talk to you about it and—and to bring the baby some candy."

Her expression grave with surprise, Polly scrutinized her coldly.

"Jerry'd rather have his Daddy Hopkins than candy," she retorted, frowning.

Miss Robertson drew back a little, shaking her head.

"I couldn't manage that, I'm afraid," she said soberly, "but—"

Pollyop shifted uneasily.

"Mebbe you could get Old Marc to say I could take Jerry to Auburn, then?" she ventured. "Jerry'll die if he don't see his daddy. He's gettin' thinner an' thinner every day. He's been yelling like mad all mornin'."

Evelyn pondered on this an instant.

"Yes, I could do that, I'm sure," she answered, smiling broadly. "I'd love to do it, too."

The forlorn droop at the corners of Polly's mouth disappeared.

"Mebbe, if I could get something to wear—" she hesitated.

It had never occurred to Miss Robertson how Pollyop managed for clothing. She had so much herself she was blind to another's need; but, as she had come to demand a favor, then perhaps she had better offer as much as she could.

"Polly," she ejaculated, "you've been awfully good to me, and you can have any one of my dresses you want, and keep it too. And I'll persuade Mr. MacKenzie to get you a permit to go to Auburn."

Polly felt her heart grow big. Then, after all, she could take Wee Jerry to his daddy.

"I s'pose—I s'pose," she hesitated, trembling, "you couldn't tell your cousin—" Her throat caught in a sob but she cleared it, and went on, "just tell 'im Oscar wasn't my man?"

Evelyn Robertson had often lived over the horror of the minutes when the shameful secret of her marriage to Oscar Bennett was so nearly disclosed to Robert Percival. More than once had she congratulated herself upon the cleverness with which she had avoided that danger. To be sure her escape had been at the expense of Polly's reputation. She regretted the necessity but reasoned that a good name could not be much of a loss to a squatter.

"Of course I couldn't do that," she returned sharply. "Why—why should you want—"

The squatter girl's gaze lifted to the speaker's face, and tears welled over the fringed lids. Then Evelyn read the truth; and her eyes [illegible] and narrowed.

"Merciful Heavens, you're in love with my cousin?" she exclaimed. "Is that what you mean?"

The brown head fell forward, and a [illegible] face was hidden in the [illegible].

"And he loves you, too," cried Evelyn, [illegible]

[illegible]

played hide and go seek at the corners of her lovely mouth. The steely-blue glint faded from her eyes, leaving them the color of heavenly tints. She was certain her secret was as safe in the breast of Polly Hopkins as it was in the heart of the dead Oscar.

"You shall see your father," she said, dropping her hand, "and you can have any dress I have to wear. Come up tonight, at seven. The folks will be at dinner; and I'll slip out and bring you in."

Then she went away, leaving Polly Hopkins alternately plunged into the depths of despair when she thought of Robert Percival and singing with gladness over the joy in store for Wee Jerry and Daddy Hopkins.

It was still broad day when Polly Hopkins left Wee Jerry playing by the water's edge with some squatter youngsters and started for the Robertson home. True to her word, Evelyn met her in the grape arbor at seven and hastily led her up the back stairs to her bedroom.

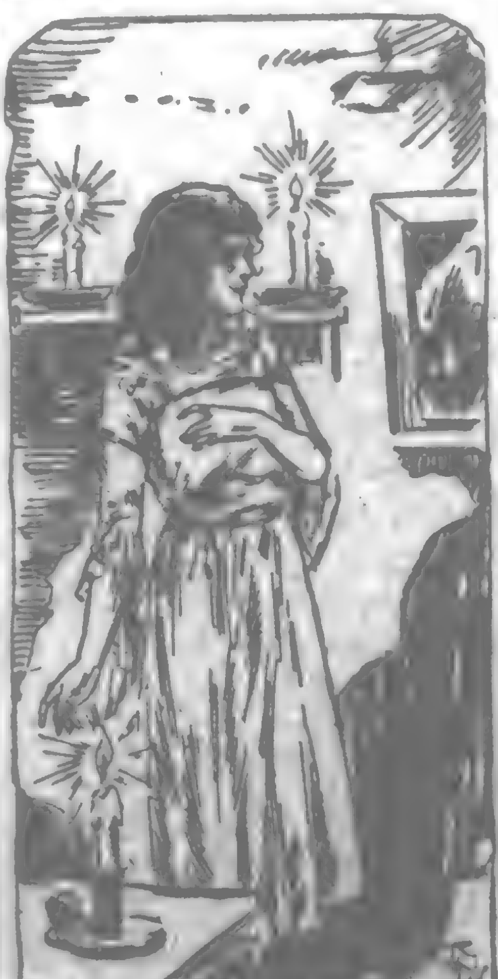
"There are the closets," she said. "Take anything you like, Polly, but hurry. The cook's in the kitchen, and the other maids are busy. I'll go down for fear someone will come to find me. There's the dinner gong."

Once alone in the beautiful room, Polly's gaze swept its broad dimensions. It did not occur to her to covet the least of these gorgeous surroundings. She only wanted something to wear to Auburn, something to celebrate her visit and do Daddy Hopkins proud. She swung open a closet door and peered in.

The sound of laughter somewhere in the house sent a wave of terror over her. She snatched at the first gown under her hand, rolled it into a bundle and fled down the stairs. Until she was in the lane again, she did not breathe easily.

Once back in the shanty, Pollyop hid the dress beneath her bed without even daring to look at it. How Evelyn was to arrange the visit to Auburn, she did not know, but of one thing she was sure, she had a beautiful dress to wear.

After she had put the child to bed, and the door was securely locked, Polly drew the curtains tightly over the small windows. Even the corners of the room lost their shadows; and "The Greatest Mother in the World" seemed to stand out more plainly than even when the sun shone.



As If She Had Been Handling Eggs, She Drew on the Beautiful Robe, Her Bare Neck and Forearms Gleaming White in the Candle Light.

Pollyop placed her warm cheek against the picture and smiled. She earnestly believed this wonder-mother was helping her to go and see Daddy Hopkins. She turned and looked longingly at the sick [illegible] man, then upward to the woman's face.

"You've done so much for me an' Jerry, ma'am," she whispered. "Mebbe sometime you'd make—him—smile just once at me."

Then she took the bundle from under her cot and spread out her treasure. It was a [illegible]

[illegible]

golden glory; so she took down Daddy Hopkins' cracked piece of mirror which he had used when pulling out his shaggy whiskers with the tweezers. By the aid of it, she could get glimpses of her slim young figure and the graceful sweep of the skirt. Holding the glass higher up, she studied her slender neck where the sun had tanned it. But tan did not matter, for Daddy Hopkins loved her in spite of it.

All at once she heard a knock against the side of the hut. Hastily slipping out of the dress and folding it, she shoved it under her pillow. Then she put on her old dress and opened the door.

Larry Bishop was there, extending her a letter. Taking the note in amazement, she smiled and thanked him.

"Ain't you comin' in, Larry?" she asked. "Kinda chilly tonight, huh?"

The squatter stepped inside, his cap in his hand.

"Yep, too cold for summer, Poll," he returned. "Say, brat, how you gettin' on? Got 'nough beans left for a while?"

"Sure, more'n enough, Larry," she replied. "I writ Daddy in my letter yesterday how blessed good you'd all been to me. I bet, when I get face to face with 'im, I'll tell things I can't scribble. An' now you go bringin' me this."

She tapped the letter with her fingers as a mysterious smile touched her lips.

The man shook his head grimly.

"You won't be seein' your dad very soon, Pollyop," he muttered, "not if I guess right!"

"Mebbe I will," she told him, fingering the letter.

She liked Larry Bishop very much, but she was eaten up with curiosity to know the contents of the envelope in her hand. Perhaps, oh, might it be—

"Where'd you get this, Larry?" she asked, holding it up.

"I was comin' down the lane," explained Bishop, "an' a feller asked me if I knowed where the Hopkins hut was. I says, 'Yep, I'm goin' there now.' He says, 'Take this letter to the Hopkins girl,' an' I says, 'Yep,' an'—an' I brung it."

He paused, hoping she would open it in his presence. Being persuaded she did not intend to, he went out. His footsteps had no sooner died away than Polly sprang to the door and barred it. Then she turned the letter over and over and looked at it. Her name was on it; so it must be meant for her to read. A thrill of pleasure ran over her. Perhaps Robert had sent her a word of forgiveness. He might have written that some day he would come again.

With sparkling anticipation she cut open the envelope and by the light of the candle spelled out its contents.

"Dear Polly," she read. "I couldn't manage that trip to Auburn. So sorry.

"E."

Polly looked dully at the paper, the words running into black smudgy lines. Then she could not go to Daddy Hopkins after all; and Jerry might die! Old Marc had once more laid his powerful hand upon her. Overcome with grief, she wept a while. Then she took the dress from under the pillow, rolled it carefully in a clean cloth and put it away.

* * * * * * *

The shock of Evelyn's cold note brought back the shadows to Pollyop's brown eyes. As the days passed slowly by, and the rich girl did not come to the shack again, Polly lost all hope of seeing her father.

Her decision to go to Auburn in spite of Old Marc followed a letter that she received from Daddy Hopkins. He was very lonely, he said. He was counting off each day as so many hours nearer the time when he could see his dear children. With the picture of Daddy's loneliness stamped in misery on her mind came the thought that no one had the right to keep Jerry from his father.

From the time she conceived this idea, it never left her thoughts. She had often stolen rides on the Lehigh Valley train from Ithaca to the Silent City and dropped off where the engine took a switch while the Buffalo Special dashed by. Why could she not steal a ride clear to Auburn?

While the squatter girl was making arrangements to carry out this mighty plan, preparations for the MacKenzie-Robertson wedding were going rapidly forward. Evelyn, happy in her new love, untroubled by sympathy for the dead Oscar, passed the days mostly at dressmakers and in the shops. Her contentment would have been complete if her cousin Robert had not looked so sad, or if she could have rid herself of the sense of responsibility for his unhappiness. But hoping in her flippant way that all would come out well after she was married, she gave little heed to him and none at all to Polly Hopkins.

Early one morning Polly hopped quickly out of bed and after a breakfast of bread and beans began to dress Jerry in the best he had. The day was misty, and a fine rain drizzled over the hills.

Pollyop [illegible] Granny Hope's [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

TANLAC KEEPS HIM FIT, SAYS McGRAW

Has Used It for Years With Splendid Results—Fine for Run Down Condition.

"For four years Tanlac has kept me in the pink of condition as I take a few doses of it every time I feel a little run down and it always builds me up again," said Wm. A. McGraw, 207 Beach Place, Tampa, Fla.

"I began taking Tanlac first about four years ago when I was in a very bad state of health and had been run down for several years. I was always taking laxatives, too, but I believe they did me more harm than good.

"Tanlac made me feel like a brand new man in a very short time and I have never had a return of any of my old troubles. The reason of this I am firmly convinced is that I always have Tanlac handy and take a few doses every time I feel a bit under the weather."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Envelope Valued at $12,500.

August Lutteken of Denver, one of the largest stamp collectors in the world, has an envelope mailed in 1859 which is valued at $12,500.

There are no postage stamps on the envelope. It bears only what were known as postmasters' stamps, requiring payments of 5 cents overseas postage and the collection of another 5 cents postage from the addressee on delivery. No street address appears because such letters could be received only by calling in person at the post-office. The practice was discontinued about the time of the Civil war and specimens have become so rare that Lutteken asserts the one he holds is, in his belief, the only one extant.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Golden Guineas Hatched.

Grace's father keeps a flock of fine guineas on his Bartholomew county farm, but Grace, a pupil in Columbus high school, was ready to turn over all the blue ribbons for guinea raising to Silas Marner. She made the acquaintance of "The Weaver of Raveloe" in her English class and she read with wonder the story of his golden guineas, for all of her father's guineas were of a dull gray color. Then test time came and Grace, describing the miser's joy with his gold pieces, wrote bravely: "That morning Silas was happy for he had hatched a new brood of golden guineas to add to his flock."—Indianapolis News.

The housewife smiles with satisfaction as she looks at the basket of clear, white clothes and thanks Red Cross Ball Blue. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

As He Understood It.

A five-year-old boy was pleading to be allowed to go out to play. His mother became rather cross and said: "When I see fit, you shall go." The boy relapsed into silence, while his mother went hither and thither about her work. In half an hour he asked: "Mamma, have you seen him yet?"

"Seen who, child?"

"Why, seen fit."

One Thing He Knew.

The immigrant had to fill up the usual form. The first question was "born?" Unhesitatingly he wrote down: "Yes."

We know of some fellows who are howling for justice who would be surprised if they should get it.

Mothers of the World

Mothers!! Write for 32-Page Booklet, "Mothers of the World"

Pat. Process Lloyd Loom Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture

Use This Coupon

The Lloyd Mfg. Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Menominee Mich.
(31)

The Lloyd Mfg. Co. (Heywood-Wakefield Co.) Dept. 2 Menominee, Mich. Please send me your booklet, "Mothers of the World."

Name.......................
Street.......................
City.................. State..................

NR

Nature's Remedy

Get a 25¢ Box

Better than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tonight— Tomorrow Alright

DO YOU WANT A NEW DRESS?

We want one of our pretty dresses in every home as a sample; will sell you one at agent's price, $4.00; pre-shrunk Zypher Gingham, tailor-made to your measure, solid colors, plaids or checks, white hemstitched collars and cuffs, set-in pockets and chick sleeves. Send for measuring directions, free tape measure, gingham samples and style book.
NATIONAL DRESS COMPANY, LIMA, O.

Join One of These Select Tours

All Expense Two Weeks $150.00 Personally Conducted

Leaving Toledo Monday of each week, starting June 12th, by rail, steamboat and automobile. Embracing Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Hudson River, New York City, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Washington. For full information address:

The Cosmopolitan Tours Company
521 Traction Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

"Plan Your Summer Vacation Now"

Your Hair need not be thin or streaked with gray—Q-BAN HAIR COLOR RESTORER will quickly revive it and bring back all its original color and luxuriance. At all good druggists, 75c, or direct from HESSIG-ELLIS, Chemists, MEMPHIS, TENN.

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

BE A DOCTOR OF PSYCHOLOGY (Ps. D.) Write for Prospectus today. THE COLLEGE OF DIVINE METAPHYSICS, INC., 324 Nicholas Bldg., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Cuticura Soap —Imparts— The Velvet Touch

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 21-1922.

Down Went the Mercury.

Sitting alone at one of the big concerts last winter, I chanced some casual remarks to a man on my left.

After some pleasant conversation I noticed a celebrity in the front row, and, pointing him out to my companion, remarked: "That old fellow used to have a wonderful tenor voice; it's rather painful to listen to. The old man doesn't seem to realize it, though. Don't know him, do you?"

"Yes," replied my companion. "He is my father."

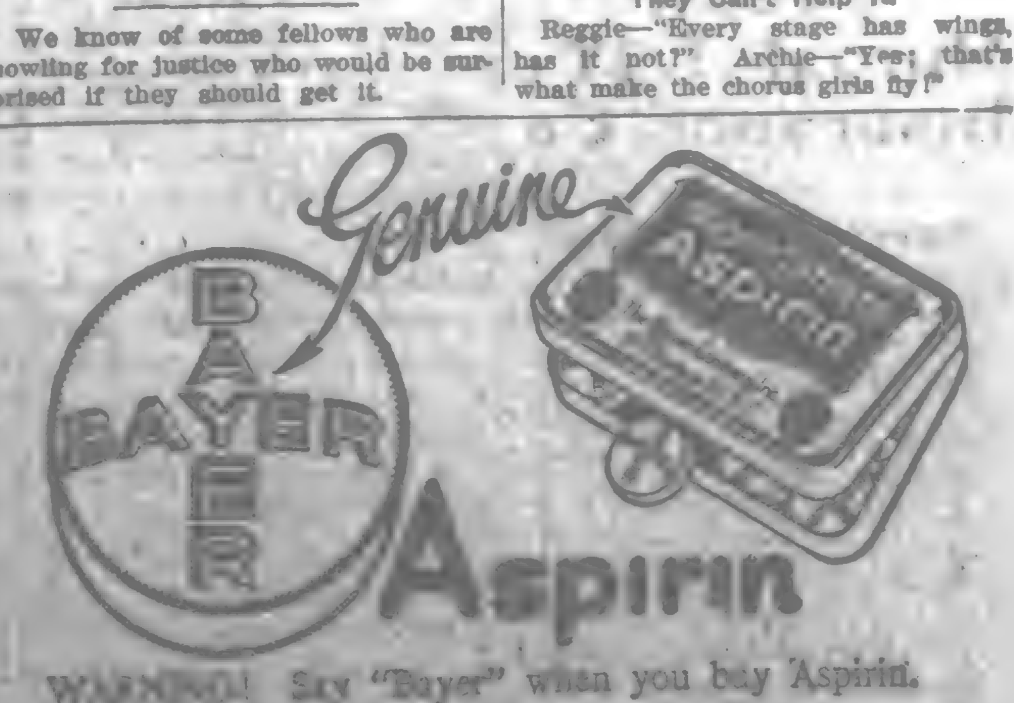
At the first interval I found myself another seat.—Exchange.

And Still Going.

This is a bad time for young men to impose on the old folks by sitting up with their daughter while coal oil is 15 cents a gallon and with an upward tendency.—Forty-five Years Ago Item in Newton Kansan-Republican.

They Can't Help It.

Reggie—"Every stage has wings, has it not?" Archie—"Yes; that's what make the chorus girls fly!"



Aspirin

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

[illegible]

MAY

A New Line Of Sport Hats
In All Colors

Wide-Rim white & black Hats
AT MRS. WARNER'S

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

When the well's dry they know the worth of water.

—‡—‡—‡—

Keep thy shop and thy shop will keep thee.

—‡—‡—‡—

Electricity to business is supplied by the dynamo of advertising.

—‡—‡—‡—

Never try to kill time, for time is the only thing that kills everything.

—‡—‡—‡—

You dont have to blow your own horn if you render a service that is worth talking about.

—‡—‡—‡—

Paris is said to be getting back into long skirts. The short skirts seem to be on their last legs.

—‡—‡—‡—

Sure we want you to phone your items in to the office. But have a thought of pity. Call before the forms are on the press.

—‡—‡—‡—

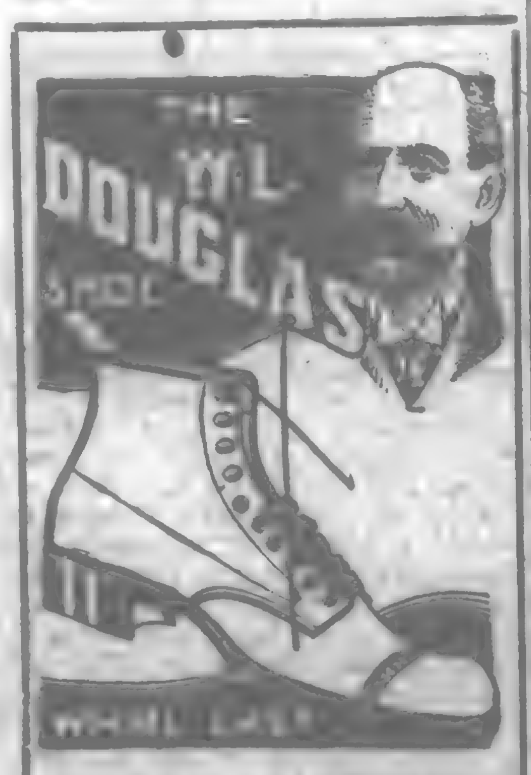
We've noticed that the first thing the average St. Joe girl does when she has a new dress is to visit some girl she doesn't like. Do you know why?

—‡—‡—‡—

Talk about all the people of St. Joe and surrounding country going to Fort Wayne to trade. That's all bunk. Why it is a fact that folks from Fort Wayne, and other towns at a distance, are coming to St. Joe to get GOOD STUFF.

—‡—‡—‡—

The man who calls once or twice a year seldom gets the girl he wants, while the chap who keeps coming around until he is thoroughly known, usually succeeds in his effort. Advertising works much the same way. Keep it in the paper if you wish it to win the confidence and trade of the people.



For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

New $2500 Policy:
Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by accident, $[illegible] [illegible]

If Permanently and Totally [illegible]

[illegible]

Wants Will Reinstated

A petition has been filed in the circuit court by Melvin Herrick for the reinstatement of the will of his father, the late Franklin Herrick, of Concord township.

The other children besides the petitioner are Daniel Herrick, [illegible] Herrick, Charles Herrick, Margaret A. Thomas and Jennette Culbertson. Mr. Herrick's death took place March 16, 1911, and his will, which was probated, was destroyed in the court house fire February 8, 1913.

A copy of the will, which disposed of a considerable amount of real estate and personal property, is set out in the petition for reinstatement. It is for the purpose of making sound the titles to the property affected that it is desired to reinstate the will.

Admits Guilt In Hold-Up

Frank Whitehouse entered a plea of guilty to the charge of highway robbery in the DeKalb circuit court Friday morning. Judge Dan M. Link took the case under advisement before passing sentence.

By his plea, Whitehouse confessed that he was one of the bandits who held up John D. Hamm, a Baltimore & Ohio railroad man, in Garrett the night of March 9. The other thug who participated in the crime was Forrest Alexander, a Fort Wayne youth who was a month ago given a sentence of ten to twenty years in the penitentiary. It is alleged that Maude Foar lured Hamm to a lonely spot for the holdup men, that her husband, Emil Foar, was one of the conspirators and received part of the loot and that Alice Krull, wife of Whitehouse, arranged the affair.

After Alice "squealed" on her husband he admitted his guilt to the sheriff, but when taken into court at that time he pleaded not guilty. When the sheriff again escorted him into court Friday, he announced he was ready to change his plea to that of guilty.

The grand jury has been investigating the affair since Wednesday under the guidance of Prosecuting Attorney Charles S. Smith, and it will make its report to Judge Link Saturday morning.

Auto Hand Signals

An Indiana statute provides the following hand signals for automobile drivers:

"No driver of a vehicle shall stop suddenly, slow down or attempt to turn around without first signalling his intentions with outstretched arm or otherwise, to those following closely in the rear. An operator intending to turn his vehicle to the left shall extend his arm in a horizontal position and slow down. An operator intending to turn his vehicle to the right shall extend his arm with the forearm raised at right angles and slow down. An operator intending to stop his vehicle shall extend his arm and move it up and down in a vertical direction."

The signals given by safety officials, but not those provided by Indiana law are as follows: To stop, put hand straight out from the body; for right turn, hand is held above the horizontal position; for left turn, hand is placed below the horizontal position.

What God Says.

1 Thes., 4:14,15

For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.

For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep.

[illegible]

Farewell Party

About twenty young friends of Miss Louetta Daily gave her a farewell surprise party Tuesday evening. The time was spent in a social way and a delicious luncheon was served. Miss Daily left Wednesday evening for Hicksville, O., where she joined the Hart's Girl Band which left the same evening for Atlantic City where it will fill a fifteen weeks engagement.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	120	$ 7.19
M. P.	78	8.57
Lutheran	70	3.93
M. E. Spencer	101	7.52
Lutheran	123	6.71
Newville U. B.	100	4.40
Christian
Coburntown	90	3.22
Concord	70	4.56
Rehoboth
Mt. Pleasant	114	4.00

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Gertrude Watson, of near Spencerville, was a Monday and Tuesday guest of her parents, Leroy Kinny and wife.

Mesdames J. H. Benner and John Miller were Wednesday guests of the C. E. Tarney family. Mrs. Tarney is still bedfast suffering the injury she received from falling, which was noted last week

The 3rd. Quarterly Meeting for this year was held Monday evening at the Newville U. B. church.

A meeting of the committees was held at the U. B. parsonage, Monday evening, to make arrangements for the memorial program.

Mrs. Madonna Richmond and two children were here from Peora, Ill., the first of the week visiting her husband Arthur Richmond's relatives.

Pig Club Activities

The pig club work will be county wide. Any boy or girl in the county can be in the pig club by filling in the blanks in the letter below and forwarding it to the county agent. The pig club will be supervised by local township leaders, the vocational teachers and the county agent, or on the same basis as it was last year.

The following township farm bureaus have set goals as follows for pig club work:

Township	No. Members Finishing
Butler	5
Concord	10
[illegible]	10
[illegible]	15
[illegible]	20
[illegible]	20
[illegible]	5

It is only about one month yet before the pigs will be weighed. [illegible]

[illegible]

To County Agent
From [illegible]

(Do not forget to fill in this blank.)

I understand I must have my pig in my possession on June 1st so that it can be weighed by the local leader or county agent.

(State here the township in which you live and number of miles from center school house or other good land mark. Also fathers name.)

I live in ....
Twp., ...miles from
....
Father's name..............................

PANELED CLOTH SKIRT

Spring presents its separate skirts of wool or silk or cotton and those for general wear are called "walking skirts" to distinguish them from sport skirts. Here is a pretty new model made of crepe. It is cut on straight lines and has a separate belt of the material. Around the bottom there are set-in panels trimmed with rows of narrow silk braid in a contrasting color.

Prefer Hen's Eggs

George Cohan, the greatest electric sign advertiser in the theatrical world, in discussing advertising recently, said:

"When a duck lays an egg, she just waddles off as if nothing had happened. When a hen lays an egg, there is a whale of a noise; hence, the demand for hens' eggs. Moral: Advertising pays."

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Get your job work done now. We'll do it right.

The H. H. Todd family moved the first of the week to Fort Wayne.

William Hamm spent Tuesday at Fort Wayne.

Children's Day is not far off. Look out for Concord.

Get your pickle seed now. It is waiting for you at the News Office.

Cabbage 15c; Tomatoes 20c; Celery 10c., and other plants at reasonable prices at The News Office.

Mrs. F. H. Langley and Mrs. Riding were Fort Wayne visitors Tuesday.

Sidney [illegible] of Newville was a Monday evening supper guest of his niece, Mrs C. C. Bassett and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz spent Sunday at Hunternown the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. [illegible].

Memorial services will be held at the Coburntown Church at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. The program will consist of good music and an address. Everybody is invited.

Next Sunday special memorial services will be held at Concord Church in the morning. Every member and ex-member of the church and community should be present.

[illegible]

BAD BREATH

DO YOU WANT your friends to avoid you? They will certainly do so when your breath is bad. There is no excuse for anyone having a bad breath. It is caused by disorders of the stomach which can be corrected by taking Chamberlain's Tablets. Many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by the use of these tablets after years of suffering. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets

American Boy

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the.................Number to Name ....
Address ....

Please return those plant jar to the News Office

Isn't It True

Generally speaking, there are four classes of individuals:

1. The one who must be told what to do, how to do it, and checked up in the doing of it.

2. The one who must be told what to do, how to do it, but who is so thorough as not to need to be checked up in the doing of it.

3. The one who must be told what to do, but who is resourceful enough not to need to be told how to do it, and who is so thorough as not to need to be checked up in the doing of it.

4. The one to whom a general policy may be given, and who is resourceful enough not, to need to be told what to do or how to do it, or to be checked up in the doing of it.—Sinclair Oils.

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

CARNATIONS
FOR DECORATION DAY

We were unable to supply the demand for carnations at Mothers' day time but we are promised enough for all for Memoriol occassions. The finest one can buy. Give us your order early.

Geraniums

Buy of our pretty, thrifty plants to decorate your lot with this week. They will stay nice all summer.

[illegible]

Cash In Hand

Has a knack of melting away for little things that you would not buy if you had to draw a check to pay for them.

Cash In This Bank

Has a knack of growing because of the discouragement of small unnecssary spendings. Open an account here and you'll save money in spite of yourself.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

I am reopening the DeKalb TANKAGE PLANT AT Auburn Junction and ask that all farmers having dead stock, please notify me by telephone, reversing the charges.

Phone 180

G. Becker, Jr.

A pack of employees, like a pack of cards, may make better hands if

—‡—‡—‡—

Advertising will always be the silent partner of the wise man. Peculiar, isn't it? But nevertheless a fact that this silent partner does most of the talking in the most successful establishments.

YEAR-ROUND CONVENIENCE

That set of [illegible] that you have is good, because they were made that way. But how much better they'd be if they had a solid floor, and had sideboards on them. Then you could haul corn or hogs or coal or most anything.

It will cost about eighteen dollars to make a real bed of them, including the new sideboards [illegible] the handy end-gate [illegible] the whole thing up [illegible] you can have [illegible] the year round.

[illegible]

[illegible] Lumber Co.

SPENCERVILLE

J. S. Hollabaugh and children spent Sunday in Detroit.

Vernie Kelley is the owner of a new Ford touring car.

F. W. Silberg recently purchased the Frank House property.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 200 West Seveuth St., Auburn, Indiana.

Wm. Allen and son Vaugh, are working in Ft. Wayne painting residences.

I. C. Bowser and family, of near Wayne, spent Sunday afternoon with R. U. Bowser and family.

Rev. Uphoff, the former M. E. pastor now located at Arcola, visited friends here, Friday.

Miss Garnett Beams and Paul Dean were entertained at Sunday dinner in the S. D. Steffey home.

We may give advice, but we cannot give conduct.

The Misses Kathryn and Helen Hursh were Sunday guests in the B. F. Markle home.

Mrs. Sylvia Vanzile left Sunday for a two week visit with George Vanzile and wife, of Hamilton.

Raymond Bowser, wife and daughter Cleo, were Saturday guests of his brother, Homer Bowser and family.

Mrs. Cora Steward left on Sunday morning to visit her father, Daniel Bare, of Mifflin, Ohio, who is very ill.

Miss Phyllis Greene, of Garrett, who spent several days with friends here last week, returned home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Dwight Coolidge and daughters Lois and Mary, and Mrs. James Vallieu and son William, spent Monday at Hicksville.

The Martha Class of the Lutheran Sunday School was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Beams.

FOR SALE—6 H. P. I. H. C. gas engine, mounted on steel truck. Price reasonable. See Ray Farver, Spencerville.

Edward Rorer left on Monday for his home at New Paris after a short visit with his daughter, Mrs. Ashur Culp and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gorden and family, of Garrett, were Sunday guests of Frank Baltz and wife. John Gorden will remain and visit his aunt.

Mrs. James Vallieu and children, and Mrs. Sarah Koonts visited the former's mother, Mrs. Mellie Wise and family, of Waterloo, several days this week.

Miss Bina Zimmerman, of Angola; Earl Stiman and family, of Rehobeth; and Ray Zimmerman and family were Sunday guests of Wesley Zimmerman and wife.

The Misses Esther and Mary Henderson, Elizabeth Thorne and Clarice Hahn, attend the County Sunday School Convention at Butler, Monday and Tuesday.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Lutheran Church will attend the Luther League Convention at Harlan. Several members from here are on the program.

Miss Aillen Allen and Karl Hart received word that they had successfully passed the recent county teachers examination. Miss Allen passed with an average of 99.2.

Rolla Moffitt and family and Ray Roderfer, of Auburn; and Paul Adams, of Ft. Wayne; and Wm. Sommers and wife, of Coburntown, Sundayed at the home of Jacob Baltz and wife.

Mrs. Kate House, who has spent several weeks visiting her sister, Mrs. Joel Betz and husband, and other friends here, left Sunday to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Eva Strube and family, who resides near Detroit.

B. F. Markle and family were Garrett callers, Saturday evening. The Misses Gaylen Markle and Florence Beams attending the District Christian Endeavor Rally held in the Presbyterian Church there, Saturday afternoon and evening.

MICKIE SAYS

Buy NOW -Pay as you RIDE

R. & L. Plan of Time Payments Enables You to Spread the Purchase Price of Your FORD Over a Whole Year and to Get Delivery with First Payment.

You can get dividends of pleasure out of A FORD CAR for your family. You know that as well as we do, but maybe you feel—as many other good business men do—that this is not a time to tie up a considerable sum of cash money where it won't bring in a cash return.

That's why we have made arrangements to give our customers the benefit of the R. & L. Plan—backed by a great Chicago financial house of unlimited resources and great business experience.

On the R. & L. Plan you can buy a Ford without tying up any great sum of cash at all and you can pay for it—by the month—for the year—in installments that are so small that you will not notice them.

Let us give you full particulars at once. See us at your first available opportunity, or let us send a representative to see you.

You can buy Ford Commercial Cars on the R. & L. Plan, too! Over 50% of the Cars Built To-day are sold on Time.

The Sign on the Windows of Live Ford Dealers Everywhere is a Seal Lock, reading "BUY YOUR FORD CAR — R. & L. Plan — $1 A DAY" and an attached Key, reading "Small Payment Down — Unlock The Door To Opportunity."

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

FRANK W. SILBERG

Spencerville, ✤ Indiana

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. E. [illegible] D V M

[illegible]

OFFICE and HOSPITAL

[illegible] IND.

Phone [illegible] No. 7

[illegible] D V M

Citizens' Military Training Camps, 1922

The opportunity offered by the Government to competent young men for a month of Camp Life is being enthusiastically embraced by the young men all over the state of Indiana.

The Government offers to pay all expenses including transportation to and from the camp and to furnish uniforms, arms and equipment as well as food, and necessary medical attendance. In other words all necessary expenses are paid by Uncle Sam.

The young man is returned to his home after a month of Camp Life and he is under no further obligations to the Government than if he had remained at home idle. Those who are fortunate enough to be selected will in addition to the pleasure of a month of Camp Life return to their homes with stronger physiques, with a knowledge of sanitation and how to care for themselves in the field. They will have met young men from various parts of the country and formed new friendships. They will have learned the rudiments of Military Science and fitted themselves to assume in case of War a more responsible position.

The Government expends all the money necessary to carry on these camps because in the long run, ample returns are assured in improved citizenship, a stronger cleaner manhood, a more devoted patriotism and in numbering among its young men a certain number who in time of emergency have a knowledge of Military Affairs.

Three courses will be given designated as the Red, White and Blue courses, beginning about August 1st.

Final selection of the successful applicants will be made shortly by the Commanding General, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

All inquiries should be addressed to 84th Division Headquarters, 408 Federal Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Patronize the advertisers.

If you suffer from biliousness, constipation, headache, nervousness, sallow complexion, loss of appetite, bad taste in mouth, Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Pills will certainly straighten you out. [illegible] Drug Store.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MAY

CLOSE CO-OPERATION NECESSARY BETWEEN CANNERS AND GROWERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Growing canning peas is a specialized industry which requires the closest co-operation between the grower and the canner. A new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1255, "The Production of Peas for Canning," by Chester J. Hunn, assistant horticulturist, has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. This bulletin describes the plan followed by canners to provide a supply of peas, and the methods the growers should use in growing, harvesting and handling the crop.

Being legumes, canning peas fit admirably into a general farm rotation in sections where the crop can be grown and have a marked influence in increasing the yield of crops which follow them. Easy accessibility to a cannery which will contract for the entire output is a necessity if the growing of canning peas is to be undertaken on a commercial scale. Peas for canning pass their prime condition within a very few days, and the time to harvest. From 10 to 15 acres of peas will maintain a fair rotation balance for a farm of 100 acres.

Such crops as alfalfa and clover may be sown as companion crops with peas. In many sections of the country where the early types of peas are harvested during the first part of June the land may be fitted immediately for some other crop. Often a poor crop of peas may be deliberately turned under without harvesting to get the secondary effect upon any succeeding crop. The increase with wheat following this practice has been noted in New York state as varying from 5 to 18 bushels per acre. Some farmers believe that a marked improvement is also seen on the hay crop and on the pasturage which follows the wheat.

General Suggestions.

Good drainage is very important. Fall plowing is recommended where it can be practiced without injury to the land, and thorough fining of the top layer of soil at planting time. Weeds are partly prevented by the early working of the ground, by the heavy cover formed by the pea vines, and also by the early harvesting of the crop. Stable manure, when available, may be applied with advantage. Many growers prefer to apply the manure to the previous crop rather than directly to the peas. Manure mixed with decayed pea vines should not be used as this practice is liable to spread diseases affecting the crop. The growing of peas increases the nitrogen content of the soil. Inoculation of the seed will often give an increase of 100 to 700 pounds of peas per acre.

Loading Peas to Be Hauled to the Canning Factory.

it is necessary to handle the crop promptly.

Refuse Is Big Asset.

In dairy and stock-feeding regions the utilization of pea-vine refuse as feed is an important asset. Many canneries winter large herds of stock profitably, using pea-vine silage for the greater part of the ration. When pea vines are completely rotted they have a fair fertilizing value but the material should not be used on land to be planted in peas. It is considered a better practice to feed the roughage to stock and obtain manure from the animals, thus securing a double return on the vines and labor.

Peas rank third in tonnage among the canned vegetables of this country. The industry, which originated near Baltimore, Md., is now centralized for the most part in the region about the Great Lakes. In 1920 there were 12,313,000 cases of peas canned, which represented 133,272 tons of peas grown on 139,188 acres.

Fertile Soil Is Needed.

The pea crop requires a mellow, fertile, well-drained soil. The seed bed should be deeply prepared and left with a smooth surface to facilitate harvesting with a mower. The crop, as usually grown in drills like wheat, requires no cultural attention after the seed is sown. Being essentially a cool-weather crop, it is grown most successfully in those regions where the spring is a little slow in changing from cool to warm weather.

The location of a canning factory is determined by the suitability of the section for the growing of peas and by the prospects of obtaining, at equitable prices, sufficiently large crops in the vicinity to run the plant at its full capacity for a reasonable length of time. The pea crop is usually grown under contract. The canning company usually specifies the varieties and acreage to be planted, often provides the seed, and decides

Seed should be procured from a reliable source. It should be from the crop of the previous year and not a blending of new and old seeds. The time for planting and harvesting is determined by the locality. Methods of harvesting and practices followed in disposing of the pea vines are discussed in the bulletin, which is available on application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Valuable Plant Overlooked.

One very valuable garden plant often overlooked is tame greens. A few square feet will yield many potfuls of food rich in iron, and at a time when green food is most welcome. Kale, spinach and turnips are fine for this.

Better Farm Houses Help.

Better farm homes would be great incentives for better farming and higher standards of living on some farms. Farmers should live comfortably while they live and give their children a chance to enjoy life.

Plant Horse Radish Early.

Horse radish roots should be planted as early as possible. Straight roots the size of a lead pencil and about six inches long are best.

GROW COWPEAS IN ROTATION

Few Crops Are Equal to It When It Comes to Standing Drouth—Good After Grain.

Cowpeas are excellent crops to follow wheat and oats in a rotation. As soon as the small-grain crop is harvested and removed, a crop of peas may be planted. If the season is suitable a good crop of peas may be expected. Few crops will endure hot weather as peas and very few are equal to it when it comes to standing drouth.

PROTEIN FEEDS ARE NEEDED

On Average Farm Such Roughages as Alfalfa Hay, Clover or Pea Hay May Be Fed.

A dairy cow may take on flesh when she receives a carbohydrate ration; but her milk flow will continue to diminish [illegible] protein feed is included [illegible] the ration. Protein feeds are essential where dairy cows are fed for profit. On the average farm such roughages as alfalfa hay, clover or pea hay may be fed to form the bulk of the protein ration, while cottonseed meal is satisfactory for supplying protein in concentrated form.

To Get Rid of Blue Bugs.

Blue bugs, like the mites, are blood suckers. They hide in the poultry house during the day. Due to their larger size and thicker skin they are harder to combat than mites.

The best treatment seems to be a good coat of crude oil throughout the poultry house.

Remedy for Scaly Legs.

Scaly legs are caused by a small mite getting under the scales [illegible] inflammation and swelling.

First wash the leg with warm water, then saturate it with [illegible] this every five days until cured. Thoroughly disinfect the house.

[illegible]

Bluff Opinion.

[illegible]

New Skirt Wins Miladys Favor

On Broadway their skirts are short a-way to the knees, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. The college girls around Columbia wear theirs, too, at this high stopping place. But, take a walk on Fifth avenue any of these afternoons, and you will not fail to see the skirts descending and descending. And, when you do see the newer and the smarter things as they are actually worn then you are forced to confess that you like them.

Their smartness lies not alone in the fact that they are distinctly new, but they shine because they are so beautifully proportioned and designed. It is not only that the skirts have descended, but the waistlines have done the same thing in a totally harmonious fashion, and the sleeves are just as long in proportion, so that the smart woman's figure becomes something with a new appearance rather than of any lengthened appearance. In other words, before you know it, your skirts will be long, too, and you will hardly know the difference.

A certain comfort lies in these newer and more formal clothes in that they are notably suited to the more mature figure. The girlish stuff of the last few seasons looked all right on some of the older women, but if we are honest on the subject it did not superlatively become all of them. And the scant straightness of the gowns that are passing into fashion's discard had many unflattering ways with them when they adorned the lines that were more plump.

Now these newer frocks with all their fullness and draping and pleating offer many little subtle tricks by which a figure that is more than ordinarily large or of unlovely proportions may be so softly obliterated that the dress walks right into the class with the leaders of fashion. Really the newer dresses are more artistic things than were their predecessors. They have kept the best from the older styles and have added new points that make them absolutely fascinating.

For Conservative Women.

Newer full length dresses from Paris are designed to suit the more conservative woman as she makes a choice for her wardrobe. One by Madeleine and Madeleine is of that softly flowing type which has taken so firm a hold upon the women who are taking up the newer lines and dresses. Only the wide band of embroidery at the waistline and the buttons along the edges of the flowing sleeves suggest any trimming arrangement. But the lines of the frock are its glory, and they are used here only to illustrate the sort of dress which is becoming increasingly popular.

A frock of this kind covered by a loose and flopping coat with sleeves that are as wide as they can manage to be, is the sort of costume that you can see now and again at the smart gathering places in town. There are more of them to be noticed every day and even if you have pledged yourself to short and sport clothes for good because of their entire comfort you cannot help but turn about to admire the new costumes with all their couturier. Its embroidery, of course, takes up every color in the rainbow and then adds silver and gold. It is a subtle handling of color with no repeat anywhere about the gown, the plain black being left to set off the loveliness of the color as it is massed over the hips.

[illegible]

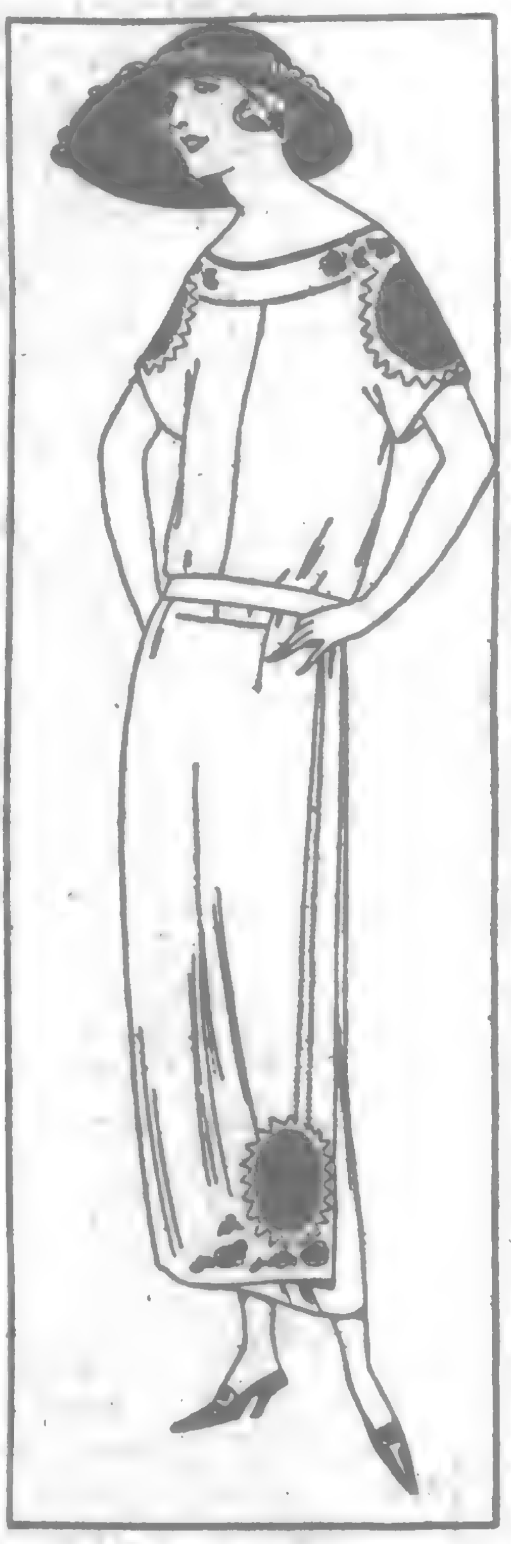
New Dress of Blue Serge.

Another frock, by Patou, is the latest French interpretation of what they are pleased to call "serge marine." Now spring, and no season in fact, is complete without its brand new dress of blue serge and in the designing of this type of frock the French most certainly excel. This one has retained all of the attributes which made the serge frock of last season a real success. It has the straight line. It has the coat dress opening. It has the embroidery. And it has the short sleeves. But, how differently all of these fine points are arranged. The embroidery is distributed in quite a unique way. The sleeves, while they are short, are still very much more loosely fitted than were those in the old days. The waistline is long and the belt is but loosely attached and fitted. Then, too, the lines of both the skirt and waist are ample and full and left to go their own sweet way rather than being held tight enough to outline the figure in any radical way.



Winsome Serge Frock.

The fact is that this dress is an excellent example of the serge dress that is popular and good in style just now. There are many of them to be seen no matter where you turn your head, but the best of them have the long lines that are characteristic of this model and always they are as simple as can be in all of their expression.

Now the coats which are chosen to wear with these dresses are perhaps just as interesting as the dresses themselves, for no matter what may be the general character of the coat this season, it still must have about it enough of looseness and floppiness to place it in the picture class. And when it is used to cover a frock which in itself is already picturesque, then the combination cannot well help but be charming.

Capes in Great Number.

Of capes there are many, and even more than that, to be seen upon the streets. The newer wraps have sleeves of some sort, either set into them [illegible]

"111" cigarettes

They are Good! 10¢

Buy this Cigarette and Save Money

Remarkable Indeed.

"You see that stout old chap in the corner?" asked Jones.

"Yes. Whath about him?" replied Smith.

"He's a wonderful acrobat."

"Go on! He looks like a stock broker."

"So he is."

"But I thought you said he was an acrobat."

"He's both. I asked him yesterday whether he was busy, and he said: 'My boy, I just hang on from day to day, keeping my nose above water by the skin of my teeth.'"

A Second Chance.

"Do I understand you to say that you will sell this $70 dining-room set on the installment plan for only $500 down and $3 a week?"

"That's the offer."

"Why, man, by the time it was paid for it would be old and worn out."

"Yes, I know. But then you could sell it for a genuine antique!"—Judge.

A Dove of a Girl.

"Has your typewriter a billing attachment?" "No; but she has a cooing attachment." 6

His Answer.

Crossing the street the Woman dodged the motorcars, taxis and wagons. She was almost safely on the other side when a very young boy on a bicycle almost steered into her.

The Woman turned around. "Why don't you blow your horn instead of almost knocking a lady down?" she called out crossly.

The boy grinned. "Lady," he yelled, "you can't blow what you ain't got!"—Chicago Journal.

Cutícura Soothes Baby Rashes

That itch and burn, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap followed by gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. Nothing better, purer, sweeter, especially if a little of the fragrant Cuticura Talcum is dusted on at the finish. 25c each.—Advertisement.

Avoiding Extremes.

"Do you admire skirts so short as to justify the term 'flapper'?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne, "yet I don't want them so long as to brush the street. There should be a happy medium between the flapper skirt and the flopper skirt."

Rock Island

Greatly Reduced Fares
Colorado and West!

Summer Excursions—lowest in years—to Colorado, California and the National Parks. Choice of routes going and returning; stopover anywhere; superior service.

Rocky Mountain Limited to Colorado
Golden State Limited to California

Comfort and Courtesy are your fellow travelers on the

Rock Island Lines

Mr. L. M. Allen, Vice President
Rock Island Lines
743 La Salle Station, Chicago
Please mail me without charge, your publications on ☐ Colorado ☐ California
(Check the book or books you desire)

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA
Round Trip for Single Fare
Plus Two Dollars
Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month
A splendid opportunity is now offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to look over
Western Canada's Farming Possibilities
[illegible]

GLORY AND THE SACRIFICE

In Which the Gift and the Giver Tell Each a Separate Tale

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE Honorable Peter Wentworth was not a church-going man, and when he appeared at the prayer meeting on that memorable Friday evening there was at once a most irreligious interest manifested by every one present, even to the tired little minister himself. The object of their amazed glances fortunately did not keep the good people long in suspense. After a timid prayer—slightly incoherent, but abounding in petitions for single mindedness and worshipful reverence—from the minister's wife, the Honorable Peter Wentworth rose to his feet and loudly cleared his throat:

"Ahem! Ladies and gentlemen—er—ah—brethren," he corrected, hastily, faint memories of a godly youth prompting his now unaccustomed lips; "I—er—I understand that you are desirous of building a new church. A very laudible wish—very," with his eyes fixed on a zigzag crack in the wall across the room; "and I understand that your funds are—er—insufficient. I am, in fact, informed that you need two thousand dollars. Ahem! Ladies—er—brethren, I stand here to announce that on the first day of January I will place in your pastor's hands the sum of one thousand dollars, provided"—and he paused and put the tips of his forefingers together impressively—"provided you will raise an equal amount on your own part. The first day of next January, remember. You have nearly a year, you will notice, in which to raise the money. I—er—I hope you will be successful." And he sat down heavily.

The remainder of that meeting was not conspicuous for deep spirituality, and after the benediction the Honorable Peter Wentworth found himself surrounded by an excited crowd of grateful church members. The honorable gentleman was distinctly pleased. He had not given anything away before since—well, he had the same curious choking feeling in his throat now that he remembered to have felt when he gave the contents of his dinner pail to the boy across the aisle at the old red school house.

After all, it was a rather pleasant sensation; he almost wished it had oftener been his.

It was not until the silent hours of night brought a haunting premonition of evil to the Reverend John Grey that the little minister began to realize what the church had undertaken. One thousand dollars! The village was small and the church society smaller. The Honorable Peter Wentworth was the only man who by even the politest fiction could be called rich. Where, indeed, was the thousand to be found?

By the end of the week an urgent appeal for money had entered the door of every house in Fairville.

This was in February, yet by the end of May there was only four hundred dollars in that fund treasury. The pastor sent out a second appeal, following it up with a house-to-house visit. The sum grew to six hundred dollars.

Then the ladies held a mass meeting in the damp, ill-smelling vestry. The result was a series of entertainments varying from a strawberry festival to the "passion play" illustrated. These heroic efforts brought the fund up to eight hundred dollars. Two hundred yet to be found—and it was November!

With anxious faces and puckered brows, the ladies held another meeting in that cheerless vestry—then hastened home with new courage and a new plan.

Bits of silk and tissue paper, gay-colored worsteds and knots of ribbon appeared as by magic in every cottage. Weary fingers fashioned impossible fancy articles of no earthly use to any one, and tired housewives sat up till midnight dressing dolls in flimsy muslin. The church was going to hold a fair! Everything and everybody succumbed graciously or ungraciously to the inevitable.

The fair and a blizzard began simultaneously the first day of December. The one lasted a week, and the other three days. The people conscientiously plowed through the snow, attended the fair, and bought recklessly. The children made themselves sick with rich candies, and Deacon White lost his temper over a tin trumpet he drew in a grab bag. At the end of the week there were three cases of nervous prostration, one of pneumonia, two of grippe—and one hundred dollars and five cents in money.

The ladies drew a long breath and looked pleased; then their faces went suddenly white. Where was ninety-nine dollars and ninety-five cents to come from in the few days yet remaining? Silently and dejectedly they went home.

It was [illegible] that the Reverend John Grey [illegible] the occasion and [illegible] himself [illegible] all [illegible] [illegible] proached. The tree for the Sunday school had long since been given up, but Christmas eve a forlorn group of wistful-eyed children gathered in the church and spoke Christmas pieces and sang Christmas carols, with longing gaze fixed on the empty corner where was wont to be the shining tree.

[illegible]

It was on Christmas day that the widow Blake fought the good fight in her little six-by-nine room. On the bed lay a black cashmere gown, faded and rusty and carefully darned; on the table lay a little heap of bills and silver. The woman gathered the money in her two hands and dropped it into her lap; then she smoothed the bills neatly one upon another, and built little pyramids of dimes and quarters. Fifteen dollars! It must be five years now that she had been saving that money, and she did so need a new dress! She needed it to be—why—even decent!—looking sourly at the frayed folds on the bed.

It was on Christmas day, too, that the little cripple who lived across the bridge received a five-dollar gold piece by registered mail. Donald's eyes shone and his thin fingers clutched the yellow gold greedily. Now he could have those books!—his eyes rested on an open letter on the floor by his chair; a mimeograph letter signed "John W. Grey." Gradually his fingers relaxed: the bit of money slipped from the imprisoning clasp, fell to the floor, and rolled in flashing, gleaming circles round and round the letter, ending in a glistening disk, like a seal, just at the left of the signature. The lad looked at the yellow, whirling thing with frightened eyes, then covered his face with his hands, and burst into a storm of sobs.

On the 26th of December, the Reverend John Grey entered on his list: "Mrs. Blake, $15; Donald Marsh, $5."

The little minister's face grew pale and drawn. The money came in bit by bit, but it wanted twenty dollars and ninety-five cents yet to complete the needed thousand. On the 27th the teacher of the infant class brought a dollar, the gift of her young pupils. On the 28th, nothing came; on the 29th, five cents from a small boy who rang the bell with a peal that brought the Reverend John Grey to the door with a startled hope in his eyes. He took the five pennies from the small dirty fingers and opened his mouth to speak his thanks, but his dry lips refused to frame the words.

The morning of the 30th dawned raw and cloudy. The little minister neither ate nor slept now. The doorbell rang at brief intervals throughout the day, and stray quarters, dimes, and nickels, with an occasional dollar, were added to the precious store until it amounted to nine hundred and eighty-five dollars and eighty-five cents.

It was nearly midnight when there came a gentle tap at the study door. Without waiting for permission the minister's wife turned the knob and entered the room. Her husband sat with bowed head resting on his outstretched arms on the desk, and her eyes filled with tears at the picture of despair before her.

"John, I suppose we can take this," said she, in a low voice, reluctantly laying a little pile of silver on the desk; "there's just ten dollars there." Then she recoiled in terror, so wildly did her husband clutch the money.

"Where did you get this?" he gasped.

"I—I saved it from time to time out of the household money. I meant you should take it and go out to Cousin Frank's for a rest and vacation after this was over," said she doggedly.

"Vacation! Mary—vacation!" he exclaimed, with unutterable scorn. Then he fumbled in his pocket and brought out a little change. With trembling fingers he picked out ten pennies and a five-cent piece, putting a lone quarter back in his empty pocket.

"Thank God, Mary, we've done it!" and the man's voice broke.

New Year's night there was a jubilee meeting in the town hall. The Reverend John Grey hurried through his bread-and-milk in some excitement. He was to preside, and must not be late.

The hall was full to overflowing. On the platform with the minister sat the deacons of the First Congregational church—and the Honorable Peter Wentworth. The well-fed, well-groomed honorable gentleman himself looked about with a complacent smile—this was indeed a most delightful occasion.

The Reverend John Grey's address was an eloquent tribute to the great generosity of their distinguished fellow townsman. The minister's voice trembled affectingly, and his [illegible] flushed with emotion. The First Congregational church was [illegible] indebted to the Honorable [illegible] Wentworth, and would fain express its gratitude.

The minister's wife listened with a [illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD HIGHWAYS

FEDERAL-AID HIGHWAY WORK

Texas Leads With 1,116.4 Miles Completed, and Minnesota Ranks a Close Second.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Measuring the network of federal-aid highways spread over the country during the past five and one-half years, the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, places their total length, January 1 last, at 28,741.6 miles, and their cost at approximately $500,000,000. The figures represent 12,007 miles of completed roads over which traffic is flowing today and 15,834 miles of roads under construction and on that date estimated to be, as a whole, 70 per cent complete.

In mileage of completed federal-aid roads, Texas leads with a total of 1,116.4 miles. In addition, there were under construction in Texas on January 1 a total of 1,381.9 miles of federal-aid highways whose estimated total cost was nearly $22,000,000. Minnesota ranked second, with 1,066.6 miles, in the amount of completed federal-aid highways, the cost of the system being slightly over $10,000,000. Of that sum the federal government paid $3,878,663. In Minnesota there were under construction the first of the year 791.2 miles of federal-aid highways, whose estimated cost was placed at $10,055,757. Other states with comparatively large mileages of completed federal-aid highways on January 1 were:

Illinois, 722.9 miles, costing $24,608,958, of which $11,221,464 was paid by the federal government; Nebraska, 682.7 miles, costing $3,627,767, of which the federal government paid $1,735,763; Wisconsin, 500.6 miles, costing $6,702,100; Arkansas, 438.2 miles, costing $5,148,080; Georgia, 688.4 miles, costing $11,017,390; Iowa, 422.4 miles, costing $7,969,981; North Carolina, 419.71 miles, costing $5,641,733; Idaho, 407.1 miles, costing $6,472,552, and Washington, 354.9 miles, costing $8,081,285.

Completed federal-aid highway construction in some of the Eastern and Middle Western states where the character of roads was of high type and the cost correspondingly greater per mile was as follows:

Pennsylvania, 390.1 miles, costing $19,002,504; Ohio, 370.2 miles, costing $12,475,569; New Jersey, 78.3 miles, costing $3,442,224; Massachusetts, 120.5 miles, costing $4,891,036, and Maryland, 137.8 miles, costing $3,752,233.

A Stretch of Hard-Surfaced Road.

Projects under construction and the degree of their completion January 1 in other states were as follows:

California, 382.9 miles, 55 per cent complete; Georgia, 492.9 miles, 65 per cent complete; Iowa, 998.7 miles, 86 per cent complete; Kansas, 471.8 miles, 69 per cent complete; Louisiana, 354.5 miles, 82 per cent complete; Minnesota, 791.2 miles, 65 per cent complete; Mississippi, 464.3 miles, 64 per cent complete; Missouri, 535.1 miles, 70 per cent complete; Montana, 412.8 miles, 77 per cent complete. Nebraska, 914.1 miles, 94 per cent complete; New Mexico, 551.9 miles, 54 per cent complete; New York, 347.9 miles, 44 per cent complete; North Carolina, 507 miles, 88 per cent complete; North Dakota, 810.2 miles, 80 per cent complete; Ohio, 298.2 miles, 91 per cent complete; Oklahoma, 308.2 miles, 64 per cent complete; Pennsylvania, 248.6 miles, 94 per cent complete; South Carolina, 410.7 miles, 59 per cent complete; South Dakota, [illegible] miles, 70 per cent complete. Tennessee, 449.1 miles, 48 per cent complete; Texas, 1,[illegible] miles, 59 per cent complete, and Wisconsin, [illegible] miles, 75 per cent complete.

HIGHWAYS MORE ATTRACTIVE

Shade Trees Set 50 or More Feet Apart [illegible]

[illegible]

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom-in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES 40 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

O-So-Easy to Use
Colors Silk, Wool, Cotton
All At The Same Time.
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
10c per Package
WHY PAY MORE FOR ANY DYE?

MADE FOR EMPEROR'S TABLE

Massive Silver Set Ordered by Napoleon I Put on Exhibition at New York.

The massive silver set of 919 pieces ordered by Napoleon I, during the hundred days, delivered after his abdication to Louis XVIII, and used by the French royal family at Tuileries palace from 1815 to 1830, has been placed on exhibition in New York. Two bullet holes in the soup tureen bear evidence of the revolutions it has passed through. Each article bears the Bourbon coat of arms, the fleur de lis surmounted with the crown and is stamped with the official government mark, the mark of the chief craftsman and of the guild. Napoleon I ordered this set of silver from Biennais on his return to France from his first exile on the island of Elba. It was made during the hundred days of Napoleon's second reign, but before it could be delivered Napoleon was forced to abdicate and was again exiled this time to end his days on St. Helena. Louis XVIII, his successor, paid Biennais for the silver and had the Bourbon coat of arms placed on it. The set of silver passed finally to the heirs of the duc de Chambord and through them has come to North America.

Tough.

Two negroes were lying behind a packing case on the docks at Brest taking the labor out of the alleged labor battalion. Said one boastfully:

"Boy, Ah comes f'um a tough breed. My ole man done cut his nails wif a ax an' brash his teef wif a file."

"Huh, ain't so tough. Mah ole man am a plumber, an' twice a week he done shave hisself wif a blow torch."—American Legion Weekly.

Folks who really practice self-denial don't talk much about it.

"DIVORCE RING" THE LATEST

Fad Recently Adopted by Those Freed From the Marital Tie by Court Proceedings.

From time immemorial woman has worn on the third finger of her left hand a plain band of gold as a symbol of her honored position of wifehood. And when death takes from her the partner of her life she signifies her loss and grief by wearing appropriate garb.

But in what a different manner today the widow of the present, that is, the one who by the sanction of the courts, has resigned her job as wife, makes known to all the world her renewed state of single blessedness. For the grass widow of today has just adopted the latest of fads, the "divorce ring." The jeweled symbol of the severance of the marital tie takes the place of the former gold band. It is made of gold or platinum on which is mounted a broken Cupid's bow at the end of which is set a jewel to represent a divorce. Should the wearer once more embark on the matrimonial seas and again come to wreck then another jewel is added to indicate the second divorce, and so on.

She Is Considered Talkative.

A Northeast matron is considered talkative. Her chatter usually is bright and entertaining and her good friends only laugh at her loquaciousness. Others, not such good friends, sometimes complain they can't "get a word in edgewise," when she is the company. Two friends called Sunday. They were met at the door by Elmer, nine years old. He admitted them, then went to the stairs and called:

"Mother, come down. There's someone here wants to hear you talk."—Kansas City Star.

Pay day comes pretty often for the man who works for the devil.

MADE HIS MEANING CLEAR

Old Darky's Description of Wife's Failing Aptly Spelled Out Word He Didn't Understand.

Moses Diggs, an old Alabama darky, had been arrested for having more than one wife, the last woman being the complainant. He happened to be well known locally and considered an orderly character.

"How many wives have you had?" demanded the examining judge.

"Six, yo' honah," was the reply.

"Why couldn't you get on with them?"

"Well, suh, de fust two sp'iled de white folks' clo's when dey washed 'em; de thu'd worn't no cook; de fo'th was ject nacherally lazy; an' de fifth—I'll tell you', jedge, de fifth, she—"

"Incompatibility?"

"No, yo' honah," said the negro, slowly, "it worn't nothin' like dat. Yo' jest couldn't git on with her onless yo' was somewhars else."—Harper's Magazine.

Planet Without Oxygen.

According to the spectroscopic studies made at the Mount Wilson observatory of the light received from Venus, no oxygen-absorption lines are found. This indicates that there is no oxygen or water vapor in the outer atmosphere of Venus, and furthermore that the reflected light of the sun must have penetrated to a considerable depth.

It therefore appears necessary to attribute the great brightness of Venus to some other cause than that of high reflective power of water-vapor clouds, and this apparent absence of oxygen must be considered in connection with speculations as to the conditions of the planet.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Smiles that won't come off are apt to become monotonous.

When Hungry Little Muscles Say, "Please Help Me"

DID you ever stop to think who it really is that's talking, when childish voices raise a clamor, "Mother, I'm hungry?"

It's really muscles and bones and nerves and cells worn in the stress and strain of play—that are calling for rebuilding material.

What kind of an answer? The right thing, or just anything? It makes a big difference.

Grape-Nuts, so deliciously crisp and appetizing to taste, and so quick and convenient to serve, is a splendid food for rebuilding young bodies. All the wonderful nutriment put in wheat and barley by Nature, including the vital mineral elements, is there—and Grape-Nuts digests easily, quickly and completely. Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is exceptionally nourishing.

"That's splendid!" says appetite. "That's just the need!" say the hungry muscles, nerves and bones.

Ready to serve right from the package—always crisp and fresh. A favorite dish with all the family. Sold by grocers.

Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder
"There's a Reason"
[illegible], Battle Creek, Mich.

MAY

270

TRY
Country Maid Flour
For Good Bread

Let us sell you Chick Feed.

Oyster Shells, 100 lbs. $1.20

Tankage and Fish Meal
100 lbs. $3.50

CHOP GRINDING OUR HOBBY

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
St. Joe, Inc.

J. O. Quance is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. C. Hull, this week.

When in town get your pickle seed at the News Office.

Earl Sherer, of Washington, D. C., was visiting old friends in St. Joe the fore part of the week.

Ross Abel left Tuesday for Indianapolis to attend the republican state convention.

Mrs. Chas. Jackson, of Concord, spent the evening recently with her sister, Mrs. Van Lysher.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Patrice Wineland, of Auburn, came Saturday to visit her grandparents, John Wineland and wife, and other relatives.

Salva plants, 5 cents each, at the News Office.

Bert Timmerman and family, of near Spencerville, spent Monday with Sam Kees and wife.

J. J. Oberlin, of Butler, died last Wednesday after several months of illness.

It may be too late for corn or oats but lots of time for pickles yet. Plant them June 1-20.

M. A. Miser and wife, of Waterloo, were Saturday evening supper guests of Ed Miser and family.

Get your pepper, tomato, celery, astor plants at the News office.

J. C. F. Abel and wife left Tuesday morning for a few days visit with their son, Glen Abel and wife, at Peru.

Mrs. Willis B. Brown, a sister of Mrs. Florence Buchanan, of Los Angeles, is seriously sick, suffering from a cancer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickman have rented the Mrs Ann Abel property on Widney Avenue and will move there soon.

SCEEN TIME

Screen doors, window screens, screen wire, hinges, etc., in the different styles and sizes. Our prises are low and reasonable.

Don't forget

We have most anything you wish in stoneware from 1-2 gallon butter crocks and plain crocks up to the large size including jugs, spitoons, floor pots, and the like.

A Bargain in Bicycles

Think of buying a real guaranteed bicycle for $25. This includes mud guards, stand, double bar frame—motor-bike type, rubber pedals, big spring seat and handlebars, and equipped with coaster brake.

In The Next Ten Days

we will sell a guarante'd 25 cent package of Powdered Polish for 10 cents or 3 for 25 cents.

Wm. Curie
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Build up your system and feel fine all the time by taking Tanlac. Dr. Sheffer.

Stanley Koch and wife, of Huntington, visited with his grandparents, C. C. Curie and wife, Sunday evening.

Frank Bowman, wife, daughter Eloise, and Mrs. Mary Bowman spent Sunday afternoon at Auburn guests of Barbara Simanton.

Word from Elmer Hart, of Napoleon, Ohio, was received recently that he had been confined to his home for four weeks by rheumatism

Why mope around, half sick and listless, when health and strength are yours for the asking? Take Tanlac. Sheffer's.

Miss Juanita Kinsey spent the past week a guest of her brother, Harry Kinsey and family, of Fremont.

E P. Brown and family visited their wife and mother at the Hope-Methodist hospital at Ft. Wayne, Sunday afternoon.

Reuben Koch and family have moved from Cherubusco and are occupying his farm home northwest of here.

Howard Northrup who has been ill with rheumatism, part of the time confined to his bed, is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. William Price and daughter, Margaret, left Tuesday for their home at Denver, Colorado, after several months visit here with relatives.

Wanted—Someone to put out about 3 acres of ground to corn and potatoes, crop rent.
Mrs. Thomas Laub,
Butler phone No. 4-50.

H. L Dunkle, wife and daughter, Miss Ella Rabe and little Miss Mary Jane Kelsey, all of Wayne, spent Sunday afternoon with J. C. F. Abel and wife.

Miss Ethel Lindley spent from Thursday until Saturday, and Miss Alma Lawson spent Saturday night guests of their grandmother, Mrs. Virginia Lawson.

Nathan Royer and sister, Mrs. John Eshelman, and Mrs. Netty, all of Orville, Ohio, came Saturday evening for a visit with a sister of the two former, Mrs. Christian Curie.

Will Koch and wife, Sam Keesler, wife and daughter Jane, Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and little Dorothy Brown, and the Rev. Mr. Bell, of near Butler, were Sunday afternoon callers of Clay Coburn and family.

Gray Woodcox and wife, of Waterloo, called at the home of their uncle, G. W. Woodcox and family, Sunday evening. Also Ed Woodcox, of Logansport, spent over Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodcox.

Mr. and Mrs. Florence Buchanan entertained Sunday afternoon, Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and son Dean, George Swift and wife, all of Butler; C. H. Brown, of Ft. Wayne; Fred High, and Mrs. Frank Rhoades, of Spencerville.

C. A. Patterson has traded his property here in St. Joe, now occupied by Earle Smith, to George B. Wilson, of Ft. Wayne, on a grocery store in Ft. Wayne, corner DeWald and [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. A. [illegible] of [illegible] F. A [illegible] of [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] ity attended the County Sunday School Convention, Monday and Tuesday at Butler. Monday a- [illegible]

Plants at the News Office.

A baby daughter was born Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade.

Mrs. Emma Bishop will entertain the W. C. T. U. Friday afternoon.

The Auburn schools closed last Friday.

The St. Joe Community Welfare Band furnished the music at the all day meeting held at Concord Sunday.

Angola lost to Auburn in their first game of baseball for the season, with a score of 3 to 2.

The dry goods store of F. C. Kaiser at Edon, was recently robbed of more than $900 worth of silk.

Mrs. Cora Long and daughter Priscilla, of Auburn, were Saturday dinner and afternoon guests of Miss Marie Goldsmith.

William Nagle, of near Defiance, joined his wife and daughter here Monday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer.

Merritt Sechler went to Hicksville Monday morning for a couple of days visit with his sister, Mrs. Everett Mavis, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Eppler and son and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richardson, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler spent the day Sunday with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Staman, Jr.

Jesse Copp and family, of New Haven, spent Sunday here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe and Mrs. Alice Copp.

Martin Tustison accompanied Gray Woodcox and wife, of Butler, to Convoy, Ohio, last Friday, to visit in the home of C. A. Woodcox until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton and daughter were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Northrup.

Amos Luttman has been appointed chief of police for the city of Auburn, to take the place of John Bunge, who resigned last Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Scholes went Sunday to spend the week with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Dehner and family, near Decatur.

A large delegation from here attended the County Sunday school convention held at Butler, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Long and Mr. and Mrs. Shull, of Auburn, and Miss Marie Goldsmith were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull, Miss Goldsmith being an afternoon guest only.

Lee O. Tustison and family, of Defiance, and Earl Tustison and family, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tustison.

T. A. Northrup, son and mother, Mrs. Howard Northrup, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shilling visited the former's wife at the Sacred Heart hospital at Garrett, Sunday.

Two men were killed, a student and a carpenter, and several injured in a terrific gas explosion in a physical laboratory at Harvard University, Friday afternoon.

Governor McCray said in a recent speech that the insane, feeble minded and epileptic classes in Indiana cost the state last year the enormous sum of six million dollars.

William J. Donovan, of near Indianapolis, will be refused all clemency. He is a prisoner in the state prison at Michigan City, under sentence to die in the electric chair June 1 for the murder of his wife July 21, 1921.

Ralph Sechler and family and Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of Fort Wayne, spent a few days visiting relatives here. Miss Grace Curie returned home with them to be Mrs. Dilley's guest for a few days.

Mrs. Belle Harmon, of Fort Wayne, came last week for an indefinite visit with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice. Also Sunday afternoon the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Horstmeyer, of Fort Wayne, were guests.

A new Studebaker touring car belonging to [illegible] Rhoads, of Auburn, was taken last [illegible] from its parking place in [illegible] of the new McIntosh school building in Auburn, and was found [illegible] near Auburn Junction, [illegible]

[illegible] was [illegible] Judge Dan [illegible]

Miss Marg[illegible] of [illegible] son, was stricken with a heart [illegible] and died within a few minut[illegible]

Attractive Terms On Farm Mortgage Loans

We are making loans to farmers. with first mortgage as security, on very attractive terms and conditions.

You will find it greatly to your advantage to see us when in need of money.

Call at our office for complete information.

STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA

15
9
216
225

Christian Church Notes

Rev. Bell, of near Butler, preached at the evening services Sunday evening.

The Martha society will meet with Mrs. Stella Hughs, Thursday. Members feel free to bring their own work.

The Loyal Boys and Girls class will meet with Miss Viola Coburn Friday evening.

The Orchestra is losing its first cornetist in the person of Miss Louetta Daily, who leaves this week with the Hicksville Hart's Girl Band which will play through the summer at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Eva Sheffer was chosen delegate for the County Evangelistic meeting which will be held at Auburn Wednesday evening.

Rev. R. B. Daily filled the pulpit at the Hamilton Christian church Sunday morning.

The Christian Endeavor has not disbanded or discontinued for the summer. The attendance Sunday evening was fine and the interest the same. You are always welcome.

M. P. Church Notes

Regular Services at the morning hour—9:30—Sunday School.

Decoration Servicer will be held at 2 o'clock.

Evening services at 7:30 The orchestra will furnish special music, several numbers, for this service. The pastor will speak on the subject, "What is a Christian?" An invitation is given to all to attend

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves the catarrhal inflammation, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus assisting to restore normal conditions.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS
THE Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.
OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN
FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE
Friday, June 2, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

L 912

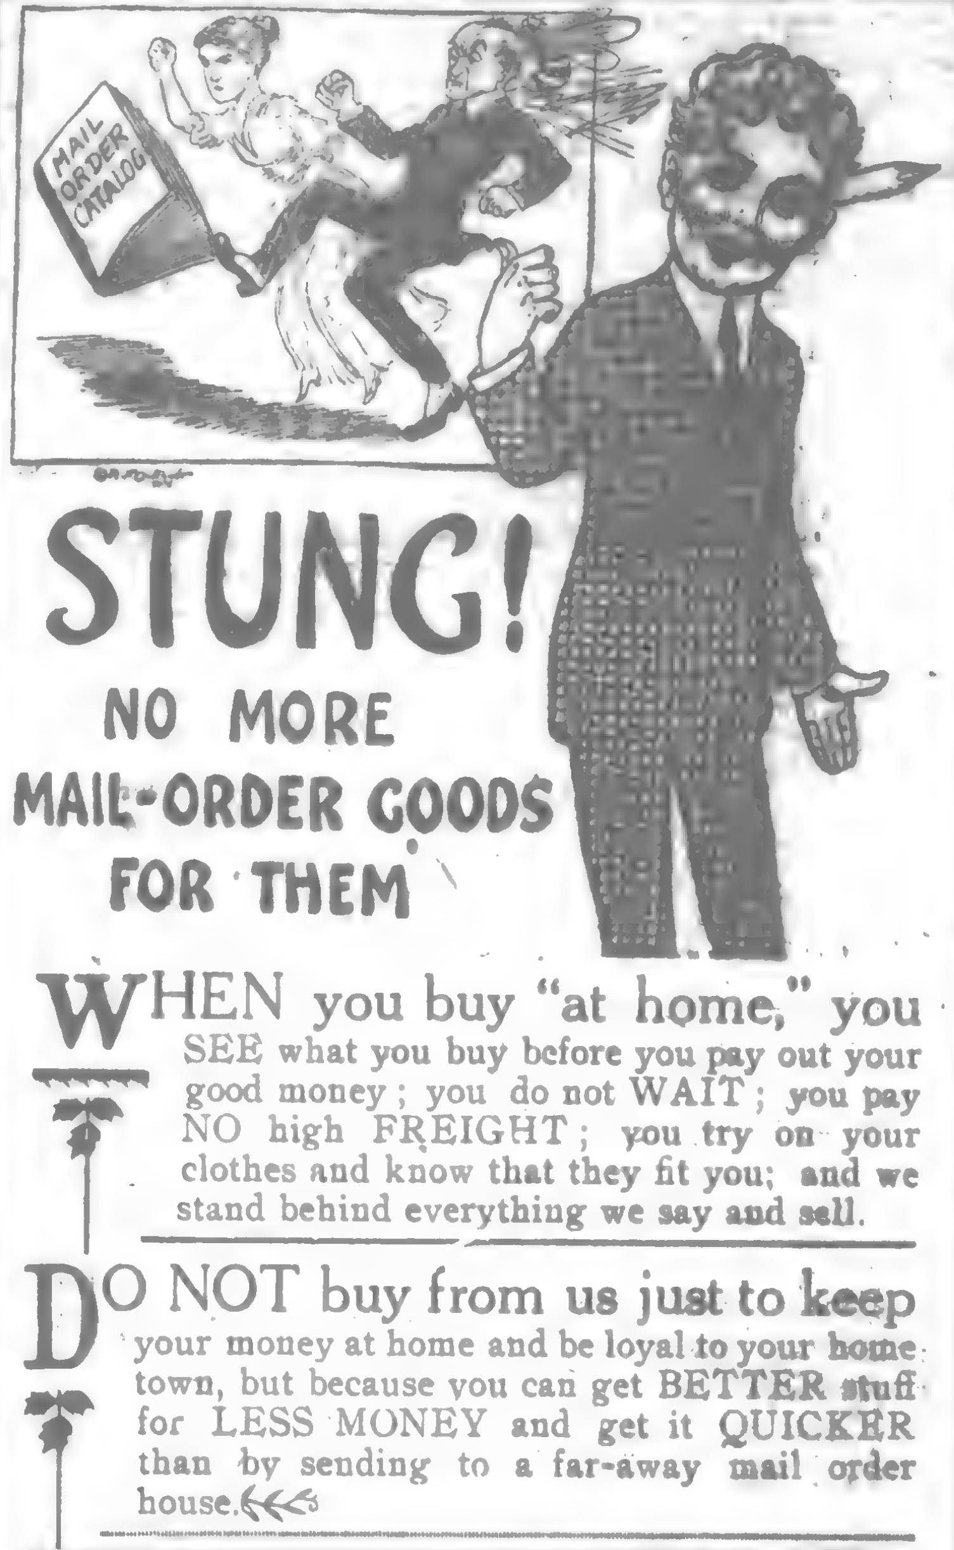
JUNE

JUNE

L 912

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1922 No. 22



WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL

Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN

No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED

Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL

Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will [illegible] be better able to pass on your request for accommodation if you should find yourself in need of it. Get the habit of doing business with us and we will try to make it worth while to you.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Hicksville Newspaper History.

May 25, the Hicksville News, to have its last issue this week, was founded forty-nine years ago by Frances Brooks, it first being called The Independent.

It was afterwards sold to Thomas Star, who changed its name to The Hicksville News, and has so continued until the present time.

In time Star sold it to Thad G. Dowell and it was conducted some years by him and then a half interest was sold to Edward Coburn, the two conducting the paper a short time when Thad G. Dowell sold out and Mr. Coburn leased the plant to Ben B. Dowell.

Ben B. Dowell about twenty-seven years ago sublet a half interest to M. J. Schell, who in a few months became the publisher as a whole.

Something like four years later the latter withdrew from the publication and Frank Coulter became publisher, to be followed in a short time by Claude Gleason, followed in turn by Mr. Coburn, he being still the owner of the plant.

He in turn sold the publication to Lee O. Tustison, and after a few months he to Charles Leason, and he in turn to A. D. Schaufelberger.

Battershell & Greer leased the plant of Mr. Schaufelberger and conducted it until the present and last issue.

Thirty-six years ago The Tribune was founded by W. C. B. Harrison under the name of The Independent and it had a checkered career and flunked out a couple of times, various men engaging in its production. Among those following Mr. Harrison were Fisher & Tolman, Holderman, Griffin & Coulter, Coulter Bros., Ray Waymon, G. K. Otis, Rev. Kreeble, W. R. Holden, and about fifteen years ago M. J. Schell purchasing it, Rev. Kreeble changing its name to The Tribune while he was owner.

When Arthur Schell attained his majority he became a partner in The Tribune, and The News-Tribune, as it will be known, will be conducted by M. J. Schell & Son.

What God Says.

(JAMES 3:5-8)

Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth.

And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, it tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind.

But the tongue no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

Christian Curin Dies

Death came as a [illegible] to the long [illegible] of [illegible] at two o'clock. [illegible] had lived on his farm [illegible] Joe for many [illegible] St. Joe [illegible] He was the [illegible]

[illegible]

AUBURN FREE FALL FAIR

ORGANIZATION FORMED TO PROMOTE ONE FOR THIS FALL

Officers to have charge of the free fall fair in Auburn this fall were selected at a meeting of farmers and business men in the assembly room of the court house Wednesday night.

S. H. Nugen of Auburn, president of the fair last year, was re-elected for this year's exhibit. J. W. Mertz of Fairfield township was selected as vice-president; J. C. Provines of Jackson township, secretary; and David Shook of Richland township, treasurer.

The meeting was called Wednesday evening by Mr. Nugen, president of the Auburn Commercial Club, for the purpose of forming an organization, which in addition to having charge of the exhibit, will ask the county council to appropriate $1,500 to be paid as premiums at the fair this year.

A nominating committee was appointed consisting of J. W. Mertz, J. C. Provines and W. H. Schaab, and they selected the following nine directors: David Shook, S. H. Nugen, J. C. Provines, F. E. Johnson, Sim Hamman, J. W. Mertz, E. E. Turner, Frank Praul and Lloyd Yeiser. This committee later met and selected the above named officers.

The county council has given the fair man assurance that it will appropriate money for the premiums when an organization is perfected to receive the money. This organization was completed Wednesday night and the request for an appropriation will be presented at the next meeting of the council.

The $1,500 asked will be but a small part of the money needed to conduct the fair. Donations, as in the past, will be asked of the Auburn business men. The board of directors in the near future will select the committees to assist in arranging and conducting the exhibit this fall.

Propose 4-Day Fair

Several suggestions were made at the meeting Wednesday evening regarding the fair, one that the fair be held four days instead of three. There was some complaint among the live stock men last year because their stock was not judged until near the close of the exhibit. It was suggested Wednesday night that if a four day fair was held the stock could be entered on Tuesday, as the first day and the judging could be completed by the time the big crowds came on Thursday and Friday.

Another matter talked of was the conflict with the date of the Angola fair. The exhibit for a number of years has been held on the same week of the Angola fair and many residents in the north part of the county would like to attend and exhibit at both fairs. This matter will be discussed later and if possible a change will be made in the date so as not to conflict with Angola. It is possible that the fair will be held the last week in September instead or the first week in October.

Farmer Found Dead in Bed.

John C. Friend, living a mile and a [illegible] southeast of Newville, was found dead in bed Friday morning when his son, Harry, with whom he made his home, on returning from the barn after attending to the chores discovered his father [illegible].

The county coroner was immediately called and found that Mr. Friend, who was 78 years of age, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Services Well Attended

[illegible]

here. Yet the talent obtained for the program, which was given at the Methodist church, would have drawn as many, perhaps, had the weather not been so fair.

The Community Welfare Band headed the line of march and rendered several fine selections. At the church the Choral Society furnished the music, in choruses and quartettes. Rev. W. H. Bransford, of Hicksville, lead the devotional and delivered the memorial address.

The children from the three [illegible] of the [illegible]

[illegible]

Clarence C. Woodcox Vernon F. Woodcox

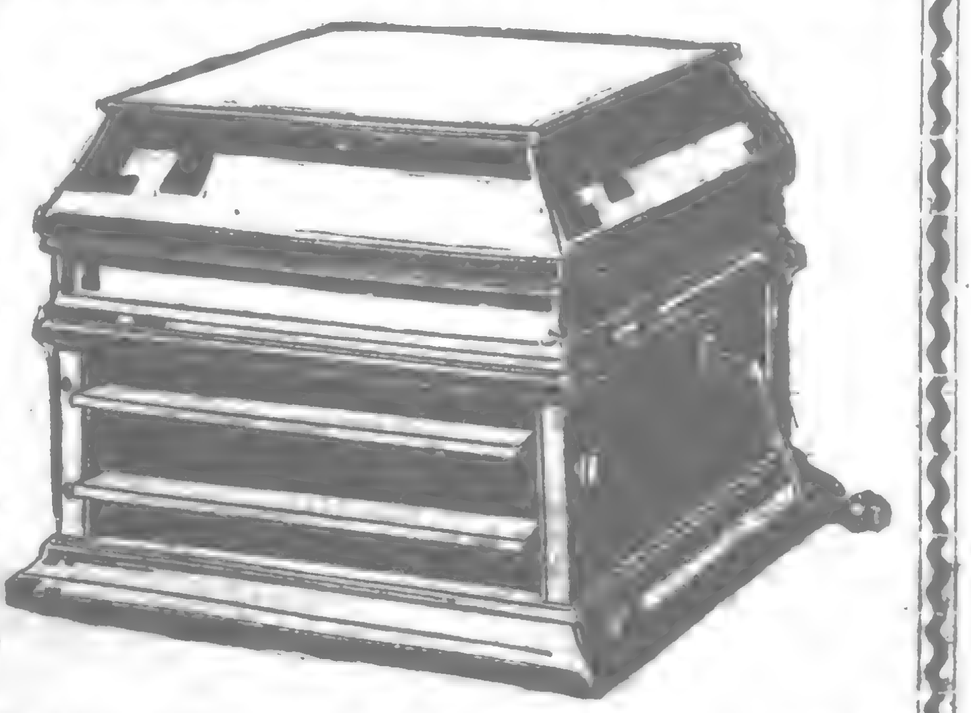
St. Joe Garage-

Boost St. Joe

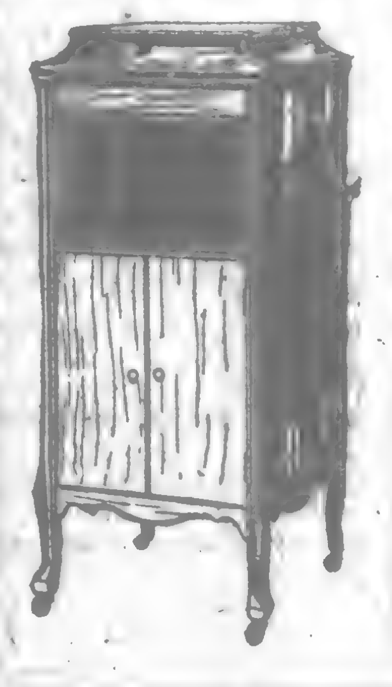
MAXWELL

Strictly a Service Garage

WELDING Done While You Wait
DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.



COLUMBIA GRAFONOLA



We are more than pleased to announce that we have secured the agency for the

Hoover Vacuum Cleaner

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Will We Breathe Dust

There is some talk of oiling the streets here again this year among some of the business men but not much of a general stir has yet been made. I would like to suggest that a meeting be called to discuss this subject and arrange for an oiling. I believe that every business man and citizen on the most-travelled streets stands ready to do their part to keep the dust down.

The Rebekahs will hold a MARKET at Mrs. [illegible]'s [illegible] station Saturday, June 3. Everybody [illegible]

[illegible]

JUNE

TO LET—AN APARTMENT

Being the Somewhat Complicated Love Story of a Man and a Maid, With Love Running True to Type.

By ELEANOR PORTER
Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

ON THIRTY-EIGHTH street east, in the parlor of a stuffy, four-room suite, Miss Josephine Barton looked over the newspaper attentively, her eyes coming to a pause halfway down the column.

"'Apartments: New, up-to-date, all modern conveniences, moderate rent,'" she murmured. "'Expressly designed for people of refined tastes and limited means. References required.' I—I am going to look at them," she finished with sudden decision. "It sounds as if it would be just the place for auntie and me."

On Thirty-eighth street, west, in a "second-floor-front" of a shabby, eminently respectable boarding-house, Major Hilton smoothed across his knees a copy of the same paper, and read the same advertisement.

"By George, I'll do it!" he exlaimed aloud. "And if they're what they pretend to be, I'll send for the little mother and—begin to live!"

Ten days later, before the door of a small apartment house far uptown stood two furniture vans—a red and a yellow one.

Above the sidewalk, in the twin bay windows of the second floor, Miss Josephine Barton and Major Hilton looked out upon a world in which nothing was familiar save their respective goods being unloaded below.

"Mm-m—someone has taken that other suite so soon," mused the lady; "now there are no more to let. Wasn't I fortunate!"

"By George!" grumbled the major in the other window, eyeing his neighbor's goods. "S'pose those belong to the lucky dog who took that south suite—and only two hours ahead of me, according to the janitor. Well, if I can't have that I'm mighty glad to get this," he added, as he turned away from the window.

Down on the sidewalk an oak costumer and a lady's standing workbasket stood side by side. A minute after they were flanked by two suitcases, twins in color, shape and size. Two minutes later a man from the red van swung the costumer across his shoulder and caught up one of the suitcases. As had been his custom throughout the afternoon he directed his steps toward number three, the south suite.

Thus it happened that at six o'clock that night, after the men had gone, Miss Barton confronted, in the middle of her bedroom floor, an unfamiliar, unlovely thing of oak and prongs.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, dropping limply back into the nearest chair. "Why, that isn't mine!"

Across the hall, the major in his bay window, was cutting the cords around a paper-covered object that stood perhaps two feet tall before him.

"Why, what—I don't remember—this can't—well, by Jove!" he finished, as the wrapping fell away and disclosed a lady's workbasket, dainty in white enamel and gold. "Well, by Jove!"

In the south suite Miss Barton rose to her feet.

"It must belong in number four," she murmured, circling around the costumer as if looking for an advantageous point of view. "What an ugly thing!—still, I fancy it is convenient. I—I ought to take it home, I suppose," she added, looking furtively at the door.

"Humph!" ejaculated the major across the hall, his eyes on the basket. "Rather neat—that! Mm-m; looks homey, and as if buttons were sewed on. Belongs to that lucky beggar in the south suite, I suppose. Seems to me he's got—well, when little mother comes, I'll look homey, and my buttons will be sewed.

And he caught up the basket and started for the hall door. The next moment he came face to face with his own image in the mirror of the hat-rack.

"Great Scott!" he cried, dropping the basket. "Where's that suitcase? I can't go looking this way!"

"I'll just change my stock," decided Miss Barton in suite three, as she picked up a tan leather suitcase and snapped the spring.

"Oh!" she gasped. "Oh—oh-h!"

"By Jove!" exploded the major across the hall. "Well, by Jove!"

Before Miss Barton's horrified eyes lay a man's vest, two neckties, a nest of collars and an immaculate, glistening shirt-front; before the major's [illegible] lay a fluff of lace and linen, a glimpse of pink and pale blue, and on top, as if hastily thrust there, a pair of black kid slippers.

"Oh!" stuttered Miss Barton, and closed the bag with a snap. [illegible]

[illegible] ly in the middle of the narrow landing.

"I beg pardon—"

"Excuse me—"

"Er—one of the men—"

"Through a mistake—"

"Very careless—"

"Thank you—"

"Thank you—"

Then two doors shut crisply. Behind one the major wiped his brow. "By Jove!—by Jove!" he exclaimed faintly. Behind the other, Miss Barton sank palpitatingly into a chair.

"Oh, it was awful—awful!" she gasped. "Aunt Emma, he—he had mine! Then she fell on her knees before the suitcase and fearfully pressed the spring. "Oh!" she cried, with pink cheeks, and shut the bag with a snap.

Getting settled was not a long matter in the south side. Miss Barton and her aunt, Mrs. Todd, made quick work of it. Across the hall it was different. The "little mother" could not come for a week yet, and the major spent much of this time in shifting his new furniture about from corner to corner. There was something else, too, which interfered not a little with the writing of his "Results of the Spanish War," upon which he was supposed to be just now hard at work—the major went shopping; he went shopping for a white enamel workbasket barred with gold.

As the major took all his meals out during those seven days, he passed very frequently up and down the stairway. Sometimes he met his neighbor of number three.

It was on the sixth day that Miss Barton, on going out for a loaf of bread, found the major sitting on the top step of the stairway. He arose at once as she approached, but when she came back ten minutes later he was again sitting on the top step.

For ten minutes Miss Barton moved restlessly about her rooms, then she once more put on her hat and coat and went out into the hall.

As before, the major sprang to his feet and retreated toward his own door, but Miss Barton did not seem to notice. In the little store around the corner she bought a paper of pins which she in no wise needed, and bent hurried steps homeward. At the top of the stairs she turned squarely around and faced the man skulking by the door of number four.

"Is there anything wrong? Are you in trouble? Can I do something for you?" she asked with a precipitation that hinted at a courage fast oozing out at her fingertips.

"Thank you, no—er—that is, I have been careless enough to leave my keys inside. I am waiting for the janitor—and a ladder."

"Oh, but the janitor went to Brooklyn this forenoon. He told me he wouldn't be back until five o'clock," said Miss Barton, pityingly.

For ten minutes more Miss Barton moved restlessly about her pleasant rooms; then she knocked at her aunt's bedroom door.

"Aunt Emma, Aunt Emma!" she called. "You'll just have to come into the parlor. He, next door, is locked out, and I've just got to ask him in until he can get a ladder."

"What!" demanded Aunt Emma, sitting bolt upright on the bed, where she was trying to get a nap. "What!"

Some minutes later, Mrs. Todd, sleepy and unwilling, sat in the parlor's easiest chair trying to knit; the major, flushed and ill at ease, sat in the bay window pretending to read; and Miss Barton, pink-cheeked and dignified, sat by her workbasket trying to look unconcerned.

For a time there was silence. The major, having been distinctly invited in to read, felt in duty bound to keep the paper raised before his face; but his eyes, more mutinous than his hands, left the paper and explored the territory within their range.

"There's something here—something that I haven't got," he mused; then his eyes fell on the workbasket. Down went the paper, and up went his chin determinedly.

"Miss Barton, could you—would you tell me where you got the basket?" he asked abruptly.

The lady's neck, cheek, and brow burned scarlet—it was the basket that had been truant with her [illegible] Suddenly the major [illegible] ly red. The [illegible] the courage [illegible] flashed from his eye.

"I asked," he went on with a [illegible] that surprised [illegible]

[illegible] suitcase and the embarrassing moment when she and the man had faced each other in the hallway. She decided at once that she had been too cordial, too kind, too free with this unknown, unpresented man.

The next time Miss Barton met the major on the stairs she merely bowed and dropped her eyes, whereat the major so far forgot himself as to turn and stare. The major had looked for better treatment. The major's remembrance of that charming afternoon in the restful room, where lived the woman with sun-flecked hair and peach-bloom cheeks, was very vivid; while the major's recollection of the suitcase episode was growing fainter every day.

Weeks passed. The little mother came to number four bringing cheer and comfort, and a sense of home; but she had not been there two months before she was summoned to a distant state to see a sick daughter, whereupon the major resumed his old habit of going out for his meals. His neighbor he seldom saw; when he did see her there were only the grave bow and the quickly averted eyes to greet him. He began to wonder if that delightful afternoon in the homelike room at number three were only a dream after all.

Did the major forget on that day just a week after his mother left?—or was he shamelessly making a shrewd attempt to find out for a certainty whether that afternoon was a dream or not? At all events, one o'clock and Miss Barton found him seated on the topmost step of the stairway.

"I'm locked out again," he announced cheerfully, as he rose to his feet. "And, if you'll believe it, that inconsiderate janitor has gone to Brooklyn, too."

Miss Barton raised her head. For an instant a repetition of the invitation trembled on her lips; then a certain exultation in the man's voice, an eager expectancy in his eyes, sent a swift suspicion to her mind.

Perhaps—what if he had done this thing on purpose? What if——

"I am sorry," she said gravely, and passed to her own door.

"Well, by Jove—by Jove!" muttered the major as the door shut her from view. Then he sat down on the topmost step and thought.

It was on a pleasant morning not long afterwards that Mrs. Todd left the house to spend the day in shopping. At ten, dressed in cool gray and white, Miss Josephine Barton opened the door and stepped into the hall. She had scarcely crossed the threshold when a gust of wind from the rear blew the door to with a bang.

"My key!" gasped the lady, her small teeth seeking her under lip. Then a relieved look come into her eyes. "Never mind—Aunt Emma will be here long before I get back from Tarrytown."

She took one step forward, then stopped. She pulled gently, then with force, at her gray draperies. With a quick indrawing of her breath she turned and looked behind her. Fully three inches of the hem of her skirt lay under the close-shut door.

"Oh!" she cried softly, and tugged again. "Oh, oh, what shall I do?"

At that moment came a click across the hall. Miss Barton turned right about face on the instant. She opened her purse and began carefully to scrutinize its contents.

The door across the hall opened and the major stepped out. There was an almost imperceptible pause while he waited for her recognition. It was then that Miss Barton made her first mistake. In her anxiety to appear natural and unconcerned she gave, not the usual cold bow and mute dropping of her eyes, but a dazzling smile.

"Good morning, major," she said brightly. "We must all be improving this beautiful day, you see."

It was the man's visible start of surprise that opened Miss Barton's eyes. She froze instantly.

"Certainly, certainly," beamed the major; then he caught sight of her stern, unsmiling face. "Er—certainly," he mumbled, as he turned and hurried downstairs, wondering the while if it were his ears or his eyes that were playing him false this time.

When silence once more reigned in the hall Miss Barton dropped wearily to her knees, twisted her body about, and brought both hands to bear on the gray skirt. It was useless.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" moaned Miss Barton. "What can I do? I can't stay here all day!"

A clatter of steps from the floor above brought her painfully to her feet; and again she scrutinized the contents of her purse. [illegible] a tenant from number five [illegible] down the stairs. [illegible] At the end of an hour [illegible] ing, white and exhausted, [illegible]

"Miss Barton, I—I am going to dispute you," began the major desperately, perspiration starting to his forehead. "When everything is all right, people don't stand for an hour counting money in their pocket books."

"Why, really; how—how do you know I have been here an hour?" she demanded, determined at all costs to keep from this one man, at least, the knowledge of her predicament.

"Miss Barton, is it—money?" he burst out. "Won't you let me—aid you? You—I—doubtless you have started out with not so much as you thought you had," he went on, trying to make volubility cover embarrassment. "I assure you, I——"

"It is not money," interrupted Miss Barton, icily; the next instant she bit her lip with vexation.

"Then there is something!" cried the major. "Miss Barton, you—you are locked out!" he declared with sudden inspiration.

There was no answer.

"You are!"

Still no reply.

"What a shame!" exclaimed the major sympathetically. "But, never mind—I'll have the janitor here in short order. I saw him down to the corner not five minutes ago."

And the major leaped down the stairs two steps at a time. Ten minutes later, flushed and disturbed, he faced Miss Barton again.

"He's gone—the rascal!" panted the major. "Totally disappeared into thin air! But, Miss Barton, couldn't you—can't I do something?"

Miss Barton shook her head; then she laid hold of her courage with both hands.

"I was going to Tarrytown," she explained. "I would go now, only—my dress is caught—in the door."

"My dear lady!—you poor thing!—I beg of you, allow me!" And the major was down on his knees at her side tugging at the dress.

"I'm afraid I shall—tear it," he faltered at last.

"Never mind if you do," returned Miss Barton miserably.

"Oh, but—it would be a shame!—such a pretty dress!"

In spite of herself Miss Barton smiled. The pink in her cheeks departed.

"If you have a knife you might—cut it," she suggested faintly.

"Never!" protested the major, springing to his feet.

Suddenly the man straightened himself and squared his shoulders—not for nothing had the major been placed in command of men.

"My dear lady," he began authoritatively, "there is only one thing to be done; but first I'm going to make you comfortable." And he disappeared into his own apartment.

When the major came back he had an ottoman, three cushions, and a book. A minute later, in spite of protests, Miss Barton found herself seated on the ottoman, the cushions at her back against the door, and the book in her hand.

"Now where is Mrs. Todd?" demanded the major. "I'm going for her keys."

"You can't find her. She's shopping," announced Miss Barton, tragically.

"Then we'll stay here till she comes," retorted the major, dropping himself upon the topmost stair with a long sigh that certainly was not one of discontent.

Fortunately the hall was light, the building being only three stories high and having a big skylight in the roof.

Also, fortunately but two families lived on the floor above; and as members of both had already passed Miss Barton on their way out, there were few curious eyes to be amazed at the remarkable tete-a-tete on the middle landing.

It was at noon that the major and Miss Barton feasted gayly on chicken sandwiches, hot coffee, cake, and ice-cream brought in by the major from a neighboring restaurant and spread on his mother's sewing-table.

One, two, three hours passed. The prisoner and her attendant talked, read aloud, and told stories. At four o'clock Mrs. Todd, coming quietly upstairs, found the two deep in a game of chess.

"For heaven's sake!" ejaculated Mrs. Todd, clutching at the balusters with both hands—she had nearly fallen backwards.

When explanations had been given, the door opened, and the gray dress released, and when Mrs. Todd had disappeared in her own room, Miss Barton turned a flushed face to the major.

"Thank you," she said. "You—you have been very kind."

"Miss Barton, I'm a fighter; I'm not a diplomat. I know no way except to come straight to the point. Once before I passed a pleasant afternoon with you [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JUNE 4

JEHOIAKIM TRIES TO DESTROY GOD'S WORD

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 36.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Word of our God shall stand forever.—Isa. 40:8.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Isa. 55:8-11; Matt. 5:17-19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Burning of a Good Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jehoiakim Burns the Prophet's Book.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A King Who Scorned God's Word.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Meet the Forces Antagonistic to God's Word.

I. The Book Being Written (vv. 1-4).

1. The Time of (v. 1). In the fourth year of Jehoiakim, Jeremiah had been exercising the prophetic ministry some thirty years.

2. Against Whom Spoken (v. 2). They were directed against Israel, Judah and all the nations.

3. The Purpose of (v. 3). The grand object of the Lord in sending this message by the prophet was Judah's repentance.

4. Method of (v. 4). Jeremiah dictated the words of the Lord to Baruch the Scribe, who wrote them upon a roll of a book.

II. The Book Being Read (vv. 5-21).

Jeremiah was unable to speak the message of the Lord to the people, as he was "shut up" (v. 5). "Shut up" most likely means a royal ban against Jeremiah's proclamation of God's Word to the people or against his entering the temple.

1. To the People (vv. 6-10). The occasion which brought the people together was a day of fasting (v. 6), because of the threatening of the Babylonians. Jeremiah directed Baruch to read to the people the words of the Lord which he had dictated to him, with the hope that the people would present their supplication before the Lord and return every one from his evil way.

2. To the Princes (vv. 11-19). While the reading of the book unto the people seemingly created no great impression, yet Michaiah was so deeply moved that he went to the scribe's chamber where the princes were assembled and declared unto them all the words which he had heard Baruch read. The princes sent for Baruch to come and bring the roll with them. Baruch came and read to them with the result that (1) they were aroused with fear (v. 16). (2) They inquired as to how he had written the words (vv. 17, 18). To this he replied that he had written in the book the words which Jeremiah had dictated to him. (3) Their concern for the safety of Jeremiah and Baruch (v. 19). They were instructed to hide themselves from man's sight.

3. To the King (vv. 20, 21). The princes regarded the words of the Lord to be of such importance that they should be read in the hearing of the king, for he was mainly involved in the judgments pronounced. Upon their report of the matter to the king, he had Jehudi bring the roll and read it to him in the presence of the princes.

III. The King Destroying the Roll (vv. 22-26).

Instead of becoming penitent and afraid he became enraged and cut the roll leaf by leaf and threw it into the fire until it was consumed. This he did against the intercession of some of the princes. When the roll was destroyed he ordered Jeremiah and Baruch arrested.

IV. The Roll Rewritten (vv. 27-32).

The burnt roll was reproduced by the command of the Lord, and many like words were added unto them. We should learn from this incident—

1. The Indestructibility of God's Word. Men may cut it to pieces and burn it, but the Word of God shall stand forever. It comes to light again with woes added to be visited upon its would-be destroyers.

2. The reason men attempt to destroy God's Word. It is because of the authoritative rebuke of their sins. The Bible arraigns man for his pride and wickedness and asserts God's sovereign power over man and his demand for a personal surrender unto Him and worship of Him.

3. The Method of Attempted Destruction of God's Word. It was part by part. "When Jehudi had read three or four leaves he cut it with a penknife." The rationalist today cuts out the biblical conception of God as a being [illegible] nature de[illegible]; therefore [illegible] of man [illegible]

[illegible]

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.Advertisement

Not Well Acquainted.

Uncle Ben was a zealous member of the church. His brother, Uncle Billy, in late middle life, was yet numbered with the "goats," but was finally converted.

At the next service the preacher called on Uncle Billy to lead in prayer. Uncle Billy knew his deficiencies and remained silent. Again the preacher called, and a third time. [illegible] "Brother Billy, please lead us in prayer."

"Pahson, call on Brudder Ben." He's better 'quainted wid de Lawd dên I is," Uncle Billy finally suggested.—New York Mail.

NAME "BAYER" IS ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear, if You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The "Bayer Cross" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.—Advertisement.

Long Trip Ahead.

"Mrs. Gadder has taken up a new cult."

"She'll exhaust its possibilities in about ten days."

"Not this time. The high priest has informed her kindly, but firmly, that it will take her at least six months to pass the outer portals."

Rats in the Cellar, Mice in the Pantry, Cockroaches in the Kitchen

What can be more disagreeable than a home infested with pests? Destroy them with Stearns' Electric Paste, the standard exterminator for more than 43 years.

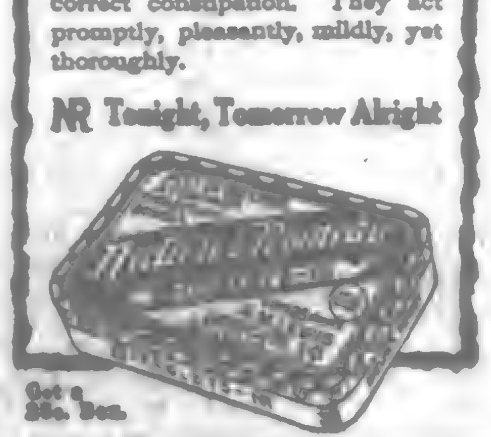
Kill rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs or ants in a single night. Does not blow away like powders; ready for use: better than traps. Directions in 15 languages in every box. Money back if it fails.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

NR Tonight, Tomorrow Alright



Get a 25c. Box.

SALESMEN—INVESTIGATE—AGENTS
Your opportunity, make big money; $2.25 profit on $3.00 article. Sell direct or Mail Order. Every storekeeper, manufacture and business man buys them. Write for particulars. J. J. SCHRINER, 2007 Detroit Avenue, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

AGENTS—TO SELL FRUIT DRINKS
Free [illegible] sales easy. Big profit. 25 cent package—[illegible] glasses. Lesco Products Company 1616 Leland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CASH PAID—HERBS, ROOTS, LEAVES [illegible] money selling them. [illegible] we [illegible] for all kinds. [illegible] JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

Ladies. Men—[illegible] Weekly guaranteed taking [illegible] New York

ABSORBINE

[illegible]

THE ST. JOE NEWS, ST. JOE, INDIANA

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

—13—

Polly combed her hair and washed her face and hands. Billy-goat Hopkins was in his place at the wood-box eating a handful of oats she had gleaned for him along the roadside. Polly wished that she might take him, too, but as long as she could not, Billy should have a better feed than usual.

After everything else was attended to, she unwrapped the silken dress and put it on. Her bare feet showed from under the hem, but she had decided she looked better without the boots, and as she stood gazing at herself up and down, she regretted that she had not asked Evelyn for a pair of shoes too. Being careful not to soil her skirt, she knelt and allowed Jerry to climb on her shoulders.

The moment she stood outside the shanty in the rain, she shivered. The damp air nipped at her uncovered arms and neck. To travel the long distance to the station, so illy covered, was out of the question, and the gown would be drenched through in a few minutes. She turned back into the shack and placed Jerry on the cot.

"Jerry wants to see Daddy Hopkins," the child whimpered. "Ain't we goin', Pollyop?"

"Yep, sure!" said Polly. "But sister's got to put on her boots. She can't go this way. It's too cold and the walk to Ithaca's too long, honey."

Her brow puckered into a frown as she drew on her father's heavy boots and slipped into his ragged coat. Then she tucked the dress into the top of the boots that it might show as little as possible and went out again.

It was a long climb to the boulevard; and the boy was heavy. But he was very quiet, and a sudden rush of tears almost blinded her as she turned toward the city. How delighted both Jerry and Daddy would be when they spied each other! Gulping down her tears, she shut out the thought that perhaps some one would catch her breaking the law and clap her in jail too.

Granny Hope and her toothless smile flashed before the eyes of her tortured soul.

"Ask and it shall be given thee," seemed to leap from the vision of old age.

"I did ask," Pollyop cried aloud, "but Old Marc said I couldn't."

In the past months which had taken away three of her loves, many of the lessons Mrs. Hope had taught her had been effaced. She had even given up the habit of asserting with utmost faith: "Underneath are the everlasting arms."

She was almost overcome with terror and fatigue as she neared the station. One thing seemed to clear her brow of wrinkles and lighten the load she was carrying. Not a soul was in sight. Even the station appeared to be deserted.

At the northern end of the Auburn car, which was waiting for the engine to pick it up, Pollyop halted. She walked around it stealthily, and then climbed up the steps. A little cry of joy leaped to her lips as the door opened under her touch.

Holding her breath, she shifted Jerry to her arms and crept slowly in. Rapidly she examined every corner; but all the places large enough to hold them both were in plain sight of anyone walking through. At the extreme end she discovered the stateroom; and when she went into it, a thankful feeling swept over her. It was as if that empty cabin, with its many dark places, had been built there just for them. Here she could stow Jerry away and hide herself out of sight.

Under one of the cross seats she placed the child, whispering a warning that he must be very quiet because, if a big man found them, he could not go to Daddy Hopkins. Then under the side seat that ran lengthwise, Polly crawled, and after she had completely secreted herself, she drew down the velvet half-curtain that hung from the seat. It seemed hours before she heard a sound. She hissed a warning to Jerry, then waited in nervous tension.

From the station platform voices seemed suddenly to rise up from every quarter. Pollyop closed her eyes, too confused to think of anything to dissipate the agony of mind she was undergoing.

A few minutes before train time a high-powered motor car drew up to the platform.

"We've got the d[illegible]," [illegible] Marc[illegible]. [illegible] "and [illegible] three [illegible] I'm going to dig around Auburn a bit."

"I suppose you're going to call on your friend, Jeremiah," taunted MacKenzie. "Bob, I'll give you a pointer. Drop that case! There's no power on earth that can open the prison doors for Hopkins."

To this Robert did not reply. In deep reverie he helped his aunt and cousin from the automobile and followed them to the car.

When Polly heard a number of people come into the stateroom, she put one hand over her lips. She strained her ears to hear if Jerry had made a move. How she hoped the dear baby had fallen asleep, and that he would not wake up until they were in Auburn! As unexpected as the voice of one long dead, the sound of familiar tones came to her ears. The words were:

"Now, Mrs. Robertson, you sit there, and you too, Eve. Then you won't have to ride backward. Bob and I'll sit here."

The squatter girl's heart nearly jumped out of her mouth. There, within touching distance, was her powerful enemy. Her flesh tingled as if bees had stung her. Robert Percival, and Evelyn too, were there. Pollyop shivered and wished that she had waited until tomorrow, or perhaps the day after.

She tried to drive out the fear of being discovered and think only of Jerry's happiness and Daddy's. To make her heart beat less fast, she tried earnestly to think of some words that Jesus would hear and understand. But even that desire was driven from her as two heavy bodies dropped upon the seat above her. Plainly she saw two pairs of men's boots near enough to touch her if she moved an inch forward.

Back against the side of the car she pushed her head, noiselessly drawing her thick curls over her shoulder to make more room. How intensely she wished they were in Auburn! If the train would only start ahead, she was sure she would lose the insane desire to open her mouth and scream.

Then a whistle from the engine, and as if the man at the throttle had heard the inward cry of her frightened young soul, the train began to move slowly. As it crossed the northern end of the town, one of the owners of the boots near her face grew exceedingly restless, and of a sudden he pushed his foot directly against her nose. Gently she shoved it away; and a low exclamation from above followed instantly.

Then a strong, large hand lifted the velvet hangings; and before Pollyop could stir, a set of fingers took sharp hold of her face. In her frightened state she threw the hand off; and another ejaculation came to her ears. Then two hands came under and groped for a grip. She fought strenuously to hold her place; but the person pulled her out by main force.

Polly Hopkins was almost fainting when Robert Percival placed her on her feet. The silk dress, partly tucked in Daddy's boots and partly out, was covered with dust. In silent embarrassment she stooped and brushed it. Then she glanced up imploringly.

Robert, wax-white, was staring at her as if he could not believe his eyes; and MacKenzie, carried away by the rage within him, viciously clutched at her arm. Pollyop dragged herself away frow the strong fingers.

"Don't touch me, you," she snapped hoarsely at him. "I'm goin' to Auburn to see my Daddy Hopkins."

Her voice was high-pitched and tensely toned. Her gaze sought one after another until it rested on Evelyn Robertson, huddled back in the corner of the seat.

"You can make him leave me be, ma'am," Polly went on. "I got a right to go to Auburn as well's any one else."

An unfeeling laugh left MacKenzie's lips; and a sharp exclamation fell from Percival.

"You're a thief," Marcus thrust in grimly. "A little thief. You're stealing a ride."

With all her fighting instinct roused, Polly squared herself.

"Sure, I'm stealin' a ride," she retorted. "I couldn't ride honest; you wouldn't let me. My Daddy Hopkins—"

"It seems to me," [illegible] Mrs. Robertson haughtily, "[illegible] have on, miss; where'd you get it?"

Polly's under lip dropped. It seemed as if a thousand hostile eyes were glaring at her.

"It's Evelyn's dress," went on the lady. "Take that coat off and let me see."

Before Robert could interfere, MacKenzie had grasped Pollyop by the shoulders and had stripped off the heavy coat. And there she stood, her bare young arms and sunburned neck exposed, her scarlet face hidden by a handful of curls. She was so overwhelmed with shame she could not say a word.

"Twice a thief," gritted MacKenzie. "I suppose you didn't give her this, Eve?"

With one long finger he pointed at the dress, but his eyes, sparkling with anger, were on Evelyn.

Never had Miss Robertson been in such a dilemma. Never had she felt so much like quietly fainting away.

"Did you?" demanded Marc, once more.

"No, no," denied the girl, trembling. "No, of course I didn't give it to her. Why should I?"

MacKenzie's sharp, "You'll land where your father is, you hussy," brought Polly's flashing glance upon him. Untaught to deceive for her own advantage, she could not fathom Evelyn's direct falsehood. To lie for a daddy, to keep a squatter friend from prison—yes, she would have done that, but a dress! And Evelyn had given it to her, too! She turned her burning eyes upon the other girl, and there she read with sickening certainty that the gift of the robe must be buried in the grave with Oscar Bennett. If Jerry had not been tucked away back of the skirts of the two women, Polly would have made a dash for liberty, but she could not leave, the baby. Would no one help her? Her eyes sought Robert's face, and as if he were awaking from a dream, he picked up the coat.

"I'll hand her over to the conductor," Marcus proceeded. "He'll know what to do with her," and he put out his hand to grasp her.

She Was Almost Overcome With Terror and Fatigue as She Neared the Station.

"No you won't," snapped Robert, moving in front of Pollyop. "I'll look after her myself, and if you folks want to stay friendly with me, just don't mention this." He held out the coat to Polly Hopkins. "Put it on," he ordered; and instantly she obeyed him.

What he was going to do with her, Pollyop did not know, but this thing she did realize: Jerry could not see Daddy Hopkins that day. She longed to be back in the country, to get away from MacKenzie's flashing eyes and the haughty stare of Mrs. Robertson. As for Evelyn, she despised the quivering girl with all her straightforward self.

Frowning, Robert stepped to the door and called the conductor; and when the official appeared, Polly [illegible]ered to her toes. The very sight of his uniform suggested [illegible] for her and Jerry.

"A [illegible] of mine came down to see us off," said Robert [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] the coat over the head.

"We're right there now, sir," said he.

"Thanks," replied Robert. "Thanks;" and "Come," he said to Pollyop.

Jerry! Daddy Hopkins' baby, went through her mind. Wee Jerry asleep under the cross seat!

"Wait a bit, mister," she faltered, "wait till I get the baby. I were takin' him up to see his daddy, so he wouldn't die." Her lip trembled as she looked at Mrs. Robertson. "Get up, please, ma'am," she begged. "He's under there, where you're sittin'!"

Mrs. Robertson and Evelyn rose immediately; and Polly pulled the shawl-bewrapped Jerry into full view. In another instant Robert had snatched up the child and pushed Polly out of the door. He turned about and looked back at the other three, a dreadful expression on his face.

"If you stick your finger in this, Marc," he said huskily, "you can say goodby to me for good." And he followed Polly out of the train as it came to a stop.

MacKenney's point was on the east side of the lake, about opposite the Hopkins shanty, and when Robert had helped Polly off the train and had seen it pull away north, he stood a moment considering how best to get her back home. He could not make the girl tramp back to Ithaca and then across the head of the lake to the Silent City.

"Stay nere with the child," he said curtly. "I'll be back in a minute."

Polly watched him dully as he strode away. When he returned, he had in his hand a large key with which he unfastened a boathouse on the shore. Almost before Pollyop sensed what was happening, she was in the stern of a boat with Jerry crouched down beside her, and Robert's strong arms were sending the craft swiftly across the lake. Not a word had been said between them until they drew up under the willow trees near Jeremiah's shack.

"Get out," exclaimed Robert, holding the boat that it might not tip.

Pollyop scrambled to the bow, bringing Jerry with her, the beautiful dress now hanging in limp folds around her feet. Very pale, Robert lifted her, almost fainting, from the boat, and picking Jerry up in his arms, walked ahead to the shanty.

In the terrible moment that Polly bent under his dark gaze, she felt she must tell him the truth. How could she let him go away thinking her twice a thief, besides believing Oscar Bennett had been her man?

She dared a timid glance at him.

"What in heaven's name can I do for you?" he demanded hoarsely. "You don't seem to have any honor at all! Can't I say something that would make you a better girl?"

Polly swayed and pushed back her curls. Her tired head fell forward on her chest, and she bit her tongue to keep back the rush of words.

"Get Wee Jerry back his Daddy Hopkins," she gulped presently, "an'—an' I'll swear to be the goodest squatter's brat in the Silent City."

No smile answered her emphatic promise. Robert's face was white and severe, and he was studying her in silence.

"It does seem," he managed to say, "the more I plan and work, the worse things go."

He wanted to kiss the pale lovely face, to take her away from the settlement. He wanted to banish the last few months that, every time he thought of them, sent him dizzy with pain.

"I've tried my best to have your father released," he continued in low tones, "and I've tried not to love you at all. But I do want you to be good—I mean as good as you can."

Up went the curly head, and straight into his eyes she sent a piercing glance. One slender hand flung out toward him.

"Couldn't you trust me, sir?" she breathed. "Couldn't you just forget about—about—"

She advanced toward him, her hands extended and her face twitching nervously.

"Of course taking the dress doesn't matter to me," he choked. "Mr. MacKenzie is a very wicked man, and he has treated you abominably. But, but what hurts me so is the thought of the man who died in your—your home—" His voice broke and, turning swiftly, he walked away.

Polly tried to call his name, but her throat made no sound. When he disappeared up the lane she picked Jerry up and, shivering, went into the shanty.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Embarrassing.

My most embarrassing moment was one day when one of my friends and I were in town together. We went into a store and my friend bought a [illegible]. The storekeeper wrapped [illegible] and we started out of the store. He said something. I thought he asked if we wanted anything else, so I said "No," and we went out of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]—Ex.

Highway Improvement

HUGE NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS

When Federal-Aid System Is Completed There Will Be 180,000 Miles of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the federal-aid highway system, provided for by the recently enacted federal highway act, is completed there will be a network of roads 180,000 miles in length covering the whole United States. The time required for the completion of the system will depend upon the rate at which the necessary federal funds are provided, say officials of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which administers federal-aid money.

An idea of what these roads will mean to the country can be gained by studying the effect of roads built in recent years and picturing what would happen should they be torn up and left in their former condition.

Should these roads go back to their former state and the motor vehicles which have come with them disappear there would be many changes. Many suburbanites would have to move into the city and there would be a decrease in value of suburban real estate. Cities would have trouble in getting their fresh milk and food supply. Much farm land would decrease in value and the effect on rural social life would be serious. In fact, motor vehicles and the roads on which to use them form such an important part of our economic and social life that it is hard to picture to the full extent what would happen.

Completed Concrete Highway.

Since all this dependence on highway transportation has come in a brief period of years and with the construction of 115,000 miles of surfaced highways, 60,000 of which are on the proposed federal-aid highway system, it can be understood what further changes will take place as the system grows to 180,000 miles in length and other roads are built branching out from it.

PRICE OF LABOR FAVORABLE

Indications Are That There Will Be No Drawbacks Along That Line This Season.

Labor costs on federal-aid projects under construction this year indicate that there will be no drawback along this line in the building of roads during the coming season, according to the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The price for common labor ranged around 25 and 30 cents an hour in a great majority of the states, being somewhat lower in the Southern states and going up to nearly 50 cents an hour in the Pacific states. The prices of teams reported were in a great many instances as low as the 1914 level. It is probable, however, that there will be an increase when the farming season begins, as teams have always been cheaper in winter.

ROADS ARE BIG BLESSING

The cost of keeping up American roads and building new ones last year was $4 for every man, woman and child—after deducting money from auto license fees. So reports the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

It is equivalent to a cent and a [illegible] a day for each of us. To save that much, few would surrender even the street in front of their house.

[illegible] [illegible] the greatest [illegible] of [illegible], says the [illegible].

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

They Cost Less
because they give longer service
Every pair of
Nu-Way Price 75c
or
EXCELLO
RUBBERLESS
SUSPENDERS
is guaranteed for a full year's wear. Men like their easy stretch and comfy feel. Ask Your Dealer. If he can't supply you, send direct, giving dealer's name.
Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co. Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.
Nu-Way The Stretch is in the Spring

Join One of These Select Tours
All Expense Two Weeks $150.00 Personally Conducted
Leaving Toledo Monday of each week, starting June 12th, by rail, steamboat and automobile. Embracing Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Hudson River, New York City, Philadelphia, Atlanti City and Washington. For full information address:
The Cosmopolitan Tours Company
521 Traction Bldg., Cincinnati, O.
"Plan Your Summer Vacation Now"

Western Canada
Offers Health and Wealth
and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands of home seekers and their families who have started on her FREE homesteads or bought land at attractive prices. They have established their own homes and secured prosperity and independence. In the great grain-growing sections of the prairie provinces there is still to be had on easy terms
Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre
—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. Healthful climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, rural telephone, excellent markets and shipping facilities. The climate and soil offer inducements for almost every branch of agriculture. The advantages for Dairying, Mixed Farming and Stock Raising make a tremendous appeal to industrious settlers wishing to improve their circumstances. For certificate entitling you to reduced railway rates, illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, etc., write
W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Building, Columbus, Ohio;
M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

Lasting Lustre of 100% Pure Varnish
Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes bring out and add to beauty of natural grain, are tough and wear-resisting, hold their lustre during life of the varnish, and do not darken wood. All these advantages arise from absolute purity—pure gums, oils and turpentine. No cheap substitutes like rosin and benzine.
Use Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes for better and more lasting results—for floors, interior woodwork, chairs, tables, etc. Cost no more than adulterated varnishes.
If you do not know a Martin Varnish dealer write for name of one.
MARTIN VARNISH CO.
Makers of 100% Pure Varnishes
Chicago · Illinois

No Longer "Wireless."

The committee on nomenclature at the government radio conference declares that the use of the word "wireless" and names derived from it are obsolete. Instead they urge the use of "radio." For the general title of a system of conductors for radiating or absorbing radio waves use "aerial"; for an open circuit aerial use "antenna"; for a closed circuit aerial use "coil."—Youth's Companion.

No ugly, grimy streaks on the clothes when Red Cross Ball Blue is used. Good bluing gets good results. All grocers carry it.—Advertisement.

Quick to Go.

Doctor—You are as sound as a dollar.

Patient—I hope to last longer than one.—Boston Transcript.

Leisurely.

"Can your husband follow a tune?"

"Yes, but he is usually some distance behind."—Life.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
[illegible]
BELL-ANS
[illegible]
NO DYE [illegible]

SHE HAD ONLY PITY FOR SATAN

[illegible]

JUNE

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year, $1.50
Six Months, .75
Three Months, .40
One Month, .15
Single Copy, .05
(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Little strokes fell great oaks.

—‡—‡—‡—

Be ashamed to catch yourself idle.

—‡—‡—‡—

The used key is always bright.

—‡—‡—‡—

Wise men learn by others' harms.

—‡—‡—‡—

He that hath a trade hath an estate.

—‡—‡—‡—

Lying rides upon Debt's back.

—‡—‡—‡—

He that hath a calling, hath an office of profit and honor.

—‡—‡—‡—

Want of care does us more damage than want of knowledge.

—‡—‡—‡—

Silks, satins, scarlets and velvets put out the kitchen fire.

—‡—‡—‡—

Laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes him.

—‡—‡—‡—

Pride that dines on vanity sups on contempt.

—‡—‡—‡—

God gives all things to industry.

—‡—‡—‡—

Have you something to do tomorrow? Do it today!

—‡—‡—‡—

Industry pays debts, while despair increaseth them.

—‡—‡—‡—

Employ thy time well if thou meanest to gain leisure.

—‡—‡—‡—

'Tis hard for an empty bag to stand upright.

—‡—‡—‡—

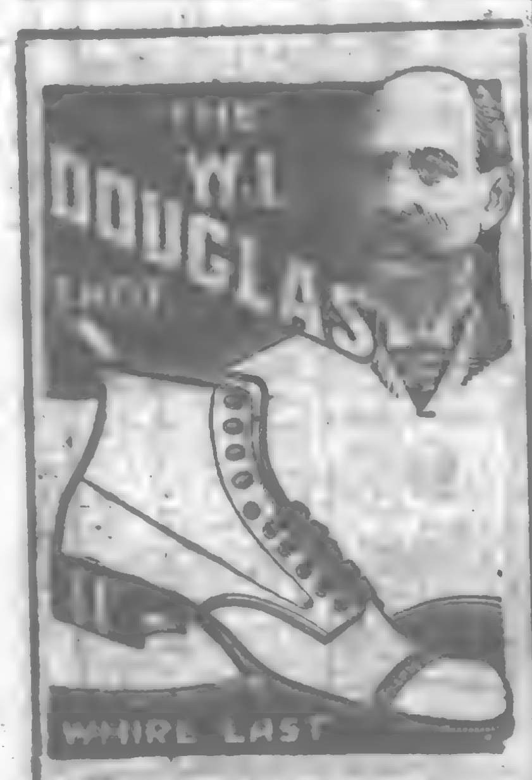
A man may be a mighty good man in every way, but if he dies without having his paper paid up it's rather hard for the editor to write an obituary as it ought to be written.

—‡—‡—‡—

The editor believes that all the readers want to pay up their subscription so he is merely writing this as a reminder.

—‡—‡—‡—

The jangling of heavy trucks over the hard pavements of the city is a mighty poor substitute for the sweet bird songs of spring in the country town.



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE
WHIRE LAST

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional [illegible] in installments [illegible] years, payments as follows: [illegible]

If [illegible]

[illegible]

J. C. [illegible]

Folks, be Careful

There are entirely too many accidents happening every day that could easily be avoided simply through a bit of sense and care and thought. Auto accidents by the hundreds, occur simply through careless driving, or poor upkeep of the machine which gives chance to a sudden severing of parts which, if occuring while car is in motion, will result in accident and maybe death.

In an effort to remind people to be careful a special drive is being put on, to be called "Safety Period," or "No Accident Period," from June 1st to August 30. The railroads are the instigators of this drive prompted by the desire to eliminate many accidents of autos with trains. They are sending out colored posters to be posted at railway crossings, stations, street corners, and other dangerous points which are indeed very impressive.

This drive will not keep the country without accident, but it will continually remind folks that they may be a little more careful for the sake of others if not for themselves.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	95	$ 4.93
M. P	81	8.41
Lutheran	99	5.26
M. E. Spencer	83	6.15
Lutheran	99	3.35
Newville U. B.	125	7.59
Christian	103	3.71
Coburntown	104	3.98
Concord	68	3.23
Rehoboth	72	5.50
Mt. Pleasant	109	3.92

NEWVILLE

Sam Wyatt planted about 18 acres of corn, last week.

Mrs. Julia Wyatt is at the home of her son, Sam Wyatt, at present.

Rov. Denham, of Edgerton, made the Memorial address to a full house, Sunday evening.

Frank Snellbaker and wife, of Swanton, Ohio, spent the first of the week at Newville.

Mrs. Anne Griest of Hickrville, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Dave Griest.

Frank Akins and family, and Mrs. Geneva Sechler were Auburn visitors, Tuesday.

Mrs. Vera Miller and mother, Mrs. Kinny, attended the S. S. convention at Butler, Tuesday.

Miss Blanche Wyatt, of Wayne, was the Sunday guest of the Sam Wyatt family.

Mrs. Anna Rickett had for Sunday guests her two grandchildren of Auburn.

Paul Rex and wife are making praparations to go to housekeeping soon.

Horace Benner and sister, Mrs. Minnie Welker, of Bryan, Ohio, were over Sunday visitors of J. H. Benner and wife.

An excellent dinner was prepared by the family for Mr J H Benner Sunday, in honor of his 72nd, birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Levi Boyd and three children, of Moorsville, were the guests of her parents, John Rude and wife a part of last week.

Mrs. Neva Gaff and little daughter, spent a part of last week at the home of Mr and Mrs. Gaff Sr. near Butler.

Mrs. Minnie Tarney, who was injured by falling, is improving slowly. There isn't much hopes of her ever being able to use the injured limb.

Byron Miller and [illegible]

[illegible]

Butler Girl Marries

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Powers, in Butler, on Monday evening, May 22, when their daughter Lois Martha was married to Ralph Arthur Swearingen, of Champaign, Illinois. The bride is well known by many from St. Joe.

The couple left immediately for Chicago, and are at home there at 224 Mason Ave.

W. C. T. U. NEWS

Mrs. Emma Bishop entertained the W. C. T. U., Friday afternoon. Those present enjoyed the presence of three Auburn ladies, with them Mrs. Ada Lane, Co., president, who gave a fine report of the mid-year State executive meeting held at Columbus; Mrs. Mary Ehlers led the devotional and also read a paper on "Evangelistic Work" which she expects to use in her Michigan District on that work; and Mrs. Minnie Kagey gave a talk on her department work that of "Jails and Prisons." The meeting was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Elliot To Succeed Dr. Stone at Purdue

Edward Charles Elliott, chancellor of the University of Montana since February 1, 1916, is to become the new president of Purdue University, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. W. E. Stone, who was killed last summer while mountain climbing in Canada.

Formal announcement of Mr. Elliott's appointment is expected to be made after his meeting with the board of trustees. The selection was made by a special committee of the trustees and Mr. Elliott arrived here last night for the meeting. He was the guest of Henry W. Marshall, who has been acting president since Dr. Stone's death.

Mr. Elliott was said by trustees to have achieved prominence as the executive of the Montana University, which has four schools over the state. He is 47 years old and has degrees from the University of Nebraska, the University of Jenna, and Columbia University. His teaching experience includes services at the University of Nebraska, the Teachers College at Columbia, and at the University of Wisconsin. He also was city school superintendent at Leadville, Colo. In addition he has made special educational investigations for various state and municipal educational commissions. He also is an author of several educational books.

Ask For Construction Of Twp. Drain

The construction of a tile drain in Spencer township, and extending a short distance into Allen county, is petitioned for by Joseph M. Baldwin, Sarah E. Baldwin, Mary Cook, Percy A. Walker, trustee of Spencer township, and D. D. Boston, trustee of Springfield township, Allen county. The petition has been filed in the De Kalb circuit court.

Land owners affected by the proposed drain are George M. Shutt and Hattie Beams.

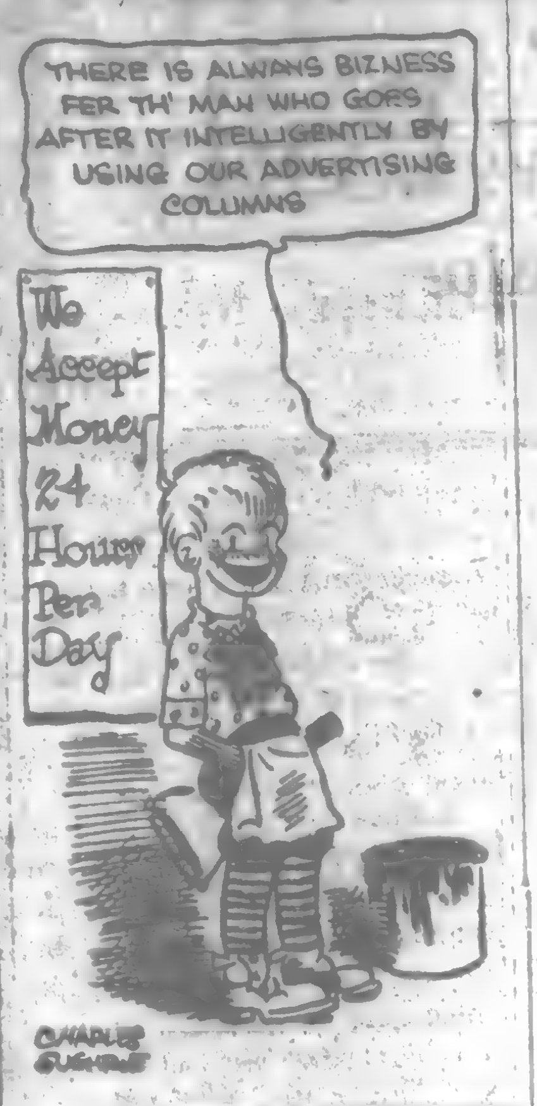
Are You Equipped [illegible]

[illegible]

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL

[illegible]

MICKIE SAYS



THERE IS ALWAYS BIZNESS FER TH' MAN WHO GOES AFTER IT INTELLIGENTLY BY USING OUR ADVERTISING COLUMNS
We Accept Money 24 Hours Per Day
CHARLES SUGHROE

Local Briefs

Salva plants, 5 cents each, at the News Office.

Mr. Donley and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday evening with Roy Koch and wife.

Tanlac can bring health to you as it has to thousands of others. Sheffer's.

Miss Erma Tustison, of Hicksville, was a Saturday night guest of Miss Margaret Hamilton.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

The Coburn's Corners Ladies Aid will meet this afternoon (Thursday) with Mrs. George Hart.

Lost — A strayed white calf. Finder notify Walter Silberg, of Spencerville.

Mrs. Cora Smith and daughter, of Auburn, were over Sunday guests of relatives here.

Milo Provines and family, of near Auburn, spent Sunday with her parents, S. D. Gee and wife.

For Sale — Child's white enameled iron bed, spring and mattress, 5 by 3 ft. Mrs. R. Weirs.

J. C. F. Abel and wife entertained at Sunday dinner, Wm. Fee and wife, and Wayne Sharp and wife, of Edgerton.

Lost — A gold Wahl fountain pen. Finder please return to Dorothea Scholes, and receive reward.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Thornton of Dunlap, Indiana, are the guests of their nephew, F. M. Thornton, and family, for a few days.

Mrs. Mary Majors and daughter of Churebusco, Indiana, were over Sunday guests of Mrs. Kate A. Leighty.

Sam Keesler, wife, son Henry and daughter Jane, were Tuesday dinner guests of Mrs. Jane Coburn and sons.

George Seavers and family, of near Logan, Ohio; Tom Brunson and family, and mother, Mrs. A. D. Brunson, were afternoon guests of C. C. Bassett and wife recently.

Mrs. Charles Rice entertained the executive of the Ladies Literary Club, Wednesday, at which time the program for the coming year was [illegible]

Miss [illegible]

[illegible]

Constipation

THERE IS NOTHING equal to Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. When the proper dose is taken their action is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize that it is the effect of a medicine. These tablets possess tonic properties that aid in establishing a natural and regular action of the bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured many cases of chronic constipation.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realise how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through —and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the................Number to Name ....

Address ....

BEDTIME STORIES for the Children
CURRENT EVENTS and EDITORIALS
STORIES and HOME HELPS for Mother
Girls find 100 Features
Live Boys always like the things to DO and to MAKE and STORIES of ADVENTURE and SPORT for ALL

52 issues a year —not 12

Start a year To-day

The Youth's Companion

should be in every home which demands "only the Best." Live boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers, always find The Companion Reliable, Entertaining and Up-to-Date.

Hundreds of Short Stories, Serial Stories, Editorials, Articles, Poetry, Nature and Science, Current Events, Doctor's Corner, Receipts, Stamps to Stick, Games, Sports, Puzzles, "How-to-Make" Pages, Suggestions for Home Efficiency and Economy.

Costs LESS THAN Five Cents a Week

OFFER No. 1
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues for 1922
2. All remaining Weekly 1921 issues; also
3. The 1922 Companion Home Calendar
All for $2.50

OFFER A
1. The Youth's Companion for 1922 $2.50 Including all of Offer No. 1
2. McCall's Magazine $1.00 The best Fashion Magazine for women readers
All for $3.00

Check your choice and send this coupon with your remittance to the PUBLISHERS OF THIS PAPER, or to THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE

Don't let that sour stomach sour your disposition and make your life miserable, while Tanlac is ready to give you relief. Get it now. Dr. Sheffer.

Mrs. T. A. Northrup was brought from the Sacred Heart Hospital at Garrett, Thursday, to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. [illegible], where she will remain for a while.

[illegible] Lewis, of Auburn; and Mrs. Cora Lodewick and son [illegible], of Roswell, New Mexico, spent Thursday night and Friday as guests of [illegible] and son [illegible]

[illegible]

Derwood Ridgway and wife entertained at Sunday evening supper: Mrs. Jay Wineland, daughter Mary Elisabeth, and son Arthur, of Elkhart; Mrs. E. D. Hendricks and Mrs. Elma Brown, of Auburn; Frank Davis, of Ft. Wayne; John Wineland and wife, Mrs. Glen Freeburn, daughters Ethel May and Effie Belle, and son Richard.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown went to Hillsdale, Michigan, last Thursday to stay until Sunday. Then they came back to Hicksville, Ohio, with Mr. and Mas. J. W. Senners where they took dinner with Mr. Kyle. They spent the night in Hicksville, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Coburn, and returned to St. Joe Monday noon.

[illegible]

JUNE

Cash In Hand

Has a knack of melting away for little things that you would not buy if you had to draw a check to pay for them.

Cash In This Bank

Has a knack of growing because of the discouragement of small unnecssary spendings. Open an account here and you'll save money in spite of yourself.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

I am reopening the DeKalb TANKAGE PLANT AT Auburn Junction and ask that all farmers having dead stock, please notify me by telephone, reversing the charges.
Phone 180
G. Becker, Jr.

A. J. Livingston, living near Ashland City, Tennessee, says: "I feel like going from house to house and telling the people about Tanlac." Sheffer Drug Store.

SPENCERVILLE

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

George Beams, daughter Garnet and Lillian Steffey, were Hicksville visiters Sunday.

Get your pepper, tomato, celery, astor plants at the News office.

Mrs. John Bachmann returned home Friday from Geneva, where she was called by the serious illness of a cousin.

Sam Mumma and wife and Merritt Sechler of St. Joe and Jacob Baltz and wife, took Sunday dinner with Frank Baltz and wife.

The first quarterly conference of of the year was held on Saturday and Sunday at the Methodist Church.

PERMANENT INSURANCE

"Hurry up with a ladder!"

"We haven't a ladder."

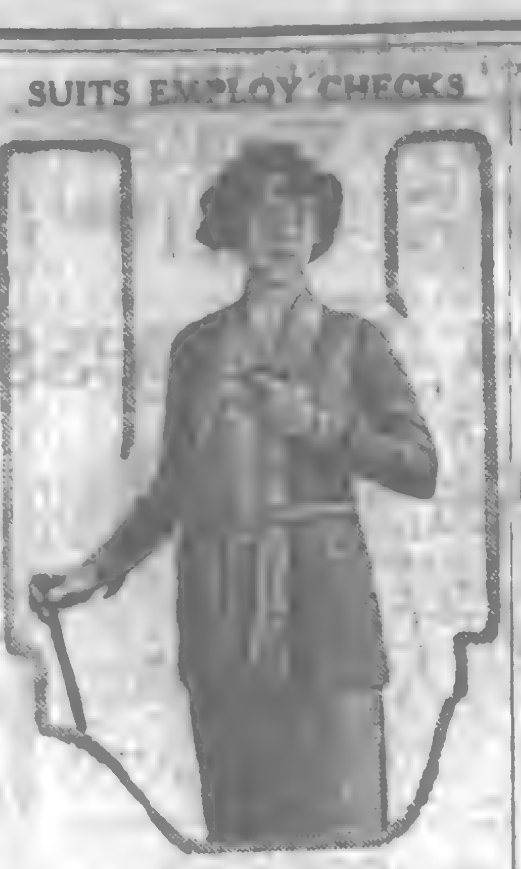
After the fire you'll hear three or four men say, "If I'd had a ladder and a bucket of water right in the start, I could have put the fire out before it did any damage."

No doubt there were several buckets in the neighborhood, and by vigorous pumping the water could have been provided, but what would that have amounted to without a ladder? Buy a good light ladder, paint it red, and hang it up where anyone can find it at a moment's notice.

[illegible] building material [illegible] insurance policy, and [illegible] when you need it.

[illegible] Lumber Co.

SUITS EMPLOY CHECKS



Along with other causes for rejoicing that spring is here, comes this example of its offering in suits. The design is engagingly youthful and particularly neat looking, employing shepherd's check for the skirt and for embellishing the straight coat of plain cloth. It is shown in black and white, but is also made in colors and in either case it appeals to good taste.

Get your job work done now. We'll do it right.

Mrs. Paff and grand-daughters, Elenor and Ruth Houck, of Hicksville, O., were Sunday guests of L. B. Fisher and family.

Mrs. Lindstrom and daughter, of Pleasant Lake, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Lloyd Wade and family.

B. F. Markle and family were Thursday evening supper guests of Mrs. Matilda Oberholtzer, of near Harlan.

Born on Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner, at the St. Joseph Hospital at Ft. Wayne, a son which was named Robert Max.

Miss Cleo Bowser underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils and adnoids, Wednesday morning, at the Hope-Methodist Hospital.

Mrs. G. O. Fisher and two children, a Mrs. Hoover and Ves Hoover and daughter of Mishawaka, were Sunday guests of Dwight Coolidge and family.

Memorial Services were held Sunday at the White City Cemetery. Rev. Brewster and Rev. Steffey gave short talks. The soldiers graves were decorated with wreaths.

Mrs. Wallace Jackson and daughter, Mrs. Olive Furnish and children, and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Carey, all of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Gertrude Markle and family.

The burial of Joseph Spitler took place in White City Cemetery on Tuesday morning. The greater part of his life was spent in this community but the past few years he has made his home in Auburn, having died there Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lydia Kre[illegible].

It is considered [illegible]kely that Judge Dan M. [illegible] head the democratic sta[illegible] at the election in Novem[illegible] has been asked to take [illegible] for secretary of sta[illegible] indicated that he will a[illegible] honor if it is tendered to [illegible].

A Plea for the Living.

This is the close of Decoration Day. I have been sick in bed for several weeks. There is a window near my bed through which I could hear the fine music as the band marched by. I heard the [illegible] as they left the church to [illegible] the cemetery. I heard [illegible] "What a lot of fine [illegible]" [illegible]

Buy NOW -Pay as you RIDE

R. & L. Plan of Time Payments Enables You to Spread the Purchase Price of Your FORD Over a Whole Year and to Get Delivery with First Payment.

You can get dividends of pleasure out of A FORD CAR for your family. You know that as well as we do, but maybe you feel—as many other good business men do—that this is not a time to tie up a considerable sum of cash money where it won't bring in a cash return.

That's why we have made arrangements to give our customers the benefit of the R. & L. Plan—backed by a great Chicago financial house of unlimited resources and great business experience.

On the R. & L. Plan you can buy a Ford without tying up any great sum of cash at all and you can pay for it—by the month—for the year—in installments that are so small that you will not notice them.

Let us give you full particulars at once. See us at your first available opportunity, or let us send a representative to see you.

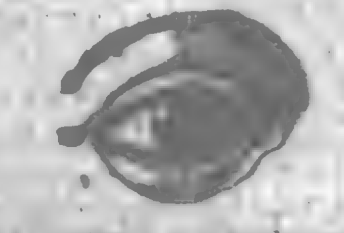
You can buy Ford Commercial Cars on the R. & L. Plan, too!
Over 50% of the Cars Built To-day are sold on Time.

The Sign on the Windows of Live Ford Dealers Everywhere is a Seal Lock, reading "BUY YOUR FORD CAR — R. & L. Plan — $1 A DAY" and an attached Key, reading "Small Payment Down — Unlock The Door To Opportunity."

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

FRANK W. SILBERG
Spencerville, Indiana

Chiropracter Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE, - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

ST. JOE NEWS

Mrs. Alice Warner and Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bishop will accompany Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway to Springfield, Ohio, Monday, to attend the commencement exercises at Wittenberg College.

Children's Day exercises will be given at the Mt. Pleasant church next Sunday evening.

A large International truck owned by a Hicksville junk company caught fire and was totally destroyed east of town Monday evening.

New York Central Has Big Wreck

Goshen, Ind., May 26.—Due to breaking of a wheel journal, 21 cars of a west bound New York Central railroad freight train were piled up two miles east of Goshen at 3 50 o'clock this morning. No one was hurt. More than 400 feet of track was torn up. Traffic on all three tracks is blocked and trains are routed from Elkhart to Toledo via the old road. Several trains were backed from Millersburg to Toledo, about 130 miles, in order to get around the wreck. It will require eight hours to clear the tracks. Enroute from Elkhart to the wreck the wrecking train struck an automobile at the Wilkinson street crossing here, fatally injured two men who were on a motor tour. The auto was demolished.

Herman Sweedler, Joseph Perlman and Al Jacobson, three Jews, ages ranging between twenty and twenty-two, hailing from Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived in Waterloo Saturday afternoon clad in Boy Scout uniforms and packs on their backs. They are placarded from New York to Frisco.

Every time they declare a truce in Ireland it seems to stir up another revolution.

Our idea of the stingiest man in St. Joe is the one who knows how to make something worth while out of dandelions and won't give his neighbor the recipe.

Maybe the reason Missouri stands at the head in raising mules is because it's the only safe place to stand.

Radio will probably never be popular with politicians. There are no wires to be pulled.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JUNE

RADIO

CRYSTAL DETECTOR EASY TO CONSTRUCT

Telephone Condenser and Receivers Can Better Be Purchased—Mounting the Set.

The material needed to construct a simple crystal detector is as follows:

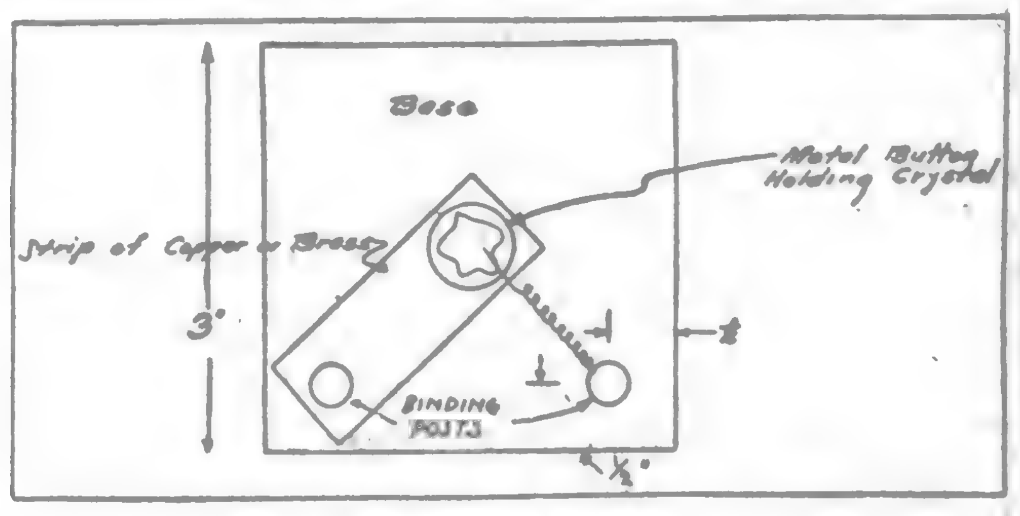
Piece of silicon or galena molded in a metal button, 25 cents.

Two binding posts, 20 cents.

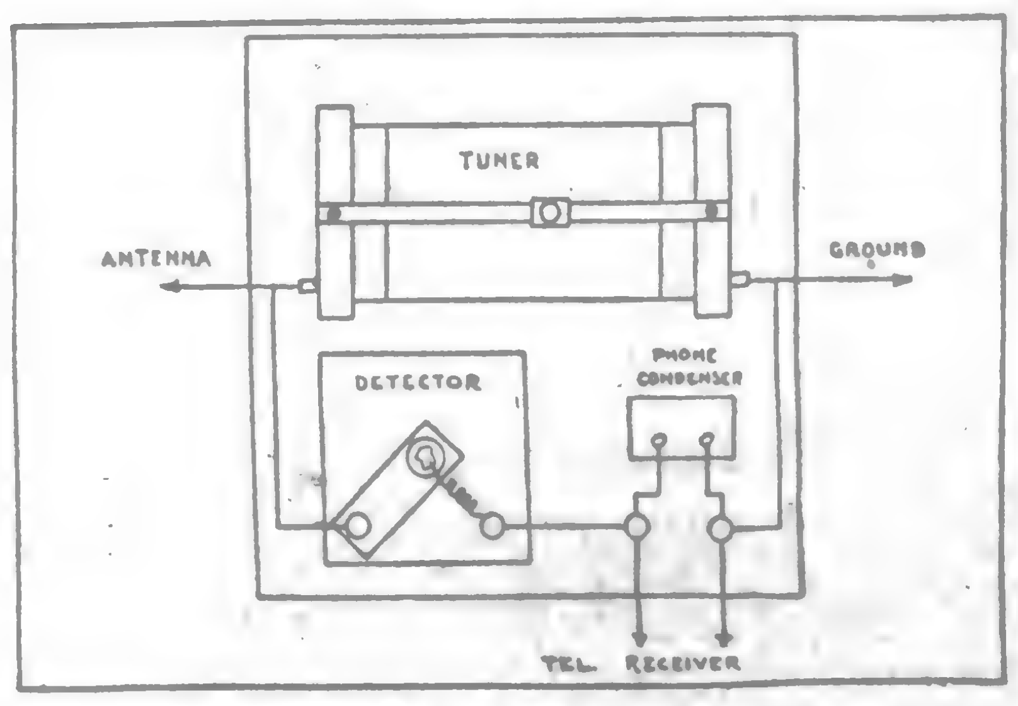
A block of shellacked or stained wood 3 by 3½ inches.

A thin strip of sheet copper or brass ¾ inches wide by two inches long.

Mount the two binding posts on the block of wood as shown, fastening under one binding post a strip of copper or brass—see sketch—and under the other binding post a coiled up spring of fine springy copper or brass wire. By placing the button of metal containing the crystal of silicon or galena on the strip of metal and allowing the spring to make contact with the surface of the crystal the detector is complete and ready for operation.



The Crystal Detector.



Set Mounted on Base, With Connections Shown.

A complete crystal detector can be purchased from 75 cents to $2, depending upon the type.

Two other pieces of apparatus are necessary that cannot be readily constructed—they are the telephone condenser and the receivers. A telephone condenser to be used in shunting across the phones can be purchased for about 50 cents.

For use with a radio receiver of this type it is recommended that a pair of 3,000-ohm, Murdoch type, No. 56 receivers, costing $6, be purchased.

These are all the necessary parts needed for the complete receiver.

If it is desired, the three instruments, the tuner, the crystal detector and the telephone condenser, can be mounted on a stained base of wood, say, eight inches square and one-half inch thick. This will keep the component parts of the set together, making a compact unit of the whole and also be advantageous in that it will hold the instruments while adjustments are being made.

The sketch shows how the instruments are connected with each other and to the ground. The condenser is connected to one side of the tuner and to the crystal detector. The ground is connected to the other side of the phones and the condenser and the tuner.

Lamp cord is excellent for connecting up small radio sets of this kind—it being a good conductor, well insulated and easy to handle.

HOW TO LISTEN IN

There are two variables in our radio receiver that require adjustment when it is desired to listen-in; first, the detector, and second, the slide position on the tuner. Once the slider position has been determined for any given transmitting station, it is only necessary to adjust the detector to pick up that same station again.

To operate the receiver for the first time it is best to wait until some station like KDKA is transmitting between 8:30 and 9:30 p. m. Then adjust the detector by changing the point at which the spring and crystal of the detector make contact until, when a nearby electric light is snapped on and off, a click is heard in the head phones. The detector is now adjusted on a sensitive spot on the crystal. By changing the slider position, the transmitting station should be picked up.

After a station is once picked up it is an easy matter to adjust the detector and slider position until maximum response is obtained in the telephone receiver. With a simple set of the kind described in this and preceding articles and a little practice one soon becomes adept at picking up a given station. The entertainment derived from listening-in is usually well worth the time spent and the money invested.

VAGARIES OF VACUUM TUBES

Peculiar Actions That Always Astonish and Sometimes Frighten the Amateur Radioist.

Everybody who has had anything to do with vacuum tubes has from time to time had them do unexpected things and give results that at the moment seem beyond explanation.

The explanation of several characteristics of these miniature giants which are met with in daily operation is sure to prove of great interest to the amateur. In cases where the actions of the tube are not understood these peculiarities have sometimes frightened people.

One instance of a newborn fan's fright was brought to attention in a letter of inquiry. The instrument had just been set up and was being operated for the first time. The tubes had been firmly adjusted and were just at the spilling point and—over they went, giving vent to the most unearthly sounds. The embryo enthusiast who looked upon the audion tube as an electric light, thought it was going to explode. He jumped away from the instrument and out of the room, and did not venture near [illegible] hours, and then [illegible] round the corner of the door with a long stick and pulling the battery switch off.

[illegible] instances have come to attention [illegible] vari-colored [illegible] chamber.

[illegible]

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

Fired .22 caliber rifle shells make good switch points for tuning coils and receiving transformers.

A single wire aerial 100 to 150 feet long is sufficient for local and long distance reception of broadcasting stations.

Do not string aerials across the street or across electric wires. Keep antenna wires off electric light and telephone poles.

Stranded copper or solid copper wire should be used. Phosphor bronze wire if obtainable is stronger but not superior to copper.

Good contact with a piece of mineral like galena can be had by wrapping it in tinfoil. Of course, the top of the crystal is left exposed.

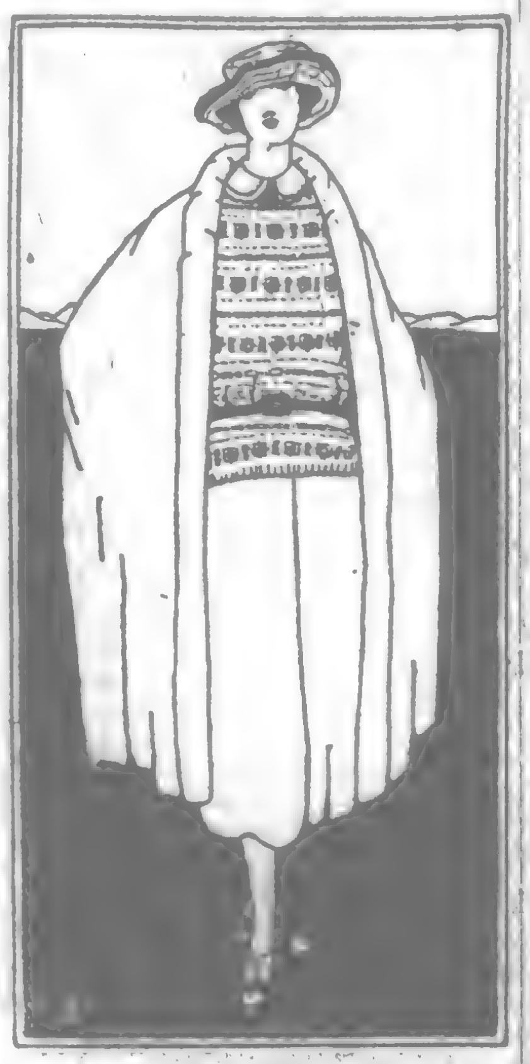
The brass ends of large cartridge shells make [illegible] crystal detector cups. They should be cleaned out thoroughly before they are used.

[illegible]

One Frock Plan Proves Success

After all the shouting is over—the explanation of ultra spring fashions in detail—then comes the mental question for the average woman: "Now what shall I have for myself from among all this melee of smartness? How, in one or two costumes, which is what my budget allows me, can I march among the best dressed of the land?"

It is all very well to consider style and its contributing fine points. Every normal woman takes a certain satisfaction in that sort of mental gymnastics, but how to assimilate the length of this and the width of that with your own particular figure and the restrictions of your purse—oh, that is another matter, indeed!



Voluminous Tan Cape of Homespun Thrown Open in Front to Reveal Smartly Designed Sweater of Tan Which Has Figures in Dark Brown and Orange.

It has often been said, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, that the woman with one frock can be as well dressed as the woman with ten. And it is astonishing how really well this theory works out when the woman with one has the head and the taste and the common sense to manage hers with cleverness. She is no boon to the dressmakers of the land, but she is a deal of satisfaction to herself. She has eliminated a woman's greatest source of worry and annoyance.

At this time of the year it is perfectly possible to apply one's mind so thoroughly and successfully to the matter of clothes that for the next six months one's intelligence need not touch the subject seriously again. Planning goes a longer way with clothes than women generally suppose, and the visualization of the coming season's wardrobe is something that brings infinite reward to the planner. It is this buying at random which earns for women that horrid reputation of being spendthrifts in the matter of their dressing. It is hard not to be emotional when a really pretty thing strikes one's eyes. But whether that thing is going to serve enough purpose to pay for its investment is a detail which so few women stop to consider. Then, again, they think and think, and nothing comes of their efforts because their education in this field of style practically applied is so very efficient.

The Dress for Every Occasion.

It can be done, you know. A dress that will be possible for the majority of occasions in the usual life is not at all hard to conceive nor to accomplish. The flappers are getting there with sport suits. They wear them everywhere. They seem to think there is no party too formal to set them off. They love themselves in these clothes and they cling to them.

Now, for those who are a little more mature, the nonchalance of this procedure is impossible, but they can accomplish the same purpose in another way. A serge dress does wonders in this direction. It can perform so many duties. It can [illegible] old question "What are you going to wear?" The first woman thought a moment, dragged her mind back from her portentious business in hand and said: "Why, oh, yes, I am going to wear the dress. It has come to this in my life. I paid a lot of money for it once, but it has solved the question of clothes in my life."

[illegible]

Colors Rich, Dark, Durable.

You may not believe that these silks wear as well as the serges and more heavy cloths to which your dressing minds have become accustomed. But you have only to examine the newer and more sturdily woven silks to be convinced that manners and customs in this direction have changed very materially. They have every appearance of the lighter woolen fabrics—that is, in stability of texture and in worthiness to be called wearable and formal clothes. Their colors are rich and dark and durable. In fact they suit the building of the all-around dress most admirably.

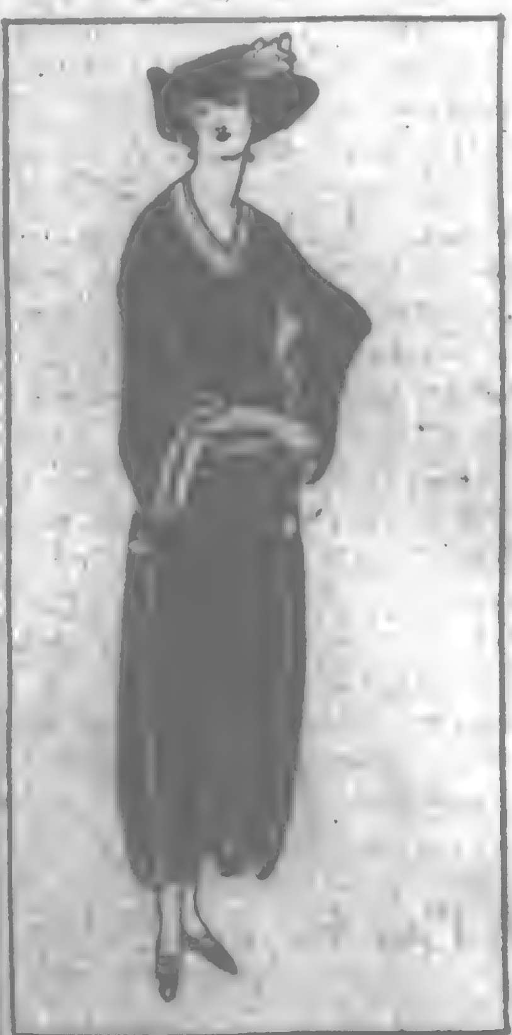
Then, if you wish a coat to make the dress more suitable for certain of the day's occasions, by all means have that wrap made from the same silk that constitutes the dress. These costumes that can be worn together or separately are one of the nicest things that the season has given us. They are beautiful. Everyone will acknowledge that. But only those who have tried them know how well they serve all of the purposes to which they might possibly be assigned.

A black crepe dress made over extremely simple lines is cleverly trimmed with quite an original touch of decoration. The bands about the sleeves and neck, touched here and there on the hips and at the waist line, are made of vermilion crepe and are outlined with narrow traceries of gold braid. It is a trimming trick that is quite easy to bring through, and it is just as effective as many other trimmings over which a deal more labor and time and energy might have been spent. Supposedly, the cape to go with this dress would be of the same crepe, with a lining of the same, bound around the edges and seams with somewhat narrower strips of the same vermilion and gold trimming combination.

The Topcoat.

There comes into every dressing calculation the question of the topcoat, for that is a necessary contribution to the whole. It must be at hand for rainy and stormy and coolish days. It must be ready for motoring and trips to the country, but once it has been chosen and added to one's wardrobe it then becomes a permanent fixture for some years to come. If you should need one of the outer coverings this season, then the choice is wide and varied. You are not confined to any one particular style. You can suit your figure and your taste in the most thrilling way.

If you like capes, then you can have a cape and be in the height of style.



The Material of the Frock Is Black Crepe de Chine, but the Style Is Achieved With the Trimming of Chinese Red and Gold, Which Adds Beauty.

But be sure that your figure is thin enough and [illegible] to carry [illegible]. On the other hand, if a coat is [illegible] to your style of beauty, then you can [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

BIRDS OF FREEDOM

"As we know," commenced Daddy, "the Bald Eagles are the Birds of Freedom. They are the American national birds.

"They live mostly along our Eastern coasts, though they fly over lakes and rivers, as well as coastlines.

"It is because they live everywhere, for one reason, that they are chosen as the American birds.

"For if they were birds of just one little section or one kind of land it would not be nearly so suitable as it is to have birds whose families are willing to have their homes in more than one part of the land.

"The head and neck and tail of the full-grown Bald Eagle is white. And it is not until a Bald Eagle becomes of age that he has these touches.

"The rest of his plumage is brown and black, while his bill and legs are yellow and the iris of his eye is yellow.

"Then, too, there are occasional touches of white to the grown-up Eagle.

"The young Eagles wear brownish-black suits, with spots for decorations.

"Their beaks are black and their legs are yellow, and the iris of the young Eagle's eye is brown.

"During the second and third year they begin to show more white on the under parts of the tail, but still the tail is of a blackish color.

"It is not until they are three years old that they're really grownup Bald Eagles, with all the fineries of the Bald Eagles.

"Eagles are mostly to be seen in the spring and summer, but they have no very special time of the year for being around, which makes them nice birds to be chosen for American birds.

"For it would not be so well to have birds that are around one time of the year and not another as our National Bird.

"They can see great distances, and they watch the water in the summer time for dead fish. This is their favorite kind of food, though they will always go for sheep or calves which have been killed.

"They are very, very famous for their sight and, though I have told you this before, I like to tell it to you again.

"For it is so nice to think that the American Bird of Freedom is the bird with the fine eyesight, who can see from afar and not simply the thing nearest his nose, or beak.

"They can see fish three miles away, and when they haven't had good luck with their marketing they will wait to see what Mr. Fishhawk has been getting for his dinner and will take it away for him, for they are not very polite in that way.

"They Sit Up High."

"They have never been taught any better.

"Sometimes they will take live fish from the water, but not like the Osprey or Red-Shouldered Hawk or Barred Owl do, at any time at all.

"The Eagles cannot capture diving fish as easily as these other birds.

"Ducks can get away from them by diving, especially during the wintertime.

"Eagles scream, like seagulls, and they sit up in high pine trees. It is said that people seek out their nests, which they do not think is nice unless the people merely want to see their homes without doing any harm.

"Sometimes they make noises which sound like little toy dogs barking.

"Mr. Eagle has a high and clear voice, while Mrs. Eagle's voice is noisier and harsher, and sometimes she can make such strange sounds that if you didn't know you'd say:

"'Is Mrs. Eagle crazy?' She had never been taught to lower her voice, I suppose.

"But I think it is nice for us to know all we can about our own birds, and so I try to gather every bit of Eagle information I can," ended Daddy.

RIDDLES

What is the greatest of all riddles? [illegible] we must all give it up.

* * *

[illegible] (deaf).

* * *

[illegible] like a painter? [illegible]

[illegible]

YOUNG MOTHER NOW STRONG

Her Mother's Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Led Her To Try It

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it as she had taken so much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—Mrs. FRED. P. HANSEN, 562 Symmonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

If you are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you; ask some of your women friends or neighbors — they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

The Antiseptic Powder to Shake Into Your Shoes

And sprinkle in the Foot-Bath. It takes the sting out of Corns, Bunions, Blisters and Callouses, and gives rest and comfort to hot, tired, smarting, swollen feet.

More than 1,500,000 pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

Allen's Foot-Ease, the powder for the feet, takes the friction from the shoe, freshens the feet and gives new vigor.

Nothing relieves the pain of tight or new shoes so quickly. Sold everywhere.

In a Pinch, Use ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

Of Course He Didn't.

A rural minister was bothered by the postman not only reading his post cards, but communicating their information to others. One day he wrote a postcard to a medical friend who lived at the other end of the village. It read, "I will tell you more, only I know the postman will read it." Then he put the card in the letter box, whence it was collected, and taken to the post office and sent out for delivery. The postman stamped into the doctor's office with the card, threw it on the table, and exclaimed angrily, "He's a liar! I don't read 'em."

On Naming Babies.

A law was passed recently in Norway prohibiting the bestowal of ridiculous names on babies. Also no French child may be given a name that does not occur in the official list drawn up for the purpose, comprising 13,000 items.

Stop That Backache!

Those agonizing twinges, that dull throbbing backache, may be warning of serious kidney weakness. Serious if neglected, for it might easily lead to Gravel, Dropsy or Bright's disease. If you are suffering with a bad back look for other proof of kidney trouble. If there are dizzy spells, headaches, a tired feeling and disordered kidney action, get after the cause. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

Mrs. R. J. Hire, 108 Grand St., Ligonier, Ind., says: "I suffered with disordered kidneys. My back ached a great deal and I felt dull and sluggish. I often had headaches and my sight blurred. When I stooped, black specks came before my eyes. Doan's Kidney Pills soon gave me relief from these ailments. I felt better in every way."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

VICTIMS RESCUED

Kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles are most dangerous because of their insidious attacks. Heed the first warning they give that they need attention by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL

[illegible]

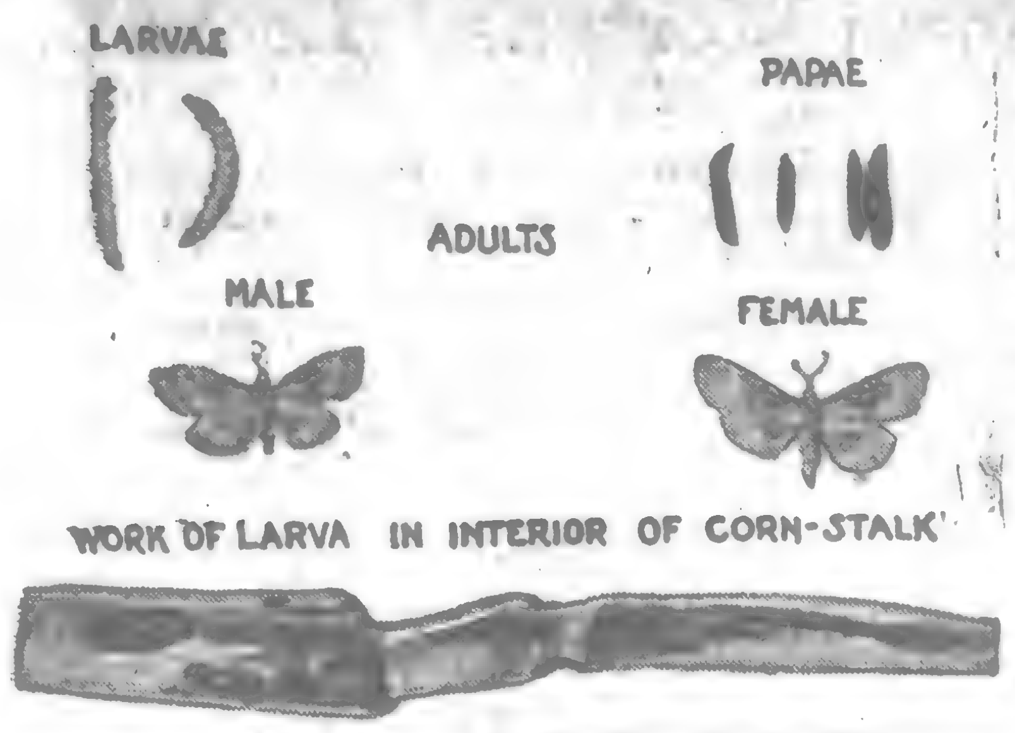
Cuticura Soap

—The [illegible]—

Shaving Soap

JUNE

EFFORTS BEING MADE TO PREVENT SPREAD OF EUROPEAN CORN BORER



LARVAE
PAPAE
ADULTS
MALE FEMALE
WORK OF LARVA IN INTERIOR OF CORN-STALK

European Corn Borer in Various Stages and Its Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Special efforts to prevent the European corn borer from spreading to the corn belt, which it now threatens to do from the southern shore of Lake Erie, will be made this season by the United States Department of Agriculture. The most important single measure will be the rigid enforcement of federal quarantine regulations by the federal horticultural board of the department, in co-operation with the Canadian government and the various states where the pest now exists. This will prevent other infestations of the insect from coming into the United States and will go a long way toward keeping the borer from being carried to other parts of the country.

The bureau of entomology of the department has prepared its plans for investigating the insect, which was discovered in this country during 1917, with a view to applying and amplifying methods of controlling it. The slight infestations along the lake shore, it is believed, will not cause serious injury to corn there immediately, giving ample time for a careful study of the insect and its behavior in this new environment before actual commercial damage is done. For this purpose the bureau will establish immediately a number of entomologists at Sandusky, Ohio.

May Have Come From Canada.

The infestation on Lake Erie, it is believed, originated in the province of Ontario, Canada, where a severe infestation has been present for several years. Favorable winds during the flight season of the moth in the summer of 1921 are supposed to have compelled the adult insects to fly across the lake to the American side, where they became established along almost the entire southern shore. Records of the weather bureau indicate that for the first time in five or six years the winds prevailing then blew from the north or northwest for several days at a time. It is not thought, therefore, that this condition will prevail again for several years, and other moths be blown over.

In order to watch this phase of the matter, however, the bureau of entomology will request permission of the lighthouse service to station observers during the flight season at the powerful lights maintained along the southern shore. They will ascertain, if possible, whether moths are attracted to the lights from the other side.

The federal quarantine includes 144 cities and towns in Massachusetts, three in Michigan, 12 in New Hampshire, 115 in New York, 42 in Ohio, and 18 in Pennsylvania, and prohibits the shipment of corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs, to other states throughout the year. The ban applies to other products for the period between June 1 and December 31, in the New England territory. The prohibition applies to corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, all sorghums and sudan grass from infested areas in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan throughout the year. No restrictions are placed on the interstate movement of clean shelled corn and clean seed of broom corn.

Control Practices Recommended.

To control the corn borer on the farm, the department recommends the following practices:

1. Burn, or otherwise destroy, before May 1 of each year, all cornstalks, corn cobs, corn stubble, vegetable, field and flower crop remnants, weeds and large-stemmed grasses of the previous year.

2. Keep cultivated fields, fence rows, field borders, roadsides and such places free from large weeds or large-stemmed grasses.

3. Cut corn close to the ground.

4. Cut and remove sweet corn stover from the field as soon as the ears are harvested. Feed direct to live stock or place in silo.

5. Cut and remove field corn from the field as soon as the ears are mature. [illegible]

6. [illegible]

7. [illegible] fields intended for field corn or late sweet corn. Feed, or otherwise destroy, this early sweet corn, as soon as the ears are harvested, or preferably just before that period, if the grower is willing to sacrifice the ears. Such plantings, where not destroyed at the proper time, constitute a menace to later corn.

8. Limit the size of cornfields to areas that can be kept free of weeds.

9. Do not plant corn within 50 feet of beets, beans, celery, spinach, rhubarb, or flowering plants intended for sale.

10. Do not throw the uneaten parts of cornstalks used as feed or bedding into the manure pile unless this material is worked into piles containing enough fresh horse manure to produce heating.

11. Do not transport outside of the infested area, any of the plants, or plant products, listed in Federal Quarantine No. 43.

12. Do not transport any living stages of the European corn-borer outside of the infested areas.

13. Do not place in swill container any sweet corn ears or portions thereof or discarded portions of celery, beets, beans, rhubarb, and spinach when this material is suspected of containing the borer.

14. Do not dump cornstalks, or other plant refuse from the vegetable and flower garden on public dumps nor on the edge or flood level of brooks, rivers, and other bodies of water.

15. Do not attempt to circumvent the quarantine regulations. The penalty is severe.

16. Do not mix products grown within the infested area with those grown outside the infested area.

17. Do not label packages containing flowers or other products with misleading statements of contents.

18. Do not pack produce in boxes or other containers until all old tags and permits have been removed.

19. Do not feel angry if products are confiscated at border lines for violation of quarantine regulations. Such action is the most lenient that may be taken under the law.

MOLESKINS VALUABLE SOLD THROUGH POOLS

Boys and Girls Have Formed Clubs for Trapping.

Taught Approved Methods by Extension Workers and Representatives of Biological Survey—Prizes for Gophers.

Moleskins, which brought little o nothing in the ordinary fur markets, have been successfully pooled and sold in Washington and Oregon through farm bureau organizations. Boys and girls in many communities have formed clubs for trapping moles. Through the co-operative work of the extension agents and representatives of the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, they have been taught approved methods of trapping and skinning the moles.

Two hundred and twenty mole pelts were sold in Benton county, Ore., for boy and girl trappers. Linn county, Ore., reports three communities which offered 10 cents each for moles and pocket gophers and an additional prize for the three children killing the most pests. One community reports 83 moles killed in this way.

Tillamook county, Ore., was divided into four districts, and $50 purses were allotted to each district for first, second, and third prizes. The county paid a 5-cent bounty on both moles and pocket gophers. The [illegible] were stored in the county agent's office until a salable amount was collected. They were then sold to the highest bidder. All money received for the pelts was returned to the trappers.

OVERCOME PLANT DISEASES

Practical Plan to [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Bloomington.—A ball given by the Psi Iota Xi sorority ended the two days' reunion of the Rainbow veterans' organization of Indiana at Bloomington. The reunion was attended by more than 350 veterans. Col. Robert H. Tyndall of Indianapolis, commander of the One Hundred and Fiftieth field artillery, was elected permanent honorary president of the organization of Rainbow veterans. Other officers chosen are: Honorary president, Austin Seward, Bloomington; state president, Paul N. Fechtman, Indianapolis; first vice president, Ralph H. Phelps, Martinsville; second vice president, Earl Butcher, Huntington; third vice president, Edgar O'Harrow, Bloomington; secretary, W. B. Morgan, Indianapolis; treasurer, Clarence Clift, Indianapolis. Martinsville was chosen as the place for holding the 1923 reunion.

Terre Haute.—Plans for the annual June tour of inspection and education given by the Vigo County Beekeepers' association are being formed. The program is being arranged by A. W. Hunter, president, and George E. Osborn, secretary, and the schedule, which will cover the whole county, will be announced in a few days. The tour will start June 5 and will continue for five days, the work being done under the direction of C. O. Yost, chief inspector of apiaries of Indiana. The object of the tour is to inspect the bees for diseases, to demonstrate methods for eradication and prevention of disease among bees, to demonstrate methods for transferring bees to movable frame hives, and to show methods of increasing the honey crop.

Franklin.—In an effort to make up for time lost during the rainy weather of a few weeks ago, Johnson county farmers are running their tractors day and night in order to speed corn planting. With favorable weather they say the usual acreage will be planted before the first of June. A large number of tractors are in use in the county, and many farmers are using two shifts of employees working twenty-four hours a day. The tractors are being used mostly to plow during the day and at night, with tractors equipped with strong headlights, they pull the discs or harrows. Wheat fields are in fine condition, also timothy and clover pastures.

Brooksville.—Twenty-nine thousand five hundred dollars was paid out to the tobacco growers of Franklin county by the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association. This was the second payment made to the growers on last year's crop. More than 90 per cent of the growers of the county were in the association, and officials expect practically 100 per cent to sign up. Crops are ranging from 12 cents to 40 cents a pound, an increase of more than 200 per cent over the price received last year.

Indianapolis.—Reservations for a summer camp to be held near Tremont, in Porter county, on the shore of Lake Michigan and in the heart of the Indiana dunes, are being made in encouraging numbers, officials of the state conservation department said. The conservation department is co-operating with the Indiana Federation of Clubs in promoting the camp, which will be from June 15 to 29.

Valparaiso.—Milo J. Bowman, Jr., dean of the law school of Valparaiso university, has been named as president of the institution, it was announced by the board of trustees. Mr. Bowman has accepted the appointment. He succeeds John Edward Roessler, who announced his resignation about a month ago to take effect following the annual commencement exercises.

Indianapolis.—Warning against placing oil on steam and electric railroad tracks when oiling roads was issued to highway officials of Indiana towns and cities by the public service commission. Officials of the commission said a number of serious accidents have occurred in the state as a result of oil being placed on the rails by careless road workers.

Richmond.—The Richmond board of education has advertised for bids on a new junior high school, to be erected within the new year in the east part of Richmond. The estimated cost is $240,000, not including furnishings. The contract will be awarded July 3. An issue of bonds covering the cost will be authorized.

Lafayette.—A Jersey heifer, Estelle Joan, in the Purdue University herd, recently broke the state record in the senior three-year-old division by producing 10,532 pounds of milk and [illegible] pounds of butter fat, exceeding by over [illegible] pounds any record ever made in Indiana by a [illegible] at [illegible].

Indianapolis.—A large number of [illegible]

[illegible]

Washington, D. C.—Redmond D. Stephens, co-receiver of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad company, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission to abandon operation of the Chicago and Indiana coal railway division of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, as to interstate and foreign commerce. The line which will be abandoned has 162 miles of main track running from Brazil to La Crosse, Ind., with a branch from the latter point to the Indiana-Illinois state line. It passes through forty-eight towns and villages, thirty-two of which are not served by any other railroad. There are grain elevators at twenty-nine stations. Vigorous protests against the proposed abandonment were lodged with the commission by individuals, corporations, and organizations.

Indianapolis.—The same tax appraisement level that was applied last year to properties appraised by the state tax board of tax commissioners prevails, generally speaking, this year, it was said in the board's office at the close of the 1922 appraising period. Reductions and increases have been made, but totals for different classes of property under the board's sole taxing jurisdiction will be about the same as last year, it was said. The board appraises about one-sixth of the taxable property in the state. The other five-sixths are expected to show considerable shrinkage, according to advance reports received from appraising officers. Complete figures have not yet been prepared by the board.

Greencastle.—Farmers, whose land adjoins the national road through Putnam county, are anxiously waiting completion of the brick paving work which now is well under way under the supervision of the state highway commission. Farmers whose land abutts this road already are talking of the increased property values as a result of the new road. One farmer who owns three-quarters of a mile fronting on the new road says his land will be enhanced at least $20 an acre by the improvement.

Lafayette.—Dr. Edward C. Elliott, chancellor of the University of Montana at Helena, has been selected as president of Purdue university at Lafayette. A meeting of the board of trustees of the institution was recently held to act formally on the recommendation of a special committee, which considered various educators. Doctor Elliott is to take the place of Dr. W. E. Stone, who was killed last summer in a fall while on a mountain climbing trip in the Canadian Rockies.

Indianapolis.—The suit of George W. Hereth to compel the state board for the registration of professional engineers and land surveyors to grant him a license, under the 1921 registration law, is intended as the test suit of which the Indianapolis chapter of the American Association of Engineers recently has been talking, it is understood at the office of the board. It was brought through the attorney and member of the chapter's executive committee.

Michigan City.—Mabel Donovan, seventeen, has appealed to the authorities that her father be executed in the electric chair. He is William P. Donovan, under sentence to die the night of June 1 in the Michigan City prison for the murder of his wife. Following the unusual request of the girl, Donovan has given up all hope of a reprieve. A death watch was placed.

Huntington.—G. R. Hackett, age twenty-eight, pitcher for the Huntington Specials baseball team, was found dead in the bathroom at the home of Mrs. Sarah C. VanCamp, in Huntington where he lived. It is thought he had been dead for about twelve hours as he had gone to his room soon after the end of a twelve-inning game with Mentone, in which he worked.

Mooresville.—A large barn on the farm of Eli White, three and one-half miles southwest of Mooresville, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin. Three horses, two mules, a valuable bull and a calf, together with 500 bushels of corn, ten tons of hay, a milking machine and several farm implements, also were burned. The loss is estimated at $8,000.

Richmond.—C. Francis Jenkins, a native of Richmond, inventor of the motion picture machine, and the man who gave the first motion picture exhibit, June 6, 1894, in a Richmond jewelry store, has perfected a device for transmitting motion pictures by radio, says a dispatch received from Washington, D. C., where the Hoosier inventor now resides.

Evansville.—Practically all the wheat in Vanderburg county is headed, according to the marketing agent for the farmers of the county. About one-fifth of the spring plowing has been completed. Some of the farmers are working in the fields at night by the light of their tractors in breaking their ground for corn planting.

[illegible]—F. [illegible] Soragua, a [illegible]

[illegible]

Highest Quality—Lowest Prices

The entire Goodyear effort of many years has been toward one result—the tire buyer's advantage.

Goodyear has taken two methods to achieve that result.

One has been to raise the quality of Goodyear Tires.

The other, to lower Goodyear prices.

Goodyear has succeeded in both—to your great advantage.

Goodyear Tires are better today than ever—larger, heavier and stronger. Many users tell us they are getting double the mileage from them they got from Goodyears ten years ago.

Goodyear prices are lower today than ever. On the average they have decreased more than 60% from the prices of 1910.

Look at the figures listed below.

Think of the fine performance of the Goodyears you have known, and remember that Goodyear Tires are giving even better performance now.

You can get these tires at your Goodyear Service Station Dealer's. See him today.

30 x 3½ Cross-Rib Fabric	$10.95	32 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord	$25.50
30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Fabric	$14.75	32 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord	$32.40
30 x 3½ All-Weather Tread Cord	$18.00	33 x 4 All-Weather Tread Cord	$33.40

Manufacturer's tax extra

GOODYEAR

S-So-Easy to Use Colors Silk, Wool and Cotton All at the Same Time Putnam Fadeless Dyes 10c Package Why Pay More For Any Dye?

DID NOT WORK OUT RIGHT

Chinaman Had His Own Particular Way of Looking at That Raise of Wages.

Sir William Pearce, M. P., told a good story recently in support of the argument that a man will not necessarily work better if you raise his wages.

A man who lived abroad had employed for many years an excellent Chinese cook. He decided to raise the man's wages.

When the Chinaman received the increased money at the end of the month, he said: "Why have you paid me more?"

"Because you have been a good cook," his employer replied.

"Then you have been swindling me all these years," cried the Chinaman, and he promptly left his master's service.—London Tit-Bits.

Cuticura Soap for the Complexion. Nothing better than Cuticura Soap daily and Ointment now and then as needed to make the complexion clear, scalp clean and hands soft and white. Add to this the fascinating, fragrant Cuticura Talcum, and you have the Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

What She Lacked.

Billy never played with girls until a little tot with big dimples and beautiful curls moved into the neighborhood.

One day his sister, teasing him about a very unattractive little girl, said, "Oh, I think Mary is so pretty."

But Billy quickly replied, "You don't know what pretty is; why she hasn't got any nice little laugh marks on her face, and her hair just hangs one way."

The man who agrees with everybody soon becomes very disagreeable.

"Keep off the grass" is a two-foot rule.

A Counter Proposal.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Morgan went right up to Martha's counter and asked her to marry him. Would you believe it?"

"Sort of counter-proposal, you might say," remarked the erudite floorwalker.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Reason Enough.

A novel and ingenious explanation of the cause of a singer's cough was recently given by a warm-hearted Irishman.

"And how is Misther Jones?" he inquired of one of the singer's friends. "I was hoping he'd be giving a concert in the town hall whilst he was here, so Mrs. Callahan and me could hear some more of his foine songs."

"He has a bad cough just now," said the friend.

"Oh, now, that's too bad," said Mr. McIntyre, with feeling; "but it's no wonder, all the same. That shtrong voice he has, pressing on his loongs, would be apt to give him a cough now and then, it's loikely."—Philadelphia Ledger.

To insure glistening-white table linens, use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. It never disappoints. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

Uncle Eben.

"A quarrelsome man," said Uncle Eben, "finally gits aroun' to a place whur he don't have no pleasant company at all, 'ceptin' people dat's tryin to sell 'im sumpin'."

The average man seems to have a natural talent for manufacturing hot air.

Genuine
BAYER

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

[illegible]

JUNE

Now is the time to feed those pullets

FULL-O-PEP MASH

So as to get them into early laying. We handle a complete line of Poultry feeds.

Try Country Maid flour and Daily Bread flour.

Call and get our prices --- They are the cheapest.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

St. Joe, Ind.

Please return those plant jars to the News Office If you did not pay for them

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Patronize the advertisers.

Grover Ward and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Floyd Roberts spent over Sunday in the home of her father, Earl Coburn.

The amount contributed to the Salvation Army in the drive May 1-10 from St. Joe was $15.30.

Miss Doris Keesler began work in the Brown Restaurant, Monday morning.

Roy Koch is playing with the Woodburn baseball team, this summer.

Mrs. Chas. Rice leaves Thursday for Kokomo where she will visit relatives for a week or ten days.

Mrs. Mary Bowman and son Ray, left Monday evening to open their cottage at Cold Springs, Hamilton Lake.

Wm. Pepple and wife, and Mrs. Jane Pepple, of Auburn, were over Sunday guests of E. R Kinsey and family.

Mrs. L. J. Fetters was taken to a Ft. Wayne hospital, last Friday, in the Kinsey Ambulance in a very bad condition, However the last report was that she was much better but will be confined there for sometime.

Boy Wanted

Somewhere in this town is one boy who is a "Go-Getter" spirit, full of grit and ambition, and absolutely honest. We want that boy. He will be the only boy agent in this town for the famous MOVIE WEEKLY MAGAZINE. He will work after school and other spare time. His pay will be what he makes it; besides fine prizes and FREE MOVIE TICKETS. When he makes good, he will be promoted. If you are between 14 and 19 years old, determined to "make good" and truly think that you are the boy for this job, then APPLY BY LETTER to Mr. E. L. C[illegible], [illegible] 3rd floor, 119 West 4[illegible] Street, New York City. Give full details of any past selling experience; your age; parent's full name and business; your school grade and at least two references.

Mrs. Vina Fish is making an indefinite visit with relatives at Durand, Mich., after visiting for the past week at Fostoria and Toledo.

W. E. Henley, wife and three children, and Mrs. Bert Jackson and daughter Edna, were recent Hicksville visitors.

Mrs. J. S. Nelson and little grandson, of Ft Wayne, came Sunday for a few days visit with M. T. Bishop and wife.

I wonder if the band boys aren't willing and anxious for a 4th. of July celebration. It would be a fine thing for them, for the town, and for the community around about.

Attractive Terms On Farm Mortgage Loans

We are making loans to farmers, with first mortgage as security, on very attractive terms and conditions-

You will find it greatly to your advantage to see us when in need of money.

Call at our office for complete information.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA

Mrs. John Guisinger and grandson, Berwyn Brown, of Garrett, came Saturday for a two weeks visit with relatives at this place.

Mrs. Kate A. Leighty had as weekend guests her son, John Leighty, of Chicago; and her sister, Mrs. Mary E. Magers and daughter, of Churubusco.

Mrs. Alice Copp had as over Sunday guests:—B. V. Widney and wife, of Albion; and as Sunday guests, Webster Stout and wife, of Hamilton.

Mrs. Harry Henderson and little son Max, returned to their home at Walkerville, Mich., Saturday, after being here at the bedside of her father for the past couple of weeks.

Charles Thomas and wife, and mother, Mrs. Margaret Thomas, of Reading, Mich., were Sunday dinner guests of the latter's brother, Orange Herrick and wife.

Mrs. George Walters and two sons were Saturday night and Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. Anna Snyder. Mr. Walters was a Sunday dinner guest.

Mrs. Clarence Woodcox spent the weekend at Marion a guest of her sister, Mrs. Harry Kees and family. Mr. Woodcox and children and Miss Alma Lawson met her at Huntington where they spent the day with other relatives

CATARRH

Catarrh is a Local disease greatly influenced by Constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which gives Quick Relief by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces and assists in ridding your System of Catarrh.
Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE
Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

Real Values

Genuine B. V. D. Wilson Bros. and Vassar Athletic Union Suits	$1.00
35 dozen Men's and Young Men's $8.50, $7.50 and $6.50 Silk Shirts	$5.00
200 pair of Young Men's Tan Oxfords in the newest styles	$5.00
200 pairs of Men's $2.50 Cotton Worsted Trousers, marked	$1.50
100 dozen Wabash Stripe and Plain Blue Overalls	$1.00
100 pair of Men's Elk Work Shoes, will sell at	$2.75
125—$5.00 Crepe De Chine and Habutai Silk Shirts	$3.75
Palm Beach Trousers, made from the genuine Palm Beach Cloth	4.00.
Interwoven Fibre Hose (every pair bears the 60c label)	50c
Pure Worsted one-piece Bathing Suits with body stripe	3.00
Two Piece Bathing Suits, white shirt, web belt, blue trunks	3.00
Silk Pongee Shirts, with collars attached,	5.00
Mercerized Shirts, collars attached, three colors	1.50
Phoenix Clock and Interwoven Silk Hose	75c
Beautiful Assortment of Cut Silk and Knit Neckwear	1.00
Men's and Young Men's Golf Suits	$25, $30, and $35
Genuine Palm Beach Suits (every suit with label)	12.50
White Duck Trousers, made from a pre-shrunk material	2.00
Women's Worsted Bathing Suits in all new styles	$5.00 to $10.00

200 men's and young men's $30.00 to $55.00 fine all wool suits in the newest models. Every suit with hand button holes, hand put on collars and hand padded shoulders are marked—

$18 · $25 · $35

Regulars, Stouts, Stubs, Slims and Extra Sizes

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

[illegible]

HERTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, June 2, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible] Pencil No. 174

[illegible]

JUNE

L 912

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1922 No. 23

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL

Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN

No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED

Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL

Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will then be better able to pass on your request for an [illegible] if you should find yourself in need of it. Get the habit of doing business with us, and we will try to make it worth while to you.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Obituary

Christian Curie, an aged and respected citizen of DeKalb County, died at his home south of town, Sunday, May 28 at 2 P. M., following an illness of a complicated disease of more than a year duration.

Mr. Curie was born November 9, 1842, to Nicholas and Barbara Klopfenstine Curie, who were natives of France, at Syracuse, New York. He was married to Catherine Royer, March 29, 1862, at Smithville, Ohio, by the Rev. Shoemaker. They lived for three years at Canton, Ohio, moving from there to a farm near Leo, Indiana. In the spring of 1869 they moved to their present home where they have lived for fifty-four years. Coming here before the town of St Joe existed.

To this union were born four sons and six daughters all living as follows: William, Frank, Morris and Grover, all of this place; Mrs. Laura Whaley, of Topeka, Kansas; Mrs. Emma Skilling, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Anna Henderson of Walkerville, Mich.; Mrs. Amanda Klofenstein, of Grabill; Mrs. Maude Beams, of Spencerville and Mrs. Arline Koch of this place, with thirty-two grandchildren and three great grandchildren, are left to mourn his departure.

He accepted Christ and united with Church of the Brethren in the year 1882.

Mr. Curie was a man strongly endowed by nature with a studious and analytical mind. He was a untaken student of the histories of the world and accordingly had a comprehensive grasp of modern events, which made him a ready conversationalist at all times. He was always interested in national and state affairs and was during his later years a candidate for the legislature. He was an eager partisan in politics, having firm convictions upon national problems and his death removes one of the remaining few of the old time pioneer democrats.

Mr. and Mrs. Curie celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary recently.

Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday at 2 P. M., May 30 The Rev. Wm. Gump, of Churubusco and Rev. Daily of St. Joe officiating. Interment in Riverside cemetery of which he was the founder. Funeral directer, E. R. Kinsey.

God knows the way, He holds the key,
He guides us with unerring hand;
We'll read the meaning of our tears
And there, some time, we'll understand.

CARD OF THANKS

The family desires to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness during sickness and death of their father and husband.

Mrs. C. Curie and Children

You Will Agree

What wonderful [illegible] when these two [illegible] in a news[illegible] they [illegible]

[illegible]

Quance-Moon Wedding

The marriage of William S. Quance and Martha Ann Moon took place at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Walter Moon, in Logansport, Indiana, Thursday evening, June 1, at 8 o'clock, in a pretty home wedding.

The house was tastefully decorated with the seasons flowers and plants, and the bride carried a beautiful shower of white roses and fern leaves. The guests were composed of the bride's mother, her three brothers and their families, and her one sister, and a few friends. After the ceremony and the couple had received the hearty congratulations of those present a dainty lunch was served.

Rev. C. H. Simons, pastor of an M. P. Church at Logansport officiated, and his wife was also a guest. Rev. and Mrs. Simons had formerly made special friends with the bride when she lived there.

The bride has for the past year been a secretary in the office of Dr. C. S. Johnson in St. Joe, and the groom is the present editor of the St. Joe News. They are now at home in St. Joe and cordially invite all their friends to pay them a visit.

4th Of July But No Fire Works

July 4th will soon be here and it is the desire of the State Fire Marshal that it be fittingly observed and celebrated in every community of the State, believing that succeeding years but enhance the value of the momentous action taken by our forefathers on that date one hundred and forty-six years ago.

American history is replete with instance after instance where the nation intervened for the prosperity, safety and well-being of other peoples, and when Fourth of July comes this year, why not make this an individual matter as well as a national trait.

Safeguard your own and your community's interest by omitting from your celebration the dangerous hazard of FIRE WORKS.

Countless losses of both life and property are every year due to this dangerous, useless and extremely hazardous element in our observance of the day, let us make it a day of national pride and rejoicing but withal in the State of Indiana refraining from erecting a monument of sightless eyes, torn limbs, mangled bodies and white crosses to express our enthusiasm.

Fire works are prohibited by law and local authorities are enjoined to co-operate with the State Fire Marshal in enforcing this ruling and to assist in every manner possible in eliminating this dangerous hazard to life, limb and property, from the program of the day.

Indiana has an enviable record, as regards loss of life and property, in her observance of this holiday and it should be a matter of pride and an added incentive for continued safe and sane celebrations, and I bespeak the same hearty co-operation that has made this record possible in the past.

County Orchestra To Furnish Music

The LaGrange County Consolidated [illegible] Orchestra directed by Mr. Cur[illegible] will furnish the music [illegible] June 16th., of the Auburn [illegible] Christian Endeavor [illegible]. The Orchestra [illegible] five. The members [illegible] are pupils of [illegible] schools in LaGrange [illegible] have received instruction [illegible]. This is [illegible] of this kind in [illegible] and it is certain[illegible]

[illegible] that a large [illegible] although several [illegible] ability to [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] of the [illegible]

St. Joe Garage-

Clarence C. Woodcox Vernon F. Woodcox

Boost St. Joe

MAXWELL

Strictly a Service Garage

WELDING Done While You Wait

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36. Nights-76.

CANNING TIME

We have tin cans of the best

GLASS CANS

For cold-packing in 1-2 pint, pint, quart, and 1-2 gallon sizes.

We also have

GOOD LUCK

Can Rubbers

And the

CONSERVO

For Cold-packing and canning

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

"Billy" Sunday Resting at His Winona Lake Home

Warsaw, Ind., June 3.—The Rev. Billy Sunday is now at his home at Winona Lake resting, after a strenuous six weeks' revival meeting at [illegible]mond. On June 11 the Rev. Mr. Sunday will open a revival meeting at Moorestown, Tenn and following this will return to Winona Lake to conduct his annual week's meeting, beginning Tuesday, July 4, with a patriotic address.

Mr. Sunday is putting in his rest helping Mrs. Sunday [illegible] and in the park grounds near [illegible] may be seen at almost [illegible] shovel of [illegible] Mrs. Sunday's [illegible] was given a [illegible] tabernacle [illegible]

Beautifying the Home

[illegible] pended on making the home grounds attractive. The reward is more than satisfaction, however, for it is a proven fact, that a little time and money spent in beautifying the home grounds, will return several times its original amount in increasing the value of the property. This not only applies to the city home but to the farm as well.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2485.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the Estate of Rachel Jane [illegible], deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 1st day of July 1922, and show cause if any, why the Final Settlement of accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and [illegible]

[illegible]

JUNE

L 912

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

LITTLE TALK ABOUT AGRICULTURAL BLOC

Senator Kenyon Says Legislators Have Interests of Constituents at Heart.

By SENATOR W. S. KENYON

The agrarian bloc, so-called, came into existence in a quiet and unobserving manner, and although unnamed made a considerable study of farmers' problems before it gained any notoriety.

We thought that there was no particular harm, we senators from the West and from the South, in talking over agricultural conditions. We had nothing against any other business in the country; we were representing agriculture merely. We were not doing anything against any other industries. The secretary of agriculture and the secretary of commerce talked to us one night, and at various times we listened to talks by economists, and we had Mr. Hoover come and talk to us on world conditions.

Nobody dreamed this was such a terrible thing to do, until somebody in derision go up the term, "Agricultural Bloc." That was a term of derision, not of friendship. They say we are soviets—Bolsheviks in these days. It used to be when they took anyone to task it was pro-German. Now, when they take you to task they say you are a Bolshevik. That is the way to settle it. A Bolshevik is the fellow who don't agree with you.

Senator W. S. Kenyon.

If the group of senators who are taking the interests of farmers to heart are an agricultural bloc, what about the other blocs? If a bloc is to be condemned simply because it is a bloc then all the other blocs are just as bad as the agricultural group. The social bloc has done more than anything else to influence legislation in Washington.

Men have gone to Washington intending to do what was right and have become so entangled in the social bloc that they completely forgot the folks back home. And that is just what the members of the agricultural bloc are trying to avoid. They had the interests of their constituents at heart if any group of legislators ever did.

The biggest accomplishment of the agrarian bloc for the benefit of the farmer was the amendment of the war finance commission act under which already $60,000,000 had been distributed for the benefits of agriculture, indirectly but nevertheless beneficially. This distribution has been at the rate of $1,000,000 a day.

Agriculture would not have had that assistance had the block not functioned.

WANT MONEY TO FIGHT RUST

Delay in Speeding Up Campaign Against Disease Is Costing Farmers Billions.

Wheat rust spread by the barberry bush menaces the great wheat industry of the United States. Delay in speeding up the campaign against black rust of wheat will cost the growers, millers and consumers of bread billions of dollars. At the present rate with which the work is being prosecuted it will take 10 to 12 years to clean up the barberry bushes in the 13 states in the middle west where they are most effective in spreading spores which cause black [illegible]

[illegible]

GRADUATE STUDENTS TO GET FELLOWSHIPS

Grain, Live Stock, Fruit and Other Commodities to Be Given Closest Study.

Farmers' co-operative marketing enterprises are to be founded on a basis of accurate marketing knowledge. To get these facts the American Farm Bureau Federation, in co-operation with state federations, is establishing a series of fellowships in various state agricultural colleges, which will enable an analytical study to be made of the entire marketing process.

These fellowships will be given to a graduate student and will be for the period of one year. They will be valued at $720.

Every commodity will be studied separately. The first fellowships will be granted in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, New York, Michigan, Ohio, and possibly other states, and the study will be that of co-operative marketing of dairy products. The work of the research student will be carefully outlined in advance by an advisory committee.

This advisory committee, which will work with the research department of the American Farm Bureau Federation consists of E. G. Nourse of Iowa State college, B. H. Hibbard of Wisconsin university, and W. F. Handschin of Illinois university. Dr. H. C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of markets, has been invited to be a member of this advisory committee.

The general outline of this plan was worked out by Mr. Moorhouse, director of the department of research of the American Farm Bureau Federation and the administration of the entire project will be in the hands of his department.

Early this year Mr. Moorhouse, together with the advisory committee, will select a man outstanding in the marketing of the commodity under study, who will correlate the work of the research student.

Grain, live stock, fruit, cotton, tobacco and other commodities will be taken up and given the same close analytical study, fellowships being granted in the state colleges of agriculture in the states prominent for each of these commodities. The dairy fellowships will be announced this spring.

FOR COMMUNITY BETTERMENT

Women Organizing to Take Up Different Phases of Work to Aid Farm Conditions.

Community betterment, which is one of the most important projects of the farm bureau, is receiving much attention from women members of the county farm bureaus. Organizations of special committees of women are taking up different phases of community betterment work to prompte better homes and social conditions on the farm. Rural education is one of the chief problems and various committees are trying to make for a better rural school, [illegible]

Officers of Legion Auxiliary to Farm Bureau, [illegible]

[illegible]

BETTER ROADS

FACTORS AFFECTING GRADING

Labor Costs, Character of Soil Graded and Time Limit on Contracts All Counted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A great variation in the conditions under which grading for highways is done in different sections of the United States is reflected in cost data compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, on 1,350 miles of federal-aid road. The figures cover the four-year period 1917-1921 and are based on a total of 24,500,000 yards of earth.

For the groups of states the average price per cubic yard is as follows: New England and Middle Atlantic states, $1.88; East North Central, $0.68; West North Central, $0.49; South Atlantic, $0.61; East South Central, $0.41; West South Central, $0.35; Mountain, $0.52; and Pacific states, $0.61. The general average price was $0.56.

Probably the most important factor affecting the cost was the amount of grading to be done per mile, the quantity being very small in the groups having the highest prices. In general it is noticed that where mostly old roads are rebuilt, the light work and tearing up the old pavement greatly affected the cost. The amount of fine grading or trimming required for the higher types of pavement was also a factor. Labor costs, character of soil to be graded, climatic conditions, time limit on contracts, and cost of detours for traffic also affected the cost.

While each group of states did not have the same volume of grading each year, and therefore the average figure for the whole country is not truly representative, it is interesting to note that the average cost of grading gradually rose from $0.49 in the first quarter of 1917 to $0.67 in the fourth quarter of 1919, and then gradually declined to $0.34 in the third quarter of 1921. It is probable that the latter figure would be somewhat higher had all of the states let work in that quarter.

Concrete Road Designed to Take Care of Great Deal More Than Local Traffic.

FIVE BIG QUESTIONS

Are the roads in your county a credit to you, or are you ashamed of them?

Are the roads in your county wide enough for the convenient passage of cars?

Are the roads in your county marked, so that tourists from distant states have no difficulty keeping to the right road?

Are the roads in your county all-year-round roads, or only good-weather roads?

Are the roads in your county such that tourists traveling over them want to come back that way?

KENTUCKY TO BUILD ROADS

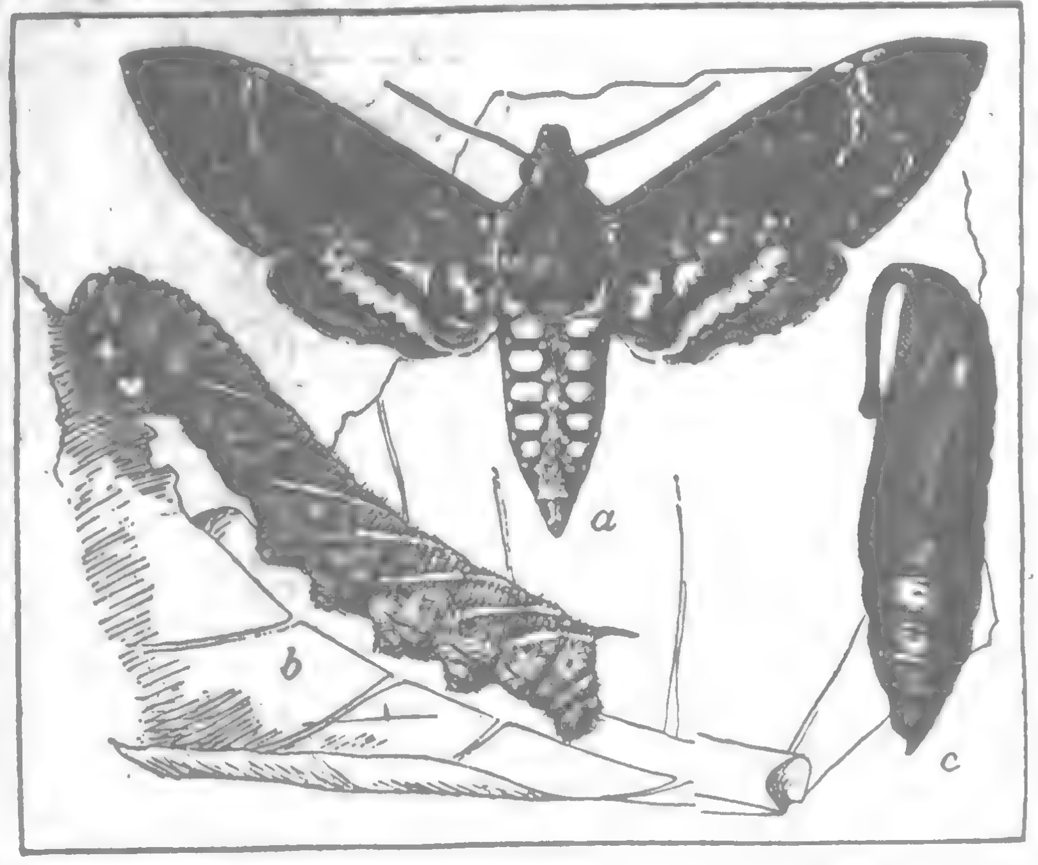
House of Representatives Approves $50,000,000 State Bond Issue Bill by Big Vote.

Kentucky, famous for several things, is now to add "good roads" to its list. The $50,000,000 state road bond issue bill has been approved by the Kentucky house of representatives by a vote of 63 to 34.

The measure provides for submitting the proposition to the voters of [illegible]

[illegible]

CONTROL DISEASES AND INSECT ENEMIES OF VEGETABLE GARDEN



One of Tomato Hornworms—a, Adult Moth; b, Larva; c, Pupa; (Howard.)

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The insects which attack the potato and the eggplant injure the tomato to a less extent, and tomatoes suffer greatly from pests.

Tomato Hornworms.

The tomato hornworms are large green worms, sometimes called tomato worms or tobacco worms, as they feed about equally well on both plants. They are the larvae, or young, of large sphinx moths of two species, which are very similar in habits and distribution. These insects produce two broods, and when they begin to mature they cut all the leaves from tomato plants. Growers should be on the lookout for the first as well as the second brood. They appear at various times, according to the locality.

Control.—Hand picking can be practiced, but it takes an experienced eye to detect these worms when they are at rest. When feeding they are more easily seen and can be destroyed readily. A single application of lead arsenate at the usual rate will destroy them even though crudely applied. Those which eat the poison first will be found dead the following day. The remainder will be found on the second or third day.

Tomato Fruitworm.—The tomato fruitworm is the same insect as the boll-worm of cotton and the corn earworm and is the cause of much trouble to tomato growers, because of its eating into the ripening fruit and destroying its market value.

Control.—Lead arsenate, 2 pounds to 25 gallons of water, applied two or three times, will keep the insect under partial control. As long as sweet corn is growing in the vicinity it attracts the worms, leaving the tomatoes less subject to attack. Hand picking is too difficult.

Cutworms.—Various cutworms attack the tomato when it is set out. Indeed, it is the favorite food plant of most forms of cutworms.

Flea-Beetles.—The potato flea-beetle frequently attacks tomatoes and does considerable damage.

Control.—Dipping young plants in lead-arsenate solution at the rate of 1 pound to 50 gallons of water, before setting out, will protect them considerably against injury.

Characteristic Work of the Tomato Fruitworms.

Bordeaux mixture also acts as a deterrent.

Late-Blight.—A rapid blighting of the leaves, accompanied by rotting of the fruit, is due to the same fungus as that causing potato late-blight. This is common in the Appalachian region.

It is controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture, as advised for leaf-spot.

Leaf-Spot.—In leaf-spot, the leaves are covered with dark brown spots (Fig. 3) and shrivel and die, beginning at the base of the plant. This is the worst disease of the tomato. Spray with bordeaux mixture and resin fish-oil soap before the disease appears, and repeat at ten-day intervals. Try to spray the lower side of the leaves as well as the upper side.

Mosaic Disease.—Mosaic disease [illegible]

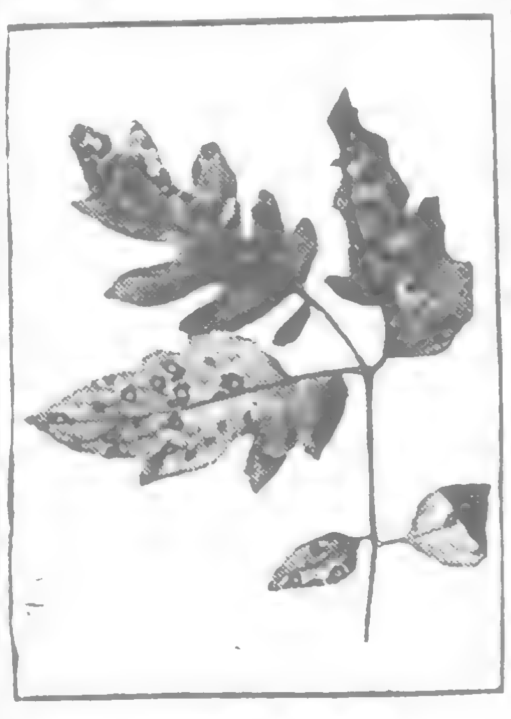
it, try to make the soil well drained, but retentive of moisture. Water the plants if needed. Plant the variety Bonny Best, which seems to resist blossom-end rot. Tomatoes trained to stakes and pruned often are less attacked.

Wilt.—Wilt causes the plants to wilt and die suddenly. It is especially prevalent in the South, where three different forms of wilt are found.

Destroy diseased plants. Use new land for the next planting.

Turnip.—Turnips are attacked by the same insects as cabbages.

Clubroot.—Clubroot of the turnip causes swollen, distorted roots similar to those caused by cabbage clubroot. Rotation and lime are advised, as for the cabbage.



Tomato Leaf-Spot.

Watermelon.—Watermelons are affected by insects which attack the cucumber, and great injury is done by the melon aphis.

PREPARE TO CONTROL GRASSHOPPER PESTS

Tests Made to Determine Most Effective Baits.

Special Agent of Bureau of Entomology Assigned to Make Investigation Bearing on Situation in Infested Regions.

Various steps are being taken in the regions heavily infested by grasshoppers last year to prepare for their adequate control during the coming season should the same situation arise, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

At a recent conference attended by entomologists from Canada, as well as state and federal entomologists, plans were co-ordinated for conducting a series of experiments this year to determine the most effective poisoned baits for various species of grasshoppers which infest different regions. The work is to be done on a uniform basis, so that the results obtained may be easily compared.

It is also planned to construct an international map, showing in a large, regional way the grasshopper conditions in both Canada and this country. This map will be available both in making an annual record and for future reference in control work. A special agent of the bureau of entomology, with headquarters at Billings, Mont., has been assigned to make investigations bearing on the grasshopper situation this year in Wyoming, North Dakota, Minnesota and other affected areas.

TIMOTHY WILL AID ALFALFA

Yield of Hay Increased Twenty-five Per Cent in Wisconsin—Keeps Out Bluegrass.

Increasing the yield of hay by 25 per [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JUNE 11

JEREMIAH CAST INTO PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 38:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be not afraid of their faces: for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord.—Jer. 1:8.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Gen. 39:19-23; Jer. 20:1-18; Luke 3:18-20; Acts 12:1-11; 16:19-34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How God Cared for Jeremiah.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jeremiah's Bold Truth-telling.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Faithful in the Face of Danger
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From Jeremiah's Character

I. Jeremiah Predicts the Capture of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. To Whom—the People (v. 1). Jeremiah had been taken out of the prison by the king (37:17), and ordered confined to the court of the prison (37:21). The people seem to have had free access to him in the court (32:12). From this place of limited confinement Jeremiah announced to the people their approaching captivity.

2. Counsel Given (vv. 2, 3). (1) All that remaineth in the city shall die by the sword, famine and pestilence. (2) He that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live. "He shall have his life for a prey" doubtless means that he shall escape with his life, though losing all else.

II. Jeremiah Accused by the Princes (vv. 4, 5).

1. "He weakeneth the hands of the men and all the people" (v. 4). From a human standpoint what they said was true, but since Jeremiah was but the interpreter of God to the nation they ought to have heeded his advice to surrender.

2. "This man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt" (v. 4). This charge was utterly false. Jeremiah was the best friend of the people, for he faithfully proclaimed to them God's judgment upon them for their sins and advised them how to make the best of their unfortunate situation.

3. The King's Cowardly Act (v. 5). Jeremiah is abandoned by his cowardly friend. The very one whom Jeremiah was trying to help deserted him. The king was afraid of the Chaldeans, the princes, Jeremiah and God.

III. Jeremiah Cast Into the Dungeon (v. 6).

This was not a regular prison, but a cistern which had doubtless been emptied of its water during the siege, leaving only "mire." Into this mire he sank. The purpose was to let Jeremiah die there. There was no possible way to escape. In this situation Jeremiah is a type of Christ (Psalm 69). Jeremiah was one of the bravest of God's servants.

IV. Jeremiah Rescued From the Dungeon (vv. 7-13).

1. By Whom—Ebed-melech, an African servant (vv. 7-9). The Jewish prophet whom his own countrymen tried to destroy is saved by a Gentile, which may be thought of as foreshadowing the Gentiles' attitude toward Christ. Though Ebed-melech had a colored skin he was the whitest man in Jerusalem. He was not only sympathetic, but courageous. He went to the king and boldly declared that the princes had done evil in imprisoning Jeremiah.

2. The Method (vv. 10-13). The king yielded to his request and furnished a guard to prevent interference with the work of rescue. He let down soft rags and worn-out garments by ropes and instructed Jeremiah to put them under his arms and under the ropes so as to prevent injury to him as he was lifted up. They lifted him out of the dungeon and he was permitted the freedom of the court of the prison.

Why did Jeremiah have such a hard time? Why do the purest and best men and women have to suffer? Why are God's prophets unpopular? Jeremiah, the prophet who declared God's power to deliver, goes to prison and suffers. "Why do the righteous suffer" is an age-old question.

1. The power of God is more strikingly shown in deliverance than in keeping from trials. This was so in the case of the Hebrews in the fiery furnace and Daniel in the den of lions.

2. Great gain accrues to the sufferers; e. g. the Hebrews in the fiery furnace were not only kept from being burned, but had walking with them the Son of God; Job through his trials was brought to see himself.

3. Suffering turns out to the furtherance of God's cause; e. g. Job becomes the priest through whose intercession his friends are pardoned; Paul's sufferings furthered the preaching of the gospel; John through banishment on the Isle of Patmos was given the vision of the Revelation.

Zion.

But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: for the Lord dwelleth in Zion.—Joel 3:20 and 21.

Be Honest.

[illegible]

JUNE

L 912

147

RADIO

INSTRUCTIONS FOR TROUBLE SHOOTING

How to Detect and Remedy the Open Circuit, Short Circuit and Leakage.

Radio circuits are subject to the same ills that the ordinary power circuits are subject to. However, to cure them is not such a difficult task as might be supposed, especially if some logical procedure is used.

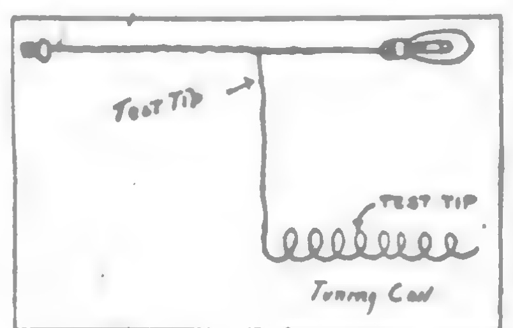
If a receiver is well put together in the first place and all contacts and other parts gone over once in a while, there is no reason why there should be any trouble. But the human being is prone to err, so that for the "once in a while" that is liable to happen, this article will be devoted to the explanation of what might happen to a simple receiver and the best way to fix it.

The usual troubles of the receiver fall under one of the following three headings:

1—An open circuit.
2—A short circuit.
3—Leakage.

An open circuit can most easily be detected by means of a series lamp. Nearly every one has available the ordinary 110 volt lighting circuit. Take an ordinary extension cord and cut one wire at any convenient place and use these two ends as test clips or tips. The extension cord is plugged into the house lighting circuit at any convenient outlet and when the two cut ends are held together the lamp will light as the circuit is closed. When the tips are held open the circuit is "open" and the light will go out.

Suppose it is desired to test for an open circuit in a tuning coil. Connect one tip to one end of the winding and the other test clip to the slider. As the slide is moved back and forth the light should remain lighted. If the light goes out at times there is an open circuit in the coil. If the light goes out when the coil is jarred the slider does not make good contact with the winding.



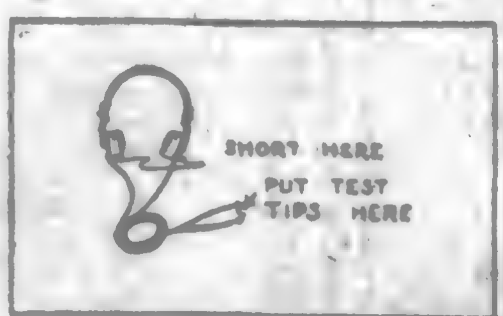
Testing the Tune Circuit.

If a buzzer and battery are available they can be used in testing for an open circuit in the same way that the lamp can be used. Connect the battery and buzzer in series with the test clips or tips and any low resistance circuit can be tested.

The ground connections can be tested with a buzzer and battery, but do not use the house-lighting circuit to test for grounds because one side of the lighting circuit is already grounded and if the other side were connected to the ground a short circuit would exist and an excessive current flow.

If the ground wire is connected to the water pipe, connect one test tip to the ground and the other to the gas pipe, which is also grounded. The buzzer should buzz if one has a good low resistance ground.

Leakage usually exists between the antenna and the ground. An antenna should be well insulated from its support. The lead-in should be brought down to the point where it enters the wall of the station in such a manner that when the wind causes it to swing, it cannot touch any grounded material, and that rain and snow cannot cause a path along which the current can ground. In bringing the lead-in through the wall, insulate it well and inside the station use as short a piece of well-insulated wire as is possible to make good connection with the set.



To Test Telephone Cords.

To test the continuity of the circuit of a pair of telephone receivers, touch the tips of the cord phone to the tongue. If the receivers are in reasonably good condition a slight click will be heard. If the response in one receiver seems to be weaker than that in the other, examine the diaphragm of the receiver giving the weaker response and see if it is bent toward the pole piece. Try turning the diaphragm over if such is the case. [illegible] when the diaphragm of a receiver is removed that the ends of the wire from the magnet [illegible] in handling.

If [illegible] series and to check either one separately, short circuit the tips of the cord leading to the other receiver just outside of the case. Should it appear that there is an open circuit in the cord, short circuit both receivers where the cord enters the case and with a buzzer or lamp connected to the tips on the end of the cord test for an open circuit.

Care should be exercised by the operator when adjusting a crystal detector to see that his fingers do not touch the surface of the crystal or the contact point of the little spring. The oil secretion that exists in the skin together with the dust that it collects will render a crystal detector inoperative by the insulating film that it will cause to form on the portion of the crystal surface that is touched. Should the surface of the crystal get dirty as evidenced by the received signals becoming weaker and weaker, try cleaning the crystal with alcohol and a little brush. Or if this does not seem to remedy the trouble, chip off old surface so that an entirely new surface is presented to the spring.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

The higher the aerial the stronger the signals. An increase of five to ten feet in the height of the flat top aerial will increase signals.

Addition of a variable condenser to the secondary or to the primary of a loose coupler often helps to tune out the undesired signals.

The sliders on tuning coils often make poor contacts with the slide rod. Thus much of the signal strength is lost. You can overcome this by soldering a flexible wire to the slider.

Increase length of spreaders of two, three or four-wire aerials from six to ten feet for best results. Each wire should be from four to six feet from its neighbor. Two wires one or two feet apart are no better than one wire. Likewise four wires on short spreaders are no better than one wire.

AMATEURS SHOULD PLAY FAIR

Radio Inspector Schmidt Urges That They Learn the Laws and Regulations.

Nine out of every ten radio fans are good sports, but the tenth is either a fan with poor judgment or a "rotter." It is up to the amateurs to see that restrictions are not imposed upon them, by playing fair, says Radio Inspector L. R. Schmidt of the Ninth district.

This can be done by observing certain cautions and by becoming posted on the radio laws and regulations. A copy of these regulations may be obtained from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., for 15 cents. It is worth while to spend 15 cents in order to be a "square shooter" in the radio game.

The great trouble with amateurs is that when they want to send a message around a corner they put on all the power they have with the hope that some one in Texas might pick up their message. The object should be to use the minimum amount of power to get the message to its destination.

"In all circumstances, except in case of signals or radiograms relating to vessels in distress, all stations shall use the minimum amount of energy necessary to carry out any communication desired."

Amateurs should keep their wave length to 200 meters.

They should use a "pure wave" or, as the regulations state, "if the sending apparatus is of such a character that the energy is radiated in two or more wave lengths, more or less sharply defined, as indicated by a sensitive wave meter, the energy in no one of the lesser waves shall exceed 10 per centum of that in the greater."

The wave must be "sharp." As to this the regulations state: "At all stations the logarithmic decrement per complete oscillation in the wave trains emitted by the transmitter shall not exceed two-tenths when sending distress signals or signals and messages relating thereto."

Amateurs frequently are at fault in calling stations too often. The law states that they can call three times, send "d e" once and sign their station call three times; but often the amateurs will send the calls a dozen or more times.

HOW TO GROUND AN AERIAL

If Properly Done It Really Protects the Property From Lightning.

Generally speaking, aerials do not attract lightning, but they do store up atmospheric electricity, and, of course, this condition does create a hazard. However, when the aerial is properly grounded it then acts as a [illegible] and really protects the property from this [illegible] hazard.

[illegible]

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Gary.—Production at the rail mills has been increased from 10,000 tons a week to 12,000 tons. Further increases are expected.

Terre Haute.—The Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western railroad has completed the purchase of the Chicago & Indiana coal road between Brazil and West Union.

Michigan City.—William E. Donovan, thirty-eight, who on July 21 took the life of his wife as she was holding their baby in her arms at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Rainey, in Bloomingdale, paid the price exacted by the state in the electric chair of the state prison at Michigan City.

Warsaw.—There are 7,077 persons of school age in Kosciusko county, it is shown by enumeration figures just completed by Jesse H. Brunes, county superintendent. This is a loss of 162 over last year. The Warsaw enumeration this year is 1,118, a loss of 112 over last year. School age in Indiana is six to twenty-one years for enumeration purposes.

Vincennes.—Four persons were killed and one seriously injured when their automobile was struck by a Chicago & Eastern Illinois passenger train at Busseron crossing, ten miles south of here. The dead are: Alvin Hardin, forty-five, Danville, Ill.; Mrs. Fannie Hardin, forty, his wife; Mrs. Leslie English, sister of Mrs. Hardin, and her three-year-old daughter, Betty Lou English, also of Danville.

Richmond.—Relics and souvenirs of the World war, owned by ex-service men, will be collected by Harry Ray post of the American Legion and given a permanent place in the post headquarters. Dr. W. L. Misner, who served overseas, reported that many relics which would be of great interest to posterity are being lost because members have no permanent place in their homes for these reminders of the conflict.

Decatur.—Farmers in Adams county will lose thousands of dollars this summer through the chinch bug. The adult bugs have appeared in the small grain fields in all parts of the county in alarmingly large numbers, and many of the fields will not be harvested, it is said. Unless the farmers use some effective means of preventing the young bugs, which will soon begin hatching out, from migrating to nearby cornfields the corn crop will be greatly damaged also.

Bloomington.—With a flat car rigged up as an "observation Pullman" and a caboose as a "diner," and the "special" drawn by a "dinky" engine from a stone quarry, the members of the Bloomington Rotary club enjoyed an unusual trip. The members of the club were the guests of the president, Harry Johnson, who is also head of a large stone company. The special took the Rotarians on a trip to the Johnson quarry, which is in the district between Bloomington and Bedford.

Indianapolis.—Indiana Democrats, meeting at Indianapolis in their state convention, laid the foundation for their fall campaign. An unusually large number of women participated in the convention as delegates, and in the field of candidates for nomination on the state ticket Miss Ella Crawford of Terre Haute was unopposed for clerk of the Supreme court. Other nominations on the state ticket included secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction and judges of the Supreme and the Appellate courts.

Indianapolis.—One hundred and two persons were arrested by state game wardens within 30 days, George N. Mannfeld, director of the fish and game division of the state conservation department, announced. Possession of seines constituted the principal violation of the laws, it was said. Forty-one persons were fined for this offense. Other violations were as follows: Possession of spears, 25; taking fish with nets, 17; taking undersized fish 6; hunting without license, 6; taking-bearing animals during the closed season, 2; hunting with ferret, 2; shooting fish, 1, and hunting on Sunday, 1.

Indianapolis.—The last general registration of voters in Indiana will take place between September 9 and October 9 in accordance with the new registration law, George H. Healey, clerk of the state board of election commissioners, said. The law prescribes, Mr. Healey said, that the registration should begin on the fifty-ninth day before the general election and end on the twenty-ninth day before the election. The record so obtained this year will, under the law, constitute a permanent register of voters in each county. Additions to the register and changes in it are to be [illegible] the county clerk [illegible] register. [illegible]

[illegible]

Greencastle.—The Ohio and Indiana stone quarry fired 15,500 pounds of dynamite in one shot, and moved about 44,000 tons of stone. Thirty-six holes were drilled to a depth of 75 feet.

Hartford City.—John Fensil, a farmer living near Montpelier, produced the champion snake story of the year. He claims to have killed a blue racer measuring 11 feet in length and 3 inches in diameter.

Sandborn.—Four men attempted to rob the bank of the Sandborn Banking company, but suceeded only in blowing open the outer doors of the vault and obtaining about $22 in small change.

English.—Two men will be tried for murder in the Crawford circuit court which convenes for the June term in a few days. Earl Frans and Setser Myers, both of Leavenworth, will answer to a charge of murder, June 14.

Hartford City.—A Hartford City glass company began using natural gas for fuel, due to a shortage of coal. The strike of union miners is responsible. Shipments from nonunion fields have been delayed.

Shelbyville.—Preliminary to the dispatch of invitations, the names of more than 2,500 former residents of Shelbyville and Shelby county have been submitted to the chairman of the committee on invitations for the Shelby county centennial celebration, which will be held here July 4. The event is expected to be the greatest of its kind ever held in the county.

Indianapolis.—Indiana has 30 big rivers, 60 large creeks, and more than 200 lakes available for fishing, says a bulletin of the fish and game division of the state conservation department, sent out to 184 fish, game and bird protection associations in the state. "It would take one person years to fish them all and it is doubtful whether any person ever has," the bulletin says.

Indianapolis.—That the 10 per cent freight rate reduction ordered by the interstate commerce commission to apply generally over the country will mean a tremendous saving to Indiana shippers is indicated in the statement of R. B. Coapstick, traffic manager of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, that the saving to shippers in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne alone would be more than $800,000 a month.

Terre Haute.—Selection of Michigan City as the meeting place for the 1923 state convention of the Knights of Columbus and re-election of state officers made up the principal business of the closing session of the twenty-third annual convention at Terre Haute. J. M. Nurre of Bloomington was elected state deputy for the third time, this being only the second time in the history of the lodge that a deputy has been named for the third consecutive term.

Hartford City.—The assessed valuation of real estate in Blackford county this year totals $16,464,515, according to figures compiled in the office of the county auditor. This is a decrease of $1,022,985 from last year. The decrease is on farm land in four townships. Improvements in Hartford City and Montpelier bring up the totals in these cities, the increase in Hartford City being 2.49 per cent, and in Montpelier 6 per cent. Two townships show as much as 18 per cent decrease.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray appointed Benjamin H. Harrel as the World war hero to represent Indiana in a "Living Hall of Fame" of the states to be held in connection with the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War at San Francisco, Cal., June 16-30. Harrel, who was a sergeant in the overseas service, takes a place alongside of famous Sergeant York, for the Indiana man was decorated by General Pershing for capturing single-handed 31 Germans. He received the distinguished service cross.

Fort Wayne.—Dr. Byron E. Biggs, who was appointed superintendent of the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth last spring, has taken charge. Announcement was made by Doctor Biggs that as soon as possible psychiatric clinics would be established in all the larger cities in the state, under the guidance and supervision of Doctor Biggs. "We also are hoping that a closer plan of co-operation with the state colony for the feeble-minded may be developed, so that the two institutions may render the maximum of assistance to each other in the solution of the state's problems," Doctor Biggs said.

Petersburg.—Peach trees are so full of peaches in Pike county that many growers are shaking their trees to rid them from surplus peaches and keep the trees from breaking down. Many of the growers are picking the inferior peaches from the trees, leaving the better ones to ripen. Raspberries are [illegible] and the crop will be a large one. All early strawberries are gone, but late strawberries are [illegible] [illegible] are now selling [illegible] [illegible] be the [illegible] will be an [illegible] are full [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

FATHER FOOD

"What is the matter now, Butter?" asked Father Food. "I should think you and Bread would know enough not to quarrel by this time. In fact I always thought you got along beautifully and now, these past few days, I've heard you talking and scolding each other.

"What is the trouble?"

"Oh," said Butter, "Bread is so conceited. Bread says it is more important than any other member of your family, Father.

"Bread says it doesn't need me in the least, but it lets me come along just because it's nice in a way to have company.

"Now I've told Bread that it wouldn't be nearly so nice without me, and then too, think how useful I am! If anyone gets a horrid, painful burn, a little of me on the place which has been burned is a great, great help.

"I ease the pain, tremendously."

"That is quite true, Butter, but what Bread has said is also true. Bread is a very necessary and important member of my family.

"But you two mustn't quarrel. It is so absurd. Why, what would people say if they thought that Bread and Butter had taken to quarreling?

"It's the natural thing to put you two together. For years and years you've been the best of friends and brothers so that people always speak of Bread and Butter together.

"They hardly think of you separately."

Butter began to cry a little.

"There, there, Butter, don't cry. You don't want to melt away in tears. And you've just been acting a little bit foolishly lately. So has Bread. You'll not act so foolishly again, I'm sure.

"For it is foolish—that's all."

"Very foolish," said Butter, "and we've both been really unhappy about it."

"Now, we'll have lessons," said Father Food. "Come, children, come, children. Lessons are about to begin."

"Butter Began to Cry."

So all the children came hurrying along with their slates and pencils under their arms.

"Radishes!" said Father Food.

"Present," said the Radishes.

"Potatoes," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Potatoes.

"Onions," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Onions, and some of the others wept as they moved about a little as they spoke.

"Beets," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Beets.

"Cabbages," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Cabbages.

"Beans," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Beans.

"Carrots," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Carrots.

"Tomatoes," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Tomatoes.

"Peas," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Peas.

"Spinach," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Spinach.

"Turnips," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Turnip.

"Cauliflower," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Cauliflower.

"Bread and Butter," said Father Food.

"Present," they answered cheerily.

"Prunes," said Father Food.

"Present," said the Prunes.

Then Father Food taught the children their lessons. They told him what they were good for and how they grew, and all about themselves and their little histories. And when they didn't know he told them and made them [illegible] until they could answer all the questions.

Then school was out for the day, and Father Food was proud for the lessons had been very well recited.

He Traveled With Them.

"Suppose you had two apples, Johnnie," [illegible]

[illegible]

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs Would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington.—"For several years I have had trouble with the lowest part of my back and my hips and my legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand on my feet at times. I was always able to do my work although I did not feel good. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and having heard several praise it I decided to try it. I feel first-rate at the present time. It has done wonders for me and I keep it in the house right along. I always recommend it to others who are sick and ailing."—Mrs. J. M. SIBBERT, 4032 High St., Everett, Washington.

To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear.

It has done this for many, many women: why not give it a fair trial—now.

TOO LATE

Death only a matter of short time. Don't wait until pains and aches become incurable diseases. Avoid painful consequences by taking

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—the National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

But He Was Wrong.

There is a good story told of the Aga Khan, the great Mohammedan potentate. He has a fine taste in champagne, and an Englishman, who was dining at the same house in Paris, asked him how he, as an orthodox Mohammedan, could touch alcohol in defiance of the Koran.

"Oh," said the Aga Khan, "that is simple. I am a holy man, and when alcohol touches my lips it becomes water."

Some time later the prince was dining with the same Englishman, and the butler poured him out a glass of water, when he looked dubiously at it.

"I thought that if champagne, when it touches your lips, becomes water," his host remarked, "surely water would become champagne."

The oftener you look back the faster you don't go.

Trouble makes some faces fiercer, others kinder.

"Vaseline" Carbolated Petroleum Jelly

is an effective, antiseptic first-aid dressing for cuts, wounds and insect bites. It helps prevent infection.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
(Consolidated)
State Street New York

NR
Tonight
Tomorrow Alright

JUNE

L 91

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

There are no gains without pains.

—‡—‡—‡—

Drive thy business! Let not that drive thee.

—‡—‡—‡—

Fools make feasts and wise men eat them.

—‡—‡—‡—

He that lives on hope will die fasting.

Today's Best Recipe

Take one reckless, natural born fool.

Two or three big drinks of bad liquor.

A fast, high-powered motor car.

Soak the fool in the liquor, place in the car and let him go. After due time, remove from the wreckage, place in black, satin lined box and garnish with flowers.

NEWVILLE

Wallace Abel is seriously ill at this writing.

Wm. Miller has given his house a new coat of paint which adds to its beauty.

Harry Fuller and family of Garrett were Tuesday dinner guests of John Miller and family.

Elijah Enhoff of Butler and John Miller were the only old veterans who attended the decoration services here. The majority have joined the rank that never marches back.

John Friend and wife of Garrett, were Sunday guests of his mother, Mrs. Friend of this place.

Mrs. Guy Platter, who has been ill for some time with rheumatism has improved and was able to attend services Sunday morning.

Mrs. Omo Richmond was seriously ill Saturday with an attack of heart trouble. She was some better on Sunday.

Mrs. Clarence Wyatt and daughter also a daughter-in-law and baby of Angola, were recent guests at this place.

Frank Kinsey and wife of St. Joe and Mrs. Harriett Sechler of Orangeville were Friday evening guests of Argel Sechler and wife.

Dewey Miller is employed on the railroad at Concord, having closed his blacksmith shop for a time at least.

Memorial Day was appropriately observed here. Many good recitations and songs were rendered after which the Rev. P. A. Hubbartt gave a fine address which was highly appreciated. The children following their leaders decorated the graves.

COLETOWN

Mrs. Frank Spires and daughters called on Mrs. Ed Killian Thursday afternoon.

Henry Murphy and wife, Mrs. Audrey Maxon and Mrs. Gertrude Byers called on J. W. Hart and wife Tuesday afternoon.

Opal Walker spent Sunday with Zelma Miller.

Sam Keesler, wife and two children and Mrs. Jane Coburn of St. Joe, R. H. Conine and wife, Jay Hart, wife and daughter Annabell, Berneice and Carl Hart, called on Mr. and Mrs J. W. Hart, Sunday afternoon.

He'd Had Enough.

It happened on the transport coming back. "Show me your identification tag," demanded the medical officer of a colored private. "Ah done chucked it overbo'd, suh," confessed the other.

"Ah jus' naturally ain't got no ambition for no mo' of dem death checks."

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	113	$ 5.83
M. P.	83	18.63
Lutheran	81
M. E. Spencer	103	5.79
Lutheran	104	5 00
Newville U. B.	109	5 06
Coburntown	100	13 07
Concord	63	3 22
Rehoboth	68	5.62
Mt. Pleasant	109	4 12

Ward Succeeds Chubb.

Simeon Chubb, a farmer residing south of Butler and who has been Manager of the Farmers' Co Operative Milling Co., at St. Joe is in a critical condition suffering with a cancer on the head. He has been afflicted for several months and the treatments applied thus far have not met with success.

Mr. Chubb has recently resigned as manager of the Farmers' organisation and in his place has been placed Grover Ward. Mr. Ward has been assisting Mr. Chubb since he started as manager and is familiar with all the work.

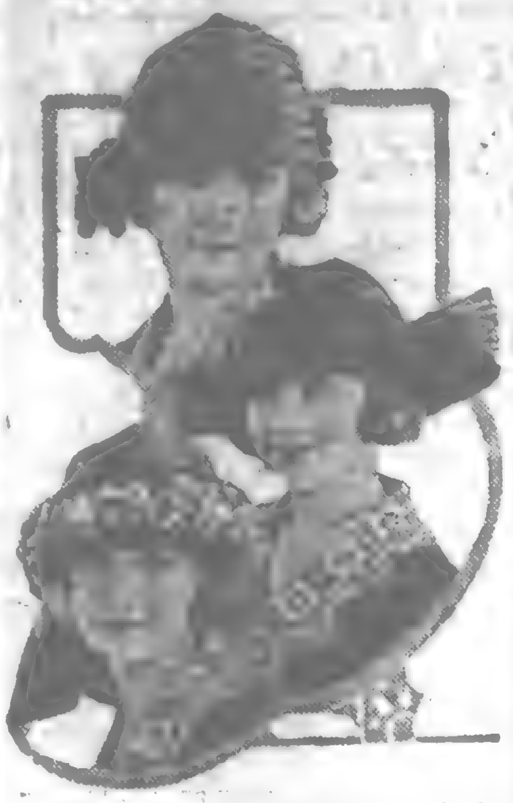
Guard against fire.

Don't throw away your cigar or cigarette when crossing a bridge with a wooden floor, advises the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. It may start a fire that will destroy the bridge.

Many such fires are started. Most of them are put out with small damage, but occasionally a large structure is destroyed. It seems strange that a steel bridge should be destroyed by fire, but heat from a burning floor may cause the destruction of the whole bridge by softening; the breaking of one weakened member will cause the whole span to drop into the river. On some large bridges a watchman is kept to guard against this danger, and in dry seasons fires have been known to occur almost daily.

A committee composed of a representative of the bureau and representative of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the lumber and creosote industry, and the Engineering News-Record, a prominent engineering magazine, is now investigating the subject and considering the best means of protection.

FLATTERING MILLINERY



Three styles, characteristic of the season, are shown here. At the top a hat of bright blue braid, piped with satin, has a beehive crown and a narrow satin-covered brim. It is trimmed with cherries primly set about the crown in clusters and bunched at the right side. A brilliant all-black hat, suited to older wearers, has a glittering fabric over its upturned brim and sprays of feathers at each side. The youthful hat at the bottom, employs ribbon and flowers to trim a shape covered with a novelty material. This hat is shown in several colors with little springtime blossoms massed against the upward-rolling brim.

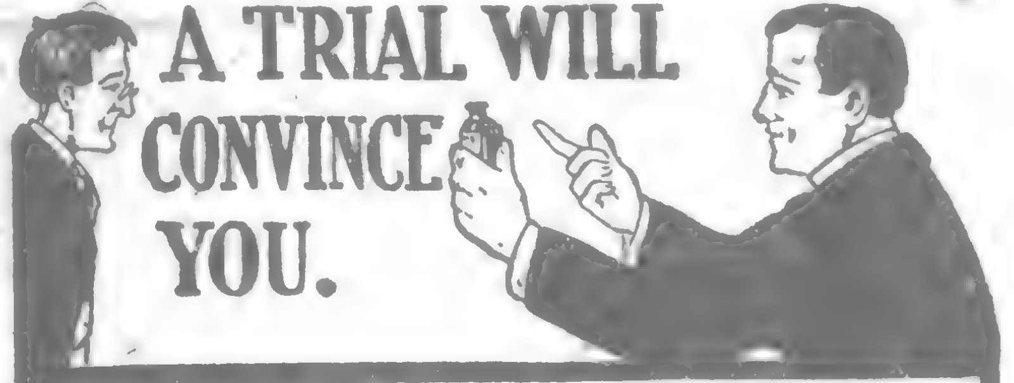
Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C Hull, Representative, St. Joe.

LOST:—Gentlemen's Gold Collar Pin. Finder please leave same at News Office.

DO IT NOW

Send us the price of a year's subscription if you are in arrears.

We Need the Money



A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.

Chamberlain's Tablets

BEDTIME STORIES for the Children
CURRENT EVENTS and EDITORIAL
HELPS for Mothers
for ALL
find 100 Features
Live Boys always like the things to DO and to MAKE and STORIES of ADVENTURE and SPORT

52 Issues a year — not 12

Start a year Today

The Youth's Companion

should be in every home which demands "only the Best." Live boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers, always find The Companion Reliable, Entertaining and Up-to-Date.

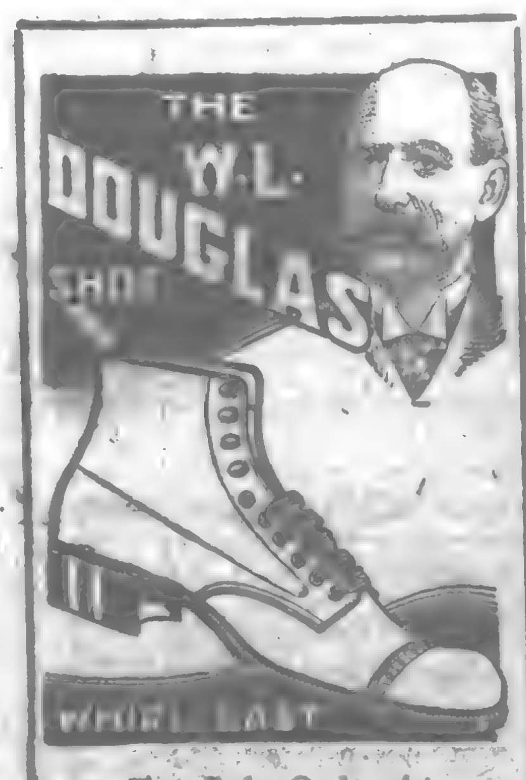
Hundreds of Short Stories, Serial Stories, Editorials, Articles, Poetry, Nature and Science, Current Events, Doctor's Corner, Receipts, Stamps to Stick, Games, Sports, Puzzles, "How-to-Make" Pages, Suggestions for Home Efficiency and Economy.

Costs LESS THAN Five Cents a Week

OFFER No. 1	OFFER A
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues for 1922 2. All remaining Weekly 1921 Issues; also 3. The 1922 Companion Home Calendar All for $2.50	1. The Youth's Companion for 1922 . . . $2.50 Including all of Offer No. 1 2. McCall's Magazine $1.00 The best Fashion Magazine for women readers All for $3.00

Check your choice and send this coupon with your remittance to the PUBLISHERS OF THIS PAPER, or to THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.
SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE

We will do your Job Work Now



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE
WHOLE LAST

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional [illegible]

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by [illegible]

[illegible]

Genuine Palm Beach

SUITS

$12.50 and $15

---The Greatest Summer Suits That You Can Buy for the Price

MOHAIR SUITS
$15, $20, $25

HERE ARE SUITS THAT REALLY MEET EVERY MAN'S NEED FOR THE SUMMER DAYS JUST AHEAD. There are light and dark colors; sport models for the young men; semi and conservative models for men; stout, stubs, longs and extra sizes for the men of irregular proportions. Garments that are made of fabrics that will give service, although so light in weight as to keep you cool, comfortable and fit for your job.

Gaberdine SUITS
$25, $30, $35

We Can Fit You--- [illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

[illegible]

How Much Influence Have

YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

I am reopening the DeKalb TANKAGE PLANT AT Auburn Junction and ask that all farmers having dead stock, please notify me by telephone, reversing the charges. Phone 180

G. Becker, Jr.

Two teaspoonsful of Tanlac in a little water taken three times a day just before meals will make you eat better, feel better, sleep better and work better. Sheffer's Drug Store.

SPENCERVILLE

Rev. Steffy spent Monday at Walton, Ind.

Mrs. Isabelle Webb left Sunday to spend a few days in Ft. Wayne.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 208 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

B. F. Markle and family were Tuesday evening guests of Eck Hursh and family.

Get your pepper, tomato, celery, astor plants at the News office.

Allen Dorsey and wife, of near Scipio, visited her sister, Mrs. Chas. Scott and family.

Harvey Beam and wife, Mrs. Nancy Rummell, Wm. Lake and family were Sunday dinner guests of Jason Keyes and wife, of Fort Wayne.

BIGGER POULTRY PROFITS

No hen ever made an egg record in a damp, drafty hen house. To yield greatest profits, she requires proper shelter—a dry, rat-proof, sunny, sanitary hennery.

Modern construction calls for concrete at least for foundation, floor and lower walls to keep out moisture, rats and weasels, and to make the poultry house easy to clean and keep clean.

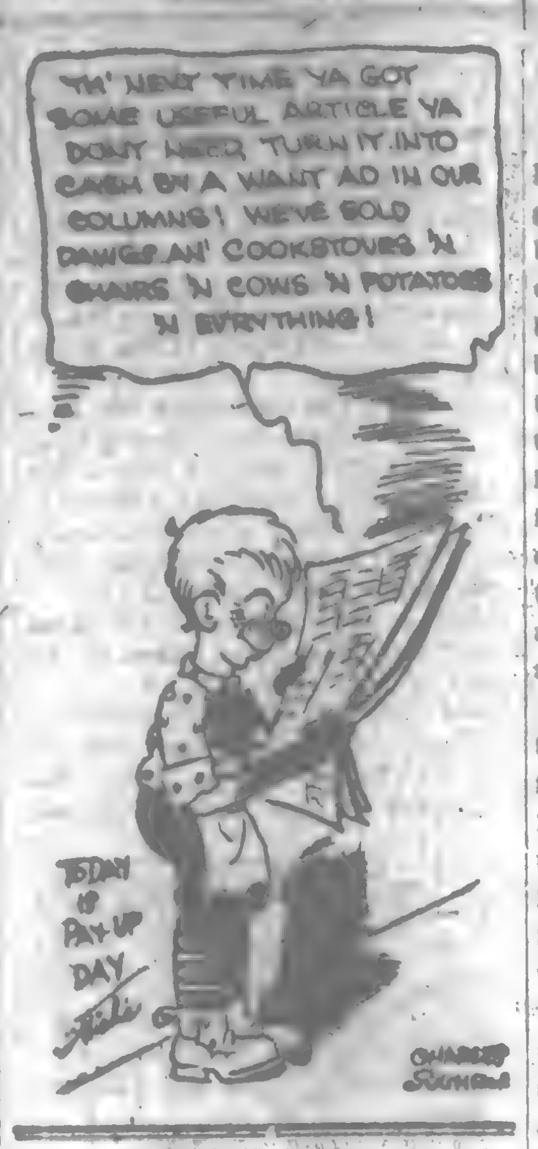
We'll be glad to talk over your building problems with you, to estimate the cost of [illegible] and [illegible] the most economical materials to use. Your [illegible]

Universal Cement for Concrete

Concrete for Permanence

[illegible]

MICKIE SAYS



TH' NEXT TIME YA GOT SOME USEFUL ARTICLE YA DON'T NEED, TURN IT INTO CASH BY A WANT AD IN OUR COLUMNS! WE'VE SOLD DAWGS AN' COOKSTOVES 'N CHAIRS 'N COWS 'N POTATOES 'N EVRYTHING!
TODAY IS PAY-UP DAY
CHARLES SUGHROE

Frank Steward and family, of Garrett, are guests in the Mary Jane Silberg home.

George Wilmot and Don Kimes, of South Bend, are visiting their parents, this week.

Reason Chaney and wife, Chas. Brettias and family spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives near Angola.

Dr. C R. Baumgartner spent the weekend with his parents, L. L. Baumgartner and wife, of Decatur, Ind.

Albert Khole and wife, of New Paris; and Mr. Reddiger and family were Saturday and Sunday guests of Ashur Culp and family.

Miss Gaylon Markle will attend the Christian Endeavor Convention which will be held at Ontario, June 9-10-11.

Miss Vera Silberg returned home Thursday from Ft. Wayne recently where she underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils.

Charles Chapman and family spent Sunday the guests of F. D. Lake and family, of New Haven, Ind.

R. U. Bowser and wife were Sunday guests of the former's brother, I. C. Bowser and family, near Ft. Wayne.

Chas. Garber and wife, of near Huntertown; and Miss Cleo Bowser were Sunday dinner guests of Wm. Reed and wife.

Fred Reichelderfer, wife and son Dale, and Wilbur Spencer and wife of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests of Joel Bets and wife.

Dayton Webb and family, and Mrs. Gertrude Markle and children visited at the home of the ladies' aunt, Lilly Benninghoff, north of Newville, Sunday.

The Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church will be entertained this (Thursday) afternoon at the home of Mrs Elmer Smith, east of town.

Born to Rev. and Mrs. Uphoff, of Arcola, Ind., a daughter, named Violette Rosa. Rev. Uphoff was recently pastor of the Methodist Church here.

Rev. W. W. Martin, of Wayne; and Mrs. [illegible] Clugston, of Frankford, Ind., were Monday guests at the home of [illegible] and family, west of town.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Weather Report by Radio.

Following the establishment of the Pacific coast weather-reporting program by the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture in March, this service has been extended since April 15 for the benefit of shipping and aviation on the the Great Lakes. This completes the service to all shipping interests in waters about the United States—in the Atlantic, Gulf of Mexico, Pacific, or Great Lakes. Heretofore this type of service was only in operation along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts and in the Caribbean Sea.

In a circular available to those interested this new service is described in detail. Twice daily, at noon and 11:30 p. m., seventy-fifth meridian time, between April 15 and December 20, the Great Lakes Naval Radio Station will broadcast on 1,988 meters wave length a message giving surface weather conditions as observed at 8 a. m. or 8 p. m., and aerological observations taken in the morning or afternoon of the date of distribution; the message will include also a synopsis of general conditions, wind and weather forecasts for the upper and lower Lakes, storm warnings for the Lakes, and flying weather forecasts for aviation zones extending between western New York, northern Ohio, and Indiana and western Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas. Local bulletins will be distributed at various times during the day from the naval radio stations at Alpena, Mich., Buffalo, N. Y.; Chicago, Ill.; Cleveland, Ohio, and Duluth, Minn. Ships may call upon any of these stations for weather reports, warnings, or forecasts. Copies of an appropriate base map for plotting of weather data may be obtained free by vessel masters from any Weather Bureau station on the Great Lakes.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

The Herrick bus line made its last trip Saturday. The Gray Line bus expects to get started again this week. Lester Pugsley has started a freight truck line between here and Fort Wayne.

Mrs. T. A. Northrup returned to her own home Sunday evening from the home of her parents, J. R. Shilling's, where she spent a few days after returning from the hospital. She is doing fine.

W. P. Steward and family of Spencerville and John Bets and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Ada Berry. Little Miss Florence Steward remained for a longer visit.

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

SOME ASPECTS OF FARMERS' PROBLEMS

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

I

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of determined, if not angry, protest, and an ominous swarming of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but arrest our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not likely that six million aloof and ruggedly independent men have come together and banded themselves into active unions, societies, farm bureaus, and so forth, for no sufficient cause.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances and misconception of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured, and right in holding that it is feasible to relieve their ills with benefit to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes, in the raw material form alone, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 49 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern. Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation, but the well-being of the other half depends upon them.

So long as we have nations, a wise political economy will aim at a large degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Rome fell when the food supply was too far removed from the belly. Like her, we shall destroy our own agriculture and extend our sources of food distantly and precariously, if we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services. The farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but an impoverished countryside exports intelligence and retains unintelligence. Only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to embitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite herculean efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks or months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage of certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are truly common problems, and there should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clear-cut group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Rather should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dyestuffs, and so forth, as sinews of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to appraise it from the standpoint of yesterday. This is peculiarly an age of flux and change and new deals. Because a thing always has been so no longer means that it is righteous, or always shall be so. More, perhaps, than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought, and that it is not becoming for the reasoning animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural incidence.

Prudent and orderly adjustment of production and distribution in accordance with consumption is recognized as wise management in every business but that of farming. Yet, I venture to say, there is no other industry in which it is so important to the public—to the city-dweller—that production should be sure, steady, and increasing, and that distribution should be in proportion to the need. The unorganized farmers naturally act blindly and impulsively and, in consequence, surfeit and dearth, accompanied by disconcerting price-variations, [illegible] the consumer. One year potatoes [illegible] in the [illegible] because of excess production, and there is a scarcity of the things that have been displaced to make way for the expansion of the potato acreage; next year the punished farmers mass their fields on some other crop, and potatoes enter the class of luxuries; and so on.

Agriculture is the greatest and fundamentally the most important of our American industries. The cities are but the branches of the tree of national life, the roots of which go deeply into the land. We all flourish or decline with the farmer. So, when we of the cities read of the present universal distress of the farmers, of a slump of six billion dollars in the farm value of their crops in a single year, of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farmers' strikes, and demand legislation abolishing grain exchanges, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privilege. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and see what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to get back permanently to "normalcy;" but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges; but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

II

Let us, then, consider some of the farmer's grievances, and see how far they are real. In doing so, we should remember that, while there have been, and still are, instances of purposeful abuse, the subject should not be approached with any general imputation to existing distributive agencies of deliberately intentional oppression, but rather with the conception that the marketing of farm products has not been modernized.

An ancient evil, and a persistent one, is the undergrading of farm products, with the result that what the farmers sell as of one quality is resold as of a higher. That this sort of chicanery should persist on any important scale in these days of business integrity would seem almost incredible, but there is much evidence that it does so persist. Even as I write, the newspapers announce the suspension of several firms from the New York Produce Exchange for exporting to Germany as No. 2 wheat a whole shipload of grossly inferior wheat mixed with oats, chaff and the like.

Another evil is that of inaccurate weighing of farm products, which, it is charged, is sometimes a matter of dishonest intention and sometimes of protective policy on the part of the local buyer, who fears that he may "weigh out" more than he "weighs in."

A greater grievance is that at present the field farmer has little or no control over the time and conditions of marketing his products, with the result that he is often underpaid for his products and usually overcharged for marketing service. The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibility of justification. To cite a single illustration. Last year, according to figures attested by the railways and the growers, Georgia watermelon-raisers received on the average 7.5 cents for a melon, the railroads got 12.7 cents for carrying it to Baltimore and the consumer paid one dollar, leaving 79.8 cents for the service of marketing and its risks, as against 20.2 cents for growing and transporting. The hard annals of farm-life are replete with such commentaries on the crudeness of present practices.

Nature prescribes that the farmer's "goods" must be finished within two or three months of the year, while financial and storage limitations generally compel him to sell them at the same time. As a rule, other industries are in a continuous process of finishing goods for the markets; they distribute as they produce, and they can curtail production without too great injury to themselves or the community; but if the farmer restricts his output, it is with disastrous consequences, both to himself and to the community.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
AND BOYS'
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JUNE

L 912

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

CHAPTER XIII

—14—

No more unhappy girl lived in all of Tompkins county than Polly Hopkins. Seemingly never-ending days dragged by their minutes one by one. When she woke up in the morning she wished it were night! When she crawled into bed she wished it were morning! And every twenty-four hours brought renewed anguish to Jerry. Pollyop spent most of her time trying to soothe him.

And thus the two little waifs lived until the news spread through the Silent City that Evelyn Robertson and Marcus MacKenzie were going to be married in a fashionable church in Ithaca.

The wedding day dawned bright with sunshine; and, together with Jerry, Pollyop went into town, hid herself in the thick shrubbery in Dewitt park and watched with tormented soul the gorgeous display of riches.

She saw Evelyn in all her beauty and the resplendent Marcus; also the haughty Mrs. Robertson, leaning on the arm of Robert Percival. How pale his face was! Great tears blinded Polly's eyes as she wondered vaguely and bewilderedly if he ever thought of her.

It was a long, sad night which she spent after that event, but still she lived on and carried her heavy burden in silence. Week by week she counted on her slender fingers the months which would have to be lived through before Daddy Hopkins could come home. Oh, how she wanted to steal into his arms, to lay her head against him and to be sure he was in the Silent City for ever and ever! Jerry must have him, too, and many were the promises she made to the child during the wild fall weather of the Storm country that perhaps tomorrow Daddy would come, perhaps the next day, until the child's face too gathered an expression as if he were always listening for footsteps outside the hut.

The autumn rains had no more than set in before Marcus MacKenzie took up again his persecutions of the squatters. On his return from his wedding trip he and Evelyn went to live with Mrs. Robertson for the winter.

One day Percival approached MacKenzie with another request that he use his influence to liberate Jeremiah Hopkins.

"It's wrong for his daughter to stay in such a place alone with that frail child, Marc," protested Robert earnestly.

Evelyn looked up from her sewing. In her own happiness the thought that her handsome cousin loved the squatter girl had lapsed in her memory. Her eyes went from his troubled face to her husband's. Marc's expression was dark and forbidding, and his full red lips dragged down at the corners! Her heart fluttered at the thought of his rage if by chance he got an inkling of her duplicity.

"The hussy won't be there long, my friend," returned Marcus, gritting his teeth. "I've a plan to put her out with the rest. Why you stand by these people has always puzzled me, Percival."

"They're a forlorn lot," replied Robert, flushing. "Now, what about Hopkins?"

A look of contempt settled on MacKenzie's face, and he flung out his hands as if throwing away something he detested.

"He'll serve his time," he retorted abruptly, "and when he does come back, his brats won't be where he left them."

Keeping her eyes on her husband, Evelyn uttered an exclamation. How somber and forceful he seemed with that network of wrinkles across his broad brow. Anger distended his nostrils, and the look he had fixed upon Robert was full of compelling strength.

"You're both sickening," she broke out fretfully. "Perfectly sickening!"

"Now listen to me, Eve," [illegible] Robert, turning to her. "You know very well that I'm interested in the Hopkins family—"

She did not look at him until his sentence was chopped off in confusion. Then she threw him a peculiar glance.

"Oh, I know that well enough!" she rejoined, dropping her eyes, "but what makes me so impatient is that the second you and Marc come within speaking distance, you begin an argument about them. Why can't you both make a resolution not to talk about those people?"

Her cousin walked to the window [illegible]

Throwing her work into a basket at her side, Mrs. MacKenzie arose.

"Marcus," she snapped, "you're perfectly disgusting! Now here I speak my mind! I don't ever intend to sit in the same room with you two unless you keep your conversation off the squatters."

She marched to the door, her lovely head held high; and Marcus strode after her.

"Come back here, Evelyn," he ordered. "How dare you talk like that to me?"

It was the first time Marcus had spoken to her just that way; and the sharpness of his tones and the glitter in his dark eyes sent a sudden rage through her. She whirled squarely upon him. At the sight of her face he took a backward step. He had never seen the blue fade from his wife's eyes and a gleam like bright steel take its place.

"I said exactly what I meant," she told him. "I positively refuse to listen to wrangles about the Silent City. Now you both understand, don't you?"

Suddenly she went deathly pale, held out a trembling hand, and swayed as if she were going to fall. She looked so stricken and ill that Marcus caught her to him. Everything but his lovely young bride faded from his mind.

"What's the matter, dear heart?" he cried. "Sit down a minute! There! You know very well, Eve darling, I didn't mean to be brutal."

She knew he did not require an answer and gave him none; she only sobbed hysterically against his arm.

"Neither did I, Evelyn," said Robert, in a low voice.

He went to his cousin's side instantly, begging her forgiveness. The girl turned her head and impulsively kissed his hand.

"Never mind now, Bob," she said faintly. "Please go away like a good boy."

After Percival's departure, Marcus gathered his wife into his arms and sat down with her on his knee.

"There now, sweetheart!" he soothed, and he drew her head to his shoulder and kissed her. "Don't cry any more!"

"It makes me so nervous, Marc, dear," she explained, sitting up, "to hear quarrels between you and Robert. And—and—I don't feel very well."

"Come Back Here, Evelyn," He Ordered. "How Dare You Talk Like That to Me!"

MacKenzie studied her keenly.

"Then I'll get a doctor today," he exclaimed, much concerned.

A flush covered the girl's face, and she hid it against his coat.

"I don't need a doctor, darling," she whispered, "but I do want care and quiet. That's all!"

A strange unknown thrill shot through the man.

[illegible]

sleep, he demanded to know if she were cognizant of the fact that Robert was trying to obtain a pardon for Hopkins. Several representative citizens, among whom were two distinguished lawyers, had approached him on the subject.

"And that isn't all," he fumed. "I started something else today, and he's trying to block me."

He jerked at his collar so violently that the stiff linen tore with a whining sound.

"D—n that thing," he exploded and threw the ruined neckwear on the floor. "I won't stand any more interference.

"If you don't want to bring Bob to terms," he went on, "I will! That's my word! I've held my peace as long as I can!—Good God, now, don't start to cry!"

But in spite of his imperious command, Evelyn had wept long after her husband's heavy breathing told her that he was asleep.

Next morning, walking into the dining room wearily, she found her cousin, Robert, standing near the window, his hands in his pockets. She went straight to his side.

"Bob," she breathed.

The young man turned upon her and caught the hand she laid on his arm.

"You've got to help me now, Eve," he began, without other response to her greeting. "It's all very well for Marc to take a high hand in some matters, but this thing he's planning is brutal."

"I can't do anything with him," cried the girl. "He told me about it last night; and I talked and talked till I'm hoarse. Bob, why don't you go away somewhere?"

Robert shook his head dismally.

"I can't Eve, I can't," he returned. "I know what Polly is, but she's young and—and—"

He paused, brushed back his hair and hurried on:

"I love her, that's all! If Marc continues in— Ah, here he comes."

The door flung open, and MacKenzie strode into the room. He came to a halt at the sight of his young wife and her cousin.

"What's up?" he exclaimed testily.

"Bob wants to talk to you, dear," explained Evelyn, in a conciliatory tone. She had learned in the past months that suppressing her own temper was to travel along the lines of least resistance.

"Well, have some breakfast," was the ungracious reply. "Sit down, both of you."

"I've had my breakfast," answered Robert. "I waited to have a word with you, Marc, before you went into town. I want to buy of you at your own price all the land the squatters are on. That would relieve—"

"Squatters again, eh?" came in quick interruption. "My dear Robert," MacKenzie placed his fingers on the back of his chair and watching his wife, proceeded, "I really dislike to be abrupt in my own family and in your house, but you know there is such a thing as a man minding his own business."

A deep flush rose to Percival's brow.

"I am minding my own business," he shot back. "If it's your will to persecute a girl who's almost dead with grief, it's mine to help her if I can. This last thing you're trying to put over is abominable!"

In rough impatience Marcus sat down, Evelyn dropping into her place opposite him.

"From your interest one would think you had a more intimate reason than just humanity, Robert," he sneered broadly. "Is that it?"

Into Evelyn's pale face rushed a mass of color, and she shrank back as if she had received a blow. As quickly the flush receded, leaving her whiter than before.

Robert came forward to the table.

"You're perfectly right, Marc," he confessed almost inaudibly. "I do love Polly Hopkins—I—I—"

MacKenzie interrupted him by rising to his feet, his handsome face suffused with anger.

"Then it's time I cleared her out," he answered. "A squatter in the family—a thief—a liar—"

Mrs. MacKenzie struggled to her feet and began to cry.

"I can't stand any more," she whimpered, "I simply can't, Marc. The way you both quarrel over those people gets on my nerves. You promised me, Marcus, you wouldn't ever do it again."

All the concentrated rage he had gathered in the past few weeks burst forth in a vicious snap.

"Then tell your precious cousin to keep his nose out of my affairs, my dear! I'm perfectly capable of [illegible]

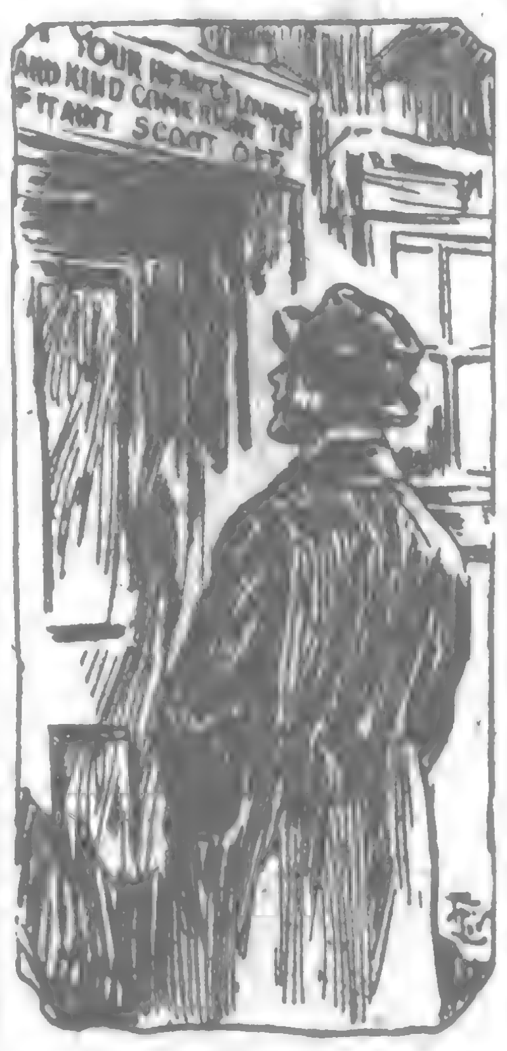
Ah, surely he did love her in spite of what she had done. As a traveler in a dry and thirsty land longs for fresh water, so he desired Polly Hopkins. Vain had been his efforts to tear her image from his heart. Often he had been tempted to marry her and take her out of her dreadful circumstances, but each time the desire came to him, the vision of the dying farmer killed it.

Broodingly his eyes swept the narrow lake and the eastern, rearing hills. He remembered how he and Polly Hopkins had sat together on the ragged rocks, watching the clouds sweep over the sky above, like flecks of birds across wonder-blue water.

With a groan he threw off these memories, and striding forward, he rapped on the hut door.

Polly Hopkins opened it, looked at him, bent her head but spoke no word.

"I want to talk to you, child," was the excuse he gave; and still silent,



YOUR HEART'S LOVING AND KIND COME RIGHT IN IF IT AIN'T SCOOT OFF

There Still Above the Door Was the Printed Sign, "If Your Heart's Loving and Kind Come Right In; If It Ain't Scoot Off."

she moved backward and allowed him to enter the room.

Now that he was there, Robert felt as if he could not force his tongue to say the things she must hear. He was oppressed by his utter failure to keep the promise made that day before "The Greatest Mother in the World," and knew not how to explain it.

"Polly," he had commenced, when Pollyop, because she was so tired, so forlornly helpless, began to sob bitterly. The sight of him after all these weary days quite overcame her.

"Don't," he interjected impetuously. "Please don't do that."

Her tears only added to the remorse that scourged him and gave new vitality to his passion; but, like a wall of fire between them, burned his jealousy of Oscar Bennett.

"I want to help you," he stammered.

Pollyop shook her head.

"You can't do nothin' unless you get my daddy back," she whispered. "Jerry'll die—"

This gave a slight opening, and Robert grasped at it eagerly.

"I came to talk about him," he interrupted. "Now please don't cry any more. Don't! Sit down a minute." He placed her in a chair, going white as his hand touched her. "You say the child is ill, Pollyop?" he went on, but paused as Polly nodded her head.

"Yep, he's sick all right," she returned, wiping her eyes.

"Then perhaps if he went away somewhere, to a place where he'd have good food and care until his father—"

At his words the girl suddenly grew rigidly erect, but the piteous trembling of her lips made the young man avert his eyes.

"Squatter babies grow on the grub squatters give 'em," she replied huskily. "All they need is bread an' beans an' love," she hesitated and swallowed hard before she continued: "An' lots of love! That's what's ailin' Wee Jerry. He wants his daddy!"

"But, Polly!" Robert tried to check the flow of her words, but she ran on:

"He'd die sure in a strange place. Nope! Jerry stays in the shanty with me."

There was such an air of finality in her inflection and [illegible] that Percival groaned within himself and nervously paced the length of the room and back. He [illegible] not [illegible] her. [illegible] burden upon the [illegible] squatters? [illegible]

Had Your Iron Today?

Let's Have Raisin Bread Tonight

HOW long since you've had delicious raisin bread—since you've tasted that incomparable flavor?

Serve a loaf tonight. No need to bake it.

Just telephone your grocer or a bakery. Say you want "full-fruited bread — generously filled with luscious, seeded, Sun-Maid Raisins."

The flavor of these raisins permeates the loaf. A cake-like daintiness makes every slice a treat.

Serve it plain at dinner or as a tasty, fruited breakfast toast.

Make delicious bread pudding with left-over slices.

Use it all. You need not waste a crumb.

Raisin bread is luscious, energizing, iron-food. So it's both good and good for you.

Serve it at least twice a week. Start this good habit in your home today.

But don't take any but a real, full-fruited genuine raisin bread.

Your dealer will supply it if you insist.

Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins

Make delicious bread, pies, puddings, cakes, etc. Ask your grocer for them. Send for free book of tested recipes.

Sun-Maid Raisin Growers
Membership 13,000
Dept. N—24—3, Fresno, Calif.

Blue Package

GUARDS WOOL FROM MOTHS

New Preparation Said to Preserve the Fabric From Depredations of the Pests.

A preparation has been discovered in Europe which, it is claimed, makes wool immune from the ravages of moths. It is in the form of a powder, which, before it is applied, is mixed in water with a small quantity of sulphuric acid for all-wool goods, formic acid being used for half-wool.

The wool itself is said not to be affected by the application, and only a few colors, very slightly. In case no alkalies are brought into contact with it the wool remains moth-proof when washed. Tests made with two pieces of wool cloth exactly alike, in which moth eggs were placed, resulted, in the course of six months, in the entire disappearance of the untreated fabric, whereas the wool which had been treated remained intact.

Better Pick 'Em Up.

W. T. Ellis, going west in Washington street, saw a hairpin on the sidewalk with the points toward him. He stopped and picked it up. Turning into Capitol avenue, he saw a horseshoe in the street. He picked it up. When he returned to his office a man gave him $70 that had been due for a long time. —Indianapolis News.

Garden Is Back Number.

Commuters who do business in the metropolitan district may be taking just as good care of their gardens this year as ever, but one would never guess it from the daily conversation of these country dwellers on the suburban trains.

It used to be:

"Yes, I put in my mixed king asters and I got my radishes down and my celery started. Got to remember to buy some new garden hose tonight—looks like a dry spell."

Now it is:

"Sure, I can get WJZ, but I'm not able to get the Detroit broadcasting—perhaps if I had a two-step receiving set—"

"You don't want to overload your bulbs on that set—"

"A one-strand aerial's just as good as a two-strand for your set, but you ought to make it at least 100 feet long."—Chicago Journal.

Explanatory.

"A man in your lofty position is expected to set an example for others."

"I do," replied Senator Sorghum; "the amount of compensation allowed by the government compels me to set a fine example of personal economy."

Ignorance excuses no one but the judge.

Let the children share this mealtime beverage

No NEED to warn the little folks away from the table beverage when Postum is served; every reason to invite every member of the family to join in the enjoyment of this wholesome, satisfying drink.

Postum is made from Nature's best grain—wheat, and contains nothing to harm nerves or digestion.

You'll greatly relish its full-bodied flavor and aroma.

[illegible]

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

JUNE

SCIENCE ON FARM

Agriculturist of Today Must Know Business Thoroughly.

Canadian Tillers of the Soil Have Proved That Old Days of Haphazard Methods Have Gone.

Agriculture in Canada has the status of a profession which both its high standard of operation and the prime place it occupies in national life justify. The days when land was casually filed on and farmed without any intelligent understanding of agricultural processes are going with the dwindling availability of the land, and rapidly passing is the epoch of the destruction of soil values, and the abandonment of farms which have been rendered unproductive. Clearer and clearer has become the realization that farming is a specialized profession requiring special training, and in the place of this spoliation there is an intelligent system of crop rotation, preservation of the virtue of the land, a discovery of the nobility of the farmer's calling and a determination to secure and achieve the best possible in everything.

The Education of the Farmer.

Agricultural colleges, experimental farms, government literature, railway propaganda, all in an appreciation of the national benefits which accrue, contribute to the education of the farmer who, if he starts out in ignorance, speedily discovers the futility and profitlessness of continuing in this state. It is only of comparatively recent years that farming in Canada has become the comprehensive and exhaustive study it is and its tenets been so widely absorbed, and older farmers who have followed haphazard methods or systems scientifically unsound are gradually forced from necessity into an intelligent study and application of their profession.

This brings us to the city man who is anxious to leave his old life for the greater freedom of the country and take a farm for himself, and, the foregoing holding good, he need not follow far behind the older farmer if he take up the study of his work seriously, bring energy and intelligence to bear upon a following out of the systems of experienced and successful agriculturists, and utilize the results of the expert investigation and research the Dominion places at his disposal. The whole country is working for him and the novice has almost an equal opportunity with the farmer of a lifetime.

A census of Canadian farmers would probably show that fully one-half are not farmers' sons and were not brought up to the life of the farm. Yet none would criticize Canada's farmers on the score of poor farming methods in general, the excellency of their crops with international honors and the universal demand for their live-stock products refuting this effectually. Significant is it, too, that practically all the farmers who have achieved the most signal honors at international farming competitions have not been lifelong farmers, but city men who, taking to the land after reaching maturity without the remotest previous knowledge of agricultural activities, have through intelligent study and close application of the best farming methods surpassed the efforts of those agriculturists who have continued doing things on the farm in the way their fathers used to do them.

For further particulars, pamphlets regarding Canada, railway rates, etc., apply to W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. Johnstone, 116 Monument Place, Indianapolis, Ind.—Advertisement.

Too many bracers will never brace a man up.

The use of soft coal will make laundry work heavier this winter. Red Cross Ball Blue will help to remove that grimy look. At all grocers—Advertisement.

Have something to say. Say it. Stop talking.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. [illegible]
DAISY FLY KILLER at your dealer or [illegible]
HAROLD SOMERS, [illegible] Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

No Soap Better
—For Your Skin—
Than Cuticura
Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c.

LATEST [illegible] IN THE [illegible]
Our PATENT [illegible]
[illegible]
Gray Hair [illegible]

MUSHROOM OF COLLINGSVILLE

They Didn't Think Much of Him Back Home, but Then They Never Did Think Much Back Home.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THERE were three men in the hotel office that Monday evening: Jared Parker, the proprietor; Seth Wilber, town authority on all things past and present; and John Fletcher, known in Collingsville as "The Squire"—possibly because of his smattering of Blackstone; probably because of his silk hat and five-thousand-dollar bank account. Each of the three men eyed with unabashed curiosity the stranger in the doorway.

"Good evening, gentlemen," began a deprecatory voice. "I—er—this is the hotel?"

In a trice Jared Parker was behind the short counter.

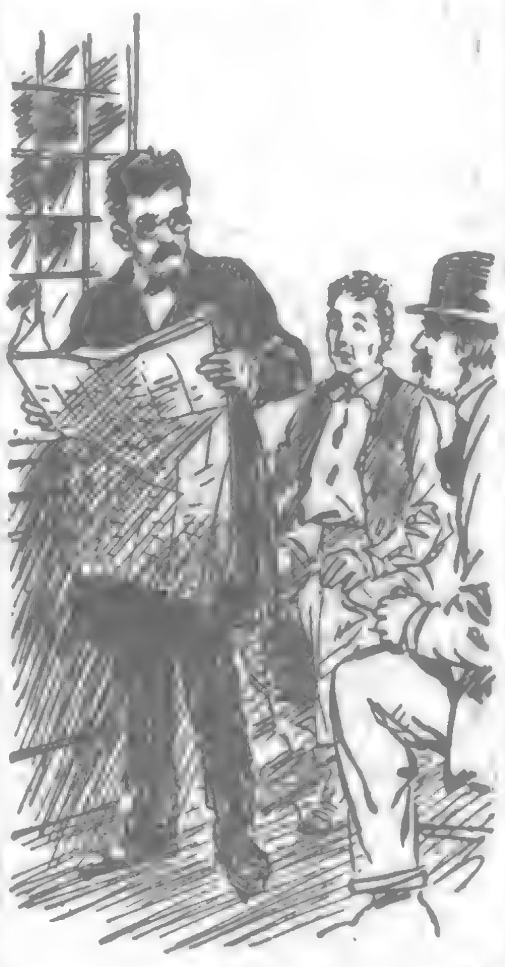
"Certainly sir. Room, sir?" he said.

"H'm, yes, I—I suppose so," murmured the stranger, as he signed his name with painstaking care.

"Now, where shall I find Professor Marvin, please?"

"Why, there ain't no Professor Marvin, that I know of."

"Mebbe he means old Marvin's son," interposed Seth Wilber with a chuckle. "but I never heard of his professin' anythin'—'nless 'twas laziness."



"Just Listen to This!" He Blurted Out.

The stranger's face showed a puzzled frown. "Oh—but—I mean the man who discovered that ants and—"

"Good gorry!" interrupted Seth, with a groan. "If it's anythin' about bugs an' snakes, he's yer man! Ain't done nothing but play with bugs ever since he came into the world," said the Squire ponderously. "A most unfortunate case of an utterly worthless son born to honest, hard-working parents."

"Oh, but—" The stranger stopped. The hotel-keeper had the floor.

"It began when he wa'n't more'n a baby. He pestered the life out of his mother, bringing snakes into the sittin' room, and carrying worms in his pockets. The poor woman was 'most mortified to death about it. Why, once when the parson was there, George used his hat to catch butterflies with—smashed it, too."

"Humph!" snapped the Squire. "The little beast filled one of my overshoes once, to make a swimming-tank for his dirty little fish."

"They couldn't do nothin' with him," chimed in Seth Wilber. "An' when he was older, 't was worse. If his father set him ter hoein' pertaters, the little scamp would be found h'istin' up old rocks an' boards ter see the critters under 'em crawl."

"Yes, but—" Again the stranger was silenced.

"And in school he didn't care nothing about 'rithmetic nor jography," interrupted Jared. "He was forever scarin' the teacher into fits, bringin' in spiders an' caterpillars, an' asking questions about 'em."

"Yes; well—er—extraordinary, extraordinary—very!—so it is," murmured the stranger, backing toward the door. The next moment he was out on the street asking the first person he met for the way to George Marvin's.

On Tuesday night a second stranger stopped at the hotel and asked where he could find Professor Marvin. Jared, Seth and Squire Fletcher were there [illegible]

[illegible]

the scientific world in a flurry. . . . Professor Marvin is now unanimously conceded to be the greatest entomologist living. He knows his Hex-a-poda and Myri-a-poda as the most of us know our alphabet. . . . The humble home of the learned man has become a Mecca, toward which both great and small of the scientific world are bending eager steps. . . . The career of Marvin reads like a romance, and he has fought his way to his present enviable position by sheer grit and ability, having had to combat with all the narrow criticism and misconceptions usual in the case of a progressive thinker in a small town. Indeed, it is said that even now his native village fails to recognize the honor that is hers.

"Jehoshaphat!" exclaimed Seth Wilber faintly.

Fletcher folded the paper and brought his fist down hard upon it.

"There's more—a heap more," he cried excitedly.

"But how—what—" stammered Jared, whose wits were slow on untrodden paths.

"It's old Marvin's son—don't you see?" interrupted Squire Fletcher impatiently. "He's big!—famous."

It was on Monday, three days later, that Jared, Seth and the Squire were once more accosted in the hotel office by a man they did not know.

"Good-evening, gentlemen, I—"

"You don't even have to say it," cut in Jared, with a flourish of both hands. "We know why you're here without your telling."

"An' you've come ter the right place, sir—the right place," declared Seth Wilbur, pompously. "What Professor Marvin don't know about bugs an' spiders ain't wuth knowin'. I tell ye, sir, he's the biggest entymollygist that there is ter be found."

"That he is," affirmed the Squire, with an indulgently superior smile toward Wilber—"the very greatest entomologist living," he corrected carefully. "And no wonder, sir; he's studied bugs from babyhood. I've known him all his life—all his life, sir, and I always said he'd make his mark in the world."

"Oh, but—" began the stranger.

"'Member when he took the parson's hat to catch butterflies in?" chuckled Jared, speaking to the Squire, but throwing furtive glances toward the stranger to make sure of his attention. "Gorry—but he was a cute one! Wish 't had been my hat. I'd 'a' had it framed, an' labeled an' hung up on the wall there."

"Yes, I remember," nodded the Squire; then he added with a complacent smile: "The mischievous little lad used my overshoe for a fish-pond once—I have that overshoe yet."

The stranger shifted from one foot to the other.

"Yes, yes," he began, "but—"

"You'd oughter seen him when old Marvin used ter send him out to hoe pertaters," cut in Jared gleefully.

"See here, gentlemen," broke in the stranger pompously, with a shade of irritation in his voice. "Will you allow me to speak? And will you inform me what all this is about?"

"About? Why, it's about Prof. George Marvin, to be sure," rejoined Squire Fletcher. "Pray, what else should it be about?"

"I guess you know what it's about all right, stranger," chuckled Seth Wilber, with a shrewd wink. "You can't fool us. Mebbe you're one o' them fellers what thinks we don't know enough ter 'preciate a big man when we've got him. No, sir-ree! We ain't that kind. Come, ye needn't play off no longer. We know why you're here, an' we're glad ter see ye, an' we're proud ter show ye the way ter our professor's. Come on—'t ain't fur."

The stranger drew back. His face grew red, then purple.

"I should like to know," he sputtered thickly. "I should like to know if you really think that I—I have come 'way up here to see this old bug man. Why, man alive, I never even heard of him!"

"What!" ejaculated three disbelieving voices, their owners too dumfounded to take exceptions to the sneer in tone and words. "Zounds, man!—what did you come for, then?" [illegible] the Squire.

The stranger raised his chin.

"See here, who do you think I am?" he [illegible] as he [illegible]

[illegible]

CAN NOW WALK AS WELL AS EVER

Esteemed Lincoln Resident Declares Tanlac Has Made a Clean Sweep of Her Rheumatism and and Other Troubles.

"I couldn't believe all they said about Tanlac until I tried it myself, and now I never doubt what I read about it," said Mrs. Anna B. Crawford, 2500 N. 23rd St., Lincoln, Neb., wife of a well-known retired business man.

"I got into a badly run-down condition," she continued, "and suffered greatly from indigestion. I had headache for days at a time, slept poorly and woke up mornings so weak and dizzy I could hardly get up. Then rheumatism set in and made walking difficult and I could scarcely use my arms for the pain.

"But Tanlac has made a clean sweep of my troubles, brought back my appetite and enabled me to gain much weight. It is a pleasure to make a statement in praise of this great medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Of Course.

"I have fallen arches."

"You should see a building inspector at once."—Boston Transcript.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

We Hope Not.

"He drinks like a fish."

"Gosh. I hope a fish doesn't drink bootleg."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The prices of cotton and linen have been doubled by the war. Lengthen their service by using Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. All grocers—Advertisement.

In the game of hearts, when in doubt lead diamonds.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELLANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

BUY OR SELL ANY BUSINESS, store, hotel, pool parlor, patent, farm; coal, oil, timber land. Get our proposition, lists free. All states. Hundreds bargains. State your wants.
OHIO FARMERS' COOPERATIVE AGENCY
McConnelsville, Ohio

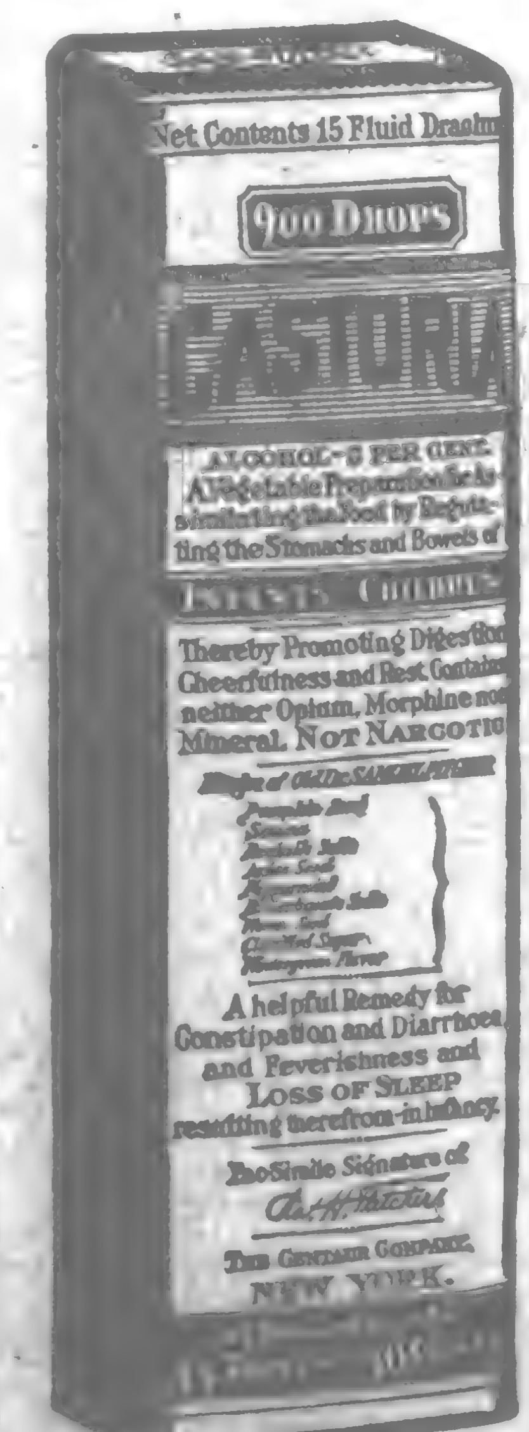
Baby Specialists.

THAT there are Physicians who specialize on Infant ailments you know. All Physicians understand Infant troubles: all Physicians treat them. It is his profession, his duty, to know human ills from the Stork to the Great Beyond.

But in serious cases he calls in the Specialist. Why? He knows as every Mother knows, or ought to know, that Baby is just a baby, needing special treatment, special remedies.

Can a Mother be less thoughtful? Can a Mother try to relieve Baby with a remedy that she would use for herself? Ask yourself; and answer honestly.

Always remember that Baby is just a baby. And remembering this you will remember that Fletcher's Castoria is made especially for Infants and Children.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA
The False and the True.

Advertising by the use of large space, the expenditure of huge sums of money have placed on the market, have put in your home, perhaps, many articles that today have been discarded, as you will readily admit.

Do you recall anything that has more modestly appealed to the public than has Fletcher's Castoria: modest in all its claims, pleading at all times—and truthfully—for our babies?

The big splurg, the misleading claims may win for a time, but the honest truth-telling advertiser is like the old story of the tortoise that beat the hare.

Mothers everywhere, and their daughters, now mothers, speak frankly, glowingly, enthusiastically in praise of Fletcher's Castoria. Speak of it lovingly as a friend that has brought comfort, cheer and smiles to their little-one.

To them: to these true mothers no argument can induce them to set aside their bottle of Castoria, their old friend, that they might try even another and unknown remedy for babies. Then, would YOU think of going to YOUR OWN medicine chest to find relief for Baby's troubles? Can you not separate the false from the true?

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

O-So-Easy to Use
Colors Silk, Wool, Cotton All At The Same Time.
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
10c per Package
WHY PAY MORE FOR ANY DYE?

In Evidence.

"We are advertised by our stylish friends." "What do you sell?" "Ladies' hosiery."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Freshen a Heavy Skin

With the antiseptic, fascinating Cuticura Talcum Powder, an exquisitely [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

EXCURSIONS TO
WESTERN CANADA
Round Trip for Single Fare
Plus Two Dollars
Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month
A splendid opportunity is here offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to look over
Western Canada's Farming Possibilities
[illegible]

JUNE

1922

Boost YOUR HOME Mill!

PRACTICE ECONOMY

and Bake your own Bread out of St. Joe Flour. You can buy two barrels of Flour for what one will cost you after the Baker bakes it up into bread.

Bran and Middlings at $1.60, and $1.70 per 100 pounds.

Use FULL-O-PEP Feed and get results.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Ind.

Please return those plant jars to the News Office If you did not pay for them

July Pictorial Reviews are here.

Salva plants, 5 cents each, at the News Office.

Mrs. Grace Dilley of Ft. Wayne was an over night guest of Miss Susan Sechler, recently.

Ed Leighty and Fred Jenkins spent Saturday and Sunday at Hamilton.

Mrs. J. T. Shirley of Toledo, O., was a weekend guest of G. M. Barney and family.

Master Jacques Smith is spending a week with his grandmother at Defiance.

Mrs. Wm. Randall and Mrs Jacob Sechler spent Friday afternoon at Hicksville.

Ed Woodcox of Logansport, spent over Sunday here with his parents G. W. Woodcox and wife.

Mrs. Charles Koch is quite ill, suffering from an attack of gall stones.

Charles Jordan, wife and baby and Mrs. G. M. Barney recently visited relatives at Bowling Green, Ohio, for a few days.

Wm. Healey and wife had as Saturday and Sunday guests Ray Henley and family of Roanoke and Will Monroe and family of Hicksville.

William Randall and wife had as Sunday evening guests, John Beard wife and daughter Murial, and John and Frank Randall, all of Waterloo.

Notice: An Ice Cream and Strawberry Social will be given by the Ladies Aid at Coburn's Corners, Friday evening, June 9th. The public is cordially invited.

Ashton Staman and wife of Auburn, Wm Staman, Sr. and wife, Wm. Staman, Jr. and wife and Jacob Sechler and wife, were Sunday dinner guests of Merritt Sechler. Earl Smith and wife were afternoon guests.

[illegible]

G. C. Bassett was a Hicksville visitor Saturday forenoon.

Edgar Lyaher was a Sunday guest of Charles Lindley.

Get your job work done now. We'll do it right.

Mrs. Anna Snyder entertained at Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. George Walters and children.

F. B. Leighty and mother, Mrs. C. B. Leighty, were afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker, Sunday.

Rev. A. L. Martin, of Wabash, held meetings at Coburns Corners church the first four evenings of this week.

Mrs. E. P. Brown returned home Friday evening from the Hope-Methodist hospital.

Miss Dorothea Scholes was a Thursday evening supper guest in the H. C. Borthwick home.

Master Russell Borthwick is entertaining his cousin, Master Mark Green, of Hicksville, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodenbaugh spent Sunday with Mrs. Lon Smith, near Spencerville.

Miss Alma Lawson returned home Sunday evening after spending a while here.

The Misses Naomi and Ellen White and Ethel Lindley were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Virginia Lawson.

Mrs. Daniel Oberholtzer spent the past week a guest of her grand-daughter, Mrs. Ben Soule, near Spencerville.

Mrs. Christian Curie returned home with her brother, Nathan Royer, to Orrville, Ohio, leaving Thursday morning, for an indefinite visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Maurer and Mr. and Mrs. William Ludwig, of Auburn, were Sunday dinner guests of their sister, Mrs. Anna Dilley.

Victor Dermott and mother, Mrs. Cordelia Dermott, were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tustison.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler, son Henry and daughter Jane were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murphy, near Coletown.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miller, of near Spencerville, spent part of Sunday with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Oberholtzer.

Mrs. Alice Copp went to Hamilton, Sunday evening, to be a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Webster Stout and husband, for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Borthwick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank [illegible] were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Koch.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees and Mrs Nan L[illegible] were Sunday dinner guests of Mr and Mrs George Kees. [illegible] Lawson was an after[illegible]

[illegible]erman, wife and son, of [illegible]

[illegible]

Many Improvements In St. Joe This Year

This spring is bringing forth a number of very substantial improvements in St. Joe residence properties. The fine bungalow porch at the F. M. Monroe residence is completed with the exception of the painting, and it sure is a fine addition to their modern home. Many other changes throughout the home were made which add to their living conveniences.

Mechanics are now at work on the John Betz home, putting in a cement block wall under the entire house and laying a foundation for a new porch. F. P. Hart, who has done more than any one citizen in the west end of town, is now completing his third house, which will soon be ready for occupancy. Mr. Hart has most splendid ideas in remodeling old houses, as this last one will prove. He has a fine cellar, cistern, pleasant rooms and everything nicely painted.

The H. S. Bowman residence has been given a new coat of paint, which adds to its appearance.

The Lutheran church is now being re-decorated and everything points toward occupancy in a very short time.

Foundations are now being laid for a new modern garage on the lot of F. B. Leighty.

Three porches have been screened in to ward off the mosquitos, namely: Ed Leighty, Elza Kinsey and Ed Miser.

Rev. R. B. Daily To Preach at Hamilton

In conversation with Rev. R. B. Daily this week, he stated that he has accepted half time preaching at the Hamilton Christian church and the balance of his time is taken up with the local church. While he has been preaching for a number of years he relates an experience on last Sunday at Hamilton that is just a little out of the ordinary in most churches. At the Sunday school 81 were present and at the church service 97.

Indiana University Reports For DeKalb County

Bloomington, Ind., June 3.—DeKalb county has had 26 students at Indiana University during the past year, according to a report just issued by John W. Cravens, secretary. The total enrollment at the State University has reached more than 4,200, an increase of nearly 500 per cent during the last 25 years, which is one of the greatest periods of growth recorded by any educational institution in the United States.

DeKalb county students who have attended the University during the year are as follows:

Auburn—Marie Bauer, Hugh M. Bundy, George F. Collette, Carol Miriam Dawson, Helen Dawson, Arol Arden Draine, John McIntyre, Harold Nugen, Virginia Wigent.

Garrett—Edgar Simon Beeber, Marlow W. Manion, Ralph W. Probst, Auliene Lucile Schulthess, Russell Updike.

Waterloo—Wilber Earl Bowman, Howard Elmer Dilgard, Rose E. Myers, Harold E. Strow, Elmer C. Walker.

Ashley—Fay Willis Leas, Bert Amas Sweigart, Daisy Sweigart.

Avilla—Leona Belle Hawver.

Butler—Francena Lowe.

Hamilton—Glenn Dale McClellan.

Hudson—Claud V. Barker.

The graduating class which will participate in commencement ceremonies June 7, numbers more than 500, the largest in the history of the State University. Commencement activities which will open May 24 with an all-University convocation in honor of the senior class, are planned on a larger scale than ever before. Among the features of the program will be an all-University exposition, June 3, 5, 6 and 7, which will demonstrate to returning alumni and to friends and relatives of members of the graduating class the many and varied activities carried on in the [illegible] schools and [illegible] departments of the University. [illegible]

[illegible]

Boy Wanted

Somewhere in this town is one boy who is a "Go-Getter" spirit, full of grit and ambition, and absolutely honest. We want that boy. He will be the only boy agent in this town for the famous MOVIE WEEKLY MAGAZINE. He will work after school and other spare time. His pay will be what he makes it; besides fine prizes and FREE MOVIE TICKETS. When he makes good, he will be promoted. If you are between 14 and 19 years old, determined to "make good" and truly think that you are the boy for this job, then APPLY BY LETTER to Mr. E. L. Gilbert, "Personal," 3rd floor, 119 West 40th Street, New York City. Give full details of any past selling experience; your age; parent's full name and business; your school grade and at least two references

Who Am I?

I CREATE. Spiritual values and the priceless ideals by which men live, are the treasures out of my storehouse.

I AM THE MOTHER OF HEROES crowned and uncrowned. The vigor of the noblest manhood has been nourished by my divine motherhood.

I BRING GOOD NEWS. My gospel is the only remedy for the need of the whole world.

I TEACH. Righteousness, truth, justice, brotherhood, are the alphabet of my language.

I HAVE AN OPEN HOUSE OF REFUGE FOR THE OPPRESSED. I know no class or color, no virtue or vice in my ministries.

I AM A GUARDIAN OF THE PUBLIC PEACE, a conservator of its abiding interests, the friend of all worthy enterprises. Deprived of my saving presence, the law of the land would become the law of the jungle.

I SUFFER. The scorn of those who hate and do not know me, is no harder to bear than the wounds of my friends. The selfishness of many who bear my name, their pitiful pettiness, and sinful divisions, pierce my soul like a sword.

I BRING FORTH NOBLE SONS AND DAUGHTERS. Nursed at my side, they go forth to serve in my name.

I STAND. For twenty centuries I have survived through flood and flame. Today with a heavenly Book, which is the Magna Charter of liberty; with a heavenly King, the Risen Christ; with a kingdom enterprise that offers the only adequate program for the whole race. I stand dauntless of wind and tide.

I CALL YOU TO MY HEART, O noble sons and daughters. I call you to acknowledge my motherhood. To enlist under my divine banner. To unite your service for righteousness under my Divine Captain, that together we may march forward into the portals of the new day into the new era.

I AM THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH.

Mrs. H. S. Garton and daughter Zora, of Coldwater Lake, were Sunday guests in the John Hart home and callers on friends in St. Joe.

One good thing about the wireless telephone sermon direct from pulpit to home is that the preacher needn't be afraid of anybody listening in.

An item says the value of a toad on the farm to a farmer is $19.44. It is interesting as an example of how values can jump.

Mrs. Thayer Northrup is now at home after being operated on for tumor. She recovered very rapidly, being in the hospital less than two weeks.

A splendid Children's Day entertainment was held at Coburns Corners church Sunday evening to a packed house. The music was especially fine. The program was in charge of Mrs. Faye Wilmot, Miss Gladys Place and Glen Hart.

Balloon No. 11, which left Milwaukee on Wednesday, passed over St Joe Thursday forenoon, enroute in a south-westerly direction. The balloon carried two men and equipment and provisions to last for several days. At about 10:30 they landed south of Fort Wayne and was shipped back to Milwaukee.

Mrs. Jennie White, of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank [illegible]

[illegible]

Attractive Terms On Farm Mortgage Loans

We are making loans to farmers. with first mortgage as security, on very attractive terms and conditions.

You will find it greatly to your advantage to see us when in need of money.

Call at our office for complete information.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA

Christian Church Notes

Children's Day Exercises will be held next Sunday morning immediately after Bible School, Communion Services and perhaps a short talk by the pastor will complete the morning worship.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters Class held the banner for attendance there being twenty-two present. The Loyal Boys and Girls were a close second having but two less in class.

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Rose Meese. Each lady may feel free to bring her own work.

Christian Endeavor next Sunday evening as usual at 6:30.

ST. JOE NEWS

„Tanlac did what everything else failed to do." Thousands have said it. So will you. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mrs. F. M. Thornton was called to Fostoria, Saturday, by the death of her cousin, Wm. Lafferty, who was killed in an automobile accident.

Tanlac is the result of years of study, experimentation and research by some of the world's greatest chemists. Hence its merit. See Dr. Sheffer.

CATARRH

Catarrh is a Local disease greatly influenced by Constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which gives Quick Relief by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces and assists in ridding your System of Catarrh.
Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.
OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN
FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE. - IND.
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE
Friday, June 23, 1922.
If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1922 No. 24

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
FOR
MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men
$12.00 $15.00 $16.50
Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00
Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75
Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6
Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5
Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1
Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL
Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN
No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED
Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL
Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will then be better able to [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Dies From Heart Attack

Auburn, June 8.—Word of the sudden death Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, of Silas Nugen, president of the Auburn Commercial club, and the Fall Fair association, and one of the most prominent citizens of DeKalb county, came as a shock to the people of this community.

Mr. Nugen had been driving his automobile and returned to his home on East Ninth street for supper. While awaiting the preparation of the evening meal he remarked to members of his family that he had a pain in his chest. The suggestion was made that he consult a physician, and when he sat down to supper Mr. Nugen spoke again of the pain.

Supper over, Mr. Nugen went out on the front porch and sat down on the porch swing. C. W. Fell, chief of the Auburn fire department, passing the house at this time, spoke to Mr. Nugen and noticing him sitting in an unnatural position, went to his side. He was dead, the result of an attack of heart trouble.

While Mr. Nugen has not been in the best of health for several years he has always been able to attend to business with the exception of two years ago, when he was in the hospital for an operation for gall stones.

65 Years of Age

Silas H. Nugen was born February 2, 1857 in Jackson township, the son of John and Rebecca (Hughes) Nugen, who were among the early settlers of DeKalb county having taken up their homestead in what was then an almost unbroken wilderness in the early forties. Mr. Nugen was one of six children, all of whom are deceased.

Mr. Nugen laid the foundation of an education in the public schools of those days and then engaged in agriculture, working for others until he reached the age of twenty-three years when he purchased eighty acres of land in his own right. He immediately proceeded to clear the land and build a home. October 1, 1885, he was married to Emma Bartels, daughter of Augustus and Minnie (Kruse) Bartels, natives of Switzerland. Mrs. Nugen died two years ago.

To this union were born seven children, Roy C., of Indianapolis; Dorcie R., of Sumas, Washington; John A., of Auburn; Lea, living with her father at home; Frank, of Dayton, Ohio; Hazel Rowley, living south of Auburn; and Harold, a student at Bloomington university. Three grandchildren also survive.

In 1892, Mr. Nugen was elected assessor of Jackson township and served five years, after which he was chosen by the voters of his township for trustee in 1908. Although engaged in farming, having brought his land to a high state of cultivation and made all of the substantial improvements on the place, he was for fifteen years a stock shipper and buyer, dealing in hogs, sheep and cattle. He also threshed during several years of his early life.

Mr. Nugen was a member of the First M. E. church of Auburn, a member of the Grangers and prominent K. of P. In politics, he was an active worker in the Democrat party.

President of Fall Fair

February 14 of this year Mr. Nugen was the choice of the Auburn Commercial club for president, and some time later, he was made president of the Fall Fair association. In addition to his activities in every forward movement connected with the interests of Auburn, Mr. Nugen was prominently identified with those of the farmer, being the treasurer of the Farmers Federation of DeKalb county.

In October of last year, Mr. Nugen was one of the most active workers on the Fall Fair committee, the success of the fair, in spite of the inclement weather during the week being largely due to his untiring work, the result of which was a substantial balance, instead of a loss financially.

The deceased was also a director and treasurer of the Auburn American Security Co.

Mr. Nugen has been a resident of Auburn for four years.—Auburn Star.

The funeral was [illegible] morning from the M. E. church at Auburn.

—AUBURN STAR

Frankfort And Marshmallow Roast

[illegible]

County Commencement Today

The annual commencement exercises for the township schools of DeKalb county are being held today, (June 15th) at the Court Theatre in Auburn at 2 o'clock p. m. There are about 182 graduates from the rural schools of the townships this year, a number of 20 less than it was first anticipated of having. The commencement address is delivered by Rev. M. L. Pontius, of Jacksonville, Illinois. Mr. Pontius is a former resident and teacher in this county, and is a brother of Mr. E. L. Pontius of Auburn.

A limited number of tickets were given to each of the graduates. A large group picture will be taken of the class after the exercises. Each graduate was treated to a box of candy by the Auburn business men.

The total number representing Concord, Spencer and Newville townships is 35, their names listed below:

Concord Township, 18
Clark Bassett
Tracy Bassett
Walter Brown
Lucile Curie
Paul Fetters
Goldie Hughes
Henry Kessler
Ida Kinsey
Hilda Koch
Edgar Lysher
Robert Morr
Russell Reasoner
Zella Sheehan
Frank Shull
Charles Todd
Harry Todd
Carl Tustison
Keith Yeiser.

Spencer Township, 8
Clarence Melvin Bice
Lois Geraldine Coolidge
Dora B. Hahn
Edith R. Place
Lillian Mae Steffey
Kenneth Vallieu
Ernest E. Pflaumer

Newville Township, 9
Pauline Beree
Mary Brown
Doris Conine
Frances DeLuceney
Lester Hubartt
Gladys Kline
Ross Pierman
Oral Richmond
Leta Lelah Webb

Announcement of Straus Brothers Co.

Ligonier, Indiana, June 15.—Announcement was made here today that The Straus Brothers Company, America's largest farm merchants, will move its general offices to Chicago on July 15, 1922. This is an Indiana Corporation dealing in improved farm lands, farm mortgages and investment securities. It has capital and surplus in excess of $4,000,000. Branch offices have been maintained in Chicago, Detroit and Fort Wayne, and representatives located in all the important cities of the Middle West.

Ever since the business was established in 1860 the general offices of the company have been at Ligonier. One of its largest branch offices has been located in Chicago. By reason of the fact that the business at that office has grown to very large proportions, and because of the desirability of having the general offices where they will be easily accessible from all points, it was decided to move them to that city. These offices will be in the Otis Building, 10 South LaSalle Street.

The change will necessitate the removal of some of the heads of departments from Ligonier to Chicago and Fort Wayne. A branch office will be maintained at Ligonier where real estate, farm mortgages and investment transactions will be continued as they are at the Fort Wayne and Detroit offices of the company. Fort Wayne will be the new home office of the real estate department.

The history of The Straus Brothers Company dates back to 1854, when [illegible] Ligonier into adjoining counties, and reached into north western Ohio, where it played an active part in the development of the fertile Maumee Valley.

The officers of the present organization are Simon J. Straus, president; Abe Ackerman, vice-president; and Irvin Jacobs, secretary and treasurer.

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox
St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

In discussing the market situation with a salesman this week he suggested that we handle a line of Automobiles, Tires, and Accessories that would yield a larger margin of profit.

We failed to see a point. The best is none too good, but we take great pride in handling the best.

The Good MAXWELL
United States Tires and Tubes
Genuine Ford Parts
Champion Spark Plugs
Red Crown Gasoline
Polarine Oils, Greases
Natianal Mazda Bulbs
Stewart Horns, Speedometers
Columbia Hot Shots
Expert Workmanship
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

CANNING TIME

We have tin cans of the best

GLASS CANS
For cold-packing in 1-2 pint, pint, quart, and 1-2 gallon sizes.

We also have
GOOD LUCK
Can Rubbers

And the CONSERVO
For Cold-packing and canning

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware Furniture Undertaking

To Hear Taxpayers

The DeKalb county Board of Review [illegible] is now in session, has [illegible] townships.

June 16—Jackson and Butler twps.
June 17—Spencerville, and Spencer and Newville townships.
June 19—Keyser and Concord townships and St. Joe.
June 20—Auburn.
June 21—Garrett.
June 22—Waterloo and Butler.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2485

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the Estate of Rachel Jane [illegible], deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 1st day of [illegible]

JUNE

£91

204

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

NEW REGULATORY ACT PLAN OF FARM BLOC

Decision of Supreme Court Leads Senator Capper to Outline Action to Be Taken.

Commenting on the decision of the United States Supreme court holding the most important provisions of the grain exchange regulation law invalid, Senator Arthur Capper, head of the farm bloc, said to a representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation:

"This action by the Supreme court takes the real heart out of the bill. We are going to work immediately on a new law. Possibly it will be drafted along the lines of the packer control act, which recently was declared constitutional. Back of all of this agitation, it seems to me, is the fight to keep co-operatives off the board of trade. We shall see that they are put on the board of trade when the new law is enacted. The decision of the court comes as a great disappointment to the members of the farm bloc in both senate and house, as we have looked upon this measure as one of our real achievements. The court decision makes us all the keener to pass a law which will stand the test."

Court's Hint to Congress.

The Supreme court held invalid the taxing feature of the law, which was the method of enforcement. It also denied the government's right to force admission of co-operatives on an equal footing with the other members of the grain exchanges. The machinery of control of the grain exchanges is left intact by the provision of section 2. This would leave to the Department of Agriculture authority to investigate and make public its findings as in the packer and stock yards control act, which the Supreme court recently held constitutional. The packers are regulated through the commerce clause of the constitution, and not through a taxing feature. The portion of the decision dealing with this phase is regarded as a direct suggestion to congress as to how to proceed. The Supreme court says:

"There is not a word in the act from which it can be gathered that it is confined to interstate commerce. The words 'interstate commerce' are not to be found in any part of the act from the title to the closing section. The transactions upon which the tax is to be imposed, the bill avers, are sales made between members of the board of trade in the city of Chicago in the future delivery of grain which will be settled by the process of offsetting purchases or by a delivery of warehouse receipts of grain stored in Chicago. Looked at in this aspect and without any limitation of the application of the tax to interstate commerce or to that which the congress may deem from evidence before it to be an obstruction to interstate commerce, we do not find it possible to sustain the validity of the regulations as they are set forth in this act. A reading of the act makes it quite clear that congress sought to use the taxing power to give validity to the act. It did not have the exercise of its power under the commerce clause in mind and so did not introduce into the act the limitations which certainly would accompany and mark an exercise of the power under the latter clause."

Senator Arthur Capper.

Not Interstate Commerce.

The court holds that future delivery sales on the board of trade "are not in and of themselves interstate commerce." [illegible] culture will try to function under the circumstances.

[illegible]

The Capper-Tincher act was approved on August 24, 1921. The law was fostered by the American Farm Bureau Federation, and its passage was initial evidence of the power of the farm bloc in congress. The farm bureau has repeatedly insisted that co-operatives must not be discriminated against, and that gambling in food products must be eliminated. New legislation along these lines will be vigorously supported through the legislative department of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Washington.

HELVETIA MADE HIGH SCORE

Leads All Other West Virginia Communities in Spirit, Citizenship and Business.

In competition with more than fifty of the most progressive rural communities in West Virginia, Helvetia, Randolph county, just made the highest score and has taken the lead from French Creek, Upshur county, as the best rural community in the state. West Virginia, by co-operation of her farm bureaus, agricultural extension division and other state agencies, has been measuring her rural communities for the past four years with the idea of stimulating them to better things by comparison with neighboring communities, and by pointing out what were the outstanding weaknesses.

In 1921, fifty communities were carefully judged as to strength and weaknesses and French Creek held first place, which she had won the previous year. She was closely followed by West Liberty, Ohio county, and Aurora, Preston county. This year the score card of series of tests by means of which the standards of a country community are determined was so revised that all the scores of last year were arbitrarily cut 30 points out of a possible 1,000.

The various communities are rescored year after year in order to determine how progress is being made, so most of those tested out last year have been scheduled for scoring again this year with the new score card. A few more than a dozen of the half hundred have already been scored, and among this number was Helvetia. Helvetia scored 768 points, which placed her 9 points above French Creek on the corrected scoring system.

Franklin is another community which has been tested this year by the new score card, and which made a score of 750. Considering the communities scored last year, the ten state leaders of the country communities are now as follows:

Helvetia, Randolph county, 768; French Creek, Upshur county, 759; West Liberty, Ohio county, 767; Aurora, Preston county, 755; Franklin, Brooks county, 750; Berlin, Lewis county, 748; Hodgeville, Upshur county, 746; Lightbur, Lewis county, 742; Lorentz, Upshur county, 740; Good Hope, Harrison county, 734.

Great strides in the development of every one of the rural communities scored in previous years has been noted, with marked improvement in almost every phase considered by the score card. These include community spirit, citizenship, recreation, health, homes, schools, churches, business and farms. West Virginia farm bureaus feel that the country life conferences, in connection with which scoring is done in the various communities, are largely responsible for this growth and development.

HORSES BRING GOOD PRICES

North Dakota Team Sells for $420 at a Sale in Courtland, N. Y.—Others to Follow.

A 2,700 pound matched team in Fargo, North Dakota, recently brought $420 at a sale in Courtland, New York. They were shipped by express from Fargo to New York at a total expense of $30, which covered express charges, expenses for sale, feeds and incidental expenses. The sale movement was started by the Wells County Farm Bureau which hopes to make arrangements with other farm bureaus in New York and New England for the shipment of North Dakota horses direct to farm bureau members there. E. S. De Lancey of Valley City, an old experienced horseman, has been placed in charge of the work. The farmers are listing their horses with the farm bureau committee, which pass on the condition of the live stock and when found sound and of good type they are accepted for the sale. They are then [illegible], made fat and smooth, and shipped to Mr. De Lancey who conducts the auction sales.

Wool Growers Happy.

[illegible]

IMPROVEMENT OF DAIRY INDUSTRY AIMED AT BY RECENT CONFERENCE

There Is a Decided Need for Improvement in Dairy Animals and in Making the Best Use of Those Now Available.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As a result of the conference of representatives of the purebred dairy cattle associations held in Washington, May 5, at the call of Dr. C. W. Larson, chief of the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture, a number of important recommendations were made for the improvement of the dairy industry, especially the purebred dairy cattle business. Each of the breed associations, including the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian, and Jersey, was represented by two or more delegates. The subjects of discussion had to do with the improvement of dairy cattle, advanced registry, fairs, and sales.

No conferences of this kind had been held for several years, and the representatives expressed the desire that this one might result in the formation of a permanent organization to thresh out problems of mutual interest and to work for the general betterment of the industry. Figures prepared by the department showed a decided need for improvement in dairy animals and in making the best use of the improved animals that are now available. The average production of the cows of the United States is about 4,000 pounds of milk and 160 pounds of butterfat a year, while the average cow in some other countries produces almost twice as much. There are 30 million grade and scrub dairy animals in the country and less than a million purebreds. There are 4,566,664 American farms having dairy cattle, and only 208,251 of these farms have purebred dairy cattle. It is estimated that approximately 250,000 purebred dairy bull calves born each year are not needed on the farms where purebreds are kept. Of the purebred animals that were registered last year, about 150,000 were females and less than 75,000 males, which indicates that not half of the purebred dairy bulls are registered.

Recommend Better Sires.

Among the recommendations made by the conference were those expressing approval of plans for increasing the use of purebred bulls in scrub and grade herds, and of the plans for co-operative bull associations as being the best known means for distributing surplus bulls and introducing them into new territory. Although there is a place in this country for all the purebred dairy cattle that may be produced for some time, it was the consensus of opinion that an expert business in purebreds would help to stimulate interest among farmers at home.

A number of questions related to advanced registry were brought up. Co-ordination of effort by and between the agricultural colleges and the breed associations was suggested, and it was recommended that these organizations and institutions make special efforts to co-operate. In this connection it was suggested that the various representatives ask their associations at their earliest meetings to appoint committees to meet with the Dairy Science [illegible] to see if an improved plan for making official tests of cows can be worked out which will be agreeable to the breeders, the associations, and the [illegible] that send out the official [illegible]

The [illegible] of dairy animals at fairs [illegible]

[illegible] ports of prices paid for purebred dairy cattle.

The representatives were well pleased with the accomplishments of the conference and were in favor of holding similar ones at frequent intervals. During their stay in Washington they were received by President Harding and were addressed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, attended the meetings and addressed the conference. A part of the second day was spent in a visit to the department's farm at Beltsville, Maryland.

The list of associations and their representatives taking part in the conference is as follows:

Ayrshire Breeders' association: Paul O. Reymann, president, West Virginia; C. L. Burlingham, secretary, Vermont.

Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' association: A. E. Bower, president, Ohio; L. E. Hull, Ohio.

American Guernsey Cattle club: Robert Scoville, president, New York; S. M. Shoemaker, Maryland; Karl B. Musser, New Hampshire.

Holstein-Friesian Association of America; Fred Pabst, Wisconsin; H. W. Norton, Jr., Michigan; D. D. Aitken, Michigan.

American Jersey Cattle club: M. D. Munn, president, Minnesota; R. M. Gow, secretary, New York; O. H. Baker, New York; C. J. Tucker, Missouri.

REFILLING SACKS IS PROHIBITED BY LAW

Food and Drugs Act Is Violated by Some Feed Dealers.

Federal Officers Have Been Instructed to Watch for Interstate Shipments of Feeds Adulterated or Misbranded.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some feed dealers are refilling used feed sacks stamped or printed with the name of the manufacturer and the brand name of the feed that was originally in the sack, so that the names and brands are not true in reference to the feed in the sack after refilling, according to officials of the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, who are charged with the enforcement of the Food and Drugs act.

A feed dealer of Iowa was recently cited to a hearing under the Federal Food and Drugs act for shipping into interstate commerce a molasses feed in bags which he had refilled but which bore the name of another feed manufacturer. The sacks also bore a brand name under which the original owner of the sacks sold a stock feed of much higher grade than the feed with which the sacks were refilled.

The Federal Food and Drugs act does not require the name of the manufacturer or the brand name to appear on sacks of feed coming within its jurisdiction, according to officials of the bureau, but if the name of the manufacturer and brand are given on the sack they must be true. The Food and Drugs act prohibits the use of any statements on foods or feeds that are false or misleading in any particular.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JUNE 18

THE DOWNFALL OF JUDAH

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.—Gal. 6:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Deut. 28:15-19; 25, 26, 27; II Chron. 36:11-23; Luke 19:41-44.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishing Disobedient People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Capture of Jerusalem.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Nation That Disobeyed God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Results of National Disobedience to God.

Zedekiah was made king of Judah by the king of Babylon (24:17), but in spite of this kindness and the word of the Lord spoken to him by Jeremiah (Jer. 38:17, 18: cf. Jer. 52:3), he rebelled against the king of Babylon. He relied upon the help of Egypt, but all that Egypt could do was to cause temporary interruption of the siege of Jerusalem.

I. The Seige of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. Time of (vv. 1, 2). It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign and lasted about eighteen months. The tenth month according to the Jewish calendar corresponds to our December-January, as their calendar year began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile.

2. The Method (v. 1). Nebuchadnezzar came in person with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem and built forts against it round about. It is thought that siege walls were built around the city, shutting it in. On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city. With the city shut in its fall was only a question of time.

3. The Famine (v. 3). It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem died of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate (vv. 4-7).

1. "The City was Broken Up" (v. 4). The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do. Resistance was carried on to the bitter end.

2. Zedekiah's Flight (v. 4). The king with his men of war fled by night toward the plain. His object, no doubt, was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of Jordan.

3. Zedekiah's Fate (vv. 5-7). (1) He was overtaken in the plains of Jericho (v. 5). When his flight was discovered the Chaldean army pursued and captured him. (2) He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6). Riblah was a town north of Damascus. It was the king's headquarters from which he directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Before Nebuchadnezzar, Zedekiah was tried as a criminal. (3) His fate (v. 7). His sons were slain in his sight; his eyes were put out; he was bound with fetters of brass; and they carried him to Babylon where he remained prisoner until the day of his death (Jer. 52:11).

III. Jerusalem Destroyed (vv. 8-10).

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar, who was at Riblah.

1. They Burnt the House of the Lord (v. 9). This was the sacred temple built by Solomon with additions and modifications. Before burning it they plundered it of all its sacred contents.

2. Burnt the King's House (v. 9). This was doubtless the palace built by Solomon.

3. Burnt All the Houses of Jerusalem (v. 9). The implication is that the common houses were left for the people (v. 12).

4. They Broke Down the Walls of Jerusalem. The aim was to render the walls useless as a means of defense.

IV. The Disposition of the People (vv. 11, 12).

1. [illegible] Them into Captivity (v. 11). [illegible]

2. [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

GEESE AND DUCKS

"There are lots of us here," said Mrs. Goose.

"Lots of us," said Mr. Goose, who was better known as Mr. Gander.

"Plenty of us, too, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"And a goodly number of us, quack, quack," said Mr. Duck, also known as Mr. Drake.

"Well," said Mr. Black Mallard, "we do not quack in the same fine way as our ladies do, but we make another little kind of a sound which is something like a quack and something like a sound the name of which is known only to us.

"That is, we can make our own sounds in a very superior fashion."

"Ah, yes," said Mrs. Goose. "Well, well, I hear they're building a fine place for Mr. Orang-Utan, who is expected to arrive at the zoo or the menagerie or the animal home or whatever you wish to call our Park.

"Yes, and they're going to make it very beautiful. Carpenters and painters and workmen are busy each day and they make a great noise, so they should be doing fine things.

"We make a great noise and surely we do fine things."

"Surely we do," the others said.

"There's a fine fountain over yonder, which I've been admiring," said Mrs. Duck. "I have often enjoyed watching it. Water sights to me are more beautiful than land sights.

"You will see that it is a gushing, rushing, spurting kind of a fountain that I'm telling you about, which I see and which you can all see too.

"It bounces up and water spouts forth, and then it goes down and then it comes up again and it does this all the time, over and over and over again.

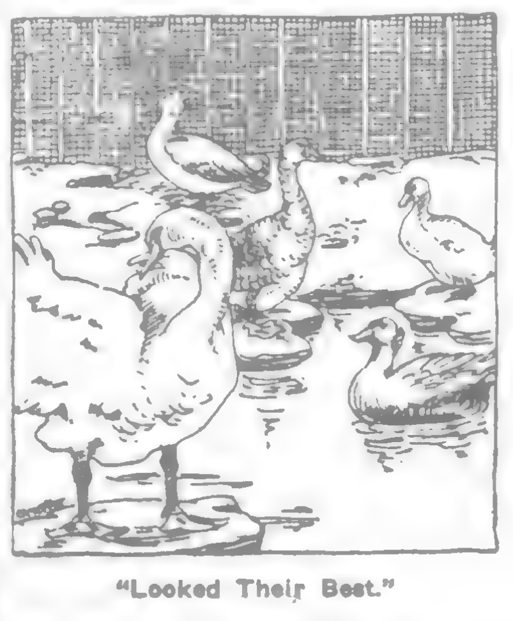
"It's a most fascinating thing to watch. Most interesting.

"There's a nice big hanging nest up in this place of ours. Yes, we have fine little ones too.

"But I must not talk any more until I have shaken my mouth in the water and have made it good and wet.

"I shall drink it so you will almost be able to see me swallow it."

Then they all began to drink water and put their heads way down into the water, as did all the wild fowl, as they were called.



"Looked Their Best."

They made a great deal of noise all the time and squeaked and chatted steadily.

Some people came and watched the geese and the swans and the ducks and the more they were watched the more they talked, hoping that the people could understand all that they said.

But after a time the people left and Mrs. Duck said:

"Quack, quack, I know what it is. They're going to see the squirrels who go back and forth in their cage on a wheel-like thing they have to play with.

"The squirrels are with the head keeper and they love to play on this wheel and go around and make it go faster and faster and faster.

"Then there is a new Rhesus Monkey from India and he is receiving attention. He's quite a friendly soul, too, I've been told.

"And the keeper is much pleased because his little pet Ring-Tailed monkey is getting all over the trouble he had with his teeth and he is with the keeper in his office and is allowed to sit on a rug on the floor and eat fine things.

"Oh, he is quite free to walk about the office as he pleases. Yes, the people will see all these creatures.

"Just let us make as much noise as we can so we will have all the visitors [illegible] and so they will come to see us."

So the Geese and the Ducks and the [illegible] made a great deal of noise [illegible] looked their best [illegible] them.

[illegible] Stare.

[illegible]

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

—15—

"So you're here, young man," he snarled. "Well, muddling in this business won't do you any good. Didn't I tell you yesterday what I intended to do; and you had the nerve to upset my wife about it. You're making yourself the laughing stock of the whole town! Now you'd better go if you don't want to witness a little comedy that'll stick in your memory for many a long day."

The speaker turned to Pollyop.

"Where's that boy?" he demanded.

Involuntarily Polly looked toward the cot where Wee Jerry lay asleep.

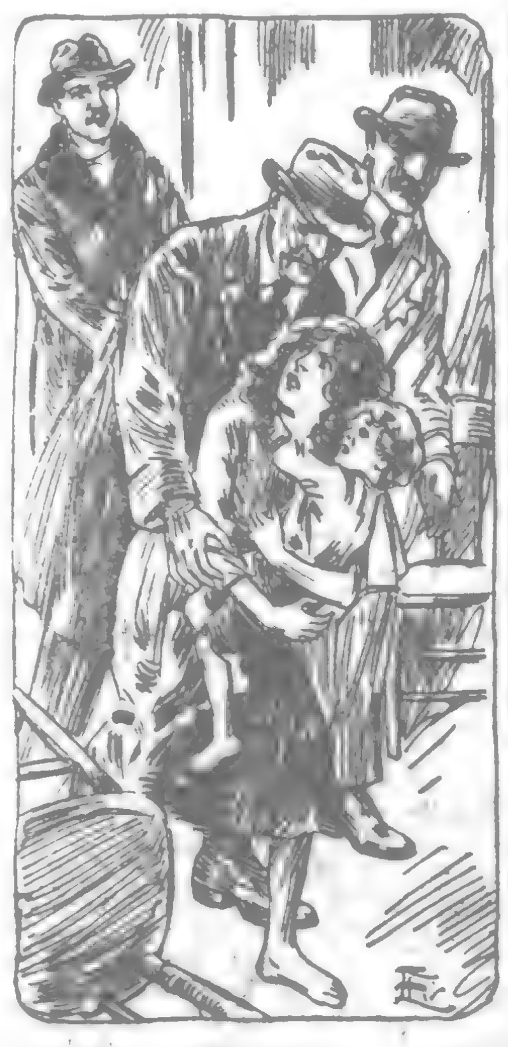
"You mean the baby— Oh, you don't mean Jerry?" she questioned dully.

He held out a paper which the squatter girl took as if she had been in a stupor. She held it up, tried to make out what was printed on it, then dropped her hand hopelessly to her side.

With an exclamation of pity, Robert went to her and took the fingers that clutched the paper.

"Polly," he said swiftly, "you'll have to give Jerry up for a little while, just a little while—"

She snatched her hand away, the document fluttering to the floor. In a moment she had picked up the child from the cot and hugged him to her breast.



Polly Struggled Madly, and the Child Shrieked and Clung to His Sister With All the Puny Strength He Had.

"Old Marc ain't come for the baby, has he?" she shrieked, her tone high-pitched and strained. "He's mine, Jerry is. I'm goin' to keep 'im here till Daddy comes home; so you might as well all scoot."

In the stillness that fell as her voice broke, each man was impressed with the martyrdom she was passing through. Robert had never imagined a person could go so white and still be alive. With an ejaculation, hoarse and defiant, he sprang to her side.

"Polly," he cried. "My God, don't look that way! Listen to me!"

"Can he take the baby?" fell monotonously from her blue lips.

"That's just what he can do, Miss Hopkins," thrust in MacKenzie. "The law says a child can't stay in a place like this. You'd have seen that if you'd taken the pains to read the paper. Put some wraps on the child, Miss!"

Polly stood with Jerry gripped tightly against her; and, frightened, the little boy began to cry.

"I want my Daddy Hopkins, Pollyop," he whimpered brokenly.

Polly looked so dreadful that for a moment MacKenzie was silent. Her eyes had an expression of such hate and deadly determination in their singular brown depths that for a moment he held his breath.

"If you take him," she spoke at last, —"why, d—n you, I'll kill you!"

At first MacKenzie eyed her contemptuously. What did such a girl's threats mean to him? Then he laughed. And that laugh stung the sensitive girl more than if he had struck her.

"You took our Daddy Hopkins," she told him, drooping a little at the telling, "but Jerry— He's my baby, an' I keep him in the [illegible] till the [illegible] comes home. You hear, the [illegible] of you, don't you?"

Her eyes were roving from one to another, but her voice [illegible] at each word, because in the [illegible] of Old Marc and his [illegible]

[illegible]

the child. With one hand the frenzied girl beat at him with all her energy, but he struck down her slim young fingers as if they had been twigs. Thrusting one arm around her, he caught Wee Jerry by the shoulders. But to disengage the boy's clutch from the chestnut curls called forth all the quickness the man possessed. Polly struggled madly, and the child shrieked and clung to his sister with all the puny strength he had.

"Keep away, Percival," snapped MacKenzie, pushing Robert backward. "If you lay one finger on my men, I'll take the girl along to jail."

To save the girl he loved, Robert compelled himself to stand by while the boy was torn bodily from her. He saw one of the men drag a blanket from the bed and throw it around Wee Jerry.

Then he snatched at the girl, but she quickly eluded his grasp. How awfully her eyes glowed, and how her face twitched!

"Get out with him before she cuts up any more," growled Marcus, as Polly bounded forward only to be met by the speaker's outstretched arms.

"If you make another scene, my lady," he rapped out, "I'll have you arrested for obstructing the law. And remember this, huzzy, I'm going to get you next."

His threat against herself meant nothing to Polly Hopkins. But the word "law"! It struck at her brain like a hammer. She suddenly felt as if a tidal wave, strong and relentless, had broken over her. It was the same law taking Jerry that had imprisoned Daddy Hopkins, that had carried away Larry Bishop from his woman. The thought brought her up with a sharp gasp. She did not care what they did with her, but little Jerry, Wee Baby Jerry!

"What you goin' to do with him, mister?" she begged, wringing her hands. "Tell me that! I can't let 'im go till you do!"

She caught at his arm, and the strong brown fingers dug deep into his flesh.

"Look into the paper there and you'll see where I'm going to take him," answered MacKenzie. "Let go of my arm! There!" He wrenched himself free. Then, enraged and with eyes flashing, he shouted, "Get out with the kid, you men, and start off!"

Glad to be gone, the officials stepped into the open, one of them carrying the writhing Jerry. Then Polly Hopkins stood upright in the middle of the shanty, grief, consternation, and then an expression of insanity passing over her face.

Robert Percival was near her, not daring to utter a word; her deep-set agony was too terrible for sympathy. All at once she started forward; and he made a desperate effort to stop her.

"Pollyop," he pleaded. As she raced through the doorway, he called: "Wait —wait—"

In an instant he was out beside her, speaking her name softly, imploringly. She paid no heed to him, but flung up her arms. And then she laughed! Marcus MacKenzie was standing beside his horse, and on beyond in the lane a carriage was rolling away, from which came piteous screams from Jerry.

"Pollyop," entreated Robert.

But Polly had bounded from him toward the man and the horse.

"I hope," she shrieked at MacKenzie, "I hope your hands'll wither off; I'm wishin' all you love'll die before your eyes, an' every day I'll be askin' Granny Hope's lovin' God to d—n you till you drop rottin' in your grave."

Marcus had halted with his foot in the stirrup. He had heard every word she had uttered; and drops of cold sweat gathered on his brow. Then, with an oath, he vaulted into the saddle, put the spurs to his horse and galloped up the hill after the retreating carriage.

Robert was leaning limply against the side of the shanty when Polly Hopkins turned swiftly back. He spoke to her; and she looked dazedly at him. Then she laughed again, directly into his face; and the young man, almost as distraught as she, tried to take hold of her.

"You scoot, too," she said to him; "get out, an' stay out; an'—an' tell your lily-livered [illegible], I [illegible] I hope if she ever has a [illegible] it won't [illegible] no eyes to see 'er with, nor no mouth to kiss 'er with—I hope—"

"Oh, God!" groaned Robert.

Before he could get back his wits she [illegible] took an old coat and hung it carefully over the glorious solemn face. She never wanted to look upon it again—Never—Never!

[illegible]

Then, taking the ax, she went out and, as deliberately as she had hidden from view the picture, so did she hack from above the door the welcoming sign.

When it lay at her feet, battered and partly broken, she muttered over the words, "If your heart is loving and kind come right in. If it ain't scoot off."

She had learned her lesson at last. Hearts were not loving and kind, after all. Then, with powerful strokes of the ax, she split the slab in pieces. Unfathomable depths of hate and revenge had swallowed her soul! Polly Hopkins was done with love forever!

CHAPTER XIV.

"God-Almighty, Polly brat!" exclaimed Larry Bishop one evening, "what made you come out a night like this, huh?"

The girl went to the stove and in silence extended her hands over its top.

"What's up, Pollyop?" the man demanded again, curiously, dropping into a chair. "You look something awful!"

And so she did! The long-lashed eyes had gathered and held an indefinable expression of hatred. The fair, lovely face knew tender sympathy no more. She was no longer Polly of the Sun. For her that orb had become merely a ball in the sky, hot like the stove and bright like the candle flame, only more so. Nor did the pale winter moon ever catch her dazzling smiles. The winking stars had forgotten weeks ago that once a squatter girl had stolen out nightly to throw upward a kiss, begging them to deliver it to the crucified one there beyond them—the good Jesus who sat on the golden throne and who had sent her the message by Granny Hope that "Love were stronger'n hate any day."

As usual her feet were in Jeremiah's boots, and as usual she wore his coat. Her curls were covered with snow, and as she studied the dark-faced man she shook drops of water from them.

She advanced toward him, choking with emotion. Since Wee Jerry had gone, her hours, spent in planning revenge, had completely exhausted her. She was so tired that when she reached Larry she crouched before him on the floor and turned a pale, beseeching face up to him.

"I've come, Larry Bishop," she began gravely, "to ask you to help me to even up a little with Old Marc."

The squatter's head went up, and a startled expression shot into his fierce eyes. Then he sank lower in his chair, and the fire died out of his countenance.

"Who can get even with that d—n brute?" he muttered after a while. "Squatters can't! We'd all go to Auburn if we muss up him or his'n."

A white young face shoved so close to his that Bishop drew back.

"Who cares a d—n about Auburn?" Pollyop exclaimed roughly. "We won't go there till we've tore Old Marc's heart to pieces an' made it hurt like yours does, Larry, like mine does for Jerry an' Daddy Hopkins. Wouldn't you be willin' to spend a few years in jail if you could make him howl an' go almost mad like me an' you have, Larry?"

Bishop looked beyond her head into a dark corner. It was in that spot he often imagined he saw the wraith of his woman. His unsteady regard settled; and the ghost woman rose mistily, gazing at him with unearthly eyes. Then the pale, unsmiling phantom extended her arms and within them appeared a frail infant.

"God!" burst from his lips like a shot from a gun.

Pollyop glanced backward over her shoulder. But the shudder that ran over him brought her haggard face back to his.

"Ain't your heart hurtin' something awful for your Betty woman an' your brat now, this very minute?" she queried abruptly, as if she, too, had seen the ghastly thing in the corner.

"God, yes!" he shivered, taking firm hold of his chin to hide the tremble of it.

She seized his arm [illegible], the grip drawing a groan from the squatter.

"An' wouldn't you just love to see Old Marc [illegible] like a [illegible]" came in [illegible] scream forcing her hands to her mouth. Such awful sounds were unusual in the Silent City, where even honest mirth was no longer heard because the men and women scarcely dared breathe for fear an enemy from Ithaca would suddenly appear.

[illegible]

"Glory be to God!" ejaculated the man, hoarsely, "that's the how of it, brat! It'll be a whack for my dead woman, an'—"

"An' a good whack for the Hopkins tribe, too," cried Polly, scrambling up. "It'll be a black Thanksgiving for Old Marc, huh, Larry?—I'm goin' back home now."

She turned to the door, but halted with her hand on the latch.

"You promised I could do it, Larry," she reminded him. "You'll tell Lye Braeger that, too, won't you?"

Sinking limply into his chair, Bishop wiped his wet lips.

"Yep, lass," he assented with a groan. "You can turn the trick; I promise you that."

If Jeremiah Hopkins had seen his girl, his Polly of the Sun, when she went home that night, he would not have recognized her. Her face was crafty, pitiless, and as white as the snow under her feet.

Then she waited stoically day after day, feeding the billy goat but absentmindedly, asking no questions of Larry or Lye Braeger how soon her idea could be carried out. She believed that they would leave no stone unturned to even up with Marcus MacKenzie.

Early one evening Larry Bishop burst into the Hopkins hut without the formality of a knock. He looked years older than he had but yesterday; and Pollyup got up, locking and interlocking her fingers.

"Well?" she asked from between chattering teeth.

"It's done, by God!" he hissed, almost strangling behind a shaking hand. "It were most awful, Polly. If I'd stuck a hog in the gizzard, the squealin' couldn't 'a' been worser."

The speaker's tones, his half-bent figure, his shifty glances, brought a grunt from the girl.

"An' you're gettin' sorry by the minute, Larry Bishop, I can see that," she returned, giving him a smart rap. "Stand up, Larry man. Once—" A sudden rush of emotion thrust into her throat such an ache that for several seconds she was unable to conclude. "Once," she repeated, after clearing away the huskiness with a hacking cough, "I thought love were the greatest thing in the world. But it ain't, Larry Bishop, it ain't!"

Bishop fidgeted with his cap, turning it around and around by its brim. When he looked up, the burning glow had died from the depths of his eyes.

"It's a sickenin' thing to see a woman suffer that bad," he muttered. "God, brat!—Nope! Don't say nothin' till I tell you what me an' Lye did!"

At the memory of it, the speaker wiped drops of sweat from his face.

"She bellered about lovin' her ma," droned Bishop, "an' the way she hel- [illegible]

She Turned to the Door, but Halted With Her Hand on the Latch.

[illegible]

GOOD ROADS

MAKE TESTS ON BATES ROAD

Has 63 Different Sections and Represents That Many Kinds of Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Final series of tests on one of the largest and most comprehensive road experiments ever attempted began March 27. This road, located at Bates, Illinois, was designed and constructed by the Illinois division of highways under the direction of Clifford Older, chief highway engineer, with the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture co-operating. It is two miles long and includes 63 different sections representing as many different methods and kinds of construction, having various thicknesses of concrete, cement grout and asphalt-filled brick as well as asphalt concretes and concrete with rolled stone bases.

Since the completion of its construction in April, 1921, a corps of engineers has been kept busy making observations for effect of temperature changes, static and repeated loads and subgrade conditions, thus collecting data which when analyzed will supplement the information necessary for the rational design of roads.

The road will now be subjected to the final test, that of very heavy truck traffic, for the application of which will be used a fleet of 10 motor trucks received by the state from the surplus of the War department. At first these trucks will be lightly loaded, but as the test progresses the load will be increased until a maximum is reached giving a 12,000-pound rear wheel load. The results will show definitely the types of pavements which can be expected to support heavy traffic, as well as those which will not satisfy the requirements of such traffic conditions as might be expected during the next 10 or 20 years.

Building a Section of Bates Road.

The careful observation of the various sections in the absence of traffic which has formed the first part of the investigation, it is expected, will enable the engineers to ascertain the structural weaknesses which cause such failures as may take place in the traffic tests.

After the experiment has been completed, this road with its broken sections replaced will form a part of Illinois federal aid project No. 13 from Springfield, Illinois, to St. Louis, Missouri.

The test will be carried on under the direction of Clifford Older, with H. F. Clemmer in direct charge of the experimental work and R. R. Benedict in charge of the trucks and maintenance. The bureau of public roads will be represented by A. T. Goldbeck and C. A. Hogentogler.

ROADS PAY DIVIDENDS

A wagon with a load of 3,000 pounds required an average draft of 108 pounds on a gravel road in dry condition, in a recent test at the Missouri College of Agriculture. The same load on a dry clay road required a draft of 321 pounds. This shows the great variation in the work done in hauling and in the size of load a team can handle, says J. C. Wooley, chairman of the agricultural engineering department, which conducted this test. The gravel roads prove their value even more completely under spring conditions. This load on the same roads after a heavy rain required a draft of 180 pounds on the gravel, and 372 pounds on the clay. This is only [illegible] of the [illegible] advantages offered by [illegible] roads.

[illegible]

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Innocent Pastime.

An old man was walking along a road one night, when he was confronted by a burly stranger.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"We're going to 'ave a game of put and take, mate," replied the stranger.

"Put and take!" gasped the old man, shivering with fright.

"Yus," said the burly one. "You put yer 'ands up and I'll take yer watch!" London Tit-Bits.

The Cuticura Toilet Trio.

Having cleared your skin keep it clear by making Cuticura your every-day toilet preparations. The Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal, the Talcum to powder and perfume. No toilet table is complete without them.—Advertisement.

Heinrich's Share.

Heinrich—Vot vos you doing, Hans?

Hans—I vos my vill making. To mein vife everything I give—to mein sister the remainder I leave—to mein brudder the residue shall have—und all that vos after that left ofer to you, Heinrich, is.—Boston Transcript.

They Cost Less
because they give longer service
Every pair of
Nu-Way Price 75c
or
EXCELLO
RUBBERLESS
SUSPENDERS
is guaranteed for a full year's wear. Men like their easy stretch and comfy feel. Ask Your Dealer. If he can't supply you, send direct, giving dealer's name.
Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co.
Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.
Nu-Way The Stretch is in the Spring

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

Lloyd Pat. Process LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept. E
Menominee, Michigan (18)

Western Canada
Land of Prosperity
offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms
Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre
—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre [illegible]
Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying
[illegible] telephone, etc.
[illegible]

LOOK OLD? [illegible]

JUNE

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

What God Says

Ex. 23:1,2

Thou shalt not raise a false report. Put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

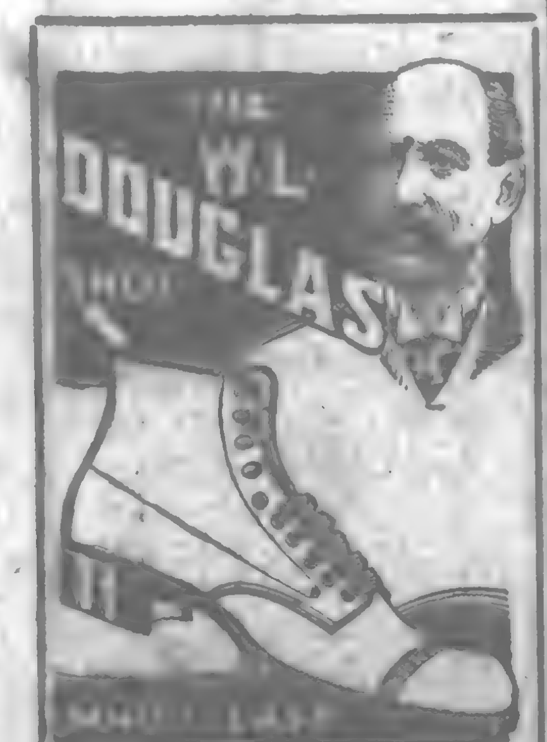
Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgment.

Plants Orchard of Thousand Trees

Hicksville—If our townsman, George B. Wilderson, has good fortune in the matter, Hicksville will in a few years be the scene of a great apple raising and shipping industry, something like the big orchards at St. Joe. At his farm on the corporation line on Bryan road, the former Morgan farm, he has just finished planting a thousand young apple trees of selected varieties, and will apply to them the latest ideas in apple culture. The location is splendid and in all probability the venture will be a success as this locality was famous years ago for its fine apples.

Ice Cream Social

at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenbury, 4 miles north of St. Joe, Wednesday evening, June 21, given by the Young People's Class of Mt. Pleasant Sunday School. Everybody invited.



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, [illegible] (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else [illegible] will be paid in a lump sum and an additional [illegible] in installments running [illegible] years, payments as follows: [illegible]

[illegible]

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Morr Wins Out In Recount

Samuel F. Morr, of Corunna, is the democratic nominee for county recorder. At the primary election held on May 2 the official count gave the nomination to Byron C. Platt, of Butler. On the ticket William G. Morr, of Auburn, was running for sheriff, and it appears that from the fact that Morr was nominated for sheriff and had more votes in some precincts than the other Democratic candidate Sam Morr became suspicious that the votes had been counted for Morr for sheriff instead of Morr for recorder. He filed a petition for recount, and there seemed to be some controversy among the democrats as to who should have the nomination. Naturally there has arisen some feeling and it was finally set that a recount of the vote should be held on Wednesday of last week. Warren A. Austin, Elmer L. Bower and J. A. McIntyre, all of Auburn, were appointed as special county board of canvassers for the primary election. When the canvassers counted the votes they found a number of ballots that had been thrown out for various reasons were so plainly marked that they counted them and gave all the candidates more votes than they received at the primary election count.

The following is the result of the re-count:

Kayser	408
Morr	1,021
Platt	989
Smith	805
Morr's plurality	32

Attends Commencement Exercices

Those from St. Joe who attended the Commencement exercises of the graduation class of Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio, have returned reporting that they witnessed a very impressive ceremony. The exercises were held on the campus and about two thousand persons attended.

Clayton Hathaway was a member of the class and those attending from here were H. C. Hathaway and wife, M. T. Bishop and wife and Mrs. Alice Warner.

Russel Hathaway, a brother to Clayton, is an under classman in the school, and the two boys returned home with the party.

R. H. C. Club Entertained

Mrs. Bertha Coburn very pleasantly entertained the R. H. C. last Thursday afternoon at her home, south of Coburns Corners. The following guests were present: Mrs. Bert Cole of Hillsdale, Mich., Mrs. Estel Coburn of Hicksville, Ohio, the Misses Lucile and Lorene Loomis of Fostoria, Ohio, Mrs. George Hart, Mrs. Faye Wilmot and Miss Georgia Coburn. An interesting contest was conducted during the social hour, in which Mrs. Laney Gee and Mrs. W. W. Wilder tied for honors, Mrs. Gee being the final winner. A delicious lunch was served consisting of strawberries and cream, Angel and Devil's food cakes and hot cocoa with marshmallows.

Position Made Better

Mrs. Bessie Tustison, of Springfield, Ohio, came Friday evening for a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Ella Patterson. She will then return to Springfield to continue her duties at the Co-eds dormitory of Wittenburg during the six weeks summer school. Her vacation comes in the month of August, when she will probably again visit in St. Joe.

Mrs. Tustison, in talking to the editor Monday evening, stated that with next year her duties would occupy eleven months of the year and that her salary would increase [illegible] That is fine evidence that she is giving full satisfaction and is meeting with favor in her work.

Miss Margaret Tustison, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Tustison, [illegible]

Coborn's Corner Young Man Graduates

[illegible]

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	142	$13.45
M. P.	76	9 98
Lutheran	74	4 39
M. E. Spencer	95	5 82
Lutheran
Newville U. B.	152	5.56
Christian	88	3.75
Coburntown	71	4 72
Concord	40	2 26
Rehoboth	83	4.80
Mt. Pleasant	92	5.49

Dr. C. S. Johnson Visits Chub Barney And Lester Curie

Dr. C. S. Johnson returned last Friday night from a 4 weeks tour in the west visiting points in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and on his way home he stopped a night in the home of Emmons Barney, at Drumright, Okla., familiarly known here as "Chub" Barney and there as "Gyp." He has a fine wife and two children. He is telegraph operatof and baggage man for the SantaFa R. R., there and seems to be happy and prosperous.

While there Dr. Johnson had the pleasure to call on Mr. W. B. Miser, brother of Ed Miser of St. Joe. He is manager of the Drumright Division Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company. Mr. Miser is president of the Boy Scouts organization and a prominent citizen of that town, which is a city of eight to ten thousands. His former home was Waterloo, Ind. Drumright is a great oil town.

Dr. Johnson also had a pleasant visit with Lester Curie at Tulsa, Oklahoma. They spent three hours riding about the city. He was entertained very nicely. Lester is a hustling young business man, associated with Mr. Wood, their successful oil field promoter. Mr. Curie pointed out the homes of many representative oil men whom he knows personally and whose confidence he enjoys.

COLETOWN

Alvin Walker called on Elton Brown, Sunday morning.

Will Sauers attended the funeral of Silas Nugen at Auburn, Sunday, and spent the afternoon with Mrs. Grace Miller.

Alvin Walker and family, Henry Kling and family spent Sunday afternoon with Elmer Palmer and wife.

J. W. Hart and wife visited Sunday afternoon with Kell Hart and wife.

Edwin Guthrie and wife spent Sunday afternoon with Elton Brown and family.

Mrs. Fred Martin and son Kenneth, called on Mrs. J. W. Hart, Tuesday evening.

Is Doing Business:

[illegible]

A NOVEL SUITCASE

[illegible]

UNUSUAL AND AMERICAN

Here is something unusual in coats, quite new and thoroughly American in style. It is a snappy spring coat with a sportish flavor, made of a novelty mixture and distinguished by leather patch pockets and a leather belt. The pockets have long slashed fringe, decorated with steel beads, and they bring to mind cowboy and Indian trappings. The collar is convertible—the sleeves a new type.

NEWVILLE

We wish the editor and his bride much happiness.

Guy Smith, of Fort Wayne, was a Newville visitor over Sunday.

The U. B. Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Elza Moore, Thursday.

Byron Miller was at home from Willard over Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Tarney was able to take an automobile ride Sunday afternoon.

Ed Miller and family, of Grover Hill, Ohio, were Newville visitors, Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Mitchell, who has been working at Bluffton, returned home ill the first of the week.

Mrs. Neva Gaff and two children attended the health clinic at Auburn, Wednesday, in regard to their health.

The W. C. T. U. met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Benner. The July meeting will be held at the Kain home near Center.

Meedames Vera Miller and Geneva Sechler were St. Joe visitors Friday, the guests of the Sam Armstrong family.

Christian Church Notes

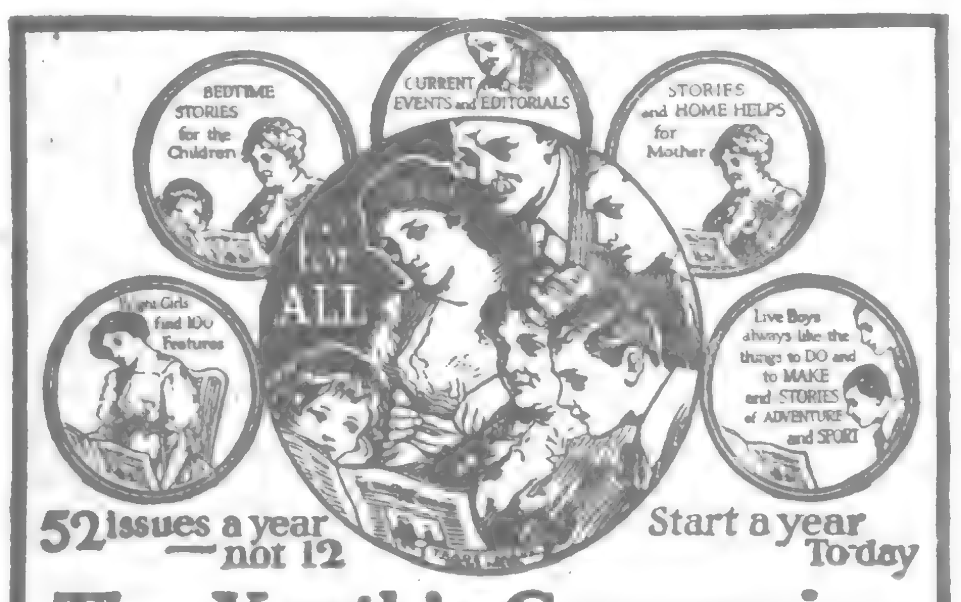
Rev. Daily left Monday for Evansville to attend the State Sunday School Convention as a delegate from the Christian Bible school.

Children's Day exercises were held Sunday morning. An excellent program was given under the direction of Mrs. R. B. Daily, Mrs. Ray Herrick and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox. Rev. Daily gave a short talk after the Communion services. One hundred and forty-two were present in the Bible school with an offering of $13.45.

Children's Ailments

DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.

Chamberlain's Tablets



BEDTIME STORIES for the Children
CURRENT EVENTS and EDITORIALS
STORIES and HOME HELPS for Mother
Girls find 100 Features
FOR ALL
Live Boys always like the things to DO and to MAKE and STORIES of ADVENTURE and SPORT

52 issues a year —not 12

Start a year To-day

The Youth's Companion

should be in every home which demands "only the Best." Live boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers, always find The Companion Reliable, Entertaining and Up-to-Date.

Hundreds of Short Stories, Serial Stories, Editorials, Articles, Poetry, Nature and Science, Current Events, Doctor's Corner, Receipts, Stamps to Stick, Games, Sports, Puzzles, "How-to-Make" Pages, Suggestions for Home Efficiency and Economy.

Costs LESS THAN Five Cents a Week

OFFER No. 1	OFFER A
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues for 1922 2. All remaining Weekly 1921 issues; also 3. The 1922 Companion Home Calendar	1. The Youth's Companion for 1922 . . . . $2.50 Including all of Offer No. 1 2. McCall's Magazine $1.00 The best Fashion Magazine for women readers
All for $2.50	All for $3.00

Check your choice and send this coupon with your remittance to the PUBLISHERS OF THIS PAPER, or to THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE

One of the very best and largest class meetings of the Loyal Sons and Daughters Class was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawson, when they met in their regular monthly session. A pot luck dinner was served to 66 members and guests. A very interesting business session was held and an offering taken amounting to $2.50. Rev. Daily gave a good report of the State Convention held recently at Muncie. A splendid social hour was enjoyed.

Seven-eighths of all the money left by married men in the United States for their dependents comes from Life Insurance. Can THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY interest you? J. C Hull, Representative, St. Joe.

She Had Heard of Them.

Admiral Eberle, new head of the Pacific fleet, said the other day to a San Francisco reporter:

"Your questions, young man, show a good deal of naval ignorance. You are like the young lady who said:

"'Oh! What are those great, funny looking things?'

"'Them's men-o-war,' her companion, a boatman, answered.

"'How lovely,' said the young lady 'And what are those fussy little things behind them?'

"'Tugs, miss.'

"'Yes, naturally! Tugs-of-war. 'How stupid of me,' said the young lady. 'I've often heard of tugs-of-war of course.'"

Patronize the advertisers.

ANNUONCEMENT

Ever since the business was established in 1860, the general offices of The Straus Brothers Company have been in Ligonier, Indiana. One of its largest branch offices has been lacated in Chicago. By reason of the fact that the business at that office has grown to very large proportions, and because of the desirability of having the general offices where they will be easily accessible from all points, it has been decided that after July 15th, 1922, the general offices of the company will be in the Otis Building, 10 South LaSalle St., Chicago.

This change will necessitate the removal of some of the [illegible] from Ligonier to Chicago. A branch [illegible] at Ligonier where real estate, farm mortgage and [illegible] will be continued as they [illegible] Fort Wayne and Detroit offices. Fort Wayne will be [illegible] of the real estate department.

The company [illegible] its interest in, and control and management of the [illegible] Bank of Ligonier and all other banks in [illegible] as well as in the numerous [illegible]

The Straus Brothers Company

[illegible]

Ligonier, Indiana

[illegible] Fort Wayne, Ind. Detroit, Mich.

How Much Influence Have YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

The date of the Chautauqua for 1922 has been announced as Aug. 27—28—29.

The first rehearsal of the M. E. Sunday School orchestra was held Wednesday evening at the church.

Theo Bowser of Huntertown, is visiting his son, R. U. Bowser and family.

Miss Ida Reed and Aubur Butler left Tuesday to attend school at Angola.

Miss Helena Fairfield very pleasantly entertained the Live Wire Class at her home on Tuesday evening.

B. F. Markle and family motored to Ontario, Ind., Sunday, and attended the Auburn District Christian Endeavor Convention.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Earl Stiman and family, of Rehobeth, were Sunday guests of Wesley Zimmerman and wife.

The Harwood family reunion was held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Emila Gloyd. There were about 35 present.

Mrs. James Hawk, of Akron, O.; Jacob Baltz and wife, and Mrs. J. D. Sommers were Sunday guests of Wm. Sommers and wife, of Coburntown.

Roy Elinger and wife, and Glenn Bowser, of Ft. Wayne; Adam Watters and wife, of Wallen, were Sunday guests of the former's aunt, Mrs. R. U. Bowser and family.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church gave an ice cream social on the Gloyd lawn, Saturday evening. A nice sum was realized.

BUILD A HOME!

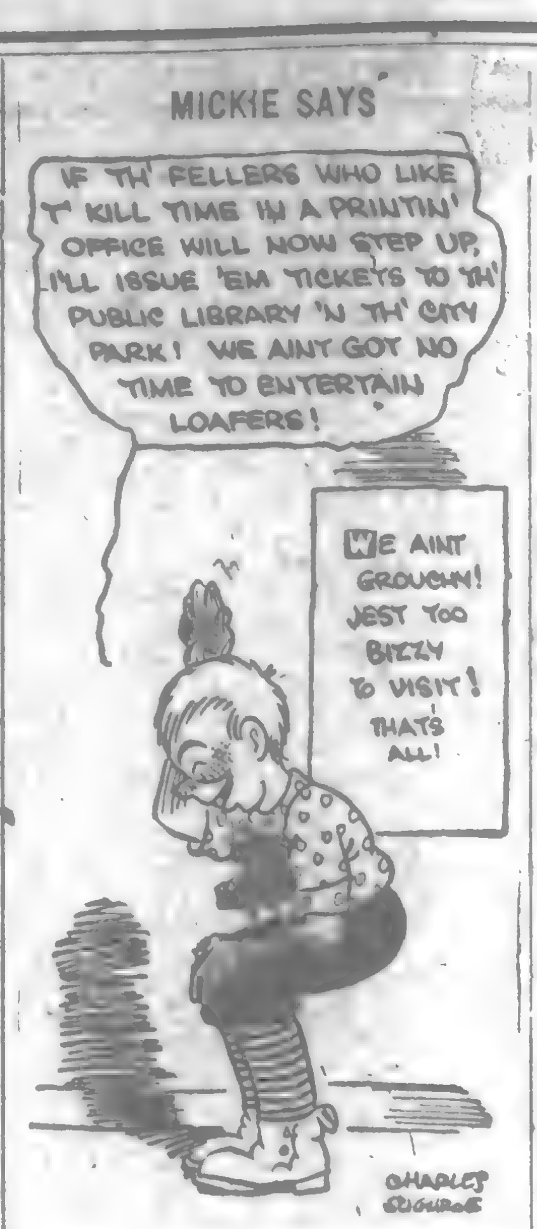
A home is one of life's greatest treasures. In it are centered the thoughts and cherished ambitions of a lifetime of effort and pleasure.

Unlike most comforts, its a dividend-paying investment, too. The saving while paying for a home encourages thrift and builds up an estate larger than most of us otherwise would have.

Without obligation, you are invited to call to talk over plans, financial arrangements, letting of contracts and other details. [illegible]

[illegible]

MICKIE SAYS



IF TH' FELLERS WHO LIKE T' KILL TIME IN A PRINTIN' OFFICE WILL NOW STEP UP, I'LL ISSUE 'EM TICKETS TO TH' PUBLIC LIBRARY 'N TH' CITY PARK! WE AINT GOT NO TIME TO ENTERTAIN LOAFERS!
WE AINT GROUCHY! JEST TOO BIZZY TO VISIT! THAT'S ALL!
CHARLES SUGHROE

On Friday afternoon, the girls sewing club was organized at the home of Mrs. Estella Goldsmith. The officers elected were: Instructress, Mrs. LeAnna Steward; President, Miss Ada Bowser; Intertainment Committee, the Misses Frankie Allen, Mary Wade and Marcella Zimmerman.

Walter Perkins and family, of near Harlan; Edward Billman and wife, Frank Wertman and wife, and Joel Bets and wife spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Chas. Boston and wife, of Tekonska, Mich; and Willis Boston and family of Burlington, Mich.

John Koch and wife, Mrs. Francis McClellan and daughter, Mrs. Gertie Wasson and daughter Beatrice visited Waterloo on Sunday.

Miss Marjorie Hollabaugh entertained seventeen members and their teacher of the Golden Hour Class last Wednesday.

Frank Rhodes and daughter Doris, Miss Vera Silberg and brother Walter were Fort Wayne shoppers Friday.

Greeley Wearley, Mrs. LeAnna Stewart and son Fred, Eugene White and wife, and Gaylon and Dorothy Markle were Fort Wayne Shoppers Wednesday afternoon.

Band Draws Crowds

The band concerts on Saturday evenings are drawing unusual crowds this season and the credit is all to be given to the great improvement the boys have made in their playing. The music they play now is of the best and they handle it as would professionals.

The business men are realizing a great benefit from the band's attraction to people from far around who come here now to do the bulk of their trading, and these business men surely feel grateful to the band boys.

Beginning with next Saturday night the concert will begin at 8:00 p. m., or a half hour later than before, thus giving the farmers a better chance to get into hear the first of the concert.

Hundreds of Thousands
WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL

Merle James Is Granted Divorce

Merle James is not from Missouri but when his wife, Hazel, said that she was writing to her mother he did not accept her word for it. At least James told Judge Ballou in the superior court today, June 12, that he took the liberty to read the missive when his wife left it lying on the table. After reading the note, which James introduced as an exhibit in his action for divorce. Judge Ballou did not hesitate to grant a divorce.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the letter, which James alleges that his young bride wrote to another man was the series of crosses at the end, said to represent many kisses. The letter said that the writer would be glad to take another automobile ride since she had enjoyed herself so much before. Some reference also was made to the fact that it was difficult to elude friend husband.

James was married last December and he claims that his wife deserted him three months later. Since filing the divorce action he has seen her in Van Wert, Ohio, walking with another man, James told the court. Otto Fuelber, attorney for James, told the court that Mrs. James objected because her husband came home from work at night too tired to go to a show.

In granting James a divorce Judge Ballou also restored Mrs James' maiden name, Hazel Shucks. Harry Muller appeared for Mrs. James, who was not in court.

Wedding Bells.

Wednesday, June 7th., 1922, at the home of Rev. Trippler, of Auburn, occurred the marriage of Mr. Donald T. Kimes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes, to Miss Minnie Frances Wilmot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wilmot, both of Spencerville, Ind. The groom is an industrious young man, being employed at South Bend, Ind., in the Studebaker shop. The bride is a graduate of the High School class of '22. Both young people are highly respected and have many friends who wish them a happy voyage down the stream of time. Mr. and Mrs. Kimes left Thursday for South Bend where they will make their future home.

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R B[illegible], D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones —Office No. 7

F W S[illegible], D V M

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

Henry Ford

HENRY FORD was 35 years getting ready for the new price on the Fordson. He started as a farm boy, planning to get rid of the drudgery, long hours and low money return that has always faced the farmer.

He wanted to furnish you with a tractor that would not only do your work better and faster, but at lower costs —and the 170,000 Fordsons now in use have proved that he has accomplished these things.

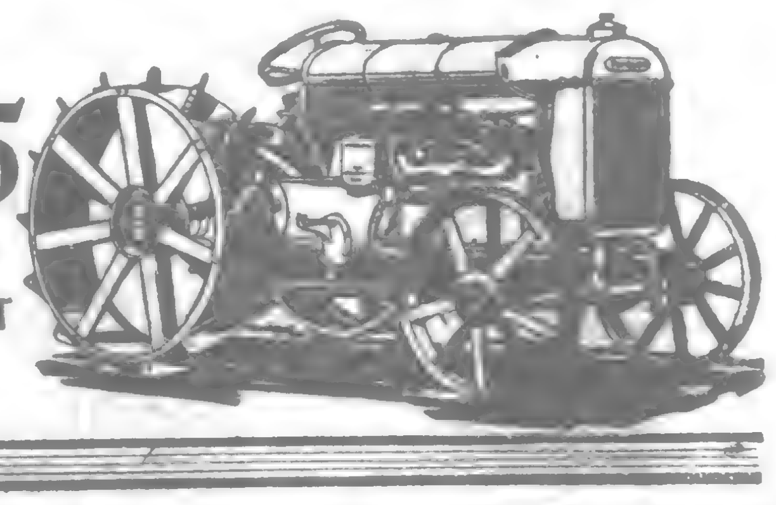
What you get in the Fordson for $395 f. o. b. Detroit is the greatest farm power unit ever offered.

Let us show you how a Fordson will cut farm costs, increase your bank account and take the drudgery out of farm work. Write, phone or call.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

$395 F.O.B. DETROIT



American Boy

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through —and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY

"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the..................Number to Name ....

Address ....

We will close out entire stock of plants at reduced prices.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE

JUNE

209

PHINEAS AND THE MOTOR CAR

In Which Gasoline Takes Over the Job as Furnishing Motive Power of Mr. Cupid

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

PHINEAS used to wonder, sometimes, just when it was he began to court Diantha Bowman, the rosy-cheeked, golden-haired idol of his boyhood. Diantha's cheeks were not rosy now, and her hair was more silver than gold, but she was not yet his wife.

And he had tried so hard to win her! Year after year the rosiest apples from his orchard and the choicest honey from his apiary had found their way to Diantha's table; and year after year the county fair and village picnic had found him at Diantha's door with his old mare and his buggy, ready to be her devoted slave for the day. Nor was Diantha unmindful of all these attentions. She ate the apples and the honey, and spent long contented hours in the buggy; but she still answered his pleadings with her gentle: "I hain't no call to marry yet, Phineas," and nothing he could do seemed to hasten her decision in the least. It was the mare and the buggy, however, that proved to be responsible for what was the beginning of the end.

They were on their way home from the county fair. The mare, head hanging, was plodding through the dust, when around the curve of the road shot the one automobile that the town boasted. The next moment the whizzing thing had passed, and left a superannuated old mare looming through a cloud of dust and dancing on two wabbly hind legs.

"Plague take them autymobiles!" snarled Phineas through set teeth, as he sawed at the reins. "I ax pardon, I'm sure, Dianthy," he added shamefacedly, when the mare had dropped to a position more nearly normal; "but I hain't no use fur them 'ere contraptions!"

Diantha frowned. She was frightened—and because she was frightened she was angry. She said the first thing that came into her head—and never had she spoken to Phineas so sharply.

"If you'd have some use for 'em, Phineas Hopkins, you wouldn't be crawlin' along in a shiftless old rig like this; you'd have one yourself an' be somebody! For my part, I like 'em, an' I'm jest achin' ter ride in 'em, too!"

Phineas almost dropped the reins in his amazement. "Achin' ter ride in 'em," she had said—and all that he could give her was this "shiftless old rig" that she so scorned. He remembered something else, too, and his face flamed suddenly red. It was Colonel Smith who owned and drove that automobile, and Colonel Smith, too, was a bachelor. What if— Instantly in Phineas' soul rose a fierce jealousy.

"I like a hoss, myself," he said, with some dignity. "I want somethin' that's alive!"

Diantha laughed slyly. The danger was past, and she could afford to be merry.

"Well, it strikes me that you come pretty near havin' somethin' that wa'n't alive jest 'cause you had somethin' that was!" she retorted. "Really, Phineas, I didn't s'pose Dolly could move so fast!"

Phineas bridled.

"Dolly knew how ter move once," he rejoined grimly. "'Cause nobody pretends ter say she's young now, any more'n we be," he finished with some defiance. But he dropped visibly at Diantha's next words.

"Why, I don't feel old, Phineas, an' I ain't old, either. Look at Colonel Smith; he's jest my age, an' he's got a autymobile. Mebbe I'll have one some day."

To Phineas it seemed that a cold hand clutched his heart.

"Dianthy, you wouldn't really—ride in one!" he faltered.

Until that moment Diantha had not been sure that she would, but the quaver in Phineas' voice decided her.

"Wouldn't I? You jest wait an' see!"

And Phineas did wait—and he did see. He saw Diantha, not a week later, pink-cheeked and bright-eyed, sitting by the side of Colonel Smith in that hated automobile. Nor did he stop to consider that Diantha was only one of a dozen upon whom Colonel Smith, in the enthusiasm of his new possession, was pleased to bestow that [illegible]. To Phineas it [illegible] and he did not [illegible] when he heard [illegible] of the ride.

[illegible]

til now those wants had not included an automobile—until now he had not known that Diantha wished to fly. All through the autumn and winter Phineas pinched and economized until he had lopped off all of the luxuries and most of the pleasures of living. Even then it is doubtful if he would have accomplished his purpose had he not, in the spring, fallen heir to a modest legacy of a few thousand dollars. The news of his good fortune was not two hours old when he sought Diantha.

"I cal'late mebbe I'll be gettin' me one o' them 'ere autymobiles this spring," he said, as if casually filling a part of the conversation.

"Phineas!"

At the awed joy in Diantha's voice the man's heart glowed within him. This one moment of triumph was worth all the long miserable winter with its butterless bread and tobaccoless pipes. But he carefully hid his joy when he spoke.

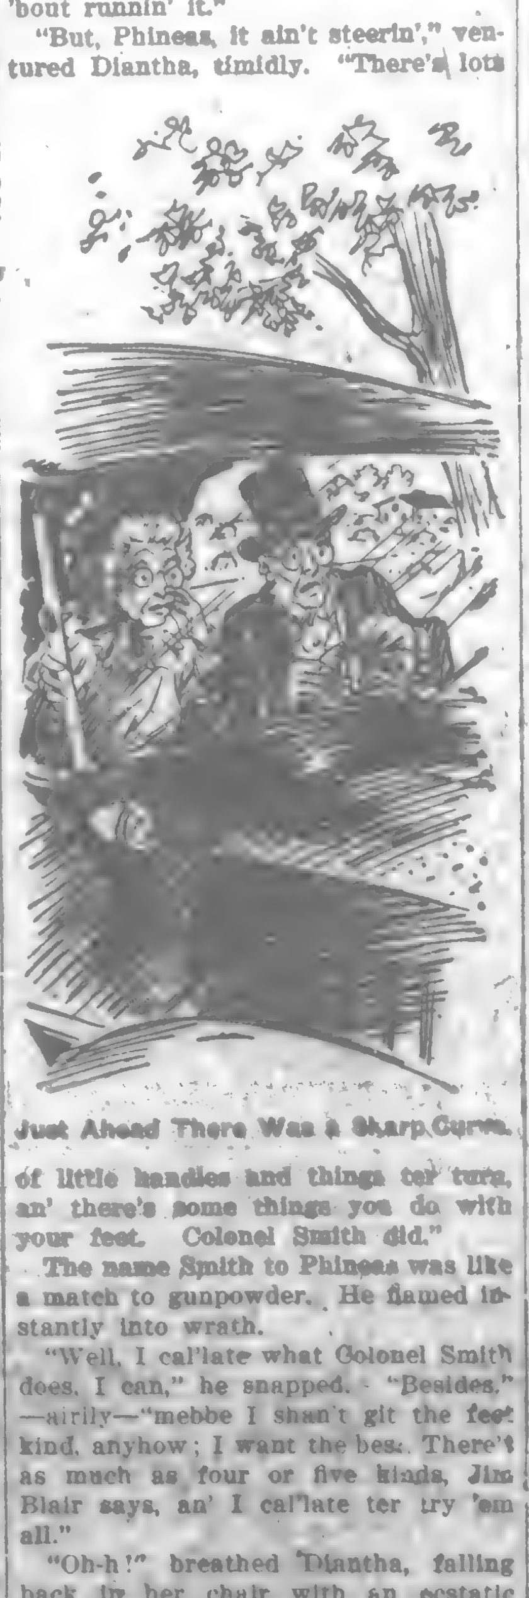
"Yes," he said nonchalantly. "I'm goin' ter Boston next week ter pick one out. I cal'late on gettin' a purty good one."

"Oh, Phineas! But how—how you goin' ter run it?"

Phineas' chin came up.

"Run it!" he scoffed. "Well, I hain't had no trouble yet steerin' a hoss, an' I cal'late I won't have any more steerin' a mess o' senseless metal what hain't got no eyes ter be seein' things an' gittin' scared! I don't worry none 'bout runnin' it."

"But, Phineas, it ain't steerin'," ventured Diantha, timidly. "There's lots of little handles and things ter turn, an' there's some things you do with your feet. Colonel Smith did."



Just Ahead There Was a Sharp Curve.

The name Smith to Phineas was like a match to gunpowder. He flamed instantly into wrath.

"Well, I cal'late what Colonel Smith does, I can," he snapped. "Besides,"—airily—"mebbe I shan't git the feet kind, anyhow; I want the best. There's as much as four or five kinds, Jim Blair says, an' I cal'late ter try 'em all."

"Oh-h!" breathed Diantha, falling back in her chair with an ecstatic sigh. "Oh, Phineas, won't it be grand!" And Phineas, seeing the joyous light in her eyes, gazed straight down a vista of happiness that led to wedding bells and bliss.

Phineas was gone some time on his Boston trip. When he returned he looked thin and worried. He started nervously at trivial noises, and his eyes showed a furtive restlessness that quickly caused remark.

"Why, Phineas, you don't look well!" Diantha exclaimed when she saw him.

"Well? Oh, I'm well."

"An' did you buy it—that autymobile?"

"I did." Phineas' voice was triumphant.

[illegible]

If Phineas hesitated it was for only a moment.

"Course," he promised. "Er—there's a man, he's comin' with it, an' he's goin' ter stay a little, jest ter—ter make sure everything's all right. After he goes I'll come. An' ye want to be ready—I'll show ye a thing or two!" he finished with a swagger that was meant to hide the shake in his voice.

In due time the man and the automobile arrived, but Diantha did not have her ride at once. It must have taken some time to make sure that "everything was all right," for the man stayed many days, and while he was there, of course, Phineas was occupied with him. Colonel Smith was unkind enough to observe that he hoped it was taking Phineas Hopkins long enough to learn to run the thing; but his remark did not reach Diantha's ears. She knew only that Phineas, together with the man and the automobile, started off early every morning for some unfrequented road, and did not return until night.

There came a day, however, when the man left town, and not 24 hours later, Phineas, with a gleaming thing of paint and polish, stood at Diantha's door.

"Now, ain't that pretty," quavered Diantha excitedly. "Ain't that awfully pretty!"

Phineas beamed.

"Purty slick, I think myself," he acknowledged.

"An' green is so much nicer than red," cooed Diantha.

Phineas quite glowed with joy—Colonel Smith's car was red. "Oh, green's the thing," he retorted airily; "an' see!" he added; and forthwith he burst into a paean of praise, in which tires, horns, lamps, pumps, baskets, brakes and mud-guards were the dominant notes. It almost seemed, indeed, that he had bought the gorgeous thing before him to look at and talk about, rather than to use, so loath was he to stop talking and set the wheels to moving. Not until Diantha had twice reminded him that she was longing to ride in it did he help her into the car and make ready to start.

It was not an entire success—that start. There were several false moves on Phineas' part, and Diantha could not repress a slight scream and a nervous jump at sundry unexpected puffs and snorts and snaps from the throbbing thing beneath her. She gave a louder scream when Phineas, in his nervousness sounded the siren, and a wail like a cry from the spirit world shrieked in her ears.

"Phineas, what was that?" she shivered, when the voice had moaned into silence.

Phineas' lips were dry, and his hands and knees were shaking; but his pride marched boldly to the front.

"Why, that's the siren whistle, 'course," he chattered. "Ain't it great? I thought you'd like it!" And to hear him one would suppose that to sound the siren was always a necessary preliminary to starting the wheels.

They were off at last. There was a slight indecision, to be sure, whether they would go backward or forward, and there was some hesitation as to whether Diantha's geranium bed or the driveway would make the best thoroughfare. But these little matters having been settled to the apparent satisfaction of all concerned, the automobile rolled down the driveway and out on to the main highway.

"Oh! ain't this grand!" murmured Diantha, drawing a long but somewhat tremulous breath.

Phineas did not answer. His lips were tense, and his eyes were fixed on the road ahead. For days now he had run the car himself, and he had been given official assurance that he was quite capable of handling it; yet here he was on his first ride with Diantha almost making a failure of the whole thing, at the start. Was he to be beaten—beaten by a senseless motorcar and Colonel Smith? At the thought Phineas lifted his chin and put on more power.

"Oh, my! How f-fast we're goin'!" cried Diantha, close to his ear.

Phineas nodded.

"Who wants ter crawl?" he shouted; and the car leaped again at the touch of his hand.

They were out of town now, on a wide road that had few turns. Occasionally they met a carriage or a wagon, but the frightened horses and the no less frightened drivers gave the automobile a wide berth—which was well; for the parallel tracks behind Phineas showed that [illegible] still had its moments of indecision as to the course to pursue.

The town was four miles behind them when Diantha, who had been for some time [illegible] clutching at the flying ends of her veil, [illegible] to Phineas [illegible].

[illegible]

veil and they were ready to start. "It's the long way round, ye know. I ain't goin' ter give ye no snippy little two-mile run, Dianthy, like Colonel Smith did," he finished gleefully.

"No, of course not," murmured Diantha, smothering a sigh as the automobile started with a jerk.

An hour later, tired, frightened, a little breathless, but valiantly declaring that she had had a "beautiful time," Diantha was set down at her own door.

That was but the first of many such trips. Ever sounding in Phineas Hopkins' ears and spurring him to fresh endeavor were Diantha's words: "I could 'a' rode on an' on furever"; and deep in his heart was the determination that if it was automobile rides that she wanted, it was automobile rides that she would have! His small farm on the edge of the town—once the pride of his heart—began to look forlorn and deserted; for, Phineas, when not actually driving his automobile, was usually to be found hanging over it with wrench and polishing cloth. He bought little food and less clothing, but always—gasoline. And he talked to any one who would listen about automobiles in general and his own in particular, learnedly dropping in frequent references to cylinders, speed, horse power, vibrators, carburetors and spark plugs.

As to Diantha—she went to bed every night with thankfulness that she possessed her complement of limbs and senses, and she rose every morning with a fear that the coming night would find some of them missing. To Phineas and the town in general she appeared to be devoted to this breathless whizzing over the country roads; and wild horses could not have dragged from her the truth; that she was longing with an overwhelming longing for the old days of Dolly, dawdling, and peace.

Just where it all would have ended it is difficult to say, had not the automobile itself taken a hand in the game—as automobiles will sometimes—and played trumps.

It was the first day of the country fair again, and Phineas and Diantha were on their way home. Straight ahead the road ran between clumps of green, then unwound in a white ribbon of dust across wide fields and open meadows.

"'Tain't much like last year, is it, Dianthy?" crowed Phineas, shrilly, in her ear—then something went wrong.

Phineas knew it instantly. The quivering thing beneath them leaped into new life—but a life of its own. It was no longer a slave, but a master. Phineas' face grew white. Thus far he had been able to keep to the road, but just ahead there was a sharp curve, and he knew he could not make the turn—something was the matter with the steering gear.

"Look out—she's got the bit in her teeth!" he shouted. "She's bolted!"

Then came a scream, a sharp report, and a grinding crash—then silence.

From away off in the dim distance Phineas heard a voice.

"Phineas! Phineas!"

Something snapped, and he seemed to be floating up, up, up, out of the black oblivion of nothingness. He tried to speak, but he knew that he made no sound.

"Phineas! Phineas!"

The voice was nearer now, so near that it seemed just above him. It sounded like—With a mighty effort he opened his eyes; then full consciousness came. He was on the ground, his head in Diantha's lap. Diantha, bonnet crushed, neck-bow askew, and coat torn, was bending over him, calling him frantically by name. Ten feet away the wrecked automobile, tip-tilted against a large maple tree, completed the picture.

With a groan Phineas closed his eyes and turned away his head.

"She's all stove up—an' now you won't ever say yes," he moaned. "You wanted ter ride on an' on furever!"

"But I will—I don't—I didn't mean it," sobbed Diantha incoherently. "I'd rather have Dolly twice over. I like ter crawl. Oh, Phineas, I hate that thing—I've always hated it! I'll say yes next week—tomorrow—today if you'll only open your eyes and tell me you ain't a-dyin'!"

Phineas was not dying and he proved it promptly and effectually, even to the doubting Diantha's blushing content. And there [illegible] found them a long [illegible] later—a blissful old man and a happy old woman sitting hand in hand in the wrecked automobile.

"I cal'late [illegible] be along purty soon," said [illegible], rising stiffly. "Ye see, we're sure got a feed that don't [illegible] help; fur we ain't [illegible]—not a mite!"

[illegible]

Had Your Iron Today?

Never Mind—
Re-vitalize

YOU BET it's warm—the more need then for keeping the vitality up to par.

Vital men resist heat easily. Languid ones are floored. Re-vitalize yourself and you won't mind the weather.

Get new energy in little raisins.

1560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound in Little Sun-Maids. 75 per cent pure fruit sugar.

Wonderful because this sugar doesn't need, and, therefore, doesn't tax digestion and thus heat the blood. Yet energizes almost immediately.

Contain fatigue-resisting food-iron also. Try a box today.

Little Sun-Maids
Between-Meal Raisins
5c Everywhere

—in Little Red Packages

O-So-Easy to Use Colors Silk, Wool and Cotton All at the Same Time Putnam Fadeless Dyes 10c Package Why Pay More For Any Dye?

"Willing to Pay."

Two colored ball teams were assembled and were about to start their game, but discovered one of their fielders missing. Their captain asked for someone from the crowd to fill the fielder's place. A tall gent said he had some experience, so they put him in the game. Everything went all right till it came his turn at bat. After the newcomer had swung at two pitched balls he connected with the next one and it went soaring over the fence. The crowd all began to yell "Run! Run!" But he didn't get it, and turning to the crowd he shouted: "Run nothing. I'll buy them another ball!"

The Tie That Binds.

Kriss—"Is the marriage contract binding?" Kross—"Yes; it keeps a man strapped for life."—New York Sun.

To Honor Canadian Heroes.

Six thousand soldiers' graves, located in 1,200 cemeteries, scattered throughout Canada, are to be marked with suitable headstones by the imperial war graves commission and will receive perpetual care. These are the graves of members of the Canadian expeditionary force and the royal air force who died in Canada on the way to or from the front. Included among the number to be cared for are the graves of a few alien enemies who died while under internment during the war, and which, under the terms of the peace treaty, must be looked after.

We are always either flattered by or suspicious of the man who agrees with us.

Silence is the hedge that guards wisdom.

EACH IS A GENUINE GOODYEAR

Each of the two tires illustrated above is a genuine Goodyear through and through.

One is the famous reliable 30 x 3½ inch Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher.

Its companion is the popular 30 x 3½ inch Goodyear [illegible].

[illegible] high [illegible] the [illegible]

It has a [illegible] differently designed tread, and [illegible].

More than [illegible] of these tires have been [illegible].

[illegible]

GOODYEAR

JUNE

WORKING GIRLS LOOK HERE

Read What Mrs. Lucas Writes Concerning Her Troubles, Which May be Just Like Yours

St. Louis, Mo.—"I had troubles that all women are apt to have, with pains in my back, weak, tired, nervous feelings and a weak stomach. I had been this way about a year and was unable to work or stand on my feet for any length of time. My husband's aunt told me how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her and begged me to try it, so I did. All my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Packing Company. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. LULU LUCAS, 719A Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.

Again and again one woman tells another of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

You who work must keep yourself strong and well. You can't work if you are suffering from such troubles. Mrs. Lucas couldn't. She tried our Vegetable Compound and her letter tells you what it did for her. Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial now.

BETTER DEAD

Life is a burden when the body is racked with pain. Everything worries and the victim becomes despondent and downhearted. To bring back the sunshine take

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for over 200 years; it is an enemy of all pains resulting from kidney, liver and uric acid troubles. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

What Figures Are For.

"What good are the figures set down in these railway time tables?" asked the sarcastic and angry would-be passenger.

"Why," explained the genial station master, "if it weren't for them figures we'd have no way of findin' out how late the trains are."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Not Battered Enough.

Sculptor—My dear young lady, I'm looking for a model who's aged and ugly. You are entirely too pretty for the type I desire.

Model—What are you going to sculpture?

Sculptor—A statue of peace.—Le Journal Amusant.

Children's handkerchiefs often look hopeless when they come to the laundry. Wash with good soap, rinse in water blued with Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

Proved.

Snobleigh—"Aw—what did you find out about my family tree?" Genealogist—"That the crop was a failure."

Help That Aching Back!

Is your back giving out? Are you tortured with backache and stabbing pains? Does any exertion leave you "all played out"? Feel you just can't keep going? Likely your kidneys are to blame. Overwork, strains, hurry and worry tend to weaken the kidneys. Backache is often the first warning. Headaches and dizziness may come, too, and annoying bladder irregularities. Help the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills—the remedy recommended by thousands. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

W. H. Jeffries, Third St., Mitchell, Ind., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble, caused from exposure. My back was lame and sore and I had sharp pains [illegible] relieved. [illegible]

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S [illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Petersburg.—Farmers throughout Pike county are considerably worried over the condition of clover. The clover crop is the heaviest in years, some fields averaging three to four tons to the acre. Last week mildew began to appear on the clover leaf and increased until a few days ago when two-thirds of the clover fields in Pike county were affected, and some of the fields are white as snow. The mildew is spreading and farmers whose fields are still free of mildew are cutting the clover, some working late into the night. The extreme cool nights recently is the only known cause for the appearance of the mildew, as there is little moisture in the ground. Many farmers are afraid to feed the mildewed clover and bailers who bail the clover stand in a white fog as the clover is put into the bailer, and are kept sneezing all the time.

Lafayette.—Officers of the One Hundred and Fortieth and One Hundred and Thirty-ninth field artillery, Indiana National Guard, will receive training at Purdue university, June 18-23. Last year the school was held at Camp Knox. Major Barker, National Guard instructor for Indiana, will have charge of the school which will bring 50 men. He will be assisted by officers stationed at Purdue. Military equipment of the Purdue R. O. T. C. and Battery C of Lafayette will be used. The work will be mostly instruction in firing and smoke screens. One of the frat houses will be used to house the men.

Hammond.—Word was received here that the interstate commerce commission at Washington has approved a roster of officials for a new railroad organization, whereby Hammond becomes the operating center of big railroad terminal facilities through acquisition by the New York Central Railroad company of control of the Chicago River & Indiana and the Chicago Junction railways. A. H. Smith of the New York Central is president and George Hannover of Hammond, vice president of the new organisation.

Monticello.—A spirit of optimism over business conditions was shown at the thirteenth annual convention of Group 5 of the Indiana Bankers' association, held in Monticello a few days ago. Reports from the various banks in the counties of the group were very encouraging. In Clay county, in spite of the coal strike, representatives of the banks reported that savings deposits had increased, and the banks of all the other counties reported that deposits have been higher and loans lower during the last few months.

Evansville.—Union coal miners who went into the northern and western Kentucky coal fields from Indiana and Illinois to work during the strike of union miners, are returning to their homes, according to miners' locals in southern Indiana. Many miners in Evansville and adjacent territory, thrown out of work because of the strike, have taken up railroad work and others are working in furniture factories and other plants.

Bedford.—The prospects for a large crop of peaches in Lawrence county are good. At the Rose peach orchard, south of here, on the Dixie highway, that contains more than 100 acres, boys, girls and women have been busy picking the fruit in order to prevent the ruin of the trees by breaking down under the weight of the peaches. The fruit picked represents thousands of bushels. This thinning has been done in other orchards.

Evansville.—Fire blight on pear and apple trees is threatening a large number of orchards in Vanderburg county, according to the county agricultural agent. The infection spreads from the tips of the branches. The county agent says the infected branches and the growth should be cut from the tree to save the fruit.

Bloomington.—Boys don't go wrong when they break away from home and come to college, says Fred Campbell, chief of the Bloomington police force. Not one of the 4,000 students who attended Indiana university the last year was fined for a law violation, and only a few have been arraigned on minor charges, according to the chief.

Jeffersonville.—For the second time, by a vote of five to three, one member not voting, the city council of Jeffersonville declined to elect a woman as a member of the school board. A petition signed by 116 prominent women, forty of whom attended the meeting of the council and several of whom spoke, was presented.

Columbus.—Representative land owners of the various townships of Bartholomew county will be called before the county board of review in an attempt to equalize tax [illegible] of farm lands on the [illegible] plan originated by the [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Lieut. Col. J. K. Parsons, in charge of National Guard affairs for the Fifth army corps area with headquarters at Fort Benjamin Harrison, has sent the officials orders for training of all units of the Indiana National Guard at Camp Knox, Ky., this summer, to Adjt. Gen. Harry B. Smith. The orders in turn have been sent from the adjutant general's office to all commanders of National Guard organizations in the state. Field training of the Indiana units will be held from July 23 to August 27, and each unit will be in camp two weeks. The arrangements of dates will result in all units except the Kokomo air squadron, I. N. G., being at the camp between July 30 and August 6.

La Fayette.—A bumper peach crop and an apple crop about two-thirds normal is predicted by H. H. Swaim, secretary of the Indiana Horticultural society. His prediction was based on sixty replies from commercial fruit growers from all sections of Indiana, who reported on the condition of the fruit in their own orchards and those of their neighbors on June 1. Indications now are for extra large crops of small fruit, showing 83 per cent of a full crop, which is better than normal, it was said. Cherries are showing indications of producing an average crop, with a heavier crop of plums than usual. The pear crop is very light, except in the extreme north part of the state.

Indianapolis.—Beginning in the fall, one or more unnecessary teachers will be eliminated from the smaller high schools of the state, Benjamin J. Burris, state superintendent of public instruction, has announced. The reorganization of the small high schools will result in a saving of perhaps $500,000 annually in salaries, which will be used in building up the standards of the school system, it was said. The reorganization has been determined, Mr. Burris said, as a result of the state school survey recently completed by the state education survey commission.

Lafayette.—Eight steers raised on the Purdue University farm recently topped the Chicago market, selling for $9.60 a 100. This was a new high mark for cattle since the last international live stock exposition. The average weight of the steers was 1,045 pounds. The Purdue steers were part of the lot that was used in feeding experiments at the university farm and they brought a price 10c higher than that which was established by the experts who judged them at the conclusion of the experiment.

Greenfield.—Farmers for five miles along the Shelbyville road southwest of Greenfield are now using electricity supplied by the Greenfield municipal plant. They are using it in motors for pumps, milking machines, cream separators, feed grinders and many other purposes besides lighting. The farmers organized the Mutual Electric Lighting company and built their own transmission line. Five cents a kilowatt at the city limits is the price tentatively agreed on.

Indianapolis.—Bids on the construction or improvement of approximately 84 miles of highway in the secondary road system under the control of the state highway commission will be received by the commission June 23. Thirty road projects in nineteen counties are to be let in nine contracts, as a part of the commission's program to spend approximately $1,500,000 this year on the secondary state roads.

Indianapolis.—Seventeen-year locusts have made their appearance in the state on schedule time, says George C. Bryant, state agricultural statistician, in his semi-monthly report on farm conditions submitted to the state legislative reference bureau and to the United States Department of Agriculture. A heavy infestation of locusts is expected in certain parts of the state this year, he says.

Loogootee.—The largest cherry crop that Martin county has had for several years is now going on the market. The fruit is of unusually good quality. Prices range from 40 cents to 60 cents a gallon. Strawberries are becoming scarce. Raspberries will be next on the market and the crop promises to be large. There are also good prospects for peaches, blackberries and apples.

Lawrenceburg.—A remonstrance containing more than 2,300 names has been filed with the board of county commissioners against the erection of a $100,000 World war memorial building in this city, petitioned for by the members of the McAllister post of the American Legion. The board of county commissioners ordered that the proposition be voted on at the general election this fall.

Sullivan.—Representatives of the Sullivan county thrashermen's organization and the commercial committee of the Sullivan county farm bureau failed to agree on the schedule of prices which should be paid for thrashing this season. The farmers are seeking [illegible] a bushel rate, while the thrashers [illegible] seven.

[illegible]

COULD NOT HIT A LICK FOR MONTHS

Petersburg Resident Says She Had About Lost Hope of Getting Better—Now Well and Happy.

"Tanlac has been such a blessing to me I can't help singing its praises," said Mrs. T. J. Archer, highly esteemed resident of 1147 Shepard St., Petersburg, Va.

"I had indigestion so bad I couldn't eat a thing without being in misery for hours, and the pain around my heart caused by the gas seemed all I could stand. I constantly had headaches and awful spells of dizziness. Then to make matters worse rheumatism in my arms, shoulders and knees almost drove me to distraction, and for three months I couldn't do a stroke of work.

"I had just about decided it was no use to take any more medicine when my husband brought me a bottle of Tanlac. Now I never have a touch of indigestion. Headaches and dizzy spells are a thing of the past, and rheumatism has left me entirely. I never have known a medicine to equal Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

More Artistic.

"Dearest," he said, sighing like a furnace, "it doesn't seem like the same old smile you used to give to me."

"Oh, no, Jack," replied the sweet thing, "this is a new one. I have been studying at a school of dramatic art."—Florida Times-Union.

SAVE SHOES AND STOCKINGS

They will last twice as long if you Shake Into Your Shoes ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the powder for the feet. It takes the friction from the shoe and gives quick relief to Corns, Bunions, Callouses, sore, aching, swollen, tender feet. Shake Allen's Foot=Ease into your shoes and enjoy the bliss of feet without an ache.—Advertisement.

EXAMPLES OF REAL OPTIMISM

Only Fair to State, However, That They Are Not Actual Happenings of Record.

"Fire? Fiddlesticks, young man. The booklet says this hotel is absolutely fireproof. Go away and let me sleep."

"What's this—from the income tax bureau? Good! They probably are sending me a refund."

"I don't seem to be able to get central, Mary, but I'm sure those burglars wont be through in the cellar for some time yet."

"It's a good thing Jack has gone over to Gloria. He'll appreciate me all the more after he tires of her."

"Lots of time, George, dear. Just try again and give her a little more gas. That train will stop rather than hit us."

"I feel I'm going to lose my petticoat before another block, but I'll probably look snappier without it."

"Ten years in Sing Sing? Thank you, judge. I've always wanted to wear a light suit, but I never had the courage."

"Triplets? Hot dog! That just completes the children's baseball nine!"—Life.

Proof.

"Hubby, do you love me?"

"Of course."

"How much do you love me?"

"Well, here's my check book. You can glance over the stubs."—Judge.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

TO KILL RATS and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air. Rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs and ants destroy food and property and are carriers of disease.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

Cuticura Soap Complexions Are Healthy

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

TIME HAD BROUGHT CHANGES

Aunt Jane Not Now Quite as Considerate as She Had Been in the Courting Days.

In the days when Uncle Joe and Aunt Jane were courting they sat in the garden one night under a summer moon, silent and adoring.

"Joe, dear," suddenly said Aunt Jane at last, "I want to ask you something."

"Ask me anything, darling."

"Something is tickling my neck," she whispered. "If I let go one of your hands to drive it away would you mind very much?"

Their home is now noted for its extreme neatness, and Uncle Joe has been thoroughly trained to keep it neat; how thoroughly is shown by the fact that on a recent afternoon he went into the kitchen to get a drink. For a moment Uncle Joe stood before the sink gazing at the shining faucets. "Guess you've just washed up the sink, ain't you?" he inquired at last.

"Yes, I have," she replied. "Why?"

"Well," exclaimed Uncle Joe, with a slight sigh, "I did think I'd relish a drink of water, but I guess I can get along without it."—Los Angeles Times.

Cutting Off the Last Word.

Archeologists have recently been puzzled over the finding of the headless body of an Egyptian princess in an ancient tomb. It seems that the question as to how the lady lost her head is important in archeologic circles.

In certain Oriental countries it is customary for the head of the house, in the event of a domestic argument, to behead the lady, thus cutting the lady as well as the argument short. Doubtless, the last words that issued from the lips of the headless princess were: "Where have you been?"—Judge.

Good Agents Wanted

everywhere, to sell the "Ideal" Flat Iron Cleaner, a device for cleaning and waxing, with beeswax, flat irons, ordinary or electric. An old established article of the greatest excellence, worth ten times its cost to any family. Profitable to Agents. Sample 25 cts., which may be deducted from first order for two dos. Write now for price.

THE BODINE ROOFING CO., Mansfield, Ohio

Agents—Imported novelties, new attractions. Most wonderful sellers. Big profits. Particulars and sample collection free. United Novelty Co., 1835 Madison Ave., New York.

LADIES WANTED—Sell 'LaTausca Pearls and Wm. Rogers Silverware. Samples free to workers. Write for contract. EDWARD FRYE, Station F, Box 36, Columbus, Ohio.

Ladies—Preserve Your Youthfulness. Prepare your own Beauty Masks. Formulas for masks and three popular beauty aids, all for $2.00. Write now to: MADAME LEASE, 39 East 53rd Street, NEW YORK.

BIGGEST THING FOR AGENTS, distributers, energetic men, everywhere; chance to earn $35 to $75 weekly. Moth-Cerene sells on sight to every home; repeat steadily. Our special offers build business for you. MOTHENE CO., CROOKSTON, MINN.

Don't Cut Out a Shoe Boil, Capped Hock or Bursitis for will reduce them and leave no blemishes. Stops lameness promptly. Does not blister or remove the hair, and horse can be worked. $2.50 a bottle delivered. Book 6 A free.

ABSORBINE

W. F. Young, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 24--1922.

No Wonder.

"Pa, why do they say in the market reports that wheat is nervous?"

"I guess, son, it is because it expects to be thrashed."—Boys' Life.

The charm of a bathroom is its spotlessness. By the use of Red Cross Ball Blue, all cloths and towels retain their whiteness until worn out.—Advertisement.

HAD NAVAL OFFICER GUESSING

Peculiar Combination of Names Seemed to Be Almost Too Much Out of the Ordinary.

While Lieutenant Commander H. E. Parsons, navy recruiting officer at Houston, Tex., was sitting at his desk a few days ago a young man entered and said he wanted to enlist.

"What is your name?" the officer asked.

"Bryan Dry," was the reply.

"You are a namesake of William Jennings Bryan, I take it," suggested the officer.

"Yes, sir."

"What is your home address?" was the next question.

"Moonshine Hill."

Parsons found on further inquiry that there is a Moonshine Hill in Texas and that Bryan Dry was one of its young inhabitants. Without more questioning, the applicant was signed up for a term of service in the navy.—Kansas City Star.

Bringing Him to the Point.

Miss De Muir—Papa has forbidden you to come to the house. He says you are a dangerous man.

"Dangerous. What can he mean?"

"He says you are the kind of a man who will hang round a girl all her life and never marry her."

Then he proposed — Edinburgh Scotman.

CUT HERE
Grape-Nuts
Made of Wheat and Barley
Company
U.S.A.

Here's a real treasure from Nature's storehouse

GOOD old Mother Nature has placed in wheat and barley the wonderful food properties which build and sustain life and health.

Many so-called "refined" foods are robbed of vital elements which the body needs.

Grape-Nuts—that famous wheat and barley food—brings you all the natural goodness of the grains in perfected form, with a crispness and flavor that charm the appetite.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder

[illegible]

"There's a Reason"

L 912

ARE YOU HAVING GOOD BREAD?
If not try
Country Maid Flour
Each sack guaranteed to give satisfaction or your money back
Give us a trial order on your FEEDS
and we will save you money
Our motto is—
We have it, or
We will get it, or
It is not made

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Ind.

Please return those plant jars to the News Office If you did not pay for them

July Pictoriol Reviews are here.

Salva plants, 5 cents each, at the News Office.

Miss Carrie Bodiker is again in very poor health.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamm and Mrs. Rose Meese were among the Hicksville visitors Saturday.

Dr. C. S. Johnson returned home Thursday evening from a two weeks trip through the southwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn called at the home of Mrs. Ella Patterson, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. William Endicott and daughter Anna Mae, of Butler, were Thursday guests of Miss Susie Sechler.

John Leighty, of Chicago, spent over Sunday here with his mother, Mrs. Kate A. Leighty.

F. R. Bowman, wife and daughter Eloise were at Cold Springs over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Folts spent over Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Folts, near Continental, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox and son Malcolm were Fort Wayne visitors, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orn Saylor, of Indianapolis, are spending their vacation with relatives in this vicinity.

S. L. Widney spent the week end at Hamilton Lake with his son, O. L. Widney, and family, of Hicksville.

Mrs. Frank Bachtel has gone to Detroit to spend the summer with her husband.

Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter Violet spent Saturday and Sunday, guests of her sister, Mrs. George Seevers and family, near Logan, Ohio.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh and daughter, Mrs. Rolla Wiers and children spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hart at Napoleon, Ohio.

Miss Dorothy Knight, of near Mt. Pleasant, was a Saturday and Sunday guest of her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Try a want ad in the News.

The Misses Edna Jackson, Marjoria Curie, Katherine Shull and Portia Hadsell left Monday for Winona to attend school.

Mrs. Nan Lysher spent Sunday afternoon with her mother, Mrs. Mary Timmerman, at the Charles Jackson home.

Dr. and Mrs. Lon Guisinger and Mrs. James Farver, of Auburn, were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Koch.

Ed Miser and family were Fort Wayne visitors, Friday afternoon. They also spent Sunday with Auburn friends.

Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer entertained at Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. John Knight and two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer and son.

Mrs. Alice Hart submitted to an operation for the removal of cataracts from both eyes, at the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne, Thursday.

Edith Widney and Helen Storer recently spent a couple of days at Antwerp, Ohio, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Henderson.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway has returned from a recent visit with her daughters, Mrs. Vet Chandler and husband and Mrs. Olive Frye and daughter, at Hobart.

Mrs. Jesse Copp and little daughter Vernell, of New Haven, spent from Wednesday evening until Sunday, guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe.

The large Military Band of Garrett will give concerts on the streets of its city this summer on Wednesday evenings. The first concert was given last Wednesday evening.

"Boost Garrett, She's 18 Karat," was adopted as the official slogan for the Chamber of Commerce of Garrett at a meeting of the board of directors Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker took their eldest son Harold to Auburn Sunday, for examination. The physician stated his tonsils must be removed, which will be done in the near future.

Ashley is to have the Morgan Mutual Chautauqua August 1-5, under the management of the Ashley band. This is the first chautauqua to come to Ashley in six years and it is one made up of a list of talented entertainers.

Mrs. Charles Tustison is again very poorly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Henley and children spent Sunday at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henley and and younger children and Mrs. J. P.

Ray Gorrell, of Harlan, spent from Friday until Monday with Dan Myer and wife.

Mrs. Sarah Walters, of Wayne, is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Hull.

Wilbert Campbell of Auburn, spent Saturday night and Sunday a guest of Howard Williams.

Miss Susie Sechler spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Byron Widney and family.

Lucile Curie went to Butler to spend the week with Mr. anb Mrs Henry Sechler.

Wm. Henley and family, and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham were recent Hicksville visitors.

Miss Carrie Davidson began as relief girl Sunday morning at the St. Joe Telephone Exchange.

F. M. Thornton and family leave Thursday for week or 10 days visit with relatives and friends in Maryland and at Washington, D. C.

"I feel twenty years younger" is what thousands have said after Tanlac restored them to health, Try it. B. S. Sheffer.

F. B. Leighty and wife, and Harry Hursh and wife were Sunday guests of John Benninghoff, Jr., and family, of Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curie and little son were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grimm at Waterloo.

Tanlac builds up the weak, run down system and makes you feel strong, sturdy and well, as nature intended. Dr. Sheffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton and daughter were Sunday dinner guests of Howard Northrup and wife.

The Martha Society will give a bake sale, Saturday morning, beginning at 8:30 at Mrs. Ada Berry's Cream Station.

Alberta, Arlene and Donald Hart returned home Friday from a several days visit with their uncle, Roscoe Hart and family, and other relatives.

Victor Brown and wife, of Rockpoint, Ind., came Tuesday evening for an indefinite stay with Mrs. Brown's parents, John Hart and wife.

Five ladies of St. Joe, Mrs. Ella Patterson, Mrs. Bessie Tustison, Mrs. M. J. Riding, Mrs. F. H and Mrs. Alice Warner spent Wednesday with Mrs H. C. Hathaway at Auburn.

Don Driver arrived here Tuesday from Brimsmade, North Dakota, after an absence from this vicinity for five years. He is at present visiting his sister, Mrs. Dan Myer and family.

Mrs. Jacob Sechler, Mrs. Earl Smith anb Merritt Sechler were Hicksville visitors Saturbay, Mrs. Smith remaining until Sunday when she accompanied Mr. Smith, Mr. and Mrs Wm. Staman Jr. and Mr. Sechler to Defiance. Master Jaques Smith, who had been visiting his grandmother at Defiance, and his small cousin, little Miss Margaret Smith, returned [illegible] with them.

The Boys' Brotherhood Class of the Lutheran Sunday School spent Sunday evening with Miss Marjoria Curie who left Monday to attend school at Winona.

William Cunningham of Chicago, spent over Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes, a guest of their daughter, Miss Dorothea.

FOR SALE:—Hay loader, International gearless, good as uew, used on 55 acres of hay. Easy terms. Charles Inlow, St. Joe, Phone 68-12.

Bellings were in order Tuesday night when the band came out and serenaded the two newly wedded couples. Also the third couple was belled by mistake.

The Lutheran Sunday School will observe Children's Day next Sunday evening in the church, which has been newly decorated and repaired inside.

"Where there is smoke, there is always fire," so when twenty million well known men and women in all walks of life say Tanlac is a good medicine, there must be something to it. Sheffers Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland, Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Ridgeway and children were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dorsey at Spencerville, remaining to attend the Children's Day exercises at the Lutheran church in the evening.

Wm. Brown and wife spent most of last week visiting in the Coburntown neighborhood. They spent Thursday with A. D. Perrys', the day being Mrs. Perry's birthday; they attended church at the Corners where Rev. A L. Martin was holding a meeting. They also visited in the home of Ella Wilmot.

We wish to take this manner to express appreciation to the Young Peoples Class and its teacher, Mrs. Delora Curie, for the surprise shower of fine useful presents given us Tuesday evening. We also thank all other friends for presents given us. We will cherish them and long remember the givers.

The Editor and wife.

Mrs H. A. Coburn had as week end guests Mrs. Estel Coburn, and Lucile and Lorane Loomis. As Saturday guests she had Mrs. A. H. Cole, of Hillsdale, Mich.; Mrs. C. O. Benjamin, of Peru, Ind.; and Mrs. E. G. Scott, of Hicksville, O. Lloyd Coburn and family came Sunday to spend a week in the same home.

Miss Florence Williams, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wid Williams, and Dewey Smith were united in marriage at Hillsdale, Mich., Monday. They went to Auburn, Sunday evening, and were over night guests of her sister, Mrs Will Refner, going from there to the Michgan city the next day. The young married couple will reside with the groom's brother, Earle Smith and wife, for the present.

Chicago, June 13.—Reports of the Chicago live stock market are now being broadcasted several times daily by radiophone by the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal. The reports, which are furnished by the U. S. bureau of markets and crop estimates, are all transmitted on 485 meter wave length in accordance with government regulations. Station WAAF from which the broadcasting is done is operated by the Drovers Journal and is located in the Stock Yards. It has been heard all over the Middle West.

$5\frac{1}{2}$%

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA

C. E. Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Borthwick, of northwest of town, entertained about forty members of the Christian Endeavor Society last Wednesday evening in a social way. The young folks were conveyed to the country home in automobiles.

The weather being extremely warm the most of the evening was spent playing games on the lawn in the moonlight. A fine lunch consisting of sandwiches, potatoe salad, pickles, strawberries with whipped cream, cake and lemonade was served by the hostess. Everyone present report the finest kind of a time and are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Borthwick for the splendid occassion.

The subscription price to the Hunter-Trade-Trapper is $2.00 for one year. Give your order to Wm. S. Quance.

CATARRH
Catarrh is a Local disease greatly influenced by Constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which gives Quick Relief by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces and assists in ridding your System of Catarrh.
Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS
THE
Abstracter
is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.
OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN
FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE
Friday, June 23, 1922.
If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

A SUIT CASE
THAT WILL WITHSTAND A WEIGHT OF [illegible] POUNDS
$4.95
[illegible]
PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.
[illegible]

[illegible] No. 174
[illegible]

JUNE

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1922 No. 25

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
FOR
MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men $12.00 $15.00 $16.50
Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00
Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75
Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6
Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5
Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1
Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

WOOL - - WOOL - - WOOL
Bring yours wool to us. The highest market prices paid for same at all times. See us before selling.

GRAIN
No better grain market anywhere. We always pay all the market will allow us to pay. Bring your grain to us.

FEED
Bran and Middlings, Tankage and other feeds.

COAL
Take our advise and buy now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will then be better able to pass on your request for an accommodation if you should find yourself in need of it. Give the habit of doing business with us, and we will try to make it worth while to you.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Guy Strong Drowns Tuesday

Upon attempting to swim across the Hodge gravel pit, north of Auburn, with a guy rope with which he wished fastened to a post in the pit, Guy Strong was overcome probably with cramps and was seen to sink in ten feet of water Tuesday at 1 o'clock. He immediately came up, called and sank again. Soon he came up again called and sank the third time and did not come up until recovered by his two sons, Guy and Kenneth.

Mr. Strong was the owner of two engines which furnished power for pumping. He was a man of nearly 48 years of age, was married and father of four children, two sons and two daughters.

The victim formerly lived three miles west of St. Joe and is well known here.

Insanity Follows Paralytic Stroke.

A statement alleging the insanity of Rolland Bearss, of Concord township, has been filed in the office of County Clerk C. E. McClintock.

Mr. Bearss was placed in the county jail Sunday and the insanity inquest was conducted by Justice of the Peace T. C. Ford Monday. Mrs. Emma Bearss testified that her husband, who is sixty-five years old, had a stroke of paralysis a year ago and she noticed the first signs of insanity nine months ago, when his condition became such that he could not express himself. He imagines everybody is trying to take everything he owns and he has spells of crying. He also tries to run away and he is destructive. Part of the time he suffers from insomnia.

Dr. A. V. Hines testified that Mr. Bearss has loss of memory, that he has no interest in his home or his surroundings, he runs away from home and refuses to return, or resists it. Dr. Hines also stated that Mr. Bearss has delusions and hallucinations and attacks of unconsciousness.

Mr. Bearss was also examined by Drs. J. C. Baxter and C. R. Clarke. They found Mr. Bearss unable to express himself and he cannot even tell his own name. He does not know his age and does not know how long he has lived in the county. His talk is incoherent and he has hallucinations, the physicians discovered.

An application for the admission of Mr. Bearss to the Eastern Indiana hospital for the insane has been made by Mr. McClintock.—Auburn Star.

Streets Have Been Oiled.

In answer to the question asked three weeks ago "Will we breathe dust?" can now be answered "We will not—in the business section anyway."

After the first dry spell came and we endured some dust for a day or so, E. R. Kinsey and Ed Leighty solicited the business places and raised money enough to pay for oiling only a part of the streets. So some folks [illegible] breathe the dust.

The Main St. was oiled from [illegible]

Lutheran Children's Day Exercises Fine

A full house attended the Children's day exercises at the Lutheran church last Sunday evening. The ladies are to be complimented on the splendid program and the way they had trained the young folks for their parts. The program was as follows:

Orchestra Selections — Lutheran Orchestra
Song .... Young People
Responsive Readings—Derwood Ridgway and the Young People
Scripture Reading—Derwood Ridgway
Song .... Young People
Welcome .... Robert Wiers
Vocal Trio—Harvey Hull, Floyd Reasoner and Carl Perkins
Recitation .... June Ridgway
Solo .... Eunice Henley
Song .... Young People
Recitation .... Alten Engle
Solo .... Alice Tustison
Exercise .... Little Folks
Violin Solo .... Mr. Wilcox
Recitation .... George Wade
Song .... Male Quartette
Floral Exercise .... Girls Class No. 9
Remarks .... Rev. Steffey
Offering
Drill .... Young People
Benediction .... Rev. Steffey

Next Sunday, June 25th, is the date of the reopening services of the church, and a special program is being arranged by the pastor. The interior of the church has been entirely redecorated, the job being completed last week.

M. P's. To Have Backward Party

The following announcement was made at the morning services of the M. P. Sunday school, Sunday, to all its members:

"Owing to the backwardness of the season, the Backward Party committee has been rather backward in announcing its plans for the backward party.

"We are now ready to announce that a Backward Party will be held on one of the back streets of St. Joe, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Johnson and husband, on Tuesday evening, June 27, at 8 o'clock.

"All backward- and forward-looking people are invited. Come dressed backward, enter backward, depart backward. Backward readings, backward songs and backward stunts will be given by backward people. Refreshments will be served backward by backward waiters.

"The collection plate will be passed backward, and it is hoped that nobody will be backward about contributing generously, for the money will be used to pay what the Sunday school is back on its account for the new song books.

"Signed by the Backward Party Committee."

County Graduates Receive Diplomas

"We are living in a wonderful age—the most wonderful age in the history of human civilization," declared Rev. M. L. Pontius, of Jacksonville, Ill., to the 1922 class of the district schools of DeKalb county at the annual commencement exercises in the Court theatre in Auburn Thursday afternoon.

The theme of Mr. Pontius' fine address was the opportunities before the graduates. He pointed out the marvelous progress that has been made in all lines of human activity, but said the opportunities for the future are even more wonderful. When he graduated from the schools of Fairfield township in 1895, the Rev. Pontius remarked, the commencement speaker declared that one opportunity comes to every man. Mr. Pontius, on the other hand, said that opportunity encamps on every man's doorstep and remains there until [illegible] away by the grim spectre [illegible]

The speaker told the graduates [illegible] must have a vision in order to [illegible] the opportunities presented and [illegible] to be of service to [illegible]

The Rev. Pontius for many years [illegible] school at Fairfield [illegible] is now pastor of the [illegible] church of Jacksonville [illegible]

The speaker was introduced by the county superintendent of schools, Clarence Green. The invocation was given by the Rev. S. E. Slater, pastor of the St. Mark's Lutheran church of Auburn.

The program at the theatre was preceded by the presentation of the diplomas to the graduates by Mr. Green at the assembly room of the court house. This is an impressive ceremony. Then a procession was formed for the march to the theatre. Leading were the Auburn band, the county superintendent and a former county superintendent, W. H. McIntosh. Following the 176 graduates were the township trustees. The class occupied the stage of the theatre and the trustees were in the theatre boxes.

Following the interesting program at the theatre a group photo was taken of the class on the east lawn of the court house square by the Scher[illegible]

A feature of the program at the [illegible]

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox
St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

In discussing the market situation with a salesman this week he suggested that we handle a line of Automobiles, Tires, and Accessories that would yield a larger margin of profit.

We failed to see a point. The best is none too good, but we take great pride in handling the best.

The Good MAXWELL
United States Tires and Tubes
Genuine Ford Parts
Champion Spark Plugs Red Crown Gasoline
Polarine Oils, Greases Natianal Mazda Bulbs
Stewart Horns, Speedometers
Columbia Hot Shots
Expert Workmanship
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

DON'T FORGET THAT THE
The HOOVER
Is the only Electric Vacuum Sweeper on the market and when considering see us.

AND FOR A NON-ELECTRIC
The Improved
VACUETTE
Model C
Cannot be beaten. It is new. It is much cheaper.

A Vacuum cleaner should be efficient and at the same time be durable, convenient, economical, and easy to operate. The Model C Vacuette possesses all of these virtues and yet it costs less than ordinary cleaners. A test will prove these assertions, and we will be glad to demonstrate the Vacuette in your home.—FREE.

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Are on Honor Roll.

The Eighth Grade Commencement held in Auburn, last Thursday, was a success in every way. Concord Township furnished eighteen graduates and two of these honored our township by being on the DeKalb Co. honor roll. They are Hilda Koch, average 93.3; and Lucile Curie, average 93.2. There was but one higher grade in the County.

* REAL ESTATE DEALS *

Concord

Henry Millman to Franklin L. Millman, [illegible]

Spencer

[illegible]

JUNE

American Farm Bureau

Farm Prices Twelve Points Above Year Ago.

The prices of farm products in April, 1922, were 27 per cent above 1913 prices as compared with 15 per cent above in April, 1921, according to the monthly data of the United States bureau of labor statistics made public in May. The weighted average of all the groups for which figures are collected was 52 per cent above 1913 this April compared with 54 per cent last April. The purchasing power ratio of farm commodities has improved considerably during the period.

April prices of farm products are 1 per cent lower than March prices, while the weighted average, which is taken as the price level, remains the same in April as in March. The changes from March to April are very slight in all the groups with the exception of fuel, which is four points higher.

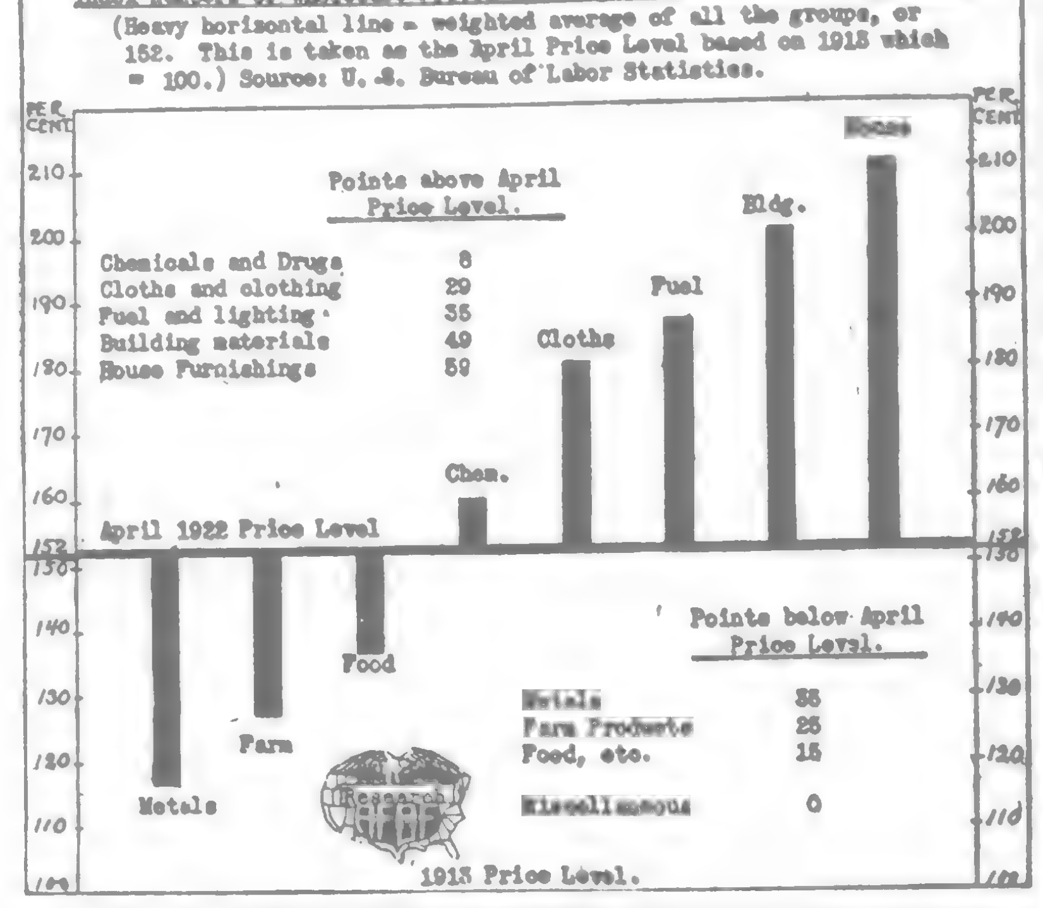
Index numbers of wholesale prices for March and April, 1922, and April 1921, are as follows:

Index Numbers of Wholesale Prices by Groups of Commodities.

1913 Equals 100

	April 1921	Mar. 1922	April 1922
Farm products	115	128	127
Food, etc.	141	136	137
Cloths and clothing	136	182	181
Fuel and lighting	190	183	187
Metal and metal products	133	115	117
Building materials	203	202	201
Chemicals and drugs	168	159	160
House furnishing goods	274	213	211
Miscellaneous	154	153	152
All commodities	154	152	152

Index Numbers of Wholesale Prices by Groups of Commodities, April 1922.
(Heavy horizontal line = weighted average of all the groups, or 152. This is taken as the April Price Level based on 1913 which = 100.) Source: U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.



MACKLIN TO OVERSEE STUDENT RESEARCH

Four State Federations Have Arranged Fellowships for Study of Dairy Marketing.

H. W. Moorhouse, director of the research department of the American Farm Bureau Federation, announces that Theodore H. Macklin, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Wisconsin, will have charge of the farm bureau research scholarships in co-operative marketing of dairy products. Professor Macklin's appointment and the entire scholarship plan has been approved by the research department advisory committee, which is composed of Dr. G. H. Taylor chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture; Prof. B. H. Hibbard of the University of Wisconsin; Prof. W. F. Handschin of the University of Illinois, and Prof. E. G. Nourse of the Iowa State College of Agriculture.

Arrangements have already been made in co-operation with the respective state farm bureau federations to establish fellowships in Missouri, Ohio, Iowa and Illinois. Several other state federations have the project under consideration. Under the plan each fellow will be allotted $80 per month. This will be paid by the state farm bureau federations. The American Farm Bureau Federation pays all the overhead expenses connected with the studies, including Professor Macklin's compensation. Only graduate students will be eligible for the scholarships.

Theodore H. Macklin.

Professor Macklin is outlining the plan of study which will be assigned to the graduate students to be [illegible]

NEW CHICAGO DAIRY PLAN IS APPROVED

Based on Idea That the Producer Is Entitled to One-Half What the Consumer Pays.

The Illinois Agricultural association, the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation, the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations, and the Milk Producers' Co-operative Marketing company have approved the plan of the Committee of Nine on Chicago Dairy Marketing appointed by E. B. Heaton of the American Farm Bureau federation. At the farm bureau meeting in Chicago the plan was outlined in detail by the committee's chairman, C. V. Gregory. The basis of the committee's plan is that the milk producer is entitled to half of the price which the consumer pays for milk; in the Chicago territory he now gets 30 per cent. The plan provides for the reorganization of the Milk Producers' Co-operative Marketing company. The new contract must have 6,000 signers by September 1, 1922. The farm bureau will secure these.

Sapiro O. K.'s Contract.

The committee retained Aaron Sapiro, noted co-operative attorney, to help draft the contract and plan of operation.

The new contract, which Mr. Sapiro says is the best milk contract in the United States, provides for pooling receipts from milk and other dairy products in four separate divisions, as follows:

1. Fluid Milk Fund.
2. Condensed Milk Fund.
3. Cheese Fund.
4. Butter Fund.

The net average price received, in each division for any given month for milk (or other products reduced to a milk basis) will constitute the basic pooled price in that division. The first payment in all divisions, to be made between the 21st and the 30th of the following month, will be the basic pooled price in the lowest priced division.

A month later each producer will receive a second payment made up as follows:

1. Two-thirds of the amount by which the basic pooled price in his division exceeds the basic pooled price in the lowest priced division.

2. The other one-third will go into a general fund which will be distributed pro rata to all producers.

Pro rata deductions will be made for overhead expenses, and a 3 per cent deduction will also be made from each producer's check for an insurance and working capital fund. After this fund reaches a [illegible] size, further deductions will [illegible] to pay back the producers who [illegible] contributed to it.

The Operating Committee.

[illegible]

RADIO

THIRD ELEMENT IN THE VACUUM TUBE

Grid Added to Fleming Valve by Dr. Lee DeForest Was a Big Improvement.

Any device which will pass electricity in one direction and will wholly or partially obstruct the flow in the opposite direction is termed a rectifier, because when connected in the path of an alternating current it will suppress one-half of each cycle and therefore the circuit will be traversed by pulsating direct current. A rectifier also is said to possess unidirectional conductivity, meaning, of course, that it will conduct electricity in one direction only. Its ability to rectify currents of extremely high frequency determines its application in radio.

Due to its ability to rectify high frequency alternating currents the two-element (filament and plate) vacuum tube can be used in a radio receiver as a detector.

Fig. VI is a simple radio receiving circuit employing this type of two-element vacuum tube in place of a crystal detector.

Dr. J. A. Fleming of London, England, was the first to use a two-element tube of the type just described as a medium of rectifying high frequency radio currents. Fleming called his product a valve because it would let current flow in one direction but not in the other direction. The Fleming valve as a forerunner of the vacuum tube of today marked a very important step in the progress of the radio art. The Fleming valve, however, in its original form was not much better than other forms of rectifiers then in use and, owing to the greater ruggedness and ease of manipulation of the other, did not come into general use as a detector.

Dr. Lee DeForest, an American, [illegible]

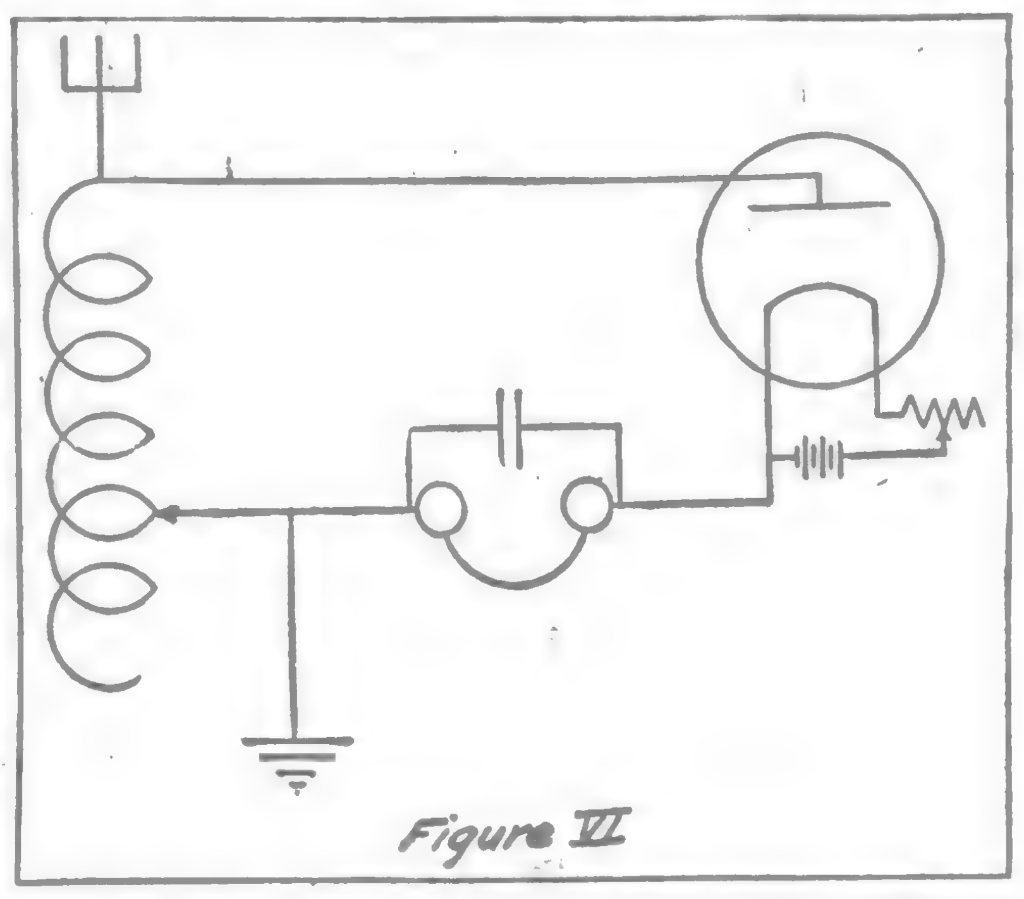


Figure VI

dition of the grid circuit I-J-K-L. The battery in the grid circuit is called the "C" battery.

As a start let us suppose that "C" battery voltage is zero. The operation of the three-electrode tube would then be exactly like that of a two-electrode tube, just as though there were no grid. Like a two-electrode tube when the filament C-D is brought to incandescence by the "A" battery a steady stream of electrons will be given off, which will be drawn over to the plate E. Plate E is maintained at a positive potential with respect to the filament by the "B" battery.

Now if the grid is made positive with respect to the filament, it is possible to accelerate the flow of the electron stream from the filament to the plate; if the grid is made negative with respect to the filament, the flow of the electron stream from the filament to the plate will be retarded. Or in other words, by making the grid positive or negative with respect to the filament, it is possible to increase or counteract the space charge. The third electrode or grid thus offers a means of controlling the current in the plate circuit without changing the plate potential or the filament temperature.

The characteristic curve of a three electrode vacuum tube is shown in Fig. VIII. This diagram shows the relation of grid potential to plate current, assuming that the filament temperature and plate voltage remain constant.

It can be seen from the curve that by applying a negative potential of value E to the grid, the plate current can be reduced to zero. The negative charge on the grid will have the effect of a negative potential E with respect to the filament, making the negative charge so strong around the filament that the electrons cannot leave it. On the other hand, if a positive potential of value F be applied to the grid with respect to the filament, the maximum or saturation current will flow in the plate circuit. Applying a greater positive potential than F to the grid with respect to the filament will not cause an increase in the [illegible]

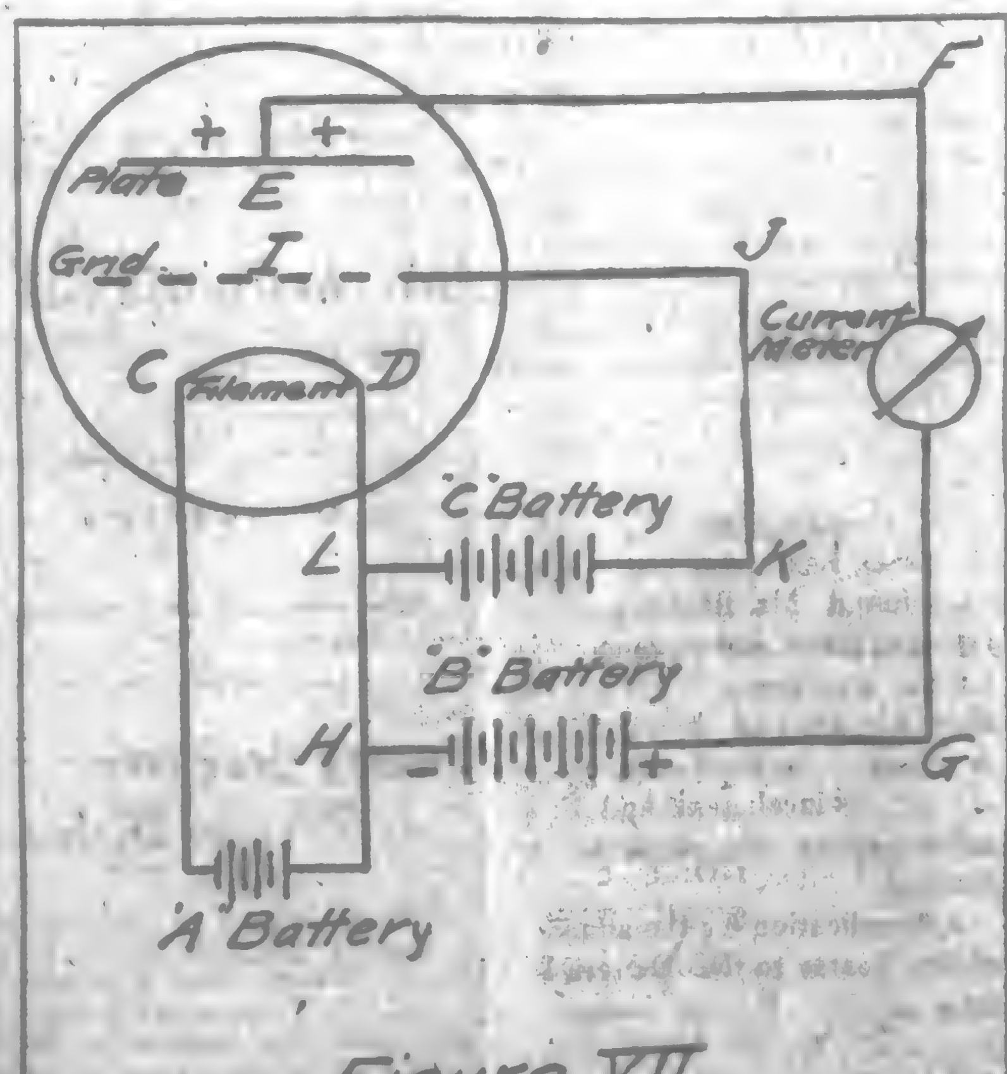

Figure VII

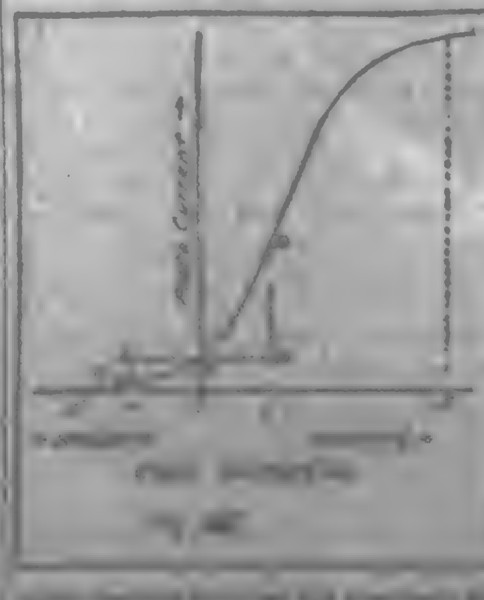


IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JUNE 25

REVIEW: JUDAH'S PROSPERITY AND ADVERSITY

GOLDEN TEXT—"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Ps. 33:12.

PRIMARY AND JUNIOR TOPIC—Men Who Obeyed God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—True and False Leaders of Judah.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Some Lessons From Judah's History.

I. Central Thought of Each Lesson Gathered Around the Key Words of the Day's Lesson Subject, Namely, Prosperity and Adversity.

A good outline is the following from Crannell's Pocket Lessons:

1. Judah's Prosperity. Based on—
   - (1) Reliance on God, lesson 1.
   - (2) Courageous Venture for God, lesson 2.
   - (3) Business Methods for God, lesson 3.
   - (4) The Vision of God, lesson 5.
   - (5) The Law and Leadership of God, lesson 7.
   - (6) Wise Leadership Back to God, lesson 8.
2. Judah's Adversity. Due to—
   - (1) Presuming Upon God's Blessing, lesson 4.
   - (2) Presuming Upon God's Purpose, lesson 9.
   - (3) Rejecting God's Word, lesson 10.
   - (4) Persecuting God's Messenger, lesson 11.
   - (5) Disloyalty to God and Man, lesson 12.

II. Golden Text Review.

Assign the texts to your class the preceding Sunday and ask them to show how the lesson illumines the text, or ask the class to prepare on all the texts and have the members of the class draw the text and give the answer.

III. Character Study or Portrait Review.

Assign the following characters the Sunday before: Asa, Joash, Jehoiada, Uzziah, Isaiah, Hezekiah, Hilkiah, Jeremiah, Baruch, Jehoiakim, Ebed-melech, Zedekiah.

IV. The Summary Method.

This method calls for the salient facts of each lesson with a statement of its outstanding teaching.

Note the following suggestions:

Lesson 1. Asa cleared the land of idolatry and called upon Judah to seek the Lord. Because he rested upon the Lord, God gave him victory over his enemies.

Lesson 2. Athaliah attempted to destroy the seed royal and then usurp the throne. Jehoiada checkmated her by hiding away Joash for six years. At an appointed time Joash was crowned king and the usurper slain. Every attempt to thwart God's purpose fails.

Lesson 3. Jesus arose from the dead, showed himself to His disciples and sent them forth as witnesses for Him. Certainty of the resurrection of Christ is essential to witness for Him.

Lesson 4. Uzziah made a notable civic and military record, but in his pride he presumptuously intruded into the priest's office. As a judgment God smote him with leprosy. "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall."

Lesson 5. Isaiah's vision of God brought him to a sense of his sinfulness. Man's supreme need today is a vision of God.

Lesson 6. Isaiah foresaw the end of all strife in the world through the establishment of Christ's kingdom. Peace and restoration shall come to the earth when Christ shall come and remove from men's hearts the cause for strife.

Lesson 7. Hezekiah led his people back to God. This he did by means of the passover feast. The only way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord.

Lesson 8. Through the repairing of the temple the law of God was found. When it was read before the king it brought penitent sorrow. God accepted his penitence and postponed the evil day.

Lesson 9. Jeremiah was arrested and brought to trial because he boldly proclaimed God's word to the nation. The one whom God calls to proclaim His word should faithfully discharge his duty regardless of what men may do unto him.

Lesson 10. Jehoiakim tried to destroy God's Word by burning it. Trying to destroy God's Word will not [illegible]

Lesson 11. Because of Jeremiah's [illegible] he was cast into prison. [illegible] will not [illegible]

Lesson 12. [illegible] Jerusalem and [illegible] the people captives. [illegible] tarry they eventually [illegible]

In His Steps.

For even hereunto were ye [illegible] suffered for [illegible] that ye should [illegible] 1 Peter 2:21.

[illegible]

Wedding and Sale Bill

A Logansport paper recently published a wedding and an account of a public sale. The printer got things mixed up in arranging the type, and the following appeared in the paper, which proves to be of special interest to St. Joe folks:

"Married at the home of the bride's township one mile north and two miles east of Mrs. John Moon, highly respected resident of Thursday, June 1st, Miss Martha Moon by the Rev. 18 head of Shorthorns consisting of four bridesmaids dressed in pale blue and carrying calves by their sides, two of them to be fresh in the spring. They had tulle veils, pinned at their corsage, sired by the noted Kentucky Jack Bombina 3rd. Also forty-six head of hogs including the groom's father from North Dakota, where he is engaged in missionary work, and is immuned by the double process. These shoats are thrifty and all relatives of the bride and groom. They all gathered in the spacious dining-room after the ceremony, and partook of 300 bushels of seed oats, 1,000 bushels of corn, 10 large sacks of millet and alfalfa. The bride is the youngest daughter of one trusty incubator, capacity 600 eggs, one Jno. Deere five room cottage and a trip to Omaha, after which they will draw 10 per cent interest from date. Free lunch at noon."

Muskellunge Gamest of Fish.

Well named the Tiger of the Fresh Water, the muskellunge is today the most sought after big game-fish of the country. Anglers do not feel that they have graduated in the science of fishing unless they have scored at least one of these giant pike to their credit. Their range is limited to the northern, northeastern and central sections of the country, where they are each year, according to statistics, steadily increasing in numbers, Farm Life says.

Arkansas River Frozen Over.

The weather bureau at Little Rock, Ark., advises that the Arkansas river at that point has several times been frozen to a depth that would allow teams to cross on the ice between Little Rock and North Little Rock, the municipality just across the river. From January 11 to January 27, 1918, the river was frozen, the ice on January 21 being five and one-half inches thick. From February 7 to February 17, 189[illegible], the river was frozen over at Little Rock and teams crossed on the ice.

"He Will Not Move a Mussil."

A Coney Island barker's speech is recalled by Marc Connelly thus: "Sir Ed-oo-ard, the man with a face of stone. He will not laugh; he will not smile. Mock him, scoff him, jeer, jest, or jape. He will not move a mussil of the face. Sir Ed-oo-ard believes that laughter, like grief, pain, sorrow or any other emotion, can be controlled by the mussils of the face. Should any lady make Sir Ed-oo-ard laugh he has a standing offer to either forfitta ten thousanda dollars or marry her."—New York Tribune.

Churches' Glory.

Men say their church pinnacles point to heaven. Why, so does every tree that buds and every bird that sings. Men say their aisles are good for worship. Why, so is every mountain glen and rough sea shore. But this the churches have of distinct and indisputable glory—that their mighty walls were never raised and never shall be but by men who love and aid each other in their weakness.—John Ruskin.

At Home and Abroad.

A nine-year-old youngster who has a cultured mother and has received the most careful training all his young life, had his luncheon alone downtown recently. His family is exceedingly careful of his diet at home, but the boy placed on his own tray baked beans, a dill pickle and brick of ice cream. He timed himself to determine how quickly he could consume the beans with a soup spoon, used a knife and fork for the brick cream, and threw the pickle at a schoolmate who sat at an adjoining table.—Eldorado Times.

Many Bug Varieties.

We have in the United States a long list of insects we usually designate as beetles. There are some 15,000 different kinds of them, and they range in size all the way from little ones that it almost requires the use of a microscope to see, to such giants as the Spotted Horn beetle.—American Forestry Magazine.

Name Traced to Bullock.

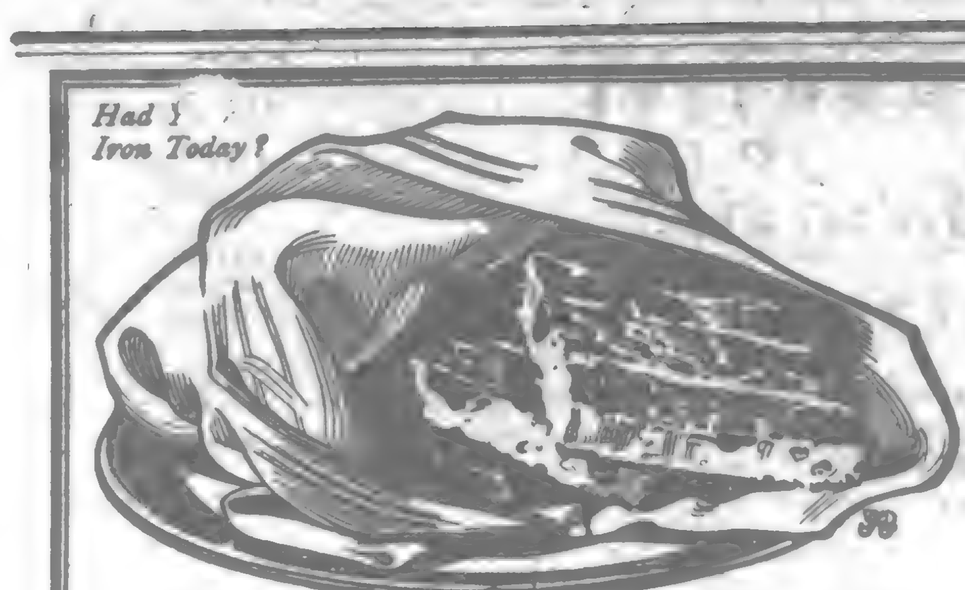
Although there does not seem to be any connection between the two words, yet beef and Bosphorus are related. The strait was so named (according to one story) because a bullock (Latin bos, Greek bous) swam that body of water. Beef is derived through boeuf from bos, the accusative case of which is [illegible]

Oil Can Grip.

[illegible]

JUNE

Had Your Iron Today?



That Luscious Raisin Toast!

A NEW delicious breakfast bread. Full-fruited raisin toast! A new delight for the entire family.

Made with big, plump, tender, seeded raisins—Sun-Maid brand.

The raisin flavor permeates each slice.

You can get such bread from any grocer or bake shop if you insist. No need to bake at home.

Once try it and you'll always have this kind. You'll serve it at least twice a week.

Fine food for business men and children due to the energizing nutriment and the iron of this famous, healthful fruit.

Make dainty bread pudding with left-over slices. No need to waste a crumb.

Order now for tomorrow's breakfast. But be sure to say you want "one of those full-fruited raisin loaves."

Blue Package

Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins

Make delicious bread, pies, puddings, cakes, etc. Ask your grocer for them. Send for free book of tested recipes.

Sun-Maid Raisin Growers
Membership 13,000
Dept. N-24-6, Fresno, Calif.

IMPORTANCE AND IMPROVEMENT OF VARIOUS NATIVE NUT TREES

Second-Growth Black Walnut Trees, Well Spaced to Permit Nut Production.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Native nut trees, such as the black walnut and members of the hickory group including the pecan, have a potential value not generally realized. Aside from the well-known value of the timber of the walnut in the making of furniture, gun-stocks, and airplane propellers, and of the white hickories in the manufacture of automobile wheels, tool handles, and many other articles, and even of pecan wood in its variety of uses, particularly for harness hames, these trees, when rightly selected and placed, form most attractive ornamentals. But, in addition to these uses, which alone are of enough importance to justify the careful preservation of existing trees and the planting of others, they have an economic value in the nuts produced.

These native nuts, even though uncultivated and unimproved, and, perhaps, inferior in shell thickness and cracking quality, are preferred by many to any of the cultivated kinds from Europe and Asia.

Nut Crop Adds to Income.

On many American farms by-products or small crops make important additions to the income, and in many localities nut trees planted about the farm buildings, along the highways, or in other unoccupied spaces, or old trees that have been left in the clearing away of the original forest, are depended upon to add noticeably to the bank account. Forward-looking farmers want to make their trees produce the best nuts and in the greatest possible quantity.

First of all, every tree intended to bear nuts in quantity needs ample space, 60 feet being none too great an interval between trees of equal rate of growth, and larger trees, unless on the shady side, should be 100 feet apart. A fertile soil that is reasonably moist is best for nut trees, well-drained clay loam being the most desirable.

Variety is next in importance to soil and location. Experienced observers know that nut trees do not come true to seed, and that the only way to reproduce a variety or an identical type is by grafting or budding, as is done with apples, peaches, pears, and other fruits. Nurserymen in the northern part of the country are now propagating several varieties of black walnuts, pecans, hickories, and butternuts by these methods, but due to the fact that active interest began only a decade ago, none of these varieties has been given much opportunity to demonstrate its usefulness as a money-crop producer. However, several varieties are promising.

Well Developed Black Walnut, Highly Prized for Its Ornamental Value and the Nuts It Produces.

Mature native trees that are well situated may be made more valuable by top-working. By "top-working" is meant the replacing of the original top with a new top of another variety. It has been practiced for a long time by fruit growers to increase the value of seedling trees and trees of inferior varieties, and owners of nut trees are now adopting the method. The steps to be taken are: (1) The selection of trees, taking into account the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] receive no further attention; (3) cuts should be made in late winter while the trees are still dormant, or, at the latest, just before the leaves appear; (4) cuts should always be made slightly above a bud, which will assure renewal in case the graft should fail.

Grafting may be done by the common cleft method or the slip-bark method. The former is usually employed when the tree is still dormant and the latter at any time during the growing period, but the scions used must always be dormant, and as scions in that condition are seldom available after the first of April neither method is of much interest just now. It is now too late to top-work trees this season, but those that have been cut back and small trees that may be budded without cutting back may be left until late summer or autumn, so that scions (then called bud sticks) of the better varieties may be obtained and buds from them inserted in the bark of the new shoots.

Specially devised tools for removing the buds from the bud sticks and for removing pieces of bark of identical size from the stock are on the market. Several are illustrated in Farmers' Bulletin 700, Pecan Culture, which contains much information of interest to nut propagators, and which may be obtained by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Budding by the "patch bud" method may be done at any time when the bark of the stock slips readily. On trees of rapid growth the bark will slip at almost any time in the summer. On young trees not cut back budding may be done in the first half of the growing season, whereas new shoots grown from below cut-off tops should be of sufficient size for budding during the latter half of the season. Dry spells frequently cause the bark to tighten, but rains will loosen it later. The season for budding sometimes extends until the trees begin to go dormant. During the latter half of the season buds may be selected from those formed at the base of the present season's growth. Most of them will remain dormant until the following spring.

DEATH WARRANTS FOR ALL INFERIOR SIRES

Farmers List Stock and Agree to Use Only Purebreds

Live Stock Owners Show Determination to Put Herds of Entire Community on Better Paying Basis—Many Enroll.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The determination of groups and associations of live-stock owners to put herds of entire communities on a better paying basis is shown by records of the United States Department of Agriculture in connection with its better-sires activities. Participation in the federal-state campaign for "Better Sires-Better Stock" involves the signing of a blank in which a farmer lists his breeding stock and agrees to use purebred sires for all classes of farm animals kept. The blanks are distributed in most cases by county agents and are virtually death warrants for grade and scrub sires.

In one day recently the department received 182 such blanks signed by farmers in Rockingham county, Virginia, and indorsed by Charles W. Wampler, county agent. Other large numbers received in one day from individual communities were 39 from [illegible] county, Ohio, and 87 from [illegible] county, Ohio.

[illegible] sires of inferior quality [illegible] disposed of along with [illegible] grades in accordance with the [illegible] that the purebreds [illegible] be of sufficient merit to be [illegible] of heading herds and flocks.

[illegible] OF BIG IMPORTANCE

[illegible]

IMPROVED ROADS

WAR MATERIAL DISTRIBUTED

Steady Surplus Supply Being Sent to Various States by Bureau of Public Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A steady supply of surplus war material suitable for highway construction is being distributed to the states by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which acts as a clearing house. A force of about 275 persons is kept in the field taking inventories and preparing material for shipment.

Lists of material available are sent to each state highway department, and a period of 30 days allowed for the submission of requisitions. The material is allotted to the state on the same basis as monetary federal aid for road construction, a value being placed on each item and a record kept of the total value received by each state. Up to February 1 of this year the value of the material thus distributed amounted to $126,000,000, of which $90,000,000 represented the value of motor vehicles and parts.

Recently an inventory was taken of about $40,000,000 worth of material at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., part of which will be retained by the War department and the remainder, suitable for road work, soon will be available for distribution. The work is being rushed, so that the material may be used for road work early in the season and the camp cleaned up by August 1.

Other surplus war materials recently received for distribution and located at Schenectady, N. Y.; Watertown, Mass., and Dover, N. J., include 200 carloads of brick, about half of which is suitable for highway paving; 5,000,000 pounds of nails, 1,000,000 pounds of staples, 1,000,000 square feet of concrete reinforcing mesh, 200,000 monkey wrenches and 133 carloads of picks and pick handles.

A Federal-Aid Concrete Road in Minnesota.

MUD AS A DEFECT

A West Virginia educator at the National Education association conference was asked what he regarded as the greatest defect in American education, and he said in his district it was mud. Bad roads can be the greatest defect in any community. They can be the greatest defect in education, when they do not permit the regular attendance of children in school. They can be the greatest defect in farming, when they do not permit the moving of crops. They can be the greatest defect in any kind of activity, when they prevent the communication needed.

A bad road is a bad road whether it is a bad street car system, a bad steam road or a mud road in the country.

GRAVEL ROADS ARE HELPFUL

Farmers of Massac County, Illinois, Are Not Bothered Much by Muddy Weather.

Muddy weather doesn't bother the farmers in Massac county, Illinois, very much, because there are over 300 miles of gravel roads in the county, and each year their mileage grows larger. The cost of graveling roads in Massac county is not very great because the gravel is taken right out of the hills along the Ohio river. Some [illegible] is used for road-making, [illegible] the farmers have a good road to market.

[illegible] School.

[illegible]

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Woman Relied Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Emporia, Kansas.—"I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines years ago when I was a girl. For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, making me very weak and interfering with my regular duties. I tried several remedies without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and it restored me to normal health. I often have occasion and do recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to my own. You may use these facts as a testimonial."—EVA ALDRICH, 218 Union St., Emporia, Kansas.

There are many women who first used our Vegetable Compound during their girlhood days. They found it a valuable help during trying periods. In later years they use it whenever they feel those annoying symptoms which women often have.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is prepared carefully from the best quality of medicinal plants, whose properties are especially adapted to correct the troubles women have.

MAN'S BEST AGE

A man is as old as his organs; he can be as vigorous and healthy at 70 as at 35 if he aids his organs in performing their functions. Keep your vital organs healthy with

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles since 1696; corrects disorders; stimulates vital organs. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Shave, Bathe and Shampoo with one Soap.— Cuticura

Cuticura Soap is the favorite for safety razor shaving.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE FOR THE FEET

Sprinkle one or two Allen's Foot=Ease powders in the Foot Bath and soak and rub the feet. It takes the sting out of Corns and Bunions and smarting, aching feet. Then for lasting comfort, shake Allen's Foot=Ease into your shoes. It takes the friction from the shoe, rests the feet and makes walking a delight. Always use it for dancing parties and to break in new shoes. Over One Million Five Hundred Thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

In a Pinch, Use ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

New Hair to replace old, should be growing all the time. It will if you use Q-Ban Hair Tonic—Don't get bald, get Q-Ban today—It's much more pleasant. At all good druggists, 75c, or direct from HESSIG-ELLIS, Chemists, Memphis, Tenn.

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Practically All.

Governor Allen of Kansas, who is an ardent and discreet book collector, was criticizing the work of a western novelist.

"The man's early work was good," he said, "but his work today is wretched. Literature once, it is now mere potboiling trash.

"This writer's case is the case of practically all our writers. They begin with a wealth of thought and they end with a thought of wealth."

Red Cross Ball Blue is the finest product of its kind in the world. Every woman who has used it knows this statement to be true.—Advertisement.

Only Remaining Despot.

The only despotic monarch left in the whole world is the amir of Afghanistan, who rules his country absolutely, ordering the coming and going of his people in all matters. He personally runs the country's religion, commerce, foreign affairs and domestic relations.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

[illegible]

BELL-ANS

WHO SAID "WEAKER VESSEL"?

Little Incident Shows How Much Chance Mere Man Has With Real Mistress of Finance.

Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, the patrician ex-suffragist who has gone into the leather business, said at a tea in New York:

"Woman should succeed magnificently in business, she is such a past grand mistress of finesse.

"I know a pretty girl who once took the part of palmist in a gypsy tent at a fair. A young man came in to have his fortune told, and the pretty girl, holding his hand in hers tenderly, said:

"'You have an extraordinary character. Your most remarkable quality is generosity. You hate skinflints, you despise the money hoarder, and you look on avarice as a shameful vice. A large and almost reckless liberality marks your path through life.'

"'Thank you,' said the young man, blushing and giggling. 'You are flattering me, I'm afraid.'

"'Not at all,' said the pretty girl, 'and now I'm going to wrap you up these three dozen tickets for our turkey raffle. They're only a simoleon apiece. Three tens, a five, and a one. Thank you; that's just right.'"

Not in the Defying Business.

"I see where a scientist has discovered how to hurl thunderbolts," said the garrulous stranger.

"Well," replied the crusty old gentleman who was absorbed in a book, "the discovery means nothing to me. Let him hurl his thunderbolts. My name's not Ajax—it's Smith."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Literal.

Persistent Commercial Traveler—This time, sir, I have quite a new departure—.

Busy Manufacturer—Good! Let me see you do it.

Use 100% Pure Varnish and note how much better it wears, how long the brilliant lustre lasts, and how beautifully it brings out the grain of the wood. Varnishes adulterated with resin or benzine, or containing coloring matter, will not give the same results.

MARTIN'S 100% PURE VARNISH contains nothing but pure gums, oils and turpentine. Superior to paint in appearance and durability for floors and interior woodwork, refinishing tables, chairs and other furniture. A leading dealer in most communities can supply you. Write for name of dealer near you.

MARTIN VARNISH CO., Chicago, Ill.
Makers of 100% Pure Varnishes

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

Farmers, Attention!

I want immediately going farm or ranch in exchange for high-grade modern Chicago income property. Buildings valued from $15,000 to $800,000, with net income from $2,000 to $100,000 per year. Also business blocks up to $8,000,000. Write today.

GEORGE STEWART
29 S. La Salle CHICAGO

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

Round Trip for Single Fare Plus Two Dollars

Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month

A splendid opportunity is now offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to [illegible]

Western Canada's Farming Possibilities

[illegible]

JUNE

L 912

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Legal Publications

Notice Of Disposal Of Promissory Notes

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Town Trustees of the Incorporated Town of St. Joe, in DeKalb County, Indiana, will, from this date until the 15th day of July, 1922, at the office of the Town Clerk of said Town of St. Joe, Indiana, receive bids or offers for the disposal of promissory notes or evidences of indebtedness of said Town of St. Joe in the sum and amount of One Thousand Dollars, in the denominations, amounts and rates of interest and due as follows, to-wit:

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1923;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1924;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1925;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1926;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1927.

All said notes with interest at 5% per annum from date payable on the first day of each July hereafter until paid.

Said disposition and issue of said evidences of indebtedness will be for the purpose of securing funds for the repair of the streets in said Town of St. Joe. No offer will be considered for less than the full face value of said notes or evidences of indebtedness and the right to reject all offers is hereby reserved.

Wm. Curie, President of the Board of Town Trustees of the Town of St. Joe, Ind.
B. S. Sheffer, Town Clerk.
F. M. Monroe,
John Wineland, Board of Town Trustees.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2485

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the Estate of Rachel Jane Baker, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 1st day of July 1922, and show cause if any, why my Final Settlement of Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, My name, this 3d day of June 1922.

Alvey D. Perry, Administrator.
Life & Ridenour, Attorney.

Auburn—A. P. Kemp was selected as president of the Auburn Auto Company at a meeting of the directors June 14th., to take the place of M. Eckhart, the retiring president. Both Mr. Eckhart and Mr. Kemp have been connected with the company since its organisation in 1900 and have done much toward the success of the business.

THE
W. L.
DOUGLAS
SHOE

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	102	$ 4.44
M. P.	85	9.11
Lutheran	88	4 44
M. E. Spencer	94	6.14
Lutheran	94	3.63
Newville U. B.	91	4.00
Christian	81	3 72
Coburntown	74	2 77
Concord	42	2.06
Rehoboth	90	5.40
Mt. Pleasant	98	4.46

Local Briefs

Mrs. S. A. Able is visiting her niece, Mrs. Wilson Beaber, and husband, coming thhre Saturday.

Josephine Johnson of Adrian college, came home Tuesday evening to spend her summer vacation with her parents.

Rev. Bell of near Butler preached at the Cobern's Corners church Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Leighty and Mrs. Maude Jenkins were Fort Wayne visitors Monday.

F. H. Langley left Tuesday morning after spending over Sunday here with his wife, Mrs. Martea Driver.

George Berry returned home Tuesday evening after spending several days at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. E. Hatch, at Wayne.

Mrs. C. H. Sailer and daughter, Lauzerne, were guests of the former's brother, Frank Hettinger at Harlan Svnday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mickley, J. A. Mifl- and family of Fort Wayne, were Suuday ofternoon guests of William Randall and wife.

C. M. Thayer and wife of Worchester, Mass., and Charles Jackson and wife of Hicksville, were Thursday guests of Dr. B. S. Sheffer and wife.

W. E. Henley and family spent Sunday afternoon as guests of Robert Bailey at Braybrooks Corners.

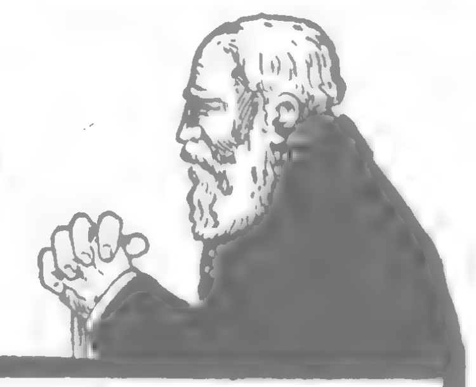
Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer and son Basil spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Knight near Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. J. P. Buckingham and brother, J. E. Folts, were called to Leipsie, Ohio, Sunday by the death of an uncle, Dr. George Baughman. The funeral was held Monday afternoon.

Mrs. T. H. Shull, daughter Doris and son Garth, Mrs. Cad Shull and daughter Nellie, A. M. Baker and wife and Ladey Gee were Sunday afternoon guests of Abner Trostell anp wife.

A complete surprise was given Sherman Wolff and wife, last Sunday, when thirty-three guests came in upon them to spend the day. The guests came with well filled baskets and a bounteous dinner was served. The day was spent in visiting, singing and listening to music on the violin and phonograph.

Alvah Coburn was called to Kendallville Saturday by the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Sell Gee. Others who went to see her Sunday were J. D. Milliman and wife and Mrs. Mattie Gee.



LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

TEN GREAT SELLING DAYS

Ten of the Greatest Value Days Ever Known at This Store

The country has been flooded with low priced cheap merchandise that ninety per cent of the men do not want at any price, but show us a man who does not want, and does not appreciate an opportunity to buy the BEST at a LOW PRICE.

For the Next Ten Days or Until July 4th

We will sell to you Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits, Wilson Bros. and Excello Shirts, Vassar, Wilson Bros. and B. V. D. Athletic Underwear and Wilson Bros. and Stag Brand Neckwear at prices that are almost unbelievable—prices that will make you wonder, until you see this high grade merchandise, if there isn't something wrong with it. Prices that will bring the good drssers to us from the cities eighty miles away. Prices that will make you all say, "This surely is The Store That Does Things."

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX
$25 and $35
SUITS

The cheapest Suit made by Hart, Schaffner & Marx retails at $35. During the next thirteen days you can find them here at $25, and over 800 of their $48 and $50 beautiful pure worsted Suits at

$35

We can give you extra Trousers with nearly all of these fine worsted Suits at $9 or $44 for Coat, Vest and two pair of Trousers.

1200 of our $30 to $50 Michaels-Stern Suits are marked at $18 $25 and $35.

SHIRTS

The cheapest Negligee Shirt made by the "Lion Brand Company" retails at $1.75. You can come here during the next thirteen days and get a good selection of patterns at

79c

Our entire stock of Wilson Bros.' $10 heavy Silk Shirts in crepes, jerseys and broad cloths at $6.50

50 dozen Wilson Bros.' $4.00 fibre striped Madras Shirts at $2.50

35 dozen of our fancy $7.50 and $8.50 Silk Shirts at $5.00

All of our $5.00 Silk Negligee Shirts at $3.75

The Buffalo collar attached Shirts in gray, tan and white at $1.50

OTHER BARGAINS

That Save You Extra Money

103 dozen imported corded border and linen 50c Handkerchiefs will be sold at 25c or $2.70 a dozen.

100 dozen large size Red Bandana Handkerchiefs, while they last, 5c each.

60 dozen 40c men's Mercerized Hose in black and colors—all sizes, 9½ to 11½—25c a pair or 6 pairs for $1.40.

50 dozen $1.50 Wilson Bros.' fine Muslin and Nainsook Night Shirts, long or short sleeves; button front or slip over style; white or colored trimmed—all sizes; special priced at 95c.

Genuine Belgium Fibre Knit Ties, 50c.

Sand, tan and silver gray Grenadine Ties, in plain colors, fancy back and fancy stripes, $1.00.

Silk Hose with lisle heel and toes—all colors, 50c.

20 dozen Wilson Bros.' 50c Lisle Suspenders with leather ends—while they last, 25c.

100 dozen $1.50, $1.00 and 75c Belts in sizes 30 and 32 ONLY. Take your choice, 39c.

Patterson - Fletcher Company

THE STORE THAT DOES THINGS [illegible] FORT WAYNE

JUNE

How Much Influence Have YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Sarah Koontz who has been visiting Frank Wise and wife, of Auburn, returned home Monday.

James Vallieu, wife and son James, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Millie Wise and family of Waterloo.

Samuel Betz and wife, and Emmitt Betz and family, of Springfield Center, were Sunday dinner guests of Joel Betz and wife.

Mrs. Florence Silberg, who was taken ill last Thursday, was taken to the Lutheran Hospital at Fort Wayne, Monday morning.

The Old School Reunion which was to have been held here this month has been postponed and will be held in connection with the Home Comming held here in Sept

Miss Fanny Vallieu is at home on her vacation for two weeks.

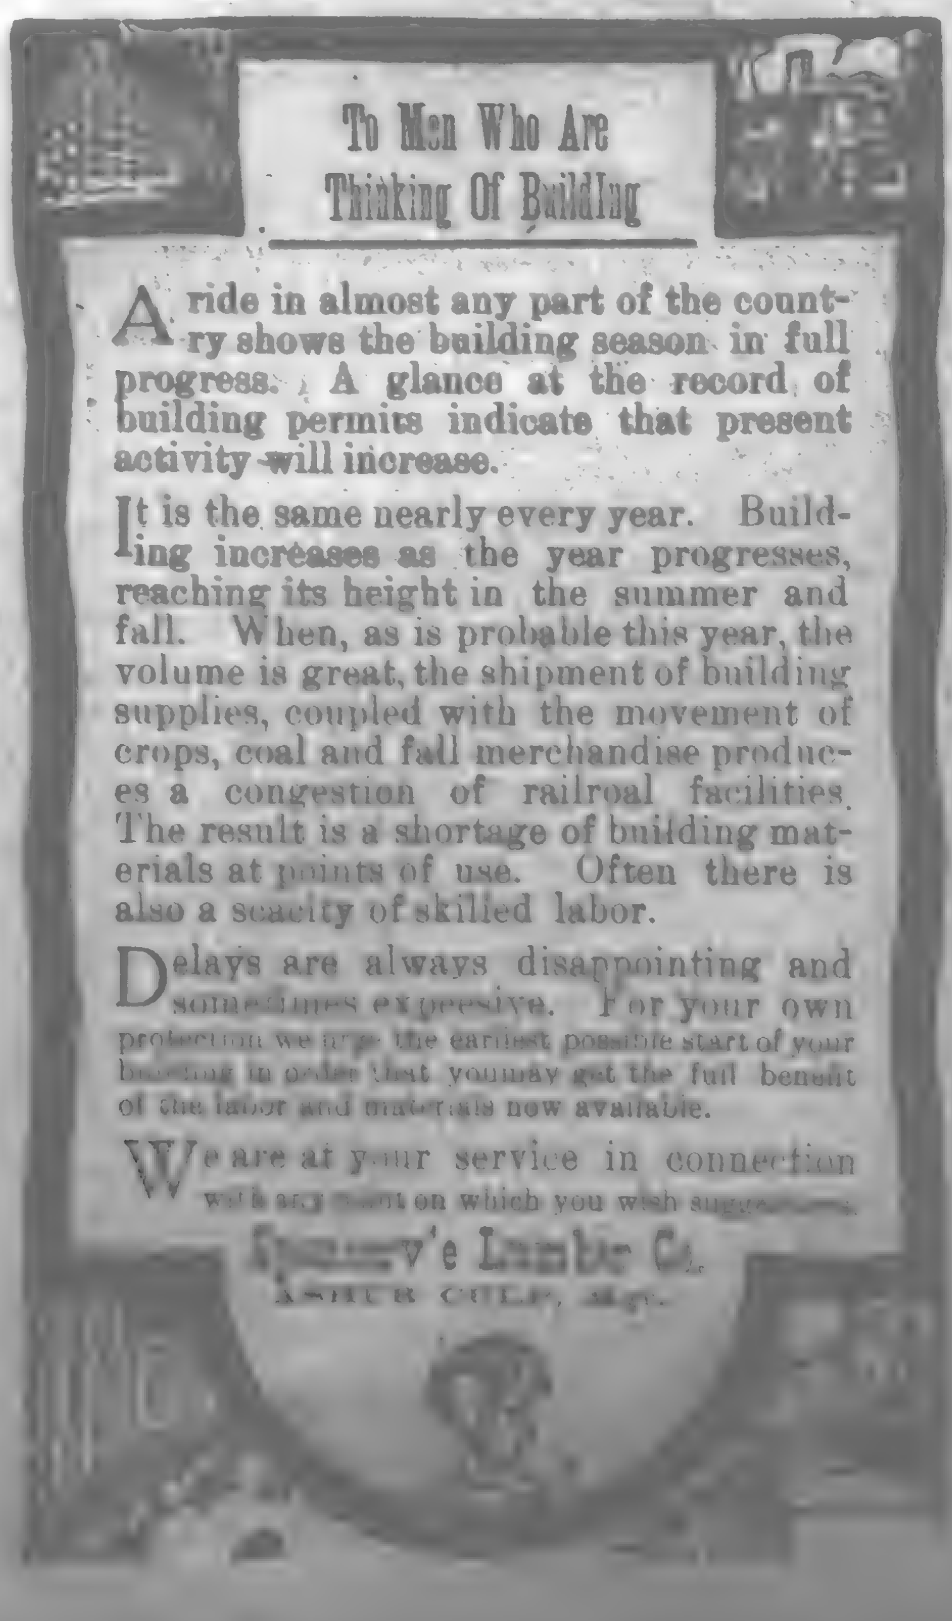
Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Don Kimes and wife, of South Bend, were over Sunday guests of their parents, Vern Wilmot and wife, and Harvey Kimes and wife.

Vernie Reed, and Chester Wolff and wife, of South Bend, spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents, Wm. Reed and family.

Mrs. Gertrude Markle and children, Mrs. Ethel Webb and daughters and Mort Shutt spent Sunday at Ft. Wayne visiting relatives.

The Misses Cleo Bowser and Elizabeth Thorne spent Sunday the guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Martin of Ft. Wayne. They left Monday to attend the Epworth League Convention at Bluffton. Miss Arminta Steward also left Monday to attend the convention.



To Men Who Are Thinking Of Building

A ride in almost any part of the country shows the building season in full progress. A glance at the record of building permits indicate that present activity will increase.

It is the same nearly every year. Building increases as the year progresses, reaching its height in the summer and fall. When, as is probable this year, the volume is great, the shipment of building supplies, coupled with the movement of crops, coal and fall merchandise produces a congestion of railroal facilities. The result is a shortage of building materials at points of use. Often there is also a scacity of skilled labor.

Delays are always disappointing and sometimes expeesive. For your own protection we urge the earliest possible start of your building in order that youmay get the full benefit of the labor and materials now available.

We are at your service in connection with any point on which you wish suggestions.

[illegible] Lumber Co.
ASHER COLE, Mgr.

OF BEAD-TRIMMED CREPE

When you go in quest of a new blouse keep in mind two phrases—"crepe de chine" and "over the skirt," and in all the displays you will find the blouses repeating them. There are many simple over-the-skirt styles similar to the pretty blouse shown here, and they invite the seamstress to try her hand at blouse making. This is made of a colored crepe, with white in the collar and cuffs, ornamented with stitching of silk floss and trimmed with beads.

DeKalb Voters Must Register in Fall

DeKalb county voters must register this fall if they wish to vote in the November election. There will be two registration days, Saturday, September 9th, and Monday, October 9th. The hours will be from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., and registration will be by precincts.

Voters may register in any one of the following ways:

1.—By appearing in person before the precinct registration board on one of the above mentioned days.

2.—By properly filling out registration blank before registration day, swearing to it before an officer authorized by law to administer oaths and having an official seal, or having it certified to by two voters residing in the registrant's precinct, and placing it in the hands of a voter residing in the registrant's precinct, who must deposit it with the precinct registration board on registration day.

3.—By mail, when proper registration papers have been sworn to before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths and having an official seal, or certified by two voters who reside in the registrant's precinct. If mailed, registration papers should be sent to the precinct registration board, in care of a member of the board, and should reach the board on registration day.

Men and women who will be 21 years of age on or before election day to be qualified to vote must register even though under voting age (21 years) during the registration period.

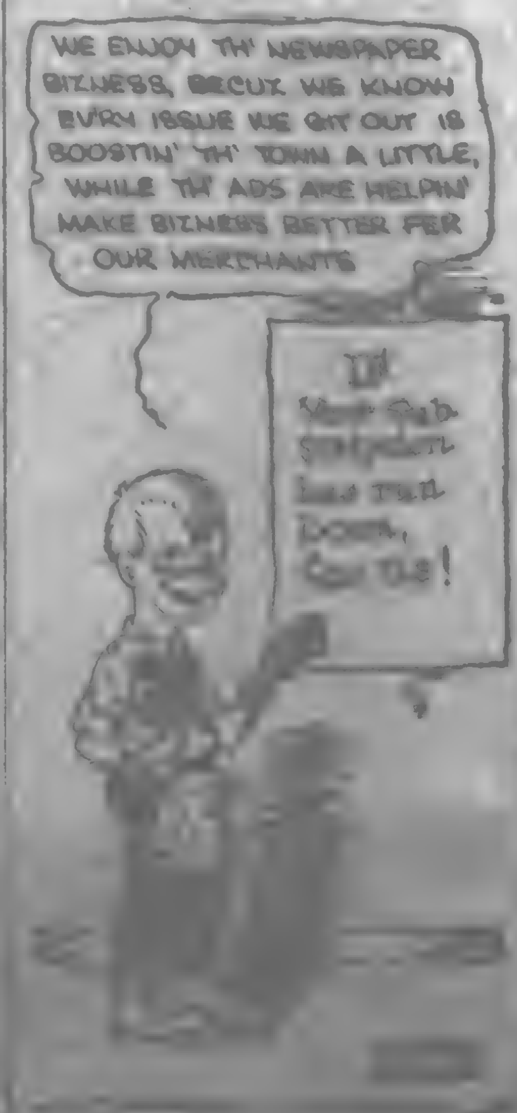
Full names should be given. Married women should sign "Mrs. Mary Smith." All voters should give exact age, as "I was thirty years old November 15, 1921."

Only full fledged American citizens, either by birth or naturalization on election day can vote. A foreigner who will be fully naturalized in court by election day can register on the first registration day, but not on the second registration day.

Any absent voter must be properly registered in his voting precinct before he can cast a vote.

An absent elector, under the Indiana law, is any qualified elector of the state of Indiana, having duly registered, when such registration is required, who by reason of illness or the nature of his business or other unavoidable cause, is absent or expects to be absent from the county in which he is a qualified elector on the day of holding any general, special or primary election, or who, because of illness, may be unable to attend the polls.

MICKIE SAYS



WE ENJOY TH' NEWSPAPER BIZNESS, BECUZ WE KNOW EV'RY ISSUE WE GIT OUT IS BOOSTIN' TH' TOWN A LITTLE, WHILE TH' ADS ARE HELPIN' MAKE BIZNESS BETTER FER OUR MERCHANTS

Christian Church Notes

Rev. R. B. Daily returned home Saturday from attending the State Sunday school convention at Evansville the past week. He brought home an excellent report which he gave in part Sunday morning. One thing in particular which he told made the members of the St. Joe Christian Sunday school proud, and that was the fact that the school was reported as one of the best in average attendance for the number enrolled.

The Martha Society will meet next Thursday all day with Mrs. Nellie Lindley, to quilt. A pot luck dinner will be served. A good attendance is desired.

The Loyal Boys and Girls Class was banner in attendance Sunday having twenty present. They will hold their regular class meeting Friday afternoon with Miss Violet Dermott. The class is asked to be at the church at 1:30 p. m. at latest.

The ladies realized about $12.00 at their cake sale Saturday for which they thank all those helping in any way. Another will be given Saturday, July first, at the same place.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Barbara Moody, who had the distinction of being the first female white child born in DeKalb county, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Zent in Fort Wayne, Friday morning at 4 o'clock, after a long illness. One male white child had been born in the county previous to Mrs. Moody's birth.

Mrs. Martha Driver and son Andray of LaGrange stopped here a short time Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Price and Mr. and Mrs. Saxe Hadsell. They were here attending the funeral of William Driver held Sunday at Scipio.

B. V. Widney and wife, of Albion came Saturday evening, the former returning Monday while his wife will remain for the week here with her mother, Mrs. Alice Copp, during Mr. Widney's stay at LaFayette where he is attending a County Agents Course.

R. L. Driver, Don Driver, Dan Myers and family, and Mrs. Ora Wilmot attended the funeral of the former's brother, William Driver, held at Scipio, Sunday. The former returned home with a son, Carl Driver, to Napoleon for an indefinite visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Benninghoff, Jr. and little son of Fort Wayne, were Saturday and Sunaay guests, Osro Richey and family of Hamilton, were Sunday guests and the Misses Beulah Lawson, Edna Griffith and Treisa Beale and Sam Brooks of Angola, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bowman and daughter, Dorothy.

Mrs. Alice Warner and Mrs. F. H. Langley attended the wedding of Miss Bonnie Seiler and Mr. Herbert Honey, which took place at Auburn, Wednesday morning, and were guests at the wedding breakfast, which was sevred at 10:30. The young couple will make their new home in Hartford City.

Warning to Reckless Drivers.

There is a state law prohibiting fast and careless driving on town or city streets and this law is being violated in St Joe by a nnmber of different auto drivers. And while there has been nothing said by the officials to the town marshall will prompt him to take some action.

Now the editor was put wise to the intentions of the town board of arresting these violators and he is just taking this opportunity to put them next. So take warning and drive using a little sense and respect for the safety of others and yourself. Drive slow and turn around only at the street corner.

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

Henry Ford

HENRY FORD was 35 years getting ready for the new price on the Fordson. He started as a farm boy, planning to get rid of the drudgery, long hours and low money return that has always faced the farmer.

He wanted to furnish you with a tractor that would not only do your work better and faster, but at lower costs—and the 170,000 Fordsons now in use have proved that he has accomplished these things.

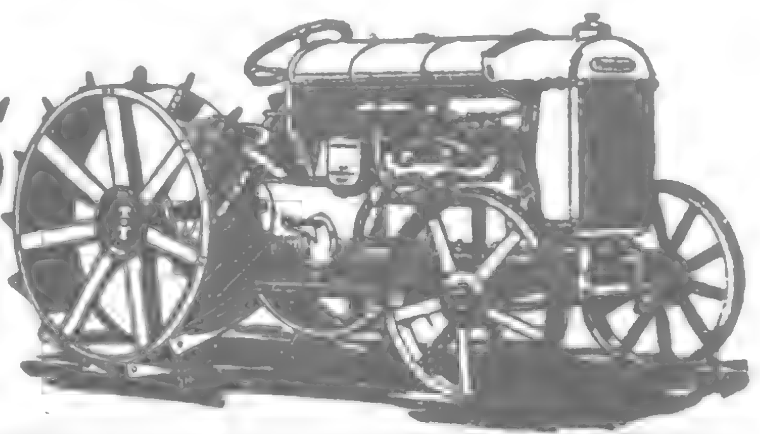
What you get in the Fordson for $395 f. o. b. Detroit is the greatest farm power unit ever offered.

Let us show you how a Fordson will cut farm costs, increase your bank account and take the drudgery out of farm work. Write, phone or call.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

$395 F.O.B. DETROIT



NEWVILLE

Clare Hilbert, wife and little son, of Hicksville, were guests of Dave Griests', a few days last week.

Levitis Reed and wife spent Sunday afternoon at Hicksville.

Mrs. Mary Mitchell returned to her employment at Bluffton after a ten days visit with her son.

Mrs. Sarah King, of Auburn, was the guest of her brother, Harvey Harter and family, a part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberry and son, of near Butler, were Sunday afternoon visitors of Burl Rude and wife.

Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff is suffering with cancer, she is at the home of her daughter Mrs. Burl Ensor, and is quite poorly.

Mrs. Susie Rex and granddaughter, of Chicago, came last week and are occupying Mrs. Rex's old home, where they expect to spend the summer.

Children's Day will be observed next Sunday at the U. B. Church immediately after Sunday School.

Mrs. Minnie Welker is keeping house for her father, this week, while her mother is visiting a daughter, Mrs. Emma Morningstar at Napoleon, Mich.

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL

SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
MENS AND BOYS' OUTFITTERS
Calhoun Street
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JUNE

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

—16—

"Good 'nough for 'er!" gasped Polly, tensely, rolling her hands in her apron.

"An' she yelled so hard you could've heard her near to Ithaca, Poll," moaned Larry. "Me an' Lye gagged 'er."

"Holy smut!" fell from Pollyop, as the picture his words had made burned itself across her mind.

"Her man's been gone all day to Cortland," continued the squatter in a monotone. "Lye found out Old Miss Robertson's been tryin' to reach hold of him."

"Hope she don't!" interjected Polly. "Not till we get done with his woman. Are you goin' to tote her over here?"

The man nodded.

"Don't dare to till later, when the squatters is in bed," he answered, slapping on his cap. "If—if you change your mind, Poll, come along over; an' I'll cut 'er loose an' let 'er go."

A harsh sound, something like a chuckle of malicious satisfaction, slipped through Polly's lips and stopped the man at the door.

"That ain't no ways likely, Larry," she said huskily. "Bring 'er here, an' when I'm done with her, she'll have to be took."

She caught Bishop by the arm, whirling him around.

"An' listen, Larry," she continued with cruel emphasis, "an' all the time keep rememberin' how Betty wailed her life into the grave, an'—an' that Old Marc done it."

Overcome by the words she had thrown at him so deliberately, Bishop flung away, and the girl, quaking at what was about to happen, heard him running along the shore toward his shack.

It seemed to Polly Hopkins that every minute was an hour long, and every second filled with intolerable anxiety. Would the soft-hearted Larry repent and surrender the prize she longed to get her fingers on?

In extreme nervousness she went from one thing to another, never finishing what she began. She paced the hut floor until she was dripping wet with apprehensiveness. She had no means of knowing when Lye and Larry would come; so she dared not stir from the shack.

Many times she shoved aside the window blind and looked out. But the world outside was wrapped in a white silence. She could not even glimpse the peaked roof of a fisherman's hut, for between her and the Silent City was a flowing curtain of snow, the flakes falling like feathers from an open bag.

Larry would keep his word, she told herself over and over. She was glad it was such a night! The better could the squatters carry out their death plan.

Unnoticed by the girl, the wood burned to embers in the stove, and the hut grew colder by degrees. In one of her half hours of measuring the shanty's length, she halted, breathing on her frost-bitten fingers. She drew about her shoulders the blanket which had covered Wee Jerry in his hut days.

Her mind brought back to the baby away off in some unknown place, she cried weakly as she replenished the fire. Had the wicked ones of the earth made Jerry forget Daddy Hopkins who up in Auburn was ignorant of his whereabouts? Many times Polly had taken up her pencil to write him of the child, but it always dropped from her fingers before it reached the paper. Daddy could not do anything; and she would not add to his heavy burden.

She was at the stove, her cold, stiff fingers spread over it, when the sound of footsteps outside sent her headlong to the door. Appallingly terrified, she dragged it open.

Then, in deadening silence, Lye Braeger and Larry Bishop carried a large bundle through the doorway and threw it down on Polly's bed.

Heavy-lidded, the girl gazed upon it, her eyes widening in joy, joy at the thought of Old Marc's misery; joy at the thought of getting even. The frightful emotion that surged through her bore relation only by contrast to the delights of a few months back, when her willing legs had trotted the country over to help every one that needed her. It wasn't the same Polly at all. This Polly lifted her foot and kicked the bundle none too lightly.

"We had a h—l of a time gettin' 'er here, Poll," growled Lye Braeger. "Gawdie it's like if a million crazy [illegible] Marc's wife. He's home too, so Lye says!"

[illegible]

"What do I care where the pup is?" she thrust in vehemently. "'Course she's a woman! So be I; an' so were your dead Betsy."

Then she stamped her foot tempestuously.

"Get out of here an' watch for MacKenzie an' his folks," she snapped. "It's about time he were stormin' the Silent City, I'm thinkin'."

Roughly she shoved the men out into the blizzard and closed the door. Then she stood with her back to it, deep sobs racking her body.

Now as she had almost died, and Wee Jerry too, so would Marcus MacKenzie. The vicious hope that she could see him writhe in his grief took possession of her.

Distraughtly she placed the bar across the door, making sure it was locked. Then, creeping to the cot, she gazed down at the wet bundle. There, where she had helped Oscar Bennett over dark rough places into the light of Eternity, lay the dearest dear of her bitterest enemy.

She uttered an exclamation when she saw a lifting shudder go over the thing on the bed. A smile flitted across her face, and her hands came together convulsively.

Slowly she knelt down and unwrapped the thick blanket; and Evelyn MacKenzie was staring out at her, dull eyed and terrified. A dark rag completely filled her mouth; and Polly grinned at her.

"Do you know what squatters do to chickens they swipe from you rich folks?" she asked huskily.

Although she could not speak, Evelyn heard and understood. She closed her eyes, her face going drabber in the flickering light, but at a sound the weary lids flew open again.

Polly had stepped to the wood-box and was picking up the ax. She brought it forward, and smiling the same sinister smile, showed it to the pallid girl.

"This," was all she said, tapping the handle.

Evelyn struggled; and Polly laughed, a wicked laugh, no more like the ripple which Daddy Hopkins had loved to hear than the bark of a wolf is like the lark's morning song.

Tears rose into Evelyn's eyes and rolled down her cheeks. The smile faded slowly from Polly's face. Ever had excruciating agony touched her; like a sunbeam through a rift in a storm cloud, the old Polly leaped up to take heed of another's hurt. This feeling she crushed down; but she put the ax on the floor and squatted beside the bed.

Scarcely had she done this before a loud knock came on the door. She threw the blankets over Evelyn and went swiftly forward and lifted the bar.

Larry Bishop thrust the upper half of his body into the room.

"Old Marc an' his gang are in the Silent City lookin' for his woman," he whispered hoarsely.

"Where's Lye?" came in a hiss from the squatter girl.

"Off up the road watching," returned Bishop. "What'd you do to 'er, brat?"

"Come in," said Polly, in an undertone, grasping the end of his scarf and pulling him through the doorway.

"This," Was All She Said, Tapping the Handle.

[illegible]

"Keep settin'," breathed Pollyop. "They'll be stoppin' here fast enough!"

Of a sudden the door burst open, and Marcus MacKenzie, covered with snow, entered. With him were two of his neighbors and several squatters.

Polly enjoyed a glimpse of Old Marc's agonized face; then she grinned at him.

"What's the matter, mister?" she asked, showing an expanse of even white teeth. "What do you mean by bustin' into my house like this, sir?"

MacKenzie threw a glance from the girl to the squatter in the chair.

"My wife's gone!" he cried in desperation. "I—I—"

"So? Now is she?" broke in Polly, smiling wider. "You don't say! Well, golly me! That's too bad. Some other feller run off with 'er—mebbe!"

And when she saw him trying to master his emotion, forcing back the heavy groans that interfered with his efforts to answer, she laughed. Never before had she been reckless in his presence. She knew this was one time Marcus MacKenzie did not want to fight. He needed the help of the squatters to search the Storm country for his wife—his bride, the very apple of his eye.

He did not look at all like the flashing-eyed enemy of her people. All at once he had changed from a cynical, handsome man of the world to a pleading, pale-faced husband.

Just then the wind shook the shanty violently; and over his big frame passed shudder after shudder.

"She's been gone, oh God, I don't know how long," he groaned aloud, the haggard expression deepening in the lines about his mouth as he spoke. "I'll give—I'll give more money than any of you ever saw—" He flung around on Bishop and thrust out an importunate hand.

Larry had been watching him covertly, in moody silence. When Marcus addressed him directly, he threw back his head and let out loud malevolent sounds more like the howls of hyenas than the laugh of a human being; and Polly Hopkins joined in again, too, dreadful sounds that made her thin, lovely face look old.

"This is a queer place to come for your woman," she taunted MacKenzie. "To a squatter's shack, huh? I didn't know before that rich women came to the Silent City, least of all, yourn."

MacKenzie took a step toward her.

"Oh, I was sure she wasn't here," he thrust in eagerly. "But I want help—the aid of every one of you. Money," he cried again, convulsively. "Money, do you hear? Money, I said—"

Polly was witnessing just the picture that she had been holding in her mind's eye for many days.

"Money can't buy everything, mister," she jeered at him. "Mebbe your woman's in the snow. Tomorrow's Thanksgivin' day. Mebbe you'll miss 'er if she ain't home with you. Scoot out of here. Don't be laggin', Old Marc, or she might freeze to death somewheres. It's a bad night."

The last statement, true to every word, brought a deep sob from MacKenzie's throat. It was immediately followed by more of the bitter laughter.

So changed was Polly of the Silent City that the gaping squatters who did not know what was going to happen wondered at her. They knew her no longer as Polly, the love-lass, or as Polly of the Sun.

A low rumble sounded in the girl's throat. She coughed, then flung out:

"I said, it's a bad night!' Scoot out, mister, an' look for your d—n lily-livered woman somewheres else."

Uttering an oath, MacKenzie fled, followed by his companions, leaving Larry Bishop staring at the pale squatter girl.

CHAPTER XV.

There was gloomy silence in the shanty until the horses' hoofs could be heard no longer in the snow outside. Larry Bishop crouched low in Jeremiah's rocking chair, pulling in nervous tension at his fingers until the joints cracked. He shot Polly Hopkins a furtive glance but dropped [illegible] before the unearthly expression in the girl's eyes. She had [illegible] look of heavenly compassion [illegible] had grown closer to the squatters. [illegible]

"God, kid," he growled, "you don't seem human no more. It's all so d—d terrible I'm gettin' haunted. If you change your mind, Poll, an' not kill 'er—"

A gurgling noise came from under the pillows on the cot, and as if an unseen hand were pushing her forward, Pollyop strode to the bed and jerked away the small feather ticks.

Evelyn's eyes sought out the squatter man in mute pleading. Polly laughed; and gray with horror at her merciless attitude, Larry slunk to the door.

"I guess this ain't none of my business," he mumbled, and opening it, he fled as if pursued by a vindictive spirit of the Storm country.

Again with swift, long strides the girl went to the door and barred it. Then with utmost deliberation she lighted several other candles and set them in different parts of the hut until a flood of light was diffused through the room.

A long deep sigh fell from her lips as she finished her task. She wanted to see every wave of pain that shot across Evelyn MacKenzie's pallid face; and that was why she approached the cot and stood looking down upon the twisted figure.

All she had endured through the rich girl's perfidy swept over her like a tidal wave. Out of the dark dream of Jerry's going she could hear through the moaning willows the weird last cries of the baby. The memory almost drew a shriek from her. Then she rolled the living bundle from the bed and propped it into a sitting position.

He Fled as if Pursued by a Vindictive Spirit of the Storm Country.

As wickedly deliberate as her every act had been, so did she lift the ax from the floor.

"Like a chicken," she taunted, smiling down into Evelyn's haggard face.

Evelyn struggled, and a muffled sound came from back of the gag in her mouth.

While Polly contemplated her, an emotion she used to know so often rose within her and tugged at her heart until the hurt made her clutch at her side. She dropped down and ran her fingers under the heavy cord with which the girl was bound.

"Rope's hurtin' you, huh?" she queried.

An affirmative bob of her head was the only answer Mrs. MacKenzie could give.

"I'll undo 'em a bit," said Polly sulkily. "Loosenin' up a few strings don't say you won't get what's comin' to you."

With her strong, white teeth and deft fingers she untied the heavy knots that pinioned the slender arms.

"Did the squatters give you anything to eat?" she asked, rocking back on her heels. "If you was in Larry's hut so long with that thing in your mouth, then I bet you're hungry!"

It was scarcely perceptible, the negative shake that followed this question.

"If you've got to die you might as well go on a full belly," ended Polly, getting up.

She took a piece of hard bread and poured some hot water on it. Watching Evelyn frowningly, she beat them together with a tin spoon. Of course, the stuff was tasteless without sugar! Polly knew it very well, because that was what she had for supper every night.

She turned away from the cup in her hand and went to a small cupboard over which hung a flimsy curtain. [illegible] a few old dishes she had [illegible] sugar one of the [illegible] had given her. [illegible]

DALTONS AND THEIR LEGACY

The Story of What Happened When the City Called and the Country Called Back Again

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE legacy amounted to ten thousand dollars, and coming as it did from a little known, scarcely remembered relative it seemed even more unreal than the man who had bequeathed it.

"Now we can leave the farm," exulted Mrs. Dalton.

"Why, Sarah, do—do you think that is quite—wise?" asked her husband.

"Wise? Of course it is!" she returned decidedly. "Why, Caleb, don't you know?—we've always wanted to go to the city; and Cousin John said he'd give you a place in his store any time, so you'll earn something to start with right away. We never dared to before, you know, for you wa'n't sure how you'd do; but now we've got all this money we shan't have to worry a mite. Oh, isn't it just splendid, Caleb?"

"Yes; but—" he hesitated.

"But there isn't any 'but,' Caleb," laughed Sarah, and turned to a boy of twelve and a girl of fourteen who entered the room at that moment. "We've got it all settled, children. We're going to Boston, sure, this fall."

"Oh, mother!"—Ethel's hands came together in ecstasy, while Fred whooped in glee.

"There, Caleb, I told you how it would be," smiled Mrs. Dalton as the door banged behind Fred; then, anxiously: "You wouldn't want to spoil it all, now, would you?"

"N-no; but—no, no, of course not," murmured Caleb.

This was in August. By the middle of September such household goods as the Daltons had planned to take with them were packed, burlapped, crated and labeled. It had been Mrs. Dalton's idea to sell the rest of the furniture on the farm at auction, but just here she encountered an unexpected but stubborn resistance from her husband. Consequently, the remainder of the goods were stored in the attic, and the farm was rented until the first of May.

"Oh Come, Now, That Ain't Going to Do, You Know."

"Cousin John" in Boston had received the news of their intended coming with cordial interest, and had already procured for them a six-room apartment in Roxbury; and it was in his thriving market and grocery store on Warren avenue that Caleb was to have a position as clerk.

Some weeks later when Mrs. Dalton saw her new home, she didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

"Why, Caleb, I—I can't breathe—the rooms are so small!" she gasped.

Getting settled was a wonderful experience.

At last the tiny "parlor" with its mirror-adorned mantel and showy gas fixtures—the pride of Sarah's heart—was in order; and, after that, Sarah made sure each day that three o'clock found her dressed in her best and sitting in solemn state in that same parlor waiting for the calls that were [illegible] overdue.

[illegible] passed, and her patience was [illegible] save for a sharp ring [illegible] agent, and an[illegible]

[illegible]

"Why, how funny!" she murmured.

Three days later the two ladies again met at the outer door.

"Oh, how d'ye do? Nice day, ain't it?" began Sarah, hurriedly. "You you live here, don't you?"

"Why—yes," said the woman, smiling a little.

"I do, too—on the top floor.

"I—I'm all settled, now," announced Sarah, stumbling over the words a little.

"Is that so?" returned the woman politely, but without enthusiasm.

Sarah nodded.

"Yes, all ready for callers. I—I hope you'll come soon," she finished with sudden courage.

"Thank you; you are very kind," murmured the woman, as she smiled and turned away.

The tall woman did not call, and Sarah never asked her again. A few words from Cousin John's wife at about this time opened Sarah's eyes and taught her not to expect to become acquainted with her neighbors.

Sarah was not the only member of the family who had found trials by the way. Ethel and Fred had entered school, and at first they came home each afternoon with woeful faces. New methods of study, recitation, discipline, and even of recreation puzzled and frightened them.

To Caleb, the city was a thing of noise, hurry and more people than he had thought existed. Early and late he worked in the store.

"I don't like it," he would say sometimes to his wife; "I don't like it, Sarah."

December, January, February and March passed; and the first of April brought a letter from the lessee of the farm asking if he was to have the place through the summer.

"Of course he can have it," declared Sarah. "Just as if we wanted it again!"

"Yes, yes, of course," murmured Caleb. "I—I'll write later on.

It was an early, and a wonderfully beautiful spring that year.

Sarah grew restless indoors.

Downstairs, on each side of the big front door was a square-yard patch of puny, straggling grass; and it was these two bits of possibilities that put a happy thought into Sarah's head. She bought a trowel and some flower seeds and set resolutely to work. She had dug the trowel into the earth four times, and was delightedly sniffing the odor from the moist earth when the janitor appeared.

"Did ye lose something, ma'am?" he asked suspiciously.

"Lose something?" laughed the woman. "Of course not! I've found something, William. I've found a flower bed. I'm going to have the prettiest one ever was."

"'T won't do, ma'am,—'t won't, really, now. I'm sorry, but the boss won't stand it."

It was that night that Caleb brought out the paper and pen to write the letter which would lease the farm for another six months. Twice he dipped his pen in the ink, and paused with no word written. Finally he spoke.

"I—I'm going to give him some hints, Sarah. He won't know how to run some of the things, I'm sure. If he should plant the meadow lot to potatoes, now, it——"

"And, Caleb," cut in Sarah, "be sure and send word to his wife about the roses; if she don't spray 'em real early, the bugs and worms will get an awful start.

There was another long silence, broken this time by the children's entrance.

"Mother," began Fred discontentedly, "don't they ever go fishing down here, or swimming, or anything?"

Sarah sprang to her feet with a nervous little laugh.

"Caleb, we—we might go up home just for—for a visit," she said.

"Hurrah!—let's!" crowed Fred, and Ethel clapped her hands.

It was a jubilant four that left the North station a few days later, and it was a still more jubilant four that arrived in the village at the foot of the green hills.

"Oh, don't it look splendid and roomy!" cried Sarah, as they reached the turn where they could see the farm-house. "And don't the air smell good!"

Just at dusk on the third day Caleb found his wife in the old summer-house. Wrapped in shawls, she was fastening vines to the trellis.

"Well, Sarah, I—I s'pose I'd better settle up with West, now. I hain't yet, you know."

Sarah nodded, without speaking.

[illegible] first-rate, [illegible] but— [illegible] doubts of West. I—I [illegible] handle them myself."

[illegible]

GAINS 8 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS' TIME

Dyspepsia Entirely Overcome and She Eats, Sleeps and Feels Better Than in Years, Says Boston Resident.

"I have actually gained eight pounds in two weeks' time and am now eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in three or four years," said Mrs. Celesta Fell, 32 Prince street, Boston, Mass., recently, in telling of the great benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such a bad fix before I took Tanlac that I did not dare eat much of anything, for if I did I would have so much pain and distress from indigestion that I felt like I was going to die. I was so run down and weak from lack of nourishment that I could not do my housework.

"I was so nervous I couldn't keep still during the day nor sleep at night. I can see now if it had not been for Tanlac I would have had to give up entirely. I am now feeling strong and healthy and all the credit belongs to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

The Common Conversation.

"So you want to put a radio outfit in Crimson Gulch?"

"That's the idea," answered the affable stranger. "You can sit down of an evening and hear what's goin' on for miles around."

"That wouldn't interest anybody much. All we'd be likely to hear fur miles around would be 'gimmie three cards' or 'that's good,' or such remarks."—Washington Star.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

The Situation.

"Daughter, I forbid you marrying this man. He hasn't a dollar in the world."

"Well, dad, if he hasn't a dollar he can't get a license."

Cuticura for Pimply Faces.

To remove pimples and blackheads smear them with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Once clear keep your skin clear by using them for daily toilet purposes. Don't fail to include Cuticura Talcum. Advertisement.

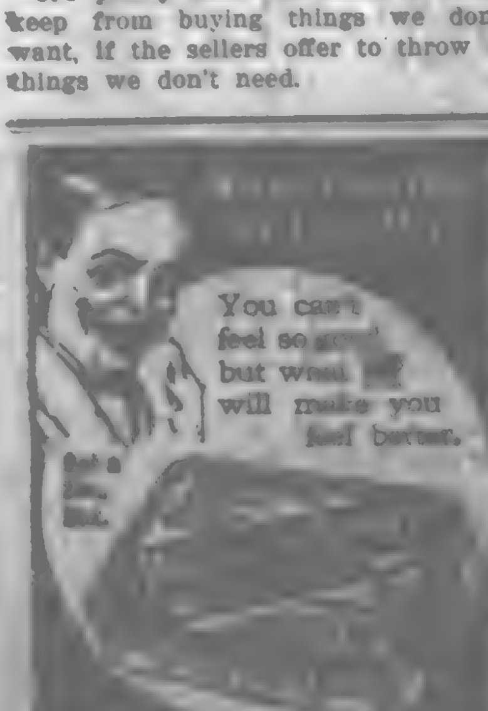
Girl Wins Oxford Honors.

Miss Jessie H. Fleming, the first woman to secure the Arnold essay prize at Oxford university, shares her distinction with some students who have become famous, including the late Lord Bryce and the late Professor Dicey.

Every department of housekeeping needs Red Cross Ball Blue. Equally good for kitchen towels, table linen, sheets and pillowcases, etc.—Advertisement.

Tempting Bargain.

It's pretty hard for most of us to keep from buying things we don't want, if the sellers offer to throw in things we don't need.



You can't feel so good but wearing will make you feel better.

Radio Tubes

[illegible]

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Indianapolis.—Notices that 28 Hoosier schoolhouses are unfit because of insanitary, or other reasons, for the housing of children, are being prepared by the state board of health. The notices direct attention of interested school authorities to laws which prescribe proper school conditions and to laws which do not permit school to be held in unfit and insanitary places. In each instance, says Dr. John N. Hurty, state health commissioner, the action resulted from written petitions from school patrons requesting the state health department to investigate conditions complained of. In some instances work already is under way toward improving conditions.

Terre Haute.—One hundred and fifty striking union coal miners, who marched on the Thomas Wright mine near Clinton a few days ago with the intention of persuading men employed there to quit work, were repulsed by a force of armed guards at the shaft. Permission also was denied to converse with the men at work. When the raiders were convinced they could not accomplish their purpose without a clash they withdrew their forces, but warned the mine owners they were determined the mine should be closed, and that on their next visit, which would be soon, they would come prepared to meet any opposition offered.

Indianapolis.—Here's a good word for the English sparrow. Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, says they do a lot toward keeping down the snow-white linen moth which defoliates trees. Mr. Wallace said the pest is working among forest and other trees along White river and Fall creek, north and northeast of Indianapolis. He said the ravages of the moth extend into Hamilton, Hancock and Madison counties and probably east to the state line. Blackbirds also regard the moth larvae a choice food. Mr. Wallace said sparrows are not as numerous as they were 20 years ago.

Monticello.—Assessed valuation of real estate and improvements for taxation is lower this year than in 1921, according to an announcement made by the White county assessor. In 1921 the average assessed value of both land and improvements in the county was $124.45, the assessed valuation of land being $116.80 an acre. This year the valuation has dropped to $99.87, the average of the land an acre being $24.58. The reduction in the county this year will make a considerable loss in the amount of taxes collected on real estate.

Warsaw.—A collection totaling $147,525 was taken recently at the annual general conference of the Church of the Brethren at Winona Lake. The money came from delegates of the various churches in all parts of the United States and is the annual offering for foreign missions. A large proportion of the collection was in currency and the sheriff of Kosciusko county supplied an armed guard of deputies to protect the church messengers as they took the big offering to Warsaw for deposit in banks.

South Bend.—In Mishawaka it is a serious offense for a member of the National Guard of Indiana to miss a drill without a legitimate excuse. This has been forcibly impressed on Joseph Fusdick, twenty-one, who is now serving a sentence of 15 days in jail, following a plea of guilty to missing drills on 11 occasions. The arrest and trial of Fusdick was brought about under the sixty-first article of war, which governs National Guard organizations.

Valparaiso.—Assessments of both real estate and personal property in Porter county, as returned by tax assessors, show a loss in nearly every township. Only a few townships show a gain in real estate valuations, while only one is included in the gain column in the personal property line. A state tax representative said the assessment in Porter county was one of the lowest in the state.

Richmond.—On the petition of stockholders, representing about 50 per cent of the capitalization, Judge William A. Bond of the Wayne Circuit court named Clarence Kleinknecht receiver for the Glen Miller sanitorium here. The business will be carried on under the supervision of the receiver. The liabilities were given as $16,000.

Indianapolis.—The state highway department announced the awarding of 80 bridge work contracts in seven counties. Eight contractors took the jobs for $85,800, which is $24,862 less than the engineer's estimates of $110,662.

Bedford.—Mrs. Mary Jane Gillen, sixty-five years old, said to be the only woman in Indiana to have made the sacrifice of [illegible] three sons in the World war, is dead at her home in [illegible].

[illegible]

Newcastle.—Twins, singly and in pairs, ranging in age from eighty-two years to four months, attended the third annual meeting and picnic at Memorial park here a few days ago. Nine counties were represented and it was the biggest gathering of twins since the start of the organization. The oldest twins present were Mrs. Julia Rader of Daleville and Mrs. Joannah Van Matre of Muncie. These sisters are eighty-two years old. The youngest twins were Ruth and Ruby Worl of this city, age four months. Sam and George Young of Rushville, age seventy-five, were the oldest men twins present. Fifty-one pairs and nineteen single twins attended the event.

Petersburg.—Work on the construction of $275,000 worth of improved highways in Pike county will start at once. The state board of tax commissioners has agreed to the bond issues, and attorneys for the bonding companies who bought the bonds have passed on the issues. One hundred men and teams will be put to work on the different road systems that are scattered in the three commissioners' districts in the county. About thirty-five miles of roads will be built. Much rock and gravel is being placed on the state highway between Petersburg and Winslow, and widening of the highway to 60 feet has started.

Terre Haute.—Members of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators' association, which has its headquarters in Terre Haute, have been busy for several days formulating a course of action in connection with the present nation-wide strike of union miners that began April 1. While no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the organization is considering a fundamental change in its policies and that this may lead to a withdrawal from the organization of operators in the central competitive field. The field includes Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

Anderson.—The eighteenth annual convention of the Indiana Branch of the National Stationary Engineers, at which 300 visitors were present, closed here with the selection of Indianapolis as the place for the 1923 meeting and the election of the following officers: President, F. L. Clifford, Kokomo; vice president, H. C. Carroll, Indianapolis; secretary, H. V. Wallace, Anderson; treasurer, B. G. Heager, Evansville; conductor, F. L. Ray, Anderson; doorkeeper, Frank Griswold, Anderson; state deputy, F. L. Nell, Evansville.

Goshen.—The Elkhart county council has approved a road-building program which will require an issue of $347,200 in bonds to put a hard surface on six highways in the vicinity of Elkhart and Goshen. The program includes an all-paved route from Goshen and Elkhart to Lake Wawasee. Plans made by the county commissioners for using gravel on several roads have been abandoned. Goshen and Elkhart interests, which have been in opposition on road-building questions, have agreed to work in harmony.

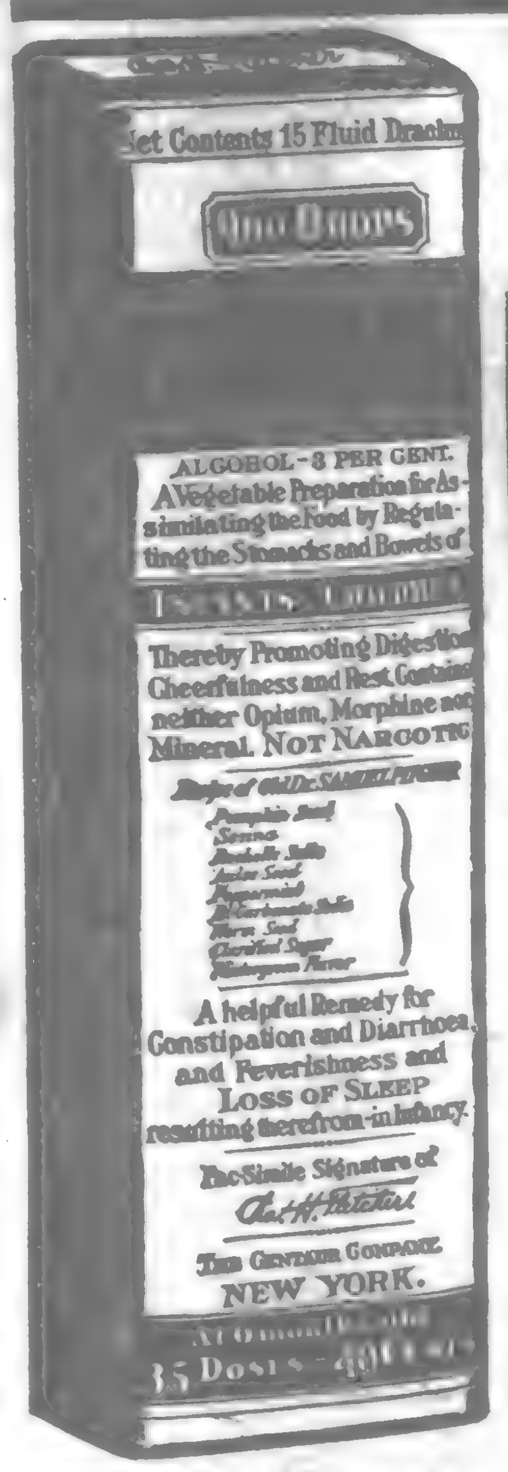
Anderson.—Local manufacturers assert that a steady improvement in business continues and that they are approaching a point where they face a shortage of skilled men. Working forces are being increased frequently and it is believed that industrial conditions will soon be normal. In the various factories more persons are on pay rolls than for any time in the last three years. It is asserted that business is 50 per cent better than two years ago and almost 100 per cent better than in 1921.

Greencastle.—More than 125,000 small fish were placed in Putnam county waters recently by the Putnam County Fish and Game Protective association. The fish were sent in 20 large cans in a truck by the state department of conservation from the Riverside hatcheries. They included 100,000 large mouth black bass, 5,000 small mouth bass, 1,000 crappies, 5,000 bluegills and 15,000 ring perch. They went into Big Walnut, Little Walnut and Deer creeks.

Fort Wayne.—Alfred W. Trinklein of Concordia college, in this city, is the model exponent of punctuality at this institution. In the six years that he has attended the college he has not missed a class, has not been reprimanded once and has never been late, although he had to "punch the clock" five times on each school day during the six years. Mr. Trinklein is a member of the senior class.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray has appointed William Johnson of Vincennes to serve on the commission, recently selected, to codify and revise the mining statutes of Indiana, in the place of John [illegible] of Terre Haute. Mr. [illegible] was unable to serve. The commission was appointed under the authority of an act of the [illegible].

[illegible]



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 Drops
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES—35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

10 Cents Gives Charming New Shade to Old Lingerie

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES—dyes or tints as you wish

OBJECTED TO SHOW PILLOWS

Usually Amiable Bachelor Had Reason for Returning From Week-End Visit With Grouch.

"Did you have a nice week-end?" inquired the sweet young thing brightly of the popular bachelor.

"O, I suppose you might say so," he grumbled, with unexpected ill humor. "But I'd like to know how anybody can have a nice week-end when he can't sleep."

"What was the matter?"

"O, the usual thing—the guest pillow. How many times have I had a good night in an otherwise pleasant and comfortable room ruined by an elephantine pillow. If you lay just your head on it you break your neck; if you try to ease the slant by moving it down under your shoulders you might as well be sitting up.

"For themselves people have decently low, soft, comfortable things which are tucked out of sight in the daytime. But in the guest room the show pillows are the only pillows provided."—New York Sun.

Raid Hairpin Stands.

The universality of the acquisitive instinct is shown by the number of women who take away hairpins from an uptown hairdressing establishment. Each cubicle contains a tray on which are scattered varicolored hairpins. A member of the fair sex may have her coiffure surfeited with the wiry holders, yet she will stuff what she can find into her bag.

"It ees the habit, perhaps," sighed the artist of the wave, "nor do ze ladies care what color their hair may be; dark pins or light pins, it ees all the same to them."—Chicago Journal.

Hoof or Mouth.

"Any good lines in that new musical comedy?" "What sort—audible or visible?"—New York Sun.

KNEW NO BOSS BY THAT NAME

But Young Man Finally Figured Out Just Whom His Acquaintance Might Have Meant.

Office politics are not unknown even in the government bureaus. Indeed—though perhaps this should be whispered—maybe they're better known there than anywhere else.

A bright young man holds down a very responsible job in one government unit and holds it down very capably. His nominal superior is generally recognized as merely a figurehead. Relations between the two are a bit strained.

The other day a Washingtonian, talking of the bright young man, remarked: "I nearly ran down your boss the other day in Scott circle." And he mentioned the boss by name.

The young man looked blank. "Have I a boss by that name?" he asked. "Oh, yes—I know whom you mean. We have a dead man up at the shop by that name."—Washington Post.

Bug's Eggs.

Superintendent Comer of the Whitetown schools took some figs, which his mother intended for cooking, without her knowledge. The following conversation ensued:

"Did you get some of the figs, Philip?"

"Yes."

"What did you do with them?"

"I threw them away."

"What did you do that for?"

"Well, mother, I bit into one and it had bug's eggs in it, and I wasn't going to eat bug's eggs, was I?"—Indianapolis News.

Fitting a Shoe.

"The shoe won't fit her and that's the truth." "Can't you stretch the truth a little?" asked the boss.

MEN OVER 18; COMMON EDUCATION, $135-$190 monthly. Railway mail and other government positions. List free. George Stewart, 5-D, Columbus Circle, New York.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Fred Knew Johnny.

Fred Smith was badly crippled, physically; but his indomitable spirit kept him on a par with other lads of his age. He joined the pig club, and took care of his pig with great skill and enthusiasm.

One day I overheard Fred talking to his crony, and this is what he said:

"John Mitchell says his pig is bigger'n mine!"

And then in a tone of great scorn, he added:

"I'll bet if we swapped he'd still say his was the biggest!"—Farm Life.

Local Pride.

"Amos Gadd has sold his place and moved over to Willersville," related Old Riley Reezidew of Petunia.

"What do you s'pose he done that for?" asked an acquaintance.

"Just to see if he could stand it to stay away from Petunia, I guess, likely."—Kansas City Star.

A Lot of Practice.

His sweetheart clung to him.

"Oh, I'm so glad you're back from New York!" she said. "And now, tell me, did you remember all the beautiful things you said to me—even among the fascinating New York girls?"

"Remember them?" said he. "Why, I kept on repeating them, dearest."

There is nothing more divine in the world than simple humanity.

"Watch me," said the strong swimmer, "I'm not afraid"

So he matched his strength against the [illegible], and laughed at [illegible], and kept repeating the [illegible], until—

It was the day the life-savers had been waiting for—that day the call for help came.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Coffee can disturb nerves and digestion, and often it does.

There's a safe and satisfying course for everybody in the selection of a table drink.

Postum has charm without harm. It's the safe drink for all, and probably, therefore, it's the better drink for you. Thousands have found it better, and fully satisfying, for them.

[illegible]

"There's a Reason" for Postum

[illegible]

Give us this day our Daily Bread

Made From

COUNTRY MAID

OR

DAILY BREAD

FLOURS

Include a sack in your next order for groceries.

Feed Ful-O-Pep, the best poultry feeds on the market, and get result.

We will have some SALT here in a few days

Give us a trial at saving you money-will you?

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager

St. Joe, Ind.

Patronize the advertisers.

July Pictoriol Reviews are here.

Salva plants, 5 cents each, at the News Office.

Mrs. Mary Shuff spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Milliman.

Harry Shuff, Frank Milliman and John Milliman spent Saturday night and Sunday at Lake Hamilton.

Mrs. Anna Rice, of Kokomo, is here visiting her son, Charles Rice, and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Schell, of Hicksville, spent Sunday afternoon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler.

H. C. Hathaway, wife and sons Clayton and Russell, of Auburn, spent Sunday at this place with relatives.

Rob Ulm and family, of near Butler, were Sunday all day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Mrs. Charles Tustison is in a very serious condition with small hope that that she will become any better.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jennings, of near Butler, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley.

Miss Priscilla Borthwick left Saturday for Hicksville. From there she went to Detroit Sunday to visit for some time with Miss Mina Bensteel.

Miss Esther Johnson has returned home from the Adrian college to spend her vacation with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ad Herrick, of near Spencerville, and Clayton Wyatt spent Sunday as guests of Marsh Andress and family.

The Misses Edna Jackson and Pauline Wasson were two of the successful ones who passed the teachers examination at Auburn recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Fordyce Daub and daughter, of Hicksville, were over Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Curie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curie and son spent over Sunday at their cottage at Lake Hamilton.

Howard Williams had the misfortune to get hit on the jaw with a ball while playing paseball at Garrett Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel, of Peru, came Sunday morning to spend their vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel, and others, for the coming weeks.

Tanlac overcomes rheumatism by toning up and invigorating the vital organs, thereby enabling them to eliminate poisons from the system. B.S. Sheffer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wade and Rev. C. O. Johnson visited Mrs. Wade's brother, Apellas Poince, at the home of their sister, Mrs. Frank Haller, in Hicksville, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Poince is quite ill.

S. S. Widney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Staman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sechler and children attended the Widney family reunion held at the Marion Smith home in Auburn, Sunday.

Miss Wanda Brunson, of Ft. Wayne, accompanied her uncle, S. N. Brunson, of Butler, this far on his way home, and was a Saturday guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. C. Bassett, and family. She will visit other relatives in this vicinity before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Provines and three children, of near Auburn, Mr. and Mr. Foster Gee and three children, of this place, were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee. Little Miss Lucile Gee, of Fort Wayne, who returned home with her grandfather Saturday evening, will visit a longer time in the Gee home.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mavis and children, of Hicksville, spent Saturday evening and Sunday here, guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler. Sunday they together with Merritt Sechler visited Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Bayman and family at New Haven. Master Everett Mavis remained for a week's visit here with his grandparents.

Mrs. Ella Patterson and daughter, Mrs. Bessie Tustison, left Saturday for Richmond, where they visited Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Dressell, the latter until Sunday afternoon when she returned to Springfield, Ohio, after a week's visit here, and the former until Monday when she returned to Fort Wayne to visit her sister, Mrs. Esther Karn, for a short time before returning home.

Charles Koch was a Grabill visitor Monday.

W. W. Fox, of Ft. Wayne, is 95 years old.

Mrs. M. J. Ridiing spent Wednesday in Auburn.

Miss Nellie Bunge, of Butler, spent over Sunday in the G. M. Barney home.

Found—Key ring and keys. Owner call at the News Office to claim keys and pay for this ad.

Mrs. Clair Miller, of Auburn, spent Sunday night with her sister, Mrs. Mark Murphy and family.

For good glasses see Briest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Fred Leighty and wife spent Sunday evening with Roy Koch and family.

Vet Chandler and wife, of Hobart, are here for a week's visit arriving Saturday.

Proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. Thousands praise Tanlac. So will you. Sheffers.

Roy and Merritt Maxwell and their families spent Sunday with their parents, Will Maxwell and family.

Will Hamilton and family were Sunday guests of Howard Northrup and wife. Mr. Northrup is improving very slowly.

William Miller and wife had as Sunday dinner guests, J. C. Hull and wife, F. B. Leighty and wife, and H. G. Hursh and wife.

Mrs. Leon Sechler and two children spent Tuesday with her parents, John Deardorff and wife, of Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Saxe Hadsell and son Paul attended the funeral of William Driver held at Scipio Sunday.

A fire of unknown origin in Arverne, N. Y., Thursday night, consumed 400 buildings and made nearly 15,000 persons homeless.

It seems far from fair that our neighboring city, Hicksville, should not have the services of the fast B. & O., eastbound passenger train.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jordan moved to Ft. Wayne, this week, where they will be at homeat 2722 Hoagland Avenue.

Miss Thelma Curie returned home Sunday from a week's visit at Auburn with her aunt, Mrs. Abe Mason and family.

Florence Buchanan and wife went to Butler, Friday afternoon for a several days visit with Mrs. John Sturgis and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Belden of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Wilson Koch were Sunday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs John George and children of Auburn called on Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reasoner Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Carper and son Roger of Garrett, were recent visitors with Abner Trostel and family.

If you feel tired, worn out, nervous and all unstrung, take Tanlac. It will straighten you out. At Dr. Seffer's.

The storm of Sunday, June 9th., in New York took a toll of sixty lives, most of whom were drowned. By June 13th., 53 of the bodies had been recovered.

Ed Miser and family attended the funeral of Mrs. John Fretz, at Waterloo, Saturday forenoon. Mrs. Martha Miser [illegible] home with them for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Beaber entertained at [illegible] H. P. Beaber of [illegible] Art Beaber and [illegible] and Mr. and Mrs. Perry [illegible]

Found—[illegible] book containing [illegible] Owner can [illegible] at the News Office [illegible] this ad.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

5½%

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA

Miss Mary Armstrong and friend, Joseph L. Stark, of Virginia, Ill., spent Saturday evening and Sunday guests of the latter's sister and aunt and their families, at Lake Wawasee.

The Lutheran offering taken Sunday night at the Children's exercises amounted to $24.00 which is to go toward the maintainance of the Osterlen Orphans' Home at Springfield, Ohio.

Mrs. J. O. Quance and two sons, Fred and Wayne, of Ft. Wayne, came Friday and spent until Sunday with relatives here. Another son Charles, came Saturday to stay over Sunday.

Grover Curie and wife entertained at Sunday dinner, Vet Chandler and wife, of Hobart; Abe Mason, wife, daughter Georgia, and Mr. Van Wagner, of Auburn; Mrs. Belle Ridgway and son Floyd.

Abner Trostel and family had as Sunday afternoon guests, Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. T. H. Shull and son Garth, Mrs. Cad Shull and the Misses Doris and Nellie Shull and Mrs. Meade Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tustison and son of Defiance were guests with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tustison, from Friday until Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tustison came Sunday and remained until Wednesday in the same home.

CATARRH

Catarrh is a Local disease greatly influenced by Constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which gives Quick Relief by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces and assists in ridding your System of Catarrh.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor

AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House

AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office

both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE

Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE

West Seventh Street

AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

HARVEST TIME!

Our price on the McCormick 7 foot cut BINDERS COMPLETE is exceptional.

WE CAN SAVE
YOU MONEY

Binder Twine

International Harvester Company Standard Binder Twine. Our car-load will be here this week. You know that the quality and price is right.

We could sell you cheaper twine but satisfaction would be the minus quantity.

Fence

We are safe in saying that we sold more Fence than any other dealer in DeKalb county this spring, which again proves that price and quality reign.

Mowers

We just received another shipment of McCormick Mowers in 5 and 6 foot cut sizes. Our price in addition to the quality, [illegible]

Enamel Ware

A new line of Blue and White Enamel Ware just received. Come in and see this assortment if you are in need of any article.

Leather and Cord Fly Nets, Horse Covers Etc.

Wm. Curie

ST. JOE, INDIANA

HARTZOG

EYESIGHT SPECIALIST

FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, June 23, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE [illegible]

JUNE

L 917

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1922 No. 26

EVERYTHING TO WEAR

FOR

MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men $12.00 $15.00 $16.50

Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00

Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75

Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6

Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5

Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1

Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

NEW WHEAT

Will soon be moving. We are ready to take care of the crop. The highest market prices paid at all times.

FEED

Bran and Middlings.
Tankage and other feeds.

FLOUR

Auburn and Nappanee

COAL

Place your orders now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will [illegible] be better able to pass [illegible] request for an accommodation if you should find yourself in need of it. [illegible] business with us, and we will try to make it worth while to you.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Mrs. J. W. Sheffer Claimed by Death

Mrs. J. W. Sheffer of Auburn, died Saturday morning at 3:50 as a result of her wounds.

Near death a greater portion of the time since she was shot Thursday night by an unknown assailant, Mrs. Sheffer surprised even those among her closest acquaintances by her powers of endurance.

Conscious for an hour after she was shot, she told some of the minor details of the affair then lapsed into unconsciousness and for five hours her condition seemed hopeless.

Responding to stimulants about 4 o'clock Friday morning, she rallied, and for a time later in the morning was again rational, talking to friends and giving some instructions with respect to business affairs.

The effort was too much and she grew weaker until her death. A double funeral was held, as was the case when the children were buried.

The services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church, and the remains of husband and wife repose side by side in the mausoleum at Woodlawn.

James William Sheffer was born July 11, 1869, in Jackson township. In the year 1890, on the twenty-ninth of October he was married to Cora Chaney, who lived near Shewers Corners in Richland township. Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheffer, Heber and Martha. They died the night of the seventh of January, 1921, when the Sheffer home was blown up by an explosion.

After his marriage, Mr. Sheffer moved to Auburn, and engaged in the meat market business with W. G. Chaney, under the firm name of Sheffer & Chaney. This business was conducted for about twelve years. After the partnership was dissolved Mr. Sheffer started buying and selling stock.

Mr. Sheffer was a member of the city council from May 5, 1904, to May 10, 1906.

Besides buying stock, Mr. Sheffer raised fancy stock for exhibition purposes up until the past winter, owning a fine herd of blooded cattle.

Mr. Sheffer was a member of the First M. E. church and president of the board of trustees. He was also a member of and an active worker in the Commercial club, a member of the fire department and a K. of P.

Surviving beside his father, John Sheffer, and his step-mother, are two sisters, Mrs. James Gernette of Garfield, Wash., and Mrs. Emma A. Lawrence, who resides northwest of Auburn.

A brother, Nis, is also living. Two brothers are deceased.

Cora Chaney Sheffer, his wife, was born February 7, 1870, in Richland township, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Chaney.

She died June 24, 1922, at the age of 52 years, 4 months and 17 days.

Mrs. Sheffer was a member of the First M. E. church, and the president of the Women's Home Missionary society and was a member of the Ladies Aid society. She also taught a class of boys in the Sunday school. Mrs. Sheffer was also a member of the Pythian Sister order.

Surviving are her sisters, Mrs. Ella Bowman of near Corunna; Mrs. Elizabeth Raub, of Corunna; J. I. Chaney, living at Rock Island, Ill.; Mrs. Eli Walker, the wife of the former mayor of Auburn; and William Chaney, who made his home with Mr, and Mrs. Sheffer.

A brother, Milford, was killed in 1884 at the New York Central railroad crossing at Indiana avenue, and a sister died in infancy.

Many Backward People

Approximately sixty people attended a 'backward party' Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson on Widney Avenue.

To carry out the idea and name of the party each guest wore his clothing backward, walked backward and pretended a backward disposition. [illegible] the Methodist [illegible] orchestra gave a musical program [illegible]

[illegible]

Awards Verdic of $30,000 Damages

Paul L. Tustison, of Hicksville, Ohio, a former employe of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was awarded a judgment of $30,000 by a jury in the common pleas court at Cleveland, Ohio, Thursday. The judgment was for injuries the plaintiff received while in the employ of the railroad company.

Tustison was appointed a brakeman on July 14, 1920. At the time of the accident he was working in the Chicago yards as a member of a crew doing some switching. He was engaged in coupling two cars standing under an overhead bridge.

The cars failed to couple and it was necessary to go between the cars. He was caught between a large steel and concrete post, a support for the overhead bridge, and the moving car, injuring his left hip and pelvis. It was necessary to remove a piece of the bone in the pelvis.

The trial started on June 15th and went to the jury Thursday. A jury composed of six men and six women returned a verdict within an hour.

Lutheran Services

The attendance at the special services at the Lutheran church Sunday morning following the regular Bible School was very good, in fact there was a house full.

Special music by the orchestra was one of the fine features of the program, but the main feature was the receiving of new members. Eight were received by letter and one by baptism into full membership. There were three baptised who will be confirmed later. Also there were three infants baptised.

Dr. C. S. Johnson made the prayer and gave a splendid short address. Pastor Steffey preached a seven minute sermon on the subject, "Story of God's House."

The church building has been redecorated and a new carpet laid, which makes it very attractive indeed. This special service was as a reopening of the church.

Union Meeting

The first union meeting of the three churches will be held Sunday evening, July 2nd., at 6:00 o'clock, following the Christian Endeavor which will begin at 5:30 o'clock. Rev. Daily will preach on the subject of "The American Idea." Text 1 Peter 2:17 "Honor all men; Love the brotherhood; Fear God; Honor the King."

S. S. Class Picnic

The Live wire class of the Methodist Sunday School spent a pleasant day at Triers Park, Fort Wayne, on last Thursday.

Those composing the party were Dorothy Ginther, Marie Kinsey, Ida Kinsey, Alberta Hart, Arlene Hart, Velma Kinsey, Phyllis Rickett, Martha Miser, Lazerne Sayler, Mrs. Edna Johnson, and Rev. Johnson and son Charles. This is only one of the outings planned for the class this summer. Mrs. Johnsoh is teacher and Miss Sayler is assistant.

High Taxes In DeKalb Co.

[illegible] of taxes in [illegible] have been [illegible]

[illegible] treasurers books.

The largest taxpayer of the county is the New York Central Railroad Co., the amount for both its main line and Jackson branch reaching more than $53,000.00. The second largest is the Baltimore & Ohio with $39,350.00.

Notice To Patrons

The News Office will be closed all day next Tuesday, the fourth, and the force will enjoy a holiday.

This means that it will be necessary for all copy to be in our hands not later than Monday noon. You [illegible]

[illegible]

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

Some Things You Should Be Proud of:

Our three beautiful churches and sunday schools;
" splendid modern high school;
" excellent band and orchestras;
" many lovely homes and shady streets;
" fine oiled streets; Our weekly newspaper;
" many business houses, and the bank;
" two railroads, two bus lines, two rural routes;
AND LAST BUT NOT LEAST—
A Strictly Service Garage with one aim—
Service all the time.

The Good MAXWELL

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

DON'T FORGET THAT

The HOOVER

Is the only Electric Vacuum Sweeper on the market and when considering see us.

AND FOR A NON-ELECTRIC
The Improved
VACUETTE
Model C

Cannot be beaten. It is new. It is much cheaper.

A Vacuum cleaner should be efficient and at the same time be durable convenient, economical, and easy to operate. The Model C Vacuette possesses all of these virtues and yet it costs less than ordinary cleaners. A test will prove these assertions, and we will be glad to demonstrate the Vacuette in your home —FREE.

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Former St. Joe Girl Married

In a letter received Monday by the News from Mrs. A. F. Gamble of Lima, Ohio, was contained an announcement of the marriage of Miss Norma Gamble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gamble, to Mr. Willis C. Irwin, of Harrod, Ohio, on Friday, June 16th, at Harrod, Ohio.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward B. Thomas, pastor of M. E. church of Harrod, where the newly-weds will probably make their home.

The bride is a graduate of the St. Joe High School in 1918, and taught school [illegible] in Concord township before moving with her parents to their home in Ohio. She has taught [illegible] in Ohio. [illegible] many friends [illegible] happiness [illegible]

[illegible]

JUNE

L 912

America's Gift to France

Paul W. Bartlett's $50,000 heroic bronze statue of Lafayette which the Knights of Columbus presented to the city of Metz, France.

Bells That Rang for Lafayette

Lafayette visited America for the last time in 1824. From the hour in which his advent was heralded by a rainbow enveloping and tinging Fort Lafayette, just across the Narrows, until he set sail for his native land, he was feted and lionized. All the church bells of New York shouted; New Havenites forgot their puritanical primness and joined lustily. Newport, R. I. forgot that its most valued bell had been given Trinity church by an English queen and set it ringing louder, even, than when it was presented by Queen Anne on her ascension to her father's throne. Providence proved that the bell she cast herself in 1787 for her Baptist church was capable of welcoming reverberations; and the largest in the town, weighing nearly 3,000 pounds, outdid itself because it was cast by Paul Revere of Middlesex county fame.

Welcoming Peals at Boston.

In Boston Lafayette heard Revere's first-cast bell, hanging in the New Brick church. Those of Christ church, Old Brick church, as well of those of the Old South assured him of their welcome; while King's chapel outdid them all. The Harvard college bells, already old, were not remiss.

The ovations continued throughout the South. Entering Charleston, preceded by a troop mounted on white horses, Lafayette rode with his son, George Washington Lafayette, and the same little boy, now Major Huger, who played with his French sword and attempted to rescue him at Olmutz. Perhaps Lafayette never had a happier moment than, thus riding, he heard St. Michaels' bells once more. His Charleston friends may have told him of the sad days when Major Traille of the Royal artillery claimed those same bells as his perquisites when the British had entered the city; and of the anxieties experienced until, through the good offices of London friends, they were returned to their tower.

Paid Honors in the West.

At St. Louis he heard of the small bells carried by Father Marquette in the Northwest; by De Smet in the further Northwest (oh, how great the country grew as Lafayette listened!) even, possibly, of the padre who was building a chain of missions on the western coast and ringing a bell whenever he founded a mission. Pierre Chouteau was a busy man, but he knew many things and the gallant visitor must know how wonderful the western world was—how much greater than he knew when he fought for its liberty.

Another boat trip—up the Ohio. Needs must he stop at Marietta, Ohio, a town founded by Revolutionary officers, Putnam and others, who had been given a grant of land for their services to the government. Was not the town named for Marie Antoinette? And had she not, from the enthusiasm roused by Benjamin Franklin's vivid descriptions of far-away America and flattered by the choice of a name for the new town, [illegible]

"I'll give books, sense is more than sound."

Refused Crown of Belgium.

Lafayette's visit to America ended in rainbow tints, even as it had begun. Next, we may see him talking with Louis Phillippe I:

"You know that I am a republican, and that I regard the Constitution of the United States as the most perfect that ever existed." Later, all Paris swung her bells in recognition of Lafayette's prime part in the revolution of 1830—a revolution which resulted in a considerable extension of the liberties of mankind. Following this, he was offered the crown of Belgium. But this he refused.

It is pleasant to reflect on the peaceful years that followed for Lafayette at La Grange, his country seat. He could occasionally ride horseback, and the very white charger that bore him in Paris carried him over country lanes and wide, cultivated fields. The tocsins of war or of welcome were replaced by one far less notable but none the less important—his dinner bell, which called him and his many famous guests to his generous table.

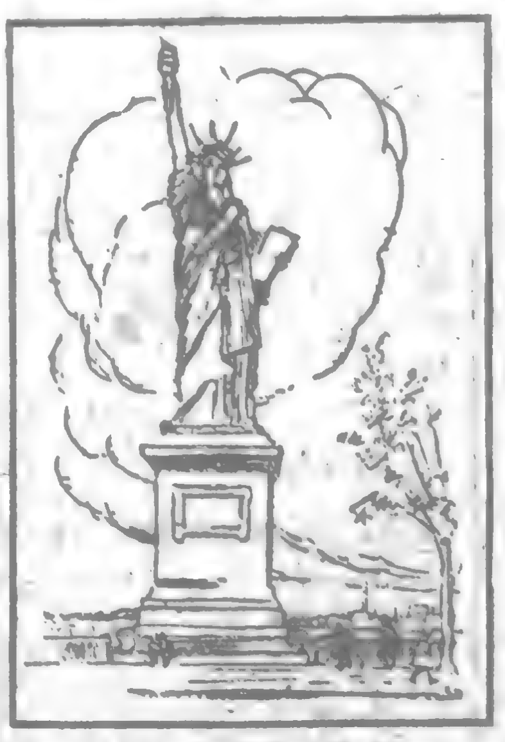
Final Glorious Vision.

Finally, in 1834, came a gray dawn. Lafayette knew his great achievement was in America; but he also knew he had aided in the betterment of the masses of his native land. As, this hushed morn, he grew drowsy, after a night of pain, none of the watchers could see or hear what he undoubtedly saw and heard:

He saw himself mounted on a white charger, gallantly facing the foe. He saw Washington coming for him on another noble steed. He saw his wife's flowing apparel and lovely face brightening into a smile of ecstatic welcome, as it had when he returned from the wars in which he had taken noble part.

The friends wheeled their horses and Lafayette's joined their stride up a shining road. Soon glittering ramparts came into view—the last leap was at hand. As the horses gathered themselves for the spring, as each of his companions turned to watch their loved one, bells began to peal—Jacquiline of Paris, St. Michaels of Charleston, Bow Bells, Erfurt, Olmutz, Boston, joined in the magic welcome. [illegible] and the bells of Paris [illegible]

[illegible]



Replica of Our Statue of Liberty on the Pont de Grenelle, Paris.

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

KEEP POLITICS OUT OF MARKETING PLAN

Where Permitted to Creep In, Discord Follows Among Officers, Directors and Members.

(By E. B. HEATON, Director Dairy Marketing, American Farm Bureau Federation.)

President J. R. Howard says that the three most essential things needed in co-operative marketing in this country today are: "brains, brains, and more brains." This is surely true. We have in co-operative marketing the development of a business undertaking involving the human element represented in the membership, together with the merchandising and manufacturing problems. The best brains of the country are needed to keep these co-operative marketing organizations functioning as they should, and to keep petty politics from creeping into the organization and causing discord among the human element represented in the members whose products are being marketed co-operatively.

To Overcome Petty Politics.

We have witnessed in recent months and years the destructive work of petty political tendencies in several of our co-operative marketing organizations. Factional difficulties have arisen within the group represented by the officers and directors of these co-operative marketing organizations, and these differences have led to the building up within these marketing organizations of something like a political ring, in city, state and national affairs. Each faction would attempt to mold the opinion of the members of the marketing organization to its way of thinking. The faction that succeeded in a good many cases managed to secure at least temporary control of the organization.

Should we not try now in the development of co-operative marketing so to organize that all possible tendencies towards politics may be kept out of the organization? If in some way we can give the membership more responsibility in the governing of the organization we will help to eliminate some of these evils. In order to do this in large co-operative organizations the members should be grouped in local branches of the larger associations and these local groups should select delegates who are responsible for all of their actions to the local group when they go to represent them in the larger affairs of the central organization.

E. B. Heaton.

The Experienced Irish.

It is interesting to note how some of the co-operative marketing organizations in other countries try to prevent petty politics from entering in and destroying the efficiency of their officers and board of directors. In Ireland there is a federation of co-operative creameries, known as the Co-Operative Creamery, Limited. This is a central organization under which the local creameries or societies are grouped. Rule 45 of the by-laws reads as follows:

"The office of the committeeman shall be vacated (a) if he hold any office or place of profit under the society; (b) if he become a bankrupt or insolvent or compounds with his creditors; (c) if he become of unsound mind or become a lunatic; (d) if he be convicted of an indictable offense; (e) if he cease to hold the necessary qualifications to be a member of the committee. (f) if he absent himself from meetings of the society for a period of two consecutive months without special leave of absence from the other members of the committee; (g) if he give the committee one month's notice in writing that he resigns his office; (h) if he is in arrears of payment of any call or calls due and payable on his shares; (i) if he enter into contract, arrangement, or dealing with the society out of which a profit may be realized. But any act done in good faith by a committeeman, whose office is vacated as aforesaid, shall be valid [illegible] such committeeman has ceased to be a member of the committee. Any member or members of the committee may be removed from office by a resolution of a special general meeting, subject to the provisions of rule 26."

Rule 26 is a provision relative to loans, or when a committee member becomes liable for any debt incurred on behalf of the society.

A special general meeting may be called by the committee at any time on its own authority or upon requisition addressed to the secretary and signed by not less than one-fourth of the members of the society. Failure of the secretary in three days to call the meeting gives the signatories to the petition the right to call their own meeting at the expense of the society.

Self-Perpetuating Boards.

In some of our American co-operative marketing organizations there has been a tendency for the board of directors, once selected, to use any and all means to continue their term of office. I find in the by-laws of the Danish Co-operative Dairies, and this is true also of the Federation or export Society of Denmark, that rule 20 says:

"Of the members of the committee (directors) one-half resign every year. The first time after drawing lots, and later they resign by turn after having held office for two years. Re-election can take place but cannot be accepted by the person in question, if he has not been out of office at least for a period equal to that in which he held office last.

"If and when the committee or some of its members are to receive a salary it is to be fixed by the general meeting."

WAGES FOR HARVEST LABOR

Prices Vary in Different Counties in Kansas—Labor Problem Greatest in Wheat Belt.

Kansas state farm bureau has just finished making a survey to find out what farmers over the state are figuring on paying for harvest labor this year. A referendum was sent to all county agents and all farm bureau officers in the state. They were asked to gather the information from their farmer neighbors and report to the bureau.

Prices in the different counties in the eastern third of the state range from $1.50 per day to $3.50 per day for single men, with a general average of $2.75 per day.

In the big wheat belt in south central Kansas, where the problem of harvest labor is greatest, prices range from $2.50 per day to $4.00. The majority of replies stated that $3.00 to $3.50 would be paid in the big wheat belt. A few believe wages for harvest labor would be as low as $2.50. The average for the big wheat belt, as given in replies to the questionnaire, was $3.30 per day.

Reports from the northwest corner of the state, which is a distinct harvest section by itself, show that farmers there are expecting to pay from $2.50 to $4.00 per day, with an average of $3.50.

The eastern third of the state never has trouble in getting plenty of harvest hands. The amount of wheat raised there is not so great as in the south central section of the state and harvest wages are always lower in the eastern part of the state. It is probable that very few hands will have to be imported to handle the crop in this section of the state.

In the south central section of the state, however, a large number of hands will have to be imported. Many of these will flow out of Oklahoma, following the harvest. The Kansas harvest usually ripens a week or two later than that in Oklahoma and hands traveling northward, after the Oklahoma harvest, usually find the Kansas harvest at its crest in the south central counties.

Much of the Kansas wheat has been abandoned and the land placed to other crops. However, the wheat is reported good in the south central counties with very little abandoned. It is probable that from 300 to 2,000 extra hands will be needed in each of the big wheat counties in this section.

FARM BUREAU DAY AT DEKALB

Cape Girardeau County Organization Was First in State—Howard Asked to Speak.

Arrangements are being made at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, for the celebration August 1 of the organization of the Cape Girardeau County farm bureau, said to be the first county organization of the farm bureau in the state.

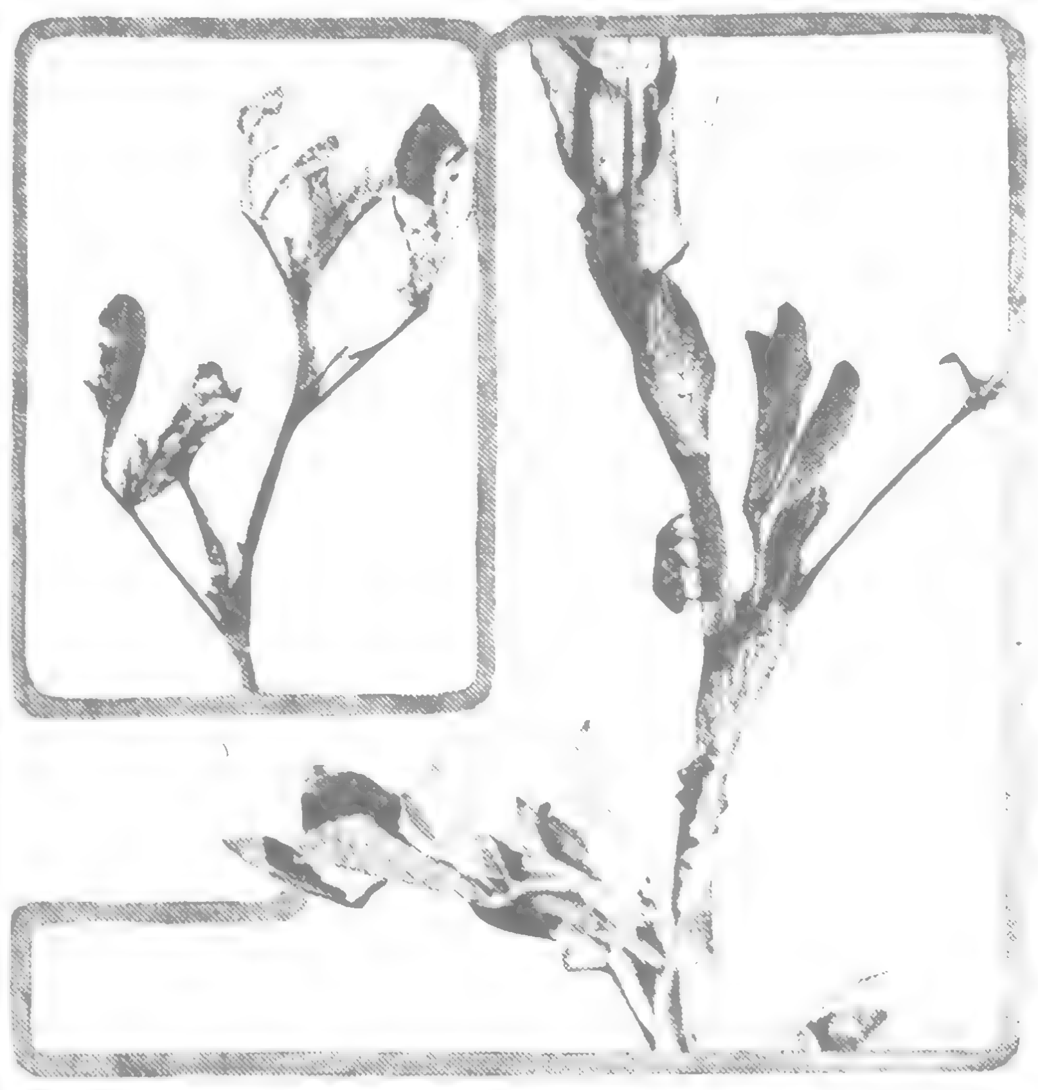
The Cape Girardeau county farm bureau, which was organized in 1912 and which started operations in August of that year, has been in continuous operation ever since and has consistently added to its membership.

James R. Howard, president of the American farm bureau federation, has been asked to speak at the celebration. The executive committees of the state farm bureau will meet with the county organization in the celebration.

Minnesota Takes Referendum.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation has asked the presidents, secretaries and state directors of all county farm bureaus to express their opinion about a bill recently introduced in congress to amend the new federal [illegible] stockyards. [illegible]

CONTROL OF ALFALFA WEEVIL BY SPRAYING POISON OVER FIELDS



The Alfalfa Weevil and Work of Larvae.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers in regions newly infested by the alfalfa weevil will be interested in knowing that an unusually effective method of control has been worked out by the United States Department of Agriculture. Specialists of the department say that rarely has any method of insect control been so thoroughly safeguarded against failure as alfalfa-weevil spraying. It has been tested every season for seven years. The cost of the operation—about $1 an acre—is trifling compared with the returns, and no farmer in the territory infested or threatened can afford to overlook it, the specialists say. There is no control measure, however, which can be applied advantageously this late in the season. Effective work must be delayed until next spring.

Control by Poison Spray.

Control is effective by spraying poison over the fields so that it will cover the growing parts on which the weevils mostly feed. Arsenate of lead and arsenite of zinc have been mostly used, but other arsenicals recommended for orchard spraying are thought to be about as good. There is practically no danger of burning the foliage of alfalfa, and therefore the range of suitable poisons is larger than in fruit-tree spraying. Arsenate of lead is said to be, everything considered, the best poison to use, principally because it sticks to the leaves more readily and costs less than most of the others.

The poison is weighed or measured at the rate of two pounds of powder or four pounds of commercial paste for each 100 gallons of water, is stirred with a little water in a pail until it becomes a thin paste without lumps, is diluted and strained into the sprayer tank. Two pounds of laundry soap for each gallon should be added, in order to make the liquid stick to the leaves properly. The dry, powdered form of the poison is better than the paste. There is no danger of stock being poisoned by hay cut from sprayed fields where the poison is applied at a rate of not greater than 100 gallons of spray mixture per acre.

Simple Outfit Sufficient.

The essentials of the spraying outfit are: A truck or other vehicle, a tank with an agitator to keep the poison from settling to the bottom, a pump, a pressure gauge, an engine and pumping jack, unless the pump is to be driven by hand, a strainer, a pipe for distributing the liquid from the pump, and as many nozzles as are required by the capacity of the pump. These essentials may all be contained in a barrel-pump outfit carried in a wagon. The pump must be capable of delivering four-fifths of a gallon or more a minute and maintaining a pressure of at least 75 pounds. If the pressure is less than that, the mist spray will not be fine enough to prevent the liquid from gathering in drops and running to the ground instead of drying on the tops of the plants.

The number of nozzles used should be sufficient to take up the capacity of the pump. At the average walking gait of a team, each nozzle should deliver nine-tenths of a gallon a minute. Therefore, a pump of nine-gallon capacity per minute will supply ten nozzles, each of which covers a strip two feet wide. By an arithmetical calculation of the cubical content of the pump cylinder and the number of strokes per minute, the capacity of the outfit can be determined. The spray should be applied at the rate of 100 gallons of spray mixture per acre.

Nearly any kind of spraying outfit can be adopted for this purpose. However, modern orchard spray outfits are usually designed to give a comprehensively small flow and high pressure, and are less suitable for alfalfa spraying than the older pumps, with larger cylinders and longer strokes, designed for larger flow and lower pressure.

The spraying outfit should be mounted on the wagon or other vehicle used so that the nozzles will be about two feet above the tops of the alfalfa plants. Four 50-gallon barrels with an engine [illegible] outfit. A paddle, dasher, or some other form of agitator must be provided to keep the liquid stirred. A strainer of 20-mesh brass or bronze screen should be fitted to the opening through which the water enters the tank and another over the outlet leading to the pump. The parts of the pump in which close fitting is required should be of brass, bronze, porcelain, or some other substance less rapidly corroded by the chemicals than iron and steel. All commercial spray pumps are built in this way, but pumps which were intended for other purposes should be refitted when used for spraying.

An engine-driven outfit must have a relief valve near the pump, permitting the surplus flow to return to the tank. The pump must have an air-pressure chamber large enough to keep the flow steady and insure even distribution of the poison. Even pressure, indispensable for uniform spread of the poison, cannot be maintained without a pressure gauge. This gauge should be attached to the pressure chamber or near it and at a distance from relief-valve and nozzles.

The boom or pipe which carries the nozzles and supplies them with liquid from the pump is made of two-foot pieces of one-half inch galvanized iron pipe joined by T's, each of which affords an opening for the attachment of a nozzle. The boom is connected with the pump by a one-half inch pressure hose. The boom should be supported by a piece of timber, two by four, clamped or hinged to the truck with the boom stapled, bolted, or wired to it. Plain misty nozzles without strainers or other complications, should be used.

Spray in Warm Weather.

The best time for spraying is at what the specialists call the turning point of weevil infestation—from one to two weeks before the first crop is ready for cutting, when the young larvae become so numerous that they completely destroy the growing tips. After that point is reached the weevils, if left alone, consume the leaves until nothing is left but the woody fibers. If spraying is done at this time the crop recovers quickly. Spraying yearly in the spring sometimes entirely prevents damage, but it is uncertain. On the other hand, plants sprayed after they were entirely stripped of their foliage have been able to recover and bloom, but this allows destruction to go too far and makes recovery too slow.

Spraying at the "turning point" not only protects the first crop but confers an even larger benefit on the second crop, which sprouts and grows without delay, and no treatment of the stubble is necessary.

Stubble spraying, after the cutting of the first crop, has been successfully done, but it requires getting into the field immediately after cutting and a much larger quantity of liquid is required than if it were applied to the first crop. Stubble spraying, therefore, is advised only when earlier spraying has been impossible.

Spraying should be done, if possible, at the beginning of a warm spell. The weevils do not feed so voraciously in cool weather.

There are other control measures, but none of them promises much more unless applied before or immediately after the first cutting. One method is to pasture the alfalfa field until most of the eggs and young larvae have been destroyed. Another is to use the alfalfa as a soiling crop, cutting it green two or three times during the season. These methods, however, must be practiced before the turning point of infestation, as after that time the weevils destroy the plants so completely that there is not enough growth for either pasture or soiling. Another method is to cultivate the field with a harrow or other implement, immediately after the first cutting, in such way as to cover the field with a dust mulch, thus exposing the entire surface of the field to the sun and killing most of the weevils. In some instances, the second crop has been protected by dragging the stubble, while it is still wet from irrigation, with the land leveler or the clod breaker. This causes the insects to perish by [illegible] them in the mud, but it is [illegible] to the soil and is not recommended.

JUNE

L 912

221

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

CHAPTER XV—Continued.

—17—

With her eyes on the agonized face, she drew gently at the corners of the rag stuffed into Evelyn's mouth. When it came out, Evelyn gave a deep groan and her cramped jaws settled rigidly.

"I'm goin' to feed you now," said Polly. "There ain't no hurry, 'cause we got all night."

Then some minutes passed in silence while the squatter girl, bit by bit, forced the pap between Mrs. MacKenzie's teeth.

"Now drink the water," she urged grimly. "It's warm an' got sugar in it."

As if in a trance, she got up and placed the cup on the table. She put a stick of wood into the stove and, turning, caught Evelyn's eyes upon her. Then she sat down and considered the unhappy girl who had been delivered up to the justice of the Storm country.

Neither of them spoke. One of them was praying dully to herself, and Polly Hopkins was recounting mentally all the evil deeds of Evelyn and her haughty husband, Marcus MacKenzie. It was necessary to keep Daddy's grief ever before her mind and listen with the ears of her tortured spirit to Jerry's shrieks to be able to keep on with the gruesome thing she had undertaken.

"You ain't goin' to die till I tell you something, Miss," she broke forth, finally. "It ain't news to you, but I just got to make you understand why I'm putting you in the lake."

Weakness kept Evelyn from answering. Her eyes rolled up toward the shanty roof, then shut at the thought of the icy waters of Cayuga.

"I can't hurt your wicked man 'ceptin' through you," went on Pollyop. "We squatters are goin' to learn him a lesson he won't forget as long as he's in this world. You can bet your boots on that!"

As if in support of the terrible words, the shanty shook, rattling the loosened bits of tin on the roof. At the ghastly sound Evelyn began to cry.

"I know just how your man'll feel," continued Pollyop, a bitter smile distorting her lips into a grimace of pain, "an' so does Larry Bishop. Larry's woman an' baby died when Old Marc sent him up to Auburn, an' the best of me cracked when he grabbed Jerry right out of my arms."

Both girls sobbed loudly. Then Pollyop cleared her throat and wiped her face.

"An' your man railroaded my daddy to Auburn," she gasped, "after plantin' something on him he didn't do; an' you, every one of you, knew it."

Her voice rose to a high-pitched scream as she remembered the last scene in the county jail.

"God, wasn't it awful?" she cried. "An' you—" She leaned over and grasped Evelyn's arm. "You could 'a' let me go to Auburn if you'd 'a' tried, but you didn't. An' then—then you said you didn't give me that dress. You're all liars—an'—an'—sneaks, you money folks be."

Her hand reached out and touched the ax, but she withdrew it as if an adder had been under her fingers. She was not yet able to do the deed which she had longed to do and thought would be a joy. Her head sagged forward, and again came Jeremiah's weeping face before her.

"If you'd 'a' seen my daddy in the Ithaca jail, mebbe you'd be able to think what I'm goin' to do is all right. Yep, all right!" she rasped.

Then she went on hoarsely, faltering as she described the horrors that all her loved ones had gone through. Her voice choked and became silent as she thought of Robert. She could not force her tongue to say a word about him, although her heart throbbed bitterly as his name came to her lips.

"Money!" she whispered brokenly, lifting her head. "Did you hear your man say money to us squatters as if cash'd pay for Larry's woman an' Jerry an' my daddy? You heard, didn't you?"

Evelyn's head sagged forward, and a spasm passed over her face as her eyes closed. She looked as if she had died. Polly Hopkins had seen death enter the Silent City many a time; and her heart-strings tightened.

"Are you gone?" she questioned in a hissing whisper.

The other girl's lids lifted slowly, and never had Pollyop seen such an expression in human eyes in all her life.

"Not yet," dropped from the blue lips, "and—and—oh, Pollyop, I'm so afraid to die. I don't know how! Oh, God, help me; I feel so sick."

"Daddy were sick, too," shot back Polly, "an' Jerry's turned up his toes by this time! I ain't heard a word from him since he was took away. Mebbe I could a' seen him if you hadn't made your cousin believe I were a bad woman! What d'you know about babies, an' how cunnin' an' sweet they are? You're as wicked as h—l! Ithaca'll be better off when you're food for the fishes. I'm glad your man'll live, though. Lordy, how I laughed when he busted into the shanty. And there was you right beside me! Huh? Wasn't it a good joke on Old Marc?"

The speaker held Evelyn's stare, the chestnut eyes glittering as the question was fairly spat out.

"I can't die, Pollyop!" groaned Evelyn, her head drooping against the cot. "Oh, Polly dear, listen—please—"

Polly reached out for the ax.

"Don't you dare 'Polly dear' me," she gritted convulsively, "or I'll hit you with this!"

"God!—Jesus!" came from between Evelyn's chattering teeth. "No, don't pick it up! Don't! Oh, I want to tell you something, Polly Hopkins."

"Then fire ahead," Polly grumbled sullenly.

She withdrew her fingers from the ax-handle and leaned her chin in the palm of her hand.

Evelyn straightened up and bent forward, her eyes swimming with tears.

"Polly," she gasped, "Pollyop, in the summer God's going to send me a little baby. Oh, Polly—"

The squatter girl scrambled up as the speaker dropped back, terrified at the exultant fire in the brown eyes and the awful smile that crept across Polly's face.

"Glory be to God in the sky!" she cried. "Two of you belongin' to Old Marc goin' with one swipe of the ax."

She wheeled around and paced the length of the shanty. Old Marc's baby! Old Marc's woman! Both to go out of his life forever! And by her hands—hers, Polly Hopkins' hands!

She lifted them up, these slender, brown fingers, and looked at them against the candlelight. But a few months ago they had been the most willing fingers in all the county! But tonight—Marc's baby! Evelyn's baby!

Like a hive of bees, the joy of dissipating the home of Marcus MacKenzie buzzed through her brain. No sound came from the girl on the floor, for Evelyn MacKenzie had given up all hope. The squatter girl was crazy. No human being could entertain such a ghastly purpose and be in his right mind!

Presently she called Polly's name faintly, and then again; because Polly gave her no heed, she cried louder:

"Pollyop, my feet hurt so! I can't bear it!"

Polly paused, leaned against the wall and glared at her.

"I'm glad they do that," she muttered. "You can't hurt anywhere too much to suit me!"

Then something gave way behind her, and wheeling around, she found herself staring into the face of "The Greatest Mother in the World." Daddy's dust-covered coat which had hidden the picture all the past weeks lay at her feet.

As she looked, the glare left Polly's eyes. The serious face that had once smiled at her, the smile that had been a benediction for herself and Daddy Hopkins, was there no longer. Rather was there an expression of sorrow. Death rested in the nurse's arms, but from her whole reverent attitude the sense of protection swept out at Polly Hopkins.

Then suddenly she heard a man's voice. It seemed to drift into the hut through every crevice and crack.

"And you're the Littlest Mother in the World," came plainly to her.

Like one struck, she stood rooted to the spot. Evelyn MacKenzie over there against the bed faded from her mind. Old Marc's imaged face went away as if it had never seared her vision. Over and over the delightful words Robert had spoken to her rushed into her ears and stamped themselves in golden fire on her memory.

"I love you, Polly," touched her like a caress, and, "You're my little girl," fell upon her like the tender hand of Granny Hope's God.

"The Greatest Mother in the World," whispered Pollyop; and then something hard and hateful within her broke, and the flood-tides of love came pouring in. As when a dam bursts, the pent-up waters sweep away all the accumulated rubbish in the old, unused channels, so was the squatter girl's heart cleansed of every unlovely emotion. To her uplifted vision "The Greatest Mother in the World" smiled again in benediction; and beyond her, dim in the background, appeared a wrinkled, toothless smile, and Polly heard Granny Hope's withered lips saying:

"Love's the hull thing, brat. Just love, an' love, an' keep on lovin'."

Full of the tenderest compassion, Pollyop turned swiftly, and at the sight of her flashing, radiant face, Evelyn fainted, toppled forward and rolled almost under the bed.

The squatter girl bounded to her side, her frantic fingers tearing loose the ropes that Larry and Lye Braeger had made secure around Evelyn's body. They fell away, leaving the girl but a little heap on the floor.

Tears streamed over her dark lashes as Pollyop gathered the limp head of Evelyn MacKenzie into her arms. And then she prayed as Granny Hope had taught her to pray. "Our Father which art in heaven." The rest of the petition slipped from her mind, and she quoted with chattering teeth, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

Her strong arms lifted Evelyn and as she rolled over on the cot, Polly Hopkins stood up and cried:

"Underneath Old Marc's woman are your everlasting arms, God dear!"

CHAPTER XVI

"Can you speak to me?"

Pollyop's voice was as tender as when she had repeated heavenly promises to the sad ones of the Silent City and had taught them that love was ever present.

Evelyn gazed at her electrified. The brown eyes were softly luminous. The lips which only a little while ago were strained and blue now were scarlet and fraught with sympathy. What wonderful thing had happened? Pollyop had taken the rope off her feet and hands. She could wriggle a little, although her flesh hurt dreadfully when she tried it.

Prompted by the attempted movement, Pollyop dropped to her knees and began to chafe the injured ankles.

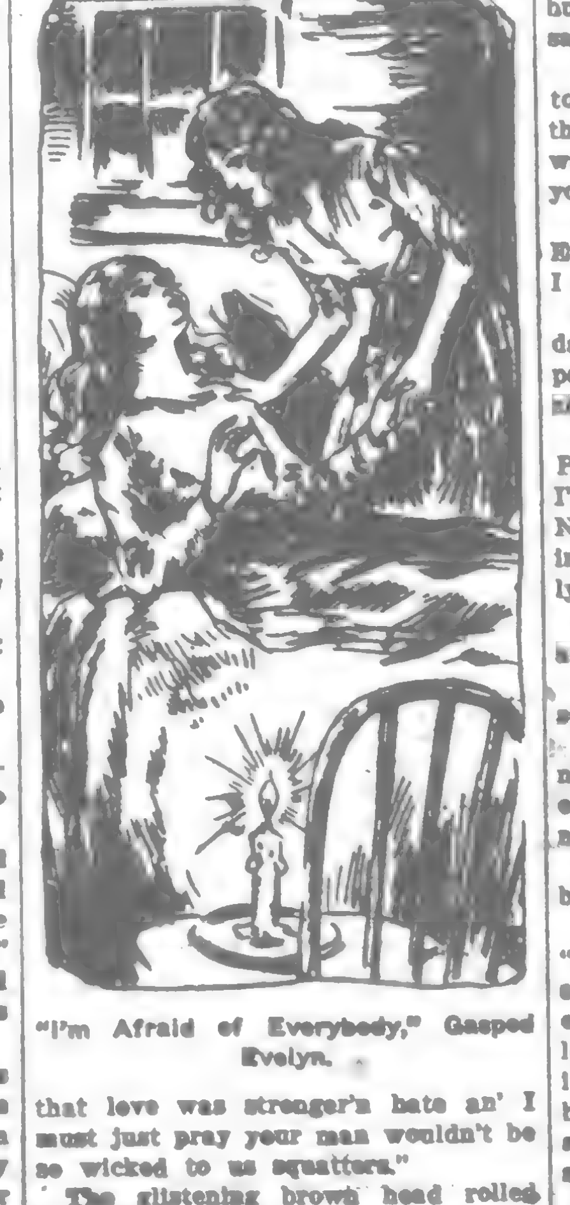
"I'm goin' to give you back to your man," she said, quaking. "But you got to swear to him I swiped you, an' not any squatter men. He'll jail me forever, mebbe, but I don't care about that. I love Larry an' Lye Braeger too much to haul 'em into this."

Then her face fell beside Mrs. MacKenzie's, and she wept hysterically. Evelyn's fingers clutched at the chestnut curls.

"Pollyop, oh, Polly, darling!"

This was all she could say, for she, too, was weeping even more wildly than the other. In the presence of such divine unselfishness, the petals of her withered soul seemed to lift and open, as she groped for a broader understanding.

"Granny Hope learned me a lot of things," came up to Evelyn brokenly. "She always said, Granny Hope did, that love was stronger'n hate an' I must just pray your man wouldn't be so wicked to us squatters."



"I'm Afraid of Everybody," Gasped Evelyn.

The glistening brown head rolled back and forth in consuming agony.

"Don't, Polly darling," Evelyn begged. "Don't, it's all right now. And my husband will—"

Polly sat up, brushing back damp ringlets from her brow.

"He won't do nothin' to help me," she shot out. "Nothin' at all! First, I know him better'n you do. Then next, I wouldn't ask him. 'Cause—'cause I'm that bad, I ought to be without my Daddy Hopkins an' my Jerry baby." Her voice rose in wild appeal. "But, God dear, how much I want 'em. Oh, how I want 'em!"

The words cut into Evelyn's heart with the keenness of physical pain. Only a little while before she had stood alone at the brink of the grave. There had been no hope that the summmer would bring a helpless wee thing to hold her close to Marcus. But now—Her thoughts whirled. So great was her faith in Polly Hopkins that she knew in a little while she would be back in her husband's arms.

The attack of weeping over, Pollyop arose and beat again into pap the hard bread and hot water. This time she took all the sugar left in the cupboard. Daddy would not be home for over two years, and Baby Jerry probably never, and she—she wouldn't be in the shanty long. Groaning, she whipped the spoon so fiercely that some of the contents of the cup splashed on the floor.

"It ain't very toothsome," she said, coming back to the cot; "but the hut's cold, an' you need a lot of warmin' up. I'm goin' now an' get your man. You get this hot pap into your stomach while I'm gone."

Evelyn waved the cup away, holding out a shaking hand.

"I don't want you to go without me, Pollyop," she cried. "Please, don't leave me here alone. I'm terribly scared, I—I—"

The grave young squatter contemplated her for the space of twenty seconds, perhaps.

"You're afraid of the fishermen, ain't you, Miss?" she asked. "Well, you've got a right to be! Larry's different from the rest, though he was as willin', up to this night, to chop off your head, as me. But Larry's heart's soft and kind, Larry's is."

"I'm afraid of everybody," gasped Evelyn. "Everybody but you, Polly. Please, take me with you, or—or—let me stay till morning."

A slight shake of Pollyop's head brought Evelyn to a sitting position, but pain-racked bones and nerves laid her back again.

"There," interjected the other girl. "You can see how hard it'd be to get you through the snow to your ma's house. You'd die before you got there. I'm blest if you wouldn't. No, I got to go alone, Miss."

Noting the fear in Mrs. Mackenzie's eyes, she bent over the cot.

"Will you believe something I'm goin' to tell you, Eve?" she said in a wheedling tone.

"Surely I will, Polly," answered Evelyn, wiping her eyes, "but I'm so afraid, so awfully afraid."

"That's no lie," replied Pollyop impetuously, "an' as I said, you got a right to be scared of the squatters. Why, only this afternoon I hated you an' Old Marc as hard as the rest of the Silent City folks—more, mebbe! But—but what I was really goin' to tell you is this. If I lug you along with me, you won't have no baby in the summer. That's God's truth I'm tellin' you, too."

Evelyn lowered her lids, and a painful flush mounted to her hair.

"You're wantin' the little thing, ain't you?" demanded Polly, her voice vibrant with emotion. "Now, be a big woman, an' stay while I'm gone, will you? I'll promise to hustle for all I'm worth."

Mrs. Mackenzie's timid glance ran around the room.

"I suppose so," she whimpered, "but what if some of your people came here?" She shuddered and went on hurriedly: "Polly, what're you going to say to Marcus?"

"I don't know yet," mumbled Pollyop, "but I'll bring him back. Oh, I got it! Say, I'll stick you away in Granny Hope's coop-hole. No squatter'd think to go in there, even if he comes in. Here! I'll help you."

Tenderly she coaxed and begged, but without avail, and patiently Polly sat down on the side of the cot.

"Miss Eve," she took up in low tones, "I'm goin' to tell you something Granny Hope told me. Now, you want to get home to your man, don't you?"

"Yes, yes, oh, so bad, Pollyop," cried Evelyn, "but I can't stay here alone! I can't! I can't!"

She did not think then of the many days and nights the other girl had passed by herself in the same little shack.

"Mebbe it does seem so, Eve," said Polly Hopkins. "But, honey, when I'm done you'll be thinkin' different. Now, listen; don't you know way down in your insides that your man's nearly sufferin' his life away?"

Evelyn burst forth into weeping afresh.

"Of course I know it, Polly," she sobbed, "but—"

"An' you want him to be wailing all night till daybreak, not knowin' whether you're in the land of the livin' or not, huh?"

This was a solemn question asked by a very solemn-eyed girl.

"Another thing," continued Polly. "When it comes daybreak, there'll be a lot of squatters about. They come every day to this hut. I'd have to leave you then, wouldn't I? Tonight it's stormin', an' most of 'em are in bed. I could run as fast as a rabbit an' be back in a jiffy. Can't you screw up your courage an' let me go?"

This long statement Evelyn thought over for a few moments. Then:

"Perhaps I could, if—"

"I know you can," interrupted Pollyop. "Now, listen; Granny Hope said anything you want you can have out of love's own heart for the askin'."

"But I'm such a wicked girl," moaned Evelyn dismally.

"So be I," returned Pollyop promptly. "We're both rotten bad, God knows, but never mind all that now. I got to get Old Marc; an' the only way you can help is to stay quiet while I'm out for him. Now, lean on me an' I'll stow you away in the rubbish room till I get back."

Ashamed to make further appeals to the girl who was showing more spirit than she had ever thought possible for any girl to show, Evelyn allowed Pollyop to pick her up and stand her on the floor.

Then the weak leaned on the strong, and when Polly Hopkins tucked the blankets about Evelyn, she whispered:

"Granny said prayers in this room all last year an' way on till she died. 'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want!' Granny said was one of the best to keep in mind."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

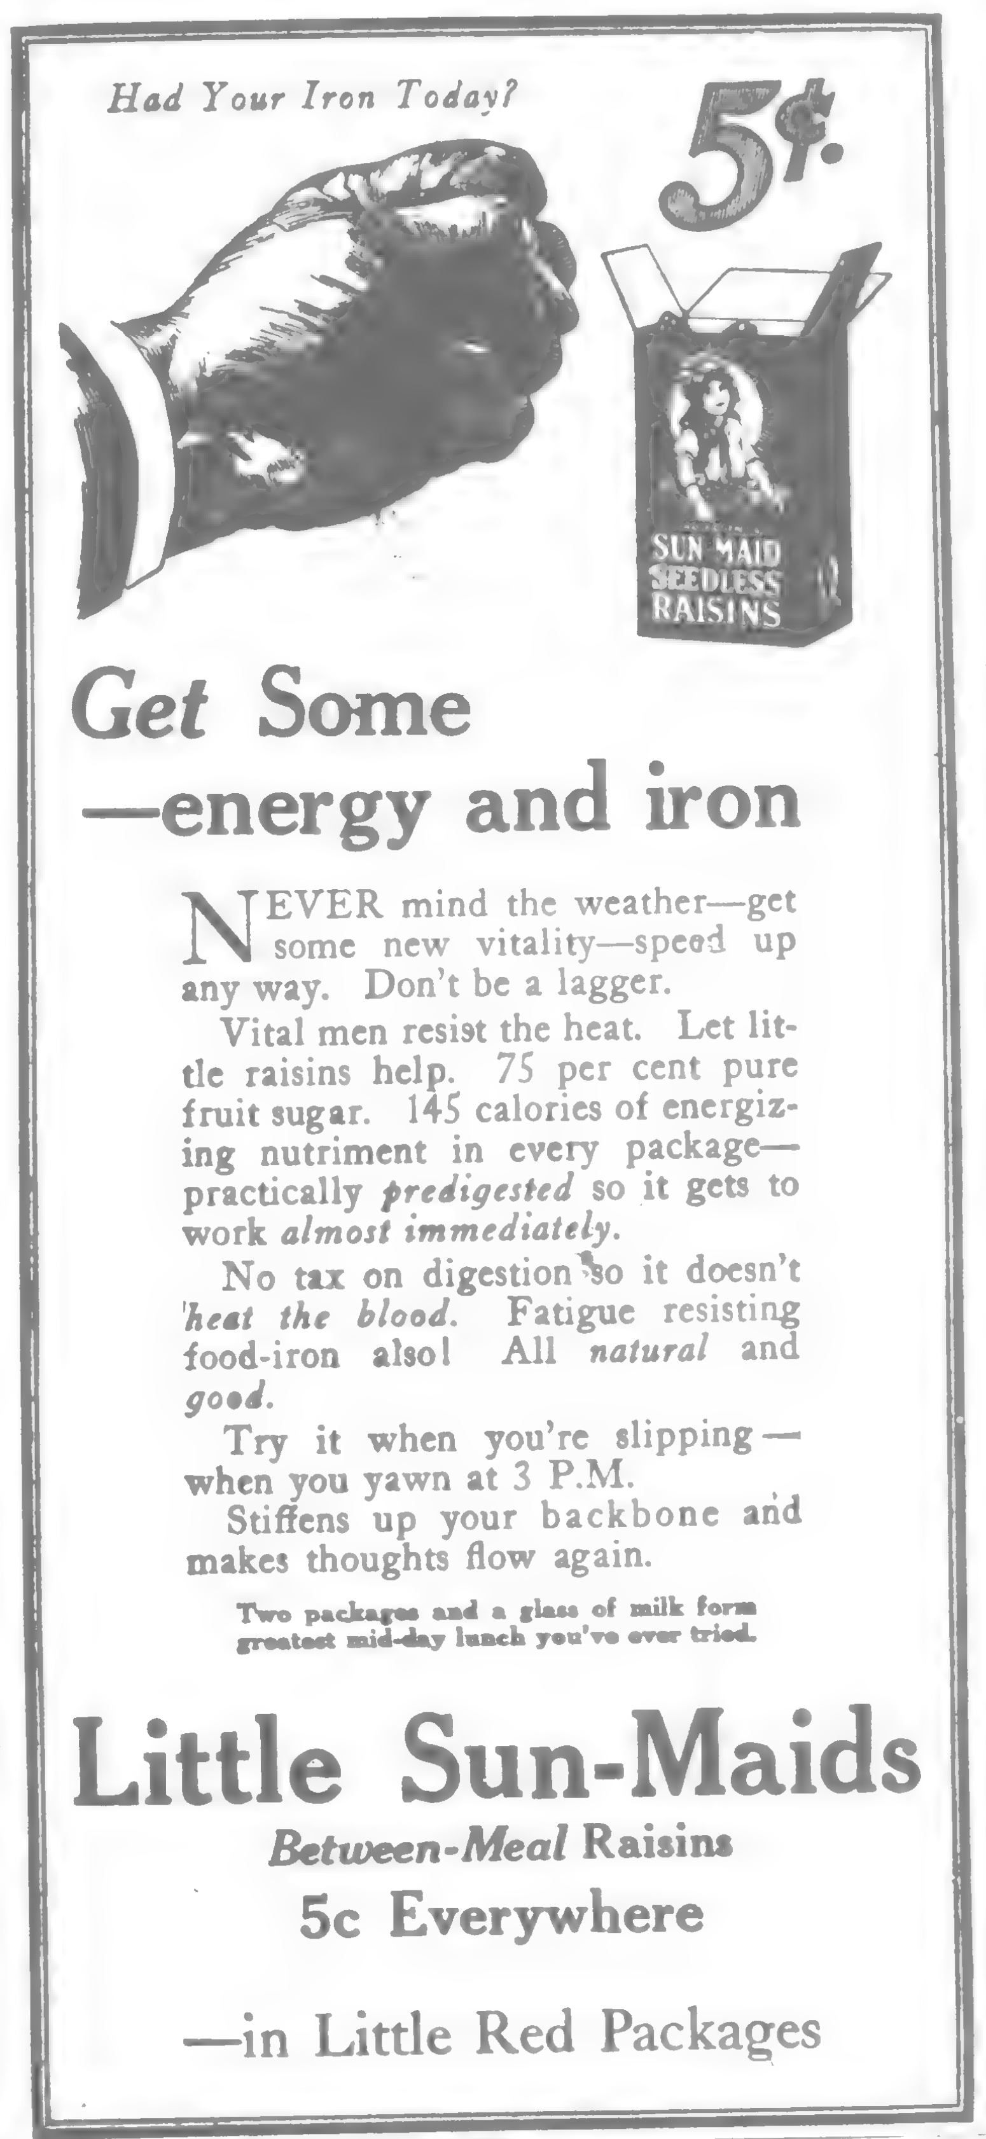
Looking Ahead.

Wedmore—What's the idea of giving your fiancee a cigarette case? Does she smoke?

Gayboy—Oh, no, but she's just about due to break off and send my presents back, and I can use it myself.

Ways of the Sex.

When a young man asks a girl for her photograph the immediately [illegible] [illegible] as a matrimonial possibility.—Boston Transcript.



Had Your Iron Today?

5¢

SUN-MAID SEEDLESS RAISINS

Get Some —energy and iron

NEVER mind the weather—get some new vitality—speed up any way. Don't be a lagger.

Vital men resist the heat. Let little raisins help. 75 per cent pure fruit sugar. 145 calories of energizing nutriment in every package—practically predigested so it gets to work almost immediately.

No tax on digestion so it doesn't heat the blood. Fatigue resisting food-iron also! All natural and good.

Try it when you're slipping—when you yawn at 3 P.M.

Stiffens up your backbone and makes thoughts flow again.

Two packages and a glass of milk form greatest mid-day lunch you've ever tried.

Little Sun-Maids
Between-Meal Raisins
5c Everywhere

—in Little Red Packages

10c Makes Old Waists Like New

Putnam Fadeless Dyes—dyes or tints as you wish

Turning It Loose.

"Heavens, woman! You've turned yourself into a veritable talking machine. Why, all through our long engagement you had hardly a word to say."

"I know it, but all the time I was thinking of things to say after we were married."—Judge.

Important to Mothers

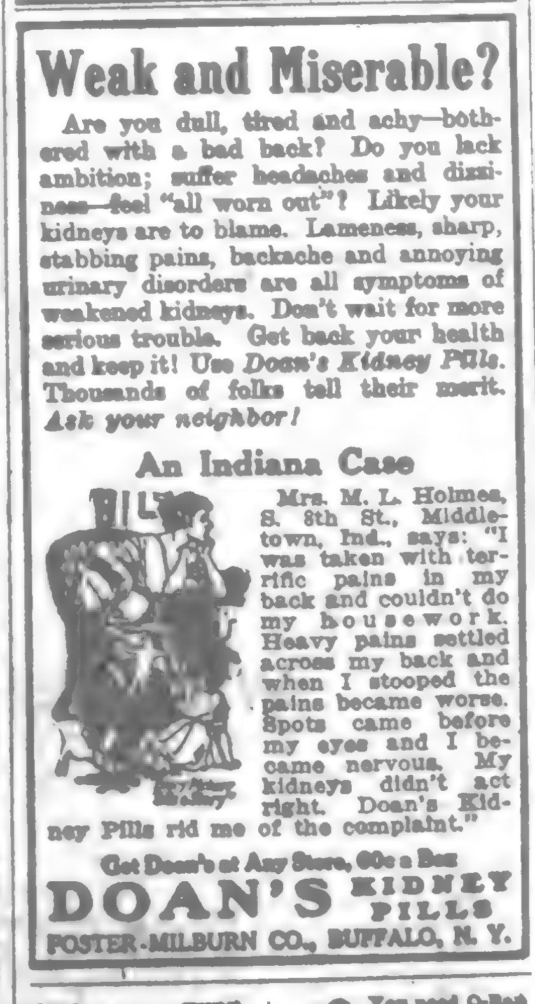
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A smart man never makes the same mistake, but there are a million kinds of mistakes.



Weak and Miserable?

Are you dull, tired and achy—bothered with a bad back? Do you lack ambition; suffer headaches and dizziness—feel "all worn out"? Likely your kidneys are to blame. Lameness, sharp, stabbing pains, backache and annoying urinary disorders are all symptoms of weakened kidneys. Don't wait for more serious trouble. Get back your health and keep it! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands of folks tell their merit. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

Mrs. M. L. Holmes, S. 8th St., Middletown, Ind., says: "I was taken with terrific pains in my back and couldn't do my housework. Heavy pains settled across my back and when I stooped the pains became worse. Spots came before my eyes and I became nervous. My kidneys didn't act right. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the complaint."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Hair Thin? You need Q-Ban Hair Tonic to strengthen it and to grow new hair—it vitalizes the roots and stops hair falling out—fills bald spots rapidly. Try it! At all good druggists, 75c, or direct from HESSIG-ELLIS, Chemists, Memphis, Tenn.

ABSORBINE

will reduce inflamed, swollen [illegible], Sprains, Bruises, [illegible] [illegible] and infected [illegible] quickly as it is a [illegible] antiseptic and [illegible]. Pleasant to [illegible] does not blister or [illegible] the hair, and [illegible] work the horse. [illegible] bottle delivered.

Book 7 A free.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 26--1922.

Electricity's March.

In less than 20 years the electricity produced in America has increased more than 15 times, until it is now five times greater than the energy that every man in the nation could put forth in a year, working eight hours a day. Obeisance to the real "bear for work!"

If you use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry, you will not be troubled by those tiny rust spots, often caused by inferior bluing. Try it and see.—Advertisement.

"Line's Busy."

"The new guest must be a lover of solitude."

"Yes?"

"He spends most of his time in a telephone booth."

"A man isn't solitary if he's talking to somebody over the wire."

"Umph! Many a man goes into a telephone booth who doesn't succeed in starting a conversation."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Watch Cuticura Improve Your Skin On rising and retiring gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. It is wonderful what Cuticura will do for poor complexions, dandruff, itching and red rough hands.—Advertisement.

Sometimes There.

"They kissed when the judge granted their divorce decree?"

"Yes."

"There's nothing like parting friends."

"But is it proper for a man and woman to kiss in such a public way when they are no longer married?"

"I see no objection to it, provided their future mates are not in court."

REST YOUR TIRED FEET

ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, stops the pain of corns and bunions, and gives quick relief to sweating, callous, tired, aching, tender feet, blisters and sore spots. It rests the feet, keeps them cool and comfortable. Shoes and stockings wear twice as long when you walk in comfort.—Advertisement.

The Superlative.

"Drought!" exclaimed the old timer, "You folks don't know what drought is. Why, in the early '70s my corn made 18 acres to the bushel!"—New York Sun.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS INDIGESTION

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Legal Publications

Notice Of Disposal Of Promissory Notes

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Town Trustees of the Incorporated Town of St. Joe, in DeKalb County, Indiana, will, from this date until the 15th day of July, 1922, at the office of the Town Clerk of said Town of St. Joe, Indiana, receive bids or offers for the disposal of promissory notes or evidences of indebtedness of said Town of St. Joe in the sum and amount of One Thousand Dollars, in the denominations, amounts and rates of interest and due as follows, to-wit:

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1923;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1924;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1925;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1926;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1927.

All said notes with interest at 5% per annum from date payable on the first day of each July hereafter until paid.

Said disposition and issue of said evidences of indebtedness will be for the purpose of securing funds for the repair of the streets in said Town of St. Joe. No offer will be considered for less than the full face value of said notes or evidences of indebtedness and the right to reject all offers is hereby reserved.

Wm. Curie, President of the Board of Town Trustees of the Town of St. Joe, Ind.
B. S. Sheffer, Town Clerk.
F. M. Monroe,
John Wineland, Board of Town Trustees.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Charley Suther, of Butler, spent last week here at the home of her parents.

Mrs. Hubbart's mother has been the guest of the Hubbart family a couple of weeks.

Henry Herrick was quite ill the latter part of the week at the E. E. Traxler home, where he has been making his home.

Children's Day was observed at the U. B. Church, Sunday morning; and at the Christian Church, Sunday evening.

Vertis McDaniels and Hugh Traxler, wife and daughter went to Adrian, Mich., Saturday, bringing Mrs. Benner home with them Sunday.

Levon R. McDonald, who was called here the first of the week on account of the death of his mother, returned to Owosso, Mich., Saturday, where he is employed as a telegraph operater.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral of Mrs. Nella McDonald held here Friday were: Mrs. Bertha Mote and baby, of Angola; Mrs. Clara Wisner and Miss Thelma Wisner, of Mets, Ind; Mrs. E. C. Allen, of Farmer, Ohio; Sumner Rose and wife, of West Unity, Ohio; Ollie Rice and wife, of Albion; Dea McDonald and wife, of Kendallville; Frank McDonald and daughter, Mrs. Laura Williams and Harry Fuller and wife, of Garrett; Mrs. Anna Clark and son, of Hicksville, and many friends and relatives from Butler.

THE
W. L.
DOUGLAS
SHOE

Chudarys
Auburn, Ind.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	130	$ 7.40
M. P	73	8.89
Lutheran	108	6.45
M. E. Spencer	135	8.61
Lutheran	76	3.04
Newville U. B.	124	5.62
Christian	89	3.59
Coburntown	69	2.79
Concord
Rehoboth	100	4.90
Mt. Pleasant	85	3.99

W. C. T. U. NEWS

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Lillian Buckingham, Friday afternoon, June 30th., at 2 o'clock. The subject of the meeting will be "Flower Missions." The program will be as follows:

Music	Hostess
Devotional	Emma Bishop
Song "The Gardens of the World"	Ada Bassett
Reading "Three Homes"	Mrs. Daily
Flower Missions	Lillian Buckingham
Story of Jennie Cassedy	Delora Curie
Responses	Flowers
Music.

Christian Church Notes

The Loyal Boys and Girls Class enjoyed an afternoon Friday at the country home of the Misses Violet and Latha Dermott; it being in honor of the former's birthday anniversary. Twenty-three members and guests were present. The time was spent in having a fine social time.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters Class was banner class for attendance 26 being present. The Loyal Boys and Girls were a close second with 24 present.

HERE AND THERE

Charles Rice is spending the week at Lake Gage.

Mrs. S. S. Davis spent Saturday night with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davis, at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kees and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees.

Edgar Lysher is working through haying for Adrian Washler, and Claire Coburn for Jesse Wright.

John Guisinger, of Garrett, came Saturday evening for a few days visit with St. Joe relatives.

S. D. Gee and little grand-daughter Lucile spent Sunday with Milo Provines and family, near Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Ward spent Saturday and Sunday visiting friends at Montpelier and Bryan, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lindley and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Virginia Lawson.

Mrs. Everett Mavis and two children, of Hicksville, came Thursday for an indefinite visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leighty and son Carl, of Chicago, spent from Thursday until Friday as guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Kate A. Leighty.

Mesdames H. M. Widney, B. E. Widney and Ed Storer and Miss Edith Widney were Fort Wayne visitors, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Henley and children spent Sunday afternoon at Auburn. Also they spent Friday afternoon at Hicksville, being accompanied by Mrs. Pauline McDaniel and baby to the latter place.

Our June Stock Adjustment
SALE
IS CROWDING OUR STORE
Men and young men are quick to take advantage of such a value-giving event as this.
HART SCHAFFNER & MARX
SUITS
$25
At least $10 under the regular price as Hart, Schaffner & Marx did not make a spring suit to retail for less than $35.

But Here's the Real Sensation
Over 800
HART SCHAFFNER & MARX
FINE WORSTED $48 and $50
SUITS
Will Be Sold During the Next Seven Days at $35
We can give you an extra pair of trousers with nearly all of these fine worsted suits for $9—giving you a four-piece suit —coat, vest and two pair of trousers for $44.

OVER 1,200 MICHAELS-STERN & COMPANY $30 and $50 suits have been marked to sell during this sale at three special prices
$18 $25 $35

Patterson-Fletcher Co.
"The Store That Does Things"
THE NEW HOME OF THE NETTLETON SHOE

BAD BREATH

DO YOU WANT your friends to avoid you? They will certainly do so when your breath is bad. There is no excuse for anyone having a bad breath. It is caused by disorders of the stomach which can be corrected by taking Chamberlain's Tablets. Many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by the use of these tablets after years of suffering. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Salt! Salt!
And More Salt
We will have a car in in a few days.
Give us your order now-you will save
Farmers' Co-Operative Milling CompanY
G. A. Ward, Mgr.
St. Joe, Indiana

The kingdom of Great Britain possesses 11,475,054 square miles of the earth's territory, and 378,725,857 of its population.

Mrs. Anna Dilley entertained at Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hartman, two children, and Miss Stella Hartman and Edison Winebrenner, all of Albion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel went to Lake George, Friday, where they joined Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel, of Peru, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Milliman for a few days outing.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bassett and son Charles had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Merrifield and two children and Martin Merrifield, all of Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lindley, Mrs. Anna Koch and Mrs. Nan Lysher were Sunday afternoon callers at the Ben Soule home, near Spencerville. Mrs. Lysher also called on Mrs. George Mann nearby.

Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Widney, of Albion, returned home Sunday evening after the former had been an over Sunday guest and the latter a week's guest of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Widney and Mrs. Alice Copp.

The sudden death of Mrs. William Capp on Monday, June 19th, came as a shock to the people of Butler. Heart trouble, as a result of the influenza of a few years ago, was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Viola Coe and children, of California, is at Auburn visiting her father, Mr. J. W. May, who has been very sick with heart trouble for some time. Mrs. Coe will be remembered as Miss Viola May to friends at St. Joe and vicinity. Her husband will join her in Auburn some time in August, when they will return to California together. Mr. G. W. Coe is a son of Henry Coe of Butler.

Mrs. S. A. Abel is home again from a several weeks visit with her son, Wallace Abel, and family, near Newville.

Lewis Rhodefer, one of Auburn's well known young business men, died Friday morning, June 23, at a hospital in Fort Wayne, after an illness of eighteen weeks, the last twelve days of which he had been a patient in the hospital.

William Rockefeller, brother of John D. Rockefeller, died at North Tarrytown, N. Y., Saturday, June 24th, following an attack of pneumonia of but one week. Five physicians were in attendance when the rich man expired. He was 81 years old.

Governor Len Small of Illinois was acquitted late Saturday afternoon of the charges to defraud the state of which he is chief executor, of huge sums of money. A jury in the Lake county circuit court returned a verdict of not guilty.

Estate of Drowned Man Valued $12,000

Mrs. Lillie D. Strong, of Auburn, was appointed by Judge Dan M. Link Saturday as administratrix of the estate of her husband, the late Guy M. Strong, who was drowned in Hodge's gravel pit June 20.

The estate consists of $4,000 in personal property and $8,000 in real estate. The heirs are the widow and four children, Lovenia, George, Kenneth and Evelyn Strong, all of Auburn.

The administratrix filed $8,000 bond with DeLoss H. White and Amos Friend as sureties.

The Gray Bus Line
Schedule Effective
On and After
Wednesday, June 28, 1922
Connects With Hamilton, Pleasant, James and Crooked Lakes. Connects With Launch at Hamilton Lake.

Read Down		POINTS	STATIONS	Read Up
A. M.	P. M.			A. M.	P. M.
6 45	3 45	Fort Wayne	East Side Court House	9 45	6 45
7 15	4 15	Cedarville	Blough Store	9 15	6 15
7 25	4 25	Leo	Elshburn's	9 05	6 05
7 45	4 45	Spencerville	High's	8 45	5 45
7 55	4 55	St. Joe	Brown's	8 35	5 35
8 25	5 25	Auburn	North Side Court House	8 05	5 05
8 40	5 40	Waterloo	Teller Hotel Main Corner	7 50	4 50
9 05	6 05	Hamilton Lake	B.F. Smith's	7 25	4 25
9 25	6 25	Pleasant Lake	Service Sta'n	7 05	4 05
9 40	6 40	Angola	Henry Hotel or on Circle	6 50	3 50
[illegible]	7 00	James Lake	Villa	6 30	3 30
[illegible]	[illegible]	Crooked Lake	[illegible]	6 25	3 25

[illegible] The Line. Get Our Rates for Parties or Special Trip Anywhere

[illegible], Manager, Ft. Wayne, Indiana

JUNE

How Much Influence Have YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Patronize the Advertisers.

Roscoe Walters received the appointment of Postmaster at this place recently.

The ladies of the Methodist Church will hold a Bake sale at the bank, Saturday.

Roscoe Walters recently purchased the L. W. Steward residence and moved into same Tuesday.

Henry Beams, Sr., spent several days last week at the Hope-Methodist Hospital, taking treatments.

Mrs. Frank Childs of Sutherland, Fla, is here to spend the summer with Herman Reasoner and wife.

Mrs Florence Silberg, who is a patient at the Lutheran Hospital at Ft. Wayne, is some better at this writing.

Try a want ad in the News.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seveuth St., Auburn, Indiana.

Charles Decker while cranking an automobire on Saturday, had the misfortune to break his arm. He is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs William Vallieu and family of Harlan, and Harvey Milller and family of near New Haven, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Vallieu and family.

"It is one medicine that does all that's claimed for it." Thousands have said it about Tanlac and so will you if you try it. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mrs. Annie Henderson spent several days last week at the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne undergoing an examination. She will take treatments of Dr. Deulming of that place. Mrs. Henderson has been ailing for some time.

The Most Successful Farmer—Who Is He?

Who in your opinion is the most successful farmer? Not necessarily the one who produces the most because his COSTS may be high, nor the one whose costs are lowest because his PRODUCTION may be small—but rather the one who produces the most per dollar paid out. In good years or bad decreased costs mean increased profits.

Silos garages, cattle barns, implement sheds, feeding floors, correctly foundationed corn cribs and granaries—all perform certain duties that help to lessen costs and magnify profits.

We have plans of these and other improvements that we would be glad to talk over, in an informal way, whether or not you are definitely [illegible]. Why not drop in [illegible] you are in town. [illegible]

[illegible] Lumber Co.

POPULAR SWEATERS

In the bright lexicon of youth is written the sweater, and a sweaterless wardrobe is not to be imagined—either for young or old. The tuxedo or sweater-coat is deservedly the most popular style, made of wool or of silk yarn like that one pictured here. It is shown in many colors and in black or white. Collar and cuff sets of checked silk or plain linen are fashionable with the quieter colors.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

Otis Koch, who is employed at the General Electric Lights, had the misfortune to be severly injured Thursday noon by a wild ball while watching a ball game. He was taken to the Hope Methodist Hospital where he is slowly improving.

Obituary

Flora A. Tustison, daughter of Nelson and Mary Ann Scholes, was born in Concord township, DeKalb county, Indiana, July 11, 1858. She departed this life at the old home farm, Jun 24, 1922, aged 63 years, 11 months and 13 days.

She was one of a family of seven children: Three brothers—John of Burk, South Dakota; Frank of St. Joe, Ind.; and Joseph, of Waynesburg, Pennsylvania; and three sisters—Mrs. Ida Williams, of St. Joe, Ind.; Lydia who died in childhood; and Mrs. Emma Abels who preceded her sister to the home beyond, eight weeks ago.

She was united in marriage to Charles A. Tustison, October 24, 1880. To this union were born two sons: Lee O. of Defiance, Ohio; and Earl W. of Hicksville, Ohio The husband and sons with two grandchildren, Irma and Keith, all survive.

In her girlhood she united with the Church of Christ at Coburn's Corners, continuing a faithful member of that congregation, maintaining an unfaltering faith in her Lord and Master.

She was a faithful wife and mother, ever concerned in the welfare of her family. A host of friends will remember her as a good neighbor and loyal friend, who when she was able to be among them, rejoiced in their happiness and served with aid and sympathy in their hours of sorrow.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon, June 26, at the residence Rev. John B. Dickson, pastor of the Hicksville Church of Christ officiating. Interment was made in the Alton cemetery. The pallbearers were Laney Gee, Arthur Wilmot, Will Maxwell, Meade Baker, Will Hamilton and Victor Dermott. The flower girls were Gladys Place, Nellie Shull, Minnie Walker and Doris Shull. Music was furnished by members of the choir of the Coburn's Corners church.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank the neighbors and friends who so kindly ministered during the illness and at the death of our dear wife and mother; and express our appreciation of the floral offerings.

Chas. A. Tust'son and Sons.

LeRoy M. King, son of Homer M. and Ella King, was born Jan. 7, 1902. He passed away June 21, 1922, aged 20 years, 5 months and 2 weeks.

An older sister preceded him to the Spirit World. He leaves to mourn his departure his sorely stricken parents, two sisters, four brothers and many other relatives.

LeRoy had a sweet temper and loving disposition. In his long and severe affliction he was patient, and endured pain without a murmur.

He was prepared to leave this earthly home and requested that we all meet him in Heaven. Although we sorrowfully follow the casket which contains the silent form to its last resting place, we would not wish to bring him back contrary to the will of God.

He is now a full sharer in the glorified bliss of Heaven. He dwells where Jesus is, and is in full possession of Eternal Life. He cannot come back to us, but we can go to him.

Therefore in the hope of meeting again we say, "Goodbye, Lee."

A precious one from us is gone,
 A voice we love is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
 That never can be filled.
Dearest son, can it be
 That thou art here no more?
Hast thou passed the Pearly Gates,
 To dwell on yonder shore?
Farewell, we never can forget,
 Thy words of hope and cheer.
We love thee, yes, we miss thee,
 Yet we feel that thou art near.
Peaceful be thy silent sleep,
 Rest on, sweet one, forever,
Hope in our home above to meet,
 When we have crossed the river.

The funeral services were held at the home of his parents, three miles east of Spencerville, on Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, officiating and assisted by the Rev. Brewster of the Spencerville Methodist church.

He was laid to rest at the Rockford cemetery, Ohio, the early home of his parents.

Roscoe Walters, funeral director.

COLETOWN

Herbert Mills, wife and baby left for Akron, Sunday.

Mrs. Bessie Evans, of Wayne, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Vere Nelson and family.

R. H. Conine and wife, J. W. Hart and wife were recent guests of Dan Walden and wife, near Farmer Center.

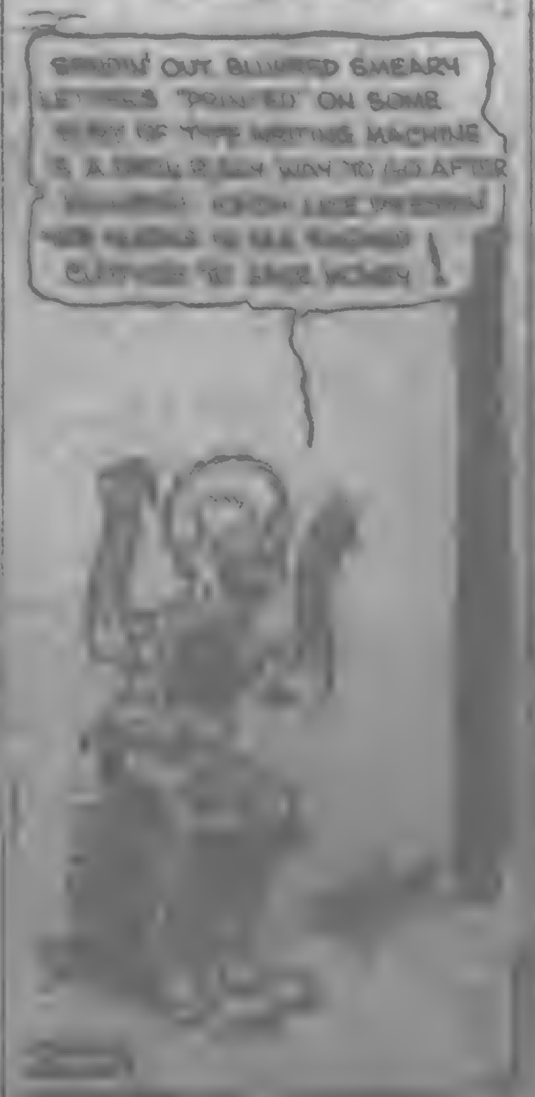
Children's Day was observed at the church, Sunday evening, a good program was given.

Mrs. J. W. Hart entertained cherry pickers the past week. They picked close to a thousand quarts.

Mrs. J. W. Hart will entertain the Coburn's Corners Aid Society, this (Thursday) afternoon.

Everett Kain and wife, Homer Donley and wife visited Sunday in Ft. Wayne with W. E. Jackson and wife.

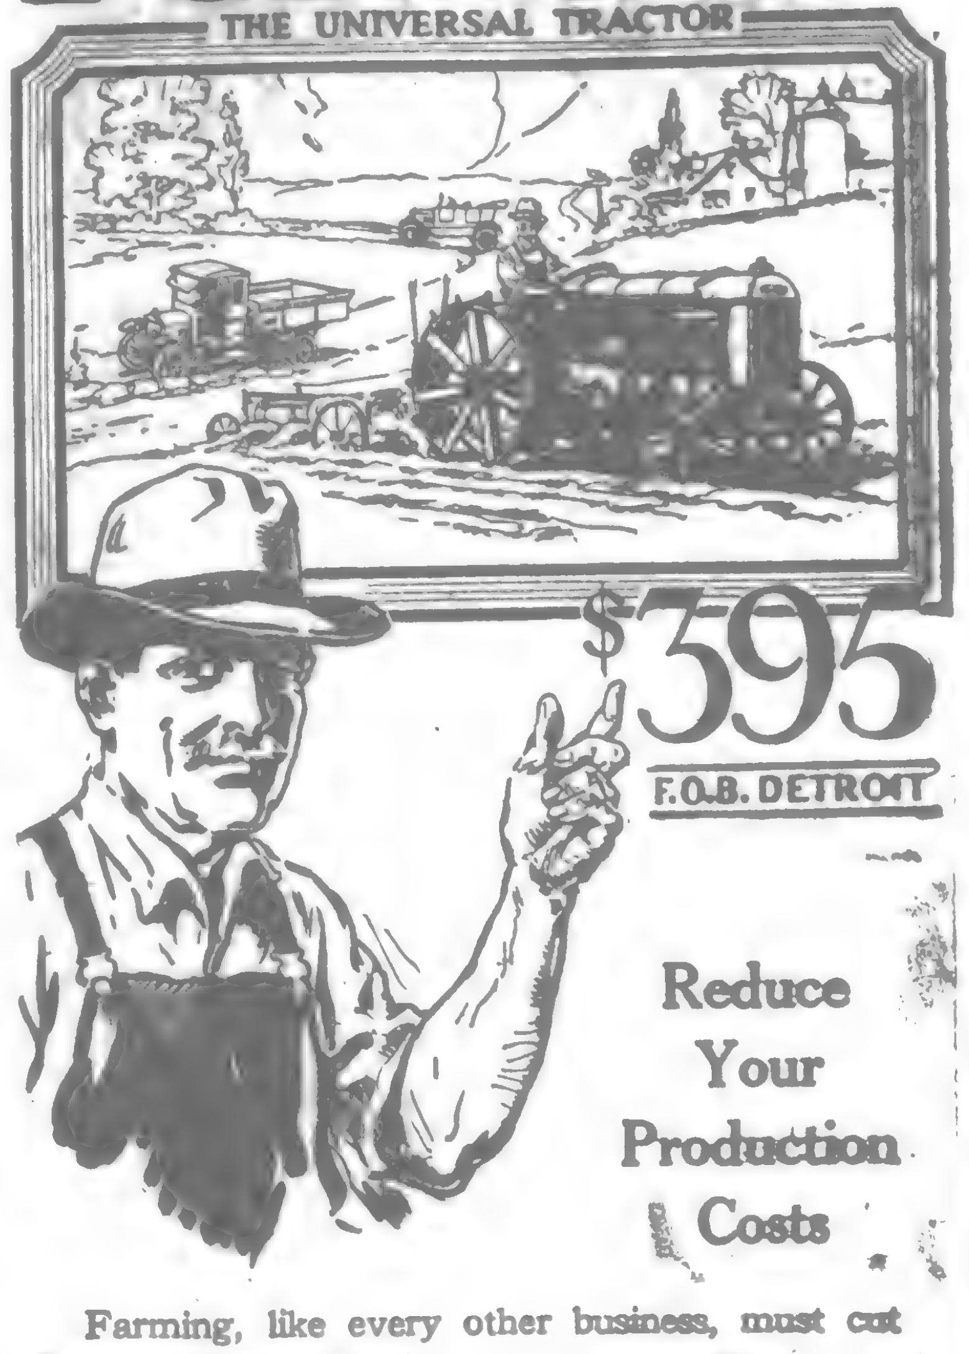
MICKIE SAYS



SENDIN' OUT BLURRED SMEARY LETTERS "PRINTED" ON SOME ... OF TYPE WRITING MACHINE IS A ... WAY TO GO AFTER ...

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR



$395

F.O.B. DETROIT

Reduce Your Production Costs

Farming, like every other business, must cut down the overhead.

It is not a question of being able to afford a Fordson; it is a question of being able to continue farming on the old too-costly basis.

The farmer's problem is not all a sales problem; it is also a production problem. He must cut down the cost of production.

The Fordson does more work at a lower cost and in less time than the old hand methods.

Let us give you the proof. Write, phone or call today.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

BIBLE THOUGHT —FOR TODAY—

The BACK TO THE BIBLE Bureau Service

A MORNING PRAYER:— Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.—Psalm 51:10.

WHERE IS YOUR TREASURE?—Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.—Matthew 6:21.

SAFETY WHILE ASLEEP:—I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep: for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety.—Psalm 4:8.

THE GLAD AWAKENING:—As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.—Psa. 17:15.

BE CHARITABLE:—Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.—Gal. 6:1.

GUARD THE TONGUE:—Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.—Psa. 34:13, 14.

ALL IS WELL:—Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.—John 14: 1, 2.

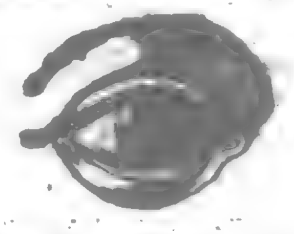
THINK OF THE HARVEST:—Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.—Galatians 6:7.

THE WAY TO FREEDOM:—Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—John 8:32

THE WAY TO PEACE:—Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace: thereby good shall come unto thee.—Job 22:21.

THE ONLY SAFE TRUST:—Some trust in chariots, and some in horses: but we will remember the name of the Lord our God.—Psa. 20:7.

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

[illegible] CALHOUN STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE SQUARING OF MR. JACK

In Which One Good Turn Deserved Another and in Spite of Conscience, Got It.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

WITH neat celerity Miss B. put the tiny rooms in order, and then went out into the store to "open up." It was seven o'clock, and Hayden's Notion Store always opened at seven.

As usual this morning Miss B. left the outer door wide open while she removed the dust-cloth from the counter, and patted into precision the cards of hooks-and-eyes in their orderly rows of boxes. The act was symbolical of her whole life—always had Miss B. patted into precision any irregular hopes, ambitions, or experiences that had ever dared to obtrude a corner into her habit-smoothed existence.

She turned now complacently to view her work—and confronted a man: a disorderly looking man who had stumbled through the doorway, and who was gazing at her now with the eyes of a hunted animal at bay.

"For God's sake—don't give me away!" he begged. The next moment he had dashed by her and dropped out of sight behind the counter.

The woman caught her breath and rubbed her eyes dazedly. She was sure she was dreaming. There could not be a man, really, behind that counter—her counter!

Outside a swarm of men and boys headed by two policemen swept into the street and broke into irresolute little groups. Then one of the officers darkened her doorway.

"You didn't see a big, dark haired chap, runnin', did ye?" he panted. "Bill thought he'd made fur this doorway. He might ha' slipped in when yer back was turned, ye know. If ye don't mind, we'll look." And he strode across the room, leaving his colleague to guard the door.

It was then that the extraordinary happened: Miss B. deliberately turned and walked behind her counter; and when she had taken up her position her skirts entirely screened the hiding man.

The building was a small one. It comprised the store, with a bedroom, bathroom and living-room behind it, and a wide, unfinished room above where were a few surplus goods, trunks and boxes. A search in this limited area naturally could not be of long duration; and the officer was soon back in the store.

"You're off, Bill," he growled. "He ain't here. Thank ye, ma'am." he nodded toward the woman behind the counter. The next moment the door banged shut, and the gesticulating men and boys took themselves noisily out of sight.

In the store the woman backed hurriedly away from her position. All the bravery had fled from her manner. She stood white and trembling, waiting.

There was a moment's silence, then from the shadows peered a man's face.

"They gone?"

"Yes."

The man gazed at her curiously; then his eyes softened.

"See here, little woman, you sure was game," he murmured. "But—why did you do it?"

The woman shook her head.

"I—don't—know," she stammered.

"You don't know?"

Again she shook her head.

"Your eyes—they looked somehow like—Bobby's," she faltered.

The man smiled.

"I'm sure I'm much obliged to—Bobby," he said gravely.

"You see, there was a dog after him, just like those men were after you," explained the woman, hurriedly; "and he ran to me for protection just as you did. I kept him then almost a year."

"You kept him!"

"Yes. Then he died. He'd got to be a real big cat then, though."

"Oh-h!" murmured the man. "Oh-h!"

"And he was such a good cat! He always—sh-h—be careful!"

The warning was scarcely needed, for the man, too, had heard the step at the street door, and had drawn back hastily.

The customer was a woman. She said she wanted a spool of number sixty thread; but she spent just one minute buying that—and ten minutes talking about the recent excitement. Not that she knew who the fugitive was, or what he had done.

"You see," shivered Miss B., tremulously addressing the dark corner a moment later, "you'll really have to go—man!"

Two reproachful eyes looked out at her.

"But, my dear lady, I've just come."

"But they're looking for you—everywhere!"

"They are—like dogs [illegible] my life." It was a [illegible] shot, but it had the mark. Miss B. winced visibly. "You see, if I could just camp here till dark," [illegible] to the door that led to the rear room and throwing it wide open. A moment later she stood shaking, alone, her back against the closed door. Then the street door opened and a woman entered.

[illegible]

"Why, land o' love, Miss B., don't jump so. It's only me," laughed the newcomer. "Did ye think it was the man they're chasin'? He's gone ages ago, I'll warrant ye. Say, I want some black elastic—the round kind. Got any?"

"Yes," said Miss B. faintly, as she forced her shaking limbs to carry her to the elastic-box behind the counter.

Trade was good at Hayden's Notion Store that morning. The rush of custom—and gossip—gave Miss B. no time, indeed, to attend to that fearsome secret behind her living-room until noon. Then she managed timidly to open the door and peep into the little room. At once she stepped inside and shut the door very quickly, her eyes wide with surprise and terror.

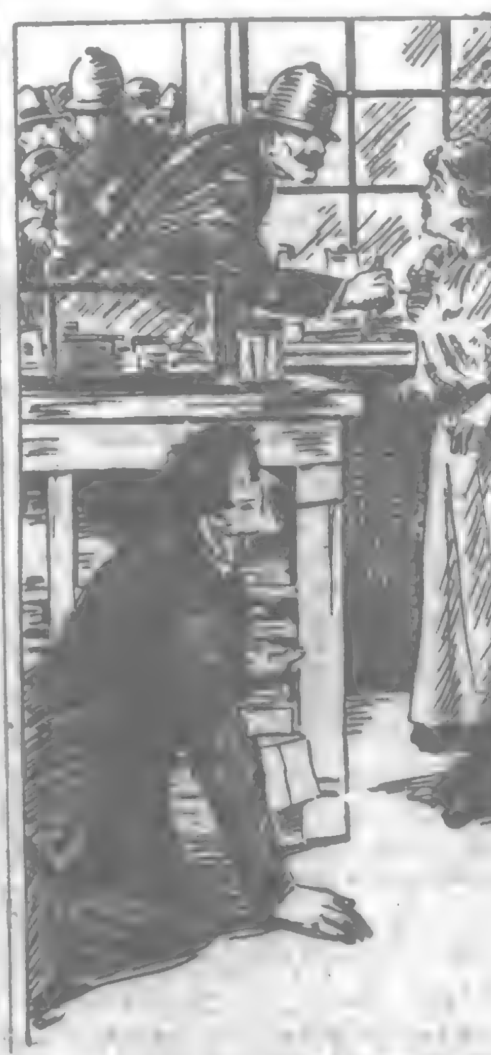
The man stood before the stove scrambling eggs. The table was neatly set for two, and the room smelt pleasantly of coffee and baked potatoes.

"Getting hungry?" smiled the man. "It's 'most ready. I thought you'd be comin' in now.

Miss B. moistened her dry lips and tried to speak, but no sound came.

"If you'll just sit down," suggested the man, cheerfully, motioning her toward the nearer chair.

The woman shook her head. This time she spoke, but her words were not at all what she had supposed they would be.



"You Didn't See a Big, Dark-Haired Chap Runnin', Did Ye?"

"It's broken—that chair."

"Not much it is!" laughed the man, whisking the chair bottom side up. "I mended it—see. Now try it." he ordered a moment later.

The afternoon was but a repetition of the forenoon except that now Miss B. utterly refused to discuss the morning's excitement with one of the dawdling shoppers. At five o'clock she found an opportunity to open the living-room door and toss the evening paper, which had just come, on to the table. She had not read the paper, but she had seen that there were huge black headlines. She could imagine what those headlines said.

At six o'clock Miss B., with a sigh of relief, closed and locked the store.

In the living-room only silence and exquisite order greeted her. Even the newspaper was gone, and the man was nowhere to be seen.

"Where are you?" called Miss B. sharply.

There was no answer.

With heightened color and compressed lips Miss B. crossed the floor to her bedroom door. If he had dared—

But he had not dared, apparently. The room was exactly as she had left it that morning. Miss B. turned her steps toward the stairway that led to the unfinished storeroom above. At the top [illegible]

[illegible]

It was Miss B. who prepared the meal this time. The man tried to help her, but his hands shook, and his feet stumbled as if his eyes could not see. Miss B. noticed then that his face had grown white and set. There was now no merry smile on his lips. At supper, too, he ate almost nothing. Miss B. thought she understood—it was those headlines.

At seven o'clock Miss B. lighted her lamp.

"It will be dark—quite dark soon," she said feverishly.

The man roused himself and rose to his feet.

"Miss—er, are you Miss Hayden?"

"Yes; Miss B. Hayden. Everyone says 'Miss B.'"

"Well, I wonder, Miss B., if you know—what you've done for me—today?" he asked in a low voice.

She stirred restlessly, and raised a protesting hand.

"And I wonder," he continued slowly, "if you'd be willing—to do—more."

"No, no, I mustn't! There's nothing I could do," she cried excitedly, staring into his face.

He turned and walked the length of the room, dropping himself into a chair before he spoke.

"Somewhere, years ago," he began, "I read a bit of history about some judges that had condemned a king to death. They had to hide to save their lives, and they came to New England. A minister took one and hid him in a secret room for twenty years. And no one knew that he was there. So you see—it can be—done."

The woman paled and started forward in her chair.

"You don't mean — you can't mean—" she stammered wildly, "that I—I—" She could not finish her sentence.

He made a gesture of dissent. The old whimsical smile came back to his face.

"Not for twenty years, of course; but, perhaps—for half of—twenty days," he murmured.

She sprang to her feet.

"No, no, never! It is impossible. I never heard of such a thing!"

"But I have just told you of one—for twenty years."

"But, I alone—a woman! Things like that don't happen, really, nowadays. They—couldn't!"

"No, they couldn't," echoed the man in a dull voice, with a sudden change of manner. "You are right. They—couldn't." He rose from his chair and went over to the fireplace. He seemed suddenly bent and old. "Don't worry. It will soon be dark," he murmured with forced cheeriness. "And then—I'll go."

Miss B. sat down impotently. Her whole face was drawn into anxious, terrified lines.

"Was it the—paper?" she asked.

He turned sharply.

"Did you—read it?" he demanded.

"No; but I thought maybe those—headlines—" she stopped helplessly.

An odd relief showed in the man's eyes. With a nervous movement he thrust his hand into his hip pocket and crowded into smaller space the half-sheet of newspaper that was there.

"It was—the paper," he acknowledged. "They're after me,—and they'll get me, of course."

Miss B. wet her lips.

"But what could I do?" she stammered.

For a moment he did not answer; then he spoke, his eyes carefully avoiding hers.

"If I could stay — up there"—he jerked his thumb toward the room above—"for a week, or maybe two, there'd be a chance then that I'd get away—without their—spottin' me."

In thinking it over after she had tremblingly gone to bed that night, Miss B. could not tell just how the man had carried the day. She knew only that he had carried it, and that he lay now in the room above on an old mattress that had been stored there.

With the coming of the dawn began strange days for the mistress of Hayden's Notion Store. Miss B., accustomed half her life to solitary meals prepared by herself, found now a curious charm in those prepared by, and shared with, an agreeable companion who plainly did his utmost to please.

So one by one the days passed. That she was doing wrong in harboring thus a fugitive from the law never occurred to Miss B. She was alone in the world.

The man himself was deferential, anxious to serve, and always pleasant. He seemed never to forget the service being done him, though he seldom referred to the cause that had called it forth. What he had done to occasion the search of the officers he did not tell, and Miss B. did not inquire. He did ask once for the newspaper, but only once, for Miss B. had nervously replied:

"I've stopped it. That first night it seemed to worry you, so I thought [illegible]"

"You think I—I don't know where they are, they won't know where I am, eh?" he had asked a little wearily.

[illegible]

"You should have a doctor; you must have a doctor," asserted Mr. Jack.

"No, no," croaked Miss B. huskily. "As if we could have a doctor come here! Besides, there's no one to get him. You can't go for a doctor, and I haven't any telephone, you know."

Mr. Jack set his lips suddenly into a straight, hard line, whereat Miss B. hastened to add:

"I don't need one, anyway. I'll be better in the morning."

"You will, indeed—or there will be a doctor," retorted the man, savagely, as he bent himself to the task of preparing a flaxseed poultice for Miss B.'s throat and lungs.

Miss B. went to bed that night with neither bolt nor lock nor barricading trunk to guard her door. It was all her hot, shaking hands could do to prepare herself for the smooth sheets that felt so cool and restful to her aching limbs.

In the room above, Mr. Jack did not go to bed at all, but sat up all night with his door wide open so that he might hear if from below should come a feeble call. As the night advanced his face became more haggard, and his mouth more sternly set. Long before dawn he crept downstairs and carried back with him a pencil and some paper. After that he wrote busily by the light of his little oil lamp.

At six o'clock Mr. Jack went downstairs to get breakfast. After a time he tapped at Miss B.'s door. There was no answer.

"Miss B., how are you?"

Still no answer.

The man drew in his breath then and held it suspended while he softly turned the knob and pushed open the door.

"Miss B., I'll have to know if you're—sick," he stammered.

In the bed a wild-eyed, flushed-cheeked woman sat straight up, staring into his face.

"Go away," she whispered. "I don't know you!" Plainly Miss B. was ill.

With a dismayed exclamation the man closed the door, and hurriedly effaced all evidences of his recent efforts toward breakfast-getting. Then, tucking into Miss B.'s work-basket the letter he had written during the night, he thrust his hat far down over his eyes, unlocked the back door, and watched his chance to slip out into the alley.

For some weeks Hayden's Notion Store remained closed to the public. In the rear rooms Miss B., with the anxious aid of the doctor, a nurse, and sundry kindhearted neighbors, was making a brave fight for life. It was a long fight, and a hard one; but in the end Miss B. opened wide her eyes, alight with her long-lost reason.

She began to ask questions immediately. There seemed to be something that she wanted to say—and yet she did not say it at once. At last the doctor heard this:

"Doctor, that man who ran away from the police—did he ever get caught?"

"Yes; but as it happened, the man he shot didn't die, after all, so it won't go hard—" The doctor stopped suddenly. Miss B. had fainted.

It was not until Miss B. had been up and dressed in her wrapper for three days that she found the closely written sheets of note paper in her work-basket. Then with a little sobbing cry she settled herself to read them.

Dear Miss B. (Mr. Jack had written):

It ain't daylight yet, but I'm going to write this now, as I'm afraid it will be too late tomorrow. I shall be gone then, for I'm sure I'll have to get a doctor to you somehow in the morning.

But first I want to tell you a little how I feel. I'm afraid I can't, though. I don't know where to begin. Here I am sitting up here worse than helpless while downstairs the woman I love—there! I've said it. That was the part I didn't know how to get out, and here it's come the first thing. I reckon, anyhow, I hadn't ought to said it. I know you'll say so when you read the rest of this letter.

You sure have been game, little woman, and I haven't been worth it. Still—well, I have lived a rough life, but not a bad one—not a really bad one. I shall not forget these seven days, nor you neither, Miss B., and I want to explain right here about—what I did. I didn't know until the paper came that night that I'd really killed that man—though he deserved killing all right. He was Bud Durgin, the rascal that married my little sister May years ago, broke her heart, and then deserted her. She's dead now, and I hadn't seen him for years till I met him by chance that morning. We quarreled, of course, and he said something about May—a black lie straight from the black heart of him—that made me crazy mad. We pulled our guns [illegible] of us. His shot missed, but mine didn't. He fell, and I ran, and found you. Of course, by the time you read this I shall be caught, and it will be all up. But I wanted you to know.

I hope you'll be better in the morning, but I'm afraid [illegible] [illegible] you'll give me some time. I sure [illegible]

[illegible] say that I'm glad—glad [illegible] Don't fret about [illegible] how—I was caught [illegible] glad to do it. Somehow [illegible] for me. [illegible] forgive me [illegible] breaking with [illegible]

JACK.

[illegible]

ROAD BUILDING

INSTRUMENT TO TEST SOILS

By Means of Modern Apparatus It Is Possible to Obtain Most Valuable Information.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An instrument for testing soils on which roads are to be built has been devised by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. It consists of a metal disk resting on the soil and supporting a cylinder into which shot can be poured. The apparatus is held in position vertically by means of a tripod, at the top of which is mounted a small dial that tells to one-thousandth of an inch how far the disk sinks into the soil as shot is poured into the cylinder. By means of the instrument it is possible to get information as to how the soil will act in wet weather.

The kind of soil beneath a road surface has a great deal to do with how it will stand up under modern traffic, and engineers look upon this as an important consideration in determining the kind of road to be built. This is confirmed by a number of instances where two sections of the same road have been built in exactly the same manner and subjected to the same traffic but on different types of soil. One section has lasted well while the other has broken up in a manner that can only be explained by a lack of supporting power of the soil beneath the road.

The bureau has for some time been investigating this question along various lines both in the field and in the laboratory, studying the characteristics of different soils and experimenting with means to keep down the moisture content of the soil and thus increase its bearing power. The latest development has been the new device.

Norwalk-Ashland (Ohio) Road Before and After Given Needed Improvement.

FILMS SHOW ROAD BUILDING

Scenes Depicting Actual Construction of Various Types of Highways Are Displayed.

Close-ups of the activities of the bureau of public roads are contained in two films released, "Building Bituminous Roads," and "Mixed Asphalt Pavements." The new films show how Uncle Sam, who has become the world's greatest road builder through the federal-aid road act, makes use of bituminous materials in the construction of the Nation's highways.

"Building Bituminous Roads" deals directly with the surface treated and penetration macadam type of bituminous roads.

"Mixed Asphalt Pavements" embraces the construction of asphaltic concrete and sheet asphalt roads, and carries the audience from the paving plant, where the materials are mixed, to the completed highway, open for traffic. Scenes depicting the actual construction of the various types of roads were made under the direction of skilled engineers of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, and are designed to instruct the layman as well as the engineer in modern road-building practices. Several animated close-ups graphically depict the details of construction.

ROAD BUILDING IN KENTUCKY

Was First State to Conceive Idea of Highway Construction in the United States.

"In 1821 the people of Kentucky inaugurated the first state road building policy ever conceived in these United States," according to Edward S. Jordan of the highways committee of the National Automobile Chamber of commerce, speaking recently at the University of Kentucky.

Long Alaskan Highway.

[illegible] automobile highway, available [illegible] has been completed in [illegible] a distance of 270 [illegible] to Fairbanks. The [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JULY 2

EZEKIEL, THE WATCHMAN OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 2:1-3:21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye the Lord while He may be found; call ye upon Him while He is near; let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon.—Isa. 55:6-7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—II Kings 17:13, 14; Isa. 6:1-13; Jer. 1:1-19; Matt. 23 37-39; Acts 20:18-21, 26, 27, 29-31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Shepherd and His Sheep.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel Watches and Warns Israel.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Facing a Hard Task.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Duty of Warning Others.

I. Ezekiel's Call (vv. 1, 2).

1. Commanded to Stand Up (v. 1). Ezekiel was given a vision of the Almighty God on His throne of glory (ch. 1). Before the vision the prophet fell prostrate upon his face. The essential equipment of a minister for the discharge of his task is a vision of the Almighty.

2. Filled With the Spirit (v. 2). By the Spirit the divine energy entered him and enabled him to execute the commission given to him.

II. Ezekiel's Commission (vv. 3-8).

1. The Moral Condition of the People (vv. 3, 4). (1) A rebellious nation (v. 3). This rebelliousness perhaps referred to their heathen idolatrous practices. (2) Impudent children (v. 4). "Impudent" literally means "hard of face." It means the grossest perversity which caused them to stand up in the presence of the prophets of God without a sense of guilt or compunction of conscience.

2. The Charge (v. 4). He was to deliver the message of God. He was to declare, "Thus saith the Lord God."

3. The Difficulty of His Task (vv. 5-8). He was to deliver the message of God whether they would hear or forebear.

III. Ezekiel's Experimental Qualifications (2:9-3:16).

Before one can preach to others he must have an experience—must be in sympathetic accord with God and His message.

1. Eating the Book (2:9-3:9). This book contained God's woes upon the stiff-necked and rebellious people (v. 10). In order to speak God's threatenings effectively to others we must inwardly digest and appropriate them ourselves. The eating of the book was in his mouth as honey for sweetness. Though his ministry was difficult and the judgment severe, the prophet was in entire sympathy with God's purpose and found delight in His will.

2. Urged on by the Spirit (3:10-14). In order to strengthen Ezekiel for his task, the wonderful symbolism of God's providential agencies which had been before him in chapter 1 was brought to his attention, assuring him that God would accompany him to his new destination.

3. Entering Into Sympathy (v. 15). In order to minister to a people one must enter into sympathy with them; must show that the message is from the depth of the heart; that to declare the message of woe is a great grief. Ezekiel mingled his tears with theirs.

IV. Ezekiel's Grave Responsibility (3:17-21).

God made him a watchman. Every minister is a watchman over his flock. Two things were required of him:

1. To Hear the Word at God's Mouth. The source of his message was God's Word. So today the minister is to get his message from God.

2. Sound the Warning (v. 17). After he heard God's message he was to speak it out. The same duty is upon the minister today. Cases in point for his guidance (vv. 18-21):

(1) When God says to the wicked "Thou shalt surely die" (v. 18), and the watchman fails to warn him, the wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood shall be required at the watchman's hand.

(2) If the watchman warn the wicked and the warning is unheeded (v. 19), the wicked man shall perish, but the watchman has delivered his soul.

(3) When a righteous man turns to do iniquity and God gives him over to stumbling in his own sin, his past seeming righteousness will be of no avail, but his blood will be required at the hand of the watchman if he fail to warn him (v. 20).

(4). If the watchman so warns the righteous man that he fall not into sin, the man shall be saved and the watchman hath delivered his soul.

Ministers have most solemn obligations, that of discharging their obligation whether men will hear or forefear.

The Wise Shall Understand.

Many shall be purified and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly; and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall [illegible]

[illegible]

JUNE

DYSPEPSIA IS NOW THING OF THE PAST

St. Louis Citizen Eats Anything on the Table and Has Gained Several Pounds in Weight—Gives Tanlac Full Credit.

"The other medicines I tried before didn't even budge my troubles, but three bottles of Tanlac have fixed me up in fine shape," said H. Mohr, well-known citizen living at 112 S. Fourth St., St. Louis, Mo.

"Two years ago my stomach went wrong and my appetite failed me. Gas formed from what little I would eat and pressed on my heart until it palpitated so I could hardly breathe. I wasn't able to do regular work, because of pains in the back, bad headaches and dizzy spells.

"But I have gained several pounds now since taking Tanlac and eat just anything I want without any trouble. The pains and headaches never bother me any more, and I am only too glad to pass the good word along about Tanlac. It is simply wonderful."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

He Knew Politics.

An Indiana city famed for its political "scraps," has a budding politician. He is only nine years old.

His father was reading the newspaper the other morning at the breakfast table when he looked up and said: "I see you've re-elected Mrs. T—— superintendent of schools again."

The wife started to comment, but the son beat her to it. "On which ticket?" he asked.

Not Too Fast.

"This juror seems intelligent."

"Let us examine him a little before rejecting him. Perhaps he isn't."

The man who wears an empty sleeve is pathetic. But the man who wears an empty hat is much more so.

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.—Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

Women Made Young

Bright eyes, a clear skin and a body full of youth and health may be yours if you will keep your system in order by regularly taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles, the enemies of life and looks. In use since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Girls! Girls!! Clear Your Skin With Cuticura

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

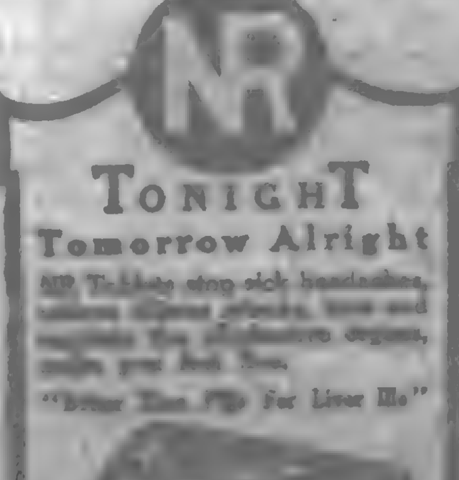
NR

TONIGHT

Tomorrow Alright

NR Tablets stop sick headaches, relieve bilious attacks, tone and regulate the eliminative organs, make you feel fine.

"Better Than Pills For Liver Ills"



INDIANA BREVITIES

Washington, D. C.—The secretary of agriculture has made the 1922-23 apportionment of federal funds authorized by the postoffice appropriation bill, signed by the President, for aid in the construction of highways. Indiana's share of next year's allotment is $1,805,904. This amount must be matched by the state before the money becomes available. The new legislation reduces the maximum participation on the part of the government from $20,000 to $16,250 a mile for roads constructed with the appropriation for the next fiscal year and $15,000 a mile thereafter. Bridges of more than twenty feet in span may be regarded as separate projects to which this limitation does not apply.

Washington, D. C.—Examinations for the selection of postmasters at eighteen third class offices in Indiana are to be held, July 15. The offices and salaries are as follows: Albion, $2,000; Atlanta, $1,600; Cloverdale, $1,800; Darlington, $1,500; Geneva, $1,900; Goodland, $2,100; Lynn, $1,800; Mulberry, $1,700; Pendleton, $1,900; Plainfield, $1,800; Remington, $2,000; Rising Sun, $1,900; Scottsburg, $2,100; Summitville, $1,800; Thorntown, $2,100; Vevay, $2,000; Waynetown, $2,100; Vevay, $2,000; Waynetown, $1,500 and Zionsville, $1,600.

Boonville.—The contract for Cypress creek drain in Warrick county was let for $123,272. The successful bid is about $27,000 under the engineers' estimate of $150,000 for the actual construction. The saving will be returned to the land owners affected in reduced assessments. Engineering and other costs will be about $14,000. The dredging is the largest public work ever let in Warrick county. Many hundreds of acres of land will be drained by the project. Its length is 77,650 feet. The ditch also carries the sewage of Boonville.

Terre Haute.—"Miner's Commissary," "Leave Orders One Day in Advance." "To Get Bread Line Up and Take Your Turn and Keep Order." These are but a few of the signs hanging about the commissary station established in West Terre Haute for the miners of that district, who are out of work after two months of the strike of coal miners in the central competitive field. Similar commissaries have been established in Clinton to aid miners and their families in that field.

Greensburg.—The lowest price ever paid for land in Decatur county figured in the sale recently of a farm near here, when 260 acres sold for $3,120 at public auction. A 13-room house is situated on the farm. The bidding started at $10 an acre. The auctioneer worked hard to obtain higher bids and finally interested a buyer to the extent of offering $12 an acre for the land and improvements. The land sold was assessed for taxation at about $4,000.

Indianapolis.—Sixty-four per cent of the children in the schools of Marion county, outside this city, have some sort of physical defect, says the annual report of work done in the schools during the school year just closed by the county nurse, and the nurse of the Marion County Tuberculosis association assigned to county school work. There are 8,678 children in the schools, and 5,529 of them have some physical defect, the report asserted.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray has addressed letters to the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney of Knox county asking them to "maintain law and order under all conditions" in the nonunion coal fields which have been visited, it is understood, by bands of strikers, property being carried off and threats made if mine operations continue. Similar letters have been sent to officials of Vigo and Sullivan counties.

Marion.—At a meeting of the Grant County Brotherhood of Thrashermen officers were elected for the ensuing year and the official price for thrashing this season was adopted. The prices adopted were the same as the thrashing prices last year—8 cents for oats, 7 cents for wheat and 9 cents for rye.

Petersburg.—Asa Miller, age thirty-one, who was arrested at Winslow and lodged in the Pike County jail, has confessed, the county authorities assert, that he murdered his father, George Miller, age seventy-four, at the Miller farm near Velpen by striking him on the head with a bed slat.

Indianapolis.—Between 700 and [illegible] members of the Indiana State Firemen's association are [illegible] to attend the annual convention of the organization which will be held in Indianapolis, July 18, 19 and 20.

Hammond.—The Illinois Car and Equipment company [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] region with the announcement of orders for 40 [illegible] of cars for the Hammond and Chicago [illegible] plants.

Evansville.—Appraisers of the estate of Benjamin Bosse, former mayor of Evansville, and furniture manufacturer, who died April 4, have filed an inventory in the Probate court here. The estate, exclusive of the [illegible] of Mr. Bosse and the [illegible] [illegible]

Indianapolis.—As a result of the conviction by a jury in the Federal court at Indianapolis of George W. Applegate, former vice-president of the Corydon National bank, on charge of embezzling and misapplying $8,500 of the bank's money, pleas of guilty were entered by his brother, Ben Applegate, former vice-president of the bank, and Wilson E. Cook, former president of the bank, who were to have gone on trial for alleged violations of the national banking act. Judge A. B. Anderson sentenced each of the three men to serve three years in the federal prison at Atlanta. They were permitted to remain free under $20,000 bond each, until July 3.

Indianapolis.—Walter J. Riley of East Chicago was elected chairman of the interstate harbor commission, composed of representatives of Indiana and Illinois, at an organization meeting of the commission held recently in the office of Governor McCray. Members of the commission, who are to investigate the feasibility of a $6,000,000 harbor project in Wolf Lake and Lake Michigan at the Indiana-Illinois line in the Calumet district, were appointed by the governors of the two states.

Valparaiso.—The drought is doing thousands of dollars' damage daily to the crops in Porter county. Especially is this true of the fruit, such as strawberries, blackberries, etc. Parts of the county have received slight rainfall, but not sufficient to benefit the crops. A small bug, rarely found in large numbers, is eating the corn in many places, and roof aphis and rose chafirs are also working havoc in the fields. The seventeen-year-old locusts have invaded every forest in the county.

Terre Haute.—At a meeting of idle union miners here it was decided to continue the activities in their efforts to stop all mining of coal at the mines and stripping pits throughout the eleventh district. It was said that an appeal would be made to John L. Lewis to stop importation of Kentucky coal which has been going through and into this territory in trainload lots. The meeting was attended by 500 or more men and many were unable to gain entrance to the hall.

Indianapolis.—The division of housing of the state board of health, which was organized last year, will not be operated after September 30, unless funds are provided for the work from some unexpected source. The division was organized under the provisions of an act of the last legislature, which appropriated $15,000 for enforcing the housing laws of the state. As the appropriation was an item in the specific appropriation bill, the money is available for use only until September 30.

Noblesville.—An investigation in several counties in central Indiana shows that there will be a large crop of nuts of all kinds this season; especially is this true of beechnuts, the trees being full of them. Some of the older residents of the central part of the state say there will be more beech nuts than in many years and they are of the opinion that when beech trees are bountiful with a crop there is almost sure to be a large crop of nearly everything.

Logansport.—Edward Carson, age fifty-eight; his wife, Della Carson, age fifty-five; Jesse Carson, aged thirty-three, son of Edward Carson; Mrs. Mary Carson, age thirty-two, wife of Jesse Carson, and Harry Demsey, age fourteen, son of Mrs. Mary Carson by a former marriage, all residents of Onward, were killed when an automobile they were occupying stalled on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and was struck and destroyed by a passenger train.

Indianapolis.—Thomas A. Riley, federal and state director of free employment service, has requested the employment bureaus in the state to give special attention now to labor requirements of farmers. He invites farmers and farm laborers to get in touch with each other through the bureaus. He directed attention to the fact that a number of college men will be available for farm work for the three summer months.

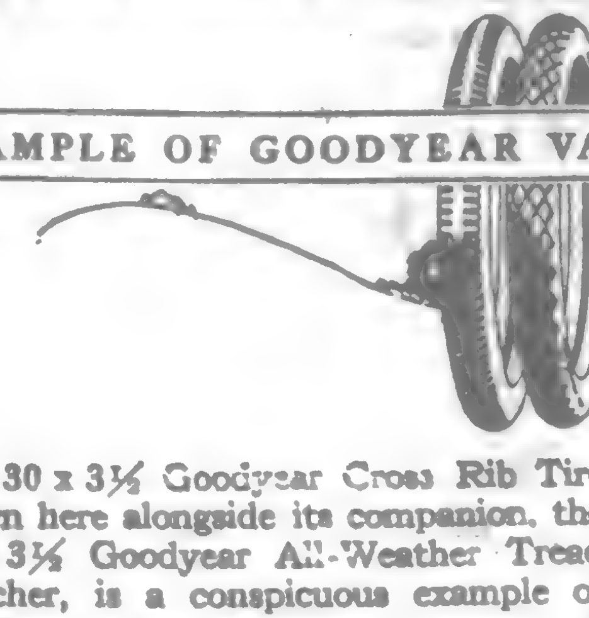
Anderson.—More than 5,000 persons attended the annnual international camp meeting of the Church of God at Anderson a few days ago when a missionary program was given. It was one of the most important days of the year for missionaries when they addressed large audiences, explained their work, and most of them wore the costumes of the countries in which they worked.

Laporte.—Frantic appeals have been made to farm bureaus in northern Indiana for men to assist in the wheat harvest. Thousands of acres of the grain will go to waste in the fields unless help is secured. Appeals have gone forth from farm bureau heads and county agents for men and boys to go into the Indiana harvest fields. The yield promises to be one of the [illegible] in the history of the state.

Indianapolis.—Indianapolis, hundreds of miles away from any ocean, is to become the headquarters and site of a [illegible] training ground for a [illegible] unit of the United States [illegible] [illegible] of more than 1,000 men of Indiana.

Jeffersonville.—[illegible] prisoners of the Indiana [illegible] [illegible]

AN EXAMPLE OF GOODYEAR VALUE



The 30 x 3½ Goodyear Cross Rib Tire shown here alongside its companion, the 30 x 3½ Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher, is a conspicuous example of Goodyear value.

The Goodyear Cross Rib has in it the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear.

It has a differently designed but long-wearing tread, and it sells for considerably less money.

In the past five years more than 5,000,000 of these Goodyear Cross Rib Tires have been sold.

They have everywhere given remarkable service.

Their fine performance and known value have convinced thousands of motorists of the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

GOODYEAR

WHY SOME MEN GO INSANE

Kind of Office "Help" With Which Most of Us Are More or Less Familiar.

The Colorado building boasts the "dumbest" girl in all Washington, asserts the Post of that city. She's a nectarine, a pippin' and a peach. Recently her boss, who is a very busy, bellowing sort of man, told her to get Agriculture on the telephone. She jumped for a phone directory.

Time wore on. Late afternoon came. The boss had been engrossed in matters of grave importance, and it was nearly 4:30 before he suddenly recalled that Annie hadn't reported on his morning phone call.

"Annie," he thundered, "where's my Agriculture call?"

"Why, I'm sorry, sir, but it hasn't got a phone."

"Who hasn't got a phone?"

"Why, Mr. Culture, sir. I looked through all the C's and all the K's, sir, and I couldn't find Mr. Agra Culture's name in either list, sir."

Made Bagpipes Useful.

An old adventurer who passed away in Australia at the age of ninety-four, was the only man I've known, says a correspondent, to put bagpipes to a useful purpose. After being captured when the Eureka stockade fell, he joined the Victoria police, and was largely responsible for the capture of the bushranger "Jewboy." He was then appointed second-in-command of an expedition that set out to find traces of Leichardt (another bushranger), and he used to tell that one day the party was surprised by 200 natives, with hostile intent, whereupon one McIntosh yelled: "The pipes, Charlie, the pipes—while we retreat." The old adventurer played the pipes—and the natives were so mystified that they stood open-mouthed while the party marched off.

Always Under Suspicion.

"I often wonder why Jenks is not more popular, for he's the politest man I know."

"That's just the trouble. He's so confoundedly polite he gives the impression that he wants to borrow money."

The war has made table linen very valuable. The use of Red Cross Ball Blue will add to its wearing qualities. Use it and see. All grocers.—Advertisement.

UPHELD THE FAMILY DIGNITY

Little Ethel's Brave Attempt to Conceal What She Felt Must Be Matter of Poverty.

Little Ethel was an only child and one day, when the minister called she was told to entertain him in the parlor until her mother could see him.

A few minutes later the mother, on her way downstairs, heard the visitor ask Ethel how many brothers and sisters she had, and, to her surprise and consternation, the little miss answered, "Seven."

After the minister had left, the child was taken to task and asked why she had said there were seven children. Ethel replied:

"Because I didn't want that strange gentleman to know that you were so poor that you didn't have but one child."—Everybody's Magazine.

Want Library for Every Ship.

During the recent war the American Library association placed for the use of the men of the merchant marine ships a total of 250,000 books. These books were made up into libraries and shifted from one vessel to another. Recently the American Merchant Marine Library association has been organized for the purpose of carrying on this work, under the slogan, "A Library for Every Ship."—The Classmate.

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands of home seekers and their families who have started on her FREE homesteads or bought land at attractive prices. They have established their own homes and secured prosperity and independence. In the great grain-growing sections of the prairie provinces there is still to be had on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. Healthful climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, rural telephone, excellent markets and shipping facilities. The climate and soil offer inducements for almost every branch of agriculture. The advantages for

Dairying, Mixed Farming and Stock Raising

make a tremendous appeal to industrious settlers wishing to improve their circumstances. For certificate entitling you to reduced railway rates, illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY
82 East Rich St., Columbus, Ohio
M. J. JOHNSTONE
116 Monument Pl., Indianapolis, Ind.

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

Save 40% on Soft Collars

No wrinkles, no starch, no rough edges. 35 cts. each, $3.50 dozen. Send cash with order. Money refunded if desired. VANSE TRADING CO., 5 Beekman St., NEW YORK.

Agents, Dealers! Attention. Various latest novelties, useful household articles, attractive, profitable sellers. Write for free details. Schiffer Nov. Co., 1482 Broadway, New York.

COCKROACHES

Waterbugs

ANTS

Easily killed by using the genuine

Stearns' Electric Paste

Also SURE DEATH to rats and mice. These pests are the greatest carriers of disease. They destroy both food and property.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

NOT WHOLLY LOVE MATCH

Mrs. McIntosh Had Other Reason Than Affection for Making Second Matrimonial Venture.

She was a comely widow, and, moreover, she was Scotch. She mourned MacIntosh, her late husband, for 18 months, and then from a flock of suitors chose honest, homely MacIntyre for her second.

"I'm no guid enough for ye, dear!" he whispered. "What for did ye choose me oot o' sae mony?"

"Ah, well, we see, your name's MacIntyre."

"Yes, but—" began the bewildered suitor.

"An' ye ken," finished the widow, "all my linen is marked 'McI,' that's why, Donald."

Shocking?

"There will have to be some new rules made here or else I shall give notice," said the girl in the telephone office to the chief clerk.

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Well, some of the things said over the wire are not fit for me to hear."

"Oh, that's all right," was the flippant answer. "You can't expect to work round electricity and not get shocked."

The Old Carriage Maker Had an Important Truth

"To make each part as strong as the rest," was his way of "building a wonderful, one-horse chaise that wouldn't wear out till judgment day."

This illustrates a fact that is keeping many doctors busy these days—human bodies, like chaises, break down because some part isn't as strong as the others.

Very often it's because of ill-balanced food, lacking in some important element of nutrition. This is especially true of ills developed in childhood, and carried on through life.

Grape-Nuts, that world-famous, ready-to-eat cereal, brings the plan of building each part as strong as the rest—to serve human need. Grape-Nuts [illegible] of the field grains, wheat and barley, [illegible], and it is a wonderful food for building and sustaining health and strength.

The delicious flavor and crispness of Grape-Nuts make it a welcome dish [illegible].

Grape-Nuts THE BODY BUILDER

"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

JUNE

226

Boost Your Home Mill

USE

COUNTRY MAID

OR

DAILY BREAD

FLOURS

Country Maid flour is 35% spring wheat. That is the reason you get results. Plenty of gluten therefore you get good bread.

Special Price on

Sincerity Buttermilk Growing & Laying Mash, this week, per 100 lbs. . . . . $3.72–$3.25

Oyster Shells, 100 lbs. for $1.25

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager.

St. Joe, Ind.

July Pictorial Reviews are here.

E. P. Brown and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday.

Stop talking about your troubles. Take Tanlac. At Sheffer's.

Monroe Dill of Pierston Indiana, spent Monday and Tuesday with Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Frank Bowman and family and Dr. and Mrs. Price spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

Will Reasoner and wife, of Butler, were Saturday guests of Alfred Reasoner and wife.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

The M. P. Sunday School elected officers, last Sunday, to serve for the next year.

Rolla Wiers received the position of foreman of the Concord section on the B. & O., last Friday.

Mrs. J. P. Buckingham will entertain the Lutheran Missionary society, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Melba Hutton, of near Auburn, is the guest of her grandparents, Isaac Meese and wife.

Mrs. Iva Tyler and daughter Dorine, of Ligonier, came Monday for a two weeks visit with the former's sister, Mrs. Wm. Randall.

Mrs. Belle Harmon, of Wayne, came Monday evening for a week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Rice.

Charles Koch was a business visitor at Bluffton, Friday.

Mrs. Anna Snyder is visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Walters and family, north of town.

Mrs. John Johnson, of Fort Wayne, visited Mrs. Mary Shuff, Friday.

Willis Baker and wife were Sunday afternoon callers in the home of Mrs. David Poper.

Otto Cannon, wife and son, and Mrs. Pauline McDaniel and baby were Sunday dinner guests of O. K. Shull and family.

Mrs. Kate Sandhrey, of Wayne, has come for an indefinite stay with her niece, Mrs. E. P. Brown and family.

Tanlac is a splendid tonic for puny, frail, delicate children. It is purely vegetable and contains no minerals or opiates. Sheffer's

O. E. Ginther has erected a new poultry house and garage combined which add much to the appearance of his property.

Estel Otis, wife and children, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon guests of H. C. Borthwick and family.

Sam Keesler and family spent Sunday afternoon with Ralph Furnish and family, near Spencerville.

The Misses Katherine Shull, Marjorie Curie, Portia Hadsell, and Edna Jackson spent over Sunday from their studies at Winona.

Mrs. Alice Hart is at home again from the Lutheran hospital where she submitted to an operation for cataract of the eyes. She thoroughly enjoyed the many letters and cards which she received from friends while there.

As an expression of their appreciation for the year's services of their director L. W. Lawson the M. P. orchestra members gave a fine potluck lunch Monday night, after the evening's practice. Mr. Lawson will discontinue his services for the present with this organisation.

Fred Jenkins and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Howard Kreie.

George Baker and wife, of Hicksville, were part of Sunday guests of F. M. Monroe and wife.

Stanley Koch and wife, of Huntington, spent over Sunday night with his parents, Chas. Koch and family.

Miss Melba Andrews entertained Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenbury and Mr. Clayton Wyatt for Sunday dinner.

Sidney Brunson, of Newville, and Martin Merrifield, of Hicksville, were Tuesday dinner guests of C. C. Bassett and wife; the latter remaining for a couple of days visit.

Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, J. L. Rhodenbaugh and wife, and the Misses Doris and Nellie Shull spent the day Sunday with C. E. Hadsell and wife, at Ft. Wayne.

George Swinsford and Mrs. Wm. Curie attended the funeral of the former's brother-in-law, John Hornbarger held at Auburn, Monday afternoon.

Mark Murphy and wife, and Alvah Coburn were at Kendallville, Sunday, visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. Sel Gee, who is critically ill at a hospital at that place.

Florence Buchanan and wife returned home Saturday from a week's visit with their daughter, Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and family, at Butler.

Fred Reichelderfer and wife and daughter, Mrs. Wilber Spencer, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Harry Adcock, of Payne, Ohio, spent Wednesday with John Betz and wife.

Lew Washler and wife entertained the Clyde Hart Sunday School class Sunday serving a bountiful potluck dinner at the noon hour. A good attendance was had and a fine social time enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wilson, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Barringer, of Warsaw, were last Monday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kinsey. Mrs. Wilson stayed for a week's visit. Mrs. Wilson is an aunt of Mrs. Kinsey.

James Malone and wife, of Auburn, were guests in the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. David Poper, for several days the past week. Mrs. Poper was unfortunate enough to fall in the yard and fractured a rib from which accident she is recovering nicely.

Miss Gene Mumma, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, underwent an operation for appendicitis at a Ft. Wayne hospital, last Tuesday. The operation was a success and the patient is getting along nicely. Miss Mumma returned only recently to her home from Wittenberg college for her vacation.

Meade Baker and wife entertained the following callers Sunday afternoon:—John Leasure and wife, Mrs. Harry Richwine and daughter Helen, of Auburn; Mrs. Kent Leasure and daughter Jane, of Indianapolis; John Baker and wife, Mrs. Matie Gee, A. J. Baker, the Misses Bessie and Lolo Baker, Fred Gee and Russell Frank.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway, Floyd Ridgway, and Vet Chandler and wife, the latter couple of Hobart, were Thursday evening supper guests of [illegible]wood Ridgway and wife. The day before Vet Chandler and wife, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, Mrs. [illegible] Curie and four children, visited in the homes of Ross Morr and Abe Mason.

Mrs. Neva Marsh [illegible] to a potluck [illegible] Friday, [illegible] friends from [illegible] Wayne and St. Joe. Eleven of the [illegible] supper guests, [illegible], Mrs. [illegible] of Ft. Wayne [illegible] for the week, [illegible] her on [illegible] to [illegible] evening.

C. E. Woodcox [illegible]

HARVEST TIME!

Our price on the

McCormick

7 foot cut

BINDERS

COMPLETE

is exceptional.

WE CAN SAVE
YOU MONEY

Binder Twine

International Harvester Company Standard Binder Twine. Our car-load will be here this week. You know that the quality and price is right.

We could sell you cheaper twine but satisfaction would be the minus quantity.

Mowers

We just received another shipment of McCormick Mowers in 5 and 6 foot cut sizes. Our price, in addition to the quality, sells the mower.

Fence

We are safe in saying that we sold more Fence than any other dealer in DeKalb county this spring, which again proves that price and quality reign.

Enamel Ware

A new line of Blue and White Enamel Ware just received. Come in and see this assortment if you are [illegible].

Leather and Cord Fly Nets, Horse Covers, Etc.

Wm. Curie

ST. JOE, INDIANA

Hardware Implements

$5\frac{1}{2}\%$

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA

The following out of town people attended the funeral of Mrs. Chas. Tustison held Monday afternoon from the home—Mrs Lois McCaque, Indiana Harbor; Lee Q. Tustison, wife and son, of Defiance, Ohio; Arthur Woodcox, wife and two children, of Auburn; Earl Tustison, wife and daughter, Mesdames Rilla Tustison, Ida Brush, Loa Tustison, Herbert and Ross Tustison, of Hicksville, Ohio; Archie Erickson and family, of Garrett; Robert Ulm and family, of Butler; Ola Braybrook and wife, of Scipio.

What God Says

(1 Timothy 6: 6-9)

But godliness with contentment is great gain.

For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can carry nothing out.

And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content.

But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition.

CATARRH

Catarrh is a Local disease greatly influenced by Constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which gives Quick Relief by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces and assists in ridding your System of Catarrh.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House

AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office

both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE

Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE

West Seventh Street

AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG

EYESIGHT SPECIALIST

FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, July 7, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

[illegible] NEW YORK

L 912

JULY

JULY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1922 No. 27

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
FOR
MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men $12.00 $15.00 $16.50
Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00
Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75
Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6
Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5
Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1
Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

NEW WHEAT
Will soon be moving. We are ready to take care of the crop. The highest market prices paid at all times.

FEED
Bran and Middlings.
Tankage and other feeds.

FLOUR
Auburn and Nappanee.

COAL
Place your orders now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Call on us—glad to see you.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept. Come in whether you want anything or not.

CREDIT

Nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done on a credit basis. This means that a very large proportion of the business of the country depends on the credit given by the banks in the form of loans and exchange. If you will consider the matter you will realize that a large portion of the business of this community depends upon the credit of the local bank.

It is a good policy to "get it right" with your banker. We want you to get it right with us. We must get acquainted with our customers before we can offer them accommodation.

Let us get acquainted with you in a financial way, and we will then be better able to pass on [illegible] and we will try to make it worth while to you.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Drove Through From Arkansas by Auto

Mrs. W. W. Hollopeter, Mr. Rush Hollopeter and daughter, Jane of Blytheville, Arkansas, spent from Thursday until Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, leaving there to spend the summer at their cottage at Lone Tree Point, Lake James. Miss Mildred Gee, who has been teaching at Thomson, Illinois, spent three weeks at Blythville after her school closed and came here with the Hollopeters, they making the trip by auto, and will spend the summer vacation here with her parents,

S. S. Class Picnic

Mrs. William Curie and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curie and little son went to their cottage at Cold Springs Sunday. Tuesday the former Mrs. Curie entertained her S S. class, The Philatha's, there. The affair being a reunion of former and present members.

A Narrow Escape

William Hamilton and family figured in an auto accident Sunday evening while returning home from Defiance. A large Buick car, speeding, smashed into a Eord car which was passing Mr. Hamilton, throwing the Ford against his causing some damage to the left side of the machine.

Rain Causes Poor Attendance at 1st Service

Owing to the incessant rain Sunday evening the series of union Sunday evening church services started off with rather a small crowd. However, a splendid meeting was held. The three pastors were present and took part in conducting the service. Rev. Daily preached a sermon on the topic, "The American Idea."

It was decided that the meetings be held in the grove east of the Christian Church, and steps were taken for the placing of temporary seats to be erected in the grove.

Remember that the services start at 6:00 P. M. on the dot, which makes it necessary to have Christian Endeavor at 5 o'clock.

Fire Scare Sunday Morning

A blaze of unknown origin broke out in the basement of the H. S. Bowman home Sunday at 3:15 a.m. The fire department was called but before it reached the site the blaze had been extinguished.

No particular damage was done but had there not been such an early discovery made it is probable that the home would have been destroyed.

Walter Keesler Weds Alabama Girl

[illegible]

Obituary

HOWEY

William T. Howey, son of Isaac and Mary Howey, was born at Ft. Wayne, Ind., May 31, 1860, and departed this life at his home in Hurshtown, Cedar Twp., Allen County, Ind., June 11. 1922. In the year 1883, at the age of 23 years, he was united in marriage with Louise Haynes, with whom he lived until death called her to the Great Beyond in 1899. To this union were born four children, three having died in infancy, and Charles Howey of Cleveland, Ohio.

In 1906 he was again joined in holy matrimony to Miss Hattie Smith, who survives to share in the sorrow of the loss of her beloved husband.

God blessed this union with the birth of four children, three boys and one girl, viz. William, Mariam, Richard and Wayne.

Mr. Howey was blessed with good health practically all his life except the last two years, when he became afflicted with paralysis which became more serious as he advanced in age, and finally terminated in death.

Loving care and medical aid could only assist in comfort and extension of days, but could not effect a cure.

Mr. Howey's activities were associated with the mercantile business, mainly as a clerk, and he was also a member of the Moose lodge of Fort Wayne, Ind.

He leaves to mourn his departure one brother, Frank of Detroit, Mich.; one sister, Susan Squires of Emporia, Kansas; five children, a loving companion, and numerous friends and acquaintances.

WATSON

David A. Watson, son of William and Colista Watson, was born in Allen County, Ind., Feb. 22, 1856, and died at his home in Allen County, June 26. 1922. Age 66 years, 4 months and 4 days. Mr. Watson was one of a family of twelve children, all preceding him in death but two brothers and one sister, viz. Samuel Watson, who resides with his sister, Mary Luttman in Allen County, and Wm. Watson, residing near Leo, Ind.

He devoted his entire life to farming, which necessitated much hardship struggling against the wilderness, clearing and draining the land and, like others of his age, spent his best days in preparing the way for other generations.

On the 28th day of Oct. 1885 he was united in marriage to Eva L. Blakely, with whom he lived for twenty-five

(Continued on Page 4)

Spring Distribution Of Taxes.

County Auditor S. D. Johnston is making his spring settlements with the various taxing units of DeKalb County.

The distribution amounts to $556,819 82, and increase over that of last spring of $69,008.65, A large proportion of the increase goes for the improvement of the schools and of the highways.

The following is the distribution by the auditor to St. Joe town, and Jackson, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, and comparisons with last year:

St Joe: Total $1.002.52. Last year, [illegible].

[illegible] Twp.: Total $20,075.26 Last year [illegible].

[illegible] Twp.: Total $14,005 83 [illegible]

[illegible] Twp.: Total $9,[illegible]86 95. Last year [illegible]

[illegible] Twp.: Total $4,120 29 [illegible]

[illegible]

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox
St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

Just the other day I heard a young man say, "I guess I'll take my girl to Hamilton next Saturday night."

I reminded him that we had a band concert on that night.

He replied, "I forgot about that."

Just pass the good word along.

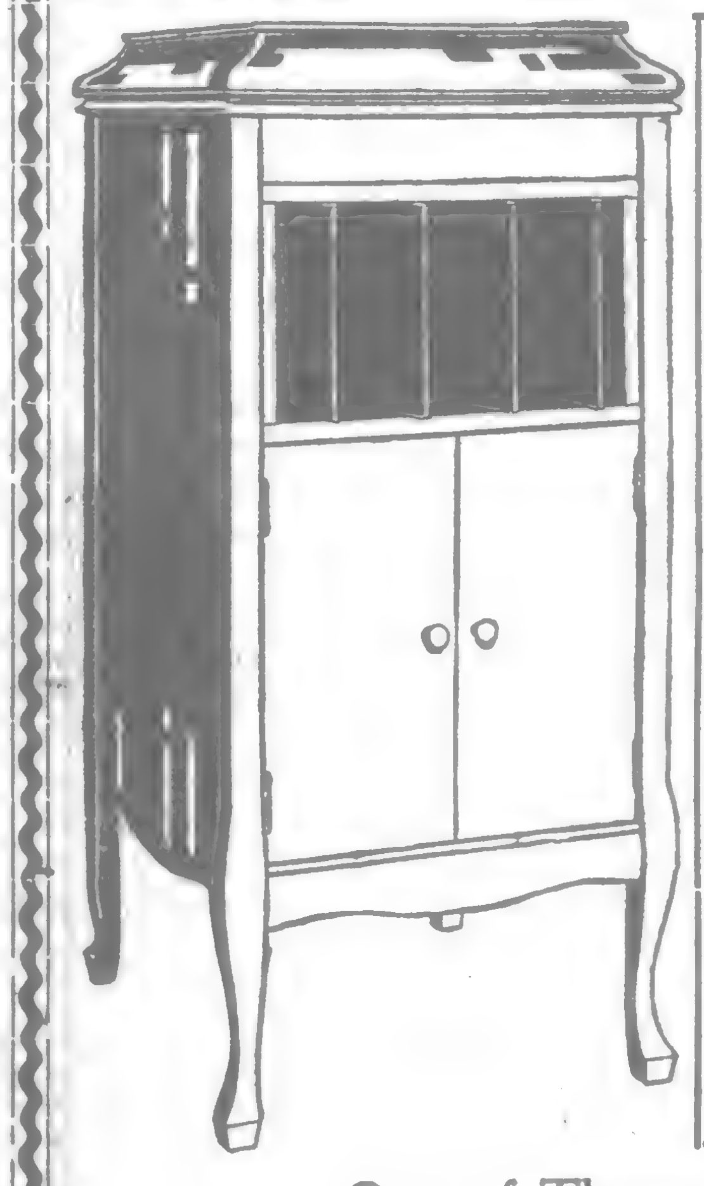
TIRES
TUBES
ACCESSORIES
FORD PARTS
WELDING
SOLDERING
REPAIRING
Free Service for
BATTERIES
and Tires

The Good MAXWELL

We never close only to sleep.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY



We Carry A line Of All new And Up-to-date RECORDS

With A big Order Of the Newest. Selections Coming in Soon.

One of These
Columbia Grafonolas
OF THE CABINET STYLE
Would be greatly appreceated and enjoyed by every member of the family. We also have the other styles—jnst to suit your desires.

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

All Good Citizens Should

Distinguish between thrift and false economy. Thrift, as demanded by our President and made necessary by the great war that our country was engaged in, means making your dollar go farther—getting the most for your money, not hoarding it. Thrift means prosperity for all. The advertisers in this paper, your local merchants, are thrifty merchants. They make their dollars go the longest way in purchasing their stock of goods, and they pass this thrift savings on to you.

[illegible]

JULY

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

KANSAS CONGRESSMEN ESPECIALLY ACTIVE

Legislation Beneficial to Agriculture Being Pushed by Each of the Ten Members.

Kansas state farm bureau has been keeping in touch with Kansas congressmen and letting them know the wishes of Kansas farmers with regard to agricultural legislation. A close check shows that each of the ten Kansas members has been on hand to push any legislation that was beneficial to agriculture.

Senator Arthur Capper, who is now leader of the farm bloc in the senate, has been especially active in behalf of agriculture.

J. G. Strong, representative from the Fifth district, which includes Manhattan, the headquarters of the state bureau, has also been active in the interests of the farmer. It was he who put in the resolution asking for the joint commission of agricultural inquiry. Later he fought for a farmer on the federal reserve board and has finally seen a law passed giving agriculture a representative on the board.

J. N. (Poly) Tincher, representative from the Seventh district, has also been active in the interest of the farmer. He was co-author with Senator Arthur Capper of the Capper-Tincher bill to regulate grain speculations. Since portions of that law have been declared unconstitutional he and Senator Capper are introducing another measure intended to perform the functions covered in the first bill. They have taken pains to see that this measure will stand the test of constitutionality.

Ralph Snyder, President of the Kansas State Farm Bureau, Member of Executive Committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Hays B. White of the Sixth Kansas district is the real dirt farmer of the Kansas delegation. He has never had any business except farming and can always be relied upon to stand with agriculture.

Homer Hoch of the Fourth district is another Kansan who has been especially active in the interest of agriculture.

Senator Charles Curtis, Representative D. R. Anthony of the First district, and P. P. Campbell of the Third district are the only Kansas representatives which have been in any way evasive in telling where they stood on agricultural legislation.

Ralph Snyder, president of the Kansas bureau, is a member of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation and member of that body's legislative committee. He keeps in close touch at all times with what is going on in congress.

JOIN IN MARKETING APPLES

Ohio Co-operative Fruit Associations Made Arrangements for Handling 1922 Crop.

About six local co-operative fruit marketing associations have joined together to market apples, according to an announcement made by C. W. Waid, of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The North American Fruit exchange has been chosen as the sales agency for handling this year's crop.

At a recent meeting of the trustees of the Ohio Fruit Growers' Co-operative association "Buckeye" was chosen as the brand name under which the fruit from these co-operatives will be sold. The fruit will be graded, and sold on the basis of standard quality and pack.

Provisions are already being made to put Ohio apples before the buying public in as good shape as certain other sections which have come into prominence by putting out good fruit [illegible]

[illegible]

UNSAFE PROMOTION SCHEMES

Three Schemes Have Been Investigated by Kansas Authorities and Found Worthless.

Kansas state farm bureau has recently investigated three sales promotion schemes and found them unsafe. Farmers have been advised not to take stock in them.

One company investigated was selling stock on filling stations and guaranteed a 33 1-3 per cent discount on gasoline and oils. Investigation showed that the market would not warrant oil companies giving this kind of a discount. This would indicate that promoters are misrepresenting conditions to farmers or are depending on making money on stock sold to build these filling stations.

The bureau was asked to investigate a live stock insurance company whose headquarters were supposed to be in Omaha. An investigation shows that no such company exists.

The blue sky law which is now before congress is also being supported by the farm bureau. This legislation aims to prevent promoters of worthless and fraudulent securities from using the United States mail. This has been reported favorably and seems certain of passage.

PURCHASE OF BINDER TWINE

Federated Marketing Service of Indiana Negotiates Big Deal for Its Members.

In one day, recently, the Federated Marketing service, which is one of the many forms of practical assistance for the farmers of Indiana which the Federation of Farmers' Associations creates and maintains, turned a little trick in binder twine which its management believes is worth mention. In that day, between morning and night, it secured, for Indiana farmers, a third of a million pounds of a high-grade standard twine, at the lowest price that obtains anywhere in the United States—a price so remarkable that the news of it has spread far beyond the borders of Hoosierdom. The total of twine secured on this day was a trifle more than 344,000 pounds. And the record of several days preceding was only a trifle below this record-smasher. This kind of service, in this volume, will carry far, in the opinion of L. F. Shuttleworth, of the Federated Marketing service, and will do much toward awakening the public of rural Indiana to a clearer understanding of the great and beneficent undertaking which the federation has espoused.

WOOL GROWER'S SMALL PART

Low Market Value of Domestic Wool Has Had Little Effect on Prices of Clothing.

C. J. Fawcett, director of the wool marketing department of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has figured out what portion of the suit buyer's dollar finally gets into the pocket of the wool grower. On a suit which retails for $40, the grower's share is $1.96. Hence the wool grower's part of the suit buyer's dollar is 4.9 cents. Mr. Fawcett says:

"The exceedingly low market value of domestic wool that has prevailed for almost two years, has seemingly had little effect on the retail values of articles manufactured therefrom. The adverse condition that the wool growing industry has been forced to meet since the war, has forced hundreds engaged therein out of business, and caused liquidation of breeding flocks in order to meet financial obligations. Strange as it may seem, no material benefit has been derived by the consuming public from a wool market so low as to spell ruin to many engaged in its production."

GOOD SERVICE OF EXCHANGE

Reliability and Promptness Have Been Big Factors in Success of Michigan Concern.

Reliability and promptness in making returns to local elevators have been important matters in the success of the Michigan Elevator exchange, which now has 101 members and in the past 18 months has done a business of about $6,000,000 in grain, hay and beans for its membership.

When a member instructs the exchange to sell a car of grain, hay or beans it takes absolutely no chance that the contract will fall through. That is a bed-rock proposition with the exchange. The contract is executed to the letter.

Member elevators do not have to wait for payment on their goods. It is made at once. The plan is a very popular feature of the elevator exchange's method of doing business.

FIGHT BLUE SKY SECURITIES

Ohio Counties Organize to Make War on Fraudulent Promoter and Salesman.

Three counties in Ohio have already organized to fight the promoter and salesman of fraudulent and worthless securities. Crawford county has a permanent organization and Wyandot and [illegible] counties have temporary [illegible]

[illegible]

EXPERIMENTAL HIGHWAY WORK AT ARLINGTON WILL BE CONTINUED

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A comprehensive program of road-building research and investigation during the coming season at the Arlington Experimental station near Washington, D. C., is announced by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Impact tests on pavements, subgrade studies and other experiments, which last year aroused much interest among engineers, will be continued as well as several other lines of work underway last year and new ones to be started.

Bituminous wearing surfaces are to be investigated to determine the reason for the formation of waves and irregularities and to settle mooted questions concerning the proper mixture and the proper mineral aggregates to be used in bituminous roads. More than 30 sections of different types of bituminous construction will be built. These will include mixtures of different mechanical grading and with different percentages of bitumen of several degrees of hardness. Sections are being constructed on a circular track about 600 feet in circumference, the roadway being 18 feet wide. On this roadway will be operated a 5-ton army truck equipped with solid tires. The truck will be operated in a varying path so as to cover practically the entire width of the roadway and will travel at a speed of from 12 to 15 miles an hour for five or six months, or until some results are obtained leading to the solution of the problems involved.

Resistance to Wear.

There is considerable discussion as to what is the proper criterion to be used in selecting and judging concrete aggregates that will offer the greatest amount of resistance to wear. At the present time judgment is based on wear tests made in the laboratory and upon the compressive strength of concrete, also upon the structural strength of concrete beams constructed and broken in the laboratory. The comparison of the wear of concrete in actual use on road surfaces with the indications obtained in laboratory experiments is not wholly satisfactory.

To throw more light on this subject a wear test is to be made with the conditions approximating those actually found on the road. This test will include about 65 sections of concrete wearing surface, each section being of a different quality of concrete, the qualities being varied by virtue of the different aggregates used, different proportions in the mixture and amount of mixing water. These sections are to be constructed on a circular runway about 650 feet in circumference, the runway being 4 feet wide.

On this runway will be operated a specially constructed car with two truck wheels equipped with solid rubber tires and loaded to represent a truck. The car will be guided by small railroad rails to hold it in position, the power being applied by means of an electric motor to the rear wheel. This apparatus will be operated around the circular runway at a speed of probably 20 miles an hour. The test will involve the use of truck wheels equipped with different kinds of tires and will include the use of non-skid chains. A steel-tired wheel will probably also be used to get the effect of an accelerated wear test.

The object of this experiment is to determine the relative wear of the different concrete sections when subjected to traffic equipped with different types of wheel, also to furnish a comparison between actual service conditions and laboratory tests. This test will be in operation continuously beginning some time in June.

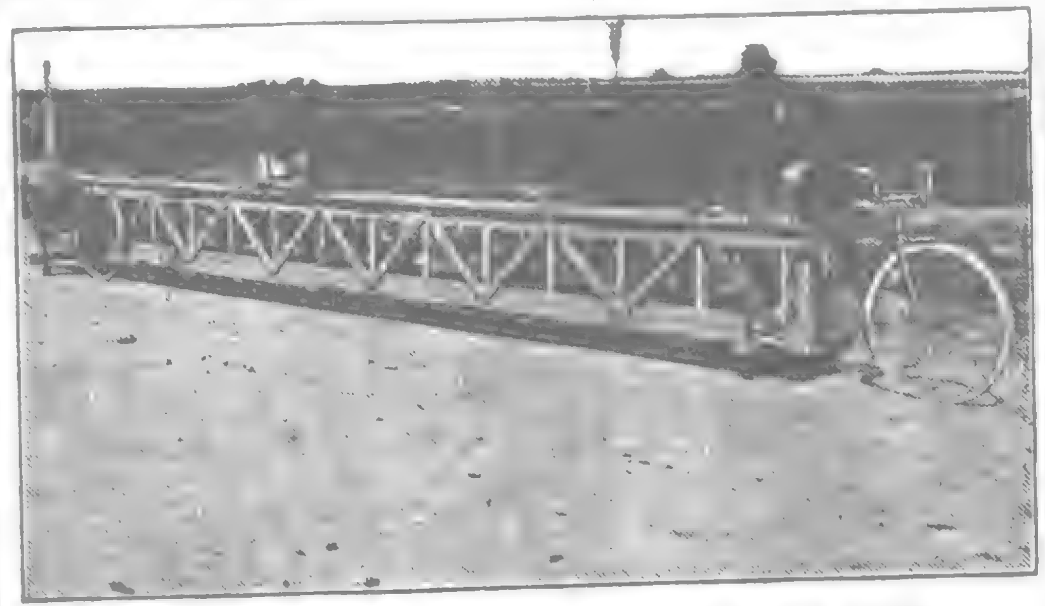
Impact on Roads Studied.

In a rather elaborate series of experiments, the bureau has studied impact of trucks on roads, and has determined approximately the magnitude of impact force under different truck and road conditions. The effect of such impact on concrete pavements and several types of road on concrete base was studied and reported on last year. This series of experiments is to be continued and enlarged. Over 120 road sections or slabs have been constructed in duplicate series. One series is on a carefully drained dry subgrade; the other series is on the same kind of subgrade except that it is kept wet and as nearly saturated as possible by means of an underlying drain tile and side ditches filled with water.

The testing of these slabs will begin some time during the month of May and will be by means of a new impact machine now being constructed which simulates the action of the rear wheel of a truck. On this machine may be mounted truck wheels of different sizes and weights carrying different kinds of truck tires. This apparatus may be so operated as to reproduce the different loading and equipment conditions of a large variety of trucks. The slabs will be hammered by means of this machine in the center, on the corners, and on the sides so as to obtain the relative strength under these different conditions.

Subsoil investigations are being continued for the purpose of studying and investigating relative stability, moisture condition, and supporting value. Different methods of determining the bearing value of soils are also being studied, that is, as to whether small or large areas should be used in determining the relative bearing value.

The warping effect of temperature and moisture conditions on concrete pavements is also being investigated. Temperatures and movement are being recorded graphically on continuous charts. In addition to these temperature and movement measurements the pressures on the subgrade under the concrete slab are obtained by means of soil pressure cells. This investigation will give some definite information concerning the support offered by subgrades to rigid concrete roads.



Device for Testing and Measuring the Smoothness of Roads.

FEED HORSES RIGHT AMOUNT

Pound of Grain and Pound of Roughage Per 100 Pounds of Horse Is Most Satisfactory.

One pound of grain and one pound of roughage per 100 lb. of horse is about the right amount of feed for horses under general work conditions. At hard work increase the grain. When idle or doing light work, decrease both grain and roughage. All alfalfa or clover is not as good as if timothy, prairie, or oat straw, or corn stover made up nearly half of the ration. Timothy hay is standard hay for horses, but it is because of its usual freedom from dustiness rather than its economic food value that makes it so. Well cured, good quality legume hays are better from the food value standpoint.

Hogs Require Mineral.

Hogs require a certain amount of mineral salts and charcoal for proper development and health. It is this requirement that causes them to root in the ground.

Goose Is Profitable.

Goose culture is not a very extensive industry in this country, and yet where there is good range over pasture land it is one of the most profitable. Of all domestic fowls geese are the hardiest and easiest to raise.

Rotten Sweet Potatoes.

The sweet potatoes which rot in one year would pay for enough potato curing houses to save the entire crop.

Delay Cutting Alfalfa.

Delaying the cutting of alfalfa until it is nearly in full bloom has been found a better practice than mowing it soon after blooming starts.

Outwit the Weeds.

No, it does not take a witty farmer to outwit the weeds. Frequent, shallow cultivation will do that and will also save soil moisture.

Profitable Part of Farm.

A [illegible] is a profitable part of any farm. [illegible]

MAKE 1,200 MILE FAST AIR FLIGHT

[illegible]

RADIO

MORE ABOUT VACUUM TUBE AS A DETECTOR

How a "Three-Electrode" Is Connected in a Simple Radio Receiving Circuit.

Obviously working the tube at a point on the upper bend of knee of the characteristic curve would produce the same symmetrical changes in the plate circuit by symmetrical changes in the grid potential as it will if the tube is worked at the lower end of knee of the curve. However, the alternating current applied to the grid would now produce a large decrease and a small increase of the plate current, the reverse of that shown in Fig. 9. The objection to working the tube on the upper bend of knee of the curve is that when no potential is applied to the grid a relatively large current would flow in the plate circuit and rapidly exhaust the "B" battery.

Should the tube, by means of the potential applied to the grid, be made to operate at a point on the characteristic curve midway between the upper and lower bends—that is, on the straight part of the curve, symmetrical variations in the grid potential would cause symmetrical change in the plate circuit current and the tube would not function as a detector.

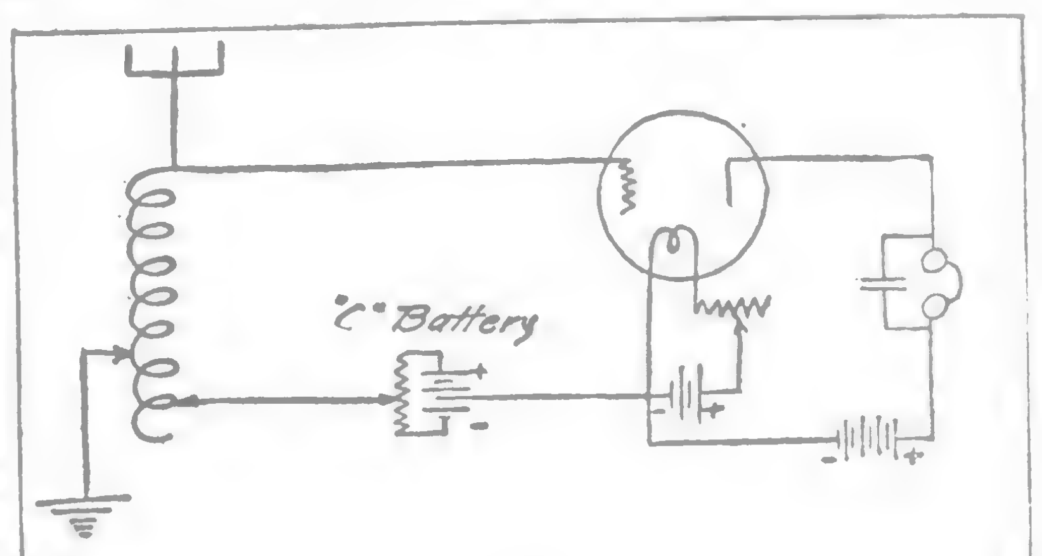


Fig. X

Fig. 10 shows how a three-electrode vacuum tube is connected in a simple radio receiving circuit. The "B" battery furnishing the necessary plate potential is connected with its positive side through the phones to the plate. The filament is heated to the required temperature by the battery "A." The incoming radio frequency alternating current is applied to the grid and the negative side of the filament through the "C" battery. By connecting the negative side of the filament to the midpoint of the "C" battery a positive potential can be applied to the grid by moving the slider on the "C" battery potentiometer up, or the grid can be made negative with respect to the filament by moving the slider on the "C" battery potentiometer down.

In practice a "C" battery is not used to force a three-electrode vacuum tube to function as a detector.

Fig. 11 shows how a so-called grid condenser and a grid leak resistance are used in conjunction with a three-element vacuum tube so that it will function as a detector in a radio receiving circuit.

The grid condenser is connected in series with the grid of the tube and shunted by the grid leak resistance. The grid condenser will allow alternating current to flow to the grid but will not allow any charge that might collect on the grid to flow through it to the filament. The only way a charge that might collect on the grid could flow to the filament would be through the high resistance of about 500,000 to 2,000,000 ohms and would allow the charge on the grid to leak off slowly.

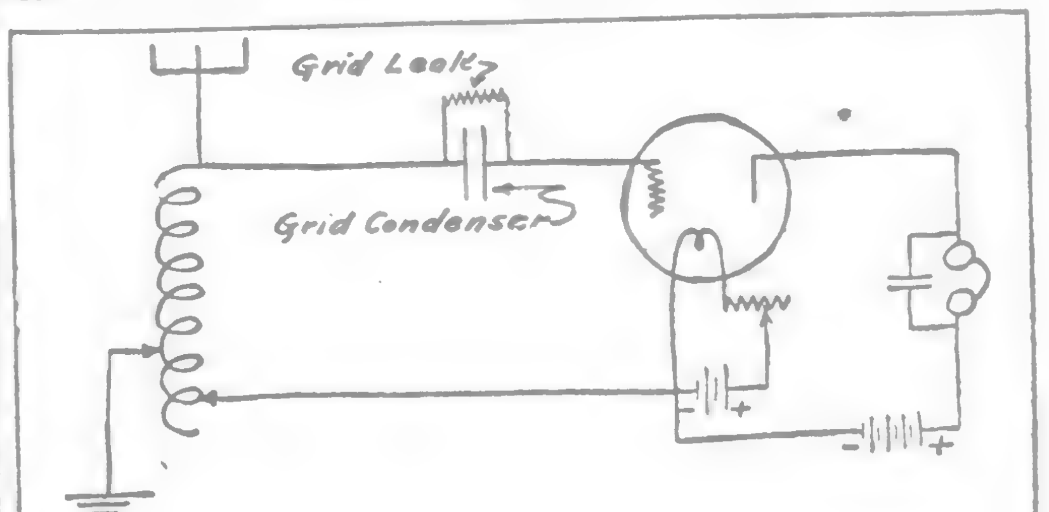

Fig. XI

USING ELECTRIC LIGHT WIRE

Experts Tell the Safe Way to Employ This System for Radio Receiving.

Since the announcement that the bureau of standards of the department of commerce had perfected a method of employing electric light wires in place of aerials, considerable experimenting has been done by various amateurs, some of whom have had good luck while others succeeded only in blowing a large number of fuses.

Engineers of an eastern electric light company, have offered the following suggestions to amateurs:

"First—Successful results have been obtained so far only with audion bulb sets. Crystal sets receive the signals, but for some reason they are very weak and indistinct.

"Second—No set should be used on this system without air or oil filled condensers, placed in series with either the antenna circuit or the ground circuit—preferably in the antenna circuit.

"Third—A fuse not heavier than one-half ampere should be used in series and just ahead of the antenna connection.

"Fourth—An ordinary separate detachment plug—i. e., one with two blades connecting the two separate halves of the plug—is used. Only one wire is run from this plug, the other binding screw left undisturbed. This single conductor wire should be long enough to reach from a handy electric light socket to the table where the instrument is located and should terminate in the fuse mentioned above. In case an externally connected condenser is used, the circuit should be run from the fuse to the condenser and from the condenser to the antenna binding post of the receiving set. [illegible] plug apart and turning the lower half half-way around.

"Caution—Under no consideration should the connection from the electric light socket be brought directly into contact with the ground connection, or fuses will be blown in the house circuit and the whole house left without light. Operators should also be careful about making contact themselves bodily with the electric light wire and ground at the same time, in order to avoid shock."

SHORT FLASHES

The first national radio compass station on the Great Lakes was recently installed. Other stations will shortly be in service when the "graveyard" of the lakes will have lost its terrors.

It is claimed that John Hayes Hammond, Jr., and Dr. E. L. Chaffee have invented an appliance that insures secrecy in wireless. The system is based on principle of producing characteristic waves to which only especially equipped receivers are responsive.

Secretary Hoover's force of "ether cops" may take the form of special government detecting stations where aerial compasses could be arranged so as to detect the direction from which interruptions come. By a series of relays, the government station nearest the violating amateur could be notified and the source of trouble stopped.

Now the fans in England are having a hard time with their air. According to a report from England there are only 8,000 authorized amateur operators in the United Kingdom. The London Daily Mail states that the reason for the art's tardy growth is the fact that "hampering and senseless restrictions in this country [illegible]"

JULY

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

—18—

She stooped and smoothed back the hair from Evelyn's wet brow.

"Now, while I'm gone you just lay quiet-like, askin' Jesus every minute that your man'll be hikin' here faster'n a crow can fly."

Evelyn raised her head.

"Kiss me, Polly dear," she begged, with streaming eyes.

"All right!" murmured the squatter girl. "Kisses're mighty comfortin', ain't they?"

She stooped and laid her lips on Evelyn's and, turning swiftly, left the room. Evelyn heard her snuffing the candles outside and then heard the latch click as Pollyop closed the door behind her.

Bounding out into the snow, Pollyop raced through the road toward Bishop's hut, for she had decided to speak to him before going on. She lifted the latch and peeped in.

Larry sat by the stove, puffing his pipe. He gave her but a glance then dropped his head mournfully.

"Where's Lye, Larry?" Polly asked in a hissing whisper.

"Gone home," came in a grunt. "He's sick to his stummick, an' so be I. I'm most froze, too."

With her hand on the latch of the door which she had closed against the storm, the girl stood in shivering indecision. She felt intuitively the inner emotions going on inside the stolid speaker. She wanted to throw her arms about him and tell him all that had passed in her home during the last hour. But if she did, Larry would take the blame of the crime on himself. Of course he would! Polly Hopkins knew the heart of Larry Bishop as if she had made it herself from God's own clay. If the person in her shack had been Old Marc, he would have had no compunction in putting him out of the way, but a woman——

"I don't want you for anything tonight, Larry Bishop," she broke out, fumbling with the latch. "An', mind you, dearie, never tell nobody you an' Lye swiped Old Marc's woman. That's a promise, Larry, ain't it?"

"Yep," replied Bishop, nauseated.

"Then go to bed an' sleep!" returned Pollyop. "You'll get warm, an'—an'—I'll see you tomorrow—mebbe. I won't be needin' you in my shanty tonight."

Then she went swiftly out, slammed the door and was away like a winter bird, before the squatter could question her.

Swiftly she ran on, her hair almost on end because, to save her friends, she must face the haughty MacKenzie himself. It had been her cruelty that had prompted their act, and now, besides saving Evelyn, she must shield them. The nearer she came to the MacKenzie house, the harder her heart pounded, with dread at the task before her.

In the meantime Marcus MacKenzie and his wife's mother were together, the lady stretched out on the divan, and Marcus pacing the floor. Since MacKenzie had left the Hopkins shack, he had ridden madly over the hills, urging every man available to help him find his wife. Secretly he had wept tears such as never had poured from his eyes before in all his supercilious days.

Having set in motion what aid he could summon from town and country, he had come back home to the hysterical mother. He had no comforting assurances to give her, or any to allay the burning grief within himself. Evelyn had disappeared as if the ground had opened and swallowed her up. He paused in front of Mrs. Robertson, his dark, handsome face working painfully.

"You're very sure she was feeling well just before she went out?" he inquired. "She didn't act as if she had anything to worry over?"

Mrs. Robertson used her handkerchief before she answered.

"I can't think of anything," she hesitated, "unless it was about Bob. Lately he's been so different. I asked Eve one day——" She broke off and dissolved in tears.

"Yes, you asked her one day—what?" MacKenzie urged.

"It was about Bob," continued the weeping lady. "Eve thought he was suffering over—over——"

"Well!" snapped Marcus.

Would the woman never cease her everlasting crying and give him a clue if she had one?

"Well!" he goaded her on more furiously.

"Polly Hopkins!" she sobbed. "Eve said your continual pounding at the squatters had about broken the boy's spirit."

"Rubbish!" exclaimed MacKenzie. "Eve wouldn't waste her time worrying over such [illegible]. Bob's a fool, I've [illegible]—Where is he?"

"I don't know," answered Mrs. Robertson. [illegible] wife had to be tormented like that!"

That he had started the rumpus and done his full half of the quarreling never occurred to him. He was determined to find some one to blame for his wife's disappearance.

"Well, there's one thing certain," he ejaculated, after measuring the room several times with long strides. "I can't stay here, but good God! I don't know where to go."

A deep groan fell from his lips, and he began with heavy tread to walk up and down again.

"Can't you think of any place she might have gone?" he begged. "You know all her friends. Where would she go if she had determined to leave home?"

"Leave home?" gasped Mrs. Robertson, her jaw dropping.

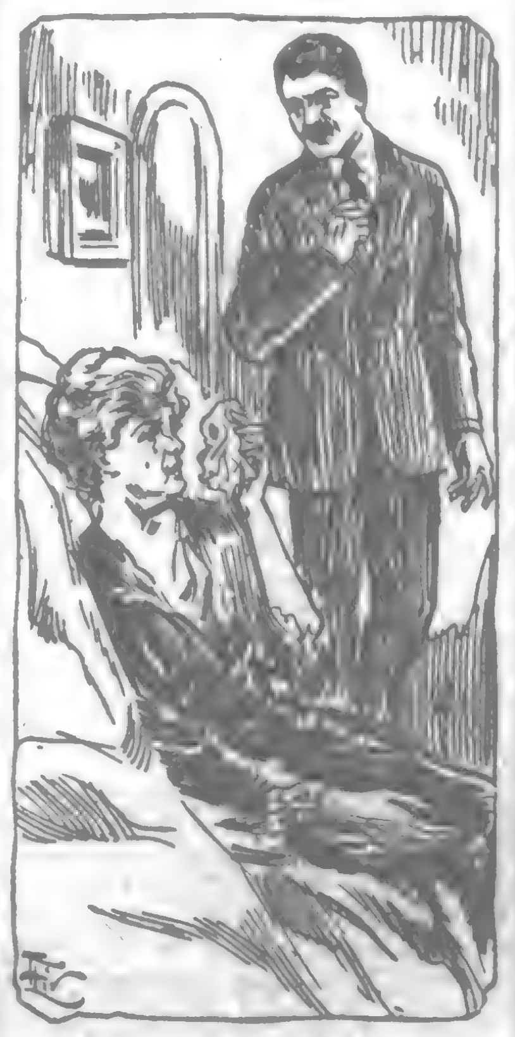
"Yes!" faltered Marcus. "I don't know whether she told you or not, but we had some words before I started for Cortland."

"Of course she didn't tell me," came from behind the lady's handkerchief. "She never tells me anything, but I heard it. You were quarreling over the squatters, and in Eve's condition, I think you might spare her a little. —She's not strong! So much wrangling makes her sick!—I wish Bob were home. Oh, dear, I can't stand it."

"It's Bob that's made all this trouble," snarled Marcus. "He's spent several months trying to circumvent me about the squatters, and Eve and I would have had no quarrels at all if he had attended to his own affairs."

He spoke moodily, conscious that he had treated his wife harshly, yet unwilling to admit it.

Mrs. Robertson, touched with the same feeling, sat up, wiping her face and brushing back her hair. She, too, remembered now all the bitter words she had flung at her daughter.



"Why Didn't You Tell Me So Before?" Cried the Man, Turning on Her Swiftly.

"Marcus," she said. "If—we—get Eve back again——"

"If we get her!" he interjected, his face going snow-white. "Of course, we'll get her. Why say such ridiculous things?" He turned away to hide the emotion her tremulous question had filled him with. "It will be my death if we don't," he ended.

Mrs. Robertson raised on her elbow.

"But Marcus," she exclaimed, "there's been something on my mind ever since—since— Oh, you don't think the squatters have her, do you?"

"I don't know," moaned Marcus, and he sat down quickly as if his legs would no longer bear the weight of his body.

And they were sitting thus, each busy with his own unspeakable unhappiness, when the servant entered.

"There's a girl here, sir," she began, and Marcus sprang up.

"Bring her in," he cried. "Bring her in instantly!"

The maid hesitated.

"She's queer looking, sir," she said timidly, "and she's wet through. She's one of them squatters."

"Bring her in, I said," ordered Marcus once more, and the girl went out, closing the door softly.

Pollyop crept into the warm room, her teeth chattering, her legs unsteady. Her first glance fell upon Mrs. Robertson who, when she saw her, made a husky throat sound. Then the brown, fearful eyes [illegible] was losing his mind. Polly thought by the blank expression of his face that his wits had gone completely. Ignoring the woman whom she detested, she went rapidly to MacKenzie's side.

"I had her roped up in the bed when you was there tonight, mister," she told him, the words tumbling over each other in the haste of confession. "I were goin' to chop her head off to get even with you. But—but—my dead Granny Hope, an' the Biggest Mammy in All the World wouldn't let me."

It seemed an eternity to the quaking young speaker before Marcus threw up his head and took a long breath.

"She—she's alive?" he demanded hoarsely. "You're very sure she isn't dead? Girl," he bounded up and grasped Pollyop's arm, "if you lie to me—"

"I ain't lyin' to you, mister," interrupted Polly dully. "You don't need to be scared for Miss Eve, but now you'd best come along to my hut an' get her. She's mournin' for you in Granny Hope's coop-hole, covered up with blankets."

Something like a huge fist struck MacKenzie. The conviction that the squatter girl's words were true lifted him immediately from the bottom depths of hopelessness. The sudden inrush of joyous relief brought with it a mental illumination, and he saw himself as others had seen him. The terrible, blighting uncertainty he had borne for a few maddening hours the girl before him had known for months. If she were to blame for his suffering, what was the measure of his own responsibility?

He turned swiftly to his mother-in-law and said huskily:

"Call some one to get this child some dry clothes. Take anything of Eve's you can find that will keep her warm, and for God's sake, take those ragged boots off her feet!" He sprang to the bell. "I'll order the team."

When he had given his orders to the servant who appeared at the door, he sank back into a chair, and Mrs. Robertson went swiftly out.

Utterly oblivious of the squatter girl's presence, Marcus MacKenzie buried his face in his hands. The new Pollyop, the Polly of the Sun, crept forward and touched him.

"Your woman's all right," she said huskily. "Don't cry! She told me about—about the little kid a-comin' in the summer, an' she howled like mad to come along with me. But I says to her she couldn't walk all this way to you without dyin'."

The soft tones vibrated sympathetically as she voiced the assurances. MacKenzie thrust up his hand and clutched the slim brown fingers.

"Tell me something about it while we're alone," he whispered.

Pollyop shuddered.

"Well, sir," she began, so low that MacKenzie had to raise his head to hear, "all the squatters hate you, but none of 'em was wicked like me. I said, I did, that you couldn't be hurt no way only through your woman, an'—an'—I was goin' to cut her head off with the ax an' then sling 'er in the lake. I s'pose I'm goin' to get sent up for years, but I just had to come and tell you."

Before MacKenzie, aghast at the danger his dear one had faced, could answer, Mrs. Robertson entered, followed by Evelyn's maid.

"I'll get my coat," exclaimed Marcus, jumping up. "Dress the girl warm and send along Evelyn's fur motor coat."

A furtive smile curled the maid's lips as she helped pull off Jeremiah's heavy coat, and then grew broader as Pollyop slipped out of Daddy's great boots. Yet the woman admitted to herself as she dried the wet feet and attired the squatter girl in her mistress' beautiful clothes that she was pretty, even prettier than Mrs. MacKenzie.

When the robing process was finished, Mrs. Robertson glanced over the little figure and grudgingly acknowledged to herself that there was something of elegance in the girl's bearing, even if she were a squatter.

"Come here!" she said. A haughty gesture indicated the spot. "Right here before me."

Polly's shaking legs carried her within a few inches of the august presence.

"You're very sure, girl," asked Mrs. Robertson, "that my daughter's safe in your shanty? How did she come there?"

Polly remembered Larry Bishop and Lye Braeger. She had been instrumental in bringing them within the [illegible] must [illegible] through his mind, his thoughts flew to the squatter's hut where his frail young wife awaited him.

"Come along quickly," he said, going directly to Polly.

How changed he seemed, how gentle he was as he took hold of her arm and led her away; and so preoccupied was she with this thought that the beauty of the clothes which she wore made no impression upon her. She wondered dully when MacKenzie lifted her bodily into the sleigh and the coachman chirruped to the horses, just what he intended to do with her tomorrow.

She looked back upon the time the authorities had sent Meg Williams to a reform school and also recalled the girl's home-coming after her term had been served. Now that she, herself, was in danger of the like treatment, Pollyop searched her mind for the details that Meg had given of the horrible place.

As the horses trotted along the boulevard, Pollyop's chin sank into the warm fur about her neck, and until they turned into the narrow lane from the road, no one spoke a word.

"Go straight to the lake, Hank," ordered Mackenzie, and at the sound of his deep voice, Pollyop felt another shock of surprise. She had heard it so often in strident abuse! Now it was actually pleasant to listen to!

Down the hill through the furry flakes of snow the strong horses picked their way. Once the cutter nearly turned on its side but righted itself. The Hopkins hut was dark when they drove up before it. Marcus jumped into the snow, picked Polly out of the cutter as if she had been a kitten, and waded through the drift to the narrow path leading into the house.

He put the girl down before the door, and turning, called to the coachman:

"Drive the team down the road, Hank, out of the wind! I'll call you when I want you!"

It was Pollyop's trembling hand that unlatched the shanty door. It was she who struck a match and touched it to the candle. Then she pointed to Granny Hope's room.

"She's in there, mister," she said, trembling like an aspen leaf.

Then because she was about to face an outraged wife in the presence of a powerful husband, she sat down, shaking with fear from head to foot.

CHAPTER XVII

In the meanwhile a covered carriage containing two men and a little boy was making slow progress along the drifted boulevard. About two miles from Ithaca a double cutter, with sleigh bells ringing, dashed by them, the little light on the back of it glowing like a steady red eye until a sharp curve in the road blotted it from sight.

"Somebody else out, if 'tis a bad night," commented the older man, who held the boy.

"They went awful fast, too, Daddy Hopkins," murmured the child. "Didn't 'em, darlin'?"

"Yep, son," was the reply. "Sleighs go over the snow better'n wagons."

The words hardly penetrated the younger man's revery. His thoughts were busy with a squatter girl who would have a real Thanksgiving the next day. Her joy he could picture, but he could not join it. All his thoughts of her were marred by another vision that poisoned his every moment. Never since he had found Oscar Bennett dying in Polly's bed had he known a peaceful instant.

When the vehicle came to the corner where MacKenzie's magnificent turnout had swung into the lane leading to the row of squatter shacks at the lakeside, Robert Percival opened the carriage door and thrust his head out.

"This is where we turn," he shouted to the driver. "Go slow! The drifts are deep all the way down."

When he settled again into his seat, he remarked:

"It's a bad night, Hopkins. Perhaps it would have been better to have waited until morning, after all."

The other man bent over the boy's head and laid his face against it.

"'Twould had to be something more'n a snowstorm to keep me in Ithaca all night," he returned. "Where my pretty brat is, I want to be."

"Of course, of course," sighed Robert.

But he did not utter aloud the thought which flung to his lips that he was tortured by the same wish, too. What he did say was:

"Your daughter will be asleep, I've no doubt."

"Mebbe," Hopkins answered. "But Pollyop'll be glad to hop out of bed for her daddy an' Jerry baby!"

Then he coughed as if trying to add something else.

"I been wantin' to tell you all day, Mr. Percival," he said awkwardly, "how grateful I be to you. It's kinda hard to say it in words."

"There's no need, I assure you," re-[illegible]

"Pollyop," [illegible] the child, wriggling. "[illegible] wants Polly."

"Hush, Jerry," [illegible] his father. [illegible]

Had Your Iron Today?

Toast It—

Delicious Raisin Bread

DO this some morning and surprise the family: Serve hot raisin toast at breakfast, made from full-fruited, luscious raisin bread. Let your husband try it with his coffee. Hear what he says.

Your grocer or bake shop can supply the proper bread. No need to bake at home.

Made with big, plump, tender, seeded Sun-Maid Raisins, and if you get the right kind there's a generous supply of these delicious fruit-meats in it.

Insist on this full-fruited bread and you'll have luscious toast.

Rich in energizing nutriment and iron—great food for business men.

Make most attractive bread pudding with left-over slices. There's real economy in bread like this.

Try tomorrow morning. A real surprise. Telephone your dealer to send a loaf today.

Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins

Make delicious bread, pies, puddings, cakes, etc. Ask your grocer for them. Send for free book of tested recipes.

Sun-Maid Raisin Growers,
Membership 13,000
Dept. N-24-12, Fresno, Calif.

Blue Package

New Shoes—Old Shoes—Tight Shoes
all feel the same if you shake into them some

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

The Antiseptic, Healing Powder for the Feet

Takes the friction from the shoe, freshens the feet and gives new vigor. At night, when your feet are tired, sore and swollen from walking or dancing, Sprinkle ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE in the foot-bath and enjoy the bliss of feet without an ache.

Over 1,500,000 pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

In a Pinch, Use ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

So Easy to Use

Rests the Feet

Lettonia Called "Singing Nation."

"The Singing Nation" is the name often applied to Lettonia, home of the Letts. The Letts derive the title of "singing nation" from their common devotion to vocal music.

For seven centuries the Letts suffered subjection from the German barons, who formed a haughty and firmly entrenched caste of nobility, but despite this oppression the vitality of the Letts was such that they survived. Since the abolition of serfdom in Russia, in 1860, they have advanced in education and economics, and there has been a growth of wealthy and cultured middle-class people.

Opinion is general that governments ought to carry on peace as capably as they carry on war.

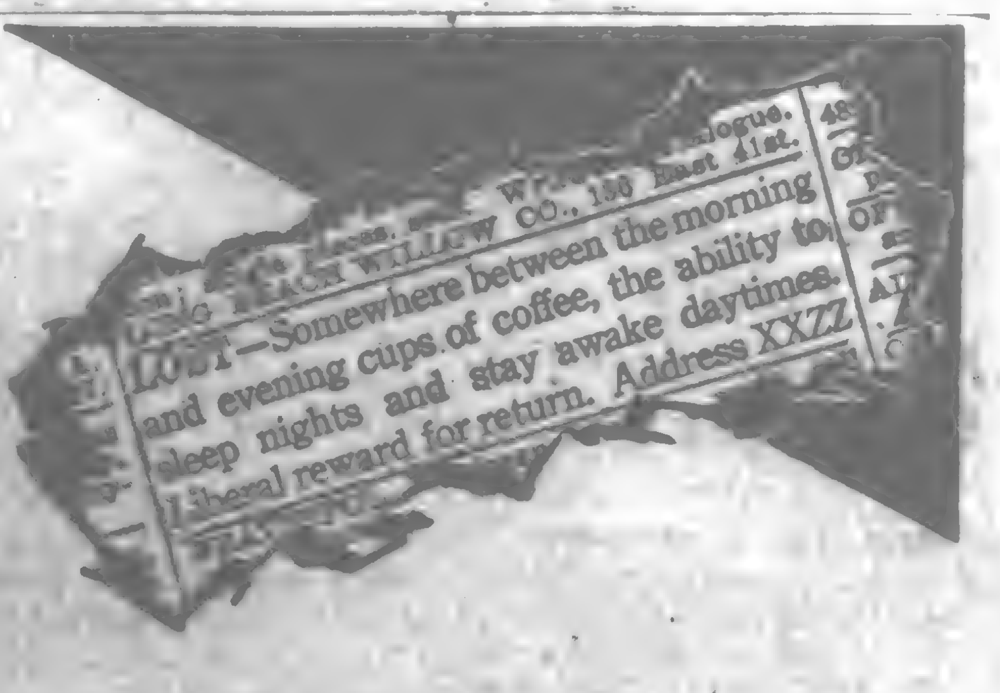
Classy Dressers in 1776.

The following was the uniform for the officers of the corps, by order of the "Marine Committee," dated September 5, 1776: "A green coat faced with white, round cuff, slashed sleeves and pockets, with buttons round the cuff, skirts turned back, buttons to suit the facings; white waistcoat and breeches edged with green, black gaiters and garters." The order also stated that green shirts were ordered for the men "if they can be procured."

A Dove of a Girl.

"Has your typewriter a billing attachment?" "No, but she has a cooing attachment."

Most of the waiters in a restaurant are guests.



LOST—Somewhere between the morning and evening cups of coffee, the ability to sleep nights and stay awake daytimes. Liberal reward for return. Address XXZZ

You will find in Postum

a delightful and satisfying mealtime beverage, with no element which can harm nerves and digestion—or cause wakeful nights and dull days.

Your grocer has Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for fully 20 minutes.

Made by
[illegible]

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Legal Publications

Notice Of Disposal Of Promissory Notes

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Town Trustees of the Incorporated Town of St. Joe, in DeKalb County, Indiana, will, from this date until the 15th day of July, 1922, at the office of the Town Clerk of said Town of St. Joe, Indiana, receive bids or offers for the disposal of promissory notes or evidences of indebtedness of said Town of St. Joe in the sum and amount of One Thousand Dollars, in the denominations, amounts and rates of interest and due as follows, to-wit:

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1923;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1924;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1925;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1926;

One note for $200, due July 1st, 1927.

All said notes with interest at 5% per annum from date payable on the first day of each July hereafter until paid.

Said disposition and issue of said evidences of indebtedness will be for the purpose of securing funds for the repair of the streets in said Town of St. Joe. No offer will be considered for less than the full face value of said notes or evidences of indebtedness and the right to reject all offers is hereby reserved.

Wm. Curie, President of the Board of Town Trustees of the Town of St. Joe, Ind.
B. S. Sheffer, Town Clerk.
F. M. Monroe,
John Wineland, Board of Town Trustees.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	109	$ 5.85
M. P.	76	5.53
Lutheran	92	5.18
M. E. Spencer	96	6.07
Lutheran	92	4.39
Newville U. B.	97	4.09
Christian
Coburntown	72	3.62
Concord	55	2.61
Rehoboth	87	6.11
Mt. Pleasant	98	4.03

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $[illegible] in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$[illegible] a month for five years,
$[illegible] a month for five years.
$[illegible] a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally disabled by Accident or [illegible] before reaching the age of [illegible] Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $[illegible] a month as long [illegible] the full [illegible] will be paid to your beneficiary.

Full particulars of this Perfect Policy given upon request by

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Just A Suggestion.

Would you believe thet there are some folks in St. Joe who borrow the St. Joe News from their neighbor to read each week. Some of these borrowers really can't afford to subscribe; others are sore on the management for little misunderstanding which happened years ago, and want to let on that they don't care for the paper, yet they slip around to the back door of some poor good neighbor and ask if they can't read the News this week; others are so tight with their money boarded in farms and bonds that they can't afford to support the News or any other forward booster.

The first type mentioned we could excuse in good spirit. When we have a special feature published we send those folks a copy just for them to read. The second class should be exposed in their little sneaking ways. And the third class should have life made so miserable around them that they would get out of town, giving room for someone who will boost the home town Better not let such people locate here.

Now you folks who are guilty of this offense please be kind to the poor neighbor from whom you are now borrowing the St Joe News. Find out when their subscription expires and then just come in and sign up for them one year and for yourself for one year. That is the only way of redeeming your good will with us.

HERE AND THERE

July Pictoriol Reviews are here.

Clifford Shuck spent over Sunday at Bryan, Ohio.

J. H. Leighty was a Garrett visitor, Tuesday.

Ray Davis and wife of Auburn, spent Monday night guests of H. M. Widneyand wife.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. G. F. Hamilton of Sheridan, Wyoming, left Tuesday afternoon for her home after a short visit here with the Will Hamilton and O. K. Shull families.

Earl Smith, wife and son and Dewey Smith and wife were called to Napoleon, Sunday by the serious illness of the gentlemen's sister, Mrs. Grace Stykeman.

R. D. Herrick and wife were over Sunday guests of Harry Randall at Ottawa, Ohio. Their sons were guests of O. H. Herrick's during their absence.

Friends here will be interested in knowing that Mrs. Harry Kees, who submitted to an operation for gall stones two weeks ago at a Marion hospital, is improving very nicely.

Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and sons went to Napoleon, Ohio and remained until Sunday when Mr. Kinsey joined them at the home of Elmer Hart.

Leon Kees of Marion, came the first of last week, and Mr. and Mrs. Vance Woodcox and baby of Detroit, came Friday night to be guests of C. C. Woodcox and family over the Eourth.

Will Hamilton and wife entertained at a Fourth celebration Tuesday evening, Lee O. Tustison and family, Earl Tustison and family, O. K. Shull and family and Charles Tustison.

Rev. C. O. Johnson and the following boys enjoyed a [illegible] out at [illegible] Bridge Thursday night: [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Mrs. Carrie DePue of Orland, spent Thursday and Friday here visiting friends.

Florence Buchanan and wife spent the 4th with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Rhoads and family, of Spencerville.

Jacob Sechler and wife, Mrs. Everett Mavis and children and Merritt Sechler were Frdiay dinner guests of Frank Curie and wife.

William and Enos Byers and sister, Mary, of Robinson Chapel, were Sunday guests of George Wilmot and wife and Mrs David Poper.

Rev. Nickerson, a former pastor of the Christian Church, with his wife and little son, was in town a little while Wednesday evening.

The hearing of the case of Nie Sheffer, accused murderer of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sheffer on June 22nd, has been set for July 11.

Jessie Copp and wife and little daughter, Vernell, of New Haven, came Saturday to visit over the Fourth with their parent, F. M. Monroe and wife and Mrs. Alice Copp.

Miss Wanda Brunson of Fort Wayne, was a Monday night guest in the C. C Bassett home, leaving Tuesday morning for home after a two weeks visit with relatives in this vicinity.

Ralph Sechler and family and Walter Bowen, wife and daughter, of Fort Wayne, were Monday night and Tuesday guests of Frank Sechler and wife and other relatives.

Howard Gee of Fort Wayne, spent the first of the week with his parents, S. D. Gee and wife. His family who were here went with him as far as Hicksville where they will visit relatives.

Charles Tustison was a dinner guest and Edward Scott and Miss Florence Swarten of Hicksville, Donald Christoffel and Miss Ada Diets of Waterloo, were afternoon callers of Laney Gee and family.

Mrs. I. E. Sherrick and family and Miss Ruth Lotzenhiser of Auburn were Tuesday dinner guests of W. E. Henley and wife. All motored to Hicksville in the afternoon.

The Teachers and Officers of the M. P. Sunday School held their monthly business meeting Monday evening. At the close of the meeting all enjoyed a treat of ice cream and wafers from the new superintendent, B. E. Widney.

Bert Jackson and wife, J. C. Hull and wife and F. B. Leighty and wife spent the day Tuesday at Winona Lake. While there they listened to a splendid patriotic address by Billy Sunday, which they enjoyed very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Chilson, Reuben Brunson, Claud Brunson and two children, and John Ellis Jr. of South Bend, and Dr. V. C. Brunson and Sidney Brunson of Newville spent a few hours Monday with niece and cousin, Mrs. C.C. Bassett.

Tanlac is unquestionably the most widely talked of medicine in the world today and those who once use it invariably buy it over and over again and tell their friends of the splendid results they have derived from its use.

Dr. B. S. Sheffer's.

Those from here who attended the Widney family reunion held Thursday afternoon at Eckhart Park, Auburn, were Byron Widney wife and daughter, Edith Mesdames Jacob Sechler Frank Sechler Everett Mavis and children, and Merritt Sechler.

An organization meeting of the [illegible] of DeKalb county was held at the [illegible] in Auburn [illegible]

[illegible]

R. J. Pugsley and wife, Roy Pugsley, wife and baby of near Butler, were Sunday guests of their son and brother, Lester Pugsley and family.

Miss Thelma Curie returned home Monday morning from Auburn where she had been a guest of her Aunt, Mrs. Abe Mason and family the past week.

The menu for the 4th of July dinner in the home of Daniel Oberhaltzer was nice new potatoes, new peas, and new beans, all home grown and from their own garden

Miss Erma Rhodenbaugh and nephew and niece, Ross and Loa Hart, came Satnrday noon from Napoleon, Ohio, to visit the former's father and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Rhodenbaugh, for several days.

Christian Church Notes

The following report was read by the secretary at Sunday School showing the work of the school for the past quarter:

The aggregate attendance for the quarter	1295
Average attendance	108
Average attendance for first quarter of the year	84
Total collection	$76 26
Average collection	6.32

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Eva Sheffer. Election of officers for the coming six months will be held at that time so a good attendance is desired.

The regular monthly business meeting of the officers and teachers will be held Thursday evening at the church.

Canada Thistle Club

The membership of the DeKalb County Canada Thistle club, something new in the way of farmers' organizations, is increasing. The club was recently organized by farmers in the vicinity of Waterloo and now has a membership of thirty. Later on a membership campaign will be started and an effort made to extend the organization to all parts of DeKalb county. The purpose of the organization is to create an interest in eradicating Canada thistles.

Few People Appreciate

Comparatively few people appreciate the undeveloped agricultural possibilities of the American Continent. Take the Province of Saskatchewan for example. In that Province 384,156,000 bushels of wheat, barley and oats have been produced in a single year from about one-fifth of the area suitable for farming. The vast acreage awaiting cultivation in Western Canada that is surveyed and the locations of quarter-sections available for homesteading and purchase is shown in a map issued by the Natural Resources Intelligence Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada.

Supplementary to this map booklets have been prepared giving by districts detailed information concerning the land, the name and address of each owner, nature of soil, value of farm buildings, distance from a railway, etc. A considerable number of holders of unoccupied lands in Canada are residents of this State and will therefore be interested in the map and booklets which are available for free distribution, upon application to the above mentioned Branch.

Obituary

(Continued from Page 1.)

years, but death came and called her to the Spirit World [illegible] 3, 1910. Since that time he has lived alone.

One of his friends was the Bible which was read quite frequently.

While Mr. [illegible] was a conservative man, he did not [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

the passport to Eternal Life. Since childhood her ambition has been to do the Lord's work and live for him.

How well her life's desire came true her friends and neighbors can testify. Her life was so busy and her disposition so sweet and cheerful that one not knowing the fact could scarcely realize that she was at times a great sufferer. It can truly be said of her that she went about doing good deeds that her Master had chosen her to do. What greater success can one attain than this?

She will be greatly missed by the Christian church and Sabbath school, also by the less fortunate of the community, for she did much good to those who were in need. Also in the home she has left will she be missed. Her time and strength were always available for any worthy cause.

She was united in marriage to Elmer E. McDonald, the now bereaved and broken hearted husband, December 22, 1902.

She also leaves two sons, Lavon and Earl, who will not forget the loving heart and guiding hand of a christian mother.

She leaves a dear old mother and a step-father, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, of Newville, at whose home she died; one brother, two halfbrothers and a little nephew who was in her safe care and keeping, her father and three brothers having preceded her to the spirit world many years ago.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for they shall see God and dwell with him forever."

The funeral services were held from the U. B. church Friday before noon, the Rev. Couch of the Christian church at Butler officiating, assisted by Rev. Hubartt of Newville U. B. Interment was made in the Riverside cemetery.

She sleeps beneath a coverlet of flowers. The floral offerings were wonderful from church, Sunday school and friends, one piece especially with the words "Our Teacher," in golden letters from her class, and a beautiful Star from the Kendallville B. H. lodge.

It would take too much space to itemize each piece, let it suffice her casket was covered and surrounded with beautiful white lillies emblem of her pure life, and many other kinds of lovely flowers showing the high esteem in which she was held.

Constipation

THERE IS NOTHING equal to Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. When the proper dose is taken their action is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize that it is the effect of a medicine. These tablets possess tonic properties that aid in establishing a natural and regular action of the bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured many cases of chronic constipation.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Salt! Salt! And More Salt

We will have a car in in a few days.

Call and get our prices on barrels, 100 pound bags, 50 pound bags, and blocks.

Get the salt off the car and save the cost of unloading.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Ind.

The Gray Bus Line

Schedule Effective
On and After
Wednesday, June 28, 1922

Connects With Hamilton, Pleasant, James and Crooked Lakes. Connects With Launch at Hamilton Lake.

Read Down		POINTS	STATIONS	Read Up
A. M.	P. M.			A. M.	P. M.
6 45	3 45	Fort Wayne	East Side Court House	9 45	6 45
7 15	4 15	Cedarville	Blough Store	9 15	6 15
7 25	4 25	Leo	[illegible]	9 05	6 05
7 [illegible]	4 [illegible]	Spencerville	[illegible]	8 45	5 45
7 [illegible]	4 [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	8 35	5 35
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	8 05	5 05
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	7 50	4 50
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible] Lake	[illegible]	7 25	4 25
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	7 05	4 05
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	6 [illegible]	3 50
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	3 [illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible], Manager   Ft. Wayne, Indiana

JULY

How Much Influence Have YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Patronize the Advertisers.

A business meetng of the Ladies Aid will be held at the Lutheran parsonage on Friday afternoon.

Miss Florence Beams is visiting her aunt and husband, Jerry Klopfenstine and wife at Grabill.

Emery Kimes of Jamesville, Ohio, was a Saturday dinner guest of Cora Steward and family.

Miss Thelma McNabb was a Monday night guest of Miss Lillian Steffey.

The Lutheran Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Newton Miller, Thursday afternoon.

B. F. Markle and family spent Sunday afternoon with Markle's sister, Mrs. Edith Muhn and family of Auburn.

Try a want ad in the News.

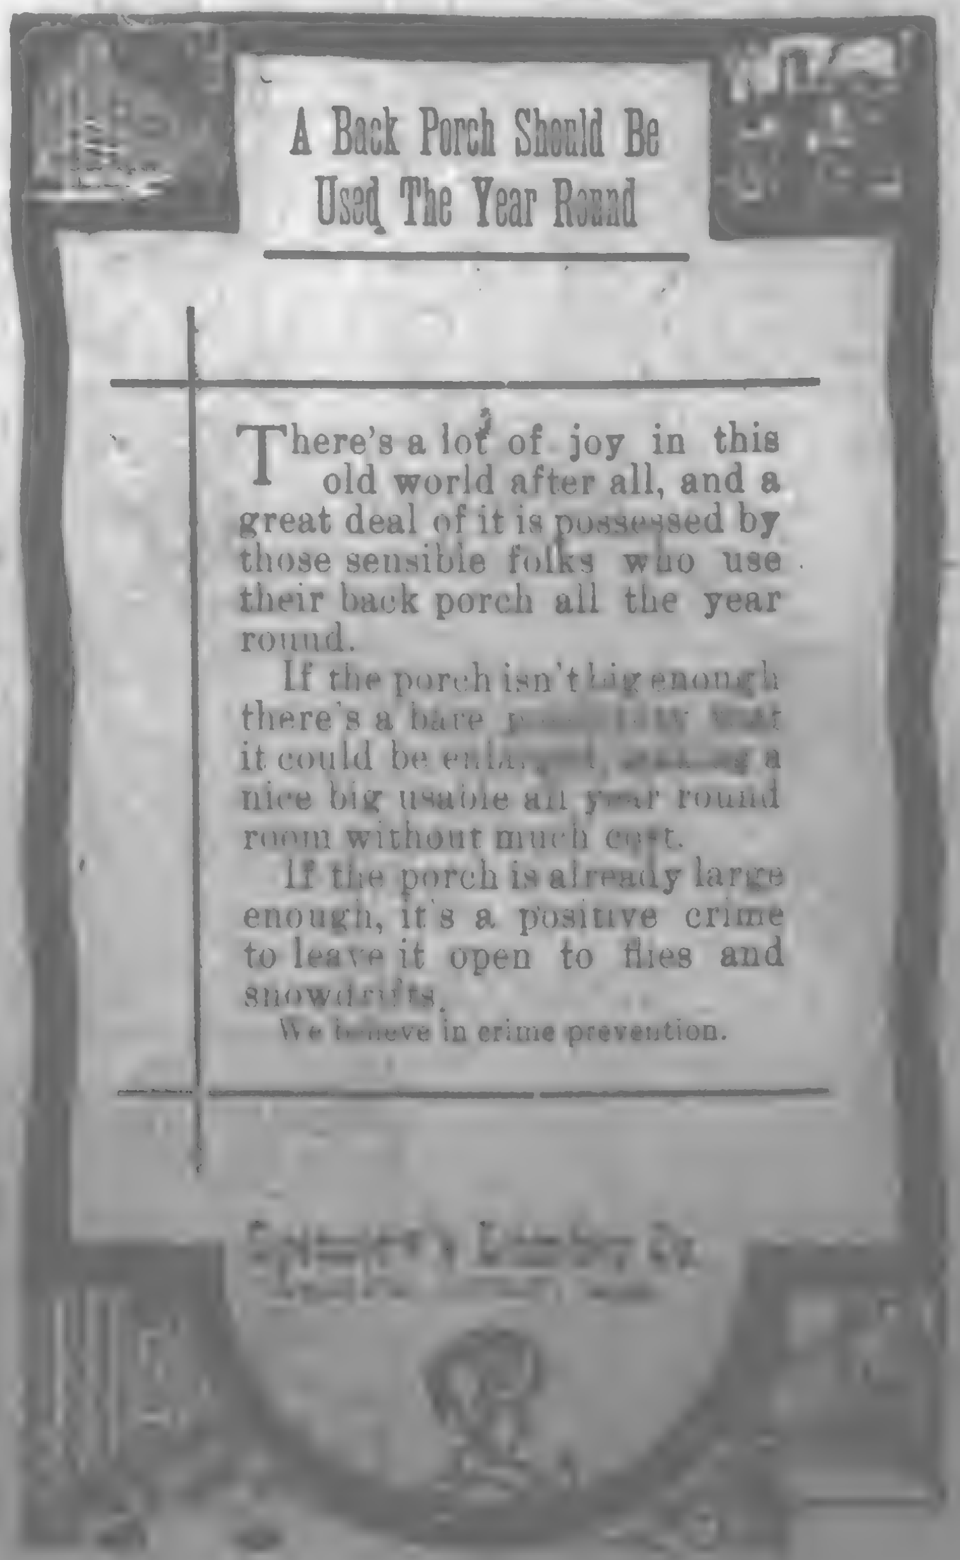
Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Raymond Rhodes and family and Mrs. Audery Wade and children spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Gale Bowser left last Friday to spend a week visiting his uncle, Ivan C. Bowser and family of near Fort Wayne.

Dr. F. W. Silberg and daughter, Orpha visited Mrs. Silberg at the Lutheran Hospital at Fort Wayne, Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Kimes and family and Elery Kimes, all of Jamesville, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs Samuel Bowerman and daughter, of Angola; Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Kelley and family; Ray Baker and wife; Charles Brittian wife and children, all spent Sunday at the home of the parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs Vol Hay.



A Back Porch Should Be Used The Year Round

There's a lot of joy in this old world after all, and a great deal of it is possessed by those sensible folks who use their back porch all the year round.

If the porch isn't big enough there's a bare possibility that it could be enlarged, making a nice big usable all year round room without much cost.

If the porch is already large enough, it's a positive crime to leave it open to flies and snowdrifts.

We believe in crime prevention.

SPRIGHTLY SILK FROCKS

Any number of sprightly, new taffeta frocks came trooping in, in advance of spring, and they were perfectly sure of a welcome. Along lines similar to those in the pretty model shown here designers have made them in very great variety, suited to gay youth and varied to please charming age. In a conspiracy to make them wholly irresistible to gentlewomen, lace is introduced in the sleeves or neck or both, and the silk is used in hand-made embellishments of flowers and ruchings, covered cord or straps.

The dress pictured here for afternoon, or informal wear, is a youthful model with full scalloped tunic over a plain skirt. Its elbow sleeves, of the taffeta, are lengthened by a puff of fine net ending in a band of silk at the wrist. Straps of the taffeta extend from the elbow to cuffs and roses of it are set about the tunic. The scalloped edge is finished with a silk-covered cord.

Miss Nellie Baker spent Saturday with Leone Winnifield.

J. C. Vallieu and family and Mrs. Samuel Smith and two sons, Walter White and Clarence Downey, spent Sunday with Edward Dix and family of Pauling, Ohio.

John Scott and wife and grandson, Walter Erwin and Mrs. of Auburn, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Cheney of Washington Street.

DeKalb Farm Notes

Stinking Smut of Wheat in DeKalb County

Stinking smut of wheat was found in small amounts in practically every field of wheat examined last Wednesday. Although the losses this year will be small the presence of the disease is a menace. When the smutted wheat goes into the threshing machine the smut balls are broken and the spores are scattered all over the seed. This will mean an increase in the disease next year.

The formaldehyde treatment will control the disease best where the disease is present in any quantities. The dry method of treating is not effective. The dipping method should be used. The reason for this is as follows. When the wheat is threshed many of the smutted kernels will go through the machine unbroken. Even the most thorough cleaning of the wheat will not remove them. If this wheat is treated by the dry method the formaldehyde gas cannot penetrate into the center of these greasy spore masses and the spore will not be killed. So after treating such wheat there will still be present in the seed a number of spore masses which can be broken and again cover the seed with smut. These smut masses must be removed to insure the wheat against the disease.

The recommendation for the stinking smut are:—

1. Clean the wheat as thoroughly as possible.
2. Make a solution of 1 pint of formaldehyde in 50 gallons of water.
3. Put about 1-2 to one bushel of wheat in a sack.
4. Do not close the sack but roll down the top till the wheat is exposed.
5. Dip in the solution and stir the wheat with a stick to permit all the smut balls to float to the surface.
6. Skim off the smut balls.
7. Remove the wheat and pile on the clean floor.
8. Cover for twenty-four hours and then open the pile to allow the escape of the gas. Leave the pile open till ready to sow.

Do not use dirty sacks nor drill untreated wheat followed by treated wheat unless the drill is first sprayed with formaldehyde full strength.

The hot water treatment will kill the Stinking Smut.

MICKIE SAYS

SOME BIZNESS MEN THINK CIRCULAR LETTERS ARE GREAT DOPE, BUT TH' LIVE MERCHANT AINT USIN' 'EM MUCH ANY MORE, PREFERRING TO PUT HIS [illegible]

Lessons From the Spring Work

One of our cooperators gave us an idea worth passing on. In the back of his farm account book he has a page for a poultry diary headed "Mistakes to Avoid Next Spring." He has jotted down some of his troubles, something as follows:

Not over three hatches next spring —better two.

Get brooder houses repaired this fall.

Have portable fence and stell drive posts ready by hatching time.

Get larger trough for feeding milk.

Get better fence to go around brooder stove, inside house.

And a number of others. We hope you made no mistakes but—if you did, plan to avoid them next time.

Culling vs. Feeding

Hot weather brings a lowered egg production, and hence a desire to cull out hens which have stopped laying. Four years of culling demonstrations over the state of Indiana have driven home this lesson—that poor feeding makes culls of many otherwise good hens.

At this time of year, then, we are more concerned about good feeding than about culling. Culling can come a month or two later, after good summer feeding has been practiced.

Why Feed Mash

Grain alone will not keep up highest hot weather egg production. A mash is necessary, and this mash must carry some kind of protein which hens like, (or else the protein fed separately, as where milk is fed.)

The Purdue mash for laying hens is easy to get, easy to mix, and comparatively cheap. It is 50 pounds bran, 50 pounds middlings, and 30 pounds high grade tankage, mixed together and fed dry. Where milk in abundance is available, the tankage can be left out. Then the bran and middlings are mixed and fed dry, and the milk, (at least a gallon per day for each 30 hens) fed in a trough nearby.

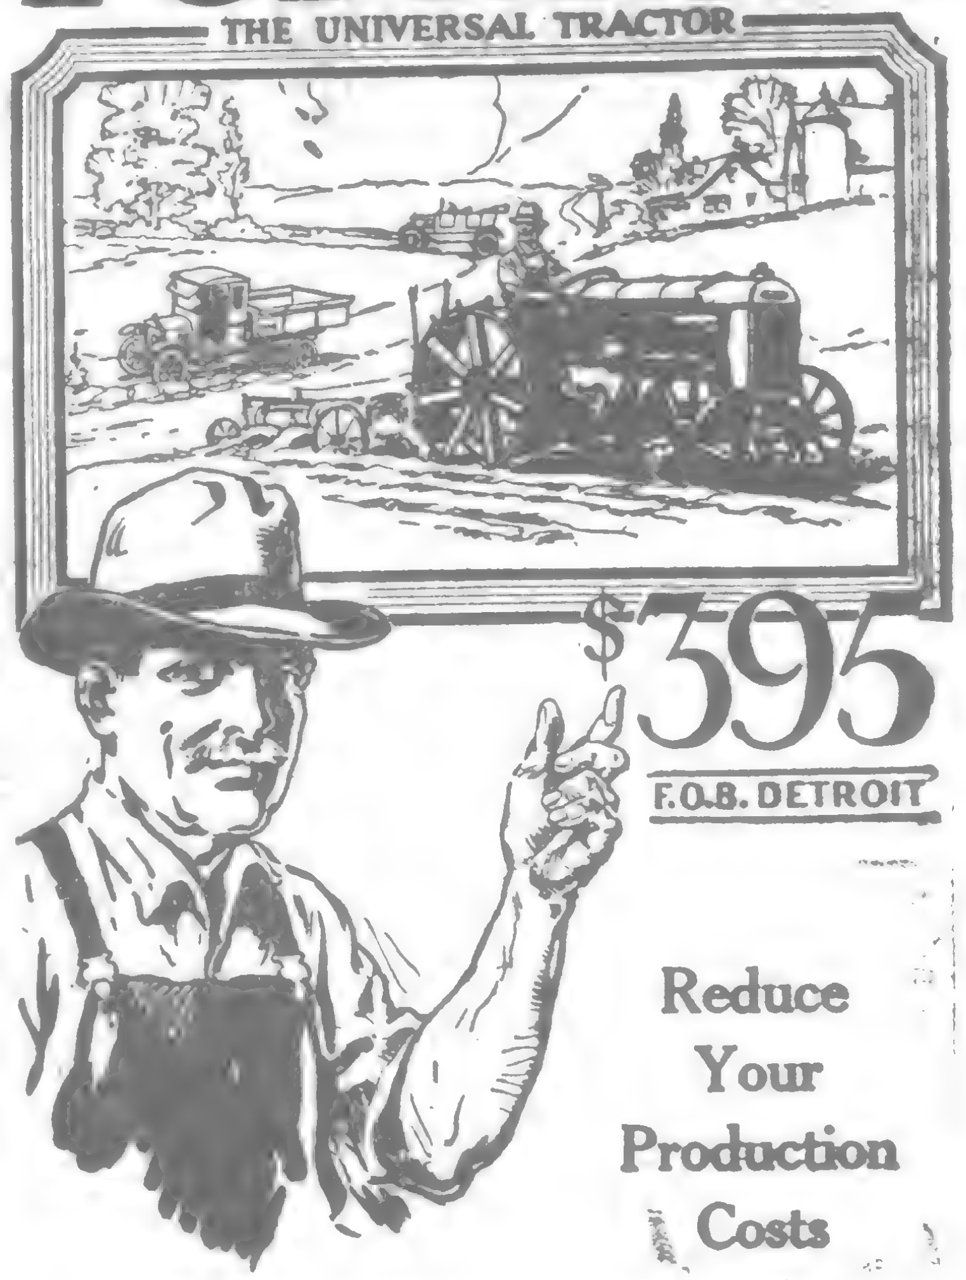
How Feed Mash

Just putting out a self-feeder or trough of good mash is not enough. Most hens like a grain better than the mash, and if allowed too much grain will not eat enough mash.

For hot weather eggs, hens ought to eat, by weight, fully as much mash per day as grain. This is one of the big secrets of high production. Make them do this. Keep down the grain. Do not feed grain at noon. Make the morning feed of grain very light, or omit entirely. Put the extra mash out in troughs under the trees, where the hens stay during the day. Have water close to the mash. For further details see Purdue Station Circular No. 101. "Feeding Laying Hens."

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR



$395

F.O.B. DETROIT

Reduce Your Production Costs

Farming, like every other business, must cut down the overhead.

It is not a question of being able to afford a Fordson; it is a question of being able to continue farming on the old too-costly basis.

The farmer's problem is not all a sales problem; it is also a production problem. He must cut down the cost of production.

The Fordson does more work at a lower cost and in less time than the old hand methods.

Let us give you the proof. Write, phone or call today.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

BIBLE THOUGHT —FOR TODAY—

The BACK TO THE BIBLE Bureau Service

A MORNING PRAYER:-- Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.--Psalm 51:10.

THE OMNISCIENT GUIDE:—The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord.—Psalm 37:23.

HOW TO GET ON:—Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find.—Matthew 7:7.

HOW TO GAIN ALL:—Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. 6:33.

THE ONLY HELP:—For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.—Isaiah 41:13.

BETTER THAN RUBIES:—Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me.—John 5:39.

JOY FOR WEEPING:—His anger endureth for a moment; in his favour is life: weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. —Psalm 30:5.

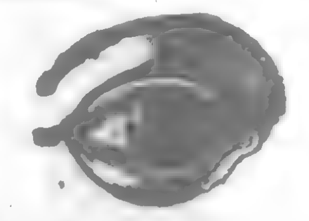
TRUTH MAKES FREE: — Then said Jesus, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free.—John 8:31, 32.

CURSE or BLESSING, Which?—He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him: but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it. —Proverbs 11.26.

SEEK THE ETERNAL THINGS — We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.—2 Corinthians 4:18.

Renew your subscription.

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

A FOUR FOOTED FAITH AND A TWO

In Which the Love of a Dog Far Outshines That of a Master, Who Doesn't Deserve the Title.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

ON Monday Rathburn took the dog far up the trail. Stub was no blue-ribbon, petted dog of records and pedigree; he was a vicious-looking little yellow cur of mixed ancestry and bad habits—that is, he had been all this when Rathburn found him six months before and championed his cause in a quarrel with a crowd of roughs in Mike Swaney's saloon. Since then he had developed into a well-behaved little beast with a pair of wistful eyes that looked unutterable love.

Rathburn had rescued the dog that day in the saloon more to thwart the designs of Pete Mulligan, the head of the gang and an old enemy, than for any compassion for the dog itself; but after he had taken the little animal home he rather enjoyed the slavish devotion which—in the dog's mind—seemed evidently to be the only fit return for so great a service as had been done him. For some months, therefore, Rathburn petted the dog, fed him, taught him to "speak" and to "beg," and made of him an almost constant companion. At the end of that time, the novelty having worn thin, he was ready—as he expressed it to himself—"to call the whole thing off," and great was his disgust that the dog failed to see the affair in the same light.

For some time, Rathburn endured the plaintive whines, the questioning eyes, the frequent thrusts of a cold little nose against his hand; then he determined to end it all.

"Stub, come here!" he called sharply, his right hand seeking his pocket.

With a yelp of joy the dog leaped forward—not for days had his master voluntarily noticed him.

Rathburn raised his pistol and took careful aim. His eye was steady and his hand did not shake. Two feet away the dog had come to a sudden halt. Something in the eye or in the leveled weapon had stayed his feet. He whined, then barked, his eyes all the while wistfully demanding an explanation. Suddenly, his gaze still fixed on his master's face, he rose upright on his haunches and held before him two little dangling paws.

There was a silence, followed by a muttered oath, as the pistol dropped to the ground.

"Confound my babyishness!" snarled Rathburn, stooping and pocketing his weapon. "One would think I'd never seen a gun before."

This was on Sunday. On Monday Rathburn took the dog far up the trail.

"Want a dog?" he said to a low-browed, unkempt man sitting at the door of a squat cabin.

"Well, I don't. I ain't buyin' dogs these days."

"Yer don't have ter buy this one," observed Rathburn meaningly.

The other glanced up with sharp eyes.

"Humph! Bite?" he snapped.

Rathburn shook his head.

"Sick of him," he returned laconically. "Like his room better'n his company."

"Humph!" grunted the other. Then to the dog: "Come here, sir, an' let's have a look at ye!"

Five minutes later Rathburn strode down the trail alone, while behind him, on the other side of the fast-shut cabin door, barked and scratched a frantic little yellow dog.

Tuesday night, when Rathburn came home, the first sound that greeted him was a joyous bark, as a quivering, eager little creature leaped upon him out of the dark.

On Wednesday Stub trotted into town at Rathburn's heels, and all the way down the straggling street he looked neither to the right nor to the left, so fearful did he seem that the two great boots he was following should in some way slip from his sight. And yet, vigilant as he was, the door of Swaney's saloon got somehow between and left him on one side barking and whining and running like mad about the room, while on the other his master stood jingling the two pieces of silver in his pocket—the price Mike Swaney had paid for his new dog.

Halfway up the mountain-side Rathburn was still chuckling, still jingling his coins.

"When a man pays money," he was saying aloud, as he squared his shoulders and looked across the valley at the setting sun, "when a man pays money he watches out. I reckon Stub has gone fer good, sure thing, this time." And yet—[illegible]

[illegible]

the end of thirty-seven he was crying, "Down, sir—down!" to a joy-crazed little dog which had come leaping down the mountain-side with eighteen inches of rope dangling at his heels—a rope whose frayed and tattered end showed the marks of sharp little teeth.

Rathburn gave it up after that, and Stub stayed on.

As the days passed food became scarce in the cabin. It had been some time since Rathburn had gone to town for supplies. Then came the day when a great joy came into Stub's life—his master spoke to him. It was not the old fond greeting, to be sure.

And so it came about that Stub, in obedience to that sharp command, frequently scampered off with his master to spend long days in the foothills, or following the mountain streams. Sometimes it was a partridge, sometimes it was a squirrel or a rabbit—whatever it was that fell a victim to Rathburn's gun, Stub learned very soon that it must be brought at once to the master and laid at his feet.

It was on one of the days when work, not hunting, filled the time, that Rathburn came home after a long day's labor to find Stub waiting for him with a dead rabbit. After that it came to be a common thing for the dog to trot off by himself in the morning; and the man fell more and more in the way of letting him go alone, as it left his own time the more free for the pursuit of that golden sprite who was ever promising success just ahead.

As for Stub—Stub was happy. He spent the long days in the foothills or on the mountain-side, and soon became expert in his hunting.

Gradually as the days passed there came still another change in the life at the cabin. Rathburn's step became slow, and his cheeks sunken. Sometimes he did not leave home all day, but lay tossing from side to side on his bunk in the corner. At such times, if the result of Stub's hunt were eatable, the man would rouse himself enough to stir the fire and get supper; and always, after such a day at home, Rathburn was astir the next morning at dawn and off in feverish haste for a long day's work to make up for the long day of idleness.

But there came a time when he could not do this—when each day found him prone on his bunk or moving feebly about the room. Then came a night when Stub's bark at the door was unanswered. Again and again Stub demanded admittance only to be met with silence. The door, though unlatched, was swollen from recent rains, and it took five good minutes and all the strength of one small dog to push it open a narrow foot, and then there were only silence and a dying fire by way of greeting.

Stub dropped his burden on the floor and whined. He was particularly proud tonight; he had brought home a partridge—the first he had ever caught without the aid of his master's gun.

The figure on the bed did not move.

The dog picked up the bird he had dropped and walked toward his master. This time he laid his offering close to the bunk and barked.

The man stirred and groaned. For long minutes the dog stood motionless, watching; then he crept to the fire and almost into the hot ashes in his efforts to warm the blood of his shivering little legs.

In the morning the fire was quite out. Stub stretched his stiffened body and gazed about the room. Over on the bed the man did not stir nor speak. The dead bird lay untouched at his side. There was a whine, a bark, and a long minute of apparent indecision; then the dog pattered across the floor, wormed himself through the partly open door, and took the trail that led to the foothills.

Three times Stub brought to the fireless, silent cabin the result of his day's hunt and laid it at his master's side, and always there was only silence or a low groan to greet him.

On the third night it snowed—the first storm of the season. A keen wind swept down the mountain and played hide-and-seek with the cabin door, so that in the morning a long bar of high-piled snow lay across the cabin floor.

When the men from the [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
MARY GRAHAM BONNER
COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

STARGAZER.

"What a lovely name you have, Stargazer," said Billie Brownie, as he went along the beach by the ocean and stopped in his sea-air plane close by the fish with this name.

"It's a joke, my name," said the Stargazer.

"Indeed," said Billie Brownie. "Won't you tell me about it?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said the Stargazer, "as I've nothing else to do at present."

Billie Brownie didn't think the Stargazer was very polite, but still he thought perhaps the Stargazer was shy.

Sometimes Billie Brownie had known shy creatures who tried to cover up their shyness and who were rude without meaning to be.

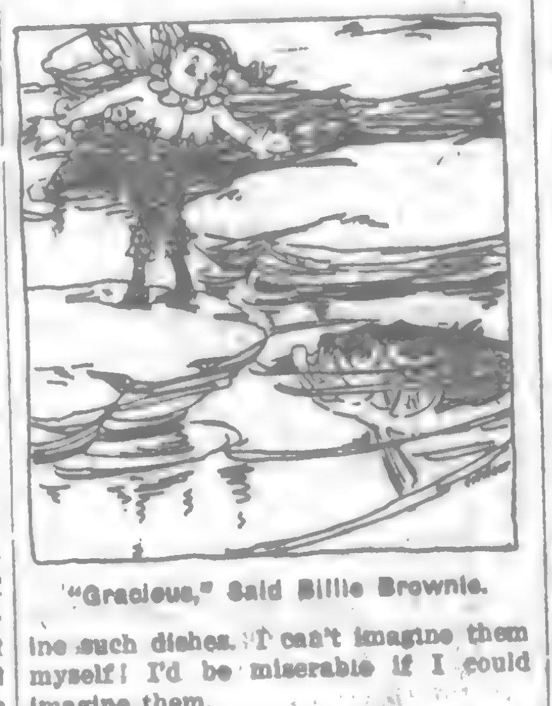
So he did not want to judge the Stargazer until he knew him and his fishy ways better.

"In the first place," said the Stargazer, "I will not hurt you."

Billie Brownie was surprised by this speech. What did the Stargazer mean by that? He thought he would ask and did so.

"Well," the Stargazer said, "I will not hurt you because I don't think you'd be good to eat. I can't imagine a Billie Brownie pudding or a Billie Brownie stew."

"Gracious!" said Billie Brownie, "I must say I am glad you cannot imagine such dishes. I can't imagine them myself! I'd be miserable if I could imagine them.



"Gracious," Said Billie Brownie.

"I am relieved that you will not hurt me because you do not think I would be good to eat."

"I'm quite sure I wouldn't be good to eat, quite sure, quite sure," Billie Brownie repeated.

"No one has ever said that I would be good to eat. I'm sure everyone has always thought that I'd be quite horrible in taste."

"Calm yourself, calm yourself," said the Stargazer. "I am not going to hurt you. And then, too, you see that you wear that invisible robe which not only keeps you safe from being seen by human eyes, but it also is a protection."

"Of course it is," said Billie Brownie, "but, Stargazer, you talked in such a way as to make me actually nervous."

"Well, you see my name may be lovely, but I'm not," admitted the Stargazer.

"Won't you tell me about yourself?" asked Billie Brownie.

"Oh yes," said the Stargazer, "for it is not quite time for me to swim out into the ocean and lay my eggs on the surface of the water.

"It will be time soon, for the summer is quickly coming along—it is almost here.

"And when it is here and when the eggs are hatched the dear little Stargazers will eat whatever they find along the surface of the water. They will do this until they are past babyhood days. Then they will act as all of us and I will tell you what such actions are.

"You see we are called Stargazers because our eyes are on top of our heads. We gaze upward or at the stars, though we could have been called Moongazers or Sungazers or Cloudgazers with as much point.

"We lie comfortably in the sand and hide all of our bodies except our eyes which we keep out looking for food. We can draw our eyes in if we want to so you will admit that we may be called Stargazers, but we're thinking a good deal and watching out a good deal for the best things [illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD HIGHWAYS

ROAD WAGES ARE DECREASED

Bureau of Public Roads Prepares Chart Giving Interesting Study of Conditions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A chart prepared by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture showing the trend of common labor wages on highway construction in various geographic divisions since 1915 presents an interesting study of conditions during the period. The price per hour which in 1915 ranged from 12 cents to 26 cents, gradually rose to from 31 to 62 cents in 1920 and has now declined to from 15 to 47 cents. At the present time the prices are as follows: 15 cents in the South Atlantic states, 18 cents in the states east of and bordering the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and including Alabama, 24 cents in the Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana group, 26 cents in the states included between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, 29 cents in the states from Kansas and Missouri to the Canadian border, 36 cents in the mountain states and 47 cents in the Pacific states. Figures for the New England and Middle Atlantic states have not yet been completed.

On the chart referred to the lines showing the trend in the various divisions have the same general rise and fall and cross each other in only a few cases, a particular exception being in the states from Kansas and Missouri north to the border, where the highest rate of all the groups prevailed up to 1920 and which has since shown the most marked decrease, dropping from 62 cents in 1920 to 29 cents in March

SURVEYS LESSEN ROAD COST

Contractors Given More Definite Basis for Bidding on Construction of Highways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Road material surveys now being made in several states will give contractors a more definite basis for bidding on road work and result in cheaper costs of construction, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In making these surveys, supplies of stone, gravel, sand, slag, and other materials are located, samples tested and information secured as to accessibility, freight rates, and other factors. This information is of permanent value as supplies are rarely exhausted. By furnishing a contractor information as to the location of satisfactory materials one element of risk is removed, and some of the states report that they have definite proof that such service has resulted in decreased bids.

A Completed 20-Foot Concrete Road.

The bureau of public roads in the course of its operations has tested some 9,000 samples of rock, sand, gravel, and slag, and reports are available giving the location from which the sample was taken together with results of tests. There are now 68 laboratories engaged in testing road materials and data are being rapidly accumulated even in states that are not at this time making an intensive survey.

LOWER CONSTRUCTION COSTS

Decreased Prices Are Indicated in Bids Submitted on Federal-Aid Highways.

Confirmation of the predicted lower level prices for road construction this year is found in the re[illegible] of 286 miles of fed[illegible] received by the bureau of [illegible] of the United States Department of Agriculture.

[illegible] average cost per mile of some [illegible] including the [illegible] were: [illegible] 46 [illegible] a mile, [illegible] at [illegible] a mile.

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

LESSON FOR JULY 9

DANIEL INTERPRETING NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S DREAM

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 2.

GOLDEN TEXT—The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ: and He shall reign forever and ever.—Rev. 11:15.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Isa. 9:6, 7:13, 14:47; John 18:33-38.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How God Answered Daniel's Prayer.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Daniel Reveals the King's Dream.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Daniel Met a Severe Test.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's World-Kingdom: Its Nature and Method.

I. Nebuchadnezzar's Dream (vv. 1-13).

This dream made a tremendous impression upon the king's mind, but he had forgotten its content. He urgently demanded of the wise men that they make known the dream and its interpretation. Because of their failure the king was very furious and commanded all the wise men of Babylon to be slain.

II. The Revelation of the Dream (vv. 14-35).

When the decree was in process of execution Daniel was sought out to be slain. He sought an interview with the king and obtained time. Note:

1. The prayer meeting in Babylon (vv. 14-18). Daniel was the leader in that prayer meeting. He called his fellows together and most definitely prayed to God. Their lives were at stake; their need was great.

2. Daniel's ascription of praise to God (vv. 19-23). God heard their prayer and Daniel responded in lofty strains of praise to God.

3. Daniel before the king (vv. 24-30). Because he had been with the Lord and had obtained wisdom, he was confident before the great king.

4. The content of the dream (vv. 31-35). Daniel made known to the king that in his dream he had beheld a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron and feet part of iron and part of clay. He beheld the image smitten by a stone and the stone became a great mountain.

III. The Interpretation of the Dream (vv. 36-45).

1. The head of gold represented the Chaldean monarchy with Nebuchadnezzar as its head (vv. 37, 38). With the accession of Nebuchadnezzar to the throne, the times of the Gentiles began.

2. The breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian power (v. 39). The Medo-Persian empire was a kingdom inferior to the Chaldean.

3. The belly and thighs of brass represented the Grecian empire under Alexander the Great (v. 39).

4. The legs of iron represented the Roman empire (vv. 40-43).

(1) The two legs represented the eastern and western divisions of the Roman empire. (2) The feet of iron and clay represented the two elements of human government, which inhered in the Roman empire and are present today in all forms of government, namely, absolutism and socialism, or imperialism and democracy. These elements have no coherency.

5. The stone cut out of the mountain (vv. 44, 45). This is the kingdom of heaven so graphically set forth in the New Testament, for the kingdom of heaven is the kingdom which the God of heaven shall set up. (1) The stone is Christ (Isa. 28:16; Matt. 21:42-44). (2) When did the stone strike? The impact of the stone was upon the feet of the columns (v. 34). This shows that it did not strike at Christ's first coming, for the Roman empire was a unit at that time; not even the division of the empire as represented by the two legs had taken place as yet. The stone smiting the feet shows that the stone will strike when the Roman empire shall have been divided up into ten kingdoms. (3) The kingdom of heaven is thus seen to be brought into realization through a great catastrophe. The end is not by gradual and peaceful extension through preaching the gospel, but by a crushing blow. The stone does not fill the earth by crowding the colossus out, neither by securing its submission to God, but destroying it. [illegible] dominion shall end in a crash; [illegible] its ruins shall be built the kingdom of heaven. The action of the [illegible] is of judgment, not grace. The [illegible] it is "after" the stone [illegible] work that it be[illegible]

[illegible]

WOMAN COULD NOT WORK

Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tired, worn-out feeling and painful periods. I used to get up with a pain in my head and pains in my lowerparts and back. Often I was not able to do my work. I read in your little book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it. I feel so well and strong and can do every bit of my work and not a pain in my back now. I recommend your medicine and you can use this letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. PHIL. MASER, 801 Winslow St., St. Paul, Minn.

Just another case where a woman found relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many times these tired, worn-out feelings and pains about the body are from troubles only women have. The Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for just this condition. The good results are noted by the disagreeable symptoms passing away—one after another.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Woman's Medicine for Women's Ailments. Always reliable.

Comfort Your Skin With Cuticura Soap and Fragrant Talcum

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

USEFUL for all the little ailments—bumps, bruises, sores, sunburn and chafing. Keep a bottle in the house. It's safe and pure. It costs very little.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO.
(Consolidated)
State Street New York

Vaseline
PETROLEUM JELLY
CHESEBROUGH MANUFACTURING CO.
NEW YORK, MONTREAL

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.
DAISY FLY KILLER
at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

WANTED TO HEAR FROM OWNER having good Farm or Acres for Sale at bargain. H. M. MONTGOMERY, Atlanta, Ill.

"111" cigarettes
10¢
They are GOOD!

Most of man's hero worship is wasted on himself.

For your daughter's sake, use Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. She will then have that dainty, well-groomed appearance that girls admire.—Advertisement.

[illegible] recklessly—and be un[illegible]. Tell the truth recklessly and [illegible]

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
[illegible]
BELL-ANS
[illegible]

JULY

BOWRON SOUGHT RELIEF 40 YEARS

Tanlac Restores Los Angeles Man to Splendid Health After Everything Else Had Failed.

"Tanlac has done me more good than all other medicines and treatments combined, and that's saying a great deal, for I was a sufferer from indigestion forty years and have tried every kind of medicine that came my way," said R. H. Bowron, 1635 W. 17th St., Los Angeles, Cal.

"I could hardly stand the bad spells I frequently had with my stomach. I was weak and nervous, had no appetite, and I felt miserable generally. Nothing I took gave me more than temporary relief and I gradually grew worse.

"About two years ago Tanlac put me in splendid condition and it has been my standby ever since. Whenever I get to feeling a little off, a bottle or two puts me in fine shape. I eat heartily now, sleep fine, have no distress after meals, and, in fact, am enjoying splendid health. Tanlac is just the thing for those who suffer as I did."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

His Scattered Acquaintance.

"What were you doing after the accident?" He—"Scraping up an acquaintance."—Exchange.

Don't Forget Cuticura Talcum

When adding to your toilet requisites. An exquisite face, skin, baby and dusting powder and perfume, rendering other perfumes superfluous. You may rely on it because one of the Cuticura Trio (Soap, Ointment and Talcum). 25c each everywhere.—Advertisement.

All Settled.

Wife—John, if Mrs. Nexdore gets a new suit this fall I must have one also.

Hub—Well, my dear, don't worry about that. Naybor and I formed a protective union today and neither of you is to have one.—Boston Transcript.

Red Cross Ball Blue should be used in every home. It makes clothes white as snow and never injures the fabric. All good grocers.—Advertisement.

Thieves are bound to their profession by hooks of steal.

Sometimes you never forget the things you didn't say.

You'll Like

Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS

Year's wear guaranteed. No rubber. Phosphor Bronze Springs give the stretch. Comfortable. Easy on buttons. If your dealer hasn't them, send direct, giving dealer's name. 50c & 75c pair. Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

The Stretch is in the Spring

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

YOU CAN color your hair easily, quickly and safely by using Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. Safe to use as water. Makes you look young again. At all good druggists, 75 cents, or direct from HESSIG-ELLIS, Chemists, Memphis, Tenn.

SQUEEZED TO DEATH

When the body begins to stiffen and movement becomes painful it is usually an indication that the kidneys are out of order. Keep these organs healthy by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Famous since 1696. Take regularly and keep in good health. In three sizes, all druggists. Guaranteed as represented. Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Indianapolis. — Thirty-four playgrounds are in operation in Indianapolis under the supervision of the city recreation department.

South Bend.—The Dunes society, composed of men and women of St. Joseph, Laporte, Lake and Porter counties, has been organized.

Peru.—Farmers of Miami county say they will have to cut their oats with scythes, as the crop is too short for the use of a mower. The drought is also causing much damage to the corn in the fields.

Fort Wayne.—W. H. Arnett of Kokomo was elected president of the Indiana Commercial Secretaries association at the final session of the organization's annual convention recently held in Fort Wayne.

Valparaiso.—William Halfman of Gary, who weighed 538 pounds, was buried recently at Turkey Creek, Porter county. Halfman's neck measured 28 inches. Ten pallbearers were necessary to carry the specially constructed casket. Mr. Halfman was forty-eight years old.

Loogootee.—The Martin county grand jury returned an indictment of five counts against Walter Hays, formerly president of the White River bank, charging embezzlement and forgery. The bank was closed April 26, following a run. It was reopened some time ago.

Columbus.—The first wheat of the 1922 crop delivered at Columbus elevators brought 98 cents a bushel. It was of poor quality and graded only 53½, the normal being 58. Wheat threshing is in full swing in the county, nearly two weeks ahead of the usual time. The wheat is so dry that it can be threshed immediately after cutting.

Lafayette. — Chinch bugs, which played havoc with crops in many Indiana counties last year, again are busy and promise to cause thousands of dollars' loss, it is announced by Prof. J. J. Davis, head of the entomology department of Purdue university. The bugs are present in approximately two-thirds of the Indiana counties, and apparently are worse in central and northern Indian.

Evansville.—Three robed men of the Ku Kluk Klan of Evansville, dressed in full regalia of the order, went to the city hall recently and left a sealed envelope for the city controller, which contained a letter pledging the local Klan to give $2,000 to the building fund of the Deaconess hospital. The klansmen quickly left the city hall and, getting into an automobile, drove away. The Deaconess hospital is trying to raise $100,000 to build an addition.

Greensburg.—The lowest price ever paid for land in Decatur county figured in the sale recently of a farm near here, when 260 acres sold for $3,120 at public auction. A 13-room house is situated on the farm. The bidding started at $10 an acre. The auctioneer worked hard to obtain higher bids and finally interested a buyer to the extent of offering $12 an acre for the land and improvements. The land sold was assessed for taxation at about $4,000.

Terre Haute.—"Miner's Commissary," "Leave Orders One Day in Advance." "To Get Bread Line Up and Take Your Turn and Keep Order." These are but a few of the signs hanging about the commissary station established in West Terre Haute for the miners of that district, who are out of work after two months of the strike of coal miners in the central competitive field. Similar commissaries have been established in Clinton to aid miners and their families in that field.

Washington, D. C.—Examinations for the selection of postmasters at eighteen third class offices in Indiana are to be held, July 15. The offices and salaries are as follows: Albion, $2,000; Atlanta, $1,600; Cloverdale, $1,800; Darlington, $1,500; Geneva, $1,800; Goodland, $2,100; Lynn, $1,800; Mulberry, $1,700; Pendleton, $1,900; Plainfield, $1,800; Remington, $2,000; Rising Sun, $1,900; Scottsburg, $2,100; Summitville, $1,800; Thorntown, $2,100; Vevay, $2,000; Waynetown, $2,100; Vevay, $2,000; Waynetown, $1,500 and Zionsville, $1,600.

Washington, D. C.—The secretary of agriculture has made the 1922-23 apportionment of federal funds authorized by the postoffice appropriation bill, signed by the President, for aid in the construction of highways. Indiana's share of next year's allotment is $1,305,904. This amount must be matched by the state before the money becomes available. The new legislation reduces the maximum participation on the part of the government from $20,000 to [illegible] a mile for roads constructed with the appropriation for the next fiscal year and [illegible] a mile thereafter. [illegible] of more than twenty feet in [illegible] may be reported as separate [illegible] to which this limitation [illegible]

[illegible]

Bluffton.—The Builders' company, an incorporation of Bluffton business men, has let a contract for the erection of 25 houses for $65,000.

Muncie.—Membership in the Ku Klux Klan does not necessarily make a man ineligible to sit on a jury, provided he is otherwise qualified, W. A. Thompson, judge of the Delaware Circuit court, held.

Terre Haute.—Wagon mines in Vigo, Clay and Vermillion counties resumed operations under the protection of armed guards. Seventeen mines in the vicinity are reported to have started hoisting coal.

Peru.—A deal of unusual magnitude for a farm sale took place when Kile Newman sold his Eel river bottom farm of 300 acres, five miles northwest of Peru, the consideration being $50,000.

Marion.—Andrews was chosen as the meeting place for the 1923 district convention of the Epworth league at the closing session of the convention, which was held at Lafontaine. Alvin B. Teter of Lagro was elected president.

Indianapolis.—Conferences between state and local officials looking toward better school conditions, particularly in rural districts, will be held in every county in Indiana between now and the opening of schools next season, B. J. Burris, state superintendent of public instruction, announces.

Petersburg.—Blackberries are arriving in Petersburg in large quantites, and the price has dropped to 40 cents a gallon. The crop is the largest in years, and there is a ready sale for early berries, but there will be a surplus of the late berries and many berries will be shipped.

Jeffersonville.—The Clark county assessor has completed a compilation of figures which shows the decrease in valuations of taxable property for each of the twelve townships, six towns and one city in Clark county. In only four or five cases were increases noted and the decreases run up to as high as 60 per cent on some classifications and in some units.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray has addressed letters to the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney of Knox county asking them to "maintain law and order under all conditions" in the nonunion coal fields which have been visited, it is understood, by bands of strikers, property being carried off and threats made if mine operations continue. Similar letters have been sent to officials of Vigo and Sullivan counties.

Indianapolis.—Thomas A. Riley, federal and state director of free employment service, has requested the employment bureaus in the state to give special attention now to labor requirements of farmers. He invites farmers and farm laborers to get in touch with each other through the bureaus. He directed attention to the fact that a number of college men will be available for farm work for the three summer months.

Noblesville.—An investigation in several counties in central Indiana shows that there will be a large crop of nuts of all kinds this season; especially is this true of beechnuts, the trees being full of them. Some of the older residents of the central part of the state say there will be more beech nuts than in many years and they are of the opinion that when beech trees are bountiful with a crop there is almost sure to be a large crop of nearly everything.

Indianapolis.—Walter J. Riley of East Chicago was elected chairman of the interstate harbor commission, composed of representatives of Indiana and Illinois, at an organization meeting of the commission held recently in the office of Governor McCray. Members of the commission, who are to investigate the feasibility of a $6,000,000 harbor project in Wolf Lake and Lake Michigan at the Indiana-Illinois line in the Calumet district, were appointed by the governors of the two states.

Evansville.—Appraisers of the estate of Benjamin Bosse, former mayor of Evansville, and furniture manufacturer, who died April 4, have filed an inventory in the Probate court here. The estate, exclusive of the bequests of Mr. Bosse and the life insurance he carried, is valued at a little more than $900,000. Mr. Bosse carried insurance policies amounting to $312,000 and this, together with the bequests, brings the value of the estate up to more than $1,200,000. Mr. Bosse was the most heavily insured man in Evansville.

Indianapolis.—As a result of the conviction by a jury in the Federal court at Indianapolis of George W. Applegate, former vice-president of the Corydon National bank, on charge of embezzling and misapplying [illegible] of the bank's money, pleas of guilty were entered by his brother, Ben Applegate, former vice-president of the bank, and [illegible] E. Cook, former president of the bank, who were to have gone on trial for alleged violations of the national banking act. [illegible]

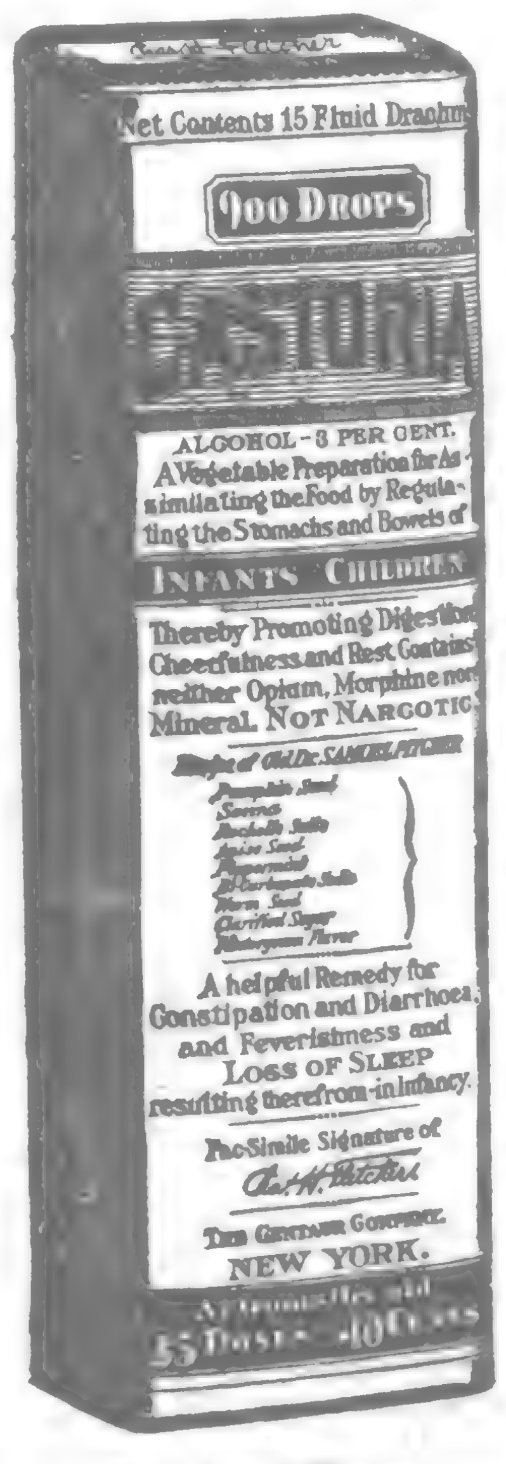
[illegible]

The Young Mother.

THE ILLS OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And you! Mothers, mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little-ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Mean.

"Blank is so mean he'd dispose of his family tree for firewood."

"Mean! Why that fellow would churn the milk of human kindness and sell it for butter."

Face to face the truth comes out.

Have You Read Yours?

"Is your house insured against fire?"

"I don't know, I've just been reading over the insurance policy."

To cultivate a genial face one should get himself placed on a soliciting committee.

The Real Fact.

"I understand your wife came from a fine old family." "Came nothing! She brought them with her."

To be commiserated is the man who tries to contribute more than his share of the applause.

2 or 3 Cans of Baking Powder

Are Not Worth the Price of One

If they are the "big can and cheap" kind because they may mean baking failures

THAT'S WHY

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

Is the biggest selling brand in the world

Don't let a BIG CAN or a very low price mislead you.

Experimenting with an uncertain brand is expensive—because it WASTES time and money.

CALUMET
BEST BY TEST

The World's Greatest Baking Powder

10 Cents [illegible]

JULY

Patronize the advertisers.

R. D. Herrick spent Saturday at Ottawa, Ohio.

Charles Bassett spent Friday at Fort Wayne and Monroeville.

Mrs. Grace Sheffer spent Friday at Fort Wayne.

Miss Susan Sechler, who has been ill the past week at the Leon Sechler home, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees went to Garrett, Saturday, for a few days visit with friends.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price visited Fort Wayne relatives Thursday, the latter remaining until Friday evening.

C. C. Bassett and son Charles, and Martin Merifield, of Hicksville, spent Wednesday in LaGrange county.

Mrs. Ada Bassett spent the day, Wednesday, with her mother, Mrs. A. D. Brunson, three miles north of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel left for their home at Peru, Friday morning, after spending their two weeks vacation here and at Lake George.

An effort is being made among the merchants of Auburn to close all the stores of the town for Wednesday afternoon of each week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Myer and children and Mr. and Mrs. George Kees and children spent Saturday and Sunday at Napoleon, Ohio, guests in the Carl Driver home.

On June 22 The Ladies Culture Club held an all day executive meeting at the home of Mrs. Anna Rickett, former president. The work of the day was making out programs for the coming Club year.

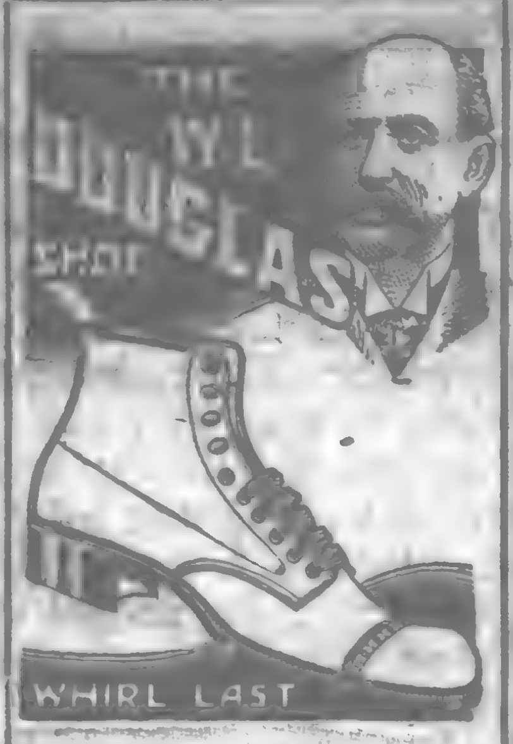
Mrs. J. P. Buckingham entertained the W. C. T. U. Friday afternoon. As it was Flower Mission Day, the program was along that line. After which ten bouquets of flowers were made up and sent out. Mrs. Ella Patterson will be the next hostess.

Lee Tustison and family, of Defiance, and Earl Tustison and family of Hicksville, returned to their respective homes Wednesday, after a two weeks stay here during the serious illness and death of their mother, Mrs. Charles Tustison.

Mrs. Martha Miser, of Waterloo, spent from Friday evening until Monday in the home of her son, Ed Miser, caring for the home during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Miser and sons Charles and Harcourt, who spent Saturday and Sunday at Toledo.

Having exceeded the quota of $40,000 in postal receipts during the fiscal year, which was from July 1, 1921 to July 1, 1922, the Auburn postoffice was made a first class office on July 1st, as announced by Miles Baxter, postmaster, Thursday.

The marriage of Mr. Dale C. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Williams, of Garrett, and Miss Verna Elizabeth King, of Willard, Ohio, took place at the home of the bride's parents at Willard, Sunday, June [illegible] at 12 o'clock noon. The groom is well known by many in and about St. Joe.



For Sale Only At

Chaneys'

Auburn, - - - - Ind.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

M. Tustison was an over night guest of his brother, Charles Tustison, Friday.

Tanlac is the people's medicine and the people themselves have made it what it is. Sheffer's

Roy Koch played ball Tuesday with the Woonburn team at Payne Ohio.

Clay, John and Lester and Herbert Curie, were at Hamilton Sunday.

F. R. Bowman, wife and daughter spent Sunday at Fort Wayne, guests of D. J. Baker and wife.

F. D. Tope and wife spent Sunday as guests in the Homer Klopfenstine home at Churubusco.

The Coburn's Corners Ladies Aid were entertained Thursday afternoon by Mrs. J. W. Hart.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily, Sam Keesler and family and Walter Keesler and wife, spent Tuesday at Hamilton lake.

Earl Tustison and family of Hicksville and Lee O. Tustison and family of Defiance, spent the 4th., with their father, Charles Tustison.

Dr. and Mrs. V. C. Brunson of Newville, were Tuesday dinner guests of Tom Brunson and family and Mrs. A. D. Brunson.

You can have a splendid appetite, perfect digestion and sound, restful sleep by taking Tanlac. At Sheffer's Drug Store.

Theron Reasoner and wife of Cleveland and John George and family of Auburn, spent Tuesday with Alfred Reasoner and wife. The former couple remained for a longer visit.

Subscribe for the NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown had as guests J. W. Seeners and wife over Sunday.

Miss Kathryn Kinsey and Mrs. Martha Quance played in the Butler Girls Band at Grabill, last Saturday night.

Charles Quance of Fort Wayne spent from Saturday evening until Tuesday with his brother, William Quance and wife.

J. R. Shilling and wife and Mrs. Howard Northrup spent Sunday afternoon with Thayer Northrup and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe visited their son, Stanley Monroe and family at Williamsport, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. John Crothers returned home Saturday after visiting her father several days at Auburn, who is ill.

W. G. Woodcox has been hired to teach the sixth grade in the Butler schools for the coming school term.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee and children and Charles Koch spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carper, near Auburn.

The best concert of the season was given last Saturday night. It inspires the boys to give their best to have the crowds increase as they have been.

F. R. Bowman and family, E. P. Brown and family, F. D. Tope and wife and Frank Kinsey and wife, were among the visitors at Hamilton Lake, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter, Violet, spent Saturday and Sunday at Jonesboro, Michigan visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bash.

LOST—License plate No. 314-942 somewhere between Spencerville and Auburn and Waterloo. Finder please return to Donald Dinius, Spencerville.

Mrs. Anna Dilly spent from Thursday until Sunday evening at Garrett where she attended the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jane Maurer.

Roy Kinsey and family joined Mel Herrick and family at Auburn Saturday and they all went to Lake Gage to spend over the Fourth at the latter's cottage.

During an electric storm on Saturday, June 24, the Church of Christ at South Milford, was struck by a bolt of lightening and as a result the structure was totally destroyed, while the furniture was saved by the early arrivals of people. Only $2,000 of the $5,000 loss was covered by insurance.

Few People Realize

"It used to take either a fire or a funeral to get our people together. Naturally they did not do much in those days, except to keep fires from spreading, and get the dead people decently buried. Now they all come out to the meetings of our community organizations."

"We used to speak of 'town people' and 'country people.' Now we talk about Montgomery county people. The towns and rural districts are all working for the same ends, as they have found out that their interests are identical."

The above paragraphs are taken from an address delivered by a community worker in another state. They show the kind of spirit that is obliterating the old lines that used to separate town and country people.

The curse of many towns in past years has been rivalry and antagonism between neighborhoods. Every district would get the idea that it had not had its fair share of public improvements. They would all devote so much energy to scrapping over the location of schoolhouses or village buildings, that they had none left with which to promote ends of common advancement.

A spirit of jealousy and contention frequently existed between town and village centers and the surrounding country. The towns were indifferent to the welfare of the farmers, and often secretly laughed at them. The rural people resented this attitude, and would tend to oppose the things the towns wanted done. Personal antagonisms were created that worked against harmonious cooperation.

The movement for better country life has been given a tremendous boost by the Get Together movement between the towns and the surrounding country districts. The business men of the towns are taking hold to help the farmers put their operations on a sound basis. Everything they do on this line is for their own interest, since the prosperity of a town center depends on the prosperity of the surrounding country.

SHE KNEW A HOG

A woman was waiting to buy a ticket for a concert when a man bumped into her. She glared at him, feeling that it was done intentionally.

"Well," he growled, "you needn't eat me up."

"You are perfectly safe," said she, "I am a Jewess."

Toledo June 16.—The body of a man, believed by police to be that of Francis Bowman, of Califon, N. J., was found, face downward, on top of a pullman on the Twentieth Century Limited train of the New York Central lines, when the train arrived here early today.

Charles Hensler, coroner, expressed the opinion that the man had been dead four or five hours, and that death was caused by being struck by an overhead bridge. The top of the head was torn off. In the man's pocket was a letter addressed to Francis Bowman, Califon, N. J., from his mother in Omaha, Neb., and a picture of himself in a sailor uniform.

The man was about thirty-two years old and well dressed.

BANK STATEMENT.

Emillus Case, President; Wm. Curie Vice President; F. R. Bowman, Casheir; Elgin Curie, Assistant Cashier. Report of the condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on June 30, 1922.

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts	$137,302 77
Overdrafts	29 36
U. S. Bonds	1,971 45
Other Bonds and Securities	9,000 00
Banking House	5,281 00
Furniture and Fixtures	4,220 90
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	10,765 89
Cash on Hand	3867 60
Current Expenses	[illegible]
Taxes Paid	[illegible]
Interest Paid	[illegible]
Total Resources	$175,951 [illegible]

LIABILITIES

[illegible]

5½%

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA

W. S. Berry and wife, Mrs. W. P. Steward of Spencerville, and Mrs Ada Berry attended the funeral of Mrs. Layman Fox at South Whitley, Saturday.

Rev. C. O. Johnson and family went to Lake George the Fourth, where they will spend a few days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Garton and daughter.

A baby son was born Saturday morning to Mr. and Mrs. George Walter, who weighed ten and one-half pounds and who has been given the name of Louis Harold.

Glen Woods, Louis Smeeda and Jeanette Reichelderfer of Harlan and Harriett Argubright, spent from Sunday until Tuesday at Lake James and Crooked Lake.

Waterloo is to have some paved streets this year. The contract for the paving was finally signed last Monday evening by a Fort Wayne firm, agreeing to have the work completed by October 15.

Mrs. Frank Kincaid of Detroit, returned home Friday after a week's visit with Mr. Kincade's mother, Mrs. Emma Bearss, also Joseph Caw and family, Joseph Newmeyer and family and Henry Smith all of Logansport were over Sunday guests. Master Frank Otto Caw and Robert Newmeyer remained for an indefinite visit with their grandmother.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation.

Sold by all druggists.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House

AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office

both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE

West Seventh Street

AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

BISHOP-McBRIDE Company

QUALITY MERCHANDISE

OUR SEMI-ANNUAL

CLEARANCE SALE

AT AUBURN

Starting Saturday Morning, July 8 at 8 A. M.

Continuing Until Saturday Night, July 15th

LASTING JUST 6 1-2 SELLING DAYS

Just Jammed Full of Wonderful Opportunities to buy and Save!

HUNDREDS OF LOTS REDUCED FROM 1-4 to 1-2 OFF

BESIDES ALL STAPLE MERCHANDISE AND REGULAR LINES

WILL BE SOLD AT DISCOUNTS RANGING FROM [illegible]

Women's, Misses's and Children's Wearing Apparel—[illegible]—Draperies—Dry Goods—Luggage—Underwear—[illegible]—Hosiery—[illegible] and Other Items All [illegible]

Store Closed Friday to Get Ready for the Big Sale

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE, IND.

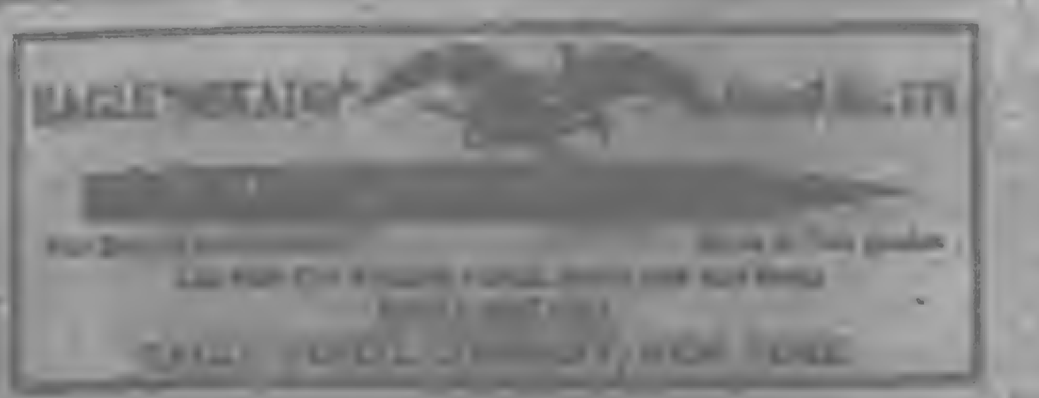
WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, July 7, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.



JULY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1922 — No. 28

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
FOR
MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men $12.00 $15.00 $16.50
Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00
Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75
Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6
Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5
Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1
Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

NEW WHEAT
Will soon be moving. We are ready to take care of the crop. The highest market prices paid at all times.

FEED
Bran and Middlings.
Tankage and other feeds.

FLOUR
Auburn and Nappanee

COAL
Place your orders now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Establish YOUR CREDIT

You would not expect a perfect stranger to give you much of an accomodation in a financial way. You would not ask him for a loan. You would not expect it of a banker who knew nothing of your affairs unless you could give security. But if you had done business with a banker and proven to his satisfaction that you are careful and trustworthy you could probably get an accomodation for a short time without security.

If you open a checking account at this bank we will be able to get a better opinion as to your financial methods and financial standing. [illegible] We will be in a position to [illegible] to you when you are in need of [illegible]. We shall be pleased to have you open a checking account with us.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Babe's Body Found Dead In Bear Creek; No Clue

The body of a newly born babe was found in Bear Creek near the Joe Knisley home Thursday morning about eight o'clock by Albert Engle, who was working on the dredge operating in the creek there.

Mr. Engle happend to be looking out through a window in the engine room of the dredge and spied the little lifeless form floating on the surface of the water near the machine. Other members of the crew were called and the body was taken out on the bank. The county coroner and sherriff were immediately summoned.

From the condition of the body it is supposed to have been brutally killed and thrown into the water shortly after it had been born. It may have been in the water a couple of days. The body was that of a girl baby.

Upon the arrival of the county officers, the body was taken to the Kinsey undertaking parlors here, where it was prepared for burial, which took place the afternoon of the same day.

Deputy Sherriff H. Squires was unable to make investigation as to who the baby belonged to or how it came to be in the creek, because there seemed to be no clue whatever to work from.

However, there is somewhere, probably not many miles away, a guilty party who certainly has a heart made of stone and who, if he or she does not make a public confession of the act, will have a penalty to pay sometime that will be everlasting.

Wind Storm Causes Big Loss

The loss from the storm which swept over DeKalb county Monday afternoon was conservatively estimated by many persons at $100,000 this afternoon. Many buildings were demolished or partly wrecked, fruit trees blown down, shade trees ruined, live stock killed, telephone and telegraph lines lowered, interurban power lines damaged, wheat shocks scattered throughout fields, and similar damage.

The storm was the most severe in the history of the country. Auburn was especially hard hit, the storm seeming to hover this city and vicinity A few buildings were damaged at Waterloo, but the other towns in the country escaped with but little damage.

A barn on the George Scattergood farm in Richland township was demolished by the storm. The structure was built six years ago at an expense of nearly $2,000.

The wind lifted it off its foundation and carried it for fifty feet. The structure then broke in pieces and was totally demolished. Timber from the building was found nearly a mile away.

Ice Cream Social

The Tri-Mu Orchestra will hold an ice cream and [illegible] social on the [illegible] evening, July [illegible].

[illegible]

Have Narrow Escape

Mr. and Mrs. John Gill and grandson, Homer Woodcox, escaped serious injuries when the Ford automobile in which they were riding turned turtle into a ditch north of town Sunday afternoon. The people were going north from the H. M. Widney farm. The steering apparatus was working unusually strange in the hands of Mr. Gill, and when within about twenty yards distance of the Clarence Hart home the front wheel buckled and threw the car to the ditch where it turned completely over. The car had been running about 15 miles an hour when the accident happened. The occupants pinned underneath soon got out and found that Mrs. Gill had received a bad cut on the foot and two on the forehead. She soon grew very weak as a result of losing so much blood through the wound in the foot, but this was soon checked. Mr. Gill and Homer only received slight bruises on the arms and legs. The windshield and top of the car were broken but not beyond ready repair.

Important Notice

The St. Joe M. P. Church year will close August 10th. It is necessary that all subscriptions be paid in full before that date. The Stewards are making a strong effort to secure payments in advance so that they may close their books not later than August 1st. It will be a great accomodation if the subscribers will pay in advance and those in arrears should pay at once.

M. P. Board of Stewards.

The Christian Endeavor Society, which has been meeting in the Christian church for the past several months, will discontinue its weekly meetings until fall, perhaps the first Sunday in September.

The interest manifested in these meetings has held up fine until the past two weeks, and it is hoped that when they are resumed next September that the same interest will come back, and that a bigger and better society than ever will go on.

Union Services

The weather being much fairer last Sunday evening than that of a week ago, the crowd out to the Sunday evening union services was much larger, the fact for which the ministers are very much encouraged in their efforts.

The members of the three church orchestras joined for the union services and helped out with the music wonderfully. This week they are to meet for a joint practice and will endeavor to give a musical program for next Sunday evening.

The service was held in the Christian church yet last Sunday evening, but by next Sunday it is thought that the seats will be completed in the grove, east of the same church, so that it will be more comfortable for people who attend.

Don't forget that the hour is 6 o'clock p. m.

Notice

The mid-summer meeting of the [illegible] Club will meet [illegible] afternoon, July 17, at [illegible] with Mrs. [illegible]. All members are urged to be present.

Committee.

[illegible]

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox
St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

Just the other day I heard a young man say, "I guess I'll take my girl to Hamilton next Saturday night."

I reminded him that we had a band concert on that night.

He replied, "I forgot about that."

Just pass the good word along.

TIRES
TUBES
ACCESSORIES
FORD PARTS
WELDING
SOLDERING
REPAIRING
Free Service for
BATTERIES
and Tires

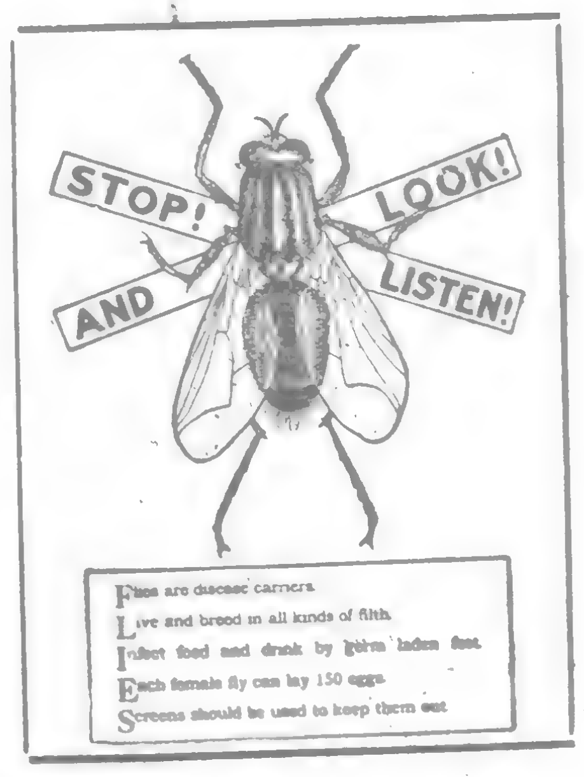
The Good MAXWELL

We never close only to sleep.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY

WINDOWS



STOP!
LOOK!
AND LISTEN!

Flies are disease carriers
Live and breed in all kinds of filth
Infect food and drink by germ laden feet
Each female fly can lay 150 eggs
Screens should be used to keep them out

DOORS

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

An Early CLEARANCE Sale

On Friday and Saturday

A sale on thiugs you need right now and for the remainder of the summer.

In order to obtain money for our fall buying we have decided to sell at greatly reduced prices the following articles:

Children's patent leather, brown and black slippers and oxfords at cost prices.
Misses oxfords and slippers in various styles.
Ladies " " " " " .
Men's work shoes.
Men's work shirts and overalls.
Dress ginghams, Cotton goods, Towelings, Hosiery of all kinds.

When you get in our store you will be convinced of our low prices and [illegible].

Don't Forget The Date—Friday And Saturday

CENTRAL GROCERY

JULY

THE APPLE OF HER EYE

Helen Had a Hard Time, But There Came a Time When—

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

IT RAINED. It had rained all day. To Helen Raymond, spatting along the wet slipperiness of the drenched pavements, it seemed as if it had always rained, and always would rain.

Helen was tired, blue and ashamed—ashamed because she was blue; blue because she was tired; and tired because—wearily her mind reviewed her day.

She had dragged herself out of bed at half-past five, but even then her simple toilet had been hastened to an untidy half completion by the querulous insistence of her mother's frequent "You know, Helen—you must know how utterly impossible it is for me to lift my head until I've had my coffee! Aren't you almost ready?" Mrs. Raymond had wakened earlier than usual that morning, and she could never endure to lie in bed when not asleep.

With one shoe unbuttoned and no collar on, Helen had prepared the coffee; then had come the delicate task of getting the semi-invalid up and dressed.

It had all resulted as Helen had feared that it would result—she was late; and tardiness at Henderson & Henderson's meant a sharp reprimand, and in time, a fine. Helen's place in the huge department store was behind a counter where spangled nets and embroidered chiffons were sold. It had seemed to Helen today that half the world must be giving a ball to which the other half was invited, so constant—in spite of the rain—were the calls for her wares.

Annoyances at the counter had been more frequent today than usual, Helen thought. Perhaps the rain had made people cross. Helen's list of sales had been short in spite of her incessant labor—and the list of sales was what Henderson & Henderson looked at when a promotion was being considered.

And through it all, hour after hour, there had been the shimmer of the spangles, the light chatter of coming balls and weddings, the merry voices of care-free girls—the youth, and love, and laughter.

"Youth, and love, and laughter." Unconsciously Helen repeated the words aloud; then she smiled bitterly as she applied them to herself. Youth?—she was twenty-five. Love?—the grocer? the milkman? the floorwalker? oh, yes, and there was the postman. Laughter?—she could not remember when she had seen anything funny—really funny enough to laugh at.

Of all this Helen thought as she plodded wearily homeward; of this, and more. At home there would be supper to prepare, her mother to get to bed, and the noon dishes to clear away. Helen drew in her breath sharply as she thought of the dinner. She hoped that it had not been codfish-and-cream today. If it had, she must speak to Mrs. Mason. Codfish twice a week might do, but five times! (Mrs. Mason was the neighbor who, for a small sum each day, brought Mrs. Raymond her dinner fully cooked.) There was a waist to iron and some mending to do.

Helen sighed now. She was almost home, but involuntarily her speed slackened. Unmistakably she dreaded to go home.

At the shabby door of the apartment house Helen half closed her umbrella and shook it fiercely. Then, as if freeing herself from something as obnoxious as was the rain, she threw back her head and shook that, too. A moment later, carefully carrying the dripping umbrella, she hurried up three flights of stairs and unlocked the door of the rear suite.

"My, but it sprinkles! Did you know it?" she cried cheerily to the little woman sitting by the west window.

"'Sprinkles'! Helen, how can you speak like that when you know what a dreadful day it is!" fretted the woman. "But, then, you don't know. You never do know. If you had to just sit here and stare and stare and stare at that rain all day, as I do, perhaps you would know."

"Perhaps," smiled Helen oddly—she was staring just then at the havoc that that same rain had wrought in what had been a fairly good hat.

Her mother's glance followed hers.

"Helen, that can't be—your hat!" cried the woman, aghast.

Helen smiled quizzically. "Do you know that's exactly what I was thinking myself, mother! It can't be—but it is."

"But it's utterly, utterly ruined!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"And you haven't any other that's really decent!"

"No, ma'am."

The woman sighed [illegible]

[illegible]

eat codfish like that. You must speak tonight when you take the dishes back."

"Very well, mother; but—well, you know we don't pay very much."

"Then pay more. I'm sure I shouldn't think you'd grudge me enough to eat, Helen."

"Mother! How can you say a thing like that!" Helen's voice shook.

It was at the supper table that Helen's mother brought out the letter.

"You don't ask, nor seem to care," she began with a curious air of injured triumph, "but I've got a letter from Herbert."

The younger woman flushed.

"Why, of course, I care," she retorted cheerily. "What does he say?"

"He wrote it several days ago. It got missent. But it's such a nice letter!"

"They always are."

"It asks particularly how I am, and says he's sorry I have to suffer. He cares."

Only the swift red in Helen's cheeks showed that the daughter understood the emphasis.

"Of course he cares," she answered smoothly.

"And he sent me a present, too—money!" Mrs. Raymond's usually fretful whine carried a ring of exultation.

Helen lifted her head eagerly.

"Money?"

"Yes. A new crisp dollar bill. He told me to get something pretty—some little trinket that I'd like."

"But a dollar—only a dollar," murmured Helen. "Now you're needing a wrapper, but that—"

"A wrapper, indeed!" interrupted Mrs. Raymond in fine scorn. "A wrapper isn't a 'trinket' for me! I'd have wrappers anyway, of course. But then, I might have known. You never think I need anything but wrappers and—and codfish! I—I'm glad I've got one child that—that appreciates!" And Mrs. Raymond lifted her handkerchief to her eyes.

Across the table Helen caught her lower lip between her teeth. For a moment she did not speak; then very gently she said:

"Mother, you didn't quite mean that, I'm sure. You know very well that I—I'd dress you in silks and velvets, and feed you on strawberries and cream, if I could. It's only that—that— But never mind. Use the dollar as you please, dear. Isn't there something—some little thing you would like?"

Mrs. Raymond lowered her handkerchief. Her grieved eyes looked reproachfully across at her daughter.

"I'd thought of—a tie; a lace tie with pretty ends; a nice tie. You know how I like nice things!"

"Of course, you do; and you shall have it, too," cried Helen. "I'll bring some home tomorrow night for you to select from. Now, that will be fine, won't it?"

The other drew a resigned sigh.

"'Fine'! That's just like you, Helen. You never appreciate, never realize. Perhaps you think it's 'fine' to stay mewed up at home here and have ties brought to you instead of going out yourself to the store and buying them, like other women!"

Helen did not answer. As well she knew, she did not need to. Her mother, once started on this subject, asked only for a listener. Wearily the girl rose to her feet and began to clear the table.

"And it isn't as if he didn't have his hands full, just running over full with his business and all," continued Mrs. Raymond. "You know how successful he is, Helen. Now, there's that club—what was it, president or treasurer that they made him? Anyhow, it was something; and that shows how [illegible] he is. And you know every letter tells us something new. I'm sure it isn't any wonder I'm proud of him; and relieved, too—I did hope some one of my children would amount to something; and I'm sure Herbert has."

There was a pause. Herbert's sister was washing the dishes now, hurriedly, nervously. Herbert's mother watched her with dissatisfied eyes.

"Now, there's you, Helen, and your music," she began again, after a long sigh. "You know how disappointed I was about that."

"Oh, but piano practice doesn't help to sell goods across the counter," observed Helen dryly. "At least, I never heard that it did."

"Sell goods," moaned the other. "Always something about selling goods! Helen, [illegible]

[illegible]

in answer to the knock at the door. "I'm a little late tonight."

"Oh, to be sure, Miss Raymond; come in—come in. Why, child, what ails you?" cried the woman, as Helen stepped into the light.

"Ails me? Why nothing," laughed the girl evasively.

As she set the tray down and turned to go, the elder woman, by a sudden movement, confronted her.

"See here, Miss Helen, it ain't none o' my business, I know, but I've just got to speak. Your eyes are all teary, and your cheeks have got two red spots in 'em. You've been cryin'. I know you have. You're so thin I could just blow you over with a good big breath. And I know what's the matter. You're all wore out. You're doin' too much. No mortal woman can work both day and night!"

"But I don't—quite," stammered the girl. "Besides, there is so much to be done. You know, mother—though she isn't very sick—can do but little for herself."

"Yes, I know she don't—seem to. But isn't there someone else that could help?"

The girl stirred restlessly. Her eyes sought for a means of escape.

"Why, no, of course not. There isn't anyone," she murmured. "You are very kind, really, Mrs. Mason, but I must go—now."

The other did not move. She was standing directly before the hall door.

"There's—your brother."

"Why how did you come to know that I had—a brother?"

"Know it!" scoffed Mrs. Mason. "I have known your mother for a year—ever since she moved here; and as if a body could know her and not hear of him! He's the very apple of her eye. Why can't he—help? Wouldn't he, if he knew?"

"Why Mrs. Mason, of course! He has—he does," declared the girl quickly, the red deepening in her cheeks. "He—he sent her money only today."

"Yes, I know; she told me—of that." Mrs. Mason's voice was significant in its smoothness. "Your mother said she was going to get her—a tie."

"Yes, a tie," repeated Helen, with feverish lightness; "lace, you know. Mother does so love pretty things! Oh, and by the way," hurried on the girl breathlessly, "if you don't mind—about the dinners, you know. Mother doesn't care for codfish-and-cream, and if you could just substitute something else, I'll pay more, of course! I'd expect to do that. I've been thinking for some time that you ought to have at least ten cents a day more—if you could manage—on that. And—thank you; if you would remember about—the codfish. And now I really must—go!" she finished.

"Well, of all things! Now what have I said?" muttered the puzzled woman, staring after her visitor. "Ten cents a day more, indeed! And where, for the land's sake, is the poor lamb going to find that?"

Long hours later in the Raymond flat, after the mending was done, the waist ironed, and the mother's querulous tongue had been silenced by sleep, the "poor lamb" sat down with her little account book and tried to discover just that—where she was going to find the extra ten cents a day to buy off Mrs. Mason's codfish.

It did not rain the next morning. The sun shone, indeed, as if it never had rained, and never would rain. There was the same apologetic rush in the morning, the same monotonous succession of buyers and near-buyers at the counter, the same glitter and sparkle and chatter—the youth, and love, and laughter. Then at night came the surprise.

Helen Raymond went home to find a little flat dominated by a new presence, a presence so big and breezy that unconsciously she sniffed the air as if she were entering a pine grove instead of a stuffy, four-room city flat.

"Helen, he knows Herbert, my Herbert," announced Mrs. Raymond rapturously; and as she seemed to think no further introduction was necessary, the young man rose to his feet and added with a smile:—

"My name is Carroll—Jack Carroll; Miss Raymond, I suppose. Your brother—er—suggested that I call, as I was in the city."

"Of course you'd call," chirruped Mrs. Raymond. "As if we weren't always glad to see any friend of my boy's. Helen, why don't you say something? Why don't you welcome Mr. Carroll?"

"I haven't had much chance yet, mother," smiled the girl in some embarrassment. "Perhaps I—I haven't caught my breath."

"Not that Mr. Carroll ought to mind, of course," resumed Mrs. Raymond plaintively. "And he won't when he knows you, and [illegible] you are. You know [illegible]," she added, turning to Herbert's friend.

"Is he?" [illegible]

[illegible]

but that was when Herbert's mother sighed apologetically:

"You mustn't mind all she says, Mr. Carroll. Helen never did seem to realize the serious side of life, nor what I suffer; but that is Helen's way."

"After all, it must be a way that helps smooth things over some," he had retorted warmly.

At the end of ten minutes, Herbert's friend rose to his feet and said that he must go. He added that he would come again, if he might; and to Miss Raymond he said very low—but very impressively—that she would see him soon, very soon. It was no surprise, therefore, to Helen, to encounter the big, tall fellow not twenty feet from her doorway when she started for the store the next morning.

"Good morning. I thought you'd do this," she began hurriedly. "We can talk as we walk. Now, tell me, please, quick. What is it about—Herbert?"

"Then you—know?"

"Not much; only suspect. I know everything isn't quite—right."

"But your mother doesn't know—even that much?"

"No, no! You saw that, didn't you? I was so glad you did, and didn't speak! He is her pet, and she's so proud of him!"

"Yes, I know," nodded the man grimly. "I saw—that."

The girl lifted her chin.

"And mother has a right to be proud of him. Herbert is fine. It is only that—that—" She weakened perceptibly. "Was it—money?" she faltered.

"Y-yes." Carroll spoke with evident reluctance. His eyes looked down almost tenderly at the girl with the still uplifted chin. "It—it is rather serious this time. He asked me to call and—and make it plain to you. I had told him I was coming up to town on business, and I promised. But—good Heavens, Miss Raymond, I — I can't tell you!"

"But you must. I'll have to know," cried the girl sharply. All the pride had fled now. "And you needn't fear. I know what it is. He wants money to settle debts. I've sent it before—once. That is it—isn't it?"

"Yes, only it's—it's a particularly bad job this time," stammered the other. "You see, it—it's club money."

"How much—was it?"

Carroll sighed in relief.

"Miss Raymond, you're a—a brick—to take it like that," he cried brokenly. "I don't know another girl who— It was—well, a hundred dollars will cover it; but he's got to have it—tomorrow."

"I'll send it."

"But how—forgive me, Miss Raymond, but last night you were telling me that—that—" He flushed, and came to a helpless pause.

"How can I get it?" she supplied wearily. "We've a little in the bank—a very little laid by for a rainy day; but it will cover that. Mr. Carroll, how did he come to—do it?"

It was a short story, soon told—the usual story of a pleasure-loving thoughtless youth, tempted beyond his strength. Carroll softened it where he could, and ended with:

"I asked Bert to let me make it good, somehow, but he wouldn't, Miss Raymond. He—he just wouldn't!"

"Of course he wouldn't," exclaimed the girl sharply. Then, in a softer voice: "Thank you just the same. But, don't you see? 'Twould have done no good. I'd have had to pay you. No, no, don't say any more, please," she begged, in answer to the quick words that leaped to his lips. "You have been kind—very kind. Now, just one kindness more, if you will," she hurried on. "Come tonight. I must leave you now—it's the store, just around the corner. But tonight I'll have the money. It's in my name, and I can get it without mother's—knowing. You understand? Without—mother's—knowing. You understand? Without—mother's—knowing."

"I understand," he nodded gravely, as he wrung her hand to turned chokingly away.

When Helen reached home that night she found the little flat dominated once again by the big, breezy presence of Herbert's friend.

"I've been telling him more about Herbert," Mrs. Raymond began, joyously, as soon as Helen entered the room.

At the door some minutes later, Carroll found a small packet thrust into his fingers. He caught both the hand and the packet in a firm clasp.

"You're true blue, little girl," he breathed tremulously, "and I'm going to keep tabs on Bert after this. I'll make him keep straight for her—and for you. He's only a bit weak, after all. And you'll see me again soon—very soon—very soon," he finished, as he crushed her hand in a grip that hurt. Then he turned and [illegible] away, as if his eyes did not see quite clearly.

"Now, wasn't he nice?" murmured Mrs. Raymond, as the girl [illegible]

[illegible]

Highway Improvement

FEDERAL HELP STRENGTHENS

Much More Accomplished for Country Than Simply Provide Funds for Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal aid has done a great deal more for the country than simply to provide funds for road construction, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. One of the most far-reaching results has been its influence in placing the greater part of the highway work of the country in the hands of experienced engineers of state highway departments.

In 1915, prior to the federal-aid act, 70 per cent of the road work was done by agencies other than state highway departments, most of it by county officials. Such a system was bound to be wasteful. Overhead costs were high, engineers were not always employed, systems to serve the best interests of the state as a whole were not developed, and the opportunities for corruption were greater.

A Modern Implement for Smoothing Dirt Roads.

With the passage of the federal-aid act of 1916 and the insistence of the government upon the construction of federal-aid roads under the supervision of state departments, existing state highway departments were enlarged and strengthened, and in 17 states adequate departments have been created where there had been none or the existing one was not properly equipped to perform necessary functions.

With adequate departments the work has been shifted to their control until at the present time they supervise more than 60 per cent of the road work. This assures to the taxpayer the services of engineers trained in road work, a centralized authority responsible for the expenditure of funds and a far-sighted plan of development and financing.

COMPILING COST OF PAVING

Figures Secured by Bureau of Public Roads Cover 68,000,000 Yards of Work.

Average costs per square yard of various types of paving for country roads have been compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures cover 68,000,000 square yards of paving constructed with federal aid in all parts of the United States during the period of 1916-21. The costs per square yard are as follows: Sand-clay, 18 cents; gravel, 46 cents; plain and surface-treated macadam, 95 cents; bituminous macadam, $2.10; bituminous concrete, $2.50; plain cement concrete, $2.57; reinforced-cement concrete, $2.74; and brick, $4.10.

These figures cover only the cost of the paving; they do not include the cost of grading, and officials point out that it must not be assumed that roads of the several types can be constructed in any locality at these figures. For example, the cost of bituminous concrete varied from $1.70 in the New England states to $3.18 in the group of states including Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. In one group of states the cost of brick dropped to $2.40. Costs of constructing these types in the various groups of states have been compiled and can be obtained from the bureau.

HELPS TO SUSTAIN PRICES

One of the Big Factors Is Construction of Good Roads Planned for the Coming Year.

One of the factors that will help to sustain farm prices is the large amount of road building planned for this year. The government will spend a larger sum for this purpose than ever before, and states and counties will cooperate to the extent of their financial abilities.

Money for Good Roads.

[illegible]

WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicines

Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a [illegible] of your Vegetable Compound [illegible] Lydia E. [illegible] Blood [illegible] had been [illegible] pains [illegible] and at intervals between, was [illegible] seemed to be smothering at tim[illegible] in a week I felt like another [illegible] also used Lydia E. Pinkham's [illegible] Wash. It did me a lot of g[illegible] cannot praise your medicine [illegible] and will be more than [illegible] mend them to any w[illegible] ing from female tr[illegible] print my testimonial [illegible]—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, [illegible] Miss. St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"[illegible] true." Every letter recommen[illegible] E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com[illegible] genuine. It is a statement t[illegible] merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood t[illegible] each other about them. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has sold on merit.

SLOW DEATH

Aches, pains, nervousness, difficulty in urinating, often mean serious disorders. The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL

HAARLEM OIL

CAPSULES

bring quick relief and often ward off deadly diseases. Known as the national remedy of Holland for more than 200 years. All druggists, in three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Nurses Needed Everywhere

American Hospital School of Nursing gives a complete course in nursing. Accredited School. Full maintenance and ample allowance to cover expenses. The Hospital is ideally located on the North side of the city, close to Lake Michigan within a few minutes' walk of Lincoln Park. For information, address Superintendent of Nurses, American Hospital, Chicago, Ill., Irving Park Boulevard near Sheridan Road.

Quiet.

"They're very modest, aren't they?" "Very. Even insisted on being divorced quietly."

Cuticura Comforts Baby's Skin

When red, rough and itching, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap and touches of Cuticura Ointment. Also make use now and then of that exquisitely scented dusting powder, Cuticura Talcum, one of the indispensable Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

In 1950.

"I saw a pedestrian on the road yesterday."

"What! A live one?"—Life.

"O Happy Day" sang the laundress as she hung the snowy wash on the line. It was a "happy day" because she used Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

There are thousands of gentlemen's agreements not made for reasons of state or finance.

Have You a Bad Back?

Are you lame every morning? Do you drag through the day with a steady, nagging backache—evening find you "all played out"? Probably your kidneys are to blame. Hurry, worry, lack of rest and a heavy diet, all tend to weaken the kidneys. Your back gives out; you feel depressed and suffer headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities. Don't go from bad to worse. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

An Ohio Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Harry Gregory, 208 W. Martin St., East Palestine, Ohio, says: "There was a steady, dull ache across my kidneys and when I stooped a sharp pain shot across the small of my back. I had to get up during the night, my kidneys acted so freely. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief right away and I am never going to be without Doan's."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

[illegible] CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Rats in the Cellar, Mice in the Pantry, Cockroaches in the Kitchen

[illegible]

JULY

JAMES P. HUMPHREYS, well-known automobile man of Hebron, Md., who declares he believes Tanlac is the best thing to overcome stomach trouble and run-down condition. States it completely restored his health.

"I believe in giving everything its due and I want to say right now I just can't praise Tanlac too highly for what it has done in my case," declared James P. Humphreys, proprietor of the Hebron Motor Co., Hebron, Md.

"For three years or more I suffered from indigestion. After eating I would bloat terribly with gas and my heart would palpitate until it interfered with my breathing. I was habitually constipated and my nerves were all upset. My sleep was unsound, I got up mornings all tired out, and I was only a shadow of my former self.

"Well, Tanlac has given me a keen appetite, stomach trouble has disappeared, my nerves have steadied down, and I have gained several pounds. Tanlac, to my mind, is the best thing ever sold for stomach trouble and run-down condition."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Half a Dozen Fines Did It.

"Mr. Grumpson is a changed man since he bought a car."

"For the better?"

"Yes. There was a time when he wouldn't take anybody's advice, but now he lends an attentive ear to traffic policemen."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Back to the Fold.

For ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.—I Peter. 2:25.

Truth in a nutshell is often hard to crack.

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

NR Tonight, Tomorrow Alright

Get a 25c. Box.

Western Canada
Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

[illegible]

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying are sources of [illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Shoals.—A point which may prove interesting to all cities and towns in Indiana situated on state highways has arisen at Shoals. State highway No. 5, the principal route between St. Louis and Cincinnati, passes through Shoals, traversing Main street for two miles. The street is badly in need of rebuilding and arrangements have been made to rebuild it by the issue of bonds of the two townships in which Shoals is situated, under the three-mile road law. The contract has been let and the bonds sold. The buyers of the bonds now refuse to take them, giving as the reason of their refusal, the opinion of their attorneys, that all state highways must be built, reconstructed or kept in condition by the state highway commission. This makes it impossible to sell bonds to obtain money with which to resurface the street.

Indianapolis.—Indications are that the state board of finance will be unable to pay the $1,200,000 debt against the state general fund after the June tax receipts are all in from the counties. Parts of the loan are to be paid and the rest renewed or new loans arranged, it is understood. The loans were made in a number of amounts and now have fallen or are falling due. This is the first time the state has been in debt for many years, with the exception of a small temporary loan in the last administration. The state will receive from the counties between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 on account of the June settlement, it has been estimated, but much of this will be needed for regular expenses and only a part of it may be used to liquidate the debt which was incurred early this year.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray appointed John Klinger of Brazil to fill the unexpired term of W. C. Ball of Terre Haute on the board of trustees of the state farm. Mr. Ball died recently. The governor appointed John T. Boyd of Vincennes to succeed Sherman Trout of Crawfordsville on the board. Trout's term has expired. The terms are for three years, the governor said. The governor has not yet appointed anyone to succeed Mr. Ball on the board of trustees of the State Normal school. It is reported that Charles A. Greathouse of Indianapolis, formerly state superintendent of public instruction, may receive the appointment.

Shelbyville.—A test of 360 head of cattle that produce milk retailed in Shelbyville, has resulted in only one animal being found suffering from tuberculosis. Shelby county farmers and dairy owners are joining in an effort to have all cattle in the county tested in the next few months. The work was started in January and has proved to be of much benefit. An ordinance now in force provides that no milk may be sold here except from cattle that have been tested against disease.

Lafayette.—Director G. L. Christie of the Purdue agricultural experiment station is on an extensive tour of the West, in which he will investigate live stock conditions. The survey is being made at the request of various live stock interests of the country. The survey will be of general interest to farmers in Indiana, because a large development in live stock production in the Western states will have its effect on live stock production in the Central states.

Lafayette.—Jesse Martin, fifty-five, president of the Central National bank of Attica, took his own life at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Albert Cobb, 15 miles west of the city. Relatives found him hanging in the tool shed. Despondency over ill health is the cause attributed for the act. Martin was head of the Attica bank for more than 20 years. He founded the Wingate bank in 1891.

South Bend.—Determined to make South Bend one of the most attractive cities in the Middle West, the city plan commission is securing engineers to outline plans which will in the next two decades develop the city into a modern municipality. In carrying out the plans, provision will be made to keep the residence districts free from dirt by setting aside business and industrial districts.

Anderson.—The signature of a prosecuting attorney is not necessary for action on affidavits filed in a city court and the court of a justice of the peace, Lawrence Mays of Pendleton ruled in the city court when presiding as special judge for the trial of Michael Ryan and Patrick Cannon, charged with the operating and vending of slot machines, on which gambling was being practiced.

Franklin.—The wheat crop in Johnson county is below the average, the best fields testing only 60 pounds a bushel. Most of the crop, however, tests but 57 and 58 pounds a bushel. The average yield is 17 bushels an acre.

Indianapolis.—Resolutions favoring a law for licensing auctioneers [illegible] ing in Indiana and a law requiring the [illegible]

Indianapolis.—Public hearings looking toward informing the state board of tax commissioner of the relative tax appraising levels in Indiana counties, townships, cities and towns are fixed for each county in an order the board issued. The board recognizes that, owing to the great variance in levels, the task this year of equalizing parts of the state presents one of the most serious of the kind ever before that body. Farm real estate levels have dropped in many places. Corporation levels have been maintained about as heretofore, and trouble seems certain for the board, its members have said. How they are going to equalize without creating disturbances is more than they can say at this time. Hearing on Marion county and the taxing units in it, including Indianapolis, will take place July 20, the first day of the hearing series.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana National Guard has a total strength of 4,922 men, including 4,632 enlisted men and 290 officers, Harry B. Smith, adjutant general, reported to the militia bureau of the War department. The present strength of the state militia is nearly double that of any other time, General Smith said. Plans of the War department for increasing the Indiana National Guard sent to General Smith last fall called for 4,714 men in the guard by June 30, the end of the government fiscal year. The strength of the guard at the time was approximately 2,700 men. The organization of a number of new units also was requested. The Indiana guard has more than met the requirements of the War department on every point, General Smith said.

Richmond.—The number of patients in the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane is much larger at present than it was during the war. This partly is due to the after effects of the war, and, also, to the fact that the colony farm was not at the disposal of the hospital administration during the war, Dr. S. E. Smith, superintendent, said. There are 935 patients receiving treatment, which is an increase of about thirty-five in a year. A new colony house will be opened within the next month, according to Doctor Smith. The movement of patients at the hospital has been rapid the last year, Doctor Smith reported.

Petersburg.—Farmers have cut the second crop of alfalfa this year, the yield of the second crop being 1¼ tons an acre. The first cutting was two tons to the acre. The third crop will be cut the middle of August and the fourth crop in September. Wheat thrashing is almost half done in Pike county. The yield is disappointing. Farmers are being supplied with coal by a number of small country mines, and no trouble has been experienced by want of coal. Corn is in good condition, rains helping the late-planted corn. Blackberries are so plentiful that they are being sold at 25 cents a gallon, and the price may go lower.

Marion.—The convention of the Indiana State Federation of Labor will be held in Marion August 30 and 31 and September 1. Between 500 and 600 delegates and their wives are expected to attend the convention. Preceding the state convention there will be a state conference of painters, electricians and plumbers, and on Monday and Tuesday preceding the convention there is to be a conference of the building trades.

Petersburg.—Tomatoes are ripening and are selling on the local market at 10 cents a pound. The weather has been favorable for the tomato crop, and there will be a big yield from the 200 acres planted in tomatoes in this vicinity. Canteloupes will be ready for market next week, but the acreage is small. One hundred acres have been planted in watermelons. The fields planted in watermelons are looking good.

Evansville.—The industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce has taken a definite stand against the granting of cash bonuses to industries coming to the city. As a substitute for the cash bonus it has been decided to give free sites to new industries. No offers from firms seeking to put on broadcast stock selling propositions will be entertained by the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced.

Anderson.—After an examination of twigs from trees bearing cottony maple scale, Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, has notified persons here inquiring as to the extent of damage by the scale that it probably will be negligible because a parasite that destroys the cottony scale is industrious and that this provision of nature, he added, will probably interfere with much damage to maple trees.

Porter.—Seventy-five persons were injured when a Pere Marquette passenger train crashed into a New York Central engine on a siding in the vicinity of [illegible] Park near here. The injured received first aid treatment, and the train then proceeded to Chicago. The only one seriously hurt was a negro cook on the dining car. He was [illegible] and was taken to a [illegible]

[illegible]

Don't be Penny Wise and Pound Foolish

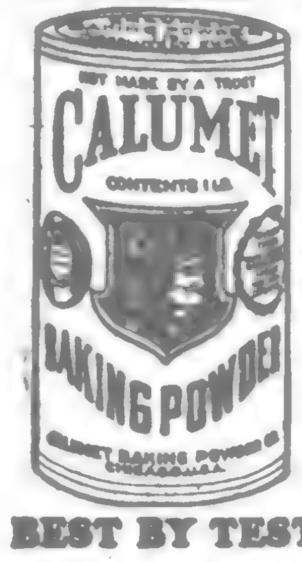
Don't think because you can get a big can of Baking Powder for little money that you are saving anything.

There's Only One Way to Save on Bake-Day

USE

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER



—It costs only a fraction of a cent for each baking.

—You use less because it contains more than the ordinary leavening strength.

BEST BY TEST

The World's Greatest Baking Powder

FUNERAL BEARERS ON STRIKE

Incident That Enlightened British Public Concerning Profession About Which Little Is Known.

The strike of funeral bearers in Hull calls attention to a profession of which comparatively little is known.

People are apt to look upon the somber figures who walk beside the hearse and carry the coffin to the graveside as simply a part of the undertaker's outfit, but in reality these men are a profession to themselves. Usually they are small tradesmen, writes a correspondent, or out of work, ready to earn a few shillings in this way. Every undertaker has his own little band who can be relied upon to come whenever a funeral is on. Generally the undertaker provides the tall hats, a fact which accounts for the grotesque fitting of some of the hats, but the black suit must be provided or borrowed by the man himself. The fee varies from 75 cents to $1.25, according to the district, and there are men who can make $5 a week and upwards out of this line. At Hull the fee has been $1.25. Now the undertakers wish to drop it to $1 a funeral, and hence the strike of the bearers.—Manchester Guardian.

Fresh-Air College.

All resident students at the University of Arizona are obliged to sleep in the open air on porches. The fraternity houses have similar sleeping arrangements.

If a man believes all a woman says—but, of course, he doesn't, so that settles it.

NEGRO'S MEMORY A PUZZLE

Of Limited Educational Attainments, Colored Man Has Wonderful Fund of Useful Information.

Jim Gilmore, a negro aged fifty-six, who lives in the town of Greenville, Tex., is said by scientists who have examined him, to possess one of the most remarkable memories known. With apparently a small amount of educational training Gilmore is able to quote any verse in the Bible suggested to him. He answers any questions pertaining to the Civil war, the Spanish-American war and the late World war, giving dates of all outstanding historical events. He can name every station and water tank from San Francisco to New York on the principal transcontinental railroads.

There seems to be no limit to the amount of poetry Gilmore can quote. "The Sinking of the Titanic," numbering 40 verses, and "The World War From Beginning to End," in 60 verses and three parts, is another literary achievement of which he can boast. He has traveled extensively and possesses an excellent vocabulary for one of limited education.—Exchange.

Quite Proper.

"I often hear the small farmers talking about their truck patches," said the city greenhorn. "Wonder why they call them patches."

"It's because they're sowed on, of course," returned the smart country rube.—Boston Transcript.

Labor worketh a harshness on sorrow.—Montaigne.

WAS UNDER NO OBLIGATION

Transaction of Youthful Newspaper Proprietor Had Been on a Strictly Business Basis.

George developed a journalistic instinct at the early age of fifteen. With the consent of his father and some assistance from the same cource he bought an "amateur printing outfit" and started the Klinkerville Monthly Journal, subscription price 50 cents a year, payable in advance.

"I suppose you call yourself the editor and proprietor of this office," remarked an envious young associate who dropped in at his "sanctum" in the basement of the paternal dwelling one day.

"Of course I do," responded the youthful journalist. "I don't owe a cent on it."

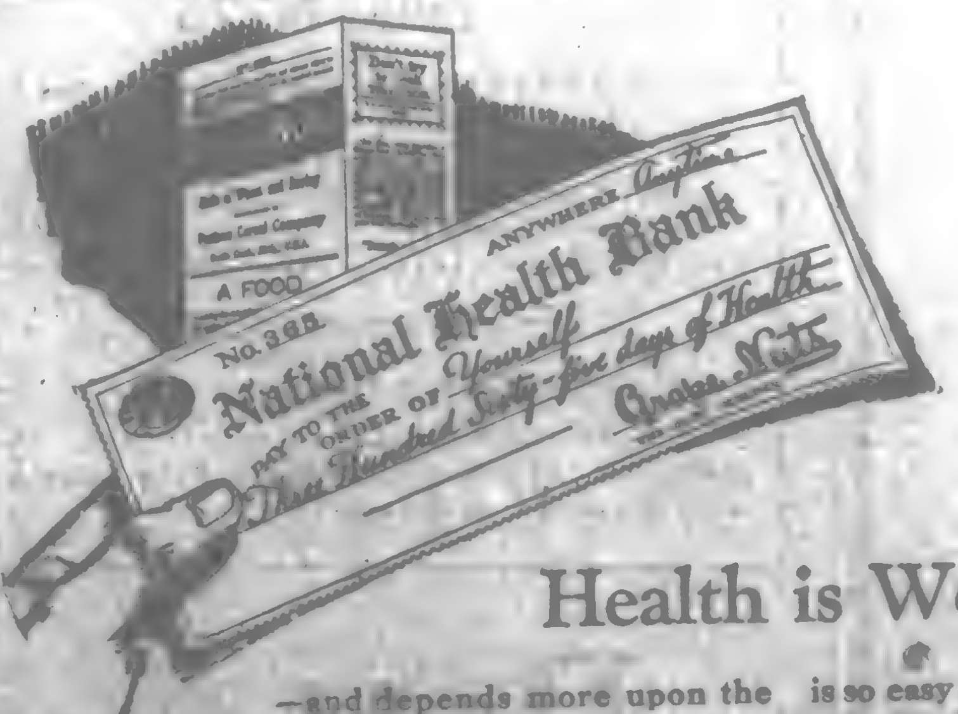
"Proprietor! Umph. Everybody knows you got $25 from your father to start it with."

"Yes, sir!" stoutly rejoined George. "And his subscription for the Journal is marked paid fifty years ahead on my books!"—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Her Achievement.

"My wife got after a blue racer with a hatchet out in the yard yesterday," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "After going twice around the track, as it were, she ketched her foot in a mess of baling wire and fell and sprained her arm, if she didn't break it outright. But, by cripes, she shore cut off that there snake's head as she went down!"—Kansas City Star.

A painful duty is best performed by a substitute.



A FOOD
No. 365
National Health Bank
ANYWHERE Anytime
PAY TO THE ORDER OF Yourself
Three Hundred Sixty-five days of Health
Grape-Nuts

Health is Wealth Itself

—and depends more upon the selection of proper food than upon anything else.

The reason is simple—the right kind of food digests promptly and is absorbed into the blood for building sound tissue; while food that digests slowly may ferment and lead to serious conditions.

Grape-Nuts—the delicious cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley—is so easy to digest that even delicate people and young children thrive on it.

This is only natural, because Grape-Nuts is baked for 20 hours, which transforms and partially pre-digests the starch elements, resulting in easy digestion and quick assimilation.

Served with milk or cream Grape-Nuts is a complete food—[illegible] with its nutritive qualities is that wonderful flavor!

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

Sold by grocers everywhere!

[illegible]

JULY

L 912

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

CONCORD

Miss Violet Wyatt, of Auburn, spent Sunday in the William Johnson home.

Bert Jackson, of St. Joe, visited his brother, Charles Jackson, and family, Sunday.

Howard Kruse and wife entertained Mr. and Mrs. Grube, of Auburn, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Homer Long, of Muncie, visited over the Fourth with Miss Marguerite Milliman.

Miss Anna Bovalick, of Butler, who has been spending several weeks in the E. W. Saylor home, has returned to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone entertained Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkins, of St. Joe. Home made ice cream was served.

Mrs. Glen Springer, of Cedarville, and daughter, Dorothy May, spent Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Milliman.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Milliman had as Sunday afternoon guests Mrs. J. H. Shull, Henry Milliman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Milliman and Mrs. Wilson Beaber.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson were called to Auburn, Friday evening, on account of the serious illness of the lady's mother, Mrs. Sebring. Mrs. Sebring was taken to the Garrett hospital at 7 o'clock Friday evening and was operated on at 9 o'clock for appendicitis. The last report was that the sick lady is getting on all right and we hope for her speedy recovery.

NEWVILLE

Vertie McDaniel spent the Fourth at Bryan.

Miss Hilda Tarney is working at the American hotel at Bryan, Ohio.

Mrs. Geneva Sechler spent Wednesday at the Frank Kinsey home at St. Joe.

C. O. Berry and family were the Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

C. O. Berry and family, of near Auburn, were the Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

The Misses Fern and Hilda Tarney motored to Manitou Beach near Hudson, Mich., Sunday.

Guy Smith has left his employment at Ft. Wayne and has started up a restaurant in Newville.

Dale McNabb moved last week from Butler to Newville, occupying the Christian parsonage.

Mrs. Beringer of Ohio, is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Leroy Kinney. The old lady is quite feeble.

Miss Dorothy Morningstar, of Adrian, Mich., is the guest of her grandparents, J. H. Benner and wife, and an aunt, Mrs. Hugh Traxler.

The young people conducted the Sunday school services Sunday at the U. B. church in quite an appropriate manner.

Miss Prudence Blood underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils, last week, at Hicksville hospital. The report is that she is getting along fine.

Gust Rheinhart died Saturday at his home one mile north of Newville. Mr. Rheinhart has not been very well recently and had a stroke which he could not survive. He was 82 years of age Dec. 25, 1921. He leaves two sons, Ira, of north of Butler, and another son, who with his family lives in the old home, Mrs. Rheinhart and one son having recently passed away.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	135	[illegible]
M. P.	70	[illegible]
[illegible]	106	[illegible]
M. E. [illegible]	114	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	91	[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

OUR JULY SALE

of

FINE CLOTHING

Is a Money-Saving Event

Furnishings At July Sale Prices

Boston and Wilson Bros.' 35c wide web garters	20c
Wilson Bros.' $1.50 Muslin and Nainsook Night Shirts	95c
Lightweight knitted Athletic Union Suits	59c
$1.00 Mesh Union Suits, short sleeve, ankle length,	69c
$1.50 and $2 cotton and mercerized cotton Bathing Suits	$1.00
2,000 packs of our 40c Playing Cards will be sold at	20c a pack
Lion Brand $1.75 Soft Cuff Shirts	79c
Imported, hand clocked, fine lisle Hose	75c
$1.00 Wilson Bros.' Nainsook Athletic Union Suits	75c
Or three Suits for	$2.00
40c mercerized lisle Hose, black and colors 25c,	6 pair $1.40
Interwoven 60c fiber plaited Hose, black and colors	50c
All of our Wilson Bros.' $10 Crepe, Jersey and broadcloth Silk Shirts will go at	$6.50
20 dozen $8.50 and $7.50 Silk Shirts will go at	$5.00
All of our $5.00 Silk Neckband Shirts will go at	$3.75
200 pair Men's and Young Men's Blue Serge Trousers will be sold at	$2.50
New Shirts in checks and plain colors with collars to match, some with piping on front and cuffs	$1.50
Genuine Soisette Athletic Union Suits	$1.50

July Specials for Our Boys' Section

Specials in Our Children's Dept.

25 dozen children's wash suits; these garments have a white jean waist and a genuine Palmer linen pant, either blue or grey, with cuffs and a sailor collar to match. Every garment guaranteed fast colors; regular $3. values. MOTHERS, DON'T FAIL TO SEE THESE SUITS. While they last $1.85

Girls' Wool Bathing Suits

Pure wool worsted in all the new shades and styles. These are really wonderful values. Sizes up to 18 years $3.00 and $4.50

Children's Mercerized Lisle Sox, in plain colors and combination; sizes 5 to 9; regular 40c 19c

Boys' Genuine Palm Beach Knickerbockers, with the label; sizes 6 to 18; in all the good shades $2.00

Children's Genuine Koveralls; special for this week only $1.00

BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S BATHING SUITS, $1 UP

Boys' Two-Pant Knicker Suits, $5.75

We will sell 100 boys' knicker suits, with two full-lined trousers at this one price.
They're made from a medium weight material and come in a good assortment of patterns. Sizes 7 to 14 years.
WHILE THEY LAST,
YOUR CHOICE $5.75

50 dozen Boys' and Children's Athletic Union Suits 50c
Sizes 2 to 16 years—the small sizes have garter and pant supports sewed on the suit.

1800

Men's and Young Men's

SUITS

Will Be Sold at Three Special Prices

Every suit all wool or pure worsted, perfectly tailored with hand button holes, hand padded shoulders and hand felled collars.

REGULARS
STOUTS
STUBS
SHORT STOUTS
LONG STOUTS
AND EXTRA SIZES

$18

$25

$35

Not a Suit in the Lot Under a $30 Value and up to $55

WORK· CLOTHES

Regardless of the fact that all manufacturers have made a big advance in the price of work shirts and overalls, we will sell

WINONA AND CARHARTT
OVERALLS $1.50
Or 50c to 75c a Pair Less Than Most Other Stores Are Getting

200 Dozen Blue Chambray, polka dot, black and white and railroad blue Work Shirts will go at 75c
200 Dozen large size red work Handkerchiefs 5c

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

The Store That [illegible] — Wayne and Harrison Streets

NEWS OF THE TOWN

[illegible]

[illegible]

Envelopes at the News office.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hanna.

Mrs. C. R. Price has been quite ill the past several days with heart [illegible] and is confined to her bed.

[illegible] Carl A. Bassett arrived [illegible] Sunday [illegible] the B. & O. [illegible]

The Rural Housewives club met Thursday with Edith Widney. Seven members and the following three guests, Mrs. Rose Widney and the [illegible] Mildred Gee and Margaret [illegible], were present. The following officers were elected: President, [illegible] Gladys Murphy; vice president, [illegible] Bart; Secretary, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Minnie [illegible]. After the business session, the [illegible] coffee, [illegible]. The [illegible] Mrs. Gladys [illegible].

How Much Infuence Have

YOU?

Just as soon as you begin to do something you begin to have influence. When you begin to follow the principles of thrift your influence begins to expand.

As the margin between income and expenditure grows, as your Farmers' & Merchants' Bank Account enlarges, your sphere of influence widens.

Then you are doing something. You are getting somewhere.

Let us help you. YOU WILL BE BENEFITED IF YOU WILL OPEN A "DOLLAR A WEEK" ACCOUNT WITH US.

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Born to Mr. and Mrs. David Baughman a son recently.

Dr. W. W. Carey and wife were Saturday evening guests of Jack Beams and wife.

Is your appetite jaded? Is your digestion poor? If so, Tanlac is what you need. Sheffer's.

Mrs. Glen Shaffer and children were Sunday guests of Vern Wilmot and family.

Miss Meriam Fisher, of Pleasant Lake, is visiting in the Mrs. E E. Provines and L. B Fisher homes.

Miss Margaret Lake was a Thursday evening guest of Miss Gaylon Markle.

Ralph Light and family, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday evening guests at the home of Gust Hafner and family.

Try a want ad in the News.

Charles Smith and parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Smith, were Sunday guests of Charles Hahn and family.

Miss Cloe Bowser left last week to work in the Wolf & Dessauer store at Fort Wayne.

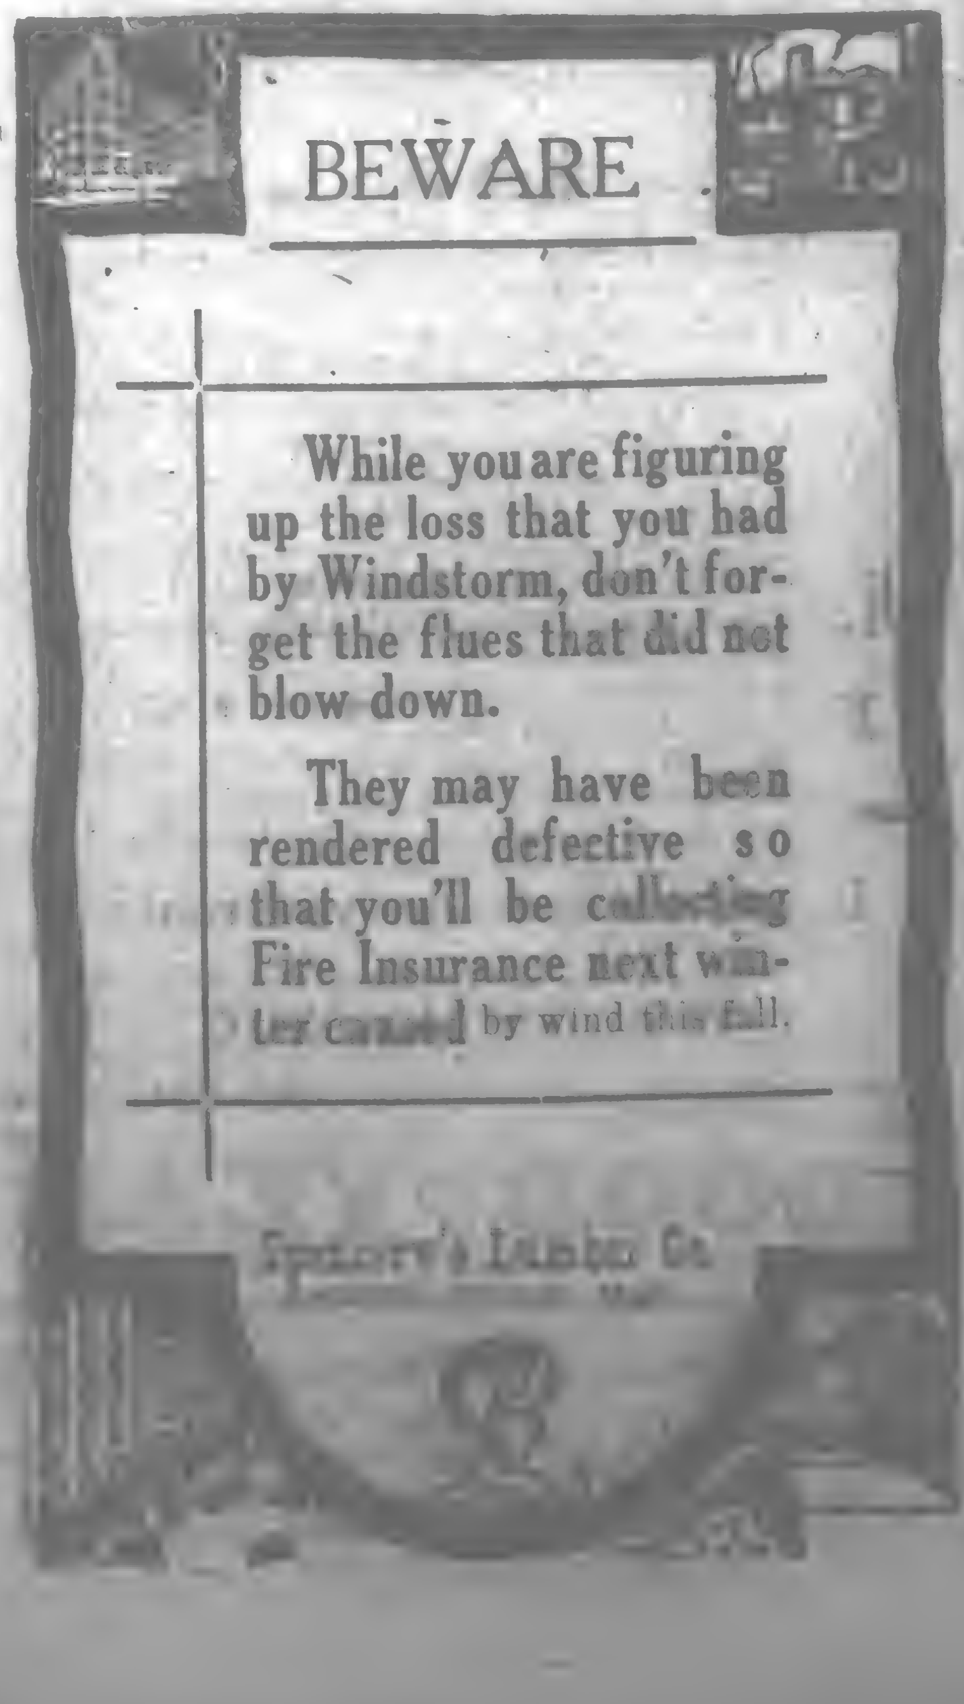
Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

William Vallieu and wife and Mrs. Clara Smith, of Harlan, spent Sunday as guests of J. C. Vallieu and family.

John Buchman and wife and Mrs. Marie Zimmerman attended the funeral of Mrs. Badman's sister, Mrs. Marie Miller, of Geneva, Ind.

Glenn Bets and son, Forest, of Woodburn, were Sunday guests of the former's parents, Mr and Mrs. Joel Bets.

The storm on Monday afternoon did much damage in this vicinity, unroofing barns blowing down small buildings and several trees.



BEWARE

While you are figuring up the loss that you had by Windstorm, don't forget the flues that did not blow down.

They may have been rendered defective so that you'll be collecting Fire Insurance next winter caused by wind this fall.

The Christian Endeavor will give a Pie-ala-mode social Saturday evening, July 15, on the Lutheran church lawn All are invited to make this a success.

The Live Wire Class of the M. E. Sunday School was pleasantly entertained on Saturday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Thorne. Contests and games were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dermont, their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rabbit and two children, of Decatur, Indiana, Sundayed at the home of Henry Beery and wife.

Miss Margaret Lake returned home Wednesday evening after spending the first month visiting her uncle, John Lake and family of Chicago. Miss Lake taught school at Matchwood, Michigan, the past year.

Members of the M. E. Sunday School and Lutheran Sunday School orchestras and several others meet at the Community Hall on Friday evening to organize a band at this place. They will meet next Friday evening and complete arrangements.

The Misses Spickler and Frick and Messrs Spathe, Willard Yoder, and Harold Janes, of Angola, attended the Christian Endeavor here on Sunday evening. Mr. Janes is president of the Auburn district of the Christian Endeavor and Mr. Yoder is vice-president.

The following guests were entertained on Sunday for dinner and supper at the home of John Bachman and wife: Mr. and Mrs. Baltsle, Mr and Mrs. Alfred Bachman, Mr. and Mrs. John Zimmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arlitent of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bachman of Hicksville, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. John Elmer and children of Fort Wayne. Micheal Zehr of Fort Wayne, will spend a week in the same home.

Walter Perkins and family, of Harlan, Mr and Mrs. Edward Billman, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Markle. Samuel Markle, of Wises' Corners, Earl Staman and family, of Rehobeth, and Victor Steward were Sunday dinner guests of Frank Waterman and wife. The afternoon guests at the same home were Gust Hafner and family and Joel Bets and wife and Glen Bets and son, of Woodburn. Ice cream and cake were served.

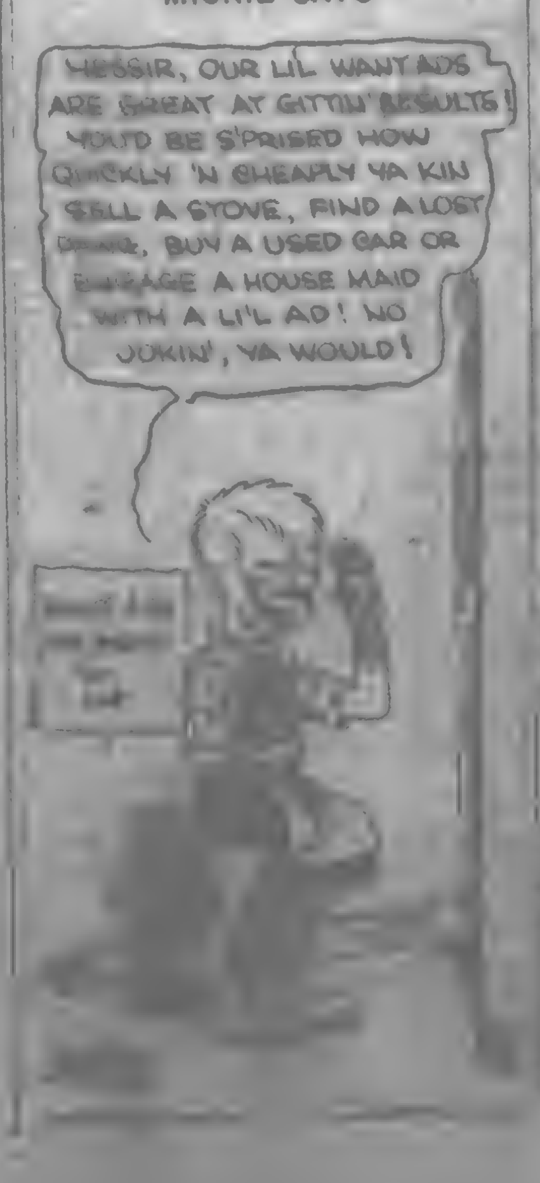
B. F. Markle and wife had as Sunday dinner guests Mrs. Matilda Oberholtzer and grandaughter, Miss Cosy Oberholtzer, and Miss Margaret Lake. The afternoon and supper guests were the Misses Margaret and Ellen Lake, Garnett Beams, Lillian Steffey, Ada Markle of Grabill, Francis Hursh, Miss Spickler, Miss Frick and Messrs Willard Yoder, Harold Janes, and Mr. Spathe, of Angola, Indiana.

On Monday evening after rehearsal the members of the Lutheran orchestra surprised their instructor, Willis Wilcox, by inviting him to the basement where a delicious lunceon was served. The table was prettily decorated in red, white and blue, for the Fourth of July. After the lunch games and contests were enjoyed, Miss Lillian Steffey being the prise winner. Upon opening the prise it was found to contain large cannon crackers and fireworks, which were taken out on the lawn and enjoyed by all.

The Balts's family reunion was held on Saturday at the home of David Nicely of near Harlan. The officers elected were President, Jacob Balts of this place, Secretary-Treasurer, Susan Lanning of Fort Wayne. There were eighty-one members present. Those thet attended from a distance were,s William Turcot of Rock Island, Illinois, William Uts and Mr. Peterson and wife, of Tiffin, Ohio, Glen Monroe and family, of Fort Wayne, Paul Dewey and Miss Pearl Arness of Churubusco, and William Boger of Detroit, Michigan.

Fort Wayne—Two dead and five injured are the results of a serious structural accident occuring Monday afternoon when a large truck, conveying concrete to various sections of the building of the Lincoln Life Company, broke and crashed to the ground upon seven workman engaged in work beneath. One man was instantly killed and six were seariously injured, one of which died later at a hospital.

MICKIE SAYS



YESSIR, OUR LI'L WANT ADS ARE GREAT AT GITTIN' RESULTS! YOU'D BE S'PRISED HOW QUICKLY 'N CHEAPLY YA KIN SELL A STOVE, FIND A LOST [illegible], BUY A USED CAR OR ENGAGE A HOUSE MAID WITH A LI'L AD! NO JOKIN', YA WOULD!

What God Says

(1 Thess. 5: 14–22.)

Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men.

See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men.

Rejoicing evermore.

Pray without ceasing.

In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you.

Quench not the Spirit.

Despise not prophesyings.

Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.

Abstain from all appearance of evil.

ST. JOE

Dr. C. S. Johnson spent from Friday until Sunday attending the funeral of a friend at Tiffin, Ohio. He is spending a part of this week at Columbus, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowen and Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Vern Monroe and son James, of Marion, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler. Mrs. Monroe and son remained for a week's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fluss, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Madison and little son, of South Bend, came Sunday to visit until Thursday with Mrs. Fluss' sister, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mason and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hoke, of Auburn, were Sunday evening guests in the Ridgway home.

The Loyal Boys and Girls class of the Christian Sunday school was the banner class for attendance in that school for last Sunday, having 22 present. The present enrollment is 26. Three members were lost by moving away and seven new members have been added during the past quarter. The average attendance during the past quarter was 19 plus. Seven members, including the teacher, were present every Sunday, two members missed but one Sunday., and three members missed but two Sundays during the quarter.

Christian Church Notes

Mrs. Eva Sheffer entertained the Martha Society, Thursday. The election of officers was held to serve the coming six months resulted as follows: President, Ada Bassett; Vice president, Grace Sheffer, Secretary, Dora Daily, Treasurer, Eva Sheffer. The society has done splendidly the past six months in a financial way and are continuing to help lift the church's indebtedness.

Next Sunday morning will be Rev. Daily's regular appointment at Hamilton. Union services will be held here at 6 P. M. and a promise was made that the meeting would be held in the grove if the weather permitted.

Bible school at 9:30 A. M. with communion and social meeting following. The Loyal Sons and Daughters class held the banner for attendance, there being 25 present. The Loyal Boys and Girls had but one less.

Some reports have been held over which will be given next week.

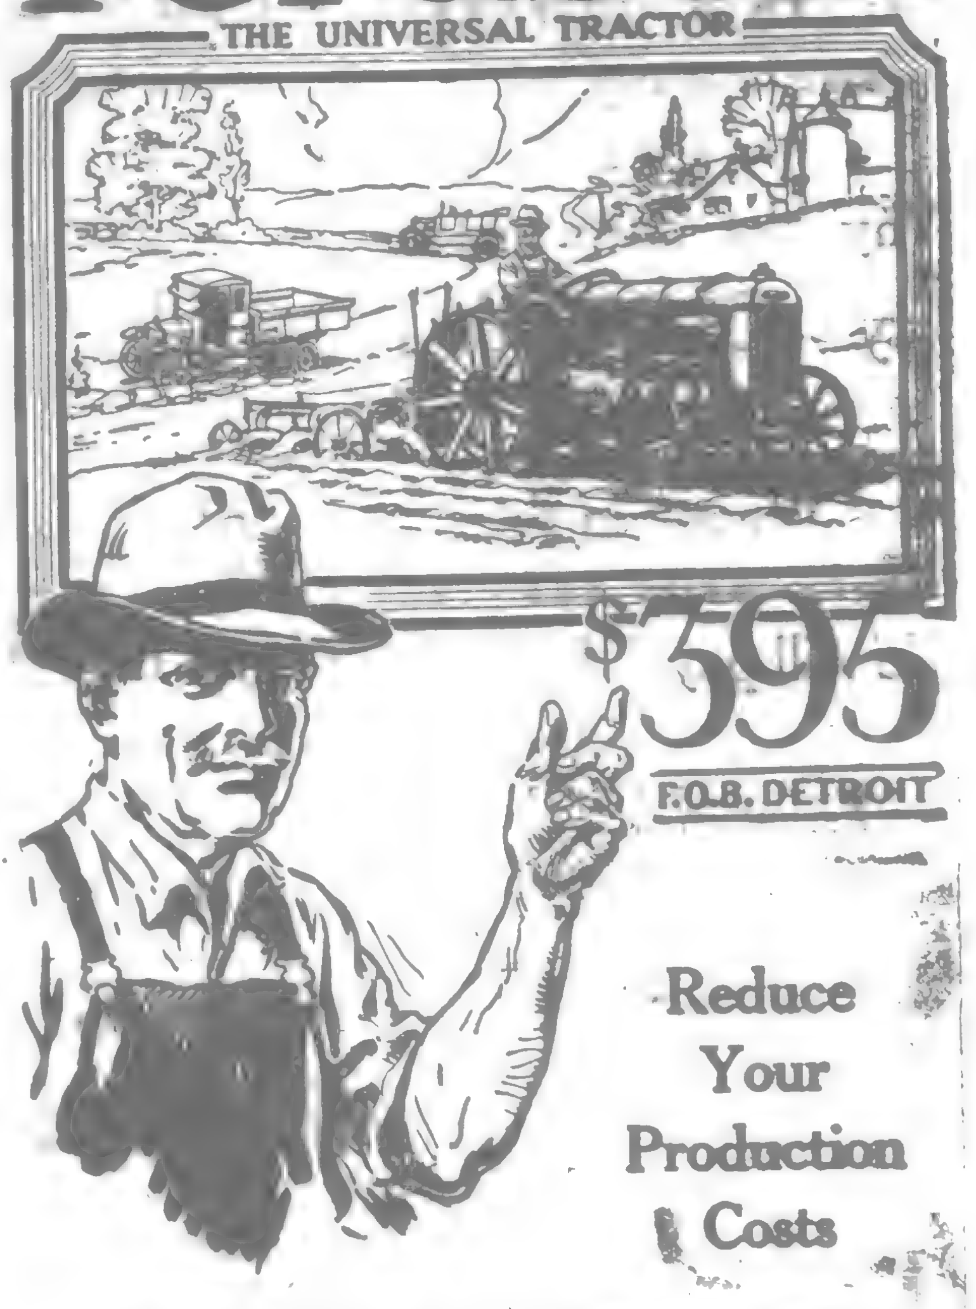
Renew your subscription.

WANTED:-Fat Hogs

I Will Take In Fat Hogs At My Sale Barn In Spencerville Every Week Day And Evening.

R. U Bowser.
Call:36-12
SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA

Fordson
THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR



$395
F.O.B. DETROIT

Reduce Your Production Costs

Farming, like every other business, must cut down the overhead.

It is not a question of being able to afford a Fordson; it is a question of being able to continue farming on the old too-costly basis.

The farmer's problem is not all a sales problem; it is also a production problem. He must cut down the cost of production.

The Fordson does more work at a lower cost and in less time than the old hand methods.

Let us give you the proof. Write, phone or call today.

Frank W. SILBERG
Spencerville, Indiana

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

812 CALHOUN STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

RADIO

CIRCUIT WITH GRID LEAK RESISTANCE

Takes Place of "C" Battery—How Impedance of Flow Is Determined.

Fig. 13 shows a set of curves for a three-electrode vacuum tube circuit containing a grid leak resistance as shown in Fig. 11 instead of a "C" battery with the same symmetrical alternating difference of potential applied to the grid circuit.

There being no "C" battery potential applied to the grid, the grid in Fig. 11 is normally at zero potential with respect to the filament. As the positive half of the first cycle of the alternating difference of potential is impressed upon the grid circuit—see Fig. 13—the grid is made positive with respect to the filament. Being positive with respect to the filament, causes a certain number of electrons, which are negative charges, to be attracted and caused to give up their negative charges to the grid. During the next or negative half of the cycle of the applied grid potential the grid is made negative with respect to the filament but does not lose the electrons again. Thus a negative charge is built up on a grid during the positive portion of each cycle, the cumulative effect of which is to produce a decrease of the plate current, during the period that the alternating difference of potential called a wave train is applied to the grid.

After the alternating difference of potential applied to the grid has ceased, the grid does not immediately lose its negative charge. The grid leak forms a high resistance path for the negative charge of the grid to leak off down to the filament slowly. If no grid leak were used, the grid would soon collect a sufficient negative charge to reduce the plate current to zero and the tube would cease to function.

A grid leak having too low resistance will not allow a sufficiently high negative charge to collect on the grid, resulting in a very small plate current reduction and weak response in the telephone receivers.

On the other hand, if the grid leak is of too high resistance, too high negative charge will collect on the grid and the condition of no grid leak will be approached.

In any electrical circuit that has a difference of potential applied to it, the current that will flow depends upon the "impedance" of that circuit; just as in the flow of water through a pipe, the quantity of water that will flow when any given pressure is applied depends upon how much the flow through the pipe is impeded by the friction of the particles of water against the sides of the pipe and against one another.

In the electrical circuit, the relation between these three quantities is that the current which will flow is equal to the applied differences of potential divided by the impedance, where the current is in amperes, the applied difference of potential is in volts and the impedance in ohms. On transposing this equation the impedance is equal to the applied voltage divided by the current. The impedance of a vacuum tube plate circuit, internally between the filament and the plate, when the grid is at zero potential, is an important constant of a vacuum tube and is called the internal plate impedance.

The internal grid impedance of a vacuum tube used in a radio set as a detector determines the impedance of the telephones that will give best results when connected in the plate circuit of that particular tube.

It is then not only the resistance of a pair of telephones, but also the inductance and the distributed capacity of the winding that cause the maximum current to flow in the telephones for a given change in grid potential. The internal plate impedance of a vacuum tube varies only slightly with different plate voltage. It is more an inherent characteristic of the tube which is determined by the design.

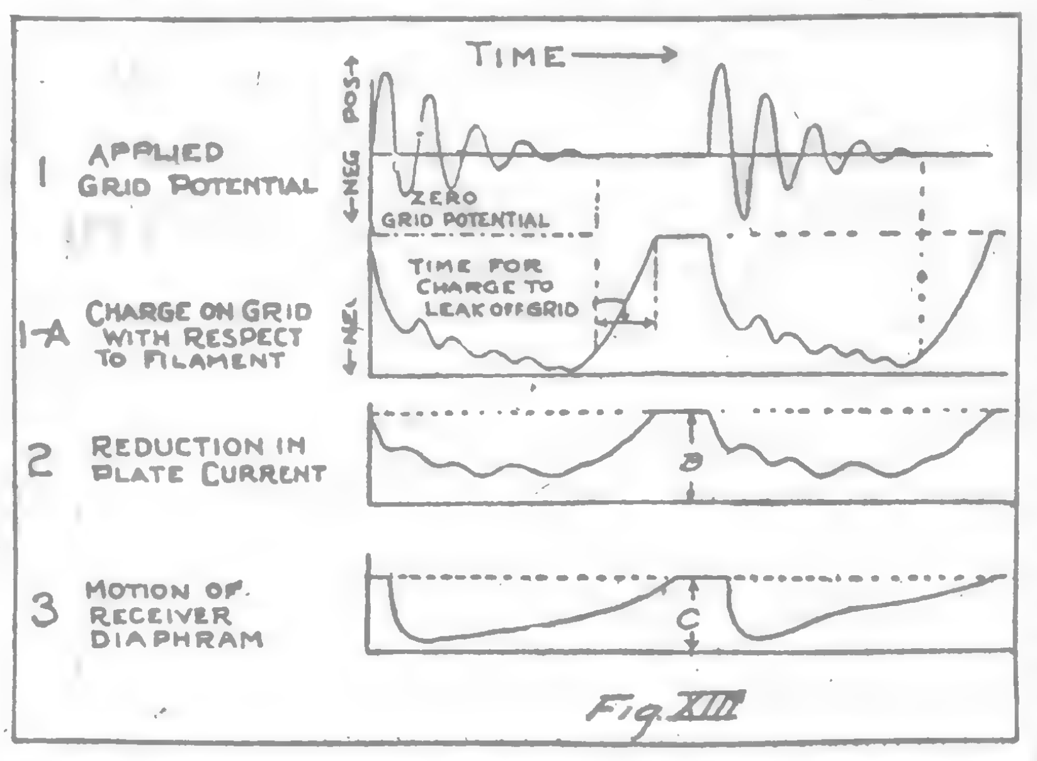


Fig. XIII

NEW RADIO FILTER A MARVEL

Campbell Device That Separates Telephone and Telegraph Messages.

Although much has been said and written about the remarkable filters employed by the telephone lines and by advanced radio workers for the separation of telephone and telegraph messages, says the Scientific American, it remained for Dr. Frank B. Jewett, chief engineer of the Western Electric company, to demonstrate how the filter permits of transmitting radio telephone and telegraph messages simultaneously, and of separating these messages at the receiving end, at a meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The present electrical filter is the invention of Dr. G. A. Campbell, a telephone engineer, and makes it possible to separate the various frequencies at which the individual telephone and telegraph messages are carried. The detected electrical current in a radio receiving set is passed through the filter which separates the frequencies of the telegraph message from those of the telephone.

The filter differs materially from the ordinary tuned circuits familiar to the radio enthusiast, since it separates not single frequencies but bands of frequencies of any predetermined width.

The filter makes it possible to separate the band of frequencies comprising the telephone message from the band comprising the telegraph message. It can also separate one telephone message from another.

"Ground Antennas."

Some relief from bothersome radio "statics" in summertime can be obtained with sets having good amplification by using a "ground antenna." [illegible]

[illegible]

SPARKS

When our concerts come over the "wired-wireless" and we plug into the lamp socket, light music will be given added popularity.

The railroads recently broadcasted a safety message from stations in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Newark and Springfield, Mass., calling attention to the fact that 84,000 people have been killed or injured the last year in this country while trespassing on railroad property.

If you do not know the code and wish to receive messages, there is a device on the market at the present time which records the incoming signals on a piece of paper. The paper may be then read at the will of the operator. This method gives the person unacquainted with the code the privilege of hearing from stations which would otherwise pass over in the usual "buzz, buzz," style so unintelligible to the radiophone fans.

While lying in the harbor of Iquique, Chile, on the west coast of South America, the radio operator of the steamship Santa Luisa clearly heard the entire broadcast program of Station WJZ. The distance separating Newark's station from the steamship in an air line was 4,000 miles.

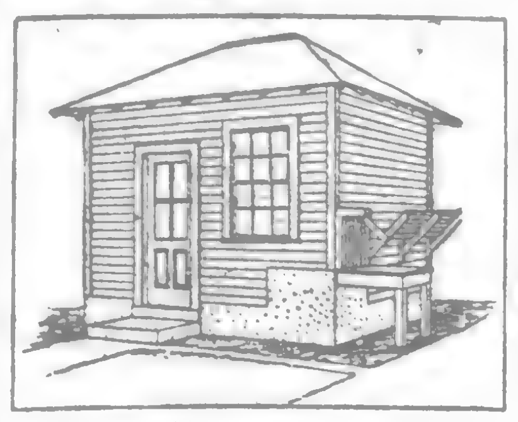
As a result of the widespread interest in wireless telephony one manufacturer has brought out a set of six double-faced records for teaching the telegraph code. Many persons, after listening to the [illegible]

DAIRY POINTS

BEST SITE FOR MILK HOUSE

Not Good Plan to Get Them Too Near Cow Barn—Must Be Clean, Airy and Dust-Proof.

Milk houses must be clean, airy dust-proof places, free from all insects and bad odors. They should not open directly into the barn, but it is equally injudicious to build them a very great distance away from the barn. Prompt removal and quick cooling are the main points to observe in handling milk. Put the milk house on a well-drained spot and away from rubbish heaps, manure piles and fly-breeding places. The outer walls, if of concrete, should be from 6 to 8 inches thick; if of brick, 9 inches; if of tile, 8 inches; if of stone, 14 to 18 inches; and if of wood frame, 6 inches.



Milk House Suitable for a Ten to Twenty-Cow Dairy.

Authorities say that particular care should be exercised in constructing milk house floors. Concrete is by far the best material for this purpose, as it resists moisture, decay and wear. Concrete floors should be built of a base made up of one part cement, three parts sharp, clean sand and five parts stone. This base should be about five inches thick and should be covered with a top coat one inch thick made by mixing one part cement and two parts sand. The top coat should be troweled hard and smooth.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY

Form of Ordinance Drawn to Guide Communities in Framing Practicable Law.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In properly safeguarding the milk supply of a community, the enactment of a suitable and enforceable law is usually the first step, according to a reprint of department bulletin 585, "A Guide for Formulating a Milk Ordinance," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk, in its composition and natural qualities, is a most useful and acceptable food, but may acquire one form or another of insanitary taint on its way from the cow to the consumer; and it is not always possible to require either producers or distributors to observe all the precautions which science has shown to be necessary, unless there is a law to back them up.

The public and officials of a city realizing this need may sometimes, in their zeal to make the new regulations strict enough, go too far and insert provisions that cannot readily be enforced or adminstered. Even health department officials may not be familiar with all phases of this subject, unless they have already been engaged in the enforcement of milk regulations; and in any case, whether the city is just starting milk regulation or is revising its ordinances to bring them up to date, it is desirable to take advantage of the experience of other communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has drawn up a form of ordinance to guide communities in framing a finished and practicable law. Copies of the bulletin may be had free upon application to the department at Washington, D. C.

IRREGULAR MILKING IS BAD

Not Only Lessens Output, but Tends to Disturb Functional Activity of Animal.

Early milking morning or evening one day and later milking morning or evening another day not only lessens the output of milk, but tends to disturb functional activity and prevents a maximum yield for the lactation period.

MIXTURE FOR YOUNG CALVES

Ground Corn, Oats, Bran and Oilmeal Is Recommended for Those Under Six Months.

For calves under six months old [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JULY 16

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 5:1-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—God will bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.—Eccl. 12:14.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Gen. 19:1-28; Exod. 14:21-31; Ezek. 31:1-14; Acts 12:20-23.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Tells the King of His Wrong-Doing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Belshazzar's Feast and Fate.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Judgment Against King Alcohol.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Enforce the Judgment Against Strong Drink.

I. Belshazzar's Impious Feast (vv. 1-4).

1. Who attended (vv. 1, 2). Belshazzar, his wife and concubines and a thousand of his lords.

2. Behavior thereat (vv. 3, 4). (1) They drank wine; they engaged in revelry. (2) They committed sacrilege. In their drunken revelry they drank wine out of the sacred vessels which had been taken out of the temple, of the house of God, which was at Jerusalem. When men are under the influence of intoxicating liquors they lose all regard for sacred things. (3) They worshiped idols. They prayed to gods of gold and of silver, of brass, of iron, wood and stone.

II. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-16).

1. The time of (v. 5). It occurred in the same hour in which they were engaged in their drunken revelry.

2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). He was greatly disturbed; he was seized with consternation. "The joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another."

3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-16). (1) He called forth astrologers and soothsayers, offering rewards of gold and position (v. 7-9). Their utter inability to interpret the writing left the king even worse perplexed. (2) Daniel brought at the suggestion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen here was perhaps the wife of Nebuchadnezzar who remembered Daniel's service in interpreting his dream. For that reason he was sent for and promised great reward.

III. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28).

1. Daniel's address to the king (vv. 17-24). He brushes aside his promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gifts.

2. The interpretation of the writing (vv. 25-28). (1) "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 26). "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it." (2) "Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting." (3) "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28). "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

IV. The Judgment Executed (vv. 29-31).

In that night was Belshazzar slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom.

The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. So we may interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the times of the Gentiles and as adumbrating the prevailing conditions. Let us note:

1. The stupidity of men. They, like people today, would not learn by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar from such frivolity.

2. The magnificent splendor. This great feast was characterized by pomp, display, parade. How characteristic of this age!

3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury today are on every hand.

4. Licentiousness. The king with his wives and concubines. This is notoriously prevalent today.

5. Blasphemous sacrilege. And may not the sacrilege of today be in excess of theirs, expressing itself in (1) a profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political preferment; (2) use of the pulpit and of the ministry for designs and [illegible], even for the propagation of [illegible]; (3) uniting with the church, attending the communion [illegible] secret sins; (4) the [illegible] of God to give [illegible] denying that the [illegible] making it a book of [illegible] and legends; (5) [illegible] repudiating [illegible] and getting [illegible]

[illegible] handwriting is on the wall. [illegible] head. Are you ready?

[illegible]

5¢

Had Your Iron Today?

Delicious Hot-Day Lunch

BEST lunch is two packages of Little Sun-Maid Raisins and a glass of milk.

Tastes good when you're hungry.

Nourishes yet keeps you cool.

Raisin's 75 per cent fruit sugar is in practically predigested form, furnishing 1560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound.

Doesn't tax digestion so doesn't heat the blood, yet energizes almost immediately.

Big men eat little lunches to conserve their thinking power. Don't overeat and lag behind the leaders. Get two packages of Little Sun-Maids now.

Little Sun-Maids

Between-Meal Raisins

5c Everywhere

—in Little Red Packages

Dye's Peculiar Property.

It seems probable that the discovery of a new dye by a British concern will have an important influence on the dyeing industry, for this dye has the peculiar property of coloring artificial-silk fabric without affecting cotton. Should a mixed fabric of cotton and silk be dipped in this dye, the silk will take the color. The cotton in the fabric may then be colored by washing in a dye that affects only cotton. This combined dyeing makes it possible to produce a parti-colored effect in mixed fabrics after they are woven.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Gentlemen are necessarily conceited because a gentleman never forgets himself.

Many a man wedded to his art is repenting at leisure.

Brief and Effective.

In early days of Vermont, when marriages were solemnized without getting a license, one bitter midnight, 29 degrees below zero, a couple called the squire to the window. Shivering, in his nightshirt, he asked:

"What in h—l do you want?"

"We want to be married."

"Be married and be d—d," and he slammed the window down.

This is probably the shortest wedding ceremony that coupled legal accuracy with the religious prayer.—From Off the Record.

Affection before marriage is often overdone, but after marriage it is often rare

If a man has never made an ass of himself, it is probably because Nature beat him to it.

What Is It Worth to Change a Tire?

On the road changing a tire is not an especially pleasant task.

The dust or mud, the grease and grime, the tedious delay—all are things we like to avoid.

But the time to think about these things is when you buy the tire—not after the blow-out occurs.

For some tires blow out much more easily than others.

Outward appearance counts for little.

It is the material in the tire and the construction of it that determines its strength.

Goodyear recognizes these facts and all Goodyear Tires are made of long staple cotton.

Take the 30 x 3½ Cross Rib Clincher Tire here illustrated, for example.

It is made of Arizona cotton, the fibres of which average 1⅝ inches long.

Many 30 x 3½ clincher tires are made of short staple cotton from ½ inch to 1⅛ inches long.

This means less strength and greater danger of blow-outs—more tire troubles.

Yet this high-grade guaranteed Goodyear Tire sells only $13.95.

You can buy some tires for even less than this but none with the fine materials and construction of this one.

Can you afford to take a chance on more frequent tire troubles for the sake of the slightly lower price of cheaper tires?

GOODYEAR

10c Saves Need Buying a New Shirt

[illegible]

JULY

L 912

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

CHAPTER XVII—Continued.

—19—

The snow was still falling quietly into the dark lake, and the squatter, with a throb at his heart, caught the thread of light at the edge of the window blind of his home. Then his Pollyop was still up.

"Cover your horses and wait here," directed Percival to the driver. Then to Hopkins he said: "As I told you, sir, your daughter's suffered frightfully. Poor girl, I am afraid, if you appeared without warning, the shock would be too much for her. Do as we agreed in town, and go to Bishop's shack until I come for you. I'll tell her you and the boy are home."

A long sigh slipped from the squatter's lips. He desired to rush in and hold his girl-brat to his overwrought heart. He had heard with suppressed emotion Robert's tale of his Pollyop's trials, and now as he recollected them, he could scarcely restrain himself. Yet he realized the young man was right, so, pulling the child's bowed legs around his neck, he faded stolidly into the falling snow.

Inside the hut Polly Hopkins was seated, tensely silent, her slender fingers clasped togother about her knees. Suddenly she heard voices other than the low hum of MacKenzie's questions and Evelyn's sobbing answers in the coop-hole.

She arose slowly, ready to spring at Larry Bishop or Lye Braeger if they appeared at the door. To send them away instantly was the decision that she made as she saw the latch lift and the door slowly swing in. A figure she recognized with startled eyes stepped across the threshold; she sat down, but was up again before he spoke.

The man she had so longed to see had come again. But now he was here, she did not dare let him stay a moment. Marcus MacKenzie might come out of the coop-hole even before she could send the newcomer away. While he was pressing his great coat collar down over his shoulders, she tiptoed to him and with uplifted hand whispered:

"Hush! Go away! Go away quick!" Making a backward gesture, she added: "There's some one in the coop-hole I don't want you to see."

His errand having completely left his mind, Robert, after a moment of startled inspection, stopped stiffly by the door. The resentment and jealousy he had nursed so long flared into active life and licked him like flames. Clothes such as she wore had never been paid for with squatter money! She was beautiful! So much his eyes told him, but he knew she was not honest!

She had said there was some one in the——

He fixed her with stern eyes and then shoved her aside.

"I'm going to see who he is," he snapped.

Polly's fingers caught him as he tried to pass her.

"No, you can't go in there," she cried. "Please don't do it."

The sound of their voices brought Marcus MacKenzie out into the kitchen in one stride. He halted at the sight of the squatter girl hanging desperately to Robert's arm. An exclamation broke from him; and with one wrench Percival was free and was at him.

"So it's you!" he said in a tone that told Polly Hopkins what was in his mind. "Damn you, you hypocrite——"

His voice broke off, and he brushed his eyes across with shaking fingers. There behind Marcus in the coop-hole doorway was his pale cousin.

"Evelyn!" he gasped thickly. "God, what's this all about? Every one of you look as if—as if——"

Bewildered and overcome, he could not finish his sentence.

Marcus had caught Evelyn to him; and Pollyop, tearlessly ashamed, had sunk into the big chair to hide the finery which she knew had brought the hurt into Robert's eyes. She wished she was clothed in daddy's boots and her own calico dress!

"Shut the door, Bob," Marcus ordered as calmly as he could.

Mechanically Robert did as he was bidden. When he turned again, Marcus was seated, with Evelyn clinging to him, and Pollyop's face was covered by one arm.

Evelyn began to cry weakly.

"Bob, dear," she broke out, looking up at her cousin with streaming eyes, "Pollyop's been so good to me."

That sounded to Polly as if some one else were to be punished for the night's work.

"No, I ain't," she protested, lifting her head. "I was awful bad! I were the only one to blame. I hated every one of you. Let me tell all of you about it!"

She began at the beginning and re- [illegible]

"I thought I could kill 'er, sir," she added, raising streaming eyes, "but —when daddy's coat fell down, an' the big mammy an' Granny Hope smiled at me, I quit hatin' you an' wantin' to kill your woman."

She struggled up and moving to the wall, leaned against "The Greatest Mother in the World" as if she, too, would add herself to the vast family of hurt ones.

Every one of her words was directed to MacKenzie.

"Then I'm to understand," he asked slowly, "that you deliberately took my wife away to kill her?"

"But she didn't, Marc," interjected Evelyn.

Marcus made a wide gesture with one arm.

"Hush, Eve," he muttered. "I want to hear what Miss Hopkins has to say."

"Yep, I took her," trailed on Polly, "an' I meant to croak her, too, an' throw 'er in the lake. Just to get even with you, sir."

"Then why didn't you do it?" demanded Marcus.

Pollyop threw a short glance at the other man, standing white and silent. She cleared her throat, and leaned only the harder against the wall.

"On a sudden," she continued, as if eager to finish her tale, "I somehow remembered everything Granny Hope learned me when she was in the shack here. She always said, mister, when you was devilish enough to snake a squatter from the Silent City"—Polly paused and coughed, then preceeded in the dead silence: "Granny said you was the image and likeness of the good God up in the sky an' a brother to Jesus, the same as us squatters. But I said I didn't ever want to fly away to God if He looked like you!"

Leaving the wall she came forward and hurried on: "An' I meant it them times, an' much more after you railroaded my daddy and swiped Jerry away from me."

Marcus placed his wife in the chair and stood up. He started to speak to Pollyop; but Evelyn's cry caused him to turn swiftly. The drabness of her face startled him.

"Marc! Robert!" she said. "I can't go back home until I've told you something. No, Marc, don't stop me. I will talk. Now, listen! Oh, honey!" This appeal was to her husband who had laid his fingers on her shoulder. "Won't you hold my hand while I tell it?"

Much moved, Marcus did as she requested. His firm clasp seemed to encourage Evelyn, and she went on:

"Darling, I've always been—dreadful to—to Polly Hopkins, and—and she's been an angel to me."

She was going to tell it all, raged through Polly's mind. Was she going to bring to light her relations with the dead Oscar? Old Marc would never forgive it! Thinking more now of the baby coming next summer to the almost incoherent woman than of her own happiness, Pollyop made a movement as if to contradict the statement; but Evelyn's impetuous rush of words halted her.

"No, Polly, I'm going to put things right now, even if Marc leaves me tonight," she declared, clearing her throat. "Robert, dear boy, I lied to you. I lied to Polly and to you, Marcus. Oscar Bennett wasn't Polly's sweetheart at all. He—he was my husband!"

MacKenzie stiffened, but did not drop the cold fingers he held; and Evelyn wept bitterly, unable to go on.

A horse whinnied outside; but in the shanty no sound could be heard save the hysterical sobbing of Evelyn.

It seemed to Robert as if he must shake from his cousin the rest of the dark story, so impatient was he to hear it.

"Then—then when you came, my—my beloved," Evelyn raised her tired eyes to her husband, "I tried to get rid of him. I did my best to get Polly Hopkins to promise she'd marry Oscar after he had freed me. I wanted to get him out of the country!"

Unwilling to spare herself the least humiliation, she ended in piteous confusion: "I was glad when I knew he was dead."

"Then how did he die?" came swiftly from MacKenzie.

"Oh, just as the doctor told you, Marc, dear," replied Evelyn. "He was struck by lightning and died from the shock. I was free then, and—and I made Polly swear over and over again she'd never tell any one! And—and I gave her the silk dress she wore that day in the Auburn car. I—I—lied about that, too. But, Marc, dear love, I knew you hated her and—"

Robert bounded to his feet as the girl's words trailed away into silence. [illegible] tended to forgive his unhappy wife or not.

But Percival did not wait to find out. He sprang to the door, jerked it open and closed it behind with a bang. In fact, he did not even see Evelyn slip quietly into a faint, or Marcus snatch her into his arms as if he never intended to let her go.

It was only Polly who heard the passionate love words that came from lips that had so often flung oaths at her and her people. She watched Marcus dully, her heart aching and her muscles rigid with pain. Robert had not believed what Evelyn had said! He had gone away without a word to her! Of course, then, he did not love her any more!

Unnoticed by the MacKenzies, Polly Hopkins sat very quiet, while Evelyn, who had regained consciousness, was clinging to her husband's neck and listening to his assurances that she was forgiven. Then suddenly, through the low rumble of Marcus' voice and the sighs and sobs of Evelyn, Pollyop heard a shrill squatter call. She rose slowly to her feet and stood rooted to the spot. The voice that had sounded was high, childish, like Wee Jerry's.

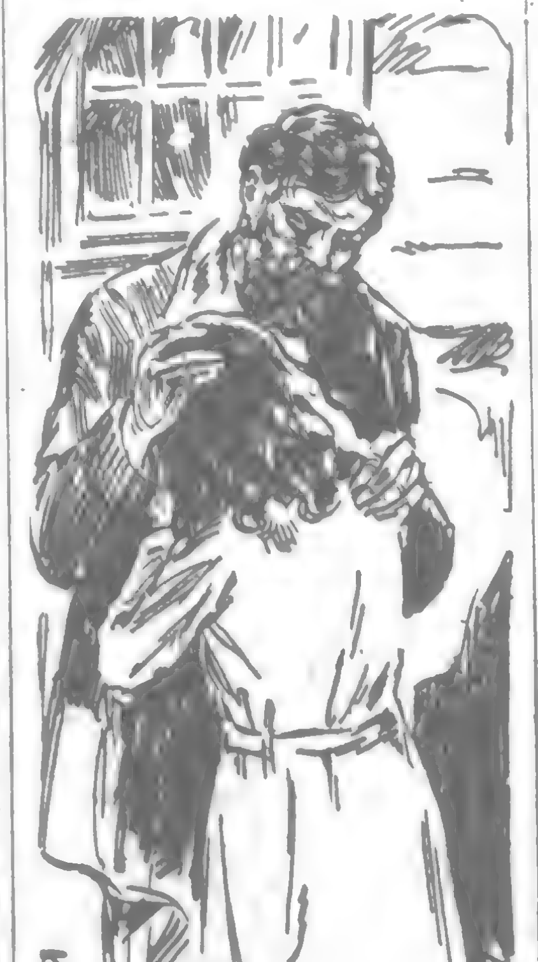
With the superstition of her kind, Polly was overcome by a great fear. Jerry was dying alone in a place of strangers! His little spirit had called to her in the grief of its going! She cast a glance at the man and the woman. They were wholly enveloped in themselves and paid no attention to the plaintive wail that broke from her lips. She struggled to the door and opened it, and there—right before her startled eyes—was Daddy Hopkins, with Jerry astraddle his neck.

"Daddy!" came in one bewildered cry from her shaking lips.

Then they faded from her vision, and the brown eyes yielded to semi-consciousness, and semi-consciousness was lost in complete oblivion.

When Polly Hopkins again lifted her lids, she was surrounded by a group of people whom at first she did not recognize. Then Daddy Hopkins detached himself from the rest. He was seated very near her. That was nice, indeed! she thought dimly. She must have dreamed that Old Marc had sent him to prison. Wee Jerry was cuddled at her side. Then he, too, had never gone away!

What brought full remembrance to her was the sight of Larry Bishop leaning against the wall at the foot of the bed. He was looking at her with tear-filled eyes, his cracked lips working painfully.



She Was in the Big Squatter's Outstretched Arms in a Twinkling, Weeping Against His Breast.

"Larry," she cried, struggling up.

It was Marcus MacKenzie that shoved himself in beside Jeremiah and bent over her.

"Larry didn't do it, Daddy; I did," she moaned. "Please, Mr. MacKenzie, please, believe me!"

She crawled wearily into Jeremiah's arms and hugged his bushy head.

"Oh, Daddy Hopkins, I got to go—to—to jail. I been—a wicked—bad—"

She was straining so to finish that Robert Percival was no longer able to keep quiet. He stepped forward so that Polly saw him over Daddy's shoulder. She glared at him wildly.

"Tell 'em—oh—tell 'em," she shuddered.

The tears in his eyes softened her expression.

"It's like you to feel sorry for me, sir!" She winced. "An' gettin' Daddy an' Wee Jerry back is like you, too. Every day I'm in jail I'll be prayin' you'll be happy." She strangled at the memory of Old Marc's words, "I'll get you next, huzzy!"

Then Robert, stung with remorse at his disbelief in her, picked her out of her father's arms. When he had placed her in a chair, he said:

"Polly, darling, we've heard the whole story from—from—"

He looked toward Larry Bishop, stumbling as if he did not remember his name.

"And we've forgotten it, too," MacKenzie boomed in. "Yesterday it wouldn't have been any great loss if my whole family had been sunk in the lake. We were all more wicked than any one in the Silent City. But tonight it's different!"

Polly straightened up, her eyes brilliant with questioning.

"Really," she asked, "does he— [illegible] for my life [illegible]

She was in the big squatter's outstretched arms in a twinkling, weeping against his breast.

"This night's work," said MacKenzie, moved almost beyond speech, "won't pass outside the few who know it. And Polly—look up, child. I want to tell you something."

In silence she dared a timid glance at him.

"While you—you were—asleep—just now, Mr. Percival and I made arrangements with your father to give him work," MacKenzie told her. "Does that please you?"

"Awful much," she sighed; then she turned and looked at Bishop, standing against the wall.

"What about Larry?" she murmured softly. "Poor, poor Larry."

"I'll help him, too," Marcus agreed eagerly.

Polly cogitated one small moment.

"There's Lye Braeger," she sighed again. "He ain't got many friends, Lye ain't!"

MacKenzie's laugh sent a sense of relief over the gloomy group.

"Then Lye Braeger, too," he exclaimed, "and any other squatter who wants to work."

Pollyop, overwhelmed with this generosity, stood up before him, curls showering each shoulder and framing her lovely, eager face.

"I guess mebbe you were an angel all the time, like Granny Hope said once," she said shyly. "I'm thankin' you, sir, an' I—I'm hopin' the little one God's sendin' in the summer'll look just like—like"—a smile touched her lips—"just like Jerry," she ended.

Because she was so simply natural, MacKenzie replied solemnly:

"If my child looks as much like me as Jerry looks like his father, I'll be satisfied."

Then he hurried his wife away, offering to carry Robert home with them.

"No, sir," said that young man stoutly. "I've got to talk to Polly Hopkins."

"I'm goin' now, too," grunted Larry Bishop. "Got to go an' see Lye Braeger. He's sick in bed with a stummick ache. Good night, Poll! See you tomorrow, Jerry Hopkins."

He made a gesture of farewell to Robert; and Pollyop went to the door with him. There she brought a wry, twitching smile to his lips by throwing her arms about his neck and kissing him.

"It's all right now, Larry, dear!" she whispered. "Good-by."

When she turned slowly to Robert, her face was suffused with crimson blood.

"Ain't your horses gettin' cold, sir?" she queried. "It's worse outside than when you came!"

Jeremiah blinked at them, went to the cot and picked up the drowsy baby. To hide his embarrassment, he seated himself and rocked the child back and forth. He was almost afraid of his beautiful daughter, dressed so unlike herself, her hair hanging in glistening curls over Evelyn Robertson's exquisite clothes.

"The horses are well covered, Polly," answered Robert. "I'll make it worth the driver's while to wait a bit."

Then unable to bear the strain any longer, he burst out:

"Darling, can you ever forgive me?"

She gave him one melting glance and like a fluttering bird sped into his arms and stayed there. And thus the two young things, with nothing between them and long stretches of happiness, clung to each other until the tinkle-tinkle of the MacKenzie sleigh bells was lost in the night.

Then the squatter girl, disengaging herself from her sweetheart's arms, went to her father.

"Daddy," she breathed, bending over him, "ever since I mended the roof that day—the same day Old Marc came home, I've been lovin'"—she reached back her hand, and Robert clasped it, "I've been lovin'—" Choking, she could get no farther in that important explanation.

Robert stepped beside her, and rested his hand on the down-bent head. He knew now that though she was a squatter, one of the despised of the earth, he loved her better than the whole world.

"It's just like Granny Hope said, Daddy," Pollyop went on, the velvety brown softening the misty eyes. "She said, Granny Hope did, that love's bigger an' better'n hate any day. An' it's true, ain't it?"

"Yep," nodded Hopkins, smoothing her face with one great hand. "I guess so, brat!"

"It sure is," added Robert in her ear.

Then he looked at Jeremiah.

"May I have her some day, sir?" he asked in reverent tones. "I'll make her so happy you won't regret it."

Jeremiah's big frame shook, and Pollyop, ever devoted to him, kissed him tenderly.

"I'll never leave you, Daddy darlin', precious old Daddy," she cried. "Mebbe—" She looked up at the tall man standing by her. "Mebbe," she repeated, "you'd take Jerry an' Daddy too, huh? They're awful good an' never get in anybody's way."

"And Jerry and your father too, my darling," laughed Robert, in an outburst of happiness. "I can have your little girl, Mr. Hopkins, can't I?"

"Yep," whispered Jeremiah, sighing heavily.

Then while Robert was bidding Polly good-night, Jeremiah, with a faraway look upon his face, gathered the bow-legged child closer to him and rocked him gently to and fro.

(THE END.)

[illegible]

USE TRACTOR ON TRIP TO CANADA

Party of Settlers From United States on Way to the Land of Big Crops.

Settlers on their way to and through Canada do not always rely on the railroads for transportation. Here, for instance, is a photograph of a party from one of the northern states on the way to their new home near Lake Winnepegosis, Manitoba. They were a sturdy, self-reliant lot and carried with them a full complement of farm machinery. With the tractor outfit they intended to commence rather extensive operations this spring on the land which their scouts had already inspected and reported on favorably as to its productiveness.

At almost every point on the Canadian border where there are located means for admitting settlers, the reports are that it is almost a daily occurrence to admit settlers from states as far off as Texas who have adopted the automobile as a means to carry themselves and their families to the country of their choice. Such settlers are bound to succeed. Some of them go two or three hundred miles inland, and select their homes in the park districts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Others purchase improved and unimproved farms in the more thickly settled districts in the southerly and central parts of these provinces. Wherever they may go, they are certain to secure land of certain possibilities. They will see grain crops of high value, wheat that will produce from 20 to 40 bushels per acre, oats giving high yields, barley a certain producer, and grass and fodder in quantity and quality that will satisfy them that the cattle and stock raising possibilities are fully as good as they have been told.

The reports from all parts of Western Canada at the present time fully bear out the most optimistic expectations and hopes of the early days of seeding. Evidence of the splendid growth of this year is the fact that alfalfa was cut on the 15th of June and yielded nearly two tons to the acre.

Corn planted on the 23rd of May, on the 5th of June was showing several inches about the ground, and making glad the heart of the farmer who had built his silo, which he hoped to fill in the latter days of August.—Advertisement.

The Golden State.

California has 99,617,280 acres of land, of which 18,417,643 are national forest, 20,239,977 are unappropriated public lands, 463,041 are Indian reservation, 745,798 are school lands, 4,555,941 are private timber holdings, and 27,931,444 are farms, with an approximately equal area classified as miscellaneous. Of the farm lands only 11,889,894 acres are improved, and of this but 3,893,000 are irrigated.

YOU CAN WALK IN COMFORT
If you Shake Into Your Shoes some ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the Antiseptic, Healing powder for shoes that pinch or feet that ache. It takes the friction from the shoe and gives relief to corns and bunions, hot, tired, sweating, swollen feet. Ladies can wear shoes one size smaller by shaking Allen's Foot=Ease in each shoe.—Advertisement.

In the Last Place.

Mrs. Nagg—I never should have married you in the first place!

Nagg—But, my dear, I—er—always understand that you did it in the—er—last place!—New York Sun.

Fresh, sweet, white, dainty clothes for baby, if you use Red Cross Ball Blue. Never streaks or injures them. All good grocers sell it.—Advertisement.

The Joke Market.

"You think culture is on the decline?" "Yes, we get very few jokes out of relativity."

Less homage to the past; more faith in the future.

Presence of mind leads to safety.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

In New York city and vicinity a total of 5,000 golf enthusiasts have secured permits to play on the public courses.

* * *

Trotting has gained a hold in Serbia, and an international stake event will be held soon. The purse is 100,000 dinars.

* * *

New York university will go in for soccer, wrestling, lacrosse and swimming, all of which were recently added to its program of activities.

Skin Tortured Babies Sleep
Mothers Rest
After Cuticura
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

Your Hair [illegible]

Story of the World War.

We are a united nation now.

Here is a story told Memorial day:

"Are the Yanks coming?" asked a little girl in France.

"Yes, child," replied the colonel, "the Yanks are coming."

It was a Tennessee regiment.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

There may be plenty of room at the top, but victims of that tired feeling never reach it.

Pat. Process
Lloyd LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept. E
Menominee, Michigan (16)

The golf course is something that must be attained by some men at all hazards.

* * *

If Ananias had lived it would be rather amusing to hear him talk about his golf score.

* * *

The aspect in Genoa may suggest to Jack Dempsey that his place is back on this side.

* * *

London would have welcomed Dempsey as a fighter much more cordially back in 1917 or 1918.

* * *

J. T. Witherspoon of New Orleans has been elected captain of Princeton's 150-pound varsity crew.

* * *

Kinjo Ikeda, the Hawaiian wrestler, is said to be a nifty grappler. Anyway, he has a fine name for a "rassler."

SELDOM SEE a big knee like this, but your horse may have a bunch or bruise on his ankle, hock, stifle, knee or throat.
ABSORBINE
will clean it off without laying up the horse. No blister, no hair gone. Concentrated—only a few drops required at an application. $2.50 per bottle delivered. Describe your case for special instructions, and Book 8 A free.
W. F. YOUNG, Inc. 310 Temple St. Springfield, Mass.

Write for Newspapers and Magazines—Experience unneces. Earn $50 to $[illegible] month spare time. Details free. Write today. National Syndicate, 719—1269 Broadway, N. Y.

AGENTS sell [illegible] Inc., 1202 [illegible]

[illegible]

Bake Your Own

Are you still buying bread?
Why Not Bake And Save Money?
Try COUNTRY MAID flour
It Gives SATISFACTION

We are in the market for
OLD and NEW WHEAT
We will pay $1.05 for Good Old Wheat
Is Your SALT Order In Yet?

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.
G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Ind.

Better than Pills

YOU WILL NEVER wish to take another dose of pills after having once used Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easier and more pleasant to take, more gentle and mild in their action and more reliable. They leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by severe constipation, requiring a constant increase in the dose. Every bottle guaranteed by your druggist.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS

Patronize the advertisers.

F. H. Langley and wife spent the latter part of the week at Toledo.

Edgar Lysher began work Monday for Kenneth Provines of near Auburn.

Harry Randall, wife and son of Ottawa, Ohio, spent Sunday in St. Joe.

Miss Margaret Tustison, of Springfield, Ohio, is here visiting her grandmother for a few days.

The dredge in Cedar creek is making fine progress, and are now back of the saw mill.

Mr. and Mrs J. M. Riding arrived Tuesday from Chicago, at the Mrs. Warner home, having made the trip by auto.

Lea, Maxine and Woodrow Hart, of Fort Wayne, came Saturday evening to visit their grandparents, Sam Kees and wife.

Mrs. C. Curie returned home Monday evening after five weeks visit with relatives in and around Orville, Ohio.

Don't let that miserable tired feeling become a habit. Get rid of it today by taking Tanlac. Sold at the Sheffer Drug Store.

Subscribe for the NEWS. Patronize the Advertisers.

Mr. H. W. Northup who has been bedfast since April, 10, is very much improved and will soon be able to be out.

Mrs. Lenore Kagey, of Warsaw, spent Tuesday here visiting friends and attending to her business affairs.

Lost: Ruby set from lady's ring. Lost Thursday night, probably on Main Street, St. Joe. Finder please call at News office or see Mrs. Waldo Rosenbury.

Mrs. Iva Tyler and daughter Dorine returned to their home at Ligonier, Saturday after two weeks visit with William Randall and wife who accompanied them home and remained until Sunday.

A new storage building is being built on the Standard Oil grounds which is to be 24 ft.x24 ft. This is much larger than the old one which is far too small for the business handled by Mr. Miser, the local agent.

Next Sunday the colored people from Garrett will be at Mt. Pleasant, furnishing music for Sunday School and the morning services and an entertainment in the afternoon. There will be a basket dinner in the basement. Everybody is invited.

Fred Hart and wife entertained at Sunday dinner, Meade Baker and wife, Abner Trostel, wife and son, Dale, and Harold Waltz. Sam Keesler and family and Walter Keesler and wife of St Joe, were afternoon callers.

The William Maxwell Sunday School class of Coburn's Corners Church, held a potluck dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reed Place, Sunday. A large number were present and a fine social time enjoyed. Wilmot Coburn and wife will entertain the next meeting of the class in four weeks.

The Mt. Pleasant Christian Endeavor Society held their annual election last Sunday with the following selections: Pres., Roscoe Wilson; Vice pres., Mrs. Ray Krafft; Secy., Mrs. George Keller; Asst Secy., Evelyn Knight; Pianist, Mrs. Vera Rosenbury; Chorister, Ray Krafft.

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kinsey entertained in honor of their thirtieth wedding anniversary the following guests at dinner, George Jenkins and wife of Spencerville, Kenneth Jenkins and family of Auburn, Walter Kinsey and wife of Jackson, Mich., John D. Willett and family of Hicksville, H. L. Kinsey and family of Fremont. Afternoon callers were Harry Jenkins and family of Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenkins of Auburn.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Sam Keesler, wife and children spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hart.

The Coburns Corners Ladies Aid will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Hart.

There are a number of lots and corners in this town that are far from being pleasing to the eye. Come on folks, clean up.

Jacob Baker, Alvah Coburn, Mrs. Matie Gee and son Fred spent Sunday at Auburn, guests of Mrs. Anna Franks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hickman had as recent dinner guests the former's brother, E. H. Hickman and nephew, Jarard Walker, of Hicksville.

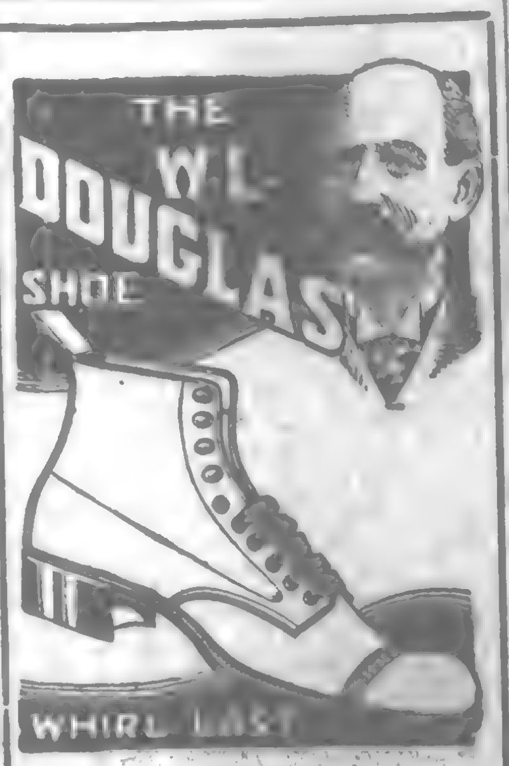
Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway and sons Clayton and Russell, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bishop.

Mrs. Craig Sheffer had as Friday dinner guests Mrs. Audra Haskins and Miss Algia Walker, of Hicksville, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henley and children spent Sunday and Sunday night at Roanoke, guests of his son, Ray Henley and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Epler, of Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Erickson and sons, of Garrett, were Sunday guests of the ladies' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee and daughter Mildred and Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jackson at Hicksville.



THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Notice of Administration

Cause 2622.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administratrix of the Estate of George W. Cook, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. COOK,
Administratrix.

July 5, 1922.
W. Mortimer Cole.
Attorney.

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwall, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State bank at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on June 30, 1922.

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts	$139,638 32
Overdrafts	115 48
U. S. Bonds	1 [illegible]
Banking House	3,[illegible]
Furniture and fixtures	3,126 18
Due from Banks and Trust companies	27 [illegible]
Cash on Hand	4,[illegible]
Current Expenses	1,[illegible]
Taxes Paid	[illegible]
Interest Paid	[illegible]
Total Resources	[illegible]

LIABILITIES

[illegible]

5½% Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA

In China a woman has, for centuries, had the choice of keeping her maiden name after marriage.

The Martha society of the Christian Church will hold a bake sale at Mrs. Berry's Cream Station, Saturday forenoon, July, 15, at 8:30.

Mr. and Mrs. William Turcott of Rock Island, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Onts and son Raymond and Mrs. Charles Ernst all of Tiffin, O., were guests of their uncle and aunt, J. R. Culbertson and wife from Friday until Monday. They came to attend the Baltz reunion which was held Sunday at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. David Knisely in Allen county.

A Low Mark

The lowest price ever paid for land in Decatur county figured in the sale recently of a farm, near Greensburg, when 260 acres sold for $3,120 at public auction. A 13-room house is situated on the farm. The bidding started at $10 an acre. The auctioneer worked hard to obtain higher bids and finally interested a buyer to the extent of offering $12 an acre for the land and improvements. The land old was assessed for taxation at about $4,000.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation.

Sold by all druggists.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE
Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

BISHOP-McBRIDE Company

AUBURN, INDIANA
QUALITY MERCHANDISE

OUR JULY
CLEARANCE SALE
ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT JULY 15

50c values; 2½ yards sheeting............$1.00
59c " ; 2½ yards............1.29
65c " ; 2½ yards............1.49
69c " ; 2½ yards............1.59
1,500 yds. 36 in. unbleached muslin; 15c values 10 yards............1.24
1,000 yards 36 in. unbleached muslin, 18c values 10 yards............[illegible]
1,000 yards 36 inch bleached muslin, 20c values 10 yards............1.78

[illegible]

SUITS — SUITS — SUITS

We have assorted our suits to sell at these prices; [illegible]

[illegible]

We want to move our [illegible] at this time. We have marked them very low

[illegible]

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE. - IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, July 21, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO"
NEW YORK

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1922 — No. 29

EVERYTHING TO WEAR

FOR

MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men $12.00 $15.00 $16.50

Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00

Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75

Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6

Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5

Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1

Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

NEW WHEAT

Will soon be moving. We are ready to take care of the crop. The highest market prices paid at all times.

FEED

Bran and Middlings.
Tankage and other feeds.

FLOUR

Auburn and Nappanee

COAL

Place your orders now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Establish YOUR CREDIT

You would not expect a perfect stranger to give you much of an accomodation in a financial way. You would not ask him for a loan. You would not expect it of a banker who knew nothing of your affairs unless you could give security. But if you had done business with a banker and proven to his satisfaction that you are careful and trustworthy you could probably get an accomodation for a short time without security.

If you open a checking account at this bank we will be able to get a better opinion as to your financial methods and financial standing. As you handle your checking account in prosperous times you will handle your borrowed money in hard times. We will be in a position to extend accomodations to you when you are in need of them. [illegible] with us.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Six Passenger Trains Annul'ed

Four more Baltimore & Ohio passenger trains have been temporarily annuled. This makes a total of six to be temporarily taken out of service during the past week.

No. 37 and No. 38 on the west half of the Chicago division from Garrett to Chicago were taken off last Friday. No. 37 is a local passenger train west bound, scheduled to leave Garrett at 12 o'clock noon No. 38 reaches Garrett from Chicago at 11:50 a. m., and Garrett is the terminal.

The trains affected by the second order are Nos. 10, 7, 15 and 16 Trains 10 and 16 are east bound and Nos. 7 and 15 are west bound.

With the exception of train No. 7, the annulled trains made their last trip through Garrett Sunday. Train No. 7 made its last trip Monday. However the annulment of none of these effected St. Joe except No. 7 which would stop only for Chicago passengers. No. 37 east of Garrett is yet running.

The cause for the temporary annulment of the trains was given by Baltimore & Ohio officials as the shortage of coal. They say that by taking off all trains that can possibly be spared from the service, the supply of coal will last longer. All commercial coal except that being shipped to public utilities, is being confiscated by the railroad companies, it is said.

Valuation Of Personal Property Reduced

Placed at $1,136,630 by The Board of Review

The assesaments put in record of the County Board of Review Thursday, show a depression of $400,000, or 15 per cent in the value of the personal property of corporations, excepting railroads and banks, in DeKalb County. These corporations were taxed on a valuation of $2,662,880 last year. The amount is $2,261,670 this year. The railroads and banks are assessed by the State Board of tax Commissioners, the Garrett shops and the equipment of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad excepted.

The assessment of the Auburn Auto Company is as much as all the county corporations combined. This company has a reduction of $228,870 this year.

The next biggest assessment is that of the Garrett railroad shops, with an increase of $10,000 this year.

Double Fabric Tire Company was assessed with a cut of $4,440 this year.

The Auburn Post Card Manufacturing Company is reduced $5,630.

The Butler Company, of Butler, is reduced $11,320.

Sterling Sales Company weathered off $33,050.

The assessment of the Nathan Grain Elevator, St. Joe, building is $2,000 stock $8,790; Farmers Cooperative Milling Company, St. Joe, building and stock $3,200; Steward Elevator, Spencerville, building $6,000, stock $1,000.

Married at Bryan, Ohio

Mr. Earl B. Smith of St. Joe, and Miss [illegible] of Edon, Ohio, were married on Wednesday, July, 12, at Bryan, Ohio, by Rev. [illegible]. They were accompanied to Bryan by [illegible] and Miss [illegible] Fetters, of [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Smith spent the [illegible] on a trip to [illegible]

[illegible]

Newville Chautauqua August 13 to 20

The following program has been arranged for the Eighth Newville Rural Chautauqua to be held in the Newville U. B. church August 13-20, 1922.

Sunday, August 13—Visiting teachers from surrounding towns will have charge of the Sunday school, and Dr. Pace of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will give three addresses—morning, afternoon and evenng. Basket dinner will be served in the church basement.

August 14—Mac's Melody Men of Kendallville, one of the best musical organizations in Northern Indiana. will furnish the evening's entertainment.

August 15—Attorney C. C. Carlin of Angola, will give an address upon "The Book Eternal."

August 16—Prof. George C. Enders of Defiance, Ohio, will speak upon "Nothing."

August 17—Stephen A. Haboush, a native of Galilee, will appear in native costume and talk upon the habits, maners and customs of his native land. He will also play and sing the airs of that country.

August 18—The Harmony Four, a colored quartet, with their colored pianist, from Fort Wayne, will provide fun and music for the entire evening.

August 19—Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger of Upland, Ind., will speak upon "The Stranger in Our Midst."

August 20—Rev. S. E. Long, Bible instructor in Indiana university, will deliver three addresses as follows:

Morning—"The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scriptures."

Afternoon—"The Greatest Question of the Age."

Evening—"The Gospel of Another Chance."

Visiting teachers will have charge of the Sunday school on this day also, and the Mennonite Quartet from Berne, Ind., will furnish the music for the entire day. Basket dinner in church basement. The two Sundays will be all day sessions, and the remainder of the week evening sessions.

To Lecture At College

The Rev. W. H. Branford, pastor of the Hicksville Methodist church. who delivered an address here at the last Concord Township Sunday School Convention and one on last Memorial Day, has been engaged to give a series of lectures, pertaining to the life service of the Epworth League organisation, at the Miami Institute of southern Ohio.

The official board of the local church granted the Rev. Mr. Bransford a two week's vacation. A portion of this time he will spend at the Northern Ohio Epworth League Institute at Lakeside.

The finance committee of this church recommended the increase in salary for the coming conference year from $2,000 to $2,200.

This Probably Never Happened

It is recorded that a certain tire dealer wrote to the factory from which he had been doing business and ordered a carload of merchandise. The factory wired:

"Can't ship your order until last consignment is paid for."

To which the dealer replied:

"Unable to wait so long. Cancel the order."

Probably The Smallest

What is believed to be the smallest baby ever born in Richland county arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gages, farmers living near Mansfield. The baby weighed one pound and seven ounces [illegible]

[illegible]

C. C. Woodcox — V. F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-

Boost St. Joe

THE GOOD MAXWELL

A Car You Will Be Proud To Drive

Read The Locals

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY

THE

-New Perfection-

Oil Cook Stoves and Ranges

WITH THE

SUPERFEX BURNER

ARE THE BEST

Let us demonstrate this New SUPERFEX Burner to you. It is a wonderful improvement ---makes the heat of a gas stove. It is more convenient.

The New Perfection is used in over 4,000,000 homes today.

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Series Of Eight Baby Conferences

Eight baby conferences have been arranged by Julia Groscup, county visiting nurse, to be held in various parts of DeKalb county during July and August.

A resident physician from each locality where the conference is held, will be in attendance to examine babies for the correction of physical defects and to advise mothers on the care of infants.

The schedule of conferences as prepared by Miss Groscup is as follows

[illegible] July 20.
[illegible] July 22.
[illegible] July 26.
[illegible] July 27.
[illegible]

Hicksville Man Takes His Own Life

Thought to have been worried because of ill health, Frank Snyder, 65, retired horseman, stock buyer, farmer and prominent resident of Hicksville, committed suicide by hanging himself it the barn at his home there Tuesday morning. The body was found by Mrs. Snyder shortly after 11 o'clock, hanging by a rope tied to a rafter in the roof of the barn.

Mr. Snyder had been prominent in horse racing circles, and was known as a driver of more than ordinary ability. He has been a member of the village council, was at one time a candidate for county [illegible] on the [illegible]

JULY

Z 912

SOIL-IMPROVING CROP FOR USE IN PECAN ORCHARDS IS NEEDED

Typical Field Specimens of Native Pecans Growing in Southern Indiana.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many important problems in growing and marketing pecans are confronting the growers.

Until recently the most experienced growers of pecans have considered the cowpea to be an excellent summer cover crop for use in their orchards, but, says the United States Department of Agriculture, it has been found that this crop is a favorite host plant or crop for the southern green plant-bug or "stink bug" which attacks the immature nuts and by perforating the soft shell with its proboscis, reaches and injures the tender kernel. With the subsequent growth and development of the nuts there arise at the points of perforation definite areas of deadened tissue in the kernel, possessing a bitter or acrid taste, and commonly designated as "kernel spot." Large quantities of the finest nuts were greatly reduced in consequence. A substitute soil-improving crop for growing in pecan orchards is therefore needed. Among the promising things are beggarweed, bush velvet bean and soy bean. So far as is known the beggarweed is not a host plant for the bug and the bush velvet bean and the soy bean are not supposed to be attacked by this insect. Bush velvet beans are increasing in popularity as a cover crop in this section and may be the solution of the problem. As yet, there is little practical experience in determining the suitability of these cover crops in pecan orchards and their efficiency in controlling the "stink bug." Orchardists who use either bush velvet beans or soy beans as cover crops should carefully inspect their crops at the end of the season to determine whether the percentage of nuts with kernel spot is satisfactorily reduced on the areas in which these crops are grown in comparison with the same variety where no cover crops are used. These are important problems on which the growers themselves can assist in securing trustworthy information.

Plan to Destroy "Stink Bug."

It has been suggested that the "stink bug" feeds only on seed pods. If this is true, crops, such as the velvet bean, which are late in maturing seed pods, could be grown for a summer cover crop and turned under or cut up with disk harrows in early October before the pecan is ready to harvest. In this way the insect probably would be destroyed and the ground left in good condition for the nut harvest. Growers and experimenters are expecting to obtain valuable information on these crops during the coming season.

Another important problem is that of unproductive orchards. Some of these orchards were planted on very poor soil, and for the worst of these the only apparent alternative is that of abandonment. Other orchards do not produce well because the trees were planted too close together, and are now badly crowded. For these it appears that the most effective remedy would be that of removing the alternate trees, pruning those remaining, and of improving the fertility of the soil. For orchards composed of seedling trees, or inferior varieties, top-working is the solution.

To Build Up Industry.

In large outlying districts within the pecan range, yet beyond the limits of successful culture of southern varieties, the question is how to build up the orcharding industry, and how to extend its range. In regions to which the species is indigenous the first question is that of finding new varieties suitable for planting. The native forest and field specimens should be examined for trees bearing desirable nuts in sufficient quantity to be profitable. Scions from such trees should be used for top-working the inferior seedlings. Small wild seedlings can be worked over to desirable sorts by customary nursery methods. Some common mistakes made in attempting to top-work trees are: Using those that are too old; cutting off branches that are too large; pruning too severely at the outset, thus attempting to do too much in a single season; top-working trees planted too close together, and top-working trees standing in out-of-the-way places where it will never be possible to give them good care.

The development of the nut-cracking industry should help the pecan into a 12 months of the year market, and give employment to labor during otherwise idle months.

The kernels of the pecan contain a large percentage of oil which is quite as sensitive to temperature changes as is butter. In order that the shelled meats, as well as the unshelled nuts, may be kept in prime condition for the longest possible period, it is necessary that the nuts be well dried before they are packed or barreled for shipment, and that the product be kept in a cool and well-ventilated place during the winter months. As soon as warm weather begins these products should be placed in cold storage at a temperature between 30 and 36 degrees. In the shelling of nuts there is considerable waste in the form of shells and broken meats. Growers and handlers are trying to find uses for these products, such as fertilizer, tanning material and fuel.

POISON BAITS WILL KILL OFF CUTWORMS

White Arsenic or Paris Green Will Prove Efficient.

Insects Are Especially Fond of Tomatoes, Cabbage, Lettuce and Other Vegetables—They Are Voracious Feeders.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cutworms can readily be controlled by the use of poisoned bait, the United States Department of Agriculture has demonstrated. This is the way to prepare and apply the poison:

To one bushel of dry bran add one pound of white arsenic or paris green, and mix thoroughly into a mash with four gallons of water, in which has been stirred one-half gallon of sorghum or other cheap molasses. This amount will be sufficient to treat four or five acres of cultivated crops. After the mash has stood for several hours scatter it in lumps of about the size of a marble over the fields where the injury is beginning to appear. Put it about the bases of the plants which have been set out. Apply the mash late in the day, so as to have the poison in place around the plants before night, when the cutworms are active. Apply a second time if necessary.

Cutworms destroy hundreds of thousands, even millions of dollars' worth of crops every year throughout the United States. They especially attack tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce and other vegetables that have been [illegible]

[illegible]

MAKING BROWN ALFALFA HAY

Very Similar to Silage and Some Feeders Think It Is Superior to Green as Feed.

Ordinary field-cured alfalfa hay is a bright green color, but sometimes when moisture conditions are right, stack curing results in a brown or black hay that is very similar to silage. It has a pleasant odor, is very palatable to live stock, and some feeders think it is superior to green hay in feeding value. This kind of hay results from putting up the alfalfa when it is more or less green. Most of it is the result of accident rather than intent, as definite efforts to make it have generally resulted in failure and a great deal of loss. Certain conditions, however, are essential in making brown hay. It should be put up in good-sized stacks, as it molds and chars to such an extent in small loose stacks that it is not fit for feed.

From reports that have been collected from different alfalfa-growing areas, the United States Department of Agriculture concludes that good brown alfalfa hay is equal or somewhat superior in palatability to good field-cured hay, but not superior to it in feeding value. The method of making would be important could it be depended upon for saving hay in climates where there is so much rainfall that it is difficult to cure the hay in the field. Because of danger from spontaneous combustion it is not advisable to try to make brown hay in barns or mows.

COLLEGES TEACH [illegible]

Many [illegible]

[illegible]

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

PROTEST REOPENING OF HAY-GRAIN CASE

Traffic Manager Hutchings Endeavoring to Save Shippers Huge Sum of $6,000,000.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is protesting against the reopening of the Western Hay and Grain case before the interstate commerce commission. The petition asking that the coarse grain differential be eliminated in the territory west of the Mississippi river and east of El Paso and Denver was filed May 5 by the carriers. The coarse grain differential involves approximately $6,000,000 and it is this amount that the American Farm Bureau Federation is trying to save the shippers of hay and grain.

It is the position of the American Farm Bureau Federation that rates on coarse grain were generally lower than on wheat throughout this territory prior to federal control, and that the commission's decision restored the old relationship. The case involved the entire situation with regard to the rates on grain and the commission established reasonable rates as it might properly do in such a hearing. Although the commission has reopened for hearing on this very question the case in so far as it relates to Mountain-Pacific territory, conditions are entirely different there than between the Mississippi river and Colorado.

At a recent conference in Kansas City representatives of every state railroad commission in the territory involved except North Dakota, and also representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association, and the Kansas City board of trade were present. After this conference Traffic Manager C. B. Hutchings of the American Farm Bureau Federation sent the following telegram to Chairman McChord of the interstate commerce commission:

C. B. Hutchings, Traffic Manager, American Farm Bureau Federation.

"American Farm Bureau Federation respectfully protests against reopening Western Grain and Hay case in accordance with carrier's petition filed May 5. Conditions requiring lower rates on coarse grain than on wheat fully covered at original hearing. Conditions in corn belt entirely different from those in Mountain-Pacific group."

SHIP CREAM CO-OPERATIVELY

Farmers in Various Parts of Ohio Establish Stations to Handle Dairy Product.

The number of co-operative cream-shipping stations in Ohio is increasing, according to reports from the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. Within the last few months farmers in various sections of the state have established stations at more than 60 places. Most of these were initiated by the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

The procedure has been for the farmers to hire a local station operator who tests and grades the cream and ships it to a creamery in a nearby section. The local or district organization representing a group of local units, through a sales committee, bargains with the creameries for the whole membership. Thus the creameries are being assured of a given volume and the farmers have a stable market.

More than 50 stations are located in the Toledo trade territory and several are operating in the region of Cincinnati.

WILL PITCH SHOES IN IOWA

Champions From All Sections of Country to Compete in Games at Des Moines Fair.

[illegible]

PROFIT ON WHEAT EXPORTS

Federal Trade Commission Submits First Part of Its Report on Grain Investigation.

The federal trade commission submitted to the senate on May 16 the first part of its report on the Ladd resolution calling for an investigation of the export grain trade. The report shows that the average profit on wheat exports for 1920 was 8 cents per bushel, but in 1921 it was cut approximately 96 per cent—to one-third of 1 cent per bushel. The commission declared that the bulk of the grain exported is controlled by "a comparatively small number of concerns." The three groups which were cited as being especially important in the exporting business are the Gary-Rosenbaum interests, the Rosenbaum-Armour interests and the Barnes-Ames interests. In 1921, eight concerns (closely affiliated) exported more than 50 per cent of the total of 345,000,000 bushels.

The Ladd resolution was introduced at the instance of the American Farm Bureau Federation and was passed on December 22, 1921. Anyone desiring a complete report of the federal trade commission on the export grain trade should write to his senator in Washington.

WOULD STOP TRAFFIC LEAKS

Michigan State Farm Bureau Retains Attorney to Protect Interests of Its Members.

The Michigan state farm bureau will take an increasingly active interest in the solution of Michigan's agricultural transportation problems, according to action taken recently by the state board of directors in retaining Mr. E. L. Ewing of Grand Rapids, one of the leading traffic attorneys in the state, to represent the bureau at all state and federal railroad commission hearings in which the farm bureau is interested.

Mr. Ewing recently conducted the Michigan Traffic league's case before the Michigan public utilities commission and representatives of the interstate commerce commission. The state farm bureau intervened in this case and through Mr. Ewing presented the most powerful and complete agricultural testimony that has ever been presented in behalf of agriculture at a Michigan hearing. Forty able farmer witnesses and their representatives testified. Twenty-seven out of fifty sets of traffic statistics presented by the manufacturers, city shippers and farmers were agricultural statistics.

WILL VOTE ON SHIP SUBSIDY

Members of Iowa Farm Bureau Federation Given Chance to Express Their Opinions.

Through the medium of a state-wide referendum members of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation will be given an opportunity to express their opinions on the ship subsidy which is now under consideration by congress. Farm bureau meetings will be called in every township in the state, about seventeen hundred in number. The various provisions and requirements of the bill will be explained, after which a vote will be taken and the result sent to federation headquarters in Des Moines.

Much propaganda has been circulated in Iowa setting forth the benefits it is believed might accrue to the nation from a ship subsidy, but little or nothing in regard to the actual provisions of the bill itself. The farmers want to know just what the bill proposes to do and what it will cost the government to carry it on. The federation's policy is to make everything clear to the individual member in order that he may think it out and settle it for himself.

CHICAGO TERMINAL MANAGER

Mr. S. W. Doty, Formerly of Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Selected as New Chief.

S. W. Doty has been selected as manager of the Chicago Producers' Commission association, organized under the plan of the National Live Stock Producers' association, to sell live stock co-operatively at the world's largest terminal. Mr. Doty comes to Chicago from the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, where he has been assistant in the live stock marketing department. Before that, he was employed in a similar capacity by the Illinois Agricultural association. Dr. Doty had his commission house experience with Clay, Robinson & Co., at the Chicago yards and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the industry. He was at one time connected with the bureau of markets office in Chicago.

COMMODITY PLAN IS WANTED

Missouri and [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED ROADS

GOOD ROAD SAVES MILLIONS

Men With Tools Enabled to Reach Threatened Break in Levee and Stop Rising Waters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A federal-aid road has just been completed in Arkansas which has already saved millions of dollars to the community in which it is built. Recently during high water in the Mississippi word came to Helena, Ark., that the levee at Old Town, 17 miles away, was about to break. The situation was critical. A few hours' delay and thousands of acres of rich farming land would be flooded, and possibly many lives lost. Helena was the only source of aid, and many men with tools and material were needed. Every available motor vehicle was pressed into service and over 600 men, properly equipped for the work, were in a short time speeding over the new road to save the levee. They arrived in the nick of time and by almost superhuman efforts dammed back the rising waters. Residents say that had it been necessary to make the trip over the old road the levee could not have been reached in time and that the workers would have needed boats rather than motor vehicles.

LOWER BIDS FOR ROAD WORK

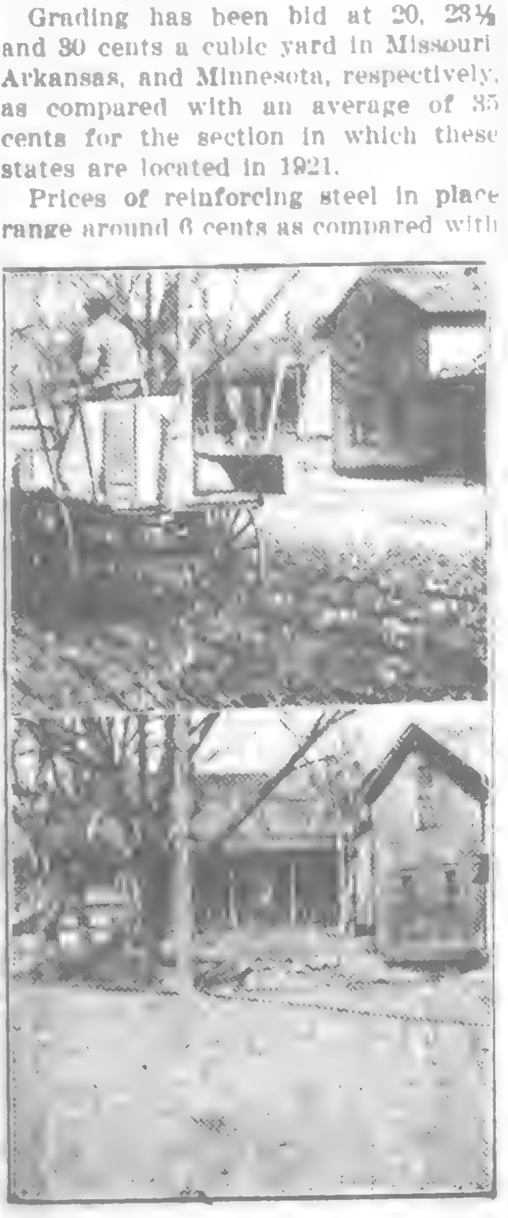
Indications Are That Prices This Year Will Be Materially Reduced Over Last Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Early bids for the construction of federal-aid roads indicate that prices during the present season will be materially lower than last season, according to reports received by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. While bids have not been received on any large volume of work, there is, however, enough to indicate a lower level of prices.

Grading has been bid at 20, 23½ and 30 cents a cubic yard in Missouri, Arkansas, and Minnesota, respectively, as compared with an average of 35 cents for the section in which these states are located in 1921.

Prices of reinforcing steel in place range around 6 cents as compared with the 1921 price of 8 or 9 cents and bridge steel at 4½ cents against 7 to 8 cents.



A Street in Kendallville, Ind., Before and After Being Improved.

A few bids, for the best grade of concrete, of about $17 a cubic yard have been received in sections where the 1921 price was about $25.

Prices bid for the construction of concrete roads per square yard are as follows: Ohio $1.52, Colorado $2.27, and Georgia $1.88, as compared with an average for the whole country during the period 1916-1920 of $2.57 a square yard.

CANVAS TO PROTECT ROADS

Seven Million Square Yards Being Distributed to Various State Highway Departments.

Seven million square yards of canvas duck received by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, as surplus war material, is now being distributed to state highway departments for use in road construction. A great quantity of the material will be used to protect concrete roads from the sun while they are being cured and to protect from rain cement piled ready for use on the roads. It will also be used as [illegible] for road construction gangs, roofs for temporary storage houses and [illegible], and to cover road machinery.

Road Building Workers.

[illegible]

SUCH PAINS AS THIS WOMAN HAD

Two Months Could Not Turn in Bed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health

Seattle, Washington.—"I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped."—Mrs. G. RICHARDSON, 4640 Orcas St., Seattle, Washington.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything any one told me" had failed.

If you are suffering from pain, nervousness and are always tired; if you are low spirited and good for nothing, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may not only relieve the present distress, but prevent the development of more serious trouble.

DON'T DESPAIR

If you are troubled with pains or aches; feel tired; have headache, indigestion, insomnia; painful passage of urine, you will find relief in

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles and National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Cuticura Soap SHAVES Without Mug

Cuticura Soap is the favorite for safety razor shaving.

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair 60c. and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Fable for Collegians.

He had hung his pin—long, dim ages ago. He had completed the payments on the ring. He was marrying the most wonderful girl in school.

On the eve of his wedding he wondered how things would be a year from that night. He wondered if she would still love him, if he would be as crazy about her.

Time has a way of going by. Another year came—the anniversary of that night. And they were still as crazy about each other.

You see, they hadn't been married yet.—Harold Swanson in Judge.

Classifying Him.

"Wombat is a scrapper."

"Wants a big navy?"

"No, wants to scrap it."

A young woman wins with smiles, an older one re-enforces them with compliments.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

FARMERS ARE WORKING HARDER

[illegible]

RADIO

CHANGE POTENTIAL TO OBTAIN SIGNALS

Way in Which This May Be Done With Three-Electrode Vacuum Tube.

For every filament current there is a definite plate potential that will give the strongest signals. When using fairly hard tubes—high vacuum—bringing out taps from the individual cells of the plate of "B" battery will give variations that are fine enough.

For very soft, gaseous tubes, low vacuum, a finer regulation of "B" battery potential is required and is most easily obtained by means of an "A" battery potentiometer. Fig. 14 shows how an "A" battery potentiometer is connected in the circuit of a three-electrode vacuum tube to give fine variations in the plate circuit potential. The resistance of an "A" battery potentiometer should be between 200 and 500 ohms. By moving the slider on the "A" battery potentiometer a variation of plate voltage equal to the "A" battery, or about six volts, can be secured. If the tube contains gas, too high a plate voltage will cause the tube to "buck-over"—that is, the gas is ionized and becomes a conductor, allowing an excessive current to flow to the plate circuit which will destroy the elements.

In using a vacuum tube circuit for the first time, always check the circuit to see that "A" and "B" batteries are connected to their respective terminals on the socket. The markings on the socket are plain and cannot be mistaken. Interchanging the plate filament leads in connecting a socket will be disastrous to the life of the filament.

Note that the filament rheostat is set to place the maximum amount of resistance in series with the filament. After inserting the tube see that it is properly seated and that the four prongs protruding from the tube base make good contact with their respective contacts in the tube socket.

If, after listening in with a vacuum tube used as a detector with a rated filament current and plate potential, no signals are heard, go over the circuit carefully and inspect all connections, contacts, polarity of both the "A" and "B" batteries, and take a look at the grid condenser and leak.

A three-electrode vacuum tube can be substituted for the crystal as a detector in the simple radio receiving set described in this column a short time ago. Using a vacuum tube in place of a crystal detector will give a much louder signal, and a detector that when once adjusted will stay adjusted. The material which will be required to do this is as follows:

One standard vacuum socket.

One 6-10-ohm filament rheostat.

One grid condenser and leak combined.

Three binding posts.

A source of filament current and a source of plate potential.

Schematically the set is connected up as shown in Fig. 15 when used with a three-electrode tube as a detector.

This set, too, can be very conveniently mounted on an 8 by 10-inch base, mounting the tube socket with the filament rheostat beside it.

In a great many of the usual receiving circuits used the so-called detector tube functions not only as a detector, but as an amplifier and as an oscillator, as will be explained later.

There will also be printed a table of symbols used in drawing diagrams and thus the different parts and materials used in these diagrams will be readily understood by those who are unfamiliar with these terms.

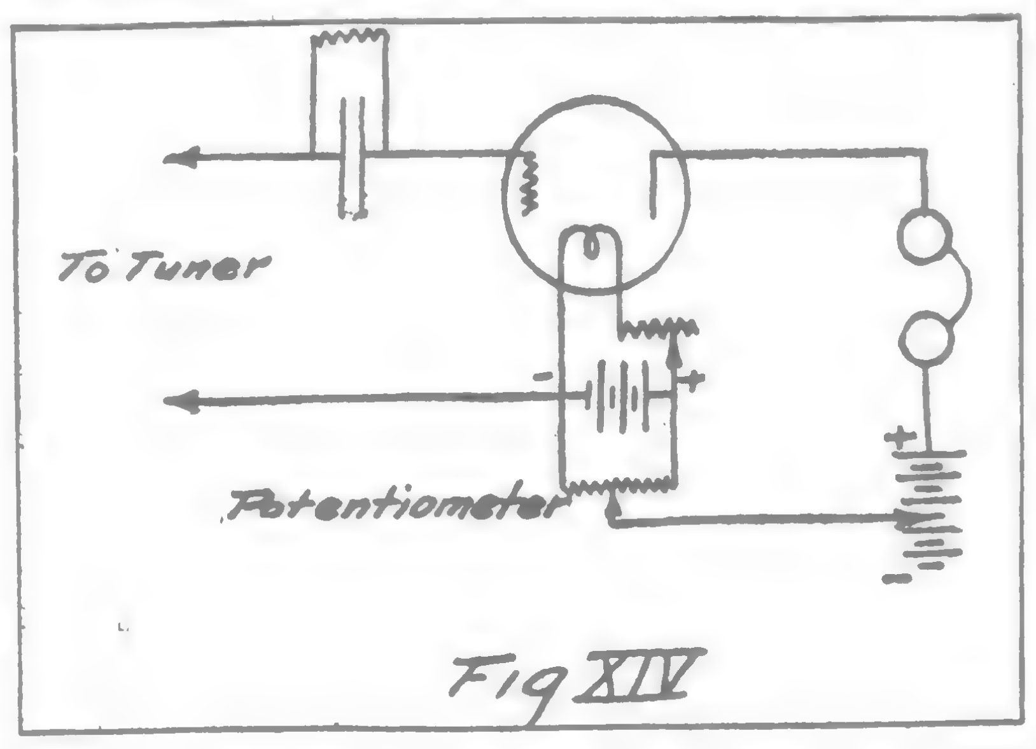


Fig XIV

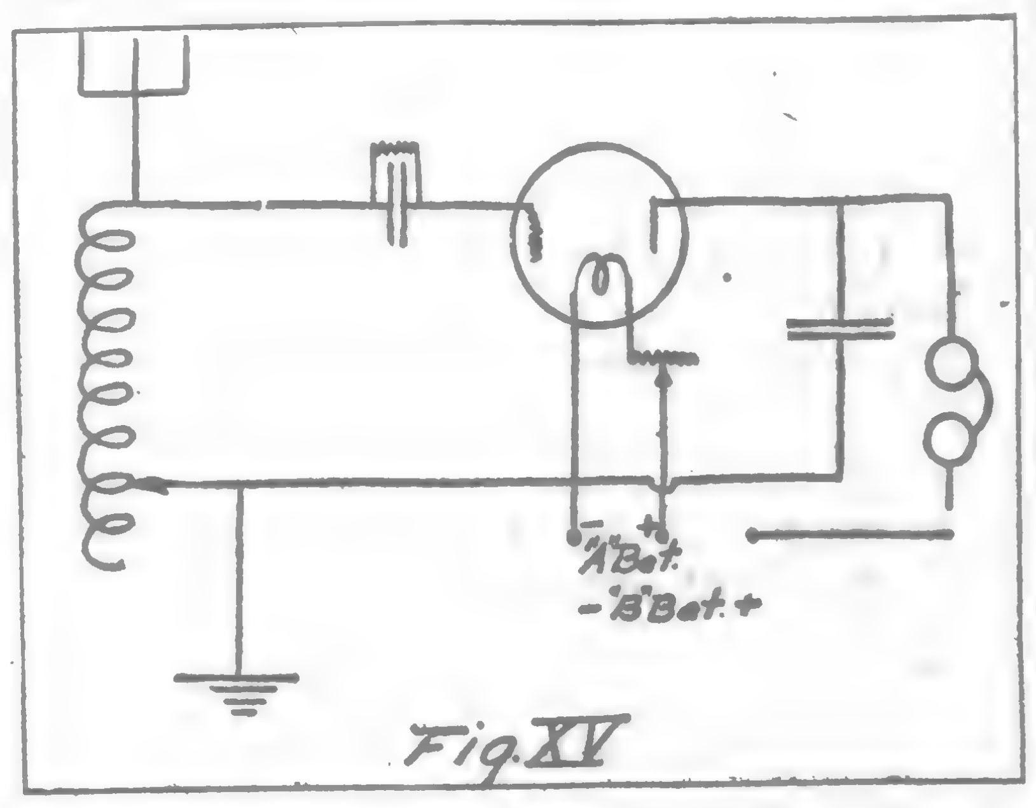

Fig. XV

SUN DUST IS A "RADIO NET"

London Professor Evolves Novel Theory of the Atmospheric Envelope.

Electrified dust thrown off by the sun forms an atmospheric envelope about the earth about 100 miles which prevents wireless waves from escaping into infinite space, according to Prof. J. A. Fleming, University college, London, whose work in wireless is known all over the world.

The screen made by the dust, he says, acts as a sort of wireless speaking tube and enables waves used for long-distance work—which are about ten miles in length—to travel 6,000 and 12,000 miles.

If it were not for that screen, according to the professor's theory, the wireless energy thrown out by the big sending towers would not cling to the earth, but would pass away and be lost.

How Big Is an Electron?

One very noteworthy experiment in measuring an electron was performed by an American, Professor Millikan of Chicago. He introduced a minute drop of oil of about 1-10,000th inch in diameter in a chamber between two plates whose electrical charge was subject to control. The drop of oil was [illegible]

TIPS FOR FANS

A meeting of representatives of stations within 360 meters of New York and New Jersey was called to prevent radio "jam" in the air. Some of the sweet things that come through must have gummed up the ether.

For use across the secondary of a tuner, such as the honeycomb coils, use a condenser of twenty-three plates or less. The less capacity used in the secondary circuit, the better will the set work.

If, after wiring up a set, you hear nothing but a steady hum in the receivers, you may be very sure that there is an open circuit somewhere. Trace out the wiring carefully and some little fault will present itself.

The so-called "spaghetti" tubing, if placed over bare wire used in wiring a set, will improve the appearance 100 per cent and reduce the danger of short circuits.

More and more are the radio fans turning to radio-frequency amplification instead of audio-frequency. The chief reason for this lies in the fact that in radio-frequency [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JULY 23

DANIEL IN THE DEN OF LIONS

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 6:1-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions.—Heb. 11:33.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Jer. 36; Dan. 3; Acts 12:1-19; 23:12-35; Heb. 11:32-40.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Daniel.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Daniel in the Den of Lions.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Daniel's Heroic Faith.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Trials and Triumphs of Faith.

I. Daniel the Prime Minister of the Medo-Persian Empire (vv. 1-3).

Sterling worth brought him to the front and kept him there. The new king was keen to discern his worth and to give it recognition.

II. An Occasion Sought Against Daniel (vv. 4-9).

11. The reason for (v. 4). No doubt that which prompted this effort was their envy and jealousy. The presence of envy always shows inferiority. It is hard for the human heart to forgive those who excel.

2. Failure of (v. 4). Daniel's official record was blameless. They could not even find an error. Envy is still in the world. Those who excel in any line are sure to suffer in some way for their excellencies.

3. The wicked plot (vv. 5-9). They trumped up a charge on the ground of his foreign religion. They were not careful about their method, just so their end was attained. When surrounded by such hatred only the fear of God can save. Everyone needs that help daily. In spite of Daniel's loyalty the decree was signed by the king which would put him into the den of lions.

III. Daniel's Noble Confession (vv. 10-13).

Though Daniel knew that the wicked decree was signed he knelt before God as usual. Note the silence of heroism. Weak men bluster; strong men have little to say.

1. He continued his usual habit (v. 10). Regular habitual prayer is essential to right life. Habit has an important bearing upon life and especially upon our religious life. He knew that the civil law had absolutely nothing to do with his religion. God's law is first. When the laws of earth conflict with God's laws there is but one thing to do. Laws forbidding to read the Bible, to pray, or to meet to worship God, have no authority over men.

2. Daniel reported to the king (vv. 11-13). These wicked men watched to find out as to whether Daniel would pray before his God, and when they found that he continued his worship of the true God they went to the king and reported that Daniel disregarded his decree.

IV. The Foolish Decree Executed (vv. 14-17).

1. The king displeased with himself (v 14). He labored till the going down of the sun to deliver Daniel. He was conscious that he had been entrapped.

2. The king helpless (v. 15). The proud ruler found that he was a slave.

3. Daniel cast into the den of lions (v. 16). The king's parting word to Daniel was a poor, feeble excuse for his guilty conscience.

4. The Double Seal (v. 17). This double act shows that one rascal will not trust another.

V. Daniel Delivered (vv. 18-23).

1. Note the contrast between the night spent in the lion's den and the one in the palace. In the palace there was no sleep, no mirth. Daniel's quiet is as a picture of the safety and peace which are the portion of those who trust God and do His will.

2. The king's question in the morning (v. 20).

3. Daniel's answer (v. 22). God's angel has done many wonderful works. The early Christians despised bonds, stripes and death.

4. Daniel delivered (v. 23). No manner of hurt was found because he believed in his God.

VI. The Doom of His Accusers (v. 24).

They were cast into the den of lions and before they even came to the bottom of the den their bones were broken in pieces. This is an example of retribute justice. Daniel's enemies go into the same trap which they prepared for him.

VII. Darius' Decree (vv. 25-27).

Men were to tremble and fear before Daniel's God. As to whether Darius had a change of heart we do not know.

VIII. Daniel's Prosperity (v. 28).

Daniel goes higher into the kingdom and continues in his place of honor even though dynasties change.

[illegible]

All the great [illegible] of this globe [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

WHEN AUNT ABBY WAKED UP

Things Looked Pretty Blue for a Time, but When it Was All Over—But That's the Story

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

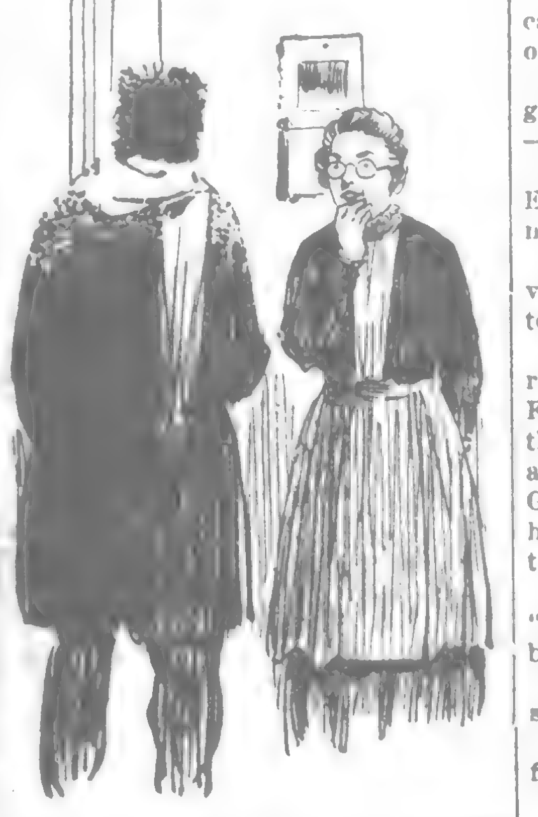
THE room was very still. The gaunt figure on the bed lay motionless save for a slight lifting of the chest at long intervals. The face was turned toward the wall, leaving a trail of thin gray hair-wisps across the pillow. Just outside the door two physicians talked together in low tones.

"If there could be something that would rouse her," murmured one; "something that would prick her will-power and goad it into action!

"I suppose you've thought of—her, her son?" inquired the other.

"Oh, yes. Jed was sent for long ago, but he had gone somewhere into the interior on a prospecting trip, and was very hard to reach. He has not been home for years, anyway, and the Nortons—James is Mrs. Darling's nephew—have been making all the capital they can out of it, and have been prejudicing her against him—quite unjustly, in my opinion, for I think it's nothing more nor less than thoughtlessness on the boy's part."

Back in the sick-room the old woman still lay motionless on the bed. She was wondering—and as she had wondered so often before—why it took so long to die. For days now she had been trying to die, decently and in order. Ella and Jim were very kind; but, after all they were not Jed, and Jed was away—hopelessly away. He did not even want to come back, so Ella and Jim said.



"Jim—Aunt Abby Sat Up 10 Minutes in Bed Today!"

There was the money, too. She did not like to think of the money.

They were talking now—Ella and Jim—out in the other room.

"You see," said Jim, "as long as I've got ter go ter town termorrer, anyhow, it seems a pity not ter do it all up at once. I could order the coffin an' the undertaker—it's only a question of a few hours, anyway, an' it seems such a pity ter make another trip—jest fer that!"

In the bedroom the old woman stirred suddenly.

A fierce anger sprang instantly into life.

"Jest fer that," Jim had said, and "that" was her death. It was not worth, it seemed, even an extra trip to town! And she had done so much—so much for those two out there!

"Let's see; terday's Monday," Jim went on. "We might fix the fun'ral for Saturday, I guess, an' I'll tell the folks at the store ter spread it. Puttin' it on Sat'day'll give us a leetle extry time if she shouldn't happen ter go soon's as we expect—though there ain't much fear o' that now, I guess, she's so low. An' it'll save me 'most half a day ter do it all up this trip.

It was snowing hard when Jim got back from town Tuesday night.

"Whew! It's a reg'lar blizzard," he began, but he stopped short at the expression on his wife's face. "Why, Ella!" he cried.

"Jim—Aunt Abby sat up ten minutes in bed terday. She called fer toast an' tea."

Jim dropped into a chair.

"But she—hank it all, Herrick's comin' termorrer with the coffin!"

"You hadn't been gone an hour 'fore she began to stir an' notice things," moaned Ella.

"Gosh!" groaned Jim. "Who'd 'a' thought it? 'Course 't ain't that I grudge the old lady's livin'," he added hurriedly, "but jest now it's so—unhandy, things bein' as they be."

It did not snow much through the night, but in the early morning it began with increased severity. [illegible]

[illegible] worth to get here. There won't be no goin' back yet awhile fer me nor no one else, I calc'late."

It was not without talk and a great deal of commotion that the untimely addition to James Norton's household effects was finally deposited in the darkened parlor. Jim, perspiring, red-faced, and palpably nervous, was passing on tiptoe through the sitting room when a quavering voice from the bed room brought him to a halt.

"Jim, is that you?"

"Yes, Aunt Abby."

"Who's come?"

Jim's face grew white, then red

"C-come?" he stammered.

"Yes, I heard a sleigh and voices. Who is it?"

"Why, jest—jest a man on—on business."

All day it snowed and all that night; nor did the dawn of Friday bring clear skies.

The sick woman was better.

At noon the sun came out, and the wind died into fitful gusts. The two men attacked the drifts with a will, and made a path to the gate. They even attempted to break out the road, and Herrick harnessed his horse and started for home; but he had not gone 10 rods before he was forced to turn back.

"'Tain't no use," he grumbled. "I calc'late I'm booked here till the crack o' doom!"

"An' termorrer's the fun'ral," groaned Jim. "An' I can't git nowhere—nowhere ter tell 'em not to come!"

Saturday dawned fair and cold. Early in the morning the casket was moved from the parlor to the attic.

It was almost two o'clock when loud voices and the crunch of heavy teams told that the road-breakers had come.

"I set ter work first thing on this road," said the man triumphantly to Ella as he stood, shovel in hand, at the door. "The parson's right behind an' there's a lot more behind him. Gorry! I was afraid I wouldn't git here in time, but the fun'ral wan't till two, was it?"

"There's a mistake," Ella said faintly. "There ain't no fun'ral. Aunt Abby's better."

The man stared, then he whistled softly.

Mrs. Darling heard the bells of the first arrival.

"I guess mebbe I'll git up an' set up a spell," she announced calmly to Ella. That's Parson Gerry's voice, an' I want ter se him."

"But, Aunt Abby——" began Ella feverishly.

"Well, I declare! if there ain't another sleigh drivin' in," cried the old woman excitedly, sitting up in bed and peering through the little window. "Must be they're givin' us a s'prise party. Now, hurry, Ella, an' git them slippers. I ain't a-goin' to lose none o' the fun!"

In state, in the big rocking-chair, the old woman received her guests.

One by one the days passed, and Jim and Ella ceased to tremble every time the old woman opened her lips. There was still that fearsome thing in the attic.

"If she should find out," Ella had said, "'twould be the end of the money—fer us."

"But she ain't a-goin' ter find out," Jim had retorted.

The "funeral" was a week old when Mrs. Darling came into the sitting-room one day, fully dressed.

"I put on all my clo's," she said smilingly, in answer to Ella's shocked exclamation. "I got restless, somehow, an' sick o' wrappers. Besides, I want to walk around the house a little." And she limped across the floor to the hall door.

"But, Aunt Abby, where ye goin' now?" faltered Ella.

"Jest up in the attic. I wanted ter see—" She stopped in apparent surprise.

Ella and Jim had sprung to their feet.

"But you mustn't!—you ain't strong enough!—you'll fall!—there's nothin' there!" they exclaimed wildly, talking both together and hurrying forward.

"Oh, I guess 'twon't kill me," said the old woman, and the hall door closed sharply behind her.

"It's all—up!" breathed Jim.

Fully fifteen minutes passed before the old woman came back.

"It's real pretty," she said. "I allers did like gray."

"Gray?" stammered Ella.

"Yes!—fer coffins, ye know." Jim made a sudden movement, and started to speak; but the old woman raised her hand. "You don't need ter say anything," she interposed cheerfully. "I jest wanted ter make sure where 'twas so I went up. You see, Jed's comin' home an' I thought he might [illegible] if he run onto it, casual like."

"Jed—comin' home!"

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE BUNNY BALL

"I heard about a nice party the other day," said Billie Brownie to his brother Bennie Brownie, "and I think it would be nice if we gave one like it."

"Almost any kind of a party would suit me," said Bennie.

"Shake on it," said Billie.

So they shook on it and hugged each other and threw their brown caps up in the air and shouted, "Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!"

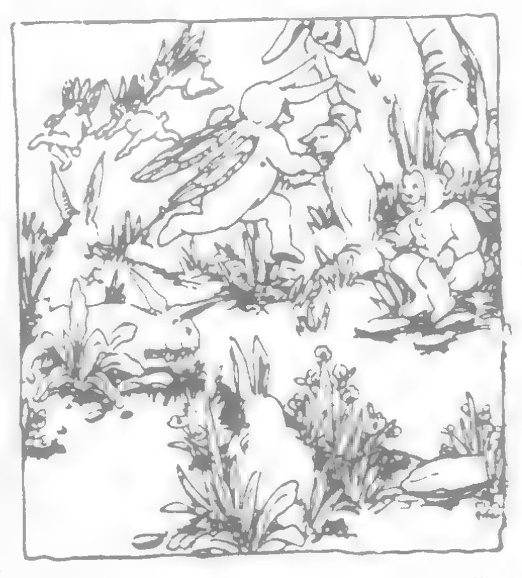
"Of course, I haven't the faintest idea what kind of a party you're thinking of now," said Bennie, "but I would be glad to hear. In fact you could truthfully say that I would be a ready listener to any plans."

"I heard of a party given by children," said Billie Brownie. "It was a fancy dress party and different groups of children came in different kinds of costumes.

"Some came as fairies and some as cupids carrying bows and arrows. Others came as brownies and looked ever so much as we do.

"But some of the others came as bunnies and how adorable they did look! They wore little white fuzzy costumes and they had great, huge pinkish white ears and out peeped their own cunning little faces.

"Oh, the bunnies were quite the most adorable of all! And they hopped about and tried to wiggle their noses and carried bunches of carrots.



"Well, They Do Look Like Us."

"Then they all danced. The bunnies danced with the fairies and the brownies danced with the cupids and now and again they changed partners. How nice it all was. The little fluffy skirts of the children-fairies were so dainty and pretty and many of them carried wands, too. But my idea is to have a bunny ball."

"I like the name of the party," said Bennie, as he nodded his head.

"So far so good then," said Billie.

"Pray continue to tell me of your plans," said Bennie. "I am very much interested."

"I thought it would be fun to have an enormous party of all our friends. We haven't had one in ever so long. We could invite all of the Fairies, the rest of the Brownies, of course, the Gnomes, the Bogey family, the Oaf family, the Elves, old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch."

"Yes, let's have them all," said Bennie, "and I will get the Ever-Willing family to help with the sandwiches."

"But, dear me, I haven't finished hearing your plans, Billie."

"I thought it would be fun to ask every one to come in a bunny costume. Don't you think it would be funny to see every one of our friends dressed as a bunny? Old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch and all?"

"A great idea, Billie, a great idea," said Bennie.

"And we could dance and play games and frolic and have a gorgeous supper afterward.

"But a bunny costume is so particularly attractive that I thought it would be nice to have an enormous ball of this sort.

"And everyone likes bunnies and would like to dress in such a costume, I'm sure. Well, let's call the Breeze Brothers and ask them to help us carry around the invitations."

So they called the Breeze Brothers and the invitations were sent out at once. That very evening they had the party. And every creature came dressed as a bunny. How gay and merry and frolicsome was Brownieland that night and everyone was so pleased to have had a wonderful party arranged for so quickly and as such a surprise.

No one minded getting ready in a hurry. In fact, that was part of the fun. And as the bunny ball was going on several little real bunnies peeped at the Brownies and Fairies and Elves and Oaf family and Bogey family and old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch as they danced and said, as they wiggled their noses,

"Well, they do look like us. There's no mistake about that!"

Correct.

"How do you parse 'Mary milked the cow'?" asked the school teacher.

"Cow is a noun, feminine gender, third person, singular number, and stands for Mary," replied Tommy [illegible].

"Stands for Mary!" exclaimed the teacher. "How do you make that [illegible]"

[illegible]

JULY

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Gasoline Takes Drop

According to a statement made by Ed Miser, the local Standard Oil Agent, the price of Standard gasoline declined two cents on the gallon, effective Wednesday morning. From other recent reports one would be impressed that the price of gasoline would be raised. Some of the other companies have declared that it was necessary to raise the price, but the Standard Oil Company have seen fit to reduce it. Other companies will probably follow suit in due time.

What God Says

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy.

Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work:

But the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gate:

For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	138	$20.56
M. P	72	4.58
Lutheran	86	4.86
M. E. Spencer	91	5.40
Lutheran	105	4.36
Newville U. B.	98	4.39
Christian	84	4.23
Coburntown
Concord	68	3.00
Rehoboth	91	5.13
Mt. Pleasant	134	6.08

Mary E. Todd, of Albion, who spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Margaret Ulm, returned home Tuesday.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $5000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows: [illegible] a month for five years. [illegible] a month for five years. $6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of [illegible] Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will [illegible]

[illegible]

E. E. BULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Obituary

MEANS

Margaret Elesta Carnahan, daughter of Bailey D. and Eliza Nelson Carnahan, was born September 19th, 1844 in Richland Co., Ohio, and departed this life July 15th, 1622, aged 77 years, 9 months, and 26 days.

At the age of ten years she, with her parents, came to this state and settled in Jackson township, DeKalb county, where the remaining part of her life was spent.

On January 24th, 1864, she was united in marriage to William Means, who preceded her to the better land April 6th, 1915. To this union were born five children, two sons and three daughters. One son, Newton Wilbur, departed this life at the age of six years. One daughter, Laura, wife of Rufus Strong, departed this life December 30, 1913. She leaves to mourn her departure one son, Loren, near St. Joe, and two daughters, Mrs. Cora Walters of Fort Wayne, and Olive, at home, four grandsons and two granddaughters, and two great grandsons, one brother, Milton, and one sister, Mrs. Maranda Maurer, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Early in life she accepted Christ as her Savior and united with the United Brethern Church at Hopewell, of which she has remained a faithful member until death came Through all her suffeaing in her last illness she recognized the hand of God and believed that all things would work together for good to those that love the Lord.

The funeral services were held from the Hopewell Church Tuesday at 10 o'clock a. m., Rev. Philips officiating. Interment at White City Cemetery at Spencerville. E. R. Kinsey funeral director.

Through all pain at time she'd smile
A smile of heavenly birth,
And when the angle called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casker keeps,
And sumbeams love to linger
Where our sainted mother sleeps.

The children desire to express sincere thanks for the kindness of their neighbors and friends during the sickness and bereavement of their beloved mother.

REINHART

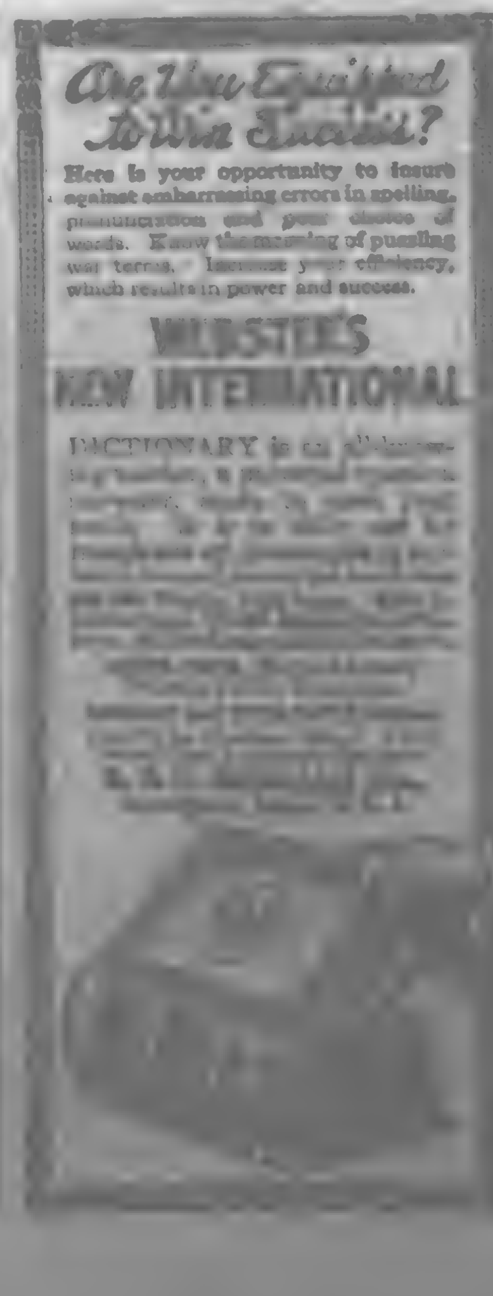
Augustus Reinhart was born in Kuhesen, Germany, December 25, 1849, and departed this life at his home south of Butler, July 8, 1922, at the age of 72 years, 6 months and 13 days.

He came to America with his parents at the age of 16 and settled in this county. He lived at his present home twenty-nine years. He was united in marriage to Margaret Deibner, May 1876. She with one son, Arkie, preceded him in death.

He joined the United Brethren church about the year 1887, and his faith remained with his Savior up to the time of his death. His dying testimony is known by the marking of his Bible, Psalms 28, 7-8, "Blessed be the Lord because he hath heard the voice of my supplications. The Lord is my strength and my shield, my heart trusted in Him and I am helped; therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise Him."

He leaves to mourn their loss, two sons, Ira and Almond, eight grandchildren, one brother, Jacob Reinhart, of Ashley, and many friends.

He was a good citizen and neighbor, and a kind father, and will be missed in the home and community. He lived in his home by the side of the road and was a friend of man.



Are You Equipped to Win Success?

Here is your opportunity to insure against embarrassing errors in spelling, pronunciation and poor choice of words. Know the meaning of puzzling war terms. Increase your efficiency, which results in power and success.

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY [illegible]

HERE AND THERE

The first public school for the blind was established in Paris in 1784.

Misses Beatrice and Constance Johnson, of Indianapolis, came Friday evening to visit in the home of their uncle, Dr. C. S. Johnson, for several weeks.

Lessie Meeks sold his new Ford sedan to Mr. Lanore Kagey, last Thursday. Mrs. Kagey drove it through to Warsaw the same afternoon.

In the preliminary hearing given Nie Sheffer, suspect of the murder of his brother, James Sheffer, and his sister-in-law, Cora Sheffer, on June 22, he was bound over to the grand jury for the October term of court and is held without bail.

The Executive Committee of the Old Settlers' Association of DeKalb county have met and arranged for the annual meeting to be held on Thursday, August 10, in Auburn. J. R. Bishop is the chairman of the program committee, and F. J. Nebuling is chairman of the publicity committee.

Albert Addis, living south of Albion, and collector of Indian relics, has added a new line of some 35 specimens to his already more than 4,000 specimens. Addis has one of the finest collections to be found any place. It was only recently he sold more than 4,000 relics to a large museum in New York and has again more valuable collections than formerly. Mr. Addis is an authority on Indian Pottery and stones.

Our annual strike bill would feed the starving world for which we are now collecting millions of dollars. It represents far less than one-half of what we should gain if we were to go on a just economic basis. Some people oppose the implications of "economic justice" because they think it will mean a decrease in wealth, a diminishing return, everybody doing with less in order that the poor may have a little more. That is most absurd. Economic justice would bring such an increase of wealth that the economic problem would practically disappear as a sore and change into an avenue of greater progress. Our strike bill represents our fines and penalties before the Court of the Eternal Justice for not being fair and just. The measure of our economic injustice is the measure of our net loss.

George Kagey was a St. Joe visitor Tuesday.

The sermon at the union services nexn Sunday evening will be delivered by Rev Mr. Brewster, pastor of the Spencerville M. E. church.

Mrs. Hugh Languwell, of Bloomington, came Monday night for a two week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Virginia Lawson, and other relatives.

Frank Scholes, our local contractor, has obtaineb the work of connecting the new surfacing of the city streets of Auburn, with the sewers. The job consists of putting in forty-one mainholes.

A Radio outfit has been installed in the Paul Curie home. At first a single line arial was put up which did not give satisfactory results. Tuesday a four wire arial was put up and the results are much better This is the first outfit to be installed in St. Joe, and much intereseed is attracted by it.

The following young people enjoyed a weiner and marshmallow roast at the home of Samuel Keesle Wednesday evening: the Misses Josephine and Esther Johnson, Juanita Kinsey, Eva Hughes, Martha Miser, Mary Armstron and Dorris Keesler, and the Messrs Charles Bassett, Homer Woodcox, Robert Johnson, Walter Brown, Charles Johnson, Arthur Todd of Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keesler.

Charles Saylor, of near Garrett, has been employed by the county commissioners as a speed cop for DeKalb County. For some time there has been too much fast driving over the highways of the county, resulting in many accidents. The new officer is to receive $5 per day for his services and he is to furnish his own motorcycle and expense for gasoline and oils. He will patrol the different country roads and make it a special point to visit the towns on the night of band concerts to watch that there is not such reckless driving. He has the power to make arrests of such offenders. It is believed that a big saving will be made by prohibiting fast and careless driving.

Will Hays is going to inspect the Hollywood movies. But his wife goes along.

"Why is your wife so jealous of your stenographer?"

"She used to be my stenographer."

American motorists paid an average annual license fee last year of about $10.50. The average in 1919 was less than $8.00.

Manufacturers Use Apple to Last Seed

The thoroughness with which the apple is now worked over and utilized by some manufacturers makes it comparable with the packing-house pig that leaves only a futile squeal. The apple is not transformed into such a variety of products as the pig, but all are useful, and when the last of the series has been made hardly a smell is left.

In many of the apple-using factories the apples are first pressed to produce cider, which may be sold as such or may be manufactured into vinegar. After thorough pressing the pomace is treated with hot water to remove the pectin, which, after purification, is sold in either liquid or solid form to manufacturers of jellies and similar products and to housewives. The much-washed and squeezed residue is dried, ground, and sold as cattle feed.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL AID

ANALYSIS OF CURRENT LESSON APPEARS REGULARLY IN THE NEWS

The International Sunday School Lessons which are appearing regularly in The News are prepared by Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D., teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, and are read, studied and appreciated by thousands of Bible students in all parts of the country, the lessons being syndicated to hundreds of papers.

These lessons are prepared from a non-sectarian point of view, and may be used by all attendants of all Sunday schools which use the uniform international texts.

The lessons are published in advance of the date of use, and therefore should be preserved when the paper comes. These lessons have been a big help to superintendents when the regular supply of leaflets has failed to arrive on time, and are especially appreciated by those who for any reason are unable to attend regularly.

The date of issue of the first edition of the Indiana Gazette, Indiana's first newspaper, at Vincennes, was probably on July 31, 1804. It was edited and published by Elihu Stout, of Virginia, a friend of the patriot, Patrick Henry.

The net railway operating income for the eleven months of 1921, ending with November, was about $563,000,000, and the net railway operating income for the twelve months on this same basis, taking what would be regarded as a normal earning for December on the same percentage basis as the earlier months, would be about $613,000,000 for the year.

Down On Carnivals

Judging from an article published in the Butler Weekly Record last week, that town has had its experience with street carnivals and are disgusted with them till they have declared that another will not be permitted to stay with them again.

Recently a company made a two weeks stay in Butler, in which time a lot of the littleness and evil of such a concern was portrayed. Its evil influences upon the minds of the children and young folks of the community was alone enough to condemn the outfit forever. But that wasn't all, the management was crooked in its dealings with the local merchants with whom they had business.

And for this latter reason the company was held in Butler—not allowed to operate however— for one week until certain bills were settled for in Butler, and Garrett and Auburn, where they recently visited.

There cannot be too much said toward ousting the small town carnivals and giving way to a more upbuilding form of entertainment and amusement.

Mt. Pleasant

There will be an ice cream social on the lawn next Wednesday evening.

The musical entertainment given by the colored people at this place was enjoyed by a large and attentive audience. The church was well filled for the morning and afternoon services.

Next Sunday evening the young people will have a debate on—Resolve that a sermon by wireless telegraphy will do more good than a sermon from the pulpit.

Hen Slays Rat.

Barbourville, Ky.—A singular combat was staged at the home of Charles Smith here, when a rat, trying to capture the chicks of a bantam hen, attacked them. The hen immediately went to the rescue and all that was to be seen was the feathered bantam covering the rat and pecking violently at the intruder. The rat put up a hard fight, but the bantam pecked out its eyes and then proceeded to kill it.

Diamond in Crop.

Pilot Rock, Ore.—Occasionally a chicken proves to be a "diamond in the rough." Such a one was purchased from Mrs. James Truman by Mrs. L. E. Roy. Mrs. Truman's lost diamond was found in the chicken's crop. The stone, which was recently lost from its setting in a ring, was returned to the owner, none the worse from the experience than was Jonah after a brief residence in the whale.

Men's and Young Men's All-Wool or Pure Worsted

SUITS

At Three Special Prices

$18 $25 $35

Not a Suit in the Lot Under $30 Value and from $30 up to $55

Regulars, Stouts, Stubs, Longs, Long Stouts, Short Stouts and Extra Sizes. We Can Fit You.

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

The Store That Does Things — Wayne and Harrison

A ROCKING HORSE

makes motion but no progress. If you are to be progressive you

Must Not Only Work

but you must save your earnings. It it almost next to impossible for you to be on the standstill, you are making or loosing. The fellow that has gone ahead of you is the man who has grasped the opportunity of sav- his earnings for future investment. He has had and took advantage of their facilities.

CONFIDENCE IN THE BANK

YOU CAN DO THE SAME.

Yours truly,

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seveuth St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mertin Kimes and family, of Robinson Chapel, spent Sunday with relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Markle and family spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. Matilda Oberholtzer.

Harold Milliman, of St. Joe, returned home Sunday after spending a week visiting with Richard Shook.

Miss Margaret Lake was a Saturday afternoon guest of Miss Gaylon Markle.

Mrs. Hull, north of town, will act as hostess to the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran church, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman and Mrs. John Haifley attended the funeral of Mrs. Saul Doty of Harlan, on Monday.

Mrs. Florence Silberg, who has been a patient at the Lutheran hospital several weeks, was brought home Thursday.

Try a want ad in the News.

Mr. and Mrs. Deloss White and children, of Auburn, are visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reson Chaney a few days.

Miss Olive Lucas and Miss Lottie Mitchell, of West Virginia, are visiting at the home of their uncle, William Lucas and wife.

A baby girl recently arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McNabb, of Auburn. Mrs. McNabb will be remembered as Miss Mary Horn.

The Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church met on last week with Mrs. George Watson, west of town.

A drive is being put on by the Methodist church people in an effort to raise money for the repairing of their church.

On Friday afternoon the members of the C. C. Club were asked to take an auto ride to the home of Mrs. Mandy Rhodes, north of town. A great deal of trouble was experienced and a repair room was furnished where all were requested to go for repair. This room consisted of part of the menu. All guests were then invited again to the repair room where the menu was finished. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Paying Rent

Some kind of home you'll have to own, an humble shack of block or tile, or one of stucco, mud or stone, if you would beat the landlord's smile. You cannot borrow seven dimes on all the wealth you've paid for rent; on your own house, in crucial times, you'll get a loan from some kind gent.—Exchange.

If you would build a cozy home; attra[illegible]

[illegible] Lumber Co.

The spring normal term closed at Angola College, Friday, and many of our young people, who have been attending there, are home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Betz spent Saturday and Sunday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Betz and family at Springfield Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Kimes, of South Bend, were Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Wilmot and family, and Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes.

Mrs. Francis Chapman and daughter Isabelle, and Mrs. Mary Chapman and sons, of Fort Wayne, were Thursday evening guests of B. F. Markle and family.

Miss Fanny Vallieu left Ft. Wayne Saturday noon to attend the Epworth League convention at Winona Lake as a delegate from the Hope Methodist Hospital of Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner and Miss June Webb spent Sunday at Hamilton lake, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peerson and family and Mrs. Mary Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Beam entertained the following guests at their home for dinner on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas and their nieces, Misses Olive Lucas and Lottie Mitchell, of West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Orley Woodring and children, of Newville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Vallieu and family. Mr. and Mrs. William Vallieu, of Harlan, were Saturday guests at the same home.

Clinton Webb and Al Hart, of Montgomery, Michigan, spent Thursday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Webb. Mrs. Ethel Webb and daughter returned home with them for a few days visit.

The Ruppert family reunion was held on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Deam. The following guests were present: M. Ruppert, Jule Ruppert, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Scott and son Maurice, of this place, Mrs. Minnie Pauler and daughter Pauline, of Elsie, Michigan, Mrs. Ida Cope, of Angola, and Raymond Rhodes of this place.

CONCORD

Miss Ida Widney spent a couple of days with Mrs. Byron Widney and family.

Jay Snyder was the first of the season to thresh around here.

Miss Lourettie Funk called on Mrs. Chas. Jackson Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone spent Sunday afternoon in the home of Fred and Tel Elson.

Master Ralph Keeler was up and spent a couple of days with his grandmother, Mrs. Ira Bone.

Miss Louis Murphy returned to her school Monday, after spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy.

Mrs. Joe Johnson went to visit her aunt and family, Mrs. Bert Rhodes, south of Spencerville, expecting to stay a week or two.

Mr. Walter Baker and family, Sam Dailey and family, Charles Bleeks and family, Harry Harris and family and Lloyd Draggoo and family, spent Sunday with Jack Sechler and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy entertained Mr. Murphy's brother and family. One of his daughters is a nurse from Africa and the other is a missionary from South America. They expect to stay around here for six months before they return.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson spent Saturday night and Sunday at home. Mrs. Jackson and her sister, Mrs. Gladys Farver, have been caring for the home of their mother while she is in the hospital. Their mother is getting along nicely. She sat up for the first time Saturday.

A Reception — When you have a blow out it's no social affair. But our service is a reception worth while. Patronize your home Garage and help it give your community this service.

MICKIE SAYS

HEY, FOLKS, LISSEN!
I'M OUT TODAY LOOKIN' FER

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff is very low at the present date.

Mrs. Minnie Tarney is now able to get about some without crutches.

Mrs. Richmond, whose illness was noted last week, is improving.

The threshing machine is beginning to hum in the community.

Mrs. Jessie Fusselman entertained her sister's son last week.

Mrs. Vera Miller is assisting in the care of her grandmother at the Kinny home.

John Washler and wife were Sunday guests of Harmon Ames and wife of Butler.

Ira Mendenhall and little son, of Butler, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller a part of last week.

Lea Falls and family, of Peoria, Illinois, are here visiting her parents and sisters.

Dewey Miller and wife and Burl Rude, wife and baby were Hicksville visitors Saturday evening.

Mrs. D. C. Corrmp and brother, Mr. Houser, of Butler, were also callers at the McDonald home.

John Miller, wife and little granddaughter and Vera Miller were Sunday afternoon guests of Elmer McDonald and son Earl.

Mr. and Mrs. Ditmar and daughter Joy, of Chicago, are here on account of Mrs. Ditmar's mother, Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff's serious condition.

The funeral of Mr. Reinhart was held Tuesday at the U. B. church. Rev. Denham, of Edgerton, assisted by Rev. P. A. Hubartt, preached the sermon. The grandchildren carried the many beautiful flowers, and the sons and nephews were pall bearers. Interment was made in Riverside cemetery in care of Elsie Kinsey.

The remains of Mrs. Charles Smith, a former Newville resident, were brought here from Goshen, Thursday for burial.

Christian Church Notes

The Loyal Sons and Daughters class held their regular monthly all day meeting at the church Sunday, serving a potluck dinner at the noon hour. A splendid program was given consisting of scripture reading and prayer, songs, readings and several talks, all being very interesting. About seventy-five were present including the class members the guests and children. Several auto loads of the Willing Workers class of Stroh were among the guests.

The Martha Society will meet with Mrs. Mary Rhodenbaugh Thursday afternoon. Each lady feel free to bring her own work.

The Loyal Workers class gave the following good report for the quarter ending June 30. The aggregate attendance for the three months was 154 with an average of a fraction under 13. The total offering amounted to $7.78 averaging almost 65 cents each Sunday. Mrs. Eva Sheffer is the teacher of this class and Mrs. Nan Lysher, secretary.

Regular preaching services by the pastor, R. B. Daily, next Sunday morning after Bible School and communion.

WANTED:- Fat Hogs

I Will Take In Fat Hogs
At My Sale Barn
In Spencerville
Every Week Day And Evening.

R. U Bowser.
Call 36-12
SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

$395
F.O.B. DETROIT

Reduce Your Production Costs

Farming, like every other business, must cut down the overhead.

It is not a question of being able to afford a Fordson; it is a question of being able to continue farming on the old too-costly basis.

The farmer's problem is not all a sales problem; it is also a production problem. He must cut down the cost of production.

The Fordson does more work at a lower cost and in less time than the old hand methods.

Let us give you the proof. Write, phone or call today.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

BIBLE THOUGHT —FOR TODAY—

The BACK TO THE BIBLE Bureau Service

A MORNING PRAYER:-- Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.--Psalm 51:10.

A SURE SUPPORT:—The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms.—Deut. 33:27.

LOVE MASTERS FEAR:—There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.—I John 4:18.

PEACE AND SAFETY:—Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee.—Isaiah 26:3.

REWARD OF THE RIGHTEOUS:—Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace.—Psalm 37:37.

THE LOVE THAT SAVES:—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but shall have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

A VERY NEEDFUL PRAYER:—Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Let integrity and uprightness preserve me: for I wait on thee.—Psalm 25:4, 21.

GUARD YOUR THOUGHTS:—Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Philippians 4:8.

BEGIN THE DAY RIGHT:—Cause me to hear thy loving kindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust; cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee.—Psalm 143:8.

GLADNESS IN SERVICE:—Serve the Lord with gladness. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name. For the Lord is good.—Psalm 100:2,4.

Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE, IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1857

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

912 CALHOUN STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

L 912

249

The Mardi Gras Mystery

By

H. BEDFORD-JONES

Copyright by
DOUBLEDAY, PAGE AND COMPANY

The tale of a carnival joke that led to grim realities.

CHAPTER I.

—1—

Carnival.

Jachin Fell pushed aside the glass curtains between the voluminous overdraperies in the windows of the Chess and Checkers club, and gazed out upon the riotous streets of New Orleans. Half an hour he had been waiting here in the lounge room for Dr. Cyril Ansley, a middle-aged bachelor who had practiced in Opelousas for twenty years, and who had come to the city for the Mardi Gras festivities. Another man might have seemed irritated by the wait, but Jachin Fell was quite unruffled.

He had much the air of a clerk. His features were thin and unremarkable; his pale eyes constantly wore an expression of wondering aloofness, as though he saw around him much that he vainly tried to understand. In his entire manner was a shy reticence. He was no clerk, however; this was evident from his attire. He was garbed from head to foot in soberly blending shades of gray whose richness was notable only at close view. One fancied him a very precise sort of man, an old maid of the wrong sex.

Doctor Ansley, an Inverness flung over his evening clothes, entered the lounge room, and Fell turned to him with a dry, toneless chuckle.

"You're the limit! Did you forget we were going to the Maillards' tonight? However, we need not leave for fifteen minutes yet, at least."

Doctor Ansley laid aside his cape, stick and hat and dropped into one of the comfortable big chairs.

"You intend to mask for the Maillards'?" Ansley cast his eye over the gray business attire of the little man.

"I never mask." Jachin Fell shook his head. "I'll get a domino and go as I am. Excuse me—I'll order a domino now. Back in a moment."

Doctor Ansley followed the slight figure of the other man with speculative eyes. Well as he knew Jachin Fell, he invariably found the man a source of puzzled speculation.

During many years Jachin Fell had been a member of the most exclusive New Orleans clubs. He was even received in the inner circles of Creole society, which in itself was evidence supreme as to his position. At this particular club he was famed as a wizard master of chess. He never entered a tournament, yet he consistently defeated the champions in private matches—defeated them with a bewildering ease, a shy and apologetic ease, an ease which left the beholders incredulous and aghast.

With all this, Jachin Fell was very much of a mystery, even among his closest friends. Very little was known of him; he was a lawyer, and certainly maintained offices in the Maison Blanche building, but he never appeared in the courts and no case of his pleading was known.

Ansley knew him as well as did most men, and Ansley knew of a few who could boast of having been a guest in Jachin Fell's home. There was a mother, an invalid, of whom Fell sometimes spoke and to whom he appeared to devote himself. The family, an old one in the city, promised to die out with Jachin Fell.

Ansley puffed at his cigar and considered these things. Outside, in the New Orleans streets, was rocketing the mad mirth of carnival. The week preceding Mardi Gras was at its close.

Now, as ever, was Mardi Gras symbolized by masques. In New Orleans the masquerade was not the pale and pitiful frolic of colder climes, where the occasion is but one for display of jewels and costumes, and where actual concealment of identity is a farce. Here in New Orleans were jewels and costumes in a profusion of splendor; but here was preserved the underlying idea of the masque itself—that in concealment of identity lay the life of the thing!

When Jachin Fell returned and lighted his cigar he sank into one of the luxurious chairs beside Ansley and indicated a newspaper lying across the [illegible] knee, its flaring headlines [illegible] out blackly.

"What's that about the Midnight Masquer? He's not appeared again?"

"What?" Ansley glanced at him in [illegible]

"Wizard!" The doctor laughed in unison. "Yes, about that amount."

"The Masquer is a piker," observed Fell, in his toneless voice.

"Eh? A piker—when he can make a hundred-thousand-dollar haul?"

"Don't dream that those figures represent value, Doctor. They don't! All the loot the Masquer has taken since he began work is worth little to him. Jewels are hard to sell. Of course, the crook has obtained a bit of money, but not enough to be worth the risk."

"Yet he has got quite a bit," returned Ansley thoughtfully. "All the men have money, naturally; we don't want to find ourselves bare at some gay carnival moment! I'd warrant you've a hundred or so in your pocket right now!"

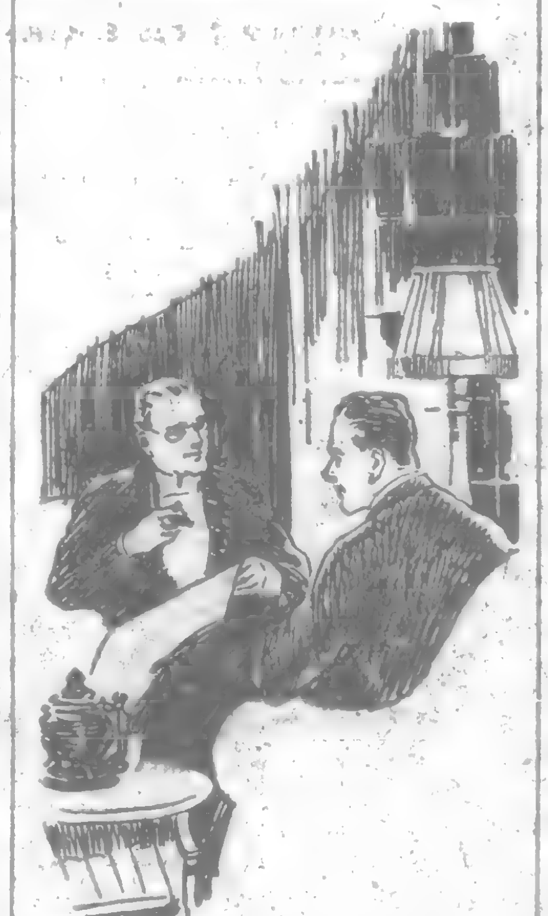
"Not I," rejoined Fell calmly. "One ten-dollar bill. Also I left my watch at home. And I'm not dressed; I don't care to lose my pearl studs."

"Eh?" Ansley frowned. "What do you mean?"

Jachin took a folded paper from his pocket and handed it to the physician.

"I met Maillard at the bank this morning. He called me into his office and handed me this—he had just received it in the mail."

Doctor Ansley opened the folded paper; an exclamation broke from him as he read the note, which was addressed to their host of the evening.



"Eh? A Piker—When He Can Make a Hundred Thousand Dollar Haul?"

"Joseph Maillard, President,

"Exeter National Bank, City.

"I thank you for the masque that you are giving tonight. I shall be present. Please see that Mrs. M. wears her diamonds—I need them.

"THE MIDNIGHT MASQUER."

Ansley glanced up. "What's this—some hoax? Some carnival jest?"

"Maillard pretended to think so." Fell shrugged his shoulders as he repocketed the note. "But he was nervous. He'll have a brace of detectives inside the house tonight, and others outside."

Ever since the first ball of the year by the Twelfth Night club this Midnight Masquer, as he was termed, had held New Orleans gripped in terror, fascination and vivid interest. During the past month he appeared at least once a week, now at some private ball, now at some restaurant banquet, but always in the same garb: the helmet, huge goggles and mask, and leathern clothes of a service aviator. On these occasions the throbbing roar of an airplane motor had been reported, so that it was popular gossip that he landed on the roof of his designated victims and made his getaway in the same manner—by airplane. No machine had ever been seen, and the theory was believed by some, hooted at by others.

Doctor Ansley glanced at his watch, and deposited his cigar in an ash tray.

"We'd best be moving, Fell. You'll want a domino?"

"I ordered one. It'll be here in a minute."

"Do you seriously think that note is [illegible]

[illegible]

drop the prince stuff altogether if these French people around here would let him."

A page brought the domino. Fell, discarding the mask, threw the domino about his shoulders, and the two men left the club in company.

They sought their destination afoot—the home of the banker Joseph Maillard. The streets were riotous, filled with an eddying, laughing crowd of masquers and merrymakers of all ages and sexes; confetti twirled through the air, horns were deafening, and laughing voices rose into sharp screams of unrestrained delight.

At last gaining St. Charles avenue, with the Maillard residence a half-dozen blocks distant, the two companions found themselves well away from the main carnival throngs.

As they walked along they were suddenly aware of a lithe figure approaching from the rear; with a running leap and an exclamation of delight the figure forced itself in between them, grasping an arm of either man, and a bantering voice broke in upon their train of talk.

"Forfeit!" it cried. "Forfeit—where are your masks, sober gentlemen? This grave physician may be pardoned, but not a domino who refuses to mask! And for forfeit you shall be my escort and take me whither you are going."

Laughing, the two fell into step, glancing at the gay figure between them. A Columbine, she was both cloaked and masked. Encircling her hair was a magnificent scarf shot with metal designs of solid gold—a most unusual thing. Also, from her words it was evident that she had recognized them.

"Willingly, fair Columbine," responded Fell in his dry and unimpassioned tone of voice. "We shall be most happy indeed to protect and take you with us—"

"So far as the door, at least," interrupted Ansley, with evident caution. But Fell drily laughed aside this wary limitation.

"Nay, good physician, farther!" went on Fell. "Our Columbine has an excellent passport, I assure you. This gauzy scarf about her raven tresses was woven for the good Queen Hortense, and I would venture a random guess that, clasped about her slender throat, lies the queen's collar of star sapphires—"

"Oh!" From the Columbine broke a cry of warning and swift dismay. "Don't you dare speak my name, sir—don't you dare!"

Fell assented with a chuckle, and subsided.

Ansley regarded his two companions with sidelong curiosity. He could not recognise Columbine, and he could not tell whether Fell was speaking of the scarf and jewels in jest or earnest. Such historic things were not uncommon in New Orleans, yet Ansley never heard of these particular treasures. However, it seemed that Fell knew their companion, and accepted her as a fellow guest at the Maillard house.

"What are you doing out on the streets alone?" demanded Fell, suddenly. "Haven't you any friends or relatives to take care of you?"

Columbine's laughter pealed out, and she pressed Fell's arm confidingly.

"Have I not some little rights in the world, monsieur?" she said in French. "I have been mingling with the dear crowds and enjoying them, before I go to be buried in the dull splendors of the rich man's house. Tell me, do you think that the Midnight Masquer will make an appearance tonight?"

"I have every reason to believe that he will," said Jachin Fell, gravely.

Columbine put one hand to her throat, and shivered a trifle.

"You—you really think so? You are not trying to frighten me?" Her voice was no longer gay. "But—the jewels—if they are taken by the Masquer—"

"In that case," said Fell, "let the blame be mine entirely. If they are lost, little Columbine, others will be [illegible] I think that this party [illegible] for the Masquer, [illegible] rich man and his friends [illegible] that crowd!"

[illegible] Ansley, uneasily. "If the bandit does show up there would be the very devil to pay!"

[illegible]

INSURANCE MAN IS ENTHUSED OVER IT

Gains 14 Pounds Taking Tanlac and Is Restored to Finest Health.

"Tanlac has restored my health and built me up fourteen pounds in weight," said H. W. Morrison, 4768 Thrush Ave., St. Louis, Mo., agent for the National Life Insurance Co.

"Two years ago my stomach went wrong and I could not eat anything without suffering agony afterwards from heart palpitation and shortness of breath. Some nights I was in so much misery my wife had to get up and try to get me some relief. My health got to be so poor I had to stay in bed for weeks at a time.

"What Tanlac has done for me is nothing short of wonderful. I now eat anything I want, sleep fine, and am working full time every day; in fact, I'm in splendid health. I can't praise Tanlac too highly."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Electric Prayer Wheels.

Motor-driven prayers have become popular with the Buddhist priests of Simla, the summer capital of India. Formerly the limit of invention allowed lazy priests to tack pieces of paper, on which were written the perpetual prayers, onto great prayer wheels. The power for turning these wheels was supplied from the many small mountain streams about the capital. When a firm of British engineers came with a proposal to divert these little streams and merge them into a waterpower project, the priests incited the people against them until finally an item was included in the franchise stating that electric motors and power were to be supplied to perpetually turn the prayer wheels.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Cuticura Soothes Itching Scalp.

On retiring gently rub spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your everyday toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Advertisement.

New Building Material.

At Marrero, La., there has been erected a factory for making building material from sugar cane bagasse, the equipment of the mill is very much like that in a paper factory. The bagasse is chipped, cooked and washed, and then sent to beaters, where it is worked up until the fibers are of the proper length. A special machine converts the pulp into board and this is dried for four hours, emerging as a finished product, quite dry and hard. It is known as celotex, and can be worked just like wood, and is solid and homogeneous.—Scientific American.

Just say to your grocer Red Cross Ball Blue when buying bluing. You will be more than repaid by the results. Once tried always used.—Advertisement.

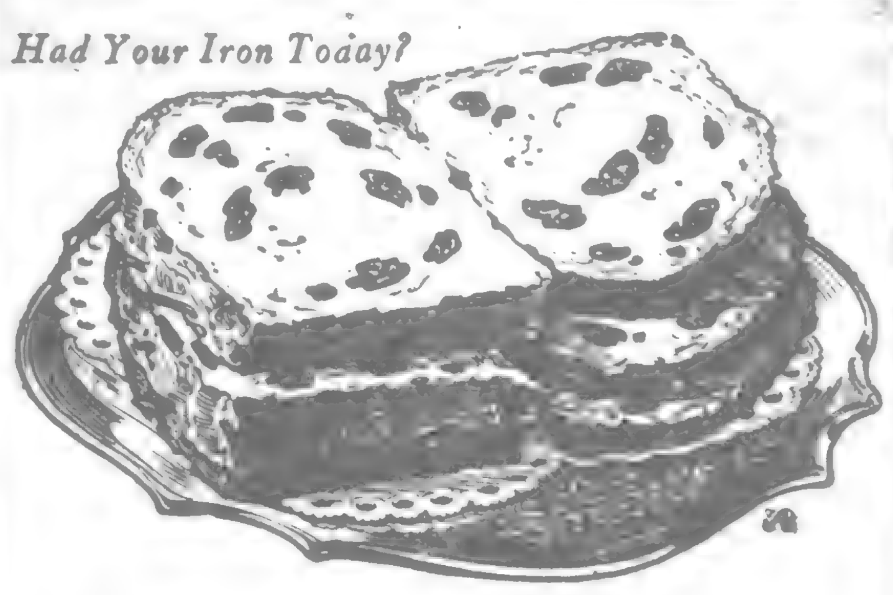
Tempering Justice With Mercy.

"In writing up this performance of 'As You Like It,' given by the Chiggersville Dramatic club, use a little discretion."

"How's that, boss?"

"Just forget that you ever saw a professional show."

Had Your Iron Today?



The Delicious Bread
—of Energy and Iron

SERVE raisin bread twice weekly on your table for three reasons:

1. Flavor; 2. Energy; 3. Iron

You remember how good a generously filled, full-fruited raisin bread can be. Your grocer or baker can supply a loaf like this.

Insist—if he hasn't one he can get it for you.

Full-fruited bread is full of luscious seeded Sun-Maid raisins—rich in energizing nutriment in practically predigested form.

Raisins also furnish fatigue-resisting iron for the blood.

Serve plain raisin bread at dinner or as a tasty fruited breakfast toast with coffee.

Make delicious bread pudding with leftover slices. No need to waste a crumb of raisin bread.

Begin this week the habit of raisin bread twice weekly in your home, for raisin bread is both good and good for you.

CALIFORNIA
SUN-MAID
SEEDED MUSCAT
RAISINS

Blue Package

Sun-Maid
Seeded Raisins

Make delicious bread, pies, puddings, cakes, etc. Ask your grocer for them. Send for free book of tested recipes.

Sun-Maid Raisin Growers
Membership 13,000
Dept. N-24-9, Fresno, Calif.

Casanova Exposed.

The greatest lover and the greatest adventurer in history—Casanova—is a fake, according to Gustav Gugitz, whose work is reviewed in a recent issue of The Dial.

"He freshens up the ladies he conquers, to make them more commanding. He invents various fatherhoods for himself. And some of the greatest women whom he claims to have subdued have existed purely in his fancy," says Julius von Ludassy, and shows that even the famous escape from the Leads is a fabrication.

Approved Treatment.

Knicker—"The Good Book tells us to love our enemies." Bocker—"And the check book tells us to loan 'em."

Barefoot Memories.

"A laborer fell 11 stories and fell onto a pile of sand unhurt." He may have landed without any serious injuries, but if the reporter thinks it doesn't hurt to fall on sand he has never put in his boyhood vacations jumping from the top of box cars into cars filled with sand. It's fun once or twice, and then the novelty wears off. The ideal jumping material is scarce and the season is short—flax seed. To jump from a box car into a wagonload of flax seed is a privilege known to comparatively few. It gives all the early pleasant sensations of landing in quicksand, without the dangers. —Kansas City Star.

Never put off till tomorrow oil that should be put in today.

Don't be Fooled

Low Price and High Quality
Don't Go Together. Stick to

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

Never accept "Just as Good" Brands; it will only mean disappointments and failures on bake-day, which are expensive.

Calumet is a high grade Baking Powder, moderate in price

When you use it you never spoil any of the expensive ingredients used—such as flour, sugar, eggs and milk.

[illegible]

[illegible]

You'll Like
Nu-Way
or
EXCELLO
SUSPENDERS
Year's wear guaranteed. No rubber Phosphor Bronze Springs give the stretch Comfortable. Easy on buttons. If your dealer hasn't them send direct, giving dealer's name. 50c & 75c pair.
Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

No Stretch is in the "111"

cigarettes

10¢
They are GOOD!

Radio
Dealers
Are Making
Money

You can secure complete information about this new and lucrative business by reading regularly

Radio Merchandising
The Semi-Monthly Magazine of the Radio Industry

It is replete with exactly the information that the dealer, and prospective dealer, requires. One dollar will bring it to you for four months —Three dollars a year.

Radio Publishing Corporation
Incorporated
Dept. 30, 342 Madison Ave., New York City

AGENTS sell master furniture and automobile polish used in White House, Washington. Big comm. Walsh's Protecpolish, Inc., 4302 N. Third St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GOVERNMENT CLERKS—All kinds, railway mail, rural and city carriers. Many needed. Write for free information. Secretary-A, 1722 Newton St., Washington, D. C.

Smallest Bible on Earth, no larger than a postage stamp. Send 20c in silver. Blue-Ridge Mail Order House, Morgantown, W. Va.

"Lost" Department.

Act one and the only one is set in the "lost and found" department of the Indianapolis street railway.

Telephone rings excitedly, attendant picks the phone up and a voice at the other end of the wire asks: "Lost and found department?"

Attendant answers, "Well—this is the 'lost' department."

Free for Our Readers.

We have made arrangements whereby every housewife who reads this paper can obtain a copy of "Reliable Recipes" absolutely free of charge by simply writing the Home Economics Department of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., 4100-28 Fillmore Street, Chicago, Ill.

"Reliable Recipes" contains 76 pages of recipes and other information appreciated by every housewife. It is illustrated in colors and will prove quite helpful in preparing the daily menu.

We have also made arrangements with the Calumet Baking Powder Co. whereby their Home Economics Department will cheerfully answer all questions pertaining to cooking, kitchen equipment, etc. There is absolutely no charge for this service.

Write the Home Economics Department of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., 4100-28 Fillmore St., Chicago, Ill., today for a copy of "Reliable Recipes." —Advertisement.

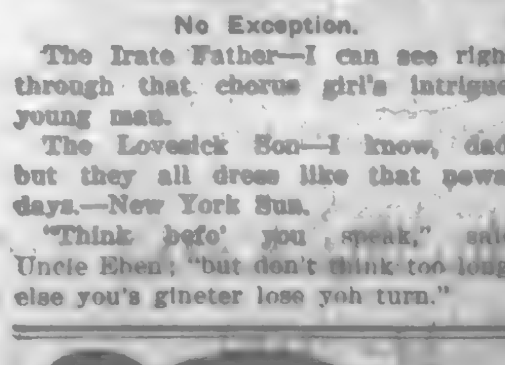
No Exception.

The Irate Father—I can see right through that chorus girl's intrigue, young man.

The Lovesick Son—I know, dad, but they all dress like that nowadays.—New York Sun.

"Think befo' you speak," said Uncle Eben; "but don't think too long, else you's gineter lose yoh turn."

NR Tonight
Tomorrow Alright
Get a 25c Box



NO DYE [illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Terre Haute.—Two persons were killed and three others were severely injured when a Clinton interurban car struck an automobile at Terre Haute. The dead are C. C. Fisbeck and Mrs. Henry Kniplasch. The injured are Harry Kniplasch, Mrs. C. C. Fisbeck and Lester Kniplasch, age seventeen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kniplasch.

Kokomo.—Fifty bushels of wheat to an acre is regarded an unusual wield even when bumper crops are general. But this year, when chinch bugs and other pests have cut down the crop, that amount is said to be remarkable. Eleven acres of wheat on the farm of Zade Williams, who lives west of Kokomo, yielded 555 bushels of grain when thrashed, according to the machine tally.

Evansville.—The steamer Robert Gordon, belonging to the Indiana Tie company, on the Ohio river near the mouth of Pigeon creek, Evansville, was destroyed by fire and two barges belonging to the company were badly damaged, but may be repaired. The only thing left of the steamer was her charred hull, and she will be a total loss. The loss is more than $50,000. The company carried insurance of $35,000.

Moorsville.—Fire which threatened destruction to the entire town of Moorsville, was extinguished by a bucket brigade formed by citizens after the water supply had been exhausted. The flames broke out in a vulcanizing shop and had destroyed this building and a poultry house before being extinguished. Fire apparatus which was sent from Indianapolis was useless because of the lack of water.

Marion.—That Grant county does not have its share of state highways was the judgment of a joint conference of city and county officials and taxpayers held in Marion recently and a committee was named to go over the list of roads and select those which, in its opinion, should be taken over by the state. It was said that Grant county has only thirty-four and three-tenths miles of state roads. The conference followed severe criticism of the condition of roads entering the city.

Washington.—For the first time in local history coal for thrashing outfits has been shipped into Daviess county. A carload of Kentucky coal was received recently by the Morris & Kidwell mill, to be distributed at actual cost to thrashing outfits. It sold at 27½ cents a bushel, the highest price ever paid for coal for this purpose. There are about a dozen wagon mines in the county, but only one of the smallest mines is working, and coal for thrashing has been so hard to get that thrashing has been delayed in several instances.

Indianapolis.—Distribution to counties of the greatest common school fund ever collected by the state will begin in a few days in the office of the state auditor, on the basis of figures compiled by John S. Hubbard, deputy state superintendent of public instruction. The 1921 legislature made the fund the greatest by increasing the common school fund tax levy from 5.8 to 7 cents on each $100 of taxable property in the state. The spring taxes paid to counties and just turned in to Mr. Oliver, together with smaller sums from other sources, made the fund $2,030,507 this June.

Indianapolis.—A demurrer of the Indiana Manufacturers of Dairy Products and 38 associated concerns to a suit filed by Attorney General U. S. Lesh charging the existence of a "milk trust" in Indianapolis and Indiana, was overruled by Judge Solon J. Carter in Superior court at Indianapolis. The demurrer attacked the constitutionality of the state anti-trust law on which was based the original complaint. An amended complaint, containing practically the same allegations, was filed early this year. Mr. Lesh charged that a combination has been formed to maintain unreasonably low prices to producers and consequential high prices to consumers. He also charged the maintenance of a "slush fund."

Washington, D. C.—Based on July 1 condition, the Department of Agriculture made the forecast that Indiana's corn crop will aggregate 170,749,000 bushels, compared with 169,848,000 bushels last year. Indiana, which ranks seventh among corn producing states, has 4,[illegible] acres devoted to corn. The July 1 condition of Indiana corn is given at 82 per cent, or slightly below the average for ten years. Iowa easily retains the lead among corn states, its crop for the year being estimated at 3[illegible] bushels. It is estimated the Indiana wheat crop will total [illegible] bushels, compared with an average for the last ten years of [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Lafayette.—The annual scoring for swine of all breeds will be held at Purdue university, August 1. The school is free to every person who wishes to enter and it is a great schooling for any young breeder who is in the purebred swine business.

Marion.—George W. Steele, age eighty-three, who was a representative in the congress for 16 years from the Eleventh district of Indiana, who was the first governor of Oklahoma territory, is dead at his home in Marion after an illness of several weeks. He had been in failing health for many months.

Petersburg.—Robert Moore, an old-time watermelon grower near Petersburg, planted 30 acres in watermelons and as an experiment, in each watermelon hill planted cantaloupes. When the blight attacked the watermelons, the cantaloupes were not hurt and now Moore has 30 acres of the best cantaloupes grown in northern Pike county.

Fairmount.—Having charge of the funeral arrangements of two men, both bearing the same name, but not related, is the unusual experience of a Fairmount undertaker. James Phillips, age sixty-three, a farmer, died of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile. James Phillips, age seventy-five, a retired farmer, died a few hours later after an illness of several months.

Indianapolis.—The state board of tax commissioners still has jurisdiction over the $25,600 bond issue for the Byron Frazier road proposed by Fountain county commissioners for issuance in spite of the board, U. S. Lesh, attorney general, believes. In an opinion to the board the head of the state legal department said that "county officials are without authority to issue and sell bonds after they are disapproved by the board."

Connersville.—Valuation of farm lands in Fayette county has been reduced by the board of review by approximately 15 per cent from the 1919 value. The average valuation for taxation purposes, according to the decision of the board, will be $74 an acre. Only two changes were made in the township averages submitted for investigation recently by the township assessors. The valuation ranged from $99.02 an acre in Harrison township to $41.39 in Columbia township. The Fayette county farm bureau several weeks ago asked the board of review to make a general reduction of 25 per cent from the 1919 figures.

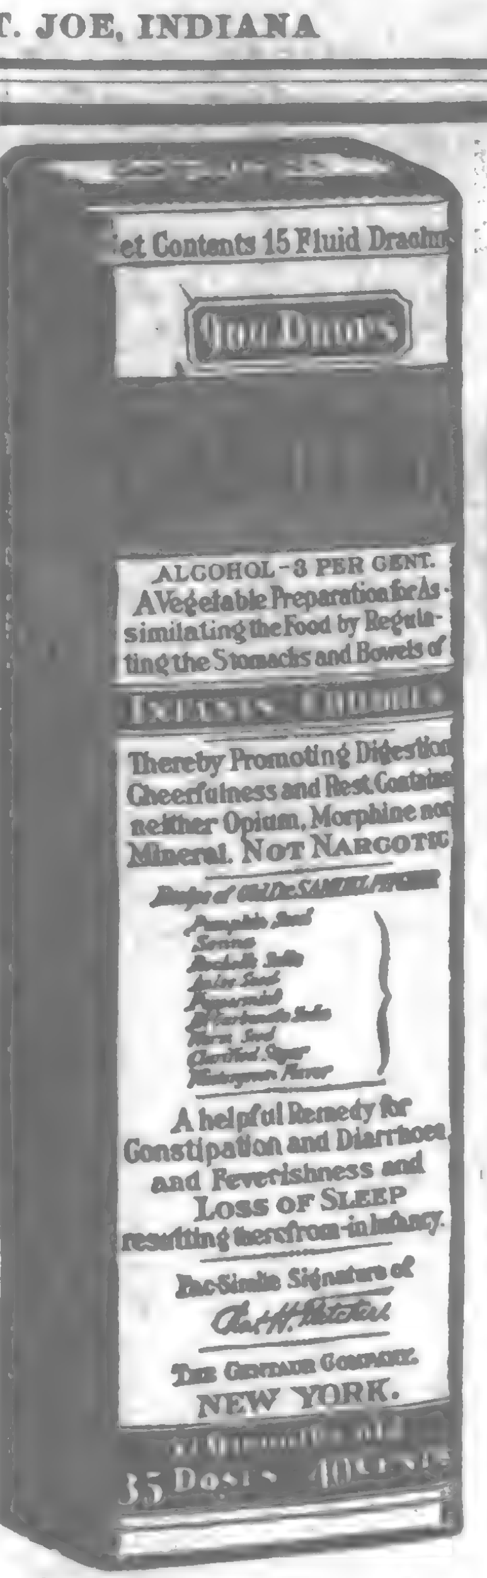
Frankfort.—With the view of determining what steps are to be taken for the improvement of the Michigan road, a committee composed of one county commissioner each from Clinton, Boone, Carroll and Cass counties will meet soon with the members of the Indiana highway commission at Indianapolis. This was decided at a joint session of the commissioners of the four counties. The June session was the result, it is said, of the promise of the highway commission to take over the Michigan road next year, provided the various counties do some work on the road this year in order to put the highway in better condition.

Indianapolis.—One hundred and sixty-two persons were arrested by game wardens of the state conservation department during June, with a total of $2,857 collected in fines and costs, the director of the fish and game division of the department said. These arrests exceed those of last year by five. Of those arrested, 148 were convicted. Offenses for which arrests were made were possession of illegal nets and seines, taking or possessing fur-bearing animals or hides out of season, hunting and fishing without license, taking undersized fish and fishing in closed season, possession of fish traps and trotlines, and hunting on Sunday.

Scottsburg.—Two persons were instantly killed, another fatally hurt and three others were seriously injured when an interurban car struck an automobile at a street crossing in Scottsburg. The dead are: Mrs. Tilden Freudenberger, Miss Elizabeth Davis, ten years old, granddaughter of Mrs. Freudenberger; Parker Carver, eighteen years old, New Albany. The injured are: Tilden Freudenberger, Mrs. Tatum of Louisville, Ky. Carver died at a Seymour hospital, where he was taken after the accident. The party had been at New Albany visiting, and were returning to their homes at Cincinnati, O.

Logansport.—The grain crop in Cass county will be the smallest this year that has been known for 20 years, according to the county agriculture agent. Rye is averaging from eight to ten bushels an acre as against a five-year average of [illegible] bushels. Wheat is yielding from [illegible] to [illegible] bushels to the acre, as against an average of 21 bushels for a five year period. The oats crop in [illegible] county is a complete failure, [illegible] agricultural [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES - 40 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

10 Cents Gives Charming New Color Tone to Old Sweaters
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES—dyes or tints as you wish

BRIGHT IDEA NOT PATENTED

Generous Marine Willing All Should Have the Benefit of His Really Brilliant Thought.

The marine and his best girl were seeing the sights of New York. The temptation to steal a kiss was strong, but he knew that people do not stop to kiss on the street in broad daylight, even if it is one of those rare occasions when a marine has a chance to parade Broadway with his lady friend.

Suddenly the leatherneck had a bright idea. He knew it looked all right to kiss a person good-by on the street.

"Lissen, Lucille," he suggested. "What do you say if we shake hands, kiss each other good-by then walk around opposite blocks and meet again?"

"You're on," said his lady love.

The scheme turned out to be such a success that several blocks were negotiated in the same manner, and the entire trip up town was a series of meetings and partings.

Now the leatherneck is wondering why he was so dumb he never thought of it before.—The Leatherneck.

Answers Call of Blood.

One of the chiefs of the Fiji islands has a remarkable record. Descendant of a famous line of chieftains, he is also an Oxford graduate, served as cook with the R. M. A. corps in France in 1916, and later as a clerk with the Royal Scotch Borderers. He has been medaled by King George for bravery. Despite his good running start, he has deserted civilization and returned to the South Pacific to live among his fellow Fiji islanders.

Does a time ever come in his life when a practical joker is ashamed of himself?

MIGHT DO BETTER NEXT TIME

Small Girl's Ingenious Plea for Her Pet Bantam Should Have Softened Daddy's Heart.

Five-year-old Mary Jane had a pet bantam hen. Recently the latter hatched six little chickens, but she proved herself to be an unnatural mother and wouldn't take care of them.

The family was provoked and Mary Jane's father threatened to sell the hen if she didn't take care of the chickens. That brought Mary Jane to strategy. That evening when her father came home she was waiting for him.

"Where's your hen?" he demanded. "Is she caring for her chickens?"

"Oh, no," Mary Jane was very serious. "She's in the hen coop getting ready to lay some more eggs to hatch some more chickens."—Indianapolis News.

Social Calls.

"Thomas Hardy," said an English lecturer, "is a serious enough individual today, but there was a time in London when he was the gayest of the day."

"At a Bohemian club one evening Hardy rang up one after another thirty or forty of the most distinguished people in town—dukes, bishops, actor-managers, society queens, stage beauties, and so on. He told all these people to call up '625 Chiswick' at once.

"'You're wanted there badly,' he explained to them, and the celebrities all thanked him hurriedly and rang off.

"Well, when Hardy got through his telephoning we looked up '625 Chiswick' in the telephone directory. It was Wormwood Scrubs prison!"

Hens shouldn't cackle so loud when the price of eggs is low.

In.

"I am thinking about going into politics," remarked the young man.

"My friend," responded Senator Sorghum, "you are a taxpayer, a man entitled to vote and a man responsible to the laws of your country. You are already in politics and you couldn't get out of it to save your soul."

For true blue, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Snowy-white clothes will be sure to result. Try it and you will always use it. All good grocers have it. —Advertisement.

IN LAST LINE OF DEFENSE

Recruit's Answer Offers an Explanation of Why Some Army Drillmasters Go Insane.

The sergeant major was reaching the end of his patience in his examination of the recruit's squad.

"For the last time," he yelled, going almost purple in the face, "I ask you the simple question: 'What is a fortification?'"

Shoulders dropped and with faces void of intelligence as a vacuum of air, the recruits stood fast as a man. No one answered.

Rushing up to the most intelligent-looking man, the irate N. C. O. bawled: "Tell me, my man, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle:

"Two twentifications, sir!"—London Answers.

Think This Over.

Marshal Foch at a dinner party in Denver said of politeness:

"We attach great importance to politeness in France, and I think that we are wise to do so. Politeness is like a pneumatic tire. There's nothing in it but wind, yet it eases the jolts along life's highway wonderfully."

What's the answer to "How do you do?"

Think it over carefully—and then answer frankly. Face the facts. Do your nerves and digestion stand the jolting of the coffee drug? Can they go on standing it?

There's charm and complete satisfaction in [illegible] to health.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

STOP! LOOK! AND READ

And then note the following prices and be convinced that we can save you money.

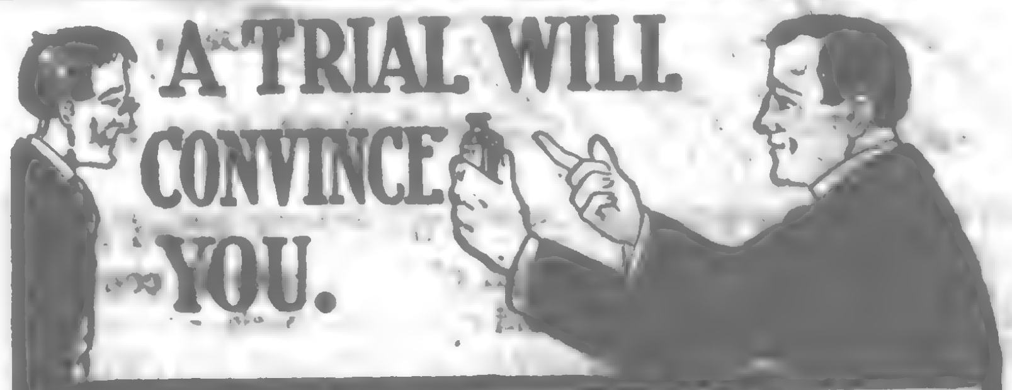
Bran - - $1.65, Mids - - $1.65
Tankage 3.75. Fish Meal 3 75
Cottonseed Meal - - $3.25
Oyster Shells - - - - - 1.25
Sugared Shoemaker - 1.80

We will pay the highest price for good WHEAT

Use Daily Bread and Country Maid Flour. It is giving others satisfaction, so why not give it a trial. Our carload of salt was temporarily held up on account of the rail strike but was forwarded last Monday. Chop Grinding Our Hobby.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Inc.



A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS

Patronize the advertisers.
Subscribe for the NEWS.

Ice cream social at the Mt. Pleasant chrurch July 26.

F. D. Tope and wife spent Sunday with friends at Briceton, Ohio.

Rev. R. B. Daily was a Hicksville visitor, Monday.

Charles Koch and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday forenoon.

Miss Eva Wilmot, of Michigan, is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ella Wilmot.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Paul Miller and wife are spending the week with the latter's parents, Jacob Krabill and wife.

Mrs. Paul Curie and little son spent the first of the week with her parents at Waterloo.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily were guests of Otto Cannon and wife a part of the past week.

Edith Widney went to Elkhart Thursday for a three weeks visit with friends.

Miss Susan Sechler is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. B. E Widney.

Will Koch and wife entertained their grandchildren, [illegible] and Bruce Koch and Charles, LeRoy and Eloise Coburn, Sunday.

John Milliman and wife were Saturday and Sunday guests of their daughter, [illegible] and family of [illegible].

[illegible]

[illegible]

For Sale — Jersey cow and calf.

Fred Draggoo, Concord.

Mrs. E. W. Saylor, son Fred and Miss Cecelia Hays of Spencerville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hose, of Edgerton, Ohio.

Abner Trostel went to East Haven, Thursday where he accompanied his son Wayne home the following day.

Mrs. F. R. Bowman and daughter and Mrs. Samuel Armstrong, were among the Fort Wayne visitors, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pepple of Auburn, came Saturday for a few days visit with their daughter, Mrs. E. R Kinsey and family.

Harry Randall of Lima, Ohio, came Sunday evening for several days stay with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Randall.

Mrs. Ella Patterson received word of the sudden death of her sister, Mrs. J. W. Wright at Hicksville, Monday.

Miss Helen Snyder of Leo and and Miss Eva Hughes were Saturday night guests of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Dailey.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles [illegible] and small son Arthur motored [illegible] from Kokomo, Tuesday and are visiting Meade Baker and wife.

H. C Borthwick, wife and two sons, spent Sunday with the lady's brother, Lyman Winn, near West Milford.

"I would not take $1000 for what that wonderful Tanlac medicine has done for me," [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Patronize the Advertisers.

Homer Ressler and family attended a family reunion at Long Lake, Sunday.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

At the present rate of Tanlac sales, it is estimated the grand total will reach 24,000,00 bottles at the end of the present year. Sheffer's Drug Store.

Elgin Curie, assistant cashier at the St. Joe Valley Bank is taking a two weeks vacation. Mrs. Lena Meek is taking his place at the bank.

Priscilla Borthwick returned Tuesday from a several weeks visit with Miss Mina Bonsteel at Detroit, Mich., who accompanied her home for a visit.

Benjamin Jacques of McCook, Nebraska, who is a student at Angola, was a weekend guest of Glenn Hart. He also spent Saturday afternoon with Fred Ulm.

A number of friends and relatives from Coburn's Corners attended the funeral of Mrs. Sell Gee, held at Kendallville, Tuesday afternoon.

The Misses Thara and Pauline Shull of Hart, Michigan, came Thursday for an indefinite visit with relatives at Coburn's Corners.

Irma Tustison of Hicksville, spent Saturday night and Sunday in the home of William Bamilton and wife. Charles Tustison was also a Sunday dinner guest.

Mrs. Harriet Hepker of Wayne spent Sunday afternoon with J. T. Bets and wife. Mrs. Bets returned home with her and remained until Monday evening

Water—A necessity for your battery and car. Our supply is inexhaustible, so is our effort to serve your home GARAGE and help it give your community this service.

Will Curie and wife are spending several days at their cottage at Cold Springs. Their son Lester, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, came the first of the week to spend his vacation with them.

B. E. Widney and Samuel Widney visited A. Poince at Six Corners, Sunday afternoon. The latter has been ill for some time but is improving and expects to come home in the near future.

Ed Leighth and wife and Fred Jenkins and wife started Wednesday morning for an extended auto trip through Michigan. They go equipped fully to enjoy camping out while on the trip.

Janice Ridgway had her tonsils removed at the Amaden Hospital at Hicksville, Friday. Her brother Kenneth also underwent an operation the same day and will be a patient in the same hospital for a couple or three weeks.

Cad Shull and wife entertained at Sunday dinner the Misses Thara and Pauline Shull of Hart, Mich., Guy Platter and famify of Newville, Lee Mercer and family of near Hicksville, Mrs. T. H. Shull, son Garth and daughter Doris.

H. A. Coburn, wife and three children of Auburn, Lloyd Coburn wife and son Paul, of Garrett, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

The Auburn Community Chautauqua will be held August 1-5.

There are 385 acres of onions out this year in DeKalb County.

The White Family Reunion will be held on Sunday, July 30, at Eckhart Park in Auburn.

Charles Hamm and family, of Garrett, were Sunday guests of Merritt Sechler.

Mrs. Flora Gee and Mrs. Martha Forkner spent Thursday afternoon at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ulm and children, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway and Mrs. Emma Beams were Sunday guests at dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Curie.

Merritt Milliman and friend, Mr. Finney, of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday with St. Joe friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler spent from Thursday until Sunday evening with Hicksville relatives.

Carl A. Bassett left Saturday morning for Hammond, for an indefinite stay with friends.

Don Driver, of Napoleon, Ohio, and Kenneth Driver, of Hicksville, spent Saturday night here with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hart and children of Fort Wayne, spent Saturday night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hart.

Mrs. Al Jennings, of near Newville, and Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards, of near Edon, Ohio, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley.

The Misses Constance and Beatrice Johnson, of Indianapolis, are here, guests of their uncle, Dr. C. S. Johnson, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel, of Peru, spent from Wednesday afternoon till Thursday morning with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel.

Mr. and Mrs. Link Smith and two daughters, of Auburn Junction, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Anna Dilley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bayliss and sons Raymond Bayliss, of Ney, Ohio, and Dr. M. L. Bayliss, of Toledo, were Sunday guests of their daughter and sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hickman.

James Williams, Jr., living on South Lee Street, Garrett, and James Rainier, 110 East Third St., Auburn, and Howard Musser, living on East Seventh St., Auburn, were seriously burned by sulphuric acid in Garrett, last Wednesday noon.

Frank Lisle, of Rome City, operates his dance pavilion at Rome City resort on Sundays, which is against the law, in spite of the fact that he and members of his orchestra have to pay fines each Sunday. The fine amounts to $80.00.

Our Emergency Service—When snappy repairs and services are needed, either on the road or at the garage, we maintain it. Patronize your home Garage and help it give your community this service.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henley and children, of this place, joined by I. E. Sherrick and family, of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coburn, of Hicksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Stearle Wade and children, of near Hicksville, enjoyed a picnic dinner with Adam Lemon, near Hicksville, Sunday. Returning home the Henley family called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Monroe at Hicksville, for a short time.

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

[illegible]

5 1/2 %

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates. Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA

Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. George Seevers, near Logan, Ohio, who is ill.

Clay, Lester and John Coburn spent Sunday at Lake Hamilton, the latter remaining, where he will run a pleasure launch the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. C. C. Wodcox was called to Marion, Saturday morning, by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Harry Kees. Mr. Woodcox and two children, Martha and Malcolm, spent Sunday there.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foltz and two daughters, Pauline and Mildred, of near Holgate, Ohio, spent Saturday and Sunday as guests of their brother, J. E. Foltz and wife, and sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham.

Mrs. Jennie White, of Auburn, Mrs. Nellie O'Bryant and two children, of Columbus, Ohio, spent Friday with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terman. Mrs. White remained until Saturday morning, when she left for Hicksville for a few days visit.

Wm. Beam and family, of Logansport, John Hart, wife and three children, LaVon, Katherine and Agnes, of Ft. Wayne, Don Driver of Napoleon, Kenneth Driver, of Hicksville, Dan Myers and family, and George Kees and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees.

Mrs. Effie Waldron and Mrs. Conkey, of Farmer Center, Ohio, brought the former's mother, Mrs. John Hart, and three children, of Fort Wayne, who had been her guests, to the home of Sam Kees, here, Friday. Three other of the Hart children, who had been here visiting, Woodrow, Maxine and Leah, returned home with her.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation. Sold by all druggists.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE
Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE. - IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, July 21, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1922 No. 30

EVERYTHING TO WEAR

FOR

MEN AND BOYS

Palm Beach Suits for men and young men
$12.00 $15.00 $16.50

Palm Beach Pants $4.00 $5.00

Canvas Oxfords for summer $2 to $3.75

Silk and Pongee Shirts $1.50 to $6

Straw Hats for dress $1.50 to $5

Tennis Shoes for men and boys 75c to $1

Bathing Suits $1.00 to $7.50

Come in and see us for
Cool summer wear

Everything to wear for men and boys

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Highest Market Prices Paid
For WHEAT RYE
CORN OATS

Bring your
TIMOTHY SEED
And
ALSIKE SEED
To us. We are always in the market.

Bran, Middlings and Other Feeds always on hand. If we have not got what you want just ask for it and we will get it for you.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Come in whether you want anything or not.

Establish YOUR CREDIT

You would not expect a perfect stranger to give you much of an accomodation in a financial way. You would not ask him for a loan. You would not expect it of a banker who knew nothing of your affairs unless you could give security. But if you had done business with a banker and proven to his satisfaction that you are careful and trustworthy you could probably get an accomodation for a short time without security.

If you open a checking account at this bank we will be able to get a better [illegible] as to your [illegible] methods and financial standing. [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Land Values 25 Per Cent Lower

Average Assessments of DeKalb County Farms Cut to $59.53 an Acre

The abstract just prepared by County Auditor S. D. Johnston and mailed to the state auditor shows the county assessing officials calculated accurately when they proposed to reduce land values 25 per cent this year.

The average assessment of farm land per acre in the county this year is $59.53, as compared with $78 before, while the average of land and improvements combined is cut from $97 to $78.21.

The personal property is reduced from $10,218,390 to $8,592,010.

The total taxables are reduced from $40,258,750 to $34,239,970. These figures do not include railroads and other corporations, and banks assessed by the state tax board, upon which a report has not yet been received. The final total last year was over $52,000,000. This will be reduced this year by several milions.

Mortgage exemptions are increased this year from $1,228,290 to $1,315,140. Soldiers' exemptions are increased from $77,545 to $98,950.

The figures gleaned from the abstract will be found of much interest. Those for St. Joe town and for our four neighboring townships are as follows:

St. Joe: 130.49 acres, value $10,820, improvements $39,330, total $50,150, average land $82.91, average land and improvements $461.03. Lots 217, value $19,850, improvements $111,460, total $131,310, average lots $91.47, average lots and improvements $605.11. Railroad $200. Personal $137,490. Polls 55. Total taxables $319,150. Mortgage exemptions $2,400. Soldiers' exemptions $1,000.

Jackson township: 22,591 acres, value $1,315,180, improvements $462,840, total $1,778,020, average land $58.21, average land and improvements $78.70. Lots 60, value $5,050, improvements $134.70, total $18,520, average lots $84.16, average lots and improvements $308.66. Personal property $317,920. Polls 192. Total taxable property $2,114,460. Mortgage exemptions $72,850. Soldiers' exemptions, $1,300.

Concord township: 11,091.25 acres, value $696,420, improvements $192,680, total $889,100, average land $62.79, average land and improvements $80.16. Lots 55, value $700, improvements $3,700, total $4,400, average lots $12.72, average lots and improvements $80. Personal property $162,810. Polls 89. Total taxable property $1,062,310. Mortgage exemptions $34,380. Soldiers' exemptions $1,000.

Spencer township: 11,248.80 acres, value $706,310, improvements $186,770, total $893,080, average lands $62.78, average lands and improvements $79.39. Lots 174, value $11,220, improvements, $69,870, total, $81,090, average lots, $64.48, average lots and improvements, $466.03. Personal property, $285,770. Polls 119. Total taxable property, $1,259,940. Mortgage exemption $31,210. Soldiers' exemption $4,060.

Newville township: 8,855.89 acres, value, $514,990, improvements, $128,820, total $643,810, average land, $58.15, average land and improvements, $7269. Lots, 85, value, $1,350, improvements, $3,970, total, $5,320, average lots, $15.88, average lots and improvements, $62.58. Personal property, $88,450. Polls 71. Total taxable property $737,580. Mortgage exemption, $35,750. Soldiers' exemption, $520.

Placed Under Arrest

William Wireland, a Newville [illegible] appeared in the [illegible] T. C Ford in Auburn [illegible] to answer to a charge of permitting Canada [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Bank Buys Town's Notes

5 $200-Notes at Five per cent

The St. Joe Valley Bank has purchased promissiry notes, amounting to $1,000, from the St. Joe Town. The amount was in the denominations and amounts as follews:

One note for $200, due July 1, 1923;
One note for $200, due July 1, 1924;
One note for $200, due July 1, 1925;
One note for $200, due July 1, 1926;
One note for $200, due July 1, 1927.

All of these notes are payable on the first of each July after date of sale until paid, with interest at five per cent. The St. Joe Valley Bank was the only bidder for the notes.

The purpose of the sale of these evidences of indebtedness was to secure funds for the repair of the streets in the town of St. Joe.

Garrett Girl Badly Injured

Girl, Aged 3 years, Hurt in Auto Accident Near Auburn Sunday; Mother Also Hurt

Mrs. Charles Moraru and daughter, Helen, aged three years, are at Sacred Heart hospital suffering from serious injuries received when the front axle in the automobile in which they were riding broke and the machine turned over. Helen's condition is critical.

Other occupants of the car were Mr. Moraru, son, John, and daughter, Florence, and Mr. and Mrs. John Harabola. Mr. and Mrs. Harabola received bruises and cuts about the face, the others escaping with minor cuts and bruises.

The accident occured four miles north of Fort Wayne on the Auburn-Fort Wayne road. Mr. Moraru was driving and the machine was traveling about twenty-five miles an hour when the accident happened. Andrew Simon and Tudor Istrate had preceded the Morarus from Fort Wayne and when they discoverd that the Morarus car was not following they decided that Mr. Moraru had decided to take another route.

A passing motorist, whose name could not be learned, stopped the at scene of the accident shortly after it happened and although he wanted to take the injured people to a Fort Wayne hospital they insisted on going to Garrett and they were taken to their home there at 114 South Peters Street. Dr. John W. Thompson was called and he ordered Mrs. Mararu and baby removed to the hospital. Mrs. Mararu is badly cut about the head arms, and legs and her back is injured. She will recover. Helen's injuries are all internal and little hopes are held for her life.

Former Eye-Sight Restor'd

Mrs. Alice Hart Practically Blind for 4 Years Now Can See Well

Mrs. Alice Hart, of near Coburn's [illegible], is about the happiest lady around. The reason for her [illegible] is that her former eyesight has been restored.

[illegible] four years she has been [illegible] in both of her [illegible]

[illegible]

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

THE GOOD
MAXWELL

A Car You Will Be
Proud To Drive

Read The Locals

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY

Summer Vacation

Time Is Here And You'll Be Taking That Fishing Trip. We Have A Complete Line Of FISHING TACKLE

Do you need a
FLASHLIGHT
We have any kind you want

You should see
The new
TOLEDO FIRELESS
COOKSTOVE
Demonstrated

10% Off
- - On - -
All Porch Swings

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Yeiser Had To Show Them

From the BUTLER RECORD—

County Commissioner Yeiser got right "up on his ear" last week when he read the article in the Record to the effect that we were not getting as much gravel on the road south from Butler as we ought to [illegible] came to Butler and [illegible] and some of the [illegible] to see what was [illegible] that the [illegible] under [illegible] was [illegible] needed as where a new grade has been made.

It was found that on the new grade ample gravel is being put on and it is gravel of an excellent quality also, so that the probabilities are that we will have a pretty good road south from Butler to the Auburn-Newville road when it is done.

When the facts were made plain by Mr. Yeiser, the Butler men have no more to say but appreciate the fact that we are to have this much needed road improvement.

The New Storage Station on the Standard Oil grounds has been completed and is [illegible] a fine appearance.

The Martha Society will give a BAKE SALE Saturday evening in the [illegible]

JULY

American Farm Bureau

Howard M. Gore and "Brownie," His Pet.

Howard M. Gore is chief of market practices of the packer-stockyards administration. Chief Gore loves cattle.

"Sometimes I think I love them too well," he says. "Back on Crooked Run, in West Virginia, we had at one time on our farm a big steer we called 'Brownie.' We had petted him and taught him to stick his tongue in our coat pockets to get a nubbin of corn or a lick of salt.

"He never came home from a county fair or a stock show without the purple ribbon. Isidore Meyer of New York, who saw the steer, told us to ship him to his concern there and he would make him bring more than any steer ever brought on the New York market.

"We decided to ship out. I was down at the pasture gate to see the boys turn the cattle out to move them to town. As I stood there I felt a tongue stuck into my coat pocket and later it caressed my face. I opened the gate and turned Brownie back into the pasture."

FRUIT GROWERS PLAN LARGE SALES AGENCY

Fruit Grower Enabled to Sell His Product Co-operatively at All City Markets.

The establishment of a nation-wide sales and distribution service by the Federated Fruit Growers, Inc., has just been announced by the American Farm Bureau federation. A contract has been signed with the North American Fruit Exchange whereby the force and effectiveness of the two organizations are brought together under the name of the Federated Fruit Growers, Inc., effective January 1, 1923.

The North American Fruit Exchange has been operating as a nation-wide, non-speculative sales agency for fruit and vegetable products since 1911 and is now being used by a large number of co-operative associations and is said to be the largest of all sales organizations serving the general fruit and vegetable industry. The arrangement is effected in order to give the Federated Fruit Growers' members the advantage of an experienced sales service immediately.

Arthur R. Rule, vice-president and general manager of the North American Fruit Exchange, will become general manager of the Federated Fruit Growers, Inc., beginning January 1, 1923. Mr. Rule has had a wide experience in the marketing of perishables. [illegible]

Arthur R. Rule.

[illegible] according to a co-operative plan. It will likewise mean a better quality of products and improved service for the consumers. From member co-operative associations of the Federated Fruit Growers, Inc., and the larger permanent clientele of the North American Fruit Exchange sufficient tonnage is already assured to make the new co-operative sales service a pronounced and continued success from a business point of view."

Commenting on the uniting of the North American Fruit Exchange and the Federated Fruit Growers, Inc., recently organized under the auspices of the American Farm Bureau federation, J. R. Howard, president of the latter, made the following brief statement: "I believe this to be one of the greatest accomplishments yet made in the development of co-operative marketing and in the elimination of waste between the producer and the consumer."

MILK AND CREAM ON MARKET

Producers Adjacent to Four Large Cities Completing Co-operative Organization.

Ohio milk producers are rapidly completing their co-operative marketing organizations, according to reports received from the State Farm Bureau federation. Organization activities center around the Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati and Cleveland territories.

In the Columbus market territory the Scioto Valley Co-operative Milk Producers' association is just starting membership work. They are setting up an organization which leaders promise will give real service to producer, buyer and consumer alike in the bringing of both milk and cream to market.

The Miami Valley Milk Producers' association has employed A. F. Hedges, county agent in Montgomery county, as general manager. They are working hard to complete their organization in about two counties remaining in the district before starting on their actual sales work.

In the Cleveland and Cincinnati territories the activities are largely of a reorganization nature and extension of area covered. Membership campaigns are going forward in both sections, and the organizations, under new leadership, are being strengthened. E. D. Waid, marketing specialist of the farm bureau federation is working with all four groups.

AIM OF VEGETABLE GROWERS

Ohio Producers Co-operating With Farmers in Other States to Increase Sales.

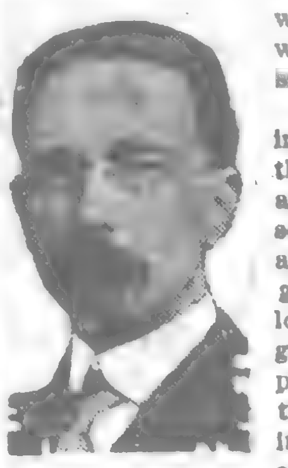
[illegible]

Looking In on Congress From the House Gallery

FIRST VIEW OF CONGRESS

By CONGRESSMAN GUY U. HARDY

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.



If you came to Washington for the first time and wanted to see congress in action, what would you do and what would you see?

I remember doing that very thing a few years ago—coming as a sort of tourist—and I sat in the gallery and looked on. I can get the viewpoint, I think, of the person looking down as well as that of a member who is on the floor.

On that trip a member friend took me in to see the late speaker, Champ Clark. It was in the beginning of the great war. My friend said to Mr. Clark: "Mr. Hardy has come down to Washington to see what we are doing." Mr. Clark replied in his characteristic way: "If he can find out, I hope to God he will let me know." And it is ever so, we are all seeking information about the congress, even the speaker of the house sometimes.

We have got to start from someplace, so we might as well assume that you have come to my office in the house office building. Every man who comes to Washington should call on his congressman. The representatives are always glad to see folks from back home; especially so are the members from the West. Some members from near-by states have more callers than they can well take care of.

The house office building is a fine structure, built of marble. It has 410 office and committee rooms in it. Each member is entitled to an office room. If he is chairman of a committee he gets two, sometimes. The building covers a large block of ground with a grass-covered court in the center. There are five floors and a basement. It is a mile walk around the corridors on the four sides of the five floors.

Through the Tunnel to the Capitol.

After we have had a little visit I will take you over to the capitol. You have already seen that magnificent building from the outside and will see it many times before you leave the city, so we will go over underground, just to show you the tunnel. This tunnel, which is large, well lighted and spacious, runs for about two blocks, I should think. By the use of it a member can go back and forth in winter or hot summer time and during bad weather without putting his hat on, if he wishes. It isn't used much in good weather. Over on the senate side through a similar tunnel a little electric car system carries the senators back and forth between their office building and the capitol; but the representatives of the people have to walk.

Arriving at the capitol, we will go up in the gallery and look down on the house for a while.

You will be disappointed at first by the small number of members present. Every member doesn't sit in his seat all the time every day. If he did, he would not be able to keep up with his office business, and besides that, he would grow nutty. Much of the time is spent in general debate, and much of the debate is very general. So when a definite time has been set for general debate—two hours being the usual time, though it may be 12 hours sometimes—a member not interested can safely get up and go to his office, or visit out in the cloak rooms for a while. During general debate it often happens that not more than 75 or 100 members are in their seats. After a while some one will probably call for a quorum, and then we will see the house fill up with members, as most of them like to answer as many roll calls as possible.

We will sit here in the gallery for a while. This is a historic old room. It has been occupied since 1857, so it has seen much history made. It used to have desks in it, but when the number of representatives was last increased the desks were taken out and plain comfortable rows of seats put in. A member has no special seat. He may sit anywhere he pleases. The Democrats sit on one side and the Republicans on the other.

Speaker Gillett Presiding.

[illegible] pretty well of him is indicated by the fact that one of them who died recently left $100,000 to him, $100,000 to his wife and an equal amount to each of his two daughters.

At Mr. Gillett's left stands a young man who is official timekeeper. Whenever a member is recognized to speak he has a definite amount of time. Rarely it is an hour, occasionally it is 30 minutes, but usually it is only five or ten minutes. The timekeeper notifies the speaker and the speaker calls the member down at the end of his allotted time. By unanimous consent the member is sometimes permitted to proceed for five or ten minutes longer, and I have seen members plead and beg the house for five minutes, or two minutes or one minute more, like a Methodist preacher pleading for money to pay off the church debt. Sometimes it is granted, but often a member says "I object," and that settles it.

Parliamentarian Is Important.

At the right of the speaker stands another young man who is the parliamentarian. This young man is supposed to be thoroughly posted and trained in the rules and precedents of the house. He has various books of rules and precedents at hand, and advises with the speaker when any knotty points of order are to be decided.

The house has been run mostly by lawyers for a hundred years or more, and it is not a difficult matter for some lawyer member to dig up a precedent on either side of any parliamentary question brought up. The house had a speaker one time of the name of Crisp. His son Charles became the parliamentarian for Speaker Clark. Charles is now a valued member of the house. In the last congress we had both ex-Speaker Cannon and ex-Speaker Clark on the floor, but they all differ some times on points of order. It was one of the pleasures of Republicans to refer occasionally to the fact that Speaker Clark ruled "thus and so" at some time in the past, and Speaker Clark announced several times in his facetious way: "As a member on the floor of the house, I do not propose to be bound by any rulings I made from the speaker's chair."

So you can see that with a couple of hundred lawyers in the house there is at times much argument and jangling over points of order and modes of procedure.

Mann Knows All the Rules.

However, when James R. Mann is on the floor the chair soon gets some advice that he can depend upon. I think that Mr. Mann knows more about the rules and precedents of the house than all the other members combined, and he usually has his way, because the man in the chair knows that he knows what he is talking about.

In front and below the speaker at another marble desk are the reading clerks, men have to be men of considerable ability.

Below and in front are the Congressional Record clerk and the official reporters. Every word that is spoken in the house is taken down by an official stenographer. There are five or six of them. They work in shifts of about 20 minutes each. As soon as a stenographer is through with his task he goes to his room and reads his notes into a phonograph. An amanuensis takes the record and puts the stuff through a typewriter and within an hour a member may read and correct the speech he has made.

Tomorrow morning the Congressional Record will contain a complete report of today's proceedings. The Record is a little abused, I think. It is a valuable publication and contains much information, little humor, some wisdom, and a minute report of the proceedings of the house. It contains some speeches that are not delivered in the house. Members occasionally get permission to extend their remarks, and a speech of five minutes may be extended over several pages. To do this unanimous consent must be asked in each instance, which means that if any member merely says, "I object," the permission is not granted. There are watchdogs of the Record as there are of the treasury, and someone frequently objects. Mr. Clark once said that the greatest speech ever made on an important subject of interest [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JULY 30

THE FIRST RETURN FROM EXILE

LESSON TEXT—Jer. 29:10-14; Ezra 1:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—We know that all things work together for good to them that love God.—Romans 8:28.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Psalms 89; 180; 181; Jer. 29.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's People Return Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Kept a Great Promise.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Kept a Great Promise.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Striking Manifestations of God's Providence.

I. The Return From Captivity Predicted (29:10-14).

It seems that false prophets were flourishing in Babylon telling the people that they would speedily be restored to their own land. To counteract this the Lord moved Jeremiah to send this letter to the captives in Babylon (vv. 8, 9). In this letter he advised them to settle down and quietly pursue their regular callings of life and not to be led astray by the false prophets (vv. 6, 7).

1. The length of the captivity (v. 10). Their coming back was to be "after seventy years." From Daniel 9:2 it is clear that seventy years means a definite time. It dates from the time when the first company was taken captive among which Daniel was found.

2. Recovered by God (vv. 10-14). God's purpose in the captivity was to cure them of their idolatrous practices. He assured them that when His purpose was accomplished he would visit them and convince them of His good purpose toward them. When once this was done they would call upon Him in sincerity and He would be found of them. Their captivity He would turn away; gather them from all the nations and bring them into their own land.

II. Prediction of Captivity Fulfilled (Ezra 1:1-11).

1. The proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4). (1) This was not by accident, but that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled (v. 1). What God has promised He will do; He never forgets. Wherever we find a promise which He hath made we can rest upon it; He will make good. (2) By divine initiation (v. 1). "The Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus." How this was done we do not know. Possibly Daniel brought to his attention the prophecy of Isaiah and Jeremiah (Isa. 44:28; Jer. 25:12). Every impulse to do good in all men is caused by the Lord—even a heathen king who may not have been conscious of doing His will, at God's appointed time took the initiative in this matter. It may have been that Cyrus only saw his own action as a piece of statecraft—the creation of a buffer state nation between his kingdom and that of Egypt. Be that as it may, God stirred him up to do His will. (3) The content of His proclamation (vv. 2-4). (a) "The Lord God of heaven hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (v. 2). This makes clear that he had some impression of God's hand upon him. (b) Appeal to Jewish patriotism (v. 3). He invokes God's blessing upon such as possess the national religious feeling and commands them to go and build the house of the Lord God. (c) Lend assistance (v. 4). Many of the Jews were established in business and therefore were not free to go. Many, no doubt, had lost their national spirit and therefore were not anxious to go.

All such were to lend friendly assistance in silver, gold and beasts. Those who cannot go to do God's work should strengthen the hands of those who do go.

2. The response of Cyrus' proclamation (vv. 5, 6). The chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin and the priests and Levites presented themselves as willing and ready to go. The company which returned was largely made up of representatives of Judah and Benjamin.

3. The royal favor (vv. 7-11). Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem and put into the house of his gods. This was a great encouragement to every loyal Jew whose heart had been grieved over the profanation of these sacred vessels. Now to have 5,400 of these vessels returned to their owners and sent back to Jerusalem to be put to their original use, met a hearty response by the Jews.

Who Knoweth the Lord's Mind.

[illegible]

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills
The reason
Get a 25¢ Box
NR Tonight — Tomorrow Alright

WATCH THE BIG 4

Stomach-Kidneys-Heart-Liver

Keep the vital organs healthy by regularly taking the world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for centuries and endorsed by Queen Wilhelmina. At all druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Eyes of Youth.

Wood—There is no accounting for youthful impulses.

Park—Meaning what, may I inquire?

"In a movie comedy the other day I saw a big lion chasing one of the slapstick artists—"

"Uh, huh—"

"And a little kid in the audience yelled, 'Run, lion, run.'"

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin

Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Advertisement.

Thyroid for the Bald.

How baldness was cured by doses of thyroid gland is described in the Lancet by Dr. H. W. Barber, physician in charge of the skin department at Guy's hospital. A Dutch girl who had suffered from almost complete baldness for several years was given ten grains of thyroid gland daily for several weeks. As a result hair is now growing freely over the whole of her scalp.

There is nothing more satisfactory after a day of hard work than a line full of snowy white clothes. For such results use Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

Describing Him.

"How is your new hired man, Lester?"

"He's the kind of a feller," replied Farmer Flumlegate, "that when he sets down is entirely unmoved by criticism."—Kansas City Star.

RADIO

Apparatus will be sold to millions of people this fall and winter. Have you considered the advantages to your general business of installing a Radio department?

Just how to establish such a department and maintain it at a high level of efficiency is told by

Radio Merchandising

The Semi-Monthly Magazine of the Radio Industry

One dollar will bring it to you for four months—Three dollars a year.

Radio Publishing Corporation
Incorporated
Dept. 30, 342 Madison Ave., New York City

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands of home seekers and their families [illegible] FREE homesteads or [illegible] attractive prices. They have [illegible] their own homes and secured prosperity [illegible]. In the great grain-growing [illegible] prairie provinces there is still to be had on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

[illegible]

JULY

VALUABLE HICKORY TIMBER GROWS SCATTERINGLY OVER LARGE AREAS

Group of Hickories—Pignut in the Center, Shagbark on the Sides—Putnam County, Tennessee.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Hickory timber, although held in seemingly vast amount by the forests of the country, may soon become insufficient to meet American manufacturing and woodworking needs. The increasing demand for this valuable species, together with the scattered character of its growth in the forest, has resulted in merchantable stands becoming more and more inaccessible and difficult to log.

Stands Are Widely Scattered.

The Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, puts the country's present supply of hickory, distributed through 200,000,000 acres of forests, at 15,784,000,000 board feet. Of this the Central states have 1,791,000,000 feet, the lower Mississippi states 5,171,000,000 feet, the South Atlantic and East Gulf states 3,183,000,000 feet, the Middle Atlantic states 412,000,000 board feet, the Lake states 187,000,000 feet, and the New England states 40,000,000 feet.

One of the uses to which hickory is put is the manufacture of spokes for automobile wheels. The yearly demand upon the hickory reserves by this industry alone is tremendous, as there is much waste in getting the select stock necessary not only for spokes but also the rims of wheels.

Industries Compete for Hickory.

For the most part vehicle and agricultural implement industries compete with the handle industry for hickory and ash. These are located mainly in the Middle West, but now derive most of their wood supplies from the South. A large number of far-sighted organizations purchased more or less extensive hardwood tracts some years ago, from which they are now able to draw at least a part of their wood supplies. To secure hickory, which grows scatteringly over large areas, the vehicle and vehicle-implement industries originally maintained extensive buying, logging, and milling organizations in the South. They draw upon every conceivable source—farmers' wood-lots, small mills, large sawmills, and even specialized operations designed to secure hickory alone. These concerns in general carry in stock about a two years' supply of special-dimension stock.

Makers of automobile wheels say that they can still get the material required if they make sufficient effort and pay the price, but it is necessary to go farther and farther away for it. Many inquiries received by the forest service from vehicle implement makers, requesting information on possible substitutes for the woods used in vehicle making, is merely another indication of the difficulties in getting adequate supplies at the present time and of uncertainty as to the future.

Ten Different Kinds of Hickories.

Hickory is often referred to as if it were a single species, like red gum or yellow poplar. In reality there are 10 different kinds of hickory trees. For hickory-handle purposes those known as true hickories are most valuable. The pecan hickories include the water, nutmeg, and bitter nut varieties. The true hickories comprise shagbark, pig shellbark, pignut, and mocker nut. The handle industry is largely dependent on this last group of trees for its raw material.

The annual consumption of hickory by the handle trade is something over 120,000,000 feet board measure. Little, if any, of this material passes through the sawmills, for it is [illegible] cut and shipped to the handle factories in the form of log bolts or billets. All hickories do not give the same service when made into handles. The various parts of the same tree may show different [illegible] hatchet. There is a certain strength, toughness and elasticity to hickory which nature has denied to other commercial woods. Some are stronger, many are harder, but the rare combination of the qualities mentioned is lacking in all of them.

[illegible]

The raw material for handles in the form of short log bolts is sometimes split into handle blanks in the woods, but the usual practice is to rip-saw the bolts into blanks at the factory. The split-handle blank is considered superior to the sawed blank in that it insures a straight-grain handle. On the other hand, sawed blanks, though they are likely to show more cross grain, are more economical in the use of timber.

Hickory, due to its unrivaled properties of great strength, elasticity, and resiliency, is used exclusively in the manufacture of handles of golf clubs. The constantly increasing popularity of this sport has placed another demand on the hickory supply.

KEEP CONTAINERS UP TO THEIR FULL SIZE

"Short" Baskets Due to Lack of Proper Inspection.

Manufacturers Are Ready to Correct Any Defects Pointed Out by Department of Agriculture—Shippers Blamed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A "short" tomato basket masquerading as a 4-quart till basket. The United States Department of Agriculture picks up the scent. On the "trail of the troublesome till," the chase is called.

Partly through a desire to conform to the wishes of the shippers and partly because of failure to have the basket forms inspected frequently, containers far short of the standard measure were being made. Short-measure till baskets for fruits and vegetables are frequently the result of careless handling of the forms used in manufacturing the containers, the department points out. Dropping the forms on the floor or otherwise mishandling them can easily knock them out of shape.

Forms and containers of numerous basket manufacturers in the United States are inspected as often as possible by the department, and the experience has been that the manufacturers are ready to correct any defects in a desire to turn out baskets of standard size. But the department cannot get around to all manufacturers, who are therefore being urged to have their forms frequently inspected and to submit samples of their output to the department to be tested. If the shippers generally would also appreciate the desirability of uniform containers, the standardization of containers would be a simple matter, says the department.

SOY BEAN GOOD CATCH CROP

Regular Practice at Missouri Agricultural College and Is Very Successful.

The growing of soy beans as a catch crop after wheat is a regular practice at the Missouri agricultural experiment station and has been very successful. Under some conditions the catch crop is worth as much as the main crop. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

RADIO

HOW TO CONSTRUCT SIMPLE RADIO SETS

Materials That Are Necessary and Method of Assembling and Mounting Them.

For those who would like to construct a simple nonregenerative vacuum tube receiver, the details of several sets will be given, before taking up the explanation of the vacuum tube as an amplifier. The circuits which will be described depend upon the vacuum tube for a detector or as a rectifier not having the additional function of an oscillator.

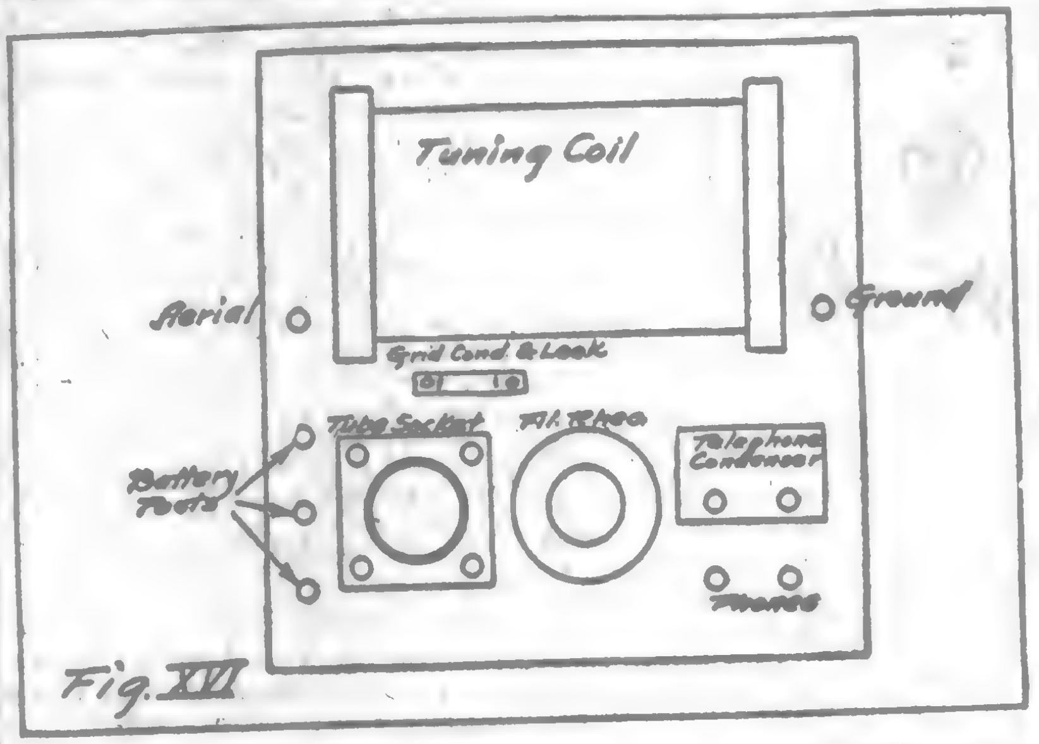

Fig. XVI

The first set described will be that of a tuning coil mounted on a horizontal base board. The following material is necessary for its construction:

The Tuning Coil.

A piece of cardboard tubing, outside diameter, three inches, and five inches long. It will cost about 10 cents.

One hundred feet of No. 22 DCC magnet wire. Cost about 25 cents.

One standard slider to fit ¼ by ¼-inch brass rod. Cost about 40 cents.

A six-inch length of ¼ by ¼-inch square brass rod. Cost about 20 cents.

Two circular blocks of wood, whose diameter is just equal to the inside diameter of the cardboard tubing and between ⅝ and ½ inch thick.

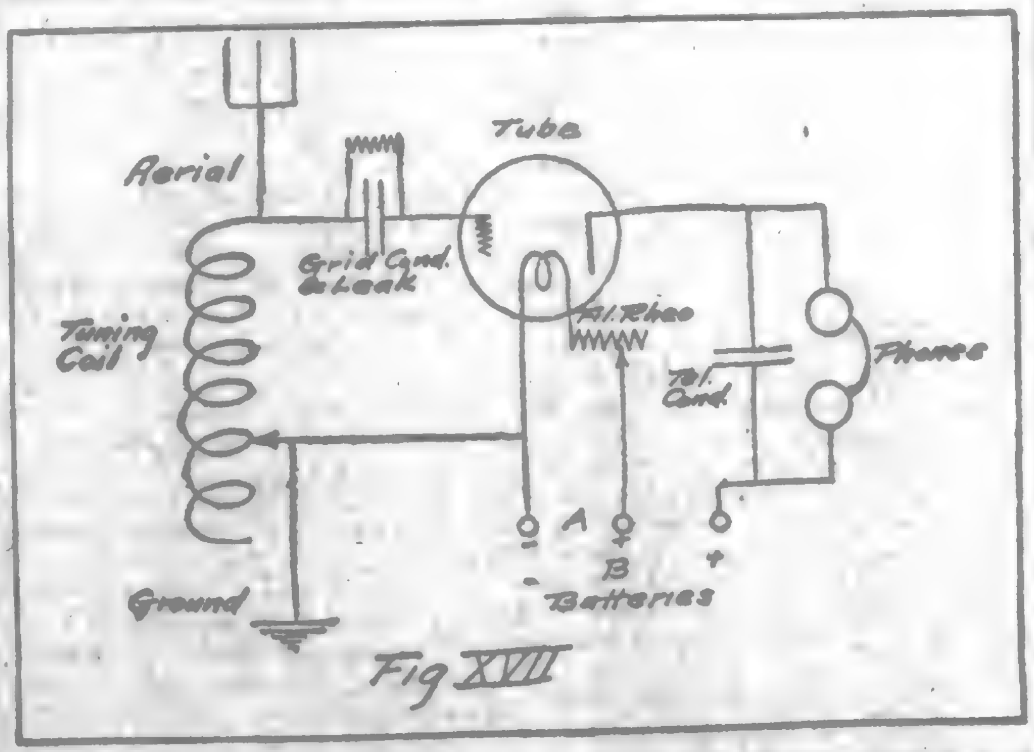

Fig. XVIII

Two binding posts. Some orange shellac.

The Detector.

A type U V Radiotron vacuum tube which sells for $5.

The standard vacuum tube socket costing about $1.

A filament rheostat of 6-11 ohms resistance costing about $11.

A combination grid condenser and grid leak for the U V 200 Radiotrom costing 55 cents.

In addition a phone condenser costing 50 cents.

One pair of Murdock No. 56 receivers costing $6.

For mounting on base board:

One piece of wood eight inches square.

Five binding posts.

This set requires, of course, an "A" battery to light the vacuum tube filament and a "B" battery to furnish the plate potential. The "A" battery should be a six-volt storage battery of not less than 20 ampere hours' capacity. One 22½-volt "B" battery unit is necessary for a source of plate potential.

Assembling the Coil.

Starting one-half inch from one end of the cardboard tube, wind on the No. 22 DCC wire until within one-half inch of the other end of the tube. Fasten one end of the winding to the tube, but allow some surplus wire on the other end for making a connection. After the winding is in place apply a thin coat of orange shellac to hold the turns in place.

Assemble the circular-cut pieces of wood in the geometrical center of square blocks and then shellac or varnish them for appearance' sake.

When thoroughly dry slip the two end blocks into the wound tube and by means of a few finishing brads driven through the cardboard tube fasten the end blocks to the wound tube.

The slider is to be mounted on top of the coil and should be capable of making contact with any turn of the wire on the tube. In order to remove the insulation from the wire, just under the rod where the slider moves back and forth wrap a piece of sandpaper around a thin piece of wood and, using another piece of wood as a guide, sandpaper the insulation from the winding.

Drill a hole one-eighth inch in diameter through the slider rod about one-fourth inch in from each end so that the rod is fastened in place; see that the contact finger on the bottom of the slider can at all times make good contact with the windings. Mount a binding post on either end of the coil, attaching one by means of a wire to the slider rod and the other to the end of the wire wound on the tube, and the tuning coil is complete.

Mounting the Set on Base Board.

It is only necessary now to mount the compenent parts on the base board and connect them up.

Fig. 16 shows the relative positions of the instrument mounted on an eight-inch square base board, with the actual wiring diagram. Fig. 17 shows a schematic diagram of the wiring of the same set.

GREAT PLANT IN MELBOURNE

Australian City Is Building Radio Station for Direct Communication With Great Britain.

The work of [illegible] Great [illegible]

[illegible]

SHORT FLASHES

San Francisco is receiving concerts broadcast at Schenectady, N. Y.

In New York a squad of soldiers was [illegible] in an armory [illegible] at the commands of a [illegible] Island.

[illegible]

GOOD ROADS

LIGHT-EDGED ROADS FRIABLE

Some Sections of Bates Experimental Road Break Under Traffic of Light Trucks.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some of the lighter sections of the Bates experimental road failed under the traffic of light trucks driven along the edge of the surfaces on the first day of the test. The road, which was especially constructed for the experiments now being conducted by the state highway department of Illinois in co-operation with the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, is two miles long and consists of numerous sections of different types of construction.

On March 30, the day the road was opened for the tests, 12 trucks with bodies removed to make a load of 2,500 pounds on each rear wheel were started on trips, which will continue with increasing loads until the suitability of each type is determined. The trucks were driven so that the outside wheels were on the edge of the paving, and almost immediately some of the sections began to fail. This was expected, as the sections were of light design and intended to demonstrate the futility of such construction.

The road will be subjected to a number of tests under the destructive pounding of the trucks, and it is expected that much valuable information will be gained for use in future road construction. In addition to specialists assigned to investigate soil conditions, temperature effects, and other factors, five engineers are constantly observing the effect as the trucks continue their daily grind. The experiments will continue until all the sections have been thoroughly tested.

Method of Obtaining Deflection and Deformation of Pavement Under Load When Sub-grade Has Been Removed.

BOOM IN MATERIAL TESTING

Increase in Facilities Has Grown Rapidly in Past Few Years in Different States.

The great boom in highway building which has come since the federal-aid act of 1916 has led to an increase in the facilities for testing highway materials. The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture keeps in touch with all laboratories which test material for federal-aid roads and reports that the number has grown from a scattered few in 1916 to at least one in every state with two exceptions. They are distributed as follows: State highway department laboratories 20, university laboratories 27, and commercial laboratories 21, a total of 68.

Conditions have become such that it is practically a necessity for each state to have means of quick testing in order not to delay work. In passing on materials the laboratories are governed by the idea that roads must be constructed with materials close at hand wherever possible and give assurance for the use of such material where it is suitable.

ROAD DESIGNATED BY NUMBER

New Method Officially Adopted by New England States to Replace Color System.

The new method of designating highways by numbers officially adopted by the New England states to replace the color [illegible], is remarkable for [illegible]. When fully carried out [illegible]

[illegible]

ARE YOU GIVING OUT?

Does every day mean just another day of suffering? Are you lame, stiff and achy—tortured with a nerve-racking backache? Surely there's a reason why you feel so badly and likely it's weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail, poisons accumulate and upset the whole system. That's why you have constant backache and sharp, stabbing twinges. You may have headaches, nervous and dizzy spells with annoying bladder irregularities. Don't risk serious kidney disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

Mrs. M. Rice, 113 Miller St., Ligonier, Ind., says: "My kidneys troubled me awfully and I suffered with such backaches I could hardly keep on my feet. Headaches and dizziness annoyed me, too. My kidneys acted irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time I was free from the terrible backaches and my kidneys were strengthened."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

A Postponed Repentance.

There was a man out in Wisconsin who went to a revival meeting and was pressed to repent. He wavered for a time and finally arose and said: "Friends, I want to repent and tell how bad I have been, but I dasn't do it when the grand jury is in session."

"The Lord will forgive," the revivalist shouted.

"Probably He will," answered the sinner; "but He ain't on that grand jury."—Boston Transcript.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

The Sacrifice.

Edith—I don't see why you like that group picture of our society. It wasn't particularly good of you.

Isabel—I know it, but it had such a perfectly horrid portrait of that conceited Miss Gushing.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Baby's little dresses will just simply dazzle if Red Cross Ball Blue is used in the laundry. Try it and see for yourself. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

Sugar-Beet Seed.

Much of the sugar-beet seed imported into the United States comes from Germany, and is received through the port of Galveston.—Scientific American.

The poorest Arab woman paints her eyes with kohl to make them appear larger and more brilliant.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

"111" cigarettes

They are GOOD! 10¢

Buy this Cigarette and Save Money

ABSORBINE

[illegible] Lameness

[illegible] similar troubles and gets horse going sound. It acts mildly but quickly and good results are lasting. [illegible] bottle [illegible]

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., [illegible] Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year, - - $1.50
Six Months, - - - .75
Three Months, - - - .40
One Month, - - - .15
Single Copy, - - - .05
(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

DeKalb CountY Farm Notes

Free Trip to Home Economics School September 4-9

During the State Fair Sept 4th-9th, there will be a home economics school conducted on the state fair grounds. Each year each county can send one girl to this school. The Farm Bureau for several years past has been helping to send this representative from DeKalb.

Girls get busy. Any farm girl in DeKalb Co. is eligible to compete for this try provided she meets the following requirements:

1. Contestants must be between the ages of 16 and 25.

2. Each girl must design and make a practical gingham dress to be finished and entered at Auburn by Aug. 15th. Judging to be done by Miss Vandivier, girls club leader at Auburn High School.

3. Contestants must be seriously interested in this line of work and willing, if chosen, to help other girls in the county another year, if need be, in promoting club work.

DeKalb Co. is proud of her boys and girls in school and club work and we surely want to be represented at the State Fair School by some girl from this county.

The expenses of the winner will be paid by DeKalb Co. men and women who have faith in DeKalb Co. girls and we hope a large number will compete for the trip.

As the time for closing the contest is not far distant, let's get to work and do our best. Some girl is going to win. Offering any assistance I might be able to give to the girls, I am

Very respectfully,
Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith,
Spencerville, Ind.

Black Rust of Wheat

One barberry bush in Decatur Co. on the farm of Milton Tremain, caused a loss of $7,000. Two hundred and fifty acres of wheat were ruined and a severe loss was caused on wheat over an area four miles long and 1½ miles wide.

One bush in Geo. Duncan's yard, just north of Waterloo 2½ miles, destroyed a 10 acre field for him and another field of about the same size for his neighbor across the road. Besides other people's wheat nearby was badly affected. Again the damage alone is considerable. Mr. Duncan did not have one bushel of salable wheat out of his field.

Every farmer in this county should be on the lookout for the common barberry bush. If you had very much black stem rust on your wheat this year the chances are that there is Common barberry bush in your vicinity.

Anyone knowing of any common barberry bushes should report same to county agent.

Nitrogen Question Big One on Farms

Clover helps increase corn and wheat yields by supplying plant food.

The nitrogen question is the most important soil fertility problem before the corn-belt farmer.

Investigations by Purdue on virgin and cropped soils at 31 localities in Indiana show that there has been a loss of 27 per cent nitrogen caused by cropping. The loss of [illegible] phosphorus and potash was only [illegible] per cent.

On Purdue Experiment [illegible] plots started in 1889 and [illegible] continuously without [illegible] for 32 years, the loss of nitrogen has averaged 42 pounds per acre per year, a [illegible] 25 percent of the [illegible] loss of nitrogen [illegible] has been [illegible] more than was removed [illegible].

[illegible]

be ideally situated for great efficiency in nitrogen supply, there is no question but that greater efforts must be put forth to replenish and conserve nitrogen. Only about one-tenth of the cultivated land in the middle west is in legumes. More legumes must be grown before the decline in nitrogen will stop.

On three Indiana experiment fields where corn, wheat, clover has been compared to corn, wheat, timothy, corn has averaged 6.5 bushels more and wheat 3.6 bushels more with clover than with timothy.

Lime, phosphate and potash are particularly valuable in aiding to get good legume crops. When used with legumes they act to a certain extent an indirect nitrogenous fertilizer. Until more legumes are grown some nitrogen in the fertilizer will prove profitable on the thinner soils.—S. D. Conner, Dep's. of Soils, Purdue University.

Any girl has a chance to get a free trip to the Home Economics School at State Fair. Read about it above.

The boys and girls are getting ready for the big picnic, Aug. 1st, at Eckhart Park.

Don't forget the big Fairfield Picnic at Cases Grove. Big Bill Settles will be there with one of his usual good talks.

All people who are interested in making money with poultry are going on the poultry tour, Aug 17th. See more about it later.

Marshall County, just two counties straight west of DeKalb, has over 5,000 acres of alfalfa. It is an indication that they are devoting time and thought to the matter of crop rotation and soil management.

If DeKalb wants to keep up with some of its neighbors it will have to plant more alfalfa. If it has as much alfalfa as Marshall Co., it would need only a little over 330 acres per township. This is only a little over two fair sized farms.

If you have a field of soil that you would like tested for soil acidity, take a sample out of the top 6 inches and another in the second 6 inches immediately below, and bring or send it via parcel post to the county agent office. It will be tested at once and a report sent to party immediately.

Now is the time to mow pasture weeds. Mowing weedy pastures once or twice a year will gradually drive the weeds out and the pasture grasses will take their place. The same thing is true concerning the roadside.

Have you mowed the Canada thistles that you may have on your place? The writer saw some the other day that were ripe and blowing over on other fields. The seed will grow here in DeKalb Co. That has been definitely shown. Cut and burn now.

B. H. REPP. County Agent.

Waterloo Man Arrested

John Bonecutter, of Waterloo, is held in the DeKalb county jail at Auburn, on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, following an accident Saturday night, in which, it is alleged, his car smashed into an auto occupied by August Diederick and Thomas Pinder, of Garrett. Sheriff Hoodelmeir, of Auburn, happened to be near the scene of the accident and discovered a gallon jug of hard cider in Bonecutter's car. The other three men in the car escaped during the excitement. Deputy Prosecutor Charles Smith stated today that he would file an affidavit on the above charges against Bonecutter Monday morning, in the DeKalb circuit court.

The accident occured one mile north of Auburn, on the road to Waterloo. Diederick and Pinder were in a Gardner car. According to Diederick, Bonectter was driving on the wrong side of the road with the result that the cars smashed head-on and were both ditched. Pinder was hurled through the windshield and received severe lacerations on his face. The others suffered minor bruises.

Tallest Woman Dead; Order Special Casket

Miss May W[illegible], the "tallest woman in the world," is dead. [illegible]

8,000 HIKING CLUBS IN GREATER NEW YORK

They Swing Along Highways and Through Woods in Groups of Varying Size.

New York.—One must walk nowadays to be in the swim. Statistics gleaned from the out-door departments of the newspapers, from the Boy Scout and Campfire Girls' organizations, from the Y. M. C. A. branches and kindred bodies, from scores of amateur athletic clubs and from the leading dealers in sporting goods, indicate that today there are no less than 8,000 hiking clubs in Greater New York, with a total membership of more than a quarter of a million men and women, who are keeping themselves in the pink of condition and experiencing the real joy of living by getting regularly out into the open country with no other means of locomotion than their God-given legs.

"Best Walkers Make Best Citizens," Says Mayor of New York.

The city of New York has taken official notice of the movement. On three occasions, recently Mayor Hylan has congratulated the boys and girls of the public schools upon their enthusiasm in taking up the new sport of hiking. In his dedication of the great new public playground in the Bronx the other day Mayor Hylan extolled the athletic tendencies of the boys and girls and impressed upon them that there was no better or more profitable way in which they could pass their vacations and utilize their holidays than by the excursions into field and forest of their walking clubs. He gave the same message to the Amateur Athletic Union of Brooklyn a few days later, and when a club of East Side boys and girls visited him at city hall preparatory to a hike to the tomb of Roosevelt at Oyster Bay he assured them that the best walkers among them would make the best citizens.

Walk and Be Well

No less enthusiastic a champion of the walking game is Dr. Royal S. Copeland, city health commissioner. "The benefit to health and the safeguard to morals to be found in long walks," said Dr. Copeland in an interview, "are too apparent to speak of them. If one takes long walks alone it is well, for he walks the road of health, but if he takes long walks in company it is better for he adds the tonic of companionship to his exercise. Walking is the one form of exercise in which there is the minimum risk of overdoing it. In short, I consider walking the most beneficial of all exercises and it is never out of season."

"Never in my life-time," said Edward R. Wilbur, manager of a nationally known sporting goods store, "have I known such a demand as now for outdoor garments and shoes and stockings and appliances for the tourist's luncheon box. The rapid spread and tremendous popularity of the walking-club idea has no parallel in our experience.

"The hiker can make his requisite just what he feels like spending. Really, there are only two or three articles indispensable to hiking—thick walking shoes that allow lots of room, thick woolen socks and clothing that will give freedom of limb. He should have a canvas or leather musette bag, such as the soldiers used in France.

The Cow in the Knapsack

"To get the real benefit and joy out of hiking luncheon should be carried and prepared and eaten in the open. Bread and cheese, a few slices of bacon, some coffee, a can of condensed milk, and a cake of chocolate furnish high-powered fuel for the hiker and are readily and happily assimilated even by those who in their pre-hiking days were afflicted with digestive apparatus so feeble as to balk at crackers and milk. Fortunately for the hiker he can replenish his simple larder at any cross-roads store and provide himself with the most nutritious and [illegible] food in a form that can be [illegible] carried.

"The [illegible] in the problem of [illegible] for the [illegible] and all lovers of the [illegible] [illegible]

There are 555 Indiana farmers vying with one another to make a ton of pork out of a single litter of pigs in six months, but Ted Kryder, a Pig Club lad of McClure, Ohio, found such a task comparatively easy, according to M. L. Howell, Agricultural Agent, of Henry County, Ohio.

Ted's pig club gilt farrowed and saved all of a litter of nine pigs April 12, 1921, and on September 4, when 145 days old, they weighed 1926 pounds, averaging 214 pounds. The litter at that time lacked 38 days of being six months old, and at the same rate of gain, which up to that time was 1.47 pounds per day each, the litter would have weighed 2,409 pounds at the end of the six months period, and the pigs would have averaged 268 pounds.

Ted Kryder is the son of Senator Geo. E. Kryder, who has one of the most attractive herds of Jersey cattle in northwestern Ohio. Ted was made Champion Pig Producer winner for the State of Ohio at the 1920 State Fair.

HERE AND THERE

Renew your subscription.

Get your August Magazines.

E. P. Brown and wife were Fort Wayne visitors Monday.

Mrs. Hollis Jackson spent Monday evening with her father, Wm. Brown and wife.

Charles Koch and son Joseph were Waterloo visitors, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. H M. Widney and Mrs. Alice Copp were Fort Wayne visitors Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Woodcox, Miss Musie and Orla Woodcox were Sunday guests in the Dennis Burley home.

Jay Snyder and family visited his niece Miss Alice Snyder at the Hope-Methodist hospital at Fort Wayne, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Inhofe of Butler, spent Tuesday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Samuel Armstrong and family.

Victor Dermott and mother, Mrs. Cordelia Dermott motored to Coldwater, Mich, Saturday to visit in the J. E Dermott home, returning home Monday.

David Dill of North Manchester came Monday evening for a few days visit with his daughter, Mrs. C. R. Price, who has been quite ill but is improving.

Mrs. Florence Buchannan received word this week of the death of her sister, Mrs. Willis Brown, which occurred at LosAngeles, California, Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Riding, Mrs. F. H Langley and Mrs. Alice Warner spent from Wednesday until Monday evening at Monroeville, Ohio, having made the trip by auto.

Forest Dermott and family and Clarence Baron and family attended Grand Circuit horse races at Kalamazoo, Michigan, last Thursday, The trip being made by auto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Zimmerman and dadghter of Auburn and Mrs. Priscilla Zimmerman and daughter of Cleveland, spent Sunday afternoon as guests of Mrs. Ella Patterson.

Howard Northrup is slowly improving, being able to get about his room by the aid of crutches. He was also able to take an auto ride out to his farm one day last week.

Mrs. Hugh Languwell of Bloomington, Walter Lawson of Butler, Charles Lindley and family, Mrs. Virginia Lawson, Mrs Nan Lysher and son Edgar, were all Sunday guests of Charles Lawson and family.

Mrs. Amanda Coburn and son, Vern are moving from their residence on [illegible] Street into the former A. D. Perry property across the tracks. Mr. and Mrs. Wyllis Wilcox will soon occupy the Coburn property.

Two fast Wabash [illegible] trains have been [illegible] on account of the [illegible] No. 28, [illegible] 10:10 a. m. [illegible]

NEWVILLE

Subscribe for the NEWS.

A seven pound daughter was born July 17th, to Clark Roberts and wife.

August 7 will be observed as Home Coming Day of the Christian church.

Mrs. Ruth Hilbert and little son, of Hicksville, were Newville visitors, Sunday.

The Morningstar family, of Adrian, Michigan, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Benner, at the present writing.

Mrs. Geneva Sechler spent last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rosco Sechler, near Edgerton.

Earl McDonald, of Butler, was a Saturday night and Sunday guest of the John Miller family.

The boys who are employed on the B. & O. railroad, were at home over Sunday.

A. C. Koeppe and Mrs. Minnie Welker are reported to have been married last Friday. Mrs. Welker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Benner. Mr. Koeppe needs no introduction in this community.

Mrs. Baringer, who has spent the last month with her daughter, Mrs. Leroy Kinney, returned to her home in Ohio last week.

Walter Coburn Marries

Rev. Walter H Coburn, assistant pastor of the First Christian Church of Beatrice, Nebraska, and Miss Harriet Audrey VanDeventer of Perham, Minnesota, were married Thursday afternoon, July, 20, at three o'clock at the Christian parsonage, Rev. M. Lee Sorey, pastor officiating. The double ring ceremony was used.

The bride attended Drake University and the groom is a graduate of the same institution.

CONCORD

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lucas entertained company from his old home in the east last week.

Mrs. Walter Baker and children and Miss Loretta Funk spent Sunday near Leo with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Perry and wife.

Mrs. Nan Laysher spent one day and night last week visiting her mother and sister and family near Concord.

Mrs. Jane Hull, Mrs. Dell Dragoo and son, Clifton, Mr. Fred Hull and lady friend and sister motored to Rome City Sunday after Sunday School.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fetters, Mr. and Mrs. Elza Fetters and baby went to Eden, Ohio, Sunday to see Mrs. Fetters' sister, Lillian Jones, who has been so poorly for a long time. She was not very well and they do not know but that she will have to go to the hospital again.

James Wyatt and wife called on Mr and Mrs. Ira Bone for dinner Sunday. In the afternoon the two couples went to see Mrs. Libb Wasson, who is a patient at the Staymates hospital at Fort Wayne. They found her improving slowly. They put her in a wheel chair and took her out on the porch. She cannot walk yet, but is in good spirits. We wish her speedy recovery.

Mt. Plearant

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Haney and daughter Elizabeth, and Roy Sheffer of Albion, were guests of John Knight and family over Sunday. Miss Evalyn Knight accompanied them home and will spend the week in Albion.

The debate, Resolve that a sermon by wireless would do more good than a sermon from the pulpit, was decided in favor of the negative. Mr. Ralph Staley, Mr. [illegible] Shull and Miss Elizabeth [illegible] acted as judges. Next Sunday they will have another debate, [illegible] that home missions is [illegible] important than foreign.

[illegible]

Form Winona Lake

Winona Lake, Ind. July 118—Photographers from all parts of the United States are expected at Winona Lake during the month of August to attend the school of Photography which will be conducted under the supervision of the National Association of Photographers. The National Association recently purchased the Dagueere Bldg., formerly headquarters for the Indiana association of Photographers, and plans to convert it into a permanent school of Photography and headquarters for the National Association in the middle west. The school this year will be in session from August 1 until September 1. George Haris, of Washington, D. C. Will Towles of Washington, D. C., Pierre McDonald of New York City, F. Schanz of Ft. Wayne and other prominent photographers are included in the list of instructors.

Winona Lake is headquarters for about 500 evangelists and evangelistic workers who are members of the Interdenominational Evangelistic Association. The membership includes Rev. "Billy" Sunday and practically all other noted evangelists, nearly half a hundred of whom maintain their homes there. The general offices of the Association are at Winona being maintained by Parley E. Zartmann, general secretary.

The annual meeting of the Evangelists will be held there August 22, 23 and 24. Officers are as follows: President, Rev. Bob Jones; Vice Presidents, Rev. William A. Sunday, Dr. William E. Biederwolf, Dr. Charles R. Scoville, Dr. Milford H. Lyon; General Secretary, Dr. Parley E. Zartmann; Directors, John M. Dean, I. E. Honeywell, E. D. Johnston, G. H. Meinardi, Earle Naftzger, Homer Rodeheaver, O. A. Newlin, Charles F. Raach, Fred W. Rapp, George T. Stephens and H. E. Stoors and Thomas P. Ullum.

Christian Church Notes

The Loyal Boys and Girls class will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Miss Priscilla Borthwick, Friday afternoon.

The Martha Society met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Mary Rhodenbaugh. One guest was present. The following ladies were appointed on the work committee, Mrs. Nan Lysher, chairman, Mrs. Nellie Lindley and Mrs. Mary Rhodenbaugh.

There will be no preaching Sunday morning. Sunday School at the usual hour with communion and social meeting following.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	118	$ 5.57
M. P	67	3.49
Lutheran	84	4 68
M. E. Spencer	96	3.79
Lutheran	104	7.49
Newville U. B.	72	3.41
Christian	88
Coburntown	69	3.00
Concord	69	4.14
Rehoboth
Mt. Pleasant	73	3.98

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $15 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full [illegible] will be paid to your beneficiary.

[illegible] of this Policy [illegible]
[illegible] HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

JULY

A ROCKING HORSE

makes motion but no progress. If you are to be progressive you

Must Not Only Work

but you must save your earnings. It it almost next to impossible for you to be on the standstill, you are making or loosing. The fellow that has gone ahead of you is the man who has grasped the opportunity of savhis earnings for future investment. He has had and took advantage of their facilities.

CONFIDENCE IN THE BANK

YOU CAN DO THE SAME.

Yours truly,

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Henry Beams Jr. is still confined to his home by illness.

Miss Lillian Steffy spent Sunday with Miss Lucile Curie of St. Joe.

Mrs. S. E. Koontz spent a few days with Miss Zona Horn the past week.

Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick and daughter Priscilla, of near St. Joe, visited Mrs. J. C. Vallieu on Saturday.

Mrs. Wilmot Coburn was a Thursday dinner guest of Mrs. Vern Wilmot and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner and Miss Irene Webb were Sunday guests at the George Perkin home at Harlan.

Try a want ad in the News.

Miss Garnet Beams is spending a few weeks viciting Miss Garnett Headley, at Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Nellie Perry was a Wednesday afternoon guest of the Vern Wilmot home.

Mrs. Chases Silberg and daughter of Napanee, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Chaney.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Heller were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Coolidge, last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Markle and family spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. Matilda Oberholtzer, of near Harlan.

Ercil Steward, who has been a patient at the Hope Methodist hospital at Fort Wayne, was brought to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Cora Steward, on Saturday.

Mrs. Rose Beam and Mrs. Susie Silberg of Auburn, visited friends and relatives here Sunday.

Daniel Bice and lady friend, of South Bend, spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rhoades.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beams and Mrs. Fannie Beams visited friends at this place Sunday.

The Ladies Guild will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sadie Howey, west of town.

No man is stronger than his stomach. Tanlac will make your stomach strong. Sheffer's.

Mrs. Flossie Rhoades and daughter Doris were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Sturgis and family of Butler.

The Misses Gaylon and Virginia Goldsmith, who have been visiting the past two weeks in Fort Wayne, returned home Saturday.

Charles Timmerman is spending the week at the home of his uncle, Frank May and family, near Huntertown.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Vallieu and son James, and Mrs. S. E. Koontz visited Mrs. Nellie Wise and family of Waterloo, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Steward and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strubing were Sunday afternoon guests of Semon Stucky and wife, of Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kimes, of South Bend, were Sunday guests of relatives here. Mrs. Kimes will remain for a week's visit.

Mrs. Rose Beams and Mrs. Susie Silberg, of Auburn, were Sunday evening guests in the B. F. Markle home.

Jacob Baltz and wife, Mr. and Mrs. William Summers were Wednesday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Moffet and family of Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Miller and daughter, Dorothy Mae, were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Silberg and family.

ICE CREAM Social by Lutheran orchestra on church lawn Sat. evening, July 29. Home made ice cream, candy pop-corn. Concert from 7:15 to 7:45.

Mrs. Emila Gloyd received word of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Osborne of Delphi, Indiana. Mrs. Gloyd will leave for that place this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steward and family spent several days last week visiting the lady's mother, Mrs. M. J. Silberg, and other relatives in this vicinity.

Members of the Methodist church very pleasantly surprised their pastor, Rev. Fred Brewster and wife, on last Wednesday evening. A pot luck supper was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins, the Misses Magdalene and Alverta Steard of Garrett, and Miss Inez Kinsey spent Friday with relatives in Fort Wayne.

Lost— Auto license plate, No. 345957 and bracket. Finder will please return same to Rev. F. E. Brewster, Spencerville, or to the Ford Garrge.

A Community Band was organized at this place recently with officers as follows: President, Vernon Kline; Secretary, Gaylon Markle; Treasurer, Forest Beams. The band will meet every Friday evening for rehearsal.

William Tymbrook and son, La Vaugh, and Miss Edith Squires, of near Hicksville, and Miss Ethel Palmer were Friday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Beams and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Betz spent several days the latter part of the week visiting their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perkins and son of near Harlan.

Members of the Cheerful Workers class met on Wednesday evening and elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. Anna Henderson, Vice President, Mrs. Alice Watson; Secretary, Mrs Minta Rhodes; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Minnie Tyndall; Treasurer, Mrs Alice Watson; Teacher, Mrs. Minnie High.

Latest Oil Range That Cooks As Fast As Gas

Come in and See It

The widely advertised new model New Perfection Oil Range with SUPERFEX Burners [illegible]

The New Perfection Oil Range with SUPERFEX Burners

Spencerville [illegible]

MICKIE SAYS

Obituary

DOTY

Sarah Gongwer-Doty, one of a family of eleven children, was born in Ashland county, Ohio, April 21st. 1841, and died at her late home July 14th, 1922, age 81 years, 2 months, 23 days.

She was united in marriage to Solomon Doty December 31st, 1865. Shortly after their marriage Mr. Doty came to Indiana, bought sixty-five acres in the woods and built a log house on it, then went back to Ohio. It was eight years after that before they came to Indiana to live, arriving November 12th, 1875. The country was new, and the woods surrounded them on all sides. Here they lived and worked side by side to make a home, rear their family, and to stand for the church and the cause of God for nearly a half century.

To this union were born four children, two sons and two daughters, all of whom were present to pay their last loving sympathy to their mother's memory.

She united, when a girl in Ashland county, Ohio, with the German Reform church, and later transferred her church membership to Barnett Chapel and to the Harlan Lutheran church.

She was active as a christian and desired to see the church prosper and was present in church attendance as a faithful child of God.

She leaves a husband, four children, Mrs. Emma Brooks of Daphne, Alabama, Philip Henry Doty of Fort Wayne, Ind., Joseph E. Doty and Mrs. Charley Daniels of Harlan, Ind.; four sisters, three brothers, ten grandchildren, six great grandchildren, and many relatives and friends.

"She has laid down the cross to take up the crown." For she has been faithful to the end.

The funeral services were held at the Harlan Lutheran church, Rev. A. K. Mumma officiating and assisted by Rev. J. J. Mullaney, Superintendent of the Childrens Home in Ft. Wayne, and Rev. J. O. Hockstetler of the Methodist church.

She was laid to rest in the Harlan cemetery.

27 Deaths in DeKalb County in April

There were twenty seven deaths in DeKalb county during the month of April 1922, according to a bulletin just issued by the Indiana Board of Health. This number was one more than in April of last year when there were twenty-six deaths. During the first four months of this year there were 128 deaths in DeKalb county, a much larger number than in the same period in 1921, when there were 98.

Two of the deaths during April this year were caused by tuberculosis, four by influenza, four by pneumonia and one by cancer. Of the twenty-seven persons who died, twelve were over 65 years of age.

WANTED:- Fat Hogs

I Will Take In Fat Hogs At My Sale Barn In Spencerville Every Week Day And Evening.

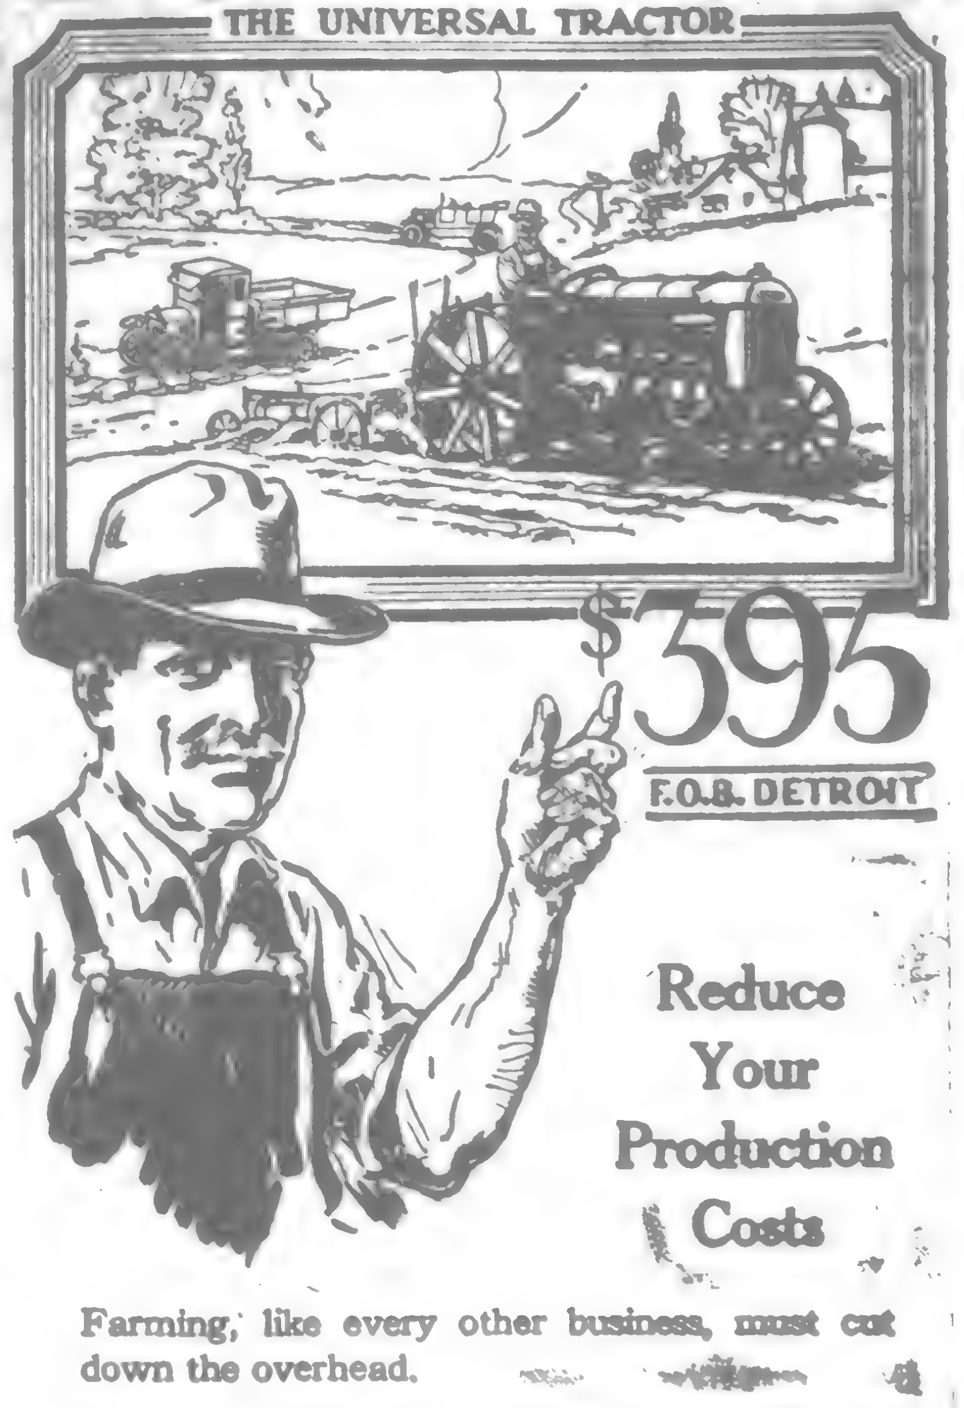
R. U Bowser.

Call:36-12

SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR



$395

F.O.B. DETROIT

Reduce Your Production Costs

Farming, like every other business, must cut down the overhead.

It is not a question of being able to afford a Fordson; it is a question of being able to continue farming on the old too-costly basis.

The farmer's problem is not all a sales problem; it is also a production problem. He must cut down the cost of production.

The Fordson does more work at a lower cost and in less time than the old hand methods.

Let us give you the proof. Write, phone or call today.

Frank W. SILBERG

Spencerville, Indiana

BIBLE THOUGHT —FOR TODAY—

The BACK TO THE BIBLE Bureau Service

A MORNING PRAYER:-- Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me.—Psalm 51:10.

THE RESURRECTION: — Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.—John 11:25.

WHAT DOES GOD REQUIRE?— And now, Israel, what does the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all they heart and with all thy soul.—Deuteronomy 10:12.

HAVE THE MIND OF CHRIST:— Let that mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.—Philippians. 2:5, 3.

THE WINDOWS OF HEAVEN:— Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.—Malachi 3:10.

REWARD OF HUMILITY:—Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.—Luke 14:11.

But in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.—Philippians 2:3, 4.

HUMILITY OF CHRIST: — Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.—Phil. 2:5, 3.

Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

MEN'S AND BOYS' OUTFITTERS

[illegible] Calhoun Street

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

257

The MARDI GRAS MYSTERY

by

H. Bedford-Jones

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

Copyright by Doubleday, Page and Company

TAKES NO CHANCES ON MASQUER.

Synopsis—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansley, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably attired as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansley, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

—2—

"And Maillard would do the paying." Fell's dry chuckle held a note of bitterness. "Let him. Who cares? Look at his house, there, blazing with lights. Why pays for those lights? The people his financial tentacles have closed their sucker-like grip upon. His wife's jewels have been purchased with the coin of oppression and injustice. His son's life is one of roguery and drunken wildness—"

"Man, are you mad?" Ansley indicated the Columbine between them. "We're not alone here—you must not talk that way—"

Jachin Fell only chuckled again. Columbine's laugh broke in with renewed gaiety:

"Nonsense, my dear Galen! We masquers may admit among ourselves that Bob Maillard is—"

"Is not the man we would have our daughters marry, provided we had daughters," said Fell.

They had come to a file of limousines and cars, and approached the gateway of the Maillard home. They turned into the gate. Jachin Fell touched the arm of Ansley and indicated an inconspicuous figure to one side of the entrance steps.

"An outer guardian," he murmured. "Our host, it seems, is neglecting no precaution! I feel sorry for the Masquer, if he appears here."

They came to the doorway. Columbine produced an invitation, duly numbered, and the three entered the house together.

CHAPTER II.

Masquers.

Joseph Maillard might have hopefully considered the note from the Midnight Masquer to be a hoax perpetrated by some of his friends, but he took no chances. Two detectives were posted in the grounds outside the house; inside, two others, masked and costumed, were keeping a quietly efficient eye on all that transpired.

Each guest upon entering was conducted directly to the presence of Joseph Maillard himself, or of his wife; was bidden to unmask in this private audience, and was then presented with a favor and sent forth masked anew to the festivities. These favors were concealed, in the case of the ladies, in corsage bouquets; in that of the men, inside false cigars. There was to be a general opening of the favors at midnight, the time set for unmasking. All this ceremony was regarded by the guests as a delightful innovation, and by Joseph Maillard as a delightful way of assuring himself that only invited guests entered his house. Invitations might be forged—faces, never!

Lucie Ledanois entered the presence of her stately relative, and after unmasking, dutifully exchanged kisses with Mrs. Maillard. Until some months previously, until she had come into the management of her own property—or what was left of it—Lucie had been the ward of the Maillards.

"Mercy, child, how marvelous you look tonight!" exclaimed Mrs. Maillard, holding her off and examining her high color with obvious suspicion.

"Thank you, ma'am," and Lucie made a mock courtesy. "Do you like little Columbine?"

"Very much. Here's Aunt Sally; take Miss Lucie's cloak, Sally."

An old colored servant bobbed her head in greeting to Lucie, who removed her cloak. As she did so, she saw that Mrs. Maillard's eyes were fastened in utter amazement upon her throat.

"Isn't it pretty, auntie?" she asked, [illegible].

"My goodness gracious!" The stern [illegible]

[illegible]

blazing star sapphires. Beside it the diamonds that bejeweled Mrs. Maillard's ample front looked cold and lifeless.

"That?" queried Lucie, innocently, producing a scrap of chamois and dabbing at her nose. "Oh, that's very interesting! It was made for Queen Hortense—so was this scarf that keeps my ragged hair from lopping out! They were a present—only this morning."

"Girl!" The lady's voice was harsh. "A present? From whom, if you please?"

"Oh, I promised not to tell; he's a particular friend of mine. Aren't the stones pretty?"

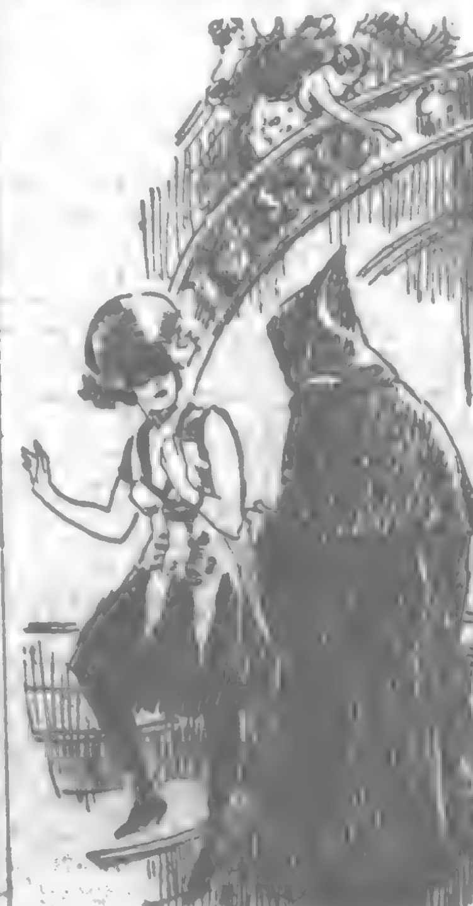
Mrs. Maillard was speechless. She compressed her firm lips and watched Lucie replace the sapphire collar without a word to offer. Silently she extended a corsage bouquet from the pile beside her; then, in a trembling voice, forced herself to explain about the favor inside.

Slipping her mask into place Lucie was gone, not without relief. She knew very well that within half an hour Bob Maillard would be informed that she had accepted gifts of jewels from other men, with all the accompanying implications and additions that imagination could furnish. For, although Bob Maillard wanted very much indeed to marry her, his mother had no intention of sanctioning such a union.

"Neither has Uncle Joseph," she reflected, smiling to herself, "and neither have I! So we're all agreed, except Bob."

"Columbine!" A hand fell upon her wrist. "Columbine! Turn and confess thy sins!"

She had come to the foot of the wide, old-fashioned stairway that led to the floors above, and beside her had



"You Frighten Me, Holy Man!" She Cried, Gayly. "Confess to You, Indeed! Not I."

suddenly appeared a Franciscan monk, cowled and gowned in sober brown from head to foot.

"You frightened me, holy man!" she cried, gaily. "Confess to you, indeed! Not I."

"Never a better chance, butterfly of the world. Haste not to the dance, fair sister—tarry a while and invite the soul in speech of import! Having passed the dragon at the gate, tarry a moment with this man of vows—"

"Shrive me quickly, then," she said, laughing.

"Now, without confession? Would you have me read your thoughts and give penance?"

"If you can do that, holy man, I may confess; so prove it quickly!"

The Franciscan leaned forward. His voice came low, distinct, clear-cut, and he spoke in the French which Lucie understood as another mother tongue, as do most of the older families of New Orleans.

[illegible]

and offended dignity. "I pray you, excuse me."

Not waiting any response, she hastily ran up the stairs. After her, for a moment, gazed the Franciscan, then shrugged his wide shoulders and plunged into the crowd.

While she danced, while she chattered and laughed and entered into the mad gaiety of the evening, Lucie Ledanois could not banish from her mind that ominous Franciscan. How could he have known? How could he have guessed what only she and one other barely suspected? There was no proof, of course; the very breath of suspicion seemed a calumny against an upright man!

Joseph Maillard had sold that Terrebonne land six months before any gas or oil had been discovered there, and eight months before Lucie had come into the management of her own affairs. He had not known about the minerals, of course; it was a case only of bad judgment. Yet, indubitably, he was now a shareholder and officer in the Bayou Oil company, the concern which had bought that strip of land.

Lucie strove angrily to banish the dark thoughts from her mind. Why, Maillard was a rich man, a banker, an honorable gentleman! To doubt his honor, although he was a harsh and a stern man, was impossible. Lucie knew him better than most, and could not believe—

"May I crave pardon for my error?" came a voice at her elbow. She turned, to see the Franciscan again beside her. "With a thousand apologies for impertinence, mademoiselle; I am very sorry for my faults. Will not that admission obtain for me one little dance, one hint of forgiveness from fair Columbine?"

Something in his voice spelt sincerity. Lucie, smiling, held out her hand.

"You are pardoned, holy man. If you can dance in that friar's robe, then try it!"

Could he dance, indeed! Who could not dance with Columbine for partner? So saying, the monk proved his word by the deed and proved it well. Nor did he again hint that he had recognized her; until, as they parted, he once more left her astonished and perturbed. As he bowed he murmured:

"Beware, sweet Columbine! Beware of the gay Aramis! Beware of his proposals!"

He was gone upon the word.

Aramis? Why, that must be the Musketeer, of course—Bob Maillard! The name, with its implications, was a clever hit. But who was this brown monk, who seemed to know so much, who danced so divinely, whose French was like music? A vague suspicion was in the girl's mind, but she had no proof.

Half an hour after this Bob Maillard came to her, and with impatient words made a path through the circle which surrounded her. "I know you now, Lucie!" he murmured. "I must see you at once—in the conservatory."

She was minded to refuse, but assented briefly. The words of the monk intrigued her; what had the man guessed? If Bob were indeed about to propose, she would this time cut off his hopes for good. But—was it that sort of a proposal?

As she managed to rid herself of her admirers, and descended to the conservatory, she was highly vexed with herself and the Franciscan, and so came to her appointment in no equable frame of mind. She found Maillard waiting in the old-fashioned conservatory; he had unmasked, and was puffing a cigarette.

"By gad, Lucie, you're beautiful tonight. Where did you get that collar of jewels?"

"Indeed!" The girl proudly drew herself up. "What business is that of yours, sir?"

"Aren't you one of the family? D—n it—Lucie! Don't you know that I want to marry you—"

"My dear Robert, I certainly do not want to marry any man who swears to my face—you least of all!" she coldly intervened. "I have already refused you three times; let this be the fourth and last! Now, kindly inform me why you wished me to meet you here."

"I have a chance to make some money for you in a hurry," he said. "Your father left you a good deal of land up Bayou Terrebonne way—"

"Your father sold some of it," she [illegible] eyes flickered, [illegible] the thrust.

"Yes; but you've plenty left, near Paradis. It's away from the gas field, but I'm interested in an oil company. We've plenty of money, and we're going to go strong after the liquid gold. That [illegible] of yours is good for nothing else, and if you want to make some money out of it I'll swing the company into leasing at a good figure and drilling there."

"You think there's oil on the land?"

"No." He [illegible] a swift, energetic gesture of [illegible]. "To be frank, I [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

TWO-TOED SLOTH

"It's more sociable to be a Two-Toed Sloth," said the Two-Toed Sloth.

"More sociable than what?" asked the Gavial from his pool near by.

"More sociable than to be a Three-Toed Sloth," said the Two-Toed Sloth. "I should think you would know that was what I meant, Silly!"

"I'm not a silly," said the Gavial. "I am a Gavial. And I am also a crocodile. That isn't difficult for me to be both those things, pretty smart of me, I think."

"Not smart of you in the least," said the Two-Toed Sloth. "That's no more smart of you than it is for a little girl to have the name of little girl and the name of her family, too.

"Gavial simply means the kind of a crocodile that you are."

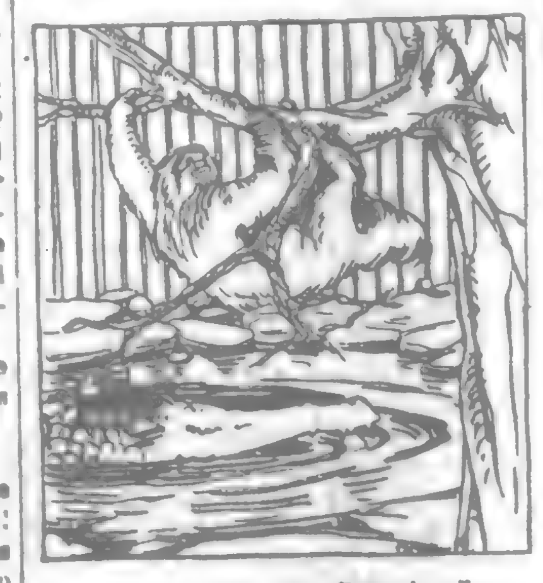
"And a very fine kind that is, I can assure you," the Gavial said.

"Of course—looking at it from a Gavial point of view," said the Two-Toed Sloth.

"And what other point of view would I have?" the Gavial said. "What point of view could be better? None in my opinion."

"And as you have perfect faith in your own opinion," the Two-Toed Sloth said, "it is nonsense to say anything further."

"Ah," said the Gavial, "I come from the northern part of India. I inhabit the neighborhood of the Ganges when



"I Hang on the Branches."

I'm not in the zoo. I have a very elongated snout. Isn't that word elongated quite delicious?"

"It can't be eaten," said the Two-Toed Sloth, "and so I don't think I would call it delicious. It's a nice word, though."

"I feel that a word is delicious if it is nice, as much as food is delicious when it is nice," said the Gavial.

"Yes," the Gavial continued, "I am not short, either. I am twenty feet long, they say. I am lying in my pool of water, here in the zoo, so that only my eyes and the top of my head are out of the water.

"The rest of me is soaking, pleasantly soaking. But Two-Toed, you started in to say something about being sociable. What did you mean by that?"

"I will tell you," said the Two-Toed Sloth. "I will eat in the zoo and I will enjoy zoo life, and I will be nice and will show them that I am sociable and at home with them whereas my cousin, the Three-Toed Sloth, is very different.

"He won't eat anything when he is in the zoo, and therefore they cannot have him here. He doesn't like zoo life, and so he shows his extreme dislike of it by refusing to eat.

"Now I belong to the monkey tribe. I'm about the size of a large raccoon. I am a strange looking animal.

"I come from the Northern portion of South America. I hang on the branches of a tree by my long claws which clasp the branches.

"My claws are of no use for anything except climbing, but they are splendid for that.

"My eyes are brown and my fur is brown, and I always hang upside down, as you see. When I am free I always travel at night and sleep in the daytime, and I always travel in this upside down way, too, hanging on from branch to branch. I go from tree to tree when I travel.

"When there is no tree, I have to roll over on the ground again and again until I find another tree.

"But my color is [illegible] the color of bark, and I hide [illegible] and hope that I [illegible] when danger draws near.

"I move [illegible] willing to [illegible]

"I eat [illegible] and am [illegible] there is [illegible] appetite [illegible] or away.

"Listen [illegible]

[illegible]

Had Your Iron Today?

Work Brains— Not Digestion

HERE'S an ideal hot-weather luncheon!

Two packages luscious Little Sun-Maid Raisins — one cool glass of milk. Big men don't need more.

290 calories of energizing nutriment in the little raisins. Pure fruit sugar, practically predigested so it acts almost immediately, yet doesn't tax digestion and thus heat the blood.

There's fatigue-resisting food-iron also in this lunch.

Vital men eat like this and resist the weather. Don't work their digestion because they want to work their brains.

Try it for a few days and you'll feel better.

Little Sun-Maids

Between-Meal Raisins

5c Everywhere

—in Little Red Packages

10c Gives New Life to Old Stockings

Putnam Fadeless Dyes—dyes or tints as you wish

A Soldier's Honor.

The memory of the soldier Maillet, who was sentenced in 1915 to death in contumaciam for having deserted to the enemy, has now definitely been cleared of all stain by the Mourges Military tribunal. Maillet's case was pathetic. He fell in battle and his body was afterward identified among others buried at Auberive on the Marne. On hearing that her husband was a deserter Maillet's wife died of grief and her two orphan boys were taken care of by their grandfather. The commune of Checy, his native village, now lays claim to the honor of paying for their upkeep.

The manufacture of wooden heels in Chile is an industry of increasing importance.

Women of the Moslem faith are forbidden to appear on the public stage.

Taking a Chance.

"So you want a guide, eh?" The owner of "Mountain View Inn" pointed to a villainous fellow, who was leaning against the door. "That there is a doggone good guide. I've got three of 'em, and that man out there chopping wood is another one."

"Do you mean that savage-looking fellow with the red hair and bowie knife?"

"Yes, that's him—the other guide is cleaning his rifle upstairs."

"Well, I'll take the one that's upstairs," sighed the traveler.—Life.

That's as Good as Anything.

We assume that one of the diseases for which beer is prescribed is chicken snake bite.

Red-haired people are said to be less subject to baldness than any other.

Companion to the Goodyear All-Weather Tread

By long wear, superior traction, freedom from skidding, and ultimate economy, the Goodyear All-Weather Tread has won unquestioned leadership.

As a companion to this tire there is the Goodyear 30 x 3½ Cross-Rib Fabric.

Built of the same high grade Egyptian fabric and with a long wearing but differently designed tread, this tire offers unusual value.

Over 5,000,000 of these tires have been sold in the last five years.

Their quality and serviceability have proven to thousands of motorists the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

30x3½ All-Weather Cord	$16.25
30x3½ All-Weather Fabric	13.50
30x3½ Cross-Rib Fabric	10.95
30x3½ Heavy Tourist Tube	2.80
30x3½ Regular Tube	2.25

These prices include manufacturer's excise tax

GOODYEAR

JULY

MRS. FRANK WILKIE, of Syracuse, N. Y., formerly matron at the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y., who says she is delighted with Tanlac since it restored her health after she suffered eight years.

"This is the first time in eight years that I have been free from stomach trouble and it is all because of the wonderful good Tanlac has done me," said Mrs. Frank Wilkie, 229 Cedar St., Syracuse. Mrs. Wilkie formerly resided in Buffalo and for two years was matron of the State Reformatory at Industry, N. Y.

"I was eating scarcely enough to keep alive," she declared, "for I would rather not touch a bite than suffer the misery I knew would follow. Even sweet milk disagreed with me. I was sick in bed for two and three days at a time, and gas on my stomach made such awful pressure on my heart it almost cut off my breath. I had horrible dreams at night and in the morning was all tired out.

"Well, the longest day I live I will praise Tanlac, for my improvement has been simply remarkable. I have no more heartburn, my appetite is wonderful, I can eat most anything I want, and my sleep is sound and restful. I am thoroughly delighted with Tanlac. It is wonderful."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. —Advertisement.

Too Much for the Ducks.

A newly married woman once made a cake. It was rated a very good cake by her family. A little heavy, but very good.

Well, the cake didn't disappear particular fast, and so, after a few days, the woman got tired of seeing it about, and threw it out into the duckyard.

An hour or so passed, and there came a loud knocking at the kitchen door. It was a horrified little girl.

"Well?" said the woman.

"Your ducks have sank!" gasped the little girl.

Prosperity.

Hard Times—I'm out.
Harding Times—I'm in.

Rocktall, a small island 250 miles north of Ireland, has sunk three feet in the last 33 years.

WILL ANSWER ANY WOMAN WHO WRITES

Woman Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Makes This Offer

Cumberland, Md.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was between thirteen and fourteen years old and was going to school, because I suffered with pains and could not rest. I did not have any more trouble after that until I was married, then I always was troubled in my [illegible] —Mrs. Jane [illegible], 53 Dilley St., Cumberland, Md.

During girlhood and later during motherhood Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought relief to Mrs. [illegible] our Vegetable Compound, she is willing to answer your letter. Write to her.

Skin Troubles
Soothed
With Cuticura
[illegible]

Gray Hair [illegible]

INDIANA State News

Lafayette.—Fifty-eight counties in Indiana have been enrolled in the five-acre corn contest for 1922, with an approximate enrollment of 950 members, according to R. S. Thomas of the soils and crops staff of Purdue university, who has charge of the contest. This large enrollment has been made possible by the co-operative efforts of the five-acre committee of the Indiana Corn Growers' association and the different local organizations. The two requirements for entrance to the contest are, that each person become a member of the Corn Growers' association prior to June 15, and that each keep a complete labor record of the entire field in which the five-acre plot is located.

South Bend.—Proposals of South Bend men to organize a company for the support of baseball in 1923 has led to the proposition of reorganizing the Central league, now composed of six Michigan cities. In case the plan goes through it is probable that South Bend, Fort Wayne, Richmond and Gary will be the Indiana cities, and Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo the Michigan cities. In case it is decided to make the circuit an eight-club league Dayton and Springfield, O., will be asked to take franchises.

Valparaiso.—An era of building has struck this city and Porter county. Valparaiso has a hotel building, seven business buildings and about 100 homes in course of construction. In the north part of Porter county, adjacent to Gary, and around Chesterton and Porter, hundreds of buildings for steel workers and others are being built. Syndicates are buying up land around Lake Michigan for subdivision purposes and many lots are being sold.

Evansville.—Preparations for the tomato canning season are rapidly going forward, says A. F. Haven, manager of the American Packing corporation, operating one of the largest canning plants in Evansville. The company expects to handle a larger crop of tomatoes this year than last year. Other canning plants in Evansville and the pocket towns are anticipating a busy season.

Muncie.—A buzzing bumble bee, elsewhere might have passed unnoticed, but when it flew into the open window of the sedan which she was driving, Mrs. Will Moore, wife of a prominent Muncie physician, lost control of the car and it turned over into a ditch. Mrs Moore and Mrs. C. L. Bock suffered severe cuts and fractured ribs, but two babies in the car were unhurt.

Newcastle.—The Fusarian wilt, a disease attacking tomato plants, has been found in one field in Henry county, according to the county agricultural agent, who says the disease attacks the plants by wilting the stems, the entire plant soon drying up. The field where the wilt appeared was one of the best tomato prospects in the county and had been planted for a canning factory.

South Bend.—Pickers returning to South Bend from outlying districts in St. Joseph county report that the huckleberry crop is the best in several years. Rains saved the fruit, which early in the season promised to be a failure. Similar reports are coming also from Marshall county, Indiana, and from Berrien, Cass and St. Joseph counties in Michigan.

Indianapolis.—In a special finding of facts read in Superior court, Judge W. E. Eichhorn of Bluffton held that a trust exists among 11 Indianapolis ice concerns as charged in a suit filed last year by Attorney General U. S. Lesh to dissolve the alleged combination.

Winchester.—A new 200-barrel oil well has been drilled on the O'Brien farm, nine miles northwest of Winchester on the Randolph-Jay county line. Farmers living near the O'Brien farm have been offered as high as $40 an acre for oil leases on their property.

Valparaiso. — The Montdale stock farm, east of here, comprising several hundred acres of the finest land in northern Indiana and large buildings, has been sold by the owner, Harry Curran of Chicago to Bertha brothers of Chicago. The deal involved a consideration of $200,000.

Franklin.—The record yield of wheat in Johnson county this year is held by J. E. Terman of White River township, who had a field which averaged 37½ bushels an acre. Mr. Terman's entire wheat crop averaged 28 bushels to the acre.

Warsaw—Wheat and rye are now being thrashed in Kosciusko county, and indications are that the average yield an acre will not exceed ten or twelve bushels. In some districts the wheat is producing only eight to ten bushels.

Kokomo.—A warning to the farmers of Howard county that another serious outbreak of hog cholera might be [illegible]

Petersburg.—Farmers who own big peach orchards in Pike county are buying feeding hogs to make use of their peach crops if the impending railroad strike is called. Hogs fatten off peaches more readily than corn, and add from 2½ to 3 pounds of flesh a day. The crop is so large that trees are breaking down beneath the ripening peaches in all parts of Pike county. Cantaloupe growers and tomato growers are confronted with big losses, and tomato growers have requested the canning factories to open to take care of their surplus early crop. Many tomato growers planted early for shipping purposes, but the impending railroad strike has interfered with shipping, and hundreds of crates of ripened tomatoes are ready for the market.

Indianapolis.—Weather conditions in Indiana in the last two weeks have been favorable to nearly all crops, with the result that most of the corn crop has been laid by successfully, said George C. Byrant, state agricultural statistican, in his semi-monthly report to the United States Department of Agriculture. In his report on crop conditions in Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, Mr. Bryant said that the yield and quality of wheat and rye, which is being thrashed, is variable, but more good than poor.

Indianapolis.—A bulletin of dates for county public school institutes this fall including the names of instructors and their subjects, has been prepared by the state superintendent of public instruction, and is being distributed to school officials over the state. The first institute is to be in Switzerland county, August 7 to 11. Brown, Dearborn and Parke counties will have institutes from August 14 to 18. From August 21 to 25 institutes will be held in the different counties.

Kokomo.—Wednesday, August 2 has been designated as "rat killing day" for Kokomo, the Chamber of Commerce, board of health and other public bodies having joined in the movement. Every citizen is asked to make war on the rodents on that day and to report the number killed. While city organizations are back of the movement, the farmers of Howard county have taken it up and promise hearty co-operation.

Gary.—A great system of freight terminals in the Gary-Calumet-Chicago district is planned by railroad men in New York and Chicago. One of the great railroad yards will be built at Griffith, five miles southwest of Gary and another at Porter, 15 miles east of Gary, according to the plans. The system will embrace four great group yards on the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railroad. The improvements, it is said will cost $16,550,000.

Terre Haute.—Plans for the annual convention of the Indiana department of the American Legion and Women's Auxiliary, to be held in Terre Haute September 25, 26 and 27, were made at a meeting of the Fort Harrison post, No. 40, of the Legion. About 15,000 men and women are expected to be in the city for the convention and the chamber of commerce will aid the post in caring for the crowds.

Indianapolis.—A total of 31,368 births and 18,972 deaths were registered by the vital statistics division of the state department of health during the first six months of 1922, as compared with 34,128 births and 17,635 deaths in the same period last year, according to the semi-annual report of H. M. Wright, director of the division.

Petersburg.—The wilt that appeared in northern Pike country melon patches is spreading and some watermelon patches have been abandoned. The heaviest damage is reported from fields that were planted a number of years ago in melons, but which have stood idle since.

Indianapolis.—Permits for the construction of 292 buildings at an estimated cost of $487,543 were issued by the Indianapolis building department last week. In the corresponding week last year the department issued 204 permits for a total valuation of $332,188.

Indianapolis.—The chinch bug pest attacking corn, wheat and other farm crops caused losses to Indiana farmers of approximately $2,000,000 in the last three years, Harry F. Dietz, assistant state entomologist in the conservation department, said.

Bourbon.—Wheat being brought into this city from the surrounding territory is testing from 58 to 60 pounds to the bushel, and without exception is being classed as No. 1 [illegible]. The harvest is the most satisfactory raised in this section in several years.

Lawrence.—[illegible]

No Thanks, I Must Have

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

—Never fails to produce pure and wholesome bakings.

—You save when you buy it. You save when you use it.

—If you buy big can or cheap baking powder you don't get the Calumet quality.

BEST BY TEST

The World's Greatest Baking Powder

BAKING POWDER
CALUMET
BAKING POWDER

CANADA HAS STEADY GROWTH

Recent Census Shows Healthy Increase in Population, Despite Losses Caused by War.

Canada's census for 1921 indicated a total population of 8,769,489, distributed as follows: New Brunswick, 387,839; Nova Scotia, 523,837; Prince Edward Island, 88,615; Quebec, 2,349,067; Ontario, 2,929,054; Manitoba, 613,008; British Columbia, 523,363; Yukon, 4,162; Northwest territories, 6,684, and Canadian navy, 485. The gain for the whole Dominion during 1910-1920, was 1,600,000 or 21.5 per cent. The war cost the lives of 56,680 Canadians killed in action, while 40,000 more died from indirect causes. The percentage increase in population is the same as that for Australia, while the increase for New Zealand 20 per cent was very little behind. In the Union of South Africa the increase was 19.2 per cent. The Prairie provinces made the most pronounced gain in Canada, Alberta showing a 55 per cent increase; Saskatchewan over 53 per cent, and Manitoba, 33 per cent. For the next ten years the unit of distribution for determining the membership of parliament will be 36,250. This total is arrived at by dividing by 65 the population of each province.

Some Display.

"Will knickers do?"

"I don't see why not. There's about the same length of hosiery exhibited."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Thoughts of a Middle-Aged Guy.

Bald-domed and fat, the young pass me by;
I'm the middle-aged guy.

WOULD TAKE MANY HEARSES

Firms That Have Died Since Drop in Prices Would Make Large Funeral.

Suppose a funeral passed your house with 38,000 hearses, each hearse containing an American business firm. It would be impressive, wouldn't it? It would also give you an accurate idea of the number of business failures since prices began to tumble in May, 1920, notwithstanding they haven't tumbled so very much for some things. But don't get gloomy over it. Standing on curbstones watching their brethren go to Dun & Bradstreet's cemetery, are nearly 2,000,000 business organizations that have weathered the storm. In two years of severe depression only one business in every fifty-three has failed. The percentage of farmers that have gone broke is larger. Business failures have totaled about $600,000,000 a year in liabilities. Assets have averaged about enough to pay 50 per cent on the dollar. The net loss has been about $300,000,000 a year, or about $3 a year for each American. Might be much worse, remarks Capper's Weekly.

Young and Fearful.

"Mary, if you misbehave like that you will make your mother angry at you."

Little Mary—That don't scare me; she ain't my wife.

According to a Greek writer effeminate dandies in ancient Greece sometimes slept on beds of sponge.

making for the permanent reconstruction of that country.

GOLD TEETH OUT OF STYLE

Present Trend Is to Preserve Tooth and Make It Look as Much Like Original as Possible.

Gold teeth are going out of style, according to practitioners and dental experts. The present trend is to preserve the tooth to make it look as near as possible like it was originally. If this can't be done the offending molar or incisor must be pulled out.

The idea of pulling teeth is something comparatively new in American dentistry. The tendency was to save the tooth at all costs. But dentists have discovered that gold crowns are unhealthful and permit foreign matter to get into the teeth.

Bridge work also is not as popular as it once was. To make a bridge two good teeth were filed down as anchors for the mass of gold in between. If the bridge failed the two good teeth on the ends went with it. Now dentists recommend a plate of false teeth instead of the bridge. These being removable, are easily kept clean. The dental science is now spending its energies more on serviceable plates rather than on bridges or crowns.—New York Sun.

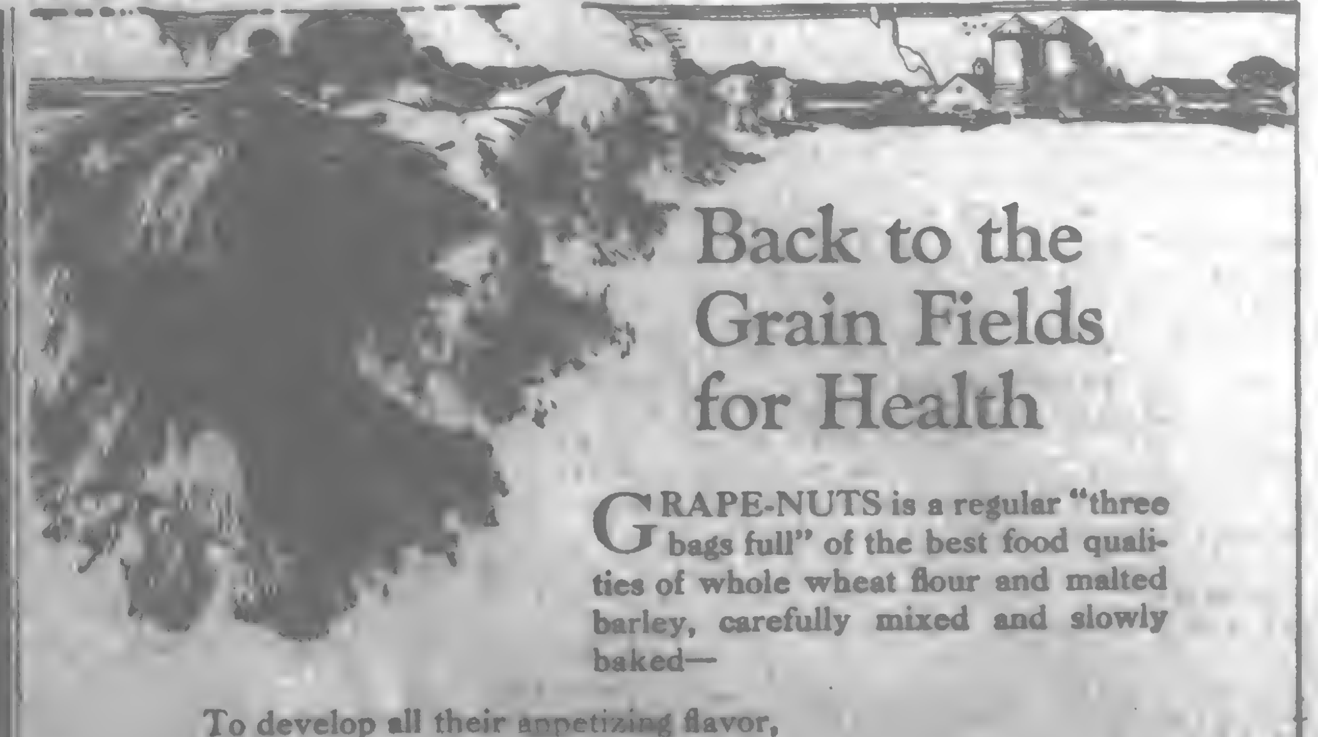
Refreshing Ignorance.

Mrs. Kawler—"I can't do without my matutinal coffee." Mrs. Newrich—"Is that a good brand? We've tried so many that are poor."—Boston Transcript.

Going Down.

Blackstone—Is your wife still reducing?

Webster—If you mean my income—yes!



Back to the Grain Fields for Health

GRAPE-NUTS is a regular "three bags full" of the best food qualities of whole wheat flour and malted barley, carefully mixed and slowly baked—

To develop all their appetizing flavor,

To preserve all their wholesomeness,

And to provide nature's "broom" that keeps the digestive system spick and span.

There's not a bit of artificial sweetening in Grape-Nuts —it just becomes sweet of its own accord in the long baking.

[illegible]

[illegible]

"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

JULY

L 92

STOP! LOOK! AND READ

And then note the following prices and be convinced that we can save you money.

Bran - - $1.65, Mids - - $1.65
Tankage 3.75. Fish Meal 3 75
Cottonseed Meal - - $3.25
Oyster Shells - - - - - 1.25
Sugared Shoemaker - 1.80

We will pay the highest price for good WHEAT

Use Daily Bread and Country Maid Flour. It is giving others satisfaction, so why not give it a trial. Our carload of salt was temporarily held up on account of the rail strike but will be here this week. Chop Grinding Our Hobby.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager
St. Joe, Ind.

Children's Ailments

DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS

Did you order a Magazine? Better get it now.

Frank Baker, of Fort Wayne, spent Friday visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beaninghoff left Friday morning for Winona Lake for a few days outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hickman spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday with Hicksville relatives.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Saxe Hadsell and family spent Sunday at Lagrange, guests of Mrs. Hadsell's mother, Mrs. Martha Driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Duncan and son, of Butler, visited Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer, Sunday evening.

The "Tri-Mu" orchestra took in nearly $40.00 at their ice cream social given the evening of July 19th.

Mesdames C. S. Johnson and G M. Barney were Ft. Wayne visitors, Tuesday of this week.

John Leighty, of Chicago, spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Kate A. Leighty.

Mr. and Mrs. John Woodcox and sons, of Convoy, Ohio, spent Sunday with St. Joe friends.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. C. C. Curie spent the day Sunday with her son, Grover Curie, and family.

Frank Terman and J. C. F. Abel were Auburn visitors, Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton and daughter and Mrs. Howard Northrup spent the day in Ft. Wayne, Saturday.

The Farmers Co-operative Milling Company put a carload of coal in their sheds Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman and daughter Eloise spent Sunday as guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Baker, at Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beaninghoff Jr. and sons of Ft. Wayne, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bowman.

J. A. White, a well known [illegible]

Mrs. Anna Mikesell, of South Bend, is here visiting her brother, F. M. Thornton, and family, for a few days.

Mrs. F. M. Thornton and children and Mrs. Anna Mikesell spent Friday at Hamilton Lake.

J. R. Rhodenbaugh and F. M. Thornton attended the Angola-Hicksville ball game at Hicksville, Thursday.

I wonder if the P. E. Club of Butler is anything like the B. V. D. Club of St. Joe.

Mrs. Virginia Lawson and Mrs. Hugh Languwell, the latter of Bloomington, spent the night Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lindley.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Keesler had as Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hart, Mrs. Jane Coburn and son Clarence.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miser, son Harcourt and daughter Martha, and Miss Alice Tustison spent Sunday at Lake James.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley and son Carl spent Saturday night and Sunday as guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Pugsley, near Butler.

Mrs. S. A. Abel returned home Saturday after spending several weeks with her son, Wallace Abel, and family, near Newville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Seevers and children, of near Logan, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter spent the day Sunday at Lake Hamilton.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily left Monday morning for Dayton, Ohio, where the latter will visit friends for the coming two weeks. Mr. Daily returned Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton, daughter Margaret Elnor, and Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker enjoyed their lunch at Oakwood Park, Lake Hamilton, Sunday, driving there immediately after church services.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Mason entertained the following guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Herrick and children, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Perry, Mrs. Ruth Clark and daughter Pauline, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilmott and children, Ella Wilmott and family and Mr. and Mrs. William Brown.

Earl Cravatt, 14 year old son of [illegible]

[illegible]

Lester Curie of Tulsa, Okla., is here visiting his parents this week.

Stop at the News Office and get a Magazine.

Leon Sechler and family spent the day Sunday with Mr. and Mrs Henry Sechler at Butler.

Mrs. Wm. Brown visited her brother, Del Coburn of Auburn, Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Hartsog of Fort Wayne was a Friday afternoon guest of Mrs. C. R. Price.

Carl A. Bassett returned home Tuesday night from ten days visit with friends at Hammond.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

Paul Curie, Mrs. Wm. Curie, Mrs. Bert Jackson and Miss Ruth Boyle, were Tuesday visitors at Fort Wayne.

Wallace Abel, wife and son Roy, of near Newville, were Saturday afternoon callers of J. C. F. Abel and wife.

W. E. Henley and family spent from Sunday morning until Monday morning with relatives at Elkhart.

The safest and surest way back to health, strength and happiness is by the Tanlac route, Sheffer Drug Store.

Walter Bowen and Mrs. Grace Dilley of Fort Wayne, also Mrs. Cora Smith of Auburn, spent Sunday afternoon with Frank Sechler and wife.

Lillian Steffey of Spencerville, Mary Aamstrong, Margaret and Jacques Smith, were Sunday dinner guests of Kathryn and Lucile Curie.

Miss Ruth Boyle, of Norwalk, Ohio, returned home Wednesday after a week's visit here with her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Curie and other relatives.

J. P. Buckingham and wife spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson at Fort Wayne. A young cousin of Mrs. Buckingham, William Bell, returned home with them for a week's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McCann, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bishop, son Stanley, and daughters, Welma and Thelma, were guests or Jrow Mohart and family, at Paulding, Ohio Sunday.

The Hootman Family Reunion will be entertained this year by Clyde Hart and family on Thursday, August 17th, in their grove 1 mile west and ½ mile south of Coburns' Corners.

F. D. Tope and wife spent Sunday at the home of the former's uncle, Wm. Tope, at Wren, Ohio. The affair was the first Tope family reunion and an organisation was perfected. Forty of the family were present.

Water—A necessity for your battery and car. Our supply is inexhaustible, so is our effort to serve. Patronize your home GARAGE, and help it give your community this service.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Helen Cutler, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs Earl Cutler of Ossian, Indiana, was burned to death in an explosion in a shed on the farm of her parents at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The supposition is that she had accidently set fire to some [illegible] in the shed while playing with matches.

Mrs. Pauline Miller, of Detroit, came Tuesday to spend the week with her parents, Marshall Andress and wife. On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. David [illegible], of the same city, came through by auto to spend until Sunday in the same home. Mrs. Miller will return with the [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Mark [illegible] and three children, of Auburn, [illegible] Thursday for a few days [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Ryer, of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson and George Henderson and family, of Spencerville, were guests in the home of J. R. Culberson, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee and daughter, Miss Mildred, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Matie Gee. Mr. and Mrs. Abner Troster and sons Wayne and Dale were afternoon guests.

R. B. Thornton and wife, of Battle Creek, Michigan, were the guests of his brother, F. M. Thornton, and family, a few days the past week. They will leave soon for San Diego, California, where they expect to make their future home.

Robert Coburn accidentally caught the point of a fish hook in his thumb one day last week while fishing in the river, and finding that it had penetrated in past the beard of the hook, the services of Dr. Sheffer were required to cut the hook out.

The Rural Housewives club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Mark Murphy. The following guests were present: Mrs. John Nugen and Mrs. Claire Miller, of Auburn, Mrs. Arthur Pinkerton and daughters Helen and Marjoria of Bryan, Ohio, Mrs. Will Sauer, Mrs. Jane Coburn and the Misses Mildred Gee and Berniece Hart. The hostess served ice cream, angel food cake and orangade. Mrs. Margaret Cannon will be the next hostess, Friday afternoon, August 4th.

On last Thursday afternoon a serious auto accident occurred on the Toledo-Chicago pike, two miles east of Corunna, in which Mr. and Mrs. Howard Winebrenner of Auburn, sustained very serious injuries. The injuries of Mr. Winebrenner will probably cripple him for the remainedr of his life. A third occupant of the Winebrenner car sustained minor injuries, while two other occupants were not hurt. A Ford car, driven by Clinton Smith, of Garrett, who also sustained cuts from flying glass, and the Winebrenner car collided.

Body of Negro Claimed

The body of Howard B. Wynn, the colored man who lost his life Friday from hemmorhages of the lungs as a result of falling into the cinder pit at the Garrett shops of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was shipped Tuesday night to Washington, D. C. Wynn was a member of the Knights of Jerusalem, an organization of colored people, and it was at the request of that organization that the body was sent to Washington. If relatives in Africa request the body to be sent to his native country the Knights of Jerusalem will see that it is shipped there.

Rolland Bearss Has Been Brought Home

Rolland Bearss, who was adjudged insane several weeks ago and has for some time been an inmate in the DeKalb County jail awaiting admission to the hospital at Richmond, was released and was brought home by his wife. His mental condition is better but he seems to be weaker physically. He will probably remain at home until his admission to the hospital is granted.

THE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE

For Sale Only At
Chaneys'
Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Notice of Administration

[illegible]

5½%

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates. Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA

Picnic-Reunion

The following people enjoyed a picnic dinner and reunion in the Christian church grove Sunday after services: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thayer and daughters Katherine and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hadsell and son, Mr. and Mrs. James Hadsell and Miss Geraldine Hadsell of Ft. Wayne, Mr and Mrs. C. W. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Hadsell, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hadsell, son Reign, Mr. and Mrs. Van Hadsell and two children of Hicksville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Haney, daughter Elizabeth and Roy Sheffer of Albion, the Misses Thyra and Pauline Shull of Hart, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. John Knight, daughters Evelyn and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer, son Basil, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, Mrs. Eva Shull, son Garth and daughter Doris, and Miss Nellie Shull.

Reunion

A family reunion was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Inlow east of town. The following famalies being in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Storer and children, Curtice Hursly and family Monte Storer and family, Jay Hart and family, Mrs. Al Martin and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mann and the latter's sister and husband of Fort Wayne, and Rev. R. B. Dailey.

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been used successfully in the treatment of Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, thus reducing the inflammation.

Sold by all druggists.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE
Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.—IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, August 4, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" [illegible] No. 174

[illegible]

L 912

AUGUST

AUGUST

L 912

261

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1922 No. 31

Maxwell Bros.

The Home Of
Hart Schaffner & Marx
Clothing

Douglas Shoes

Stetson Hats

Arrow Shirts

The Clothing, Shoes
Hats, and Shirts
Real Men Wear

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Highest Market Prices Paid
For WHEAT RYE
CORN OATS

Bring your TIMOTHY SEED And ALSIKE SEED To us. We are always in the market.

Bran, Middlings and Other Feeds always on hand. If we have not got what you want just ask for it and we will get it for you.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Establish YOUR CREDIT

You would not expect a perfect stranger to give you much of an accomodation in a financial way. You would not ask him for a loan. You would not expect it of a banker who knew nothing of your affairs unless you could give security. But if you had done business with a banker and proven to his satisfaction that you are careful and trustworthy you could probably get an accomodation for a short time without security.

If you open a checking account at this bank we will be able to get a better opinion as to your financial methods and financial standing. As you handle your checking account in prosperous times you will handle your borrowed money in hard times. We will be in a position to extend accomodations to you when you are in need of them. We shall be pleased to have you open a checking account with us.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Barn On Curie Farm Burns

Spontaneous Combustion Is Cause of Fire Sunday Morning; Loss Estimated at $3500

Fire thought to have originated from spontaneous combustion broke out in the barn on the Curie farm one-half mile south of St. Joe, at 2:30 Sunday morning, which consumed the barn and two machine sheds and their contents.

The blaze was first noticed by Miss Catherine Curie, who was staying with her grandmother, Mrs Crist Curie, at the farm. She notified her father, who lives on Spencerville Street, by phone and called for the fire department. Frank Curie and son, Charles, were the first at the scene. They were soon followed by others who hurriedly took impliments and such things as they could reach from the barn. The St. Joe Fire Company was soon on the job, but were unable to do more than protect the house and other buildings.

About 43 tons of hay, 60 bushels of oats, 6 bushels of beans, all the harness and about half of the machinery were destroyed.

A total loss of nearly $3,500 is estimated, of which only $1,200 is covered by insurance. The buildings and half the contents belonged to the Christian Curie estate, while the other half belongs to Frank Curie, who farms the place.

New buildings will probably be replaced as soon as arrangements can be made.

We wish to extend our thanks to the St. Joe Fire Department and every person who assisted at the fire Sunday morning for their effort to save what was possible.

Mrs. C. C. Curie and Frank Curie.

B. & O. Given Restraining Order

A temporary restraining order was issued Saturday morning by Special Judge James B. Nyce in the DeKalb circuit court to prevent the Walb Construction Co. from removing or attempting to remove the Baltimore & Ohio bridge a short distance east of St. Joe in the construction of the Hursey drain.

The complaint for an injunction was filed by Mountz & Brinkerhoff, counsel for the railroad company. The bridge is made of steel girders resting upon abutments of masonry. the abutments are 72 feet apart and the girders are 33 feet above the bottom of the watercourse, leaving a span and clear opening in the bridge 72 x 33 feet.

The complaint says that the bridge does not in any way obstruct the drain. The abutments are a sufficient distance apart to allow the passage of the Walb dredge, but the dredge is so constructed that its upper structure will not pass under the girders without removing it.

For their own convenience, the construction company and the superintendent, E. A. Bordner, are proposing to remove the girders and the ties and track of the railroad, according to the complaint. This would endanger the lives of the railroad employes and passengers, the complaint adds.

The company filed $1,000 bond to protect the construction company from loss. Hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction was set for August 5 at 10 a. m.

Warning Signs Placed

[illegible]

Saturday Night Crowds Grow

Merchants Have Expressed Their Appreciation Of The Band Concerts

The band concert on last Saturday evening is responsible and to the Community Welfare Band goes the credit for attracting a record crowd to our city. The streets were lined with automobiles as were the walks crowded with people especially near the bandstand during the hour of the concert.

In the early evening before time for the concert to begin the stores were filled with customers doing their regular weekend trading. During the concert the trading lessened but afterwards those farmers who came to town late rushed the stores for an hour or more. If the trade continues to grow as it has so far the grocery stores and others will find it necessary to increase their force of clerks.

Several of the business men have expressed that they are proud of our band and that they appreciate the concerts.

Don't forget that some of our merchants have Saturday Specials. Read the ads. The concert commences at 8 o'clock.

Former St. Joe Woman Got In Bad

Mrs. Lois Wineland, of Forest Park, Auburn, was taken into custody Tuesday night by C. W. Fell and Fred Kreuger when she and three Auburn youths, George Purdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Purdy living in Forest Park addition, Charles Jenkins, son of Ernie Jenkins, and Charles Stafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stafford of East Auburn, were discovered in Evergreen cemetery.

When the officers arrived they charge that they found Mrs. Wineland and the three boys, who are all about 18 years of age, lying on the ground.

When they turned a flashlight upon them, the officers say that the woman begged not to be taken to the police station on account of her child, a 9 year old daughter. However, the party was loaded into an automobile and taken to headquarters where they were questioned.

They were then released until the matter could be taken up with C. S. Smith, deputy prosecuting attorney, which was done Wednesday morning.

As the statutes provide no penalty except in the case of a statutory offense no charges were filed against them.

Mrs. Wineland is the wife of Glenn Wineland, who is a telegraph operator and is employed during the hours 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. at the B. & O. tower at Auburn Junction. He separated from his wife some time ago and is instituting divorce proceedings against her.

WINELAND ASKING FOR A DIVORCE

Walter Glen Wineland, a telegraph operator who makes his home at the Auburn Y. M. C. A., declares in a divorce complaint filed in the DeKalb circuit court, that his wife, Lois Wineland, ignored him and kept company with men of questionable character.

The Wineland's wedding day was January 3, 1911, and they separated July 22, 1922. The husband sets out that his wife has an ungovernable temper and on different occasions she would fly into a rage and call him vile and opprobrious names. She threw the dishes and chinaware at him and she would threaten to strike him and do him bodily harm, he says. She refused to prepare his meals, he asserts, and would not take care of their home. [illegible]

[illegible]

The public auction will [illegible] Monday, August 7.

C. C. Woodcox V. F. Woodcox

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

THE GOOD MAXWELL

A Car You Will Be
Proud To Drive

Read The Locals

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY

POCKET KNIVES

SPECIALS
FOR SATURDAY ONLY
25c

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Too Much Shooting

There have been several complaints made recently about shooting going on around town. It may be all right to shoot sparrows from the trees, but some fellows are very careless how they shoot.

For instance, one lady states that while she was feeding her chickens in the rear of their lot a rifle bullet whizzed past her head and she could hear it cut through the leaves of a tree and strike.

Shooting should be prohibited anywhere about the residence or business part of town.

[illegible]

Ends Local Pastorate

At the Saturday evening session of the quarterly meeting of the local Methodist Protestant church Rev. C. O. Johnson announced to the officers that he would not return to this circuit another year. The Annual Conference will be held at Shelbyville, August 14 21. His last sermon here will be next Sunday morning at the Concord church.

Rev. Johnson has been the pastor of this charge for the past four years and has had good success. The News joines these churches in wishing Rev Johnson and his family our very best in there new home and work wherever that may be.

[illegible]

[illegible]

AUGUST

RADIO

VARIOMETER SET ON A VERTICAL PANEL

Method of Building This Receiver and Setting It Up Explained in Detail.

The radio receiver described here is one using a variometer for the tuning circuit and mounted on a vertical panel, 6 inches by 8 inches, instead of a horizontal base board.

To support the panel in a vertical position a small base board four inches wide by six inches long and 1-2 to 5-8 of an inch thick is screwed to the panel.

The material required for the variometer follows:

One piece of bakelite or stiff cardboard tubing, three inches long and 3 1-4 inches outside diameter. Cost about five cents.

One peice of bakelite or stiff cardboard tubing 1 1-4 inches long and 2 3-4 inches outside diameter. Cost about five cents.

100 feet of No. 26 DCC wire. Cost about 25 cents.

Six inches of 1-4 inch outside diameter brass tubing costing about 25 cents.

Four small blocks of wood as shown in Fig 18.

One panel 6 by 8 by 3-8 inch.

Eight small round-head 1-4 inch long brass wood screws.

One base board 4 by 7 by 1-2 inch.

One standard four-inch diameter dial and knob to take 1-4 inch shaft, costing about $1.50.

Seven binding posts.

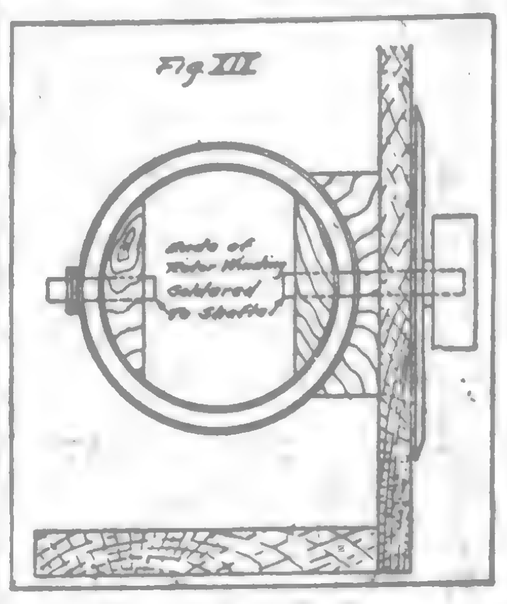
Fig. 18 shows how the details of the variometer are assembled.

The rotor is wound with 40 turns of the No. 26 DCC wire, diveded into two groups of 20 turns, each symmetrical with respect to the center line of the rotor. Start 1-16 of an inch in from the edge of the rotor and wind on 20 turns, then, crossing over on the other side of the center line, wind on 20 more turns, so that the end of the second group of 20 turns will terminate 1-16 of an inch in from the end of the tube. Bring out the end of the rotor winding on the inside of the tube.

Cut two blocks of wood, A and B in Fig. 18, from pieces of 3-inch soft wood and fasten them as shown diametrically opposite each other on the inside of the rotor tube with some small wood screws. Drill two shaft holes, one through each side of the tube over the thick portion of the wooden block. The diameter of this hole should be such that it be a forced fit for the 1-4 inch diameter shaft.

The winding on the stator is similar to that on the rotor. There are 40 total turns divided into the sections of 20 turns each. The beginning and the ending of the stator windings are 15-16 of an inch from the ends of the tube. When the rotor is assembled inside the stator, the winding on the stator should fall just above that on the rotor.

After the rotor and stator are wound, give them a thin coat of shellac and allow it to dry thoroughly before attaching the wooden blocks. Assemble the blocks on the rotor and stator and then give the assembled part a second thin coat of shellac. Put the variometer parts in a hot dry place and allow them to dry until all the volatile matter has been driven off. This will give the windings a hard finish that will not absorb moisture, yet protect them from mechanical injury and hold them in place.



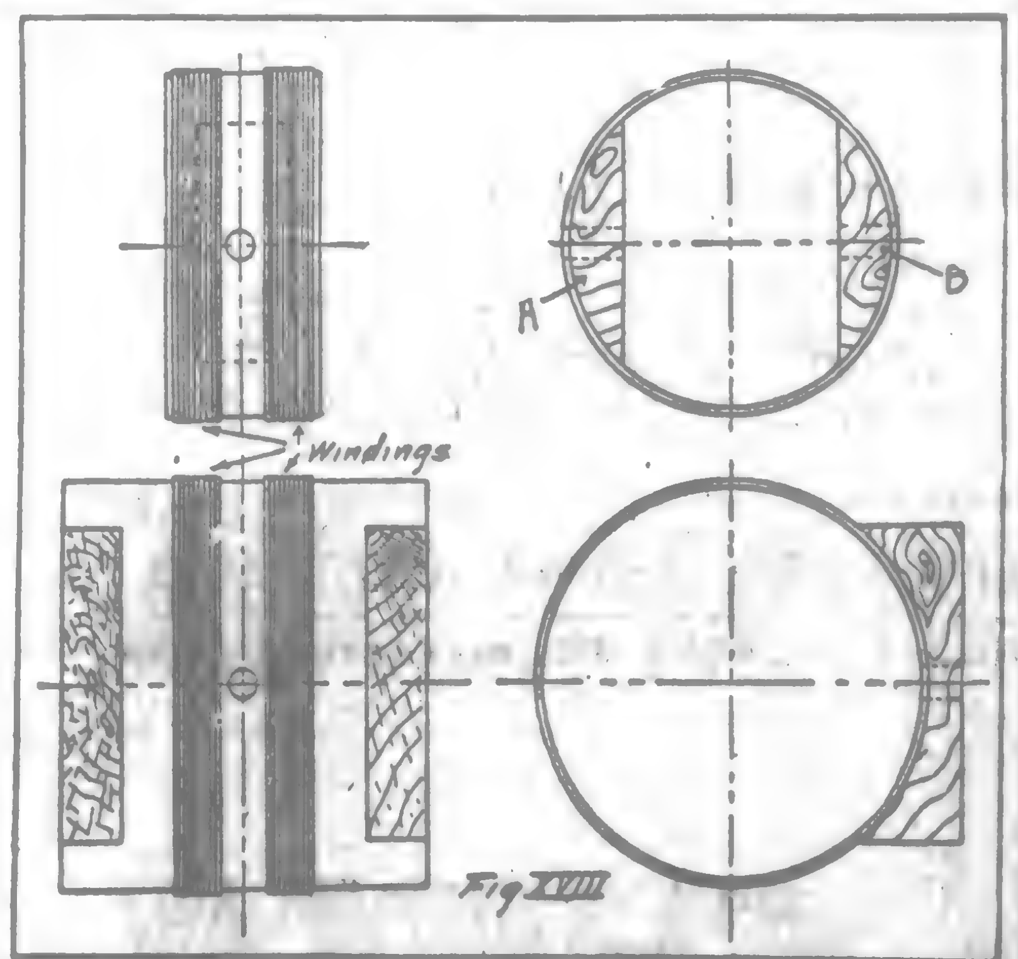
The vertical panel upon which the set is mounted is six inches high and eight inches long by three-eighths of an inch thick. It should be of a clear, close-grained wood that has been well dried to prevent warping. The panel is fastened to the base board, which is four inches by seven inches, by one-half inch thick, by means of the screws.

Before mounting any of the parts, the panel base board should be finished. Staining the panel dull black and shellacking the base board will make a pleasing combination.

Fig. 19 shows how the variometer is assembled on the panel. The center of the variometer is three and one-quarter inches up from the bottom of the panel and two and three-quarter inches from end. The assembling drawings are all to scale and by referring to them, all the details will be made clear.

Fig. 20 is a plan view of the set, showing the location of the tube socket, grid condenser with grid leak and phone condenser.

A receiver of this type is very simple in operation, since the wave length is entirely controlled by one knob and the detector by the other knob.



CRYSTAL SET IS ALL RIGHT

In Its Own Way It Is Quite as Efficient as the Vacuum Tube Outfit.

The small crystal receiving set, which may be likened to "the poor man's set," contrary to reports heard in some quarters, is quite as efficient in its way as the much higher-priced and elaborate vacuum tube outfit. While these sets are usually not guaranteed to receive more than fifteen or twenty-five miles, some amateurs have succeeded in hearing music over a fifty-mile range.

But the most amazing of all is the report which comes from a retailer in New York, who says that he has succeeded in connecting up an amplifier with his set. Despite the handicap of being entirely surrounded by steel skyscrapers, this set is in daily operation.

Radio Warns of Thunderstorms.

[illegible]

SPARKS

The man who uses bedsprings in place of an aerial might at times be accused of "lying down on the job."

The University of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C., is planning to erect and operate a broadcasting station by popular subscription. It is hoped that $12,000 will be [illegible].

The [illegible] party-line telephone service in the country and radio service is that all the neighbors are expected to listen in in both cases, but no one objects in the case of the radio.

A magnifying violin, for radio purposes, has been invented by a musical genius. Its use by beginners should be prohibited by law. What the violin beginner needs is a soft pedal of pronounced ability.

To [illegible] of their issues of new [illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

BLACKSNAKE GOSSIP

"There was once someone," said the Blacksnake, "who talked to some people about gossip. This talker told the people that it was bad, to gossip and that they must keep from talking about others.

"The talker told how it got people into trouble and caused unhappiness and sorrow. And then the talker told the people to each take the talk to themselves and not think it was intended for their neighbors.

"But alas, and alack, the people talked of how the talk had been just such a talk as their neighbors needed, and didn't take the lesson to heart as they should have done.

"Now I am hoping that people will take my lesson to heart.

"I hope they will not say that they do not gossip but will listen to my talk and will take pains to undo the harm that has been done and not gossip ever, ever again.

"Such gossip has gone about regarding me and regarding my family.

"Bit by bit I shall talk of the stories that have been told about me, and I will tell of how untrue they are.

"In the first place of all I do not squeeze my prey until it is killed. I am not a constrictor, and a constrictor does that.

"I have never done that and I will never do that, though people will often say that the Blacksnake does do that.

"I Prefer Nice Little Snakes."

"In the second place I do not attack the rattlesnake. And why should I? He is a bigger creature than I am. I am a good-sized creature, it is true. In fact, I am very long and I'd be considered anywhere a good-sized snake.

"But Mr. Rattlesnake is not an interesting snake to me. He is too big. I prefer nice little snakes of smaller size.

"I'm not above eating a smaller snake. Oh, no, I'm not above that. And I suppose that is the way the story got about that I attacked the Rattlesnake.

"That is the way with stories. They're founded, perhaps, on just a little scrap of truth, and then they are added to and added to until they're nothing at all like the story was in the first place.

"I suppose some one said that we ate smaller snakes than ourselves. And then the story was spread about and added to until it was said we even ate Rattlesnakes.

"I admit that we do like smaller snakes. We haven't any reason for not liking them. They're very good little snakes; that is, snakes smaller than we are we consider very good.

"But we don't go after Rattlesnakes. We keep away from them, hiss, hiss. We don't like Rattlesnakes. No, no indeed hiss, hiss, hiss.

"Then it has been said about us that we go after people and jump for them. This is not true at all.

"If we are cornered we will fight bravely, but we do not go after people.

"We're not fond of them and we keep out of the way of them. And yet this untrue story has gone about that we go after people and that we are very [illegible] to them because we go seeking [illegible].

"I [illegible] that all this gossip will be stopped before long, for it is most [illegible].

"I [illegible] to have the truth known about me, but I do not like to hear gossip.

"I [illegible] gossip about other snakes and I [illegible] gossip about people. So I wish they wouldn't gossip about me!

"I wish that tremendously. I have also heard that I can look at a bird so that the bird doesn't know which way to move, and that I make the bird stay quite still just by hissing at him.

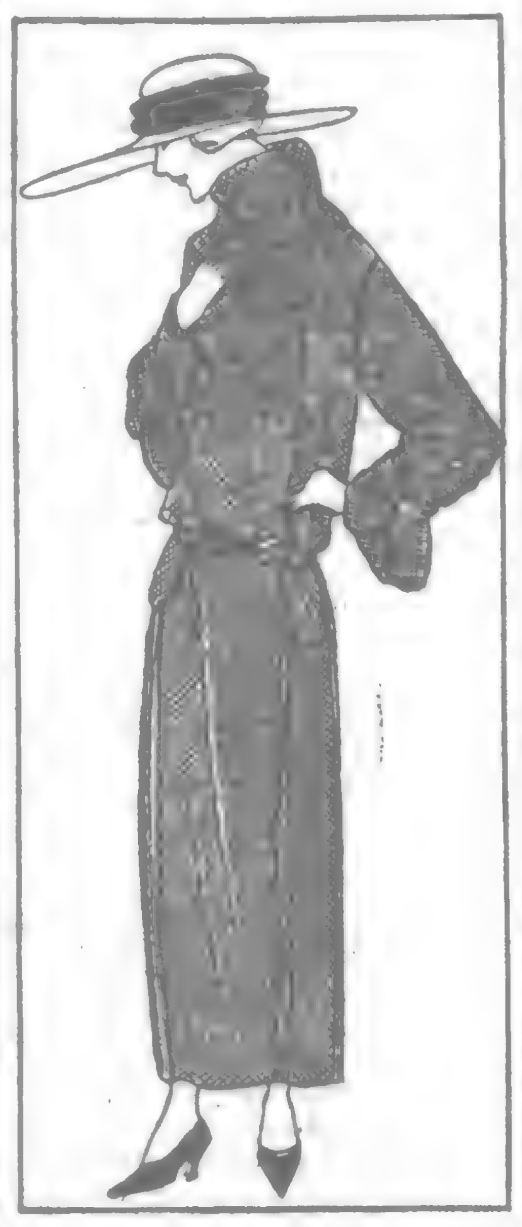
"They say that I do this so as to capture the bird [illegible].

[illegible]

Long Lines Are to Be Fall Style

Every season, when fashion news seems dullest, a few high lights of style develop which prove to be the keynotes of the coming season, surviving the fire of criticism and wear and exposure. It is easy, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times, to look back then and see the fashion extravagances that have died by the wayside and those which have won the honors of the day.

We have kept a few essentials, added them to worthy survivals from the past, and now we stand ready to go into a new season for the accumulation of other and perhaps more important features of dress. This, then, is what is called the evolution of style. It is by this process that our clothes develop. We cannot long retain a trimming or a gew-gaw that is not useful, but if the fashion survives the test, it is bound to be a thing which will be generally satisfactory for many seasons to come, not just for the short span of months called a season.



Coat With Sweeping Lines and Contrasting Lining, Survival of a Successful Fashion Season.

The Long Coat.

No one with an aptitude for observing style as it develops can fail to see that the long coat with loose, graceful lines is one thing which has come out of this season as a surety. It has superseded the cape and, by that same process of evolution, has become a thing with all of the valuable points of the cape retained and gracefulnesses added.

The cape had gone a little too far. It had become too extremely popular for any claim to ultra-smartness. It was necessary that some new idea be thought of, and it happened to be the coat of longer, more flowing lines.

So many of these new coats, seen at the races, the country clubs and all outdoor gatherings, are made of the heavier silks in dark or neutral colors, with rather more startling tones used for the linings. Seen coming along the road, it is puzzling to know whether some garments are a coat or a cape, after all, so closely do the two types resemble each other. When the coat swings open, it has those cape lines to which we have clung so long because of their womanly charm. But when the coat is closed it is more of an adequate street garment than the cape could ever hope to be. It has a bit of style all by itself, needing no other garment to make it successful.

The long coat is a Parisian interpretation of this newer of the outer garments. It is simple enough in its line and general makeup, but it has that attention to detail of style which places it in the class of the more important creations of the season. The stuff from which it is made is the heaviest of Moroccan crepes—a fabric with the heaviness of a serge or a velours [illegible] woven entirely from silk [illegible]. The coat is stitched around [illegible]

Beads for Trimming.

[illegible] have them run into each other. They are heavy beads, so that there could be no attempt to mass them unduly for fear of the heaviness that they would impart to a gown which must necessarily be light in weight and appearance to carry out the function for which it is designed.

This dress is one of the loveliest of the white dresses of the season and the beads are made of cut jet, showing up strongly against the purity of the background of rough white crepe. Of course there are many girdles and cabochon trimmings made of these larger and more effective beads, and each time the trimming appears the fact is made more apparent that the heaviness and the largeness of them is one of the season's developments in dress decoration which is bound to carry on.

Straight Versus Bouffant Lines.

The survival of the straight line through another season's struggle serves to show that in this style the American woman has found something to which her personality is eminently fitted. She may experiment with all of the innovations in the way of more generous widths, but back she comes to the straight lines, which have proved their satisfaction.

Down go the skirts to a far lower level, but the straightness of the line of the frock remains intact. We have innovations, to be sure, but none of them are met with any enthusiasm. At the end of a very smart and successful season of dress the straight line is the one which has won the day—that is, for general favor and popularity.

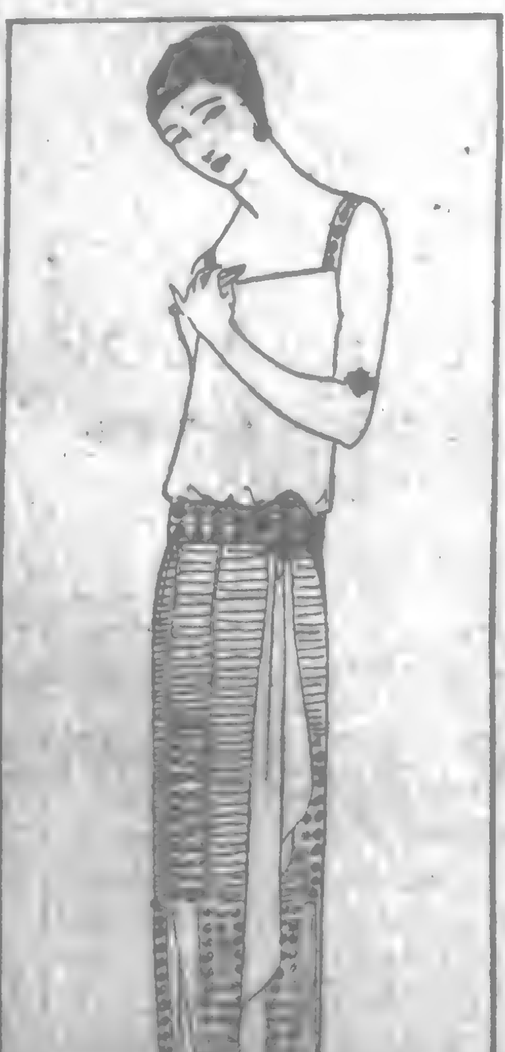
There seems no chance, either, that the straight line will cease to be original, for with each new creation there seems to be some brand-new development in the way of applying this simplicity of cut. It is a line which never seems to grow old, and, because it is so well suited to the American woman's figure plus the life she leads, it bids fair to go on, with additions, subtractions and revisions, for a long while to come.

Draping in Long Lines.

The sleeves that are draped, the skirts that are draped, the waistlines that are draped and so on show trend toward using materials in this prescribed manner. We are becoming so accustomed to gracefulness in our everyday attire that we are really quite classic, and after a while we will find ourselves unable to do without this general stimulus of beauty.

Artists in dress have been working for this end a long while. They have insisted that, once the American woman came to know her own powers of displaying the beautiful, she would develop that art with an avidity never before known in the history of woman. And this summer as one walks along the street it is impossible not to be struck by the fact that there is a larger element of beauty in our clothes than there has been in all the years of our recollection.

The draping, so much a part of the accepted gown, is in a large measure responsible for this state of affairs. There is hardly a gown where some bit of it is not to be seen, and every[illegible]



[illegible] Large Beads [illegible] Make the Straight Lines of a Cream White Crepe.

[illegible] that the loose, long folds ap[illegible]

[illegible]

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Help one another, the dew drop cried,
Seeing another drop close by its side;
This warm south breeze would drive me away
And I should be gone ere noon today,
But I'll help you and you help me
And we'll make a brook and run to the sea!

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

To keep kerosene lamps sweet—always have several wicks for the lamp, and often remove the wick and burner, boiling and cleansing in an old dish kept for that purpose; add soap, powder and washing soda, then rinse well after boiling.

When stamps stick together, just cover with a piece of tissue paper and press with a warm iron; they separate easily and can be used again without the addition of mucilage.

When mending wall paper, if a small hole is torn, tear the paper instead of cutting it, the irregular edge will paste down and not be so noticeable as a nicely cut patch.

An egg saver which will be useful again is this: One tablespoonful of gelatin softened in cold water, then enough hot water added to finish the process, using altogether one cupful of water. This will take the place of three egg whites in making a white cake. Beat the gelatin with an egg beater and add to the cake.

When using a wringer with two thumb screws use both hands in screwing so that the pressure is even. Remove the pressure when not in use, thus prolonging the life of the wringer.

Elastic makes a fine curtain rod; run it into the sash curtains and fasten with a loop over a brass tack at each side. Cut the elastic about three inches shorter than the space.

When cutting slices from a ham to be kept at home, cover the cut surface with melted paraffin, which keeps it fresh and free from mold. Treat cheese in the same way.

Rust may be removed by rubbing well with a slice of onion; let it stand 24 hours, rub with turpentine and the rust will vanish.

Children will learn to sew, happily, making things for their dolls.

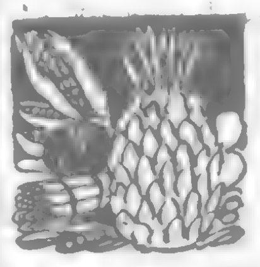
If mayonnaise curdles in the making, start all over again, using another egg yolk, adding the curdled mixture, a small amount at a time, until all is well blended.

A picture book that the children will enjoy making and then filling is made of six or eight inch pieces of cardboard, joined by strips of muslin, one and one-half inches wide; the size of the cardboard may be nine by twelve, and the cardboards are placed about one-fourth of an inch apart on the muslin to allow the folding and hinge. Pictures may be pasted on each side and the cardboards arranged as a room or screen.

A man can build a mansion
And furnish it throughout;
A man can build a palace
With lofty walls and stout;
A man can build a temple
With high and spacious dome;
But no man in the world can build
That precious thing called—Home.
—Ione Jones.

MORE ABOUT RAW FOODS

The raw-food people never have colds, fevers, torpid livers, stomach troubles, nervousness or any number of common ailments that the out-of-date ordinary cooked food eater has, they tell us.



The raw-food movement deserves at least a fair trial, for it seems to be the remedy for many ills. Fat people grow thin, thin people grow fat, and the muddy skin of the meat-eater becomes clear and bright.

Who wouldn't eat raw beets, carrots and peas if she finds herself growing gracefully slender, or who wouldn't like the feeling of youth and freshness flowing through the blood and limbering up the muscles.

These foods when carefully prepared and balanced will convince the most predjudiced that they are all that they have been called.

The amount that a raw-fooder eats is small; he is quickly satisfied. The reason is that the stomach seems to know that it has enough and telegraphs the fact to the taste and he finds himself satisfied.

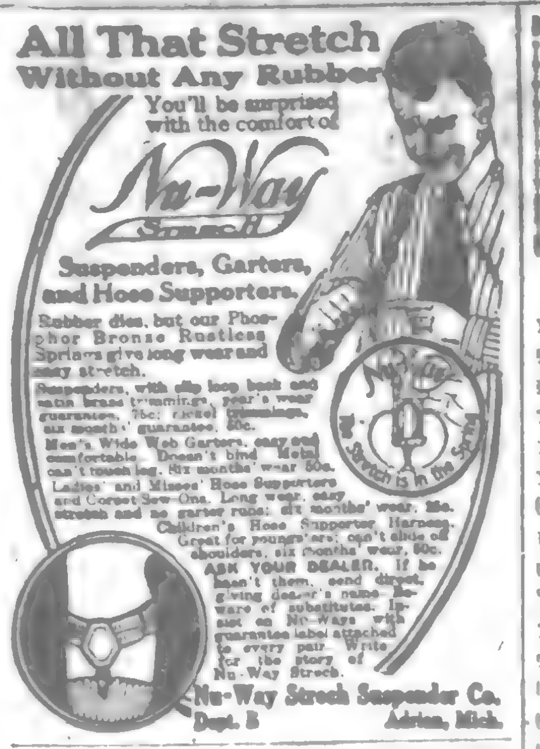
With a good meal of raw foods you have a sensation of taste never before experienced and you feel you are eating one of the most delicious of meals.

You masticate every bit, find yourself feeling good after the meal, [illegible] and when retiring [illegible], sleep like the proverbial log. There really is something [illegible] in this; try it.

[illegible] don't you like to go [illegible] and pull the sweet [illegible] and eat your fill? [illegible]

[illegible]

Nessie Maxwell



All That Stretch Without Any Rubber

You'll be surprised with the comfort of Nu-Way Strech Suspenders, Garters, and Hose Supporters.

Rubber dies, but our Phosphor Bronze Rustless Springs give long wear and easy stretch.

Suspenders, with slip loop back and satin brass trimmings, year's wear guarantee, 75c; nickel trimmings, six months' guarantee, 50c.

Men's Wide Web Garters, easy and comfortable. Doesn't bind. Metal can't touch leg. Six months' wear 50c.

Ladies' and Misses' Hose Supporters and Corset Sew-Ons. Long wear, easy stretch and no garter runs; six months' wear, 25c.

Children's Hose Supporter Harness. Great for youngsters; can't slide off shoulders, six months wear, 50c.

ASK YOUR DEALER. If he hasn't them, send direct, giving dealer's name. Beware of substitutes. Insist on Nu-Ways with guarantee label attached to every pair. Write for the story of Nu-Way Strech.

Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co.
Dept. B Adrian, Mich.

DAIRY FARM—120 ACRES RICH LAND, fine buildings, abundant crops, profitable markets, machinery, crops, 2 horses, 10 cows, 10 heifers, one bull. Price $12,000, $5,000 cash. VITALIS NELSON, Daggett, Mich.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE

Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed. DAISY FLY KILLER at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MAKE MONEY IN OIL WITHOUT INVESTMENT—Send names and addresses of 10 prospective and known oil investors, together with $1.00 to cover expenses. I will send you 1/500 interest 10-acre Mexia lease. Address JAS. CADRIN, Box 181, Pioneer, Tex.

Reaches Away Back.

A baldheaded society man tells this one on himself. He was at a lawn party, and a matron who thought he was too busy talking to a pretty girl to notice what she was saying remarked in a low voice to another matron, "What a nice face Mr. Blank has."

Just then he happened to remove his hat for a moment and he heard the other reply, "Yes, and how much there is of it."—Boston Transcript.

The housewife smiles with satisfaction as she looks at the basket of clear, white clothes and thanks Red Cross Ball Blue. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

Beginners Encouraged.

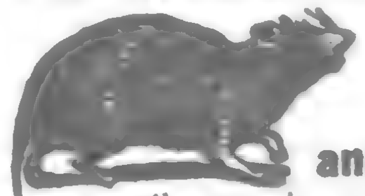
First Young Doctor—How are you coming along? Making good?

Second Young Doctor—Fine! I'm thankful I didn't begin to practice in the days before prohibition, though.

"Same here."—Judge.

Violin lessons at eight cents each are available to the pupils of one London school.

TO KILL RATS and MICE



Always use the genuine
STEARNS' ELECTRIC PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air. Rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs and ants destroy food and property and are carriers of disease.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS
Directions in 15 languages in every box.
2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.
MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

"111" cigarettes

10¢
They are GOOD!

Cuticura Soap
—Is Ideal for—
The Complexion
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
[illegible]
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

16799 DIED

in New York City alone from kidney trouble last year. Don't allow yourself to become a victim by neglecting pains and aches. Guard against this trouble by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL

[illegible]

[illegible] every box [illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Elwood.—The canning season in northern Madison county, where seven packing companies are located, will start two weeks earlier than usual, tomatoes being received by August 10 this year. The VanCamp company has contracts for 1,000 acres here and the Frazier Packing company has 1,500 acres. The latter has catsup contracts which will keep it running until the first of January, a large part of the product going to the United States navy. None of the canning factories has a large coal supply on hand, but they are depending on the state to see that they get fuel with which to operate.

Indianapolis.—Ending a week of hearings on the 1922 tax appraisements on farm land, other real estate, and personal property in the 92 counties of Indiana, the state tax commissioners are now in conference to determine what orders and recommendations should be issued to county boards of review in order to obtain relative equity in valuations over the state. The three commissioners indicated that the necessity for horizontal increases in many counties of the state, which became apparent early in the work of review, had increased as the reports were multiplied.

Petersburg.—The Elberta peach crop in Pike county is ripening. The crop is the largest in years. Charles Lemmon, living north of Petersburg, has 900 Elberta trees, which are five years old, and the orchard is so full of peaches that a force of men started work recently picking the faulty peaches from the trees to save the trees from breaking down. The Lemmon orchard alone will produce 3,500 bushels of marketable peaches. In case of a railroad strike these peaches will be trucked to nearby cities for sale.

Gary.—The Gary Heat, Light and Water company received a bulletin from L. A. Geupel, director of the water and sewage department of the Indiana state board of health, warning residents of Indiana cities bordering on Lake Michigan that the water of the lake and that of others of Indiana lakes is becoming polluted and that injurious results from a health standpoint may develop unless this subject is given close technical supervision at all times.

Muncie.—Declaring that he and other members of his race were rejected from the "white" section of McCulloch park, Henry Alexander, colored attorney, has filed suit against the city asking $500 damages and demanding that negroes be admitted to all parts of the park. The city for years has maintained a park section for colored persons with the same attractions and conveniences given the whites.

Valparaiso.—Porter county authorities raided two places in Pine township and confiscated whisky-making equipment valued at more than $8,000 on a farm near Furnersville. Two large stills and twenty barrels of mash were found there and on the Isaac Huffman place near Burdick three big stills and twenty-two barrels of mash were found. The two plants were the largest ever seized by local officers.

Lafayette.—U. S. Lesh, attorney general of Indiana, in an opinion submitted to the board of trustees of the Indiana State Soldiers' Home at Lafayette, has sustained the board in its action recently in enforcing regulations requiring members of the institution to turn over part of their pension money toward maintenance of the home.

Gary.—The total taxable wealth of Lake county for 1922 will approximate $363,500,000, as against $378,637,340 in 1921, a decrease of approximately $15,000,000, according to estimates by members of the county board of review. The taxable wealth of the city of Gary will approximate $183,000,000 this year, as against $140,147,150 last year.

Monticello.—Horseshoes, pieces of metal and stones have been found tied in sheaves of wheat in several fields in White county during the last two weeks, and in one case a thrashing machine was damaged considerably and temporarily put out of commission. Petty spitefulness and deviltry are indicated in the stories of these incidents.

Evansville.—Issuance of $19,000 in bonds for the construction of bridges has been approved by the Vanderburg county council. The bonds will bear 4½ per cent interest and will be redeemed in ten years. One-tenth of the total will be redeemed each year for ten years.

Anderson.—Service on lines of the Union Traction company of Indiana was curtailed when 20 regular interurban passenger trains were annulled. Officials at general headquarters said the action was regarded as necessary because of a dwindling coal supply, the result of the miners' strike.

English.—Oil has been discovered in a well belonging to Thomas Harvey at Marengo, standing four to five inches deep on the water. It is a yellowish color and has been [illegible] in Indiana. [illegible] of it have been [illegible] and sent to different points for analysis.

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Reports received by the public service commission from 200 public utility companies in Indiana show a serious shortage of coal in the state. The reports came in as a result of questionnaires sent out by the commission to all public utility companies in the state. City-operated companies have been hardest hit by the combined coal and railroad strikes, the reports showed. Ten per cent of the companies reporting said they had coal enough to last a little more than a month. Fifty per cent said they had coal enough to last almost a month and the other 40 per cent reported they had enough to last anywhere from two weeks down to only a few days.

Evansville.—Plans for the conversion of the old Wimberg park tract at the corner of Wimberg avenue and the Cynthiana road, Evansville, into a cemetery in memory of Vanderburg county's World war veterans, have been announced. About $50,000 will be spent in improving the ground. Features of the cemetery will be a memorial arch and the setting aside of a tract near the entrance as a burial place for World war veterans. A monument will be erected at this point. The cemetery will be known as the Memorial Park cemetery, and the dedication will be held within the next 60 days.

Nashville.—Brown county has the largest peach and berry crop in the history of the county. Jacob Beach, owner of one of the largest peach orchards in the county, says he has trees that will bear from five to six bushels each and that he doubts whether he can handle the crop. Early peaches are selling at $1.25 a bushel. Late rains have caused the berries to ripen and hundreds of gallons are being picked. Some farmers have posters on their farms reading, "Help Yourself to Berries." Apples are also plentiful in Brown county.

Anderson.—Directors of the Madison County Farmers' association have decided to join in the federated marketing plan of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations for buying fertilizer and probably other supplies in wholesale quantities. Farmers who do not belong to the various township and county organizations will not be permitted to share in the federated marketing service. For that reason Madison county will be recanvassed to increase the membership of the farmers' organizations.

Hammond.—Lake county began its campaign for the organization of local units of the Milk Products Co-Operative Marketing organization, when nearly half the producers attending a milk meeting at St. John signed the new marketing agreement devised by the American farm bureau committee of nine. According to a prediction made by one of the local men, 75 per cent of the producers in that part of Lake county will sign the contract within the next two or three weeks.

South Bend.—Indiana's onion crop will be small, not more than 65 per cent of normal. Although plantings cover 4,500 acres, against 3,900 acres a year ago, thin stands will greatly reduce the yield. The largest planting is in Whitley county, where 970 acres are under cultivation. Other plantings are as follows: Noble, 650 acres; Starke, 500 acres; Dekalb, 385 acres; Jasper, 370 acres; Steuben, 244 acres; Kosciusko, 390 acres. Much replanting was necessary because of early rains.

Jeffersonville.—The honey crop this year will be disappointing, according to Oscar Johnson, three miles east of Jeffersonville, who was expecting a bumper yield. He says that the rain washed the pollen out of the clover and other blossoms from which the bees should extract the nectar, and that while there is plenty of blossoms there is little sugar for the honey bees.

South Bend.—South Bend property owners have been surprised by an announcement of the St. Joseph county board of review that a horizontal decrease of 10 per cent had been ordered on all real estate in South Bend. The announcement followed publication of the news of the act of the township assessor in increasing land valuations 23 per cent.

Gary.—Simultaneously with the arrival of the first trainload of machinery and equipment for the construction of the $15,000,000 Gary tube plant, came the announcement that the Gary coke plant immediately will be enlarged by the addition of 140 coke ovens, making a total of 840 ovens, or one of the largest plants of its kind in the United States.

Decatur.—Adams county farmers are taking much interest in alfalfa lately, and indications are that a record-breaking crop will be seeded during the next year. Several farmers are plowing up their wheat and oats stubble and seeding it in alfalfa. The crop has never been raised extensively in this county.

Marion.—The Indiana State Federation of Labor has issued a call for the thirty-eighth annual state convention, which will be held in Marion August 29, 30 and 31. A housing committee has been named to take care of visiting delegates.

Warsaw.—John Zehner, sixty-two, of Roann, was literally "scared to death" when he sat down in a chair in the office of Dr. J. C. [illegible] [illegible]

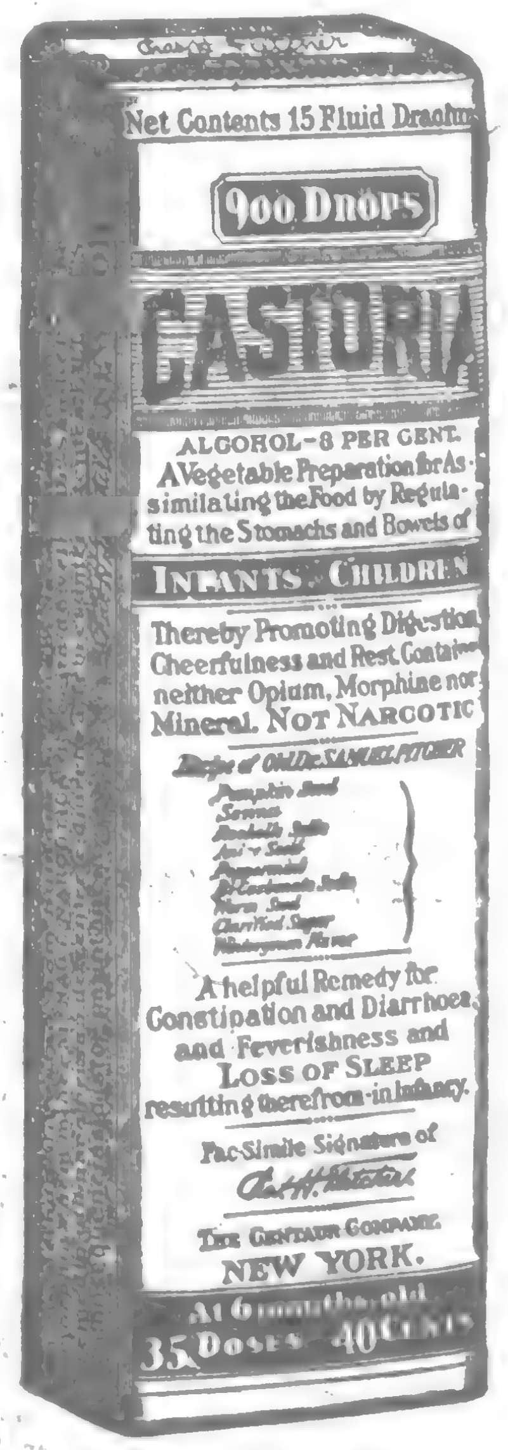
[illegible]

When Baby Complains.

THERE ARE MANY WAYS a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
The Centaur Company,
NEW YORK.
35 Doses 40 Cents

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Let's Think It Over.

There is such a thing as saying too much on any subject, and the "grand-stand" talker sooner or later becomes a bore. The truth is always welcomed, and the truth reiterated and confirmed is more than welcome—it reaches your innermost soul.

Fletcher's Castoria is all its advertising has claimed for it. Scrutinized by the microscope of public opinion and used for over thirty years it stands without a peer in the hearts of thoughtful, cautious, discerning Mothers. And once used, mother love—there is no substitute for mother love—will scorn to try a "substitute" or a "just-as-good".

Masquerading under many names drugs that are injurious to the tender babe have found their way into some households, but the light of experience soon casts them out. Are they cast out before it is too late?

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

10 Cents BRIGHTENS, REFRESHES, ADDS NEW DELIGHT TO OLD DRAPERIES
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES—dyes or tints as you wish

Miss Eva La Rose of Lawrence, Mass., is said to be the only woman sign painter in New England.

A twelfth of a second is estimated to be the time required for the human mind to conceive a single thought.

Vain Hope.

Wife—I spent the afternoon shopping.

Hub—Not much else, I hope.

Sometimes it is hard to forgive our friends for our loneliness.

Draws No Interest.

"Have you anything in the savings bank?"

"Only confidence."

Do not take the consequences unless you are entitled to them.

Which is Larger
The Sun or a Cent

The sun is the largest but you can hold the cent so close to your eye that you'll lose sight of the sun.

Don't let a cheap price or a big can baking powder make you lose sight of quality

CALUMET
The Economy BAKING POWDER

Is the quality leavener—for real economy in the kitchen, always use Calumet, one trial will convince you.

CALUMET
BAKING POWDER

BEST BY TEST

The World's Greatest Baking Powder

AUGUST

Program For Old Settlers

Old Fiddlers's Contest The Feature of Meeting at Auburn, August 10

The program was completed Friday for the 54th annual meeting of Old Settlers of DeKalb county, to be held at Auburn on Thursday, August 10. Following are the events as arranged:

Forenoon

9:30—Registration and concert by Auburn Ladies band.

10:30—Program assembly room of court house.

Invocation—Rev. E. E. Trippeer.

Song—"America."

Secretary's report—H. C. Willis

Address of Welcome—Mayor Warren Lige of Auburn.

Response—Luther Knisley of Butler.

Appointment of committees.

Dinner

Free coffee in Commercial Club basement. Take your basket dinners there. Plenty of chairs and tables at your service.

Afternoon

12:30—Music by the band.

1:00—Old Fiddlers' contest, court house lawn.

2:00—Program, Court Theatre.

Music.

Song by Yoder brothers quartette

Reading, Miss Ailene Willennar Auburn.

Song—Miss Wima A. Thomas.

Biographer's report.

Reading—Mrs. H. K. Thomas, Churubusco.

Song by the quartette.

Speech—Rev. A. J. Folsom of Fort Wayne.

Award of premium to oldest man and woman residents.

Report of committee.

Song by quartette.

HERE AND THERE

E. R. Kinsey and family and Miss Josephine Johnson spent Thursday in Fort Wayne.

Frank Kinsey and wife had as Friday dinner guests Mrs. Pauline Miller of Detroit, and Miss Melba Andress.

John Hart, Jr., of Fort Wayne, came Saturday for an indefinite visit with his grandparents, Sam Kees and wife.

Mrs. Hugh Langwell of Bloomington, left for her home the first of the week, after two weeks visit with her mother, Mrs. Virginia Lawson, and other relatives.

Patterson-Fletcher Co.'s

Great Half Price

SALE

THE SALE OF ALL SALES

Begins Thursday Morning at 8 o'Clock

August 3

Thousands and thousands of dollars worth of high-grade seasonable merchandise for men, young men and boys will be sold at just

HALF PRICE

WATCH FORT WAYNE DAILY PAPERS FOR DETAIL ANNOUNCEMENT

Sale Begins Thursday Morning, Aug. 3

August 3

Patterson-Fletcher Company

WAYNE AND HARRISON

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Dan Myers drove to Farmer Center, Saturday and took his nieces and nephew Leah, Maxine Woodrow Hart from that place to their home in Fort Wayne.

Miss Mino Beensteel of Farmington, Michigan, is spending an indefinite time with her aunt, Mrs. Dan Myers and family and with the Howard Borthwick family.

Mrs. Caroline Chorpenning and son William, and William Gray of Auburn, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of Sam Kees and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hoffman and daughters Margaret and Ruth, were guests at a six o'clock dinner Thursday evening at the home of F. M. Thornton and wife.

Mrs. Bessie Tustison and Ralph Patterson and son, Chase, of Springfield, Ohio, came Friday evening for a visit with their mother, Mrs. Ella Patterson.

A ROCKING HORSE

makes motion but no progress. If you are to be progressive you

Must Not Only Work

but you must save your earnings. It it almost next to impossible for you to be on the standstill, you are making or loosing. The fellow that has gone ahead of you is the man who has grasped the opportunity of sav- his earnings for future investment. He has had and took advantage of their facilities.

CONFIDENCE IN THE BANK

YOU CAN DO THE SAME.

Yours truly,

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Try a want ad in the News.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

A demonstration on hat making will be held at this place on Aug. 9, under the auspices of the Home Economy class.

Henry Beams Sr., underwent an operation at the Hope Methodist hospital last week and is quite sick.

Mrs. Anna Boger, who spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Gus Hafner and husband, returned home Sunday.

The concert and social given by the Lutheran orchestra on Saturday night was a big success, $35.45 was cleared.

The St. Joe pickle station will receive pickles on and after Monday, August 7.

Stop at the News Office and get a Magazine.

Miss Elva Wilmot of Reeding, Michigan, spent several days last week at the home of Vernon Wilmot.

Garnett Beams, who has been visiting at Hicksville the past two weeks returned home Friday evening. Miss Vivian Queesenberry returned with her for a visit.

Homer Bowser and family and Theodore Bowser of Huntertown, Cleo Bowser of Fort Wayne and James Reed of Hopewell, were Sunday dinner guests in the R. U. Bowser home.

The Annual Homecoming and the Old School Reunion combined will be held on Saturday, Augusr 19, at Spencerville.

Watch for the program in next weeks' paper.

Dickelman Storage will starve those rats

Save what rats carry away from your wooden crib and you save enough corn to pay your taxes! Safety from rat losses is [illegible]

[illegible]

SPENCERVILLE LUMBER CO.

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Auburn Man Arrested For Carrying Gun

Claude Freeburn, of Auburn, was placed under arrest Friday evening by Marshal Harry T. Miller in Garrett on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was taken before Justice L. J. Gengler and pleaded guilty. He was fined $10 and costs, a total of $21, which was paid.

Freeburn has been employed for a short time as a special policeman by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., and is on strike duty at the Garrett shops. The marshal found he was carrying a revolver while away from his employer's property, which is a violation of the law.

Arrested By Motor Cop

Charles Saylor, DeKalb county's motorcycle patrolman, has been spending some time on the Tonkle road south of Auburn, trying to break up the habit of motorists passing corners as reckless speed. He says he has warned a large number of motorists to use more caution.

Mr. Saylor saw F. W. Tielker, of Fort Wayne, a contractor, cross the road south of the Grube bridge, three miles from Auburn, Wednesday morning at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. He gave chase and says he had to tune his motorcycle up to fifty before he caught up with Tielker.

Mr. Saylor signed an affidavit prepared by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Charles S. Smith, charging Tielker with violating the speed laws. The hearing was postponed.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	113	$18.32
M. P	83	4 48
Lutheran	82	4 43
M. E. Spencer	87	4.71
Lutheran	86	5.12
Newville U. B.	94	4.07
Christian	77	3.62
Coburntown	63	2 50
Concord	51	3.31
Rehoboth	83	4.71
Mt. Pleasant	132	5.29

A very impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. E. T. Howe, president of the Indiana Conference of the Methodist Protestant church, at the union services last Sunday evening. Rev. Howe had been here attending the quarterly meeting of the local M. P. church, held Saturday night and Sunday. He also delivered a fine sermon at the morning service.

Next Sunday evening those who attend the union services will be favored by a sermon by Dr. C. S. Johnson.

The services have been very well attended, but it is to be emphasized that everybody is invited to come. The services begin at six o'clock.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Belle Ridgway. Each lady may bring her own work.

The Loyal Boys and Girls class met Friday evening with Miss Priscilla Borthwick. Eleven members and five guests were present. Ice cream and cake were served. Ethel Lindley will be the next hostess. This class is planning to give an ice cream social next week. The time to be Thursday evening. More will be given in next week's paper.

The Christian congregation has been invited to attend the annual home coming to be held at the Newville Christian Church next Sunday. Charles Reign Scoville will be the speaker of the day.

St. Joe Locals

Ford Jackson and wife, Mrs. Charles Jackson and daughter, spent Sunday afternoon with Bert Jackson and wife.

Mrs. F. M. Thornton and children and Mrs. Anna [illegible] were guests in the Wm. [illegible] home at Auburn, Friday.

[illegible]

Ed Miser and family and Robert Johnson spent part of Sunday at Rome City.

Mrs. Lloyd Miller and Glen Kinsey visited Newville friends Thursday.

Subscribe for the NEWS.

Lester Curie of Tulsa, Oklahoma, returned home after spending a week here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Curie.

Walker Gibberd and Russell Raymond, both of Adrian, Michigan, spent Sunday and Monday in the home of Dr. C. S Johnson.

Mrs. Charles Jordan and son, of Fort Wayne, spent from Friday until Sunday with her parents, G. M. Barney and wife.

The Misses Marjorie Curie and Edna Jackson, who are attending school at Winona, spent from Thursday evening until Sunday evening at their homes here.

Mrs. Ada Berry is spending several days at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Hatch, in Fort Wayne, caring for her and the little son born Wednesday evening.

Donald Davidson submitted to an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids at the Amaden hospital at Hicksville last week remaining two days.

Lloyd Yeiser, wife and daughter, Harriett, accompanied by Mrs. Ulyses Brouse and Mrs. Frank Tyler of Kendallville, motored to Marshallville, Ohio, Saturday and returned Tuesday of this week.

The annual business meeting of the local unit of the Methodist Protestant Church, was held last Thursday evening at the church. Officers to serve for the coming year were elected.

Mrs. Harry Hursh accampanied her sister, Mrs Lloyd Miller, and their brother-in-law, David Furnish, home Sunday after they had visited here in the Marsh Andress home for several days. Mrs. Furnish and little daughter remained for another week's visit.

Waldo Rosenbury and wife, and Will Koch, wife and grandson, Charles Coburn, spent Saturday with Dr. J. W. Morr and family at Albion. Mr. Koch and wife spent Sunday with Willard Packer and wife near Albion and Mr. Rosenbury and wife and the Morr young people spent the time at Lake Wawasee and Rome City.

The Peebles people held their reunion at the home of Charles Inlow and family July 23. Those present to enjoy the day were Montie Storer and family, Ed Storer and family, Curtis Hursey, wife and son, Woodrow, Jay Hart and family, Mrs. Ada Mann and son, Roy, Harry Mann and wife and brother-in-law and wife from Fort Waynd, Mrs. Al Martin and children, Paul Martin and Rev. Daily.

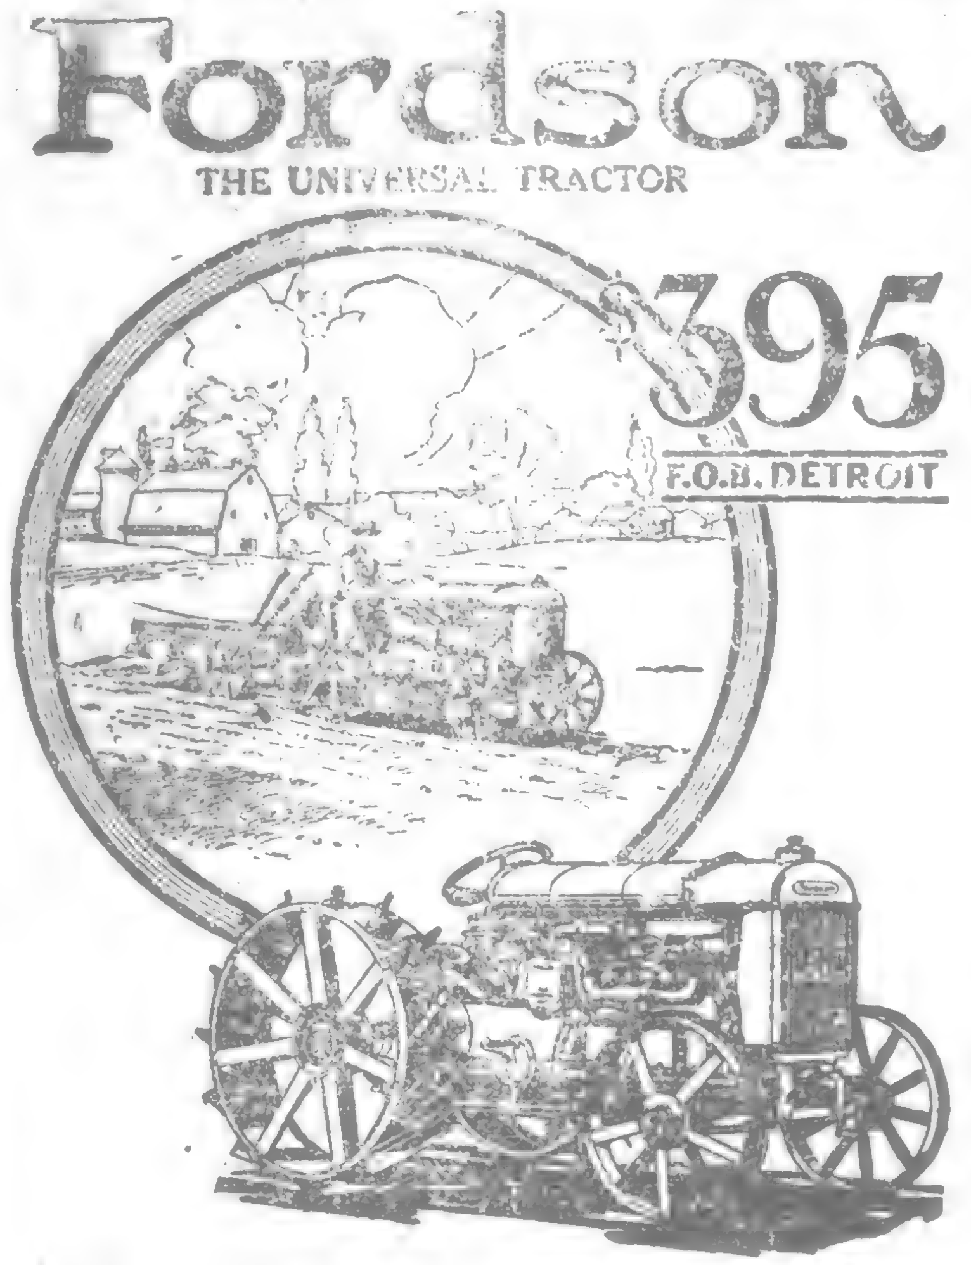
WANTED:—Fat Hogs

I Will Take In Fat Hogs At My Sale Barn In Spencerville Every Week Day And Evening.

R. U Bowser.

Call 38-12

SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA



Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

$395

F.O.B. DETROIT

Buy Your Fordson NOW

At this amazingly low price you can't afford to wait another day for your Fordson Tractor.

There is no tractor made that can approach the money value of the Fordson. Nor is there a Tractor made that can do more work for you.

Remember, the very day your Fordson arrives, it is ready for any one of the 101 jobs it can do—either as a tractor or a stationary power plant.

The Fordson has proved to the 170,000 owners that it has not only cut the cost of field work 30% to 50% but that it has made substantial savings on every job to which it is put.

Fordson figures are interesting-money-savers, labor-saving, drudgery-saving facts you ought to know. Come in, phone or write today.

Frank W. SILBERG
Spencerville, Indiana

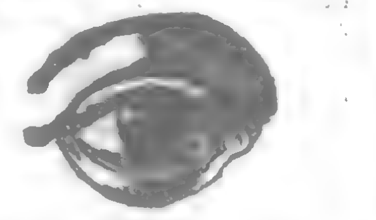
H. M. Andress and wife entertained Mr. and Mrs. David Furnish and daughter, Isabell of Detroit, Ralph and James Furnish, of Spencerville, Mrs. Minta Northup, Mrs. Pluma Hamilton and daughter, Margaret Elanor, and Mrs. Neva Hursh Wednesday.

Our Emergency Service—Woody says—
When snappy repairs and services are needed, either on the road or at the garage, we maintain it. Patronize your home Garage and help it give your community this service.

Laney Gee and wife had as Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Thayer of Warchester, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jackson of Hicksville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Thayer and two daughters of Fort Wayne, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer and Mrs. Ophelia Headley of Newvile, the latter being a guest in the Gee home from Friday until Monday.

While returning home from work at Fort Wayne, Saturday evening, Fred Gee in passing another car, was crowded off a fifteen foot embankment near Hurshtown. The car turned completely over landing on the wheels again. While Mr. Gee was badly shaken up he was not seriously hurt. The car was damaged somewhat, howev r.

One evening recently Rev. Daily gathered a number of little children into his automobile and took them for a ride. They stopped at Monte Storers. Charles Inlow was there with his children, and when all the little tots were turned loose in the barn lot to play a few minutes there was a total of twenty-three.



Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's Clothing House

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

[illegible] Calhoun Street

Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

American Farm Bureau

Fayette County Live Stock Shipping Yards.

Co-operative livestock shipments in Ohio totaled more than $10,000,000 during the past twelve months. The equipment illustrated is that used by the Fayette County Live Stock Shipping company in sending out their share. It is the property of the co-operative company, and was purchased for $6,000.

This plant is on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Washington Court House. There are two loading chutes leading directly to the cars. The office and scales are in a concrete building. The pens have concrete floors and can be easily cleaned. Storage room for feeds is available.

PRODUCER-OWNED AND CONTROLLED MARKET

Chicago Commission Association Formally Inaugurated With S. W. Doty as Manager.

The opening of the Chicago Producers' Commission association on June 19 gave the largest live stock market in the world a producer-owned and controlled marketing organization.

In the second week of its existence the co-operative company ranks well up toward the top of the 200 commission companies at the Union Stock Yards. One hundred and thirty-two cars were handled in the first nine days of business.

The Chicago Producers' Commission association was the third firm organized under the auspices of the National Live Stock Producers' association, set up by the farmers live stock marketing committee of 15 appointed by the American Farm Bureau federation. The Chicago commission house will handle live stock chiefly from Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, South Dakota and southeast Minnesota. A large number of co-operative shipping associations in those states have sent in memberships. S. W. Doty is general manager.

The second co-operative terminal commission house established under the plan of the committee of 15 was opened May 15 in Indianapolis. The second week after its opening it took first place at that market.

The producers' company at National Stock Yards, Illinois (St. Louis market), is the oldest one belonging to the National Live Stock Producers' association, and has been in operation since January 2, 1922. The value of the live stock handled by these two companies every week exceeds $500,000. Elsewhere the co-operative marketing of live stock is rapidly winding the confidence of the producers.

The Central Co-operative Commission association of South St. Paul, Minn., received 287 cars in one week. The surplus this Minnesota company set aside in the first five months of 1922, and just reported to the local shipping associations throughout the state, totals $48,183, after paying the entire cost of operation and handling the largest volume of business on the market at rates considerably below the prevailing commission charges. The company already has paid back to its patrons in patronage dividends more than $19,000, a sum larger than the total amount invested in its capital stock. The investigation department of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation has compiled figures showing that the money invested by live stock producers to establish their own sales agency on the terminal market amounted to less than 45 cents apiece. In the first five months of 1922 the Central association has handled 5,849 carloads of stock; the total volume of business on the market amounted to only 23,067 cars. The co-operative firm's business so far this year has been more than four times as large as that of its nearest competitor.

Co-operative live stock shipping in Ohio in May broke all previous records, according to figures just compiled by F. G. Ketner, director of live stock marketing for the Ohio Farm Bureau federation. The net market value of stock shipped by 51 county companies and two local units was $[illegible] for the month. These figures represent the shipping of [illegible] hogs 2,412 cattle, 5,754 calves and 12,727 sheep, totaling in weight [illegible] pounds. The service was used by 8,814 shippers who sent [illegible] of stock to the terminal market through their co-operative [illegible]. The average [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED BULLS IN KANSAS

Kansas City Chamber of Commerce Offers Bonus to County Replacing Most Scrubs.

Kansas is putting on a "better bulls" contest. The county which replaces the most scrub bulls with purebreds prior to January 15, 1923, will receive $1,000, offered by the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce. The second will receive a prize of $500, the third a prize of $300 and the fourth a prize of $200. Out of the 12 counties leading, 10 are farm bureau counties. The leading unorganized county is now tieing for fifth place, while the other unorganized county among the first 12 is in eleventh place. Franklin county is in the lead with 42 replacements and County Agent F. Joe Robbins says the county has only made a start. Clay county is second with 35 replacements.

A number of the county farm bureaus have worked out unique plans of boosting the sires campaign. Ness and Ford counties have put on purebred auctions. Every buyer who obtained a purebred to replace a scrub was given a 10 per cent discount. In Ness county scrub bulls were taken in at market value in exchange for purebreds.

Jackson county is arranging a series of bargain sales of purebred bulls. Under this plan each breeder in the county will list one or more bulls. These bulls will be appraised by a committee of men who know the value of purebreds. The bulls will then be lined up at some point central to the different communities, priced at 25 per cent less than the appraised value and offered to those who wish to put purebreds at the head of their herds. No buyer can obtain these bulls at the 25 per cent reduction unless he is buying to replace a scrub. Thus far 334 replacements have been announced. This number was increased from 212 during the first ten days of June.

ESSENTIAL COG IN MACHINE

Eugene Meyer Says Farmer Is Greatest Producer, Borrower and Buyer in Country.

From the address of Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance corporation at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Milwaukee, June 13:

"The farmer is the most essential cog in the driving wheel of the American business machine. He is the greatest producer, borrower and buyer in the United States. The aggregate value, on the farm, of last year's agricultural output was more than $12,000,000,000, equal to two-thirds of the world's international trade. And last year was a year of low values. The average farm value of the annual output for the past six years has been estimated at more than $18,000,000,000.

"In 1920 the banks of the United States had outstanding loans to farmers amounting to more than $5,000,000,000, a sum greater by a billion dollars than all the money actually in circulation in the whole country. If we include mortgage loans by insurance companies, private investors, and other agencies, it is probable that the aggregate agricultural loans will exceed $12,000,000,000, or approximately 25 per cent of the whole banking power of the United States."

CREAMERIES ARE BIG SAVERS

Difference in Freight on Car Lots and Less Is Clear Gain for Minnesota Farmer.

It is estimated that patrons of Minnesota co-operative [illegible]

[illegible]

Looking In on Congress From the House Gallery

ABOUT THE MEMBERS

By CONGRESSMAN GUY U. HARDY

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

A gentleman has raised the question of a quorum and the roll of the house of representatives is being called. Most members try to answer all roll calls, in order to maintain a quorum and vote on all measures possible.

Now the house is filling up, so we will look over the personnel of the body. The house, if all were present, would be composed of 485 members, with delegates from Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine islands and Porto Rico. These delegates do not vote.

I once heard ex-Speaker Clark in praising the house say it was the most democratic parliamentary body in the world. He didn't allude to politics. As I have met the members and have looked over the body of men I have often thought of that remark. As you now look down into the house with me I think you will realize, as I do, that this is a democratic body of men, representing, as it does, the whole of the great American republic—the greatest republic in the history of the world. Almost every type and phase of American citizenship is represented there. It is a sort of high-class melting pot. Laborer and manufacturer; rich and poor; big brains and mediocre; wise, earnest men and near-chumps, all have seats. All classes of business and professions and all shades of political and religious beliefs are represented. Ex-governors, ex-senators, ex-judges, ex-Presidents and ex-convicts have occupied seats. The blind and the halt are well represented. Only the deaf and dumb seem to be missing, though I am of the private opinion that it wouldn't jar the feelings of the house much if some members were so stricken.

After some years of observation from the inside, I can assure you that congress is made up of a fine lot of patriotic men.

Uncle Joe and Jim Mann.

Here is a good chance to look at some of the men as they walk in. You will recognize some of them from the pictures you have seen. Uncle Joe Cannon saunters in with the cocky air of youth, chewing the cigar cartoonists have made famous. If it is a cool day he may have his hat on. He was elected to congress first in 1872 and is now serving his twenty-third term. Only twice in all these years has he been defeated and he told the house one day that the years he was out were the longest years of his life. He is 86 years old and is young for that age. I have seen him dance at a dinner party, and I have heard that he plays a little poker now and then, but never gets in over a dollar or two at a time. He takes a keen interest in important legislation, has a sane view of public affairs and makes a vigorous speech occasionally. Uncle Joe, as he is affectionately called, has declined to stand for reelection and will close his official career with the ending of this congress, after serving in the house of representatives longer than any other man.

I think I have already mentioned James R. Mann. There he is by the table. The two tables in the center of each side of the house are used by the leaders, by the chairman of the committee in charge of a bill and by others especially interested in the proceedings of the day. Mr. Mann belongs at the table on the Republican side. This is his thirteenth term in the house and he was long the Republican leader. He is not the Fourth of July style of orator but a most convincing speaker and the best posted man on pending legislation in the house. He is a terror to those who have private bills up on unanimous consent day. A bill must be innocent, [illegible], or properly amended, before it gets through when he is present. I fancy that he has saved the government literally millions of dollars by his industry. In some ways he is the most valuable man in the house.

Two Party Leaders.

The other [illegible] the table is Frank [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible]. He is [illegible] serving his tenth term, and for 18 years he was a unique member of the house in that, during all of that time, he never let one of his speeches appear in the Congressional Record. Since assuming leadership and speaking for the party he lets his speeches go in. The gentleman by his side is Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, who acts as assistant minority leader. Mr. Garrett is in his ninth term. He is a keen cutter, and can roast the Republicans and their measures in a more polished, clever and entertaining way than any other member on his side of the house.

Only Lady Representative.

Yes, the lady on the floor is a member. That is Miss Alice M. Robertson of Oklahoma, the only lady member and the second woman to be elected to congress. She was born in Oklahoma 66 years ago. Her father was a missionary to the Cherokees. Miss Alice has been teacher, a postmaster of a first-class office at Muskogee, and in recent years has conducted very successfully the largest cafeteria in Oklahoma. She is not what some are pleased to term themselves, a "new woman." She is a little old-fashioned in a way, for she stands by her convictions and is not easily influenced by organizations outside of her state. She was never a suffragist, and it may seem an irony of fate that the only woman in congress did not favor votes for women. Miss Alice is a popular member. She accepts things as they are, asks no favors on account of her sex and has more good horse sense and is less afraid to stand by her convictions than are most of her fellow members.

That old boy up in the press gallery is General Sherwood of Ohio. He was a member of the Sixty-sixth congress, but was retired by the landslide. General Sherwood was elected to congress as a Republican in 1872, the year Uncle Joe Cannon first came in. Then he came back in the Sixtieth congress as a Democrat and served 14 years. The general is eighty-seven years of age. When retired from congress he took up newspaper work, his former profession. When asked the other day if he would run again, he said: "No, I can't afford it. I have got to work now and lay up something for old age." But late newspaper reports indicate that he may have changed his mind.

Not the Place for Oratory.

Who are the orators of the house? Well, that is hard to say. You hear many speeches in the house, but little oratory. I know several gentlemen who are noted orators in their home states whom I have never heard make a speech in the house. Those who have been used to swaying the multitude with their oratory don't get very far with it in the house and soon become disappointed in their audience. I must say the house is not a very attentive listener. The members get fed up on speeches. They don't care for eloquence. What they want are facts. Order is not very good. Members come in and go out; they talk and read; they listen if something of interest is being said, but they are not sitting there for entertainment and flowery speeches do not draw large audiences here.

A speaker is often interrupted by questions. Any member may rise at any time and ask if the gentleman will yield for a question. The gentleman usually does yield, and he often gets his set speech badly punctured and comes out with a flat tire. Many members read their speeches. President Wilson and President Harding, when appearing before congress, have always read their speeches, and Secretary Hughes read his great speech at the opening of the limitation of arms conference, so it is not necessarily a sign of lack of ability for a man to read a speech, as it is often done to guarantee accuracy. However, we have plenty of orators for all occasions and can furnish the country with a good supply for the campaign.

Do the men in congress today rank up to those of the congresses of years ago? Well, yes, I think so. If you name your ideals of other days your list covers a hundred years. [illegible]

[illegible]

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF SPRING LITTERS AS COMPARED WITH 1921

Swine Judging at a State Fair—Displays of Well-Bred Animals Competing for Honors Have an Important Influence in Improving Live Stock Industry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A net increase of 14.5 per cent in the number of young pigs produced this spring in the Corn Belt states is shown in a special pig survey just completed by the United States Department of Agriculture. This increase may overcome the present shortage of meat stocks, the department states.

The survey shows a gross increase of 22.8 per cent in the number of spring litters this year as compared with the number of litters born last spring, but the average number of pigs saved per litter is 7 per cent less than last spring. The April 1 brood sow report of the department indicated a net increase of 15.6 per cent in pig production this spring over last year.

The department points out that stocks of pork products other than lard in storage May 1 are 33 per cent less than the five-year average and 26 per cent less than a year ago. Lard stocks May 1 were 16 per cent less than the five-year average and 37 per cent less than on May 1, 1921. Stocks of other meats are correspondingly low.

It is also pointed out that the survey covers numbers of hogs and not weight. The records show that the average weight of hogs marketed has varied as much as 84 per cent, or from 198 to 262 pounds, during the past five years. Many producers have found it profitable to market their hogs early at light weight before the usual run of heavy hogs later, the department says.

If farmers carry out their expressed intentions with respect to breeding for fall farrowings the total number of sows expected to farrow for the year, including spring and fall farrowings, will be 28 per cent larger than last year.

The survey indicates a prospective increase of 49 per cent in the fall farrowings in these states over last year. Last year fall farrowings represented 28 per cent of the total farrowings for the year, while this year they will probably represent 35 per cent. If the number of pigs saved per litter is as low as this spring, however, the prospective increase in number of pigs next fall will be materially reduced. The average number of pigs saved per litter, as reported for this spring, is 5.66 pigs, compared with 6.1 pigs last spring and 5.9 pigs last fall.

Smaller Increases in East and South.

The survey in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland shows an increase of only 5 per cent in the number of litters for the first half of the year, while the total number of pigs saved shows a decrease of 8 per cent from a year ago. The number of sows bred for fall farrowing shows an increase of 23 per cent over the number of sows which farrowed last fall. A total increase of 14 per cent in the number of litters for the year is indicated provided the intentions of farmers to produce fall pigs are carried out.

In the Southern states, including Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, an increase of 5 per cent in the number of spring litters is reported, but the total number of pigs saved is the same as last year on account of the smaller number of pigs saved per litter. These Southern states show an increase of 27 per cent in the number of sows intended to be bred for fall farrowing over last year, with a total prospective increase of 11 per cent in the number of litters for the year.

The survey is based upon about 200,000 schedules received from farmers in the Corn Belt states, which produce about 70 per cent of the pigs in the United States, and from farmers in the eastern and southern states. The schedules were distributed by rural mail carriers to 15 farmers on each rural mail delivery route. It is planned to make a similar survey in about six months which will be used as a check on the department's estimate, and also indicate the number of pigs to be produced in the spring of 1923. The figures in the present survey are given below.

CORN BELT STATES

	Nos. of litters first half of 1922 compared to first half of 1921. Per cent.	No. of pigs saved per litter.			Total No. pigs saved first half 1922 compared to first half 1921.	No. of sows bred or to be bred to farrow fall of 1922 compared to No. of litters fall of 1921.
		First half of 1921.	Last half of 1921.	First half of 1922.
Corn Belt States.
Ohio	116.8	6.9	6.6	6.5	110.2	131.7
Indiana	122.0	6.7	6.2	6.1	111.2	137.1
Michigan	122.3	7.1	6.5	6.3	108.3	148.2
Illinois	122.3	6.4	6.0	5.9	112.0	149.3
Wisconsin	110.5	6.5	6.2	6.0	101.8	141.2
Minnesota	122.3	5.8	5.6	5.2	109.6	149.3
Iowa	120.7	5.7	5.8	5.5	117.3	148.1
Missouri	125.0	6.6	6.3	5.9	113.2	144.4
Nebraska	126.5	6.4	5.3	5.2	121.0	159.7
Kansas	139.8	6.0	5.5	5.4	123.1	165.0
South Dakota	130.5	5.6	5.4	5.2	120.6	173.1
Corn Belt States	122.8	6.1	5.9	5.66	114.5	149.3
Eastern States.
New York	102.8	8.2	7.8	7.4	92.7	124.0
Pennsylvania	107.3	7.2	7.0	6.9	100.9	125.2
Maryland	104.9	7.4	6.9	7.1	96.1	118.4
Eastern States	105.5	7.5	7.2	7.1	97.3	123.5
Southern States.
Georgia	112.5	6.6	6.3	6.1	105.3	134.0
Alabama	100.0	6.3	6.0	6.0	96.4	124.4
Mississippi	100.6	6.2	5.8	6.0	97.5	124.8
Southern States	105.2	6.4	6.1	6.0	100.3	127.0

STORE AWAY CANVAS COVERS WHEN DRIED

Liable to More or Less Damage Through Moisture.

Heavy Pieces Should Be Stretched Over Beam or Large Horizontal Pole—Will Last Much Longer if Waterproofed.

(Prepared by the [illegible] Department [illegible])

[illegible] and crop [illegible] liable to [illegible] causing [illegible] unless [illegible] stored, [illegible] of the [illegible]

[illegible] use should hang over a beam or large horizontal pole, or should be suspended against the inside of a barn shed rather than folded. Canvas and duck will give better service and last longer if waterproofed. The United States Department of Agriculture, in Farmers' Bulletin 1157, gives full directions for waterproofing and mildewproofing cotton duck. The bulletin may be had free on application.

PRODUCING CERTIFIED SEED

Many Potato Growers Will Be Disappointed Because of Raise in Requirements.

Probably as a result of the better price received last year for certified seed stock, Maine potato growers this year have listed more than 3,300 acres for inspection of representatives of the State Department of Agriculture. Many of these growers will be disappointed, however, because they have [illegible] stock of no particular [illegible] a series of years an [illegible] of the entries [illegible] require- [illegible]

AUGUST

L 912

267

The MARDI GRAS MYSTERY

by H. Bedford-Jones

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

Copyright by Doubleday, Page and Company

"MIDNIGHT MASQUER!"

SYNOPSIS—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansley, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably attired as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansley, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball. Lucie Ledanois, recently the ward of her uncle, Joseph Maillard, is the Columbine. At the ball, Bob Maillard, son of the banker, again proposes to her and is refused. He offers to buy some of her property. A Franciscan monk interests her.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

—3—

"So," the girl smiled a little, "you would betray your business friends in order to make a bit of money for me?"

Maillard stared at her. "Well, if you put it that way, yes! I'd do more than that for——"

"Thank you," she interrupted, her voice cold. "I don't think I'd trust your sagacity very far, Robert. Good-night."

She turned from him and was gone, dancing through the great rooms like a true Columbine.

Midnight neared, and brought a concern to many; the Midnight Masquer had gained his name by invariably appearing a moment or two before the stroke of twelve. Jachin Fell, who divided his time between enjoying the smoking room and wandering about among the masquers, perceived that Joseph Maillard was watching the time with anxiety.

A large man, stern and a bit scornful of look, Maillard was imposing rather than handsome. He appeared the typical banker, efficient, devoid of all sentiment. Amused by the man's evident uneasiness, Jachin Fell kept him in view while the moments dragged. One might have thought that the little gray man was studying the financier as an entomologist studies a butterfly on a pin.

Shortly before twelve Columbine pirouetted up to Fell and accepted the arm he offered her. They were for the moment alone, in a corner of the ballroom.

"I must see you tomorrow, please," she breathed.

"Gladly," he assented. "May I call? It's Sunday, you know——"

"If you will; at three. Something has happened, but I cannot speak of it here. Does any one else know that you—that you are interested in my affairs?"

"So," the Girl Smiled a Little, "You Would Betray Your Business Friends in Order to Make a Bit of Money for Me?"

The pale gray eyes of the little gray man looked very innocent and wondering.

"Certainly not, my dear! Why?"

"I'll tell you tomorrow." Then she broke into a laugh. "Well, it is midnight—and the Masquer has not appeared. I'm almost sorry."

The lights flickered off for a moment, then on again. The signal for [illegible]

The dancing ceased. From the [illegible] lard approached them, chuckling to himself and looking hugely relieved.

"Ha, Lucie! I guessed you beneath the Columbine daintiness! Have you examined your favor yet?"

Remembering, the girl caught at her corsage. Cries of delight were arising on all sides as the favors were revealed—most handsome favors, even for Mardi Gras! From the heart of the rosebuds in her hand Lucie removed a brooch of old filigree work set with a group of pearls. She glanced about for Jachin Fell, but he had vanished with Maillard. A voice rose at her elbow:

"Mademoiselle, you are not less lucky than beautiful! Pearls to the pearl!"

She turned to see the Franciscan—no longer masked, but now gazing at her from a frank, laughing countenance, still partially veiled by the brown cowl that was drawn up close about his head.

"Henry Gramont!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I half suspected that it was you——"

"But you were not sure?" he chuckled. "You're not offended with me, Lucie?"

"I should be." She tossed her head. "You were impertinent, M. le prince!"

He made a distasteful gesture. "None of that, Lucie! You know I don't like it——"

"Oh, la, la!" she mocked him. "M. le prince is seeing America, n'est ce pas? He has come to America to find a rich wife, is it not?"

Gramont's face lost its smile, and suddenly became almost harsh.

"I shall call upon you at four tomorrow, Lucie," he said, abruptly, and turned. Nor did he pause to get her reply. An instant afterward Lucie was surrounded by a merry group of friends, and she saw no more of Henry Gramont.

About five minutes later those in the ballroom distinctly heard, through the open windows, the heavy pulsations of an airplane motor.

CHAPTER III.

The Bandit.

Joseph Maillard's library was on the ground floor of the house; it was a sedate and stately room, and was invariably shut off to itself. Not even tonight, of all nights, was it thrown open with the remainder of the house.

Here Maillard summoned half a dozen of his particular cronies and friends, after the stroke of midnight had assured him that there was no danger to be expected from the bandit. His son was not among the number. The half dozen were nearly all elderly men, and, with the exception of Jachin Fell, all were men of prominent affairs.

About the table grouped Maillard and his guests. Maillard, standing before a small wall safe that flanked the open hearth, lifted his silver goblet, asteam with beads. The moment for which he had been waiting was here; he launched his little thunderbolt with an air of satisfied importance.

"My friends, I have a confession to make!" he announced. "Today I received a note from the Midnight Masquer stating that he would be with us this evening, presumably at the hour of midnight, his usual time."

These words brought an instant silence. The half-dozen men were tense, watchful, astonished. But Maillard swung up his silver cup and laughed gaily.

"I took full precautions, gentlemen. The hour of danger is past, and the notorious bandit has not arrived—or, if he has arrived, he is now in the hands of the law. So up with your cups, my friends—a lifelong health to Mardi Gras, and damnation to prohibition and the Midnight Masquer!"

From everyone broke a swift assent to the toast, a murmur of relieved tension. The silver goblets were lifted, touched in a musical clinking of edges, and the aromatic breath of juleps filled the library as the drinkers, in true southern fashion, buried noses in the fragrant mint. Then, as the cups were lowered, from the recess of the curtained windows at one end of the room came a quiet voice:

"I thank you, gentlemen! But I must remind you, Maillard, that there was not a time [illegible]"

With a [illegible] turned. Maillard [illegible]

[illegible]

f men before him with its threatening mouth.

"Not a sound, if you please," he warned, his voice thin and nasal—obviously disguised. "I trust that none of you gentlemen is armed, because I am very quick on the trigger. A very pleasant surprise, Maillard? You'd given me up, eh?"

For an instant no one spoke. Then Maillard moved slightly, moved his hand toward a button set in the wall near the safe. The voice of the bandit leaped out at him like thin steel:

"Quiet, you fool! If you touch that button——"

Maillard stiffened, and gripped the table edge with his shaking hand.

The bandit bowed slightly, and addressed the gathering in a tone of dry raillery:

"The rights of property are to me far more sacred than human life; there I agree with the law. So, gentlemen kindly empty your pockets on the table." His voice became crisp. "The jeweled scarfpins which you received as favors this evening may be added to the collection; otherwise, I shall not touch your private possessions. No watches, thank you. Maillard, kindly begin! I believe that you carry a wallet? If you please."

The banker could not but obey. His hands trembling with fear and rage, he took from his pocket a wallet, and emptied a sheaf of bills upon the table. One after another, the other men followed his example. When it came his turn, Jachin Fell drew a single bill from his pocket, and laid it down.

"You put some faith in that warning, Mr. Fell?" The bandit laughed.

"If You Don't," Was the Cool Threat, "I'll Shoot You Through the Abdomen."

"Do you think that you will know me again?"

"I hardly believe so, sir," answered Fell in his apologetic fashion. "Your disguise is really excellent."

"Thank you." The bandit's voice held a thin mockery. "Coming from you, sir, that compliment is most welcome."

"What the devil does the fellow mean?" exploded Judge Forester.

"Then you are not aware that Mr. Fell is a man of large affairs?" The bandit's white teeth flashed in a smile. "He is a modest man, this attorney! And a dangerous man also, I assure you. But come, Mr. Fell, I'll not betray you."

Jachin Fell obviously did not appreciate the pleasantry. His shy and wondering features assumed a set and hardened look.

"Whoever you are," he responded, a subtle click of anger in his tone, "you shall be punished for this!"

"For what, Mr. Fell? For knowing too much of your private affairs?" The bandit laughed. "Fear not—I am only an amateur at this game, fortunately! So do your worst, and my blessing upon you! Now, gentlemen, kindly withdraw a few paces. All but you, Maillard; I'm not through with you yet."

The automatic pistol gestured; under its menace everyone obeyed the command, for the calm assurance of the bandit made it seem extremely likely that he would use the weapon without compunction. The men withdrew toward the far end of the room, where a word from the aviator halted them. Maillard remained standing where he was.

The Masquer advanced to the table and gathered the heap of money and scarfpins into the leathern pocket of his coat. During the process his gaze did not waver from the group of men, nor did the threat of his weapon lift from the banker before him.

"Now, Maillard," he quietly ordered, "you will have the kindness to turn around and open the wall safe behind you. And don't touch the button."

Maillard started.

"That safe! Why—why—d—n you, I'll do nothing of the sort!"

"If you don't," was the cool threat, "I'll shoot you through the abdomen. A man fears a bullet there more than [illegible]"

[illegible]

BETTER ROADS

STANDARDIZE BRIDGE DESIGN

No Sound Reason for Amount of Variation in Specifications That Now Exist in Building.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Greater standardization of practice in the design and construction of highway bridges is urged by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is believed that there is no sound reason for the amount of variation in specifications that now exists and that it results in greater cost of bridges. State officials take the same view as the bureau and a committee composed of bridge engineers has been appointed by the American Association of State Highway Officials to consider the matter. A "Manual of Practice" is being prepared, which will represent the best thought on the subject and which it is believed will be accepted by all the state highway departments. Not only will the adoption of such a manual lead to the building of bridges of good design, but it will also make possible a saving in money, as bridge companies will not be called upon to meet so much variation in design.

INFORMATION HARD TO GAIN

Statistics Concerning Roads of Different States in Some Cases Not Easily Obtained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With the annual expenditure for roads and streets in the United States approaching the billion-dollar mark, more accurate information and better means for obtaining it seem necessary, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. One thing very much needed is the concentration of all sorts of information and statistics concerning the roads of the various states in the state highway departments.

Engineers of the department are now gathering complete information regarding the road mileage and expenditures in the United States. In many of the states much of the information desired is easily obtainable from the state highway department. In the case of Iowa the figures were obtained almost immediately. In other cases it has been necessary to send out numerous questionnaires and sometimes the information has been obtained only after personal visits. In one state 1,800 questionnaires had to be sent out to bring in the needed figures, and in some it has been found that practically no records have been kept. For some of the counties in New Mexico questionnaires had to be translated into Spanish before the road officials could understand them.

The Brotherton-Berlin Road in Pennsylvania, Showing How It Appeared Before and After It Was Improved by a Concrete Road-Bed.

BRIDGES ON IMPROVED ROADS

Few Structures Less Than 18 Feet Are Now Being Constructed, Say Engineers.

Few highway bridges with a width of roadway less than 18 feet are now being constructed on improved roads, according to engineers of the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the past some 12 feet and a good many of 16-foot width have been constructed in an effort to economize, but it has proved shortsighted economy. Only one line of traffic can pass over a 12-foot roadway, and 16 feet of width will not accommodate two lines in safety. Many of the states, such as Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio and Massachusetts, have found it advisable in replacing old bridges on important roads to make them wide enough to accommodate three and four lines of traffic.

Material for Good Roads.

Federal aid roads, either completed or [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR AUGUST 6

THE TEMPLE REBUILT AND DEDICATED

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 3:1-6:22.

GOLDEN TEXT—My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord. —Psalm 84:2.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Haggai 1:1-2:23; Isaiah 62; Rev. 21:1-22:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joyfully Building God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Rebuilding the Temple.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What God's House Should Mean to a Community.

After becoming settled in the towns surrounding Jerusalem the people were called together for the purpose of reestablishing the worship of the Lord God. The leaders in this movement were Jeshua the priest and Zerubbabel the governor. In view of the fact that the clearing away of the debris of the old city and temple and the erection of the new temple would take a long time, an altar was erected where sacrifice might be offered at once unto God.

I. The Foundation of the Temple Laid (3:8-13).

This was an auspicious occasion and was celebrated with most impressive ceremonies. It marked an epoch in the history of the nation. It brought most vividly to them their bitter experiences in the dark past, and yet pointed them forward to the time of blessing when God's favor would be upon them again.

1. The priests in their apparel (v. 10). In Exodus 39 the priestly garments are described. These garments symbolized their consecration to the Lord's service.

2. The priests with trumpets (v. 10). These trumpets were of silver and were used in calling the people together.

3. The Levites with cymbals (v. 10). These were to furnish the instrumental music of the sanctuary. This was according to the arrangement made by David (I Chron. 15:16-21).

4. They sang together by course (v. 11). This means that they sang to one another responsively. The one company sang, "The Lord is Good"; the other responded, "For His mercy endureth forever."

5. Mingled weeping and shouting (vv. 12-13). Some of the older men who had seen the magnificent and glorious temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed, wept much when they saw how far short the present foundation came of the former temple. Others were glad of the favor of God which had brought them back and that a beginning had been made in the new house of worship.

II. The Building of the Temple Hindered (Ch. 4).

The three perils which put back the building of the temple for some fourteen years reveal the persistent methods which the enemy uses to hinder the constructive building programs of God's people in every age.

1. An unintelligent pessimism (3:12). It was no credit to "priests, Levites and chief of the fathers" to mar this glorious occasion with weeping. Under the circumstances this was a glorious beginning and gave promise of great things for the future. God's promises looked to the future when even greater glories should be to the chosen people than ever had been enjoyed in the days of Solomon. Many today, because things are not quite what they should be, do not go forward with a constructive program, and even hinder those who have the hopeful outlook.

2. Worldly compromise (4:2, 3). "Let us build with you, for we seek your God." This is Satan's most common and effective method today. May the courageous Zerubbabels declare anew, "Ye have nothing to do with us to build an house unto our God."

3. Open opposition by the world (4:4-24). When refused a part in the work, open and violent opposition was resorted to. Intimidation and political scheming were used to defeat the building plan of God's people.

III. The Temple Finished (5:1-6:15).

Through the ministry of the prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, the people were encouraged to resume the work of building the temple. They wrought with energy and enthusiasm. How necessary are God's prophets to encourage and urge on the workers in the Lord's vineyard!

IV. The Temple Dedicated (6:16-22).

The people were united in this building and came together upon its completion and solemnly dedicated it to God. It was a joyous occasion and they united in the observance of the passover with gratitude to God that He had strengthened their hands in their work.

The Doer of the Work.

But whoso [illegible]

[illegible]

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

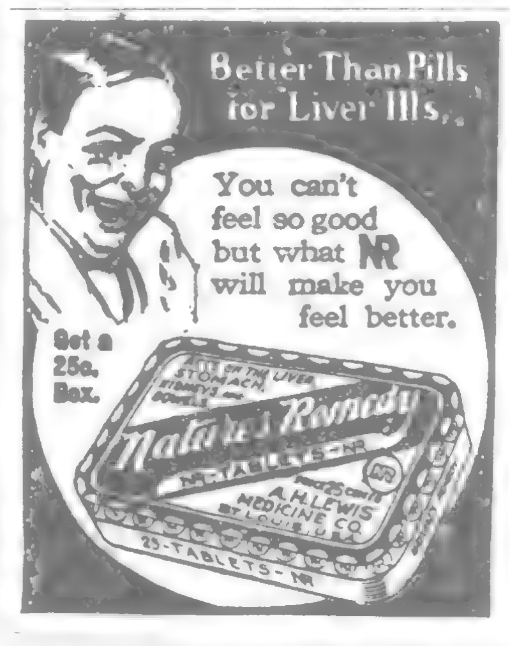
Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. BURKHOLDER, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Something out of balance will affect the finest clock, causing it to gain or lose. The proper adjustment made, all is well. So it is with women. Some trouble may upset you completely.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct the cause of the trouble and disagreeable symptoms will disappear as they did in the case of Mrs. Burkholder's daughter.

MOTHERS — it is worthy of your confidence.



Better Than Pills for Liver Ills.

You can't feel so good but what NR will make you feel better.

Get a 25c. Box.

LARGE PROFITS are being made by Dealers in Radio through the extra-ordinary demand, and consequent quick turn-over, of the apparatus which he handles.

RADIO is here to stay. Have you considered how a Radio Department would improve your yearly balance sheet?

Radio Merchandising

The Semi-Monthly Magazine of the Radio Industry

will answer all your questions. One dollar will bring it to you for four months—Three dollars a year.

Radio Publishing Corporation
Incorporated
Dept. 30, 342 Madison Ave., New York City

LOOK OLD? Gray, thin, straggly hair makes people look very old. It isn't necessary — a bottle of Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer will bring back original color quickly — stops dandruff. At all good druggists, 75c, or direct from Hessig-Ellis, Chemists, Memphis, Tenn.

Not Always Successful.

She (to aviator)—And do you come down the same way you go up?

He—No; I try to come down feet first.

A Lady of Distinction

Is recognized by the delicate fascinating influence of the perfume she uses. A bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water to thoroughly cleanse the pores followed by a dusting with Cuticura Talcum powder usually means a clear, sweet, healthy skin.—Advertisement.

First English Hedges.

England was without hedges up to the Fourteenth century, for hedges were first planted in consequence of the change of land tenure at the time of the Black Death.

Snowy linens are the pride of every housewife. Keep them in that condition by using Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

Michigan has nearly 12,000 toolmakers, which is more than any other state.

It is said that no man can tell a fib and keep his big toe still. No wonder people like to wear shoes!

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELLANS

[illegible]

HAVE YOU HEARD

THE LATEST GOSSIP?

Everybody is talking about the Flour that gives satisfaction Country Maid

Salt! We still have some of the famous Bull Dog Salt, in barrels, sacks, and blocks.

Mill Feed! When in need of Mill Feed call and get our prices. Fish Meal and Tankage.

Farmers' Co-Operative Milling Co.

G. A. WARD, Manager

St. Joe, Ind.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS ITEMS

Did you order a Magazine? Better get it now.

H. E. Randall spent Sunday with his family at Lima, Ohio.

Frank Benninghoff and wife spent Sunday with friends at Lake James.

Rev. Joe. Scholes is here visiting relatives.

George Webb is seriously ill at his home, west of town.

The Studebaker $50,000 Motion Picture shown free next Monday evening on the Lutheran lawn.

Renew your subscription.

Dr. C. S. Johnson spent the week end at Washington, D. C., returning home Saturday.

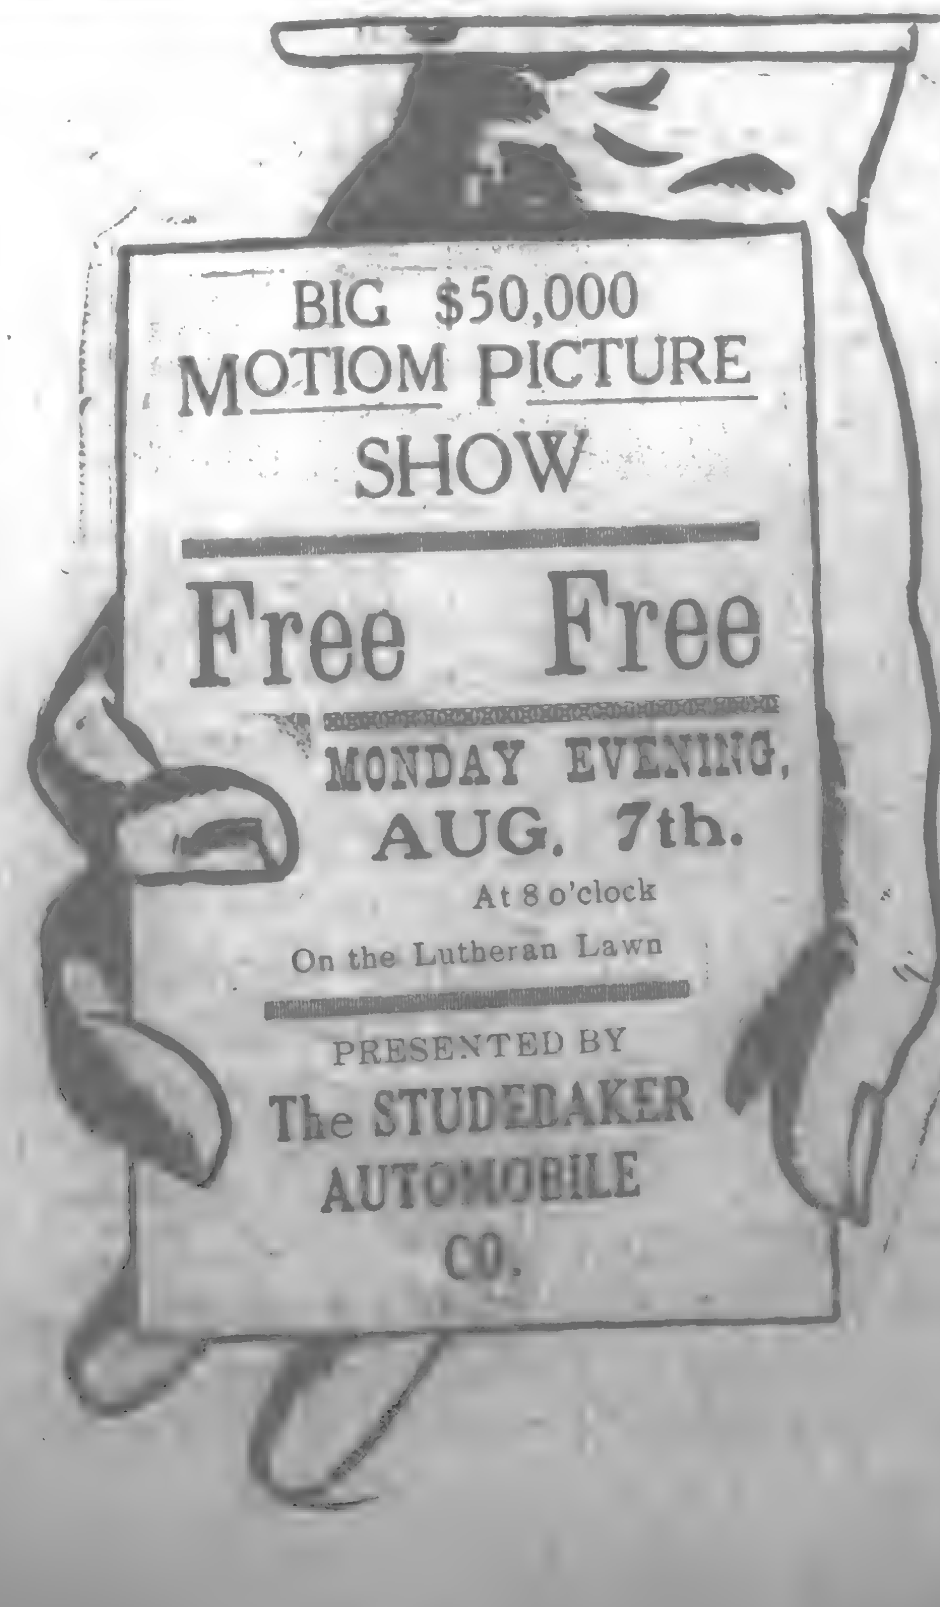
Mr. and Mrs. Burl Duncan and son, Russell, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Craig Sheffer and family.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Ross Able and mother, Mrs. Anna Able, spent Sunday at Liberty Center, Ohio, guests of relatives.

August 7th is the date for the local pickle staion to open.

Miss Thelma Sechler of Butler, is spending the week with St. Joe relatives.



BIG $50,000 MOTIOM PICTURE SHOW

Free Free

MONDAY EVENING, AUG. 7th.

At 8 o'clock

On the Lutheran Lawn

PRESENTED BY

The STUDEBAKER AUTOMOBILE CO.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Miss Aileen Showers of Auburn, is a guest in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Ed Miser.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Davis of Chicago, are here visiting her parents, and H. M. Widney and wife.

Leon Sechler made a business trip to Fort Wayne Monday evening until Tuesday.

Clarence Hart, wife and daughter, Florence, were Sunday evening guests of J. C. F. Able and wife.

The Lutheran Missionary society will meet with Mrs. Ella Patterson Saturday afternoon.

Harvey Lindley and family were Sunday guests of Mrs. Virginia Lawson.

Free motion pictures next Monday evening on the Lutheran lawn will be furnished by the Studebaker automobile company.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Good and three children, of Lima, Ohio, were week end guests of J. E. Folts and wife.

Mrs. Eva Sheffer, Mrs. Ruby Hadsell and Basil Sheffer were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Knight.

W. E. Henley, Miss Carrie Davidson, Howard Williams and Dewey Smith and wife spent Sunday afternon at Garrett.

Oneda Sherrick of Auburn, was a guest of Miss Carrie Davidson from Tuesday until Sunday, returning home with her parents who came Sunday afternoon.

Miss Carrie Davidson and guest, Miss Oneda Sherrick, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Kronrz at Hicksville, from Wednesday until Thursday noon.

Mrs. Stella Hughs left Thursday for a week's at Fort Wayne. Miss Gladys Snyder will remain with her daughter, Miss Eva Hughes, during her absence.

Jay Snyder and wife had as Sunday guests Roy Tom and family of Hillsdale, Michigan, Miss Thelma Myers of Toledo, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Snyder and sons and Grover Morr and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton entertained Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Furnish and daughter of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh, Mrs. M.H. Andress and Mrs. Howard Northup Thursday.

Samuel Keesler, wife and children, Miss Dorris, Jane and Henry, Walter Keesler and wife and Miss Marjorie Furnish of Spencerville, were Sunday guests in the home of Mrs. Jane Coburn.

William Staman Jr. and wife, Mrs. Jacob Sechler and Merritt Sechler were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mavis at Hicksville. The latter's little daughter, Betty Ruth, returned with them for a few days' visit.

F. R. Bowman and famify went to their cottage at Cold Springs, Hamilton to spend their two weeks vacation. Mrs. Lena Meek is helping in Mr. Bowman's place at the St. Joe Valley Bank during his absence.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harter and granddaughter, Jessie Engle, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Armstrong and daughter, Mary, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reasoner spent Sunday with C. D. Engle and family at Cicero, Ohio.

Closed— A bad proposition for the motorist who wants service. We are always open, Sundays, holidays, and nights, for your convenience. Patronize your home Garage and help it give your community this service, says Woody.

William Lovett and family of Dayton, Ohio, who have been visiting Ed Storer and wife last week returned home Tuesday with R. B. Daily, who drove to that place to bring Mrs. Daily home. They were accompanied by Miss Doris Keesler.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis [illegible] and Mr and Mrs. Dan Barclay of Fort Wayne, [illegible]

Miss Marjorie Furnish of Spencerville, spent Saturday as a guest of her cousin, Miss Doris Keesler.

The Baker family reunion will be held on Sunday August 13, at Eckhart Park in Auburn.

Miss Sadie Haner spent Saturday night and Sunday as a guest of Miss Gladys Place.

O. K. Shull and family spent Sunday with their daughter, Miss Katherine, at Winona.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Todd and part of the children, of Fort Wayne spent Sunday with St. Joe friends.

Mrs. Belle Ridgeway, Mrs. Grover Curie and son, Keith, spent Saturday in Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Erickson and sons of Garrett, are here for a couple of weeks visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes.

Charles Benjamin and son, Lawrence of Peru, spent Saturday night with the former's grandmother, Mrs. S A. Able.

The Studekaker Automobile Company will feature their big $50,000 Motion Picture on the Lutheran lawn next Monday evening, FREE.

Laney Gee, wife and daughter, Mildred, spent Tuesday at Lake James as guests of their cousins from Arkansas, who are occupying a cottage there for the summer.

The following young people accompanied Rev. R. B. Daily to Lake Hamilton Saturday afternoon: Violet Coburn, Pracilla Borthwick; Margaret Goodwin, Flossie Keeler; Hazel Storer and Alta and Lourana Lovett, the latter two of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G Stout of Hamilton, spent Sunday, with the latter's mother, Mrs. Alice Copp. Also, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Widney, who are returning from a two week's outing at Lake George to Albion, spent from Sunday noon until Monday afternoon with Mrs. Copp.

THE W.L. DOUGLAS SHOE

For Sale Only At

Chaneys'

Auburn, - - - - Ind.

Mis. Charles Rice, Mrs. Earl Smith and son, Jacques, and little Miss Margaret Smith were Defiance visitors Saturday, and at Fort Wayne Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Burkhart and daughter, of Continental, Ohio, visited from Sunday evening until Monday afternoon with Curtis Hursey and wife.

Harry Kees and son, Leon, of Marion, Mrs. Frank Filley and daughter, Alice, of Huntington, came Friday for a visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcox All remained until the first of the week but Mr. Kees.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton entertained the midsummer meeting of the Ladies' Culture Club the afternoon of July 19. A potluck lunch was served. The program for the coming year was read and accepted. The new study book for the coming year is, "Great Books as Life Teachers," by Newell Dwight Hillis. Two guests, Mrs. [illegible] Eison of Gary, and Mrs. Pauline Miller were present.

A Recession — Woody says when you have a [illegible]

5½%

Money For Farmers

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 5 1-2%.

We lend larger amounts at higher rates.

Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company

10 So. LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois

Branch Office: Ligonier, Indiana

FOR SALE—A good Jewel Cook Stove, A Colonial Eclipse Hard Coal Burner, and a few other article of furniture. See John Bets, St. Joe, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Craun and son Donald of Angola, spent Sunday as guests of Abner Trostel and family.

Mr. and Mrs Garner Cutt and little daughter, Betty Jean, of Albion, were Sunday afternoon callers in the Frank Milliman home.

Frank Johnson and wife had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Meno Gerig and four children of Hopewell and Mrs. Robert Fernwalt and son of Fort Wayne.

Hollis Dilley and wife and Dan Barclay and wife of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Frank Sechler, spent Monday evening with B. E. Widney and wife.

Dan Myers and family accompanied by Frank Markle and family and Cosy Oberholtzer of Spencerville, spent the day Sunday at Rome City.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terman had as guests from Friday until Monday the former's brother, J. S. Terman, wife, son, John, and daughter, Margaret, of Mansfield, Ohio, and his sister, Mrs. Terresa Allender, of Paulding, Ohio.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over Forty Years.

Sold by all druggists.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, ST. JOE

Friday, August 4, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "[illegible]" Pencil No. 174
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1922 — No. 32

Maxwell Bros.

The Home Of
Hart Schaffner & Marx
Clothing

Douglas Shoes

Stetson Hats

Arrow Shirts

The Clothing, Shoes
Hats, and Shirts
Real Men Wear

MAXWELL BROS.
Two BIG Stores
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Highest Market Prices Paid
For WHEAT RYE
CORN OATS

Bring your
TIMOTHY SEED
And
ALSIKE SEED
To us. We are always in the market.

Bran, Middlings and Other Feeds always on hand. If we have not got what you want just ask for it and we will get it for you.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Establish YOUR CREDIT

You would not expect a perfect stranger to give you much of an accomodation in a financial way. You would not ask him for a loan. You would not expect it of a banker who knew nothing of your affairs unless you could give security. But if you had done business with a banker and proven to his satisfaction that you are careful and trustworthy you could probably get an accomodation for a short time without security.

If you open a checking account at this bank we will be able to get a better opinion as to your financial methods and financial standing. As [illegible] handle your checking account in prosperous times you will handle your borrowed money in hard times. We will be in a position to extend accomodations to you when you are in need of them. We shall be pleased to have you open a checking account with us.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Story Of Drowning Of Ralph Franks

Told By Girl Who Was In Canue With Franks

The funeral services of the late Ralph T. Franks, a young man of twenty-two years, from Garrett, who drowned at Rome City, Sunday morning, July 30, when he fell from a canoe in which he and a lady friend were riding, were held at the Garrett Methodist church Wednesday, Aug. 2. The Rev. Charles Tinkham, of Peru, officiated. The Aaron Scisinger Post of the American Legion, had full charge of the services which were all military.

Miss Lucille Burke, of Lebanon, Ind., who was in the canoe with Ralph at the time of the tragedy, came to Garrett Tuesday and remained for the funeral. She was accompanied by Miss Mary Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Page and Miss Burke's brother, Delbert Burke, all of Lebanon.

Miss Burke described in detail how the accident took place. Harry Matthews, a fraternity brother of Ralph and cornet player in the Rome City orchestra, of which Ralph was manager and saxaphone player, arrangod a house party, with the Misses Burke and Johnston, of Lebanon, Miss Wilma Wysong, of Indianapolis, and Miss Faunda Olinger, of Garrett, as the guests. Miss Olinger was the fiance of Mr. Franks. She, however, was unable to attend the party. Mrs. Page was chaperone. The young ladies and the chaperone occupied a cottage near the dance hall.

Mrs. Monroe, daughter of Jean Stratton Porter, Saturday evening entertained some friends from Indianapolis at the cottage formerly occupied by her mother, and she invited the Misses Wysong and Burke, Mr. Matthews and Mr. Franks. However, Mr. Franks and Miss Burke did not go to the party. After the dance at 12:30 Ralph and Miss Burke went to the girls' cottage. Ralph asked Mrs. Page if she cared if Miss Burke went canoeing with him. Mrs. Page had no objection and the two young people started out on the lake.

After they started, Ralph suggested they go to the Monroe cottage after Mr. Matthews and Miss Wysong. On their way they heard a motor boat. Ralph remarked that it sounded like his boat and Miss Burke said that Mr. Matthews and Miss Wysong might be in the boat, which they had taken for the trip. Ralph added that he would take off his coat and they would go to see whose boat it was. He stood to remove his coat and just then the motor boat stopped at the hotel and Ralph knew then it was not his boat.

At almost this instant, Ralph lost his balance and he tumbled backward into the lake. The end of the canoe was tipped and was two-thirds filled with water. Miss Burke was sitting in the bottom of the canoe and the water came up to her waist. As Ralph fell the paddle went into the lake and Miss Burke was helpless. She screamed for help. Ralph came to the surface and said something, but she was screaming and could not distinguish what he said. She called to him and asked him if he could get to the boat. Ralph did not answer, but sank and was not seen afterward.

Boatman Heard Screams

Miss Burke's screams were heard by Mr. Pearson, a boatman, who was on the lake in a canoe with a young lady. Another boatman arrived quickly also and the two men dove into the water, but they could not locate Ralph. He had drowned in twenty feet of water. Hooks for dragging the lake bottom were obtained from Fort Wayne, but the body was not recovered until 11:55 o'clock Sunday morning.

The members of the house party returned at once to their homes. Miss Burke is engaged to a young man at Washington, Ind.

Miss Olinger spent last Thursday at Rome City and when she returned home that evening with her father, Mitchell Olinger, Ralph accompanied her. He was at the Olinger home Friday afternoon and he and Miss Olinger made plans for their wedding, which was to take place next June, after Ralph graduated from Indiana Dental college at Indianapolis. He intended to begin the practice of dentistry at that time at [illegible]. Ralph returned to Rome City Friday evening. He intended to come to Garrett to spend Sunday, when he and Miss Olinger were to announce their engagement to their friends.—Auburn Star.

[illegible]

New License Plates Brown and White

ARE NOW READY

The 1923 auto license plates for Indiana will be white lettered on a brown background. Officials say that next year there will be no necessity of car owners using the old cardboard sign, "License applied for," for the Automobile License Department is getting ready for the 1923 rush.

The new plates are now ready and are being distributed to the twenty-six branch offices of the State Automobile Department outside of the capital city. In order to facilitate the issuance of license H. D. McClelland, manager of the department, is planning to have a branch station in every county next year. The branch stations are usually maintained in garages, banks or automobile dealers' offices.

In size the plate for the coming year will be slightly larger than they are this year, by two and one-half inches each way.

The cost of issuing each plate is approximately 22 1-3 cents, including the cost of manufacture. The net profit to the department for the first six months of the coming year was $2,674,000, according to Mr. McClellen. The fees range from $5 to $7 a car. The numbers in thousands on the new plates are divided by a dash in order to make them easily readable.

Gets 4 More Speeders

F. A. Emerson, of Angola, appeared in Justice T. C. Ford's court in Auburn Friday morning to answer a charge of operating his automobile beyond the speed limit.

Emerson was halted by Speed Cop Charles Saylor Tuesday when, the officer says the Angola man was driving on the pavement just south of Auburn at the rate of thirty miles an hour. Emerson was headed toward Ft. Wayne. He posted a bond of $19.80 for his appearance.

Bert Rhoades, of New York state, was observed by Mr. Saylor Monday crossing the Ashley road on the Toledo-Chicago pike at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. Rhoades gave the officer $19.80, representing a fine of $10 and costs.

Mr. Saylor saw Albert H. Hall, also of New York state, making the same crossing Sunday at forty-five miles an hour. Hall gave the officer $19.80 to pay his fine and costs.

Carl Huffman, of Auburn, was arrested by Mr. Saylor Wednesday evening on the Toledo-Chicago pike at a point north of Garrett. Mr. Saylor says Huffman was driving forty miles an hour and that he chased him four miles before being able to overhaul him. Huffman handed the officer $19.80 to pay his fine and costs.

EXPENDIRURES AND TAX LEVIES FOR YEAR 1922

The trustee of Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, at the office of said trustee, in the town of St. Joe in said township the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township Expenditures, $1100, and township tax 12 cents on the hundred dollars.
2. Local Tuition Tax $9500, and tax 35 cents on the hundred dollars.
3 Special School Tax Expenditures, $1400, and tax 75 cents on the hundred dollars.
4. Road Tax Expenditures, $2700, and tax 20 cents on the hundred dollars.
5. Additional Road Tax Expenditures, $ . . . ., and . . . . tax on the hundred dollars
6 Library Expenditures, $200, and tax 1 cent on the hundred dollars.
7. Poor Expenditures, preceeding year $ . . . ., and tax . . . . cents on the hundred dollars.
8. [illegible], $ . . . ., and [illegible] cents on the hundred dollars.
9. [illegible] Tax $[illegible], and tax [illegible] cents on the hundred dollars.

E. R. [illegible],
Township Trustee.

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

TIRES ARE DOWN where you can't afford to take a chance of a blow out.

OUR SERVICE is second to none. Call us at any time

DON'T BUY NEW PARTS. Bring your broken pieces to us and let us weld them.

ONE TRACTOR put in shape for fall plowing this week. Does yours need attention? Don't put it off.

Read The Locals

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

E. R. KINSEY

SPECIALS
This Week Only On Kitchen Cabinets

THE VALUES:
$48.50 Value this week only $41.95
$43.50 Value this week only $37.95
$39.50 Value this week only $32.45

Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Please Read This Notice

Whereas the Town of St. Joe maintains a fire company and the town holds said fire company responsible for the fire truck, engine, and other fire apparatus, and its use, Therefore be it resolved that it will be unlawful for any other person or persons than a member of that company, except under orders of said company, to start the truck or work any part of the fire apparatus.

The Loyal Boys and Girls Class will give an ice cream social Thursday evening on the lawn at the [illegible]. [illegible] be served.

Assessment Raised

The State Tax Baord has raised the assessments of real estate and improvements of 50 counties in the state of Indiana of which DeKalb county is one.

In 15 townships of this county, including Concord, the assessments on land and improvements were raised 10%. The lots and improvements of the city of Garrett were also raised 10%, while those of the other towns remained unchanged. The assessments on personal property was not changed

The DeKalb County Tax Board, at the time the township assessors turned in their books, lowered the assessments about 10% Now they stand where the assesors placed them and in some cases higher.

[illegible]

AUGUST

Looking In on Congress From the House Gallery

WHAT THE HOUSE IS LIKE

By CONGRESSMAN GUY U. HARDY

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

When I was a boy I heard a story of three blind men who were taken to "see" an elephant. They were led up to the animal and each felt the first part he came in contact with and went away. In describing it afterward one of the blind men said that an elephant was like a rope, he having felt the tail; another said it was more like a palm leaf fan, he having felt its ear; and the third said it did not resemble either but was a big flat object something like a stone wall covered with a leathery skin with some hair on it. Each was speaking from his own point of view and telling only of what he had seen—or rather felt.

It is that way with many things in life. We see only a very small part, yet having seen that, we think that we are competent to judge, describe and criticise.

An hour or two in the gallery would certainly give one a very lopsided view of congress. Yet many come, look on for a few moments and go away to tell of congress as they have seen it, a good deal as the blind men told of the elephant and with fully as much accuracy.

If you were a casual caller in the gallery you might find the house full of members, or only half full, or even with only a few dozen present. You might find it doing routine business and as quiet and placid as a summer calm; or excited to fever heat by a partisan discussion between party leaders, or in a storm of agitation over a question of personal privilege or the exercise of personal rights. The house has its varying moods, as human beings have. Sometimes it works along doing business rapidly and as smoothly as clock work. And sometimes everything seems to be on edge and everybody on his nerves, when one could hardly get an amendment through to dot an "i" or cross a "t" without a fight and a roll call.

Cannot Always Be on the Floor.

Members need not sit on the floor all the time. They have much to do besides. Much of the business of congress is transacted in the committees. The major committees are composed of from 21 to 35 members each. Some of the committee meetings are as important and formal as the meeting of a state senate and with about equal membership. Committees are frequently meeting while the house is in session. There is also much office work to be done and members take advantage of every lull in proceedings to catch up with their office work. There is always departmental work to be taken care of, but members as a rule do not go down town in the afternoon when the house is in session. Most members stay within reach of the roll call signals.

Whether your member is on the floor or not, you may depend upon it that he knows pretty well what is going on and can easily be reached when his presence is required.

The greatest safeguard is thrown about legislation to keep anyone from putting something over. Much is done by unanimous consent when a single member can object and stop or stay proceedings. A member may at any time question the presence of a quorum and if the speaker does not find a quorum present by actual count the roll is called. Signal bells ring in the corridors, restaurant and house office building so that members may appear and answer to their names. Whenever a member is fearful that something will be done which he doesn't want done except by consideration of the whole house, he can raise the question of a quorum and a quorum must be secured before business is further considered.

A quorum in the house consists of a majority of its membership. There are 435 members when all are alive and there are no vacancies—although there are often two or three vacancies on account of death or resignation. So it usually requires 217 or 218 members to make a quorum. When the house is doing business as the committee of the whole 100 members make a quorum.

Reasons for Demanding a Quorum.

The point of no quorum is raised often because a member wants a full attendance when the question before the house is considered. [illegible] those in charge of the time may feel that they have none at their disposal or for some reason do not wish to yield the gentleman time. The gentleman with a grievance may conclude that he will block the business of the house for a time by causing a roll call. I have seen a member state frankly on the floor that if he cannot get the time desired he will feel it his duty to raise the question of a quorum. Some times the gentleman in control of the time will give in and yield the time desired, and sometimes he will call the other gentleman's bluff. These incidents do not occur very often.

Once in a while a little filibuster is resorted to by the minority or by an obstreperous member who wants to force consideration of some special matter. Then the roll calls come thick and fast. One day the committee on rules tried to get a rule adopted, giving four hours for debate on a certain bill. The minority took a notion to block the game and it took a day and a half of roll calls to get the rule passed.

Some bills are passed by the majority of those present without a roll call. But any member can always demand a quorum and if a quorum is not present a roll call on the bill automatically follows. And even if a quorum is present, twenty per cent of those present can always demand and secure a roll call on any proposition.

Too Much Talking, of Course.

There is much unnecessary talking in the house. Nobody realizes that so much as those who have to be present and listen to much of it. The same thing is true wherever men and women congregate—especially where they meet to consider matters of public concern. As a reporter I have sat up past midnight listening to rambling, unnecessary talk over some trivial matter at a small town council meeting where only eight or nine members had to agree on a policy.

Some freedom must be given to those who want to talk. Some opportunity must be given for all sides to be heard. It requires consideration and explanation and talk sometimes to get many minds to look at the subject in the same way.

There is too much unnecessary talk in the house, but I do not see how it could be eliminated. Who is to say what talk may be made and what talk shall not be made? Who is so wise that he may be set up as a censor?

It is not so bad in the house as in the senate. In the senate there is no limit on debate. In the house debate is always limited, usually to one or two hours, occasionally to four hours, and perhaps twice in recent years to 12 hours on very important measures.

Congress is often criticised for being slow in doing business. Of course it is slow. It is made up of human beings of many minds. They come from all parts of a great country stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The representatives represent peoples and communities as diversified and as far apart in thoughts and interests as they are in distance. It requires time for these representatives of these various minds and interests to weigh and consider and amend and whip into shape and finally agree upon proposed legislation that is to be written for a hundred and ten millions of people and may run for all time. It necessarily takes time for a majority of 435 members to be brought to see things alike.

This is one of the necessary results of a republican form of government. It is not so in an autocracy. It is not so in Russia. There you get quick action. By a decree from the autocrats the lands are confiscated. By a decree anything can be done quickly. But by parliamentary procedure it takes time for just and due consideration.

But after all congress is not so slow as compared with other governing bodies in a republic. Consider your own city council, your own board of county commissioners, your own state legislature. Who has not tried for years and years to get a certain street light placed, a street crossing fixed up, a city street cut through, a city park established, the city streets paved, a country road defined or a bridge built or this or that law amended, changed, repealed or passed [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Indianapolis.—Approximately 1,500 serious boiler accidents occur in the United States every year, of which about 400 are violent explosions, says William V. Griffer, chief boiler inspector of the state industrial board. More than 300 persons are killed in these accidents, about 800 persons are injured, and approximately $1,000,000 worth of property is destroyed, he said. Within a short time, Mr. Griffer said, a committee consisting of two boiler manufacturers, two representatives of boiler insurance companies, two plant engineers, a representative of Purdue university, and the state boiler inspector will begin work on a new boiler law for the state. The present law, it was said, is in many ways inadequate to regulate the increased use of boilers.

Vincennes.—The midsummer meeting of the Indiana Horticultural society closed at Vincennes with the completion of a tour in southern Knox county. The visitors, including many of the experiment station experts, were generous in their praise of the manner in which the members of the Knox County Farm Federation and the Knox county unit of the Horticultural society entertained them. The following officers will serve until the next meeting: President, C. M. Hobbs of Bridgeport; vice president, F. I. Odell of Cannelton; secretary-treasurer, H. H. Swain of Lafayette; executive committee, William M. Walton, Jr. of Laporte; L. V. Doud of Denver and Laurenz Greene of Purdue university.

Columbus.—Delegates from the Columbus post of the American Legion who will attend the national convention of the organization at New Orleans this fall, will travel in "Hommes 40, Chevaux 8" style, according to arrangements made by the post. A box car will be chartered and wooden bunks will be built inside for all who go to the convention. The car will be attached to a passenger train and carried straight through to New Orleans.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray is elated over a big yield of oats on his 1,230-acre farm about ten miles north of Brook, in Newton county. He said that about 250 acres on the farm yielded an average of 80 bushels to the acre. The yield is said to be at least among the best if not the top notch in Indiana. Wheat on the farm produced 30 bushels to the acre but the governor said he has other wheat fields that perhaps will exceed that figure.

Indianapolis.—The engineering division of the state conservation department has started a survey to determine the average amount of water contained in Indiana streams and the effect on the water of domestic and industrial wastes. The survey will gather information of value in the prevention of heavy damage through floods and will aid in obtaining a supply of pure water for all purposes, it was said.

Petersburg.—Thousands of bushels of home-grown Elberta peaches are being offered for sale here at $2 for choice to $1 a bushel for inferior. Charles Lemmon, living one mile north of here, has a crop of 3,500 bushels, most of which are ripe. Lemmon shook hundreds of bushels from his trees to keep the trees from breaking down. The peach crop is the largest in the history of Pike county.

Kokomo.—The first run of oats thrashing in the region surrounding Kokomo is finished. Yields of five and seven bushels to the acre have not been uncommon and hundreds of acres in Howard county were never touched with a binder, the owners preferring to turn in their stock. Oats sowed late made the best yields on account of the wet spring. Oats mudded in yielded almost as many weeds as oats.

Indianapolis.—Every day will be Children's day at the Indiana state fair this year, which will be held the week of September 4. I. Newt Brown, secretary of the Indiana board of agriculture, said. Boys and girls, age twelve and under, will be admitted free of charge each day of the fair. In the past this free attendance was limited to Tuesdays only.

Washington, D. C.—The senate passed a bill which authorizes the Gary Tube company of Gary to construct and operate a bridge across the Grand Calumet river in Lake county. The senate also passed another bill which authorizes the Chicago, Lake Shore and Eastern Railway company to construct a bridge across the Grand Calumet river in Indiana.

Gary.—Gary bank clearings for July show an increase of [illegible] over those of June and of [illegible] since January 1. The July gain [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Preparation of a uniform system of blanks for recording the costs of various public school systems in Indiana and the outlining of a new course of study for Indiana high schools will be among the first duties of E. E. Ramsey, newly appointed state school inspector, Benjamin J. Burris, state superintendent of public instruction, told the state board of education. Costs of the various school systems of the state are difficult of comparison at present, Mr. Burris said, because the methods of estimating the costs are different in nearly every local unit. The new course of study is necessary to correspond with the plan of reorganization of smaller high schools over the state, it was said. The reorganization will affect about 75 per cent of the high schools of the state when it is completed.

Terre Haute.—At the session of the Indiana department encampment of the Patriarchs Militant, a branch of the Odd Fellows, which closed here, the following officers were elected: E. R. Beauchamp of Terre Haute, vice president of the department, and H. E. Roesener of Indianapolis, military clerk and treasurer. The office of president was not filled. The incumbent, H. K. Landes of Indianapolis, holds over. The designation of the place and time for the next encampment was left to Mr. Landes. Thus far only Marion has extended an invitation for the encampment. Mrs. Fannie Child of Gary was re-elected vice president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Elizabeth Mills of East Chicago was re-elected treasurer.

Gary.—Ground has been broken for the construction of the Mile Long subway, which is to connect Gary and the Gary street car system with a new $15,000,000 tube works now under construction east of the harbor. The subway will begin at the north bank of the Grand Calumet river, pass under the network of tracks in the steel plants, and continue on the surface to the tube mills two miles beyond the river on the east shore and about one mile west of Miller Beach.

Huntington.—Instructions to bring a damage suit against Williamson county, Illinois, in which the Herrin mine massacre was committed, has been put in the hands of attorneys by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huffman of Huntington, parents of Howard Huffman, who was killed in the riot. The parents are acting in behalf of Huffman's small daughter, Louise. Mr. Huffman was a guard at the mine.

Connersville.—Rapid progress is being made in the work of ridding Fayette county of the common barberry bush. A. W. Heine and W. A. Owen, of the United States Department of Agriculture, are conducting the campaign. Twenty bushes have been found in seven different localities of the county and have been destroyed. The entire county is to be covered in the campaign.

Washington, D. C.—By reason of increased receipts in the Fort Wayne post office during the calendar year ended December 31, last, the salary of the postmaster there has been increased from $5,000 to $6,000. The increased receipts amounted to $119,000. The salary at Hammond was increased from $3,900 to $4,000, and at Mishawaka from $3,400 to $3,600.

Gary.—More than 100 jitney and motor busses went to Chicago from here to help transportation, following the Chicago street car strike. Jitneys have not been permitted on Gary's main thoroughfares, but operation of these busses had not been bothered between Gary and Miller beach. These are the busses which the owners took to Chicago.

Culver.—Cavalry and artillery branches of Culver Military Academy summer schools left for a ten-day march which will take them a distance of more than 200 miles through northern Indiana and southern Michigan. The expedition includes the Black Horse troop and a full battery of light field artillery comprising the mounted service organizations of Culver.

Goshen.—The board of commissioners of Elkhart county awarded contracts for paving six county and two township highways at cost of $460,000. Twenty-seven proposals were submitted on the eight projects. Most of the roads will be concrete. Elkhart county has issued more than $2,000,000 in bonds to pay for highway improvements.

Decatur.—The state board of tax commissioners has denied two proposed bond issues in Adams county, totaling $54,200. One issue was for $42,200 for the paving of the Warren Striker road in Wabash township with concrete, and the other issue of $12,000 was for the erection of a new school building in Union township.

Columbus.—The annual district association meeting of the United Separate Baptist churches of southern Indiana will be held [illegible] September 8, 9 and 10.

Columbus.—[illegible]

[illegible]

ROAD BUILDING

PLAN FOR FOREST HIGHWAYS

Secretary Wallace Approves Program Involving Outlay of Approximately $10,000,000.

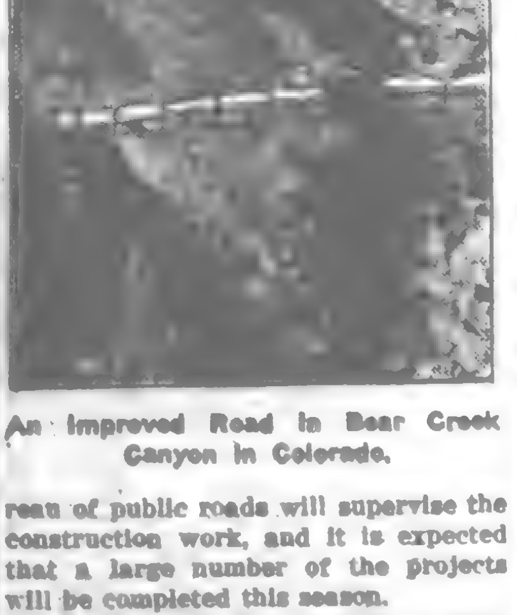
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A program of national forest highway construction involving an outlay of approximately $10,000,000 for 1,170 miles of road in 23 states has been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. This program will be financed largely from the forest highway fund provided by the federal highway act. About $6,500,000 will come from this source, $1,000,000 from other national forest road appropriations, and the balance of $2,500,000 will be contributed by states and counties.

The work provided for is as follows:

States	Proposed Expenditure	Miles
Alabama	$ 3,963	15
Alaska	896,850	55
Arizona	1,011,500	133
Arkansas	142,796	23
California	1,246,197	50
Colorado	627,000	106
Florida	91,175	14
Idaho	1,269,600	137
Montana	566,421	75
Nebraska	9,968	22
Nevada	166,000	24
New Hampshire	29,288	5
New Mexico	462,000	64
Oklahoma	4,572	3
Oregon	2,270,000	210
South Carolina	2,173	6
South Dakota	61,000	7
Tennessee	15,000	3
Utah	292,100	36
Virginia	20,000	4
Washington	780,000	50
West Virginia	4,901	29
Wyoming	260,150	90
	$10,222,634	1,170

The funds and mileage are for forest roads of primary importance to states, counties, and communities. The program was recommended to the secretary by the forest service and the bureau of public roads, jointly, after conference with state officials. The bureau of public roads will supervise the construction work, and it is expected that a large number of the projects will be completed this season.



An Improved Road in Bear Creek Canyon in Colorado.

Practically all the roads to be built are parts of the state or county highway systems and will therefore in most cases connect with and extend the system of federal aid highways covering the whole country. In some cases the new construction will provide roads through mountainous regions of the national forests hitherto penetrated only by pack trails.

In addition to the major road projects, about $5,000,000 will be expended by the forest service on minor roads and trails required primarily for the protection and administration of the national forests.

NIGHT TRAVEL WEARS ROADS

More Destructive to Highways Than in Daylight, According to Recent Experiments.

The experiments being conducted on the Bates experimental road show that night travel is more wearing on highways than is day travel, according to Clifford Older, chief highway engineer.

The road expands in the day, according to Mr. Older, and the center becomes convex. The heat is absent at night, and the road assumes a concave shape, the edges curling up and forming a slight hollow in the center. From these discoveries it is deduced that heavily loaded vehicles [illegible] edge of a road [illegible] a tendency to cause it to [illegible].

The testing of the Bates road was begun in March and is still under way. It was delayed for a time [illegible].

[illegible] for Good Roads.

[illegible]

MRS. ABBEY PROUD OF HER BIG GAIN

Weight Increased 39 Pounds and Nine Years' Trouble Ended.

"I hardly see how I endured such awful suffering, and if it hadn't been for Tanlac I don't believe I would be here today," said Mrs. Mollie Abbey, of Jennings Lodge, Ore.

"For nine years everything I ate caused gas to form so that it almost drove me distracted. I didn't dare eat any fruit and for four years if I even drank a glass of cold water I would suffer dreadfully. No one who didn't see me can imagine the awful condition I was in.

"But Tanlac changed all this and now I'm simply feeling fine. My appetite is splendid. I eat anything I want, have actually gained thirty-nine pounds and have so much strength and energy I easily do all my housework. Tanlac is a wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.
—Advertisement.

Fashion Hard on Monkeys.

The dictates of fashion have exerted a strong demand for black and white fur trimmings, particularly in Paris. The supply of skins is very limited and not more than 15,000 to 20,000 can be obtained in a year, says Consul Cross at Aden, Arabia, in a report to the textile division of the Department of Commerce, without unduly raising prices and exterminating the monkey. The price at Adis Abeba has been fairly steady, the cheapest grades selling at 45 cents, and the more expensive at 90 cents.

Peary's First Venture.

Peary's first North polar expedition lasted four years, 1898-1902, during which period he failed to get nearer than 348 miles to the pole.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

A TRUE RAT STORY

Auburntown, Tenn., June 22, 1922.
Stearns Electric Paste Co.,
Chicago, Ill.
Deare Sirs:

Mr. Robert T. Donnell of Auburntown, Tenn., came in our store the other day and wanted something to kill rats, so I sold him a box Stearns Rat Paste. And he put some paste on six biscuits that night and the next morning he found fifty-four big rats. And the second night he put out four more biscuits with paste on them, and the second morning he found seventeen more rats, making a total of seventy-one rats in two nights, and there were lots more that he did not find.

This is some big rat tale, but, nevertheless, it is so. Just thought would write to let you know that your rat paste is good.

Respectfully yours,
KENNEDY BROTHERS.

Buy a 35c Box of Stearns' Electric Paste Today

Enough to Kill 50 to 100 Rats or Mice. Don't waste time trying to kill these pests with powders, liquids and other experimental preparations. Ready for Use—Better Than Traps. Drug and General Stores sell are usually due to straining when constipated.

STEARNS' ELECTRIC PASTE

Piles

Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative — so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

NR
TONIGHT
Tomorrow Alright

NR Tablets stop sick headaches, [illegible] stomachs, tone and [illegible] the eliminative organs, make you feel fine.

"Better Than Pills For Liver Ills"

[illegible]

AUGUST

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and a weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."—Mrs. MARY SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing the merit of this well-known medicine.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

VICTIMS RESCUED

Kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles are most dangerous because of their insidious attacks. Heed the first warning they give that they need attention by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL

The world's standard remedy for these disorders will often ward off these diseases and strengthen the body against further attacks. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

"111" cigarettes

They are GOOD!

10¢

Buy this Cigarette and Save Money

Some Lawyers Do.

"You didn't take that divorce case?"

"No. When I asked my fair visitor what grounds she had for seeking a divorce from her husband she said she'd met another man who was a 'perfect dear.'"

"I flatter myself that I'm a pretty fair lawyer, but I didn't see how I could go into court and argue a case like that!"

Shave With Cuticura Soap

And double your razor efficiency as well as promote skin purity, skin comfort and skin health. No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no waste, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving bathing and shampooing.—Advertisement.

The Expert Accountant.

The Bride—I'm in an awful mess here, mother. I simply can't get my expense account to balance.

Mother—It's quite simple, my dear. Deduct the items you can remember from the amount you had to begin with and call the difference sundries.—Life.

To insure glistening-white table linens, use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. It never disappoints. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

Epitaph!

"Here Lies a Fisherman."

They keep it up even when they are dead.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Pat. Process Lloyd LOOM Products

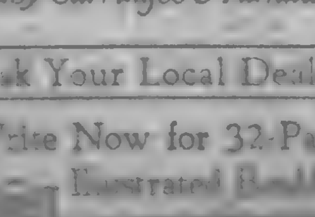
Baby Carriages & Furniture

Ask Your Local Dealer

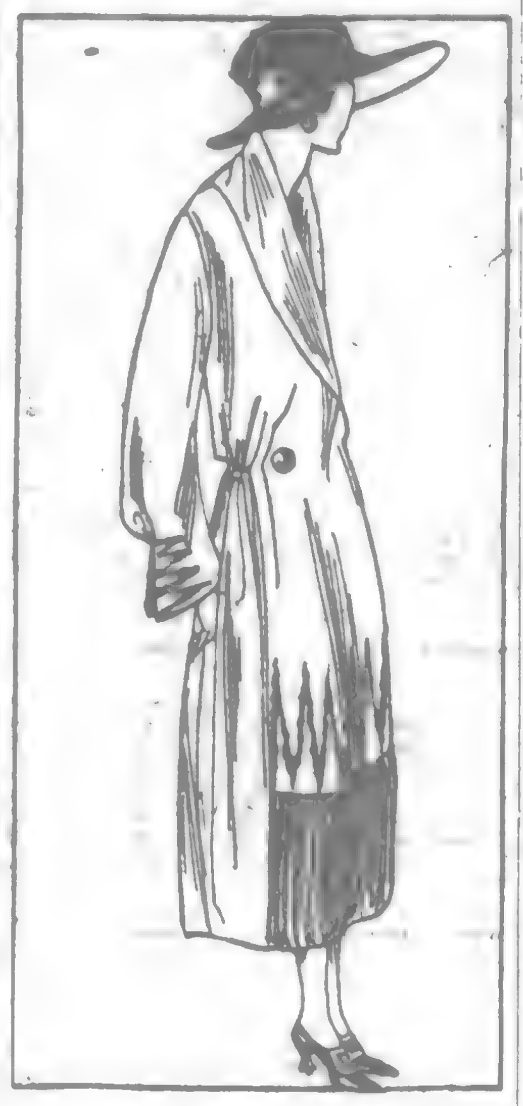
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet



[illegible]

Silk and Linen Street Clothes

The summer street dress has come to be a work of art all in a class by itself. Today, as you walk along the street, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times, you are not impressed by the general dowdiness of female human nature, but you are quite overcome by the general smartness which the crowd as a whole represents. Not only are there a few high lights in the way of smart suits and dresses, but the common tenor of the crowd holds you spellbound with the air of fashionable attire that predominates.



Long, Loose Coat of Heavy White Crepe Embroidered in Black and Lined With Red.

It may be that all of the dresses that women are wearing have suddenly taken a leap as regards their character and tone. But certain it is that the street clothes have established a brand-new standard. Time was when women on the street or at functions where street clothes were demanded all looked more or less alike. There was a fixed standard from which it was not possible to deviate to any large extent. Now all that is changed in the most miraculous and interesting way. Every woman you meet is different from the last. Each one has something, it seems, that is original about the gown or suit she has chosen to wear. Each one seems bent upon exhibiting her own individuality to the full extent of her personal powers. And for these reasons there has come about this subtle change in the appearance of the dressing of the crowd.

Then, among all of the existing good dressing, there stand out above all the rest certain spots that are even more beautiful than the rest and others which have about them that air which says "We shall lead the fashions of a coming season." It is interesting to notice them as you go about. Those with distinction above the ordinary find no difficulty in asserting their own. They are not by any means ornate nor overtrimmed with extra additions. They are, on the contrary, conspicuous for their extreme simplicity and the brilliance of perfection with which their designers have carried out the idea of the elimination of detail.

The silk coat is a development of this season which serves, more than any other one achievement, to make the general tone of the dressing of the women reach a much higher level. It is not so heavy that it can be called hot, but, on the other hand, it has that air of formality which so notably fits it for wear upon the street.

White Coat of Crepey Silk.

One of the newest of these coats happens to be made of white. Its material is one of those heavy, crepey silks which have about them so much body and so much character that they are fit to be classed in this connection with woolens of any variety, weight or weave from which these coats are made.

Then, because the weight of silk is so inconsequential a thing, it can afford to have a lining, and just here is where the chief beauty of the whole situation enters. For the linings, this season, are carrying about with them in their secluded roles a great deal of the style and distinction which is the portion of these modern coats. And again, just as is the case with the white silk coat, these newer wraps offer a fine [illegible]

[illegible] ture. And the dress worn under a wrap of this sort sinks into obscurity because of the beauty of the outer covering. It can be either a plain black dress or one of white that is designed quite without trimming, for the coat supplies all of the dash of decoration and color that could possibly be desired.

Coats Match Dresses.

The costume suit, which was so loudly heralded in the fall has carried over into summer with all of its finest points to the fore, and it bids fair to be one of those things which, in the fall, we will cling to as an inspiration not to be foresworn.

One of the very latest ones is the long-waisted, short-peplumed coat. There is every attraction here of feminine grace and charm, and at the same time the suit, either with its coat or without it, has every attribute of dignity to carry along with it. The dress portion of this costume suit is made from a combination of that soft, cream-colored French cotton crepe, and the skirt is made from a lemon-yellow ratine. Now those two materials are, to be sure, only the foundations. Upon them are superimposed many bands and lines of embroidery done in stitches of mercerized cotton in colors of black, brown, sparkling red and white. On the blouse these hand-worked bands contain all of the colors, but when it comes to the skirt only the black and the white threads are used, and the same is true of the belt made of a shaped piece of the ratine. Then the coat is made of the same fabric that goes to make the skirt of the frock worn underneath it. And the little jacket is further embellished by bands of a dyed kolinsky fur carrying the softest of the darker tones of brown. The coat is lined then with a soft, cream-colored silk having a smooth surface which turns back on the collar and cuffs and shows becomingly against the neck and against the puffed sleeves of the cotton crepe which jut out underneath the wide cuffed sleeves. One nice thing about the skirt to this frock is the way it pleats in on the sides. This gives a sufficient amount of room for walking, and at the same time it keeps that trig, straight look.

Golden Brown Crepe.

Another dress designed for street wear and worn, indeed, by the very smart woman in New York was made of a golden brown crepe. The skirt had a straight panel at front and at back, while at the sides were these inserted sections of narrow side pleatings. At the base of the skirt the little pleats were tacked together so that the skirt puffed out above that point in a sort of harem fashion. Worn with this skirt there was a cape jacket with loose and flowing sleeves through which other puffed sleeves of a Russian blouse bodice were seen to protrude. This little bodice of white had lines of Russian embroidery in tones of yellow and brown marching around the collar and down the front, while the ends of the sleeves had Long-Waisted Jacket Made to Wear With Dress of White Cotton Crepe and Ratine.

frills over the hands [illegible] Russian stitching.

It is [illegible]

Lots for Your Money

Should Not Tempt You

USE

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

That's What Millions of Housewives Do

CALUMET
BAKING POWDER
CALUMET BAKING POWDER CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.

BEST BY TEST

—They know that Good Baking Powder can't be sold for less; that "More for the Money" means bake-day failures, waste of time and money; that Calumet is pure and sure.

The World's Greatest Baking Powder

AS BOBBY HAD IT FIGURED

Quite Satisfied That Auntie's Appearance Must Have Undergone Considerable Change.

I am rather proud of my looks and always take pains to appear my best for company.

One morning I was just finishing the sweeping when my brother and his family, whom I had not seen for a couple of years, drove in the yard. With them were a couple of well-dressed women, and I was naturally embarrassed to have them find me with hair disheveled and dust streaked face. However, I welcomed them graciously and we sat down to talk.

I noticed that Bobby, my small nephew, was studying me intently, and during a lull in the conversation he said: "Auntie, you must have been good looking when you were young."

"Yes," I beamed, with my pleasantest smile, scenting a compliment, "what makes you think so, dear?"

"Because," answered Bobby, "uncle would never marry you the way you look now."—Chicago Tribune.

His First Elephant.

Glenn Max of Danville, Ind., is three years old and observing. Glenn attended the Yankee circus at the fair ground and saw an elephant for the first time.

With much astonishment he exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, it eats with its tail."—Indianapolis News.

Seattle Elects Two Women.

Two women have been elected to the city council of Seattle.

SAFE PLACE FOR VALUABLES

Harassed Citizens of American Cities Should Welcome Idea That Comes From Buenos Aires.

In these days of lawlessness, when the honest citizen cannot take a walk around the block with any certainty that he will not be held up by a bandit, the novel idea of Antonio Monaco, a citizen of Buenos Aires, ought to be of value.

He suggests suspenders with pockets attached to them—two pockets, that is to say, each of them being fastened with a buckle to the loop of the "gallus" at the front. The lower end of each pocket has two buttonholes, which button onto the ordinary buttons of the waistband of the trousers, thus making the pocket flatly secure against the body of the wearer. To prevent escape of its contents, each pocket is provided with a buttoned flap.

Few bandits would think of looking for loot beneath a man's waistcoat, and so the suspender pocket should afford excellent hiding places for money. Against pickpockets they ought to furnish a perfect protection.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Home Thoughts.

Wife (away from home)—Horrors! I forgot to turn off the electric iron!

Husband—It's all right. Nothing will burn long—I forgot to turn off the water in the bathtub.—From Kasper, Stockholm.

Hoping for the best is a lazy man's idea. Those who get the best are busier than that.

STORK MADE LONG JOURNEY

Bird Flew From Africa to Germany With a Message From Exile to the Fatherland.

The population of Liskau, Germany, noticed one day recently that one of the many storks which annually return to the neighborhood from distant southern zones to rebuild their nests was carrying something about its neck which only human hands could have fastened there.

Repeated efforts to approach the bird had failed, but one of the villagers finally lured the stork into his barn and then and there learned that the bird carried a little leather case in which a note was inclosed. The note revealed that the stork had come all the way from East Africa, where a German colonist, Willi Bucha, has his little farm near Victoria lake.

Bucha must have anticipated that the bird spent his annual vacation in his beloved fatherland, so he wrote: "Just a greeting to the fatherland," and used the stork to convey his message.

Cut the Kissing Short.

Hub (sampling wife's purchase)—These oranges are sour.

Wife—That's strange! The grocer told me they were sunkissed oranges from California.

Hub—I guess the movie censors must have limited the length of the kiss.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Thoroughbred.

"Is he a man of good breeding?"

"Well, I know he took five firsts at the poultry show."

No heat with this summer meal

A DISH of crisp, delicious Grape-Nuts, with cream or milk (some berries or fresh fruit, too, if you like) is cooling to serve, cooling to eat and cooling to digest—with a charm of flavor and goodness that rouses appetite enthusiasm. No preparation, no cooking—no heating of the body afterward, as heavy, starchy meals do—but well-rounded nourishment for every bodily need.

There's a noticeable feeling of lightness and comfort after such a meal.

Try this way out of the heat, bother and uncertainty that usually goes with the midsummer food problem.

Order Grape-Nuts from your grocer today.

"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

AUGUST

OUR GREAT HALF PRICE SALE

Is More Than a Headline for Our Advertisement

It's an annual merchandising event at this store, when large quantities of Men's, Young Men's and Boys' Clothing, Odd Trousers, Shirts, Underwear, Hosiery, Belts, Suspenders, Garters, Neckwear, Handkerchiefs, etc., sell at just

HALF PRICE

Saving the men, young men and boys of Fort Wayne and vicinity thousands and thousands of dollars this year in face of an advancing market on all cotton and woolen fabrics. HALF PRICES means more than ever, as our prices are based on the lower market of several months ago. We are selling many lines of merchandise at HALF OF TODAY'S WHOLESALE PRICE.

Listed Below Are Just a Few of the Wonderful Values We're Offering

1,000 MEN'S AND YOUNG MEN'S SUITS AT 1-2 PRICE

150 dozen Men's $1.50 to $4.00 Shirts, ½ Price, 75c to $2.00.

35 doz. White and Colored Collar-Attached Shirts at ½ Price.

300 RAINCOATS—HALF PRICE

500 Boys' Knicker Suits will be sold at HALF PRICE.

50 NOVELTY SUITS, button-to-the-neck style, sizes 2 to 4 years, will go at ½ Price

ALL STRAW HATS — HALF PRICE

1,500 KAZOO TROUSERS 1-2 PRICE

$3 to $10 Trousers $1.50 to $5

FURNISHINGS GOODS AT HALF PRICE

SUSPENDERS

HALF PRICE

$1.00 Pioneer Lisle Suspenders	50c
75c Pioneer Lisle Suspenders	37½c
50c Wilson Bros.' Suspenders	25c
50c President's Suspenders—Half Price	25c

GARTERS--Half Price

75c Brighton Wide Web Silk Garters	37½c
50c Brighton Garters	25c
35c Brighton and Ivory Garters	17½c

BELTS--HALF PRICE

$1.00 Pioneer Belts, initial buckles	50c
50c Pioneer Tan Belts	25c
50 dozen 75c to $1.50 Sample Belts, size 30 and 32 only	39c

NECKWEAR

HALF PRICE

$2.50 Imported Italian Grenadine Neckwear	$1.25
$1.50 Imported Silk Neckwear	75c
$1.00 Silk Grenadine Neckwear	50c
$1.00 Genuine Cheney Tubular Four-in-Hands	50c
75c Genuine Cheney Tubular Four-in-Hands	37½c

Handkerchiefs---HALF PRICE

25c Linen Union Handkerchiefs	12½c
25c and 20c Mercerized Cotton Handkerchiefs, samples and irregulars	10c
400 dozen 5c White Cotton Handkerchiefs	2½c
100 dozen 10c Red Work Handkerchiefs	5c
15c large size Blue and Red Work Handkerchiefs	7½c

HOSIERY

HALF PRICE

$1.00 Black Silk Hose (run of the mill)	50c
40c Mercerized Lisle Hose	20c

All Broken lines of Hosiery, Half Price.

All other Hosiery, excepting Interwoven, discounted at least 10%.

UNDERWEAR

HALF PRICE

WILSON BROS.' $1.00 NAINSOOK UNION SUITS 50c

$3.00 Gilt Edge Knit Union Suits will go at $1.50

All Broken Lines of Underwear, Half Price.

Other Underwear 10% Discount.

SHOES

HALF PRICE

44 pairs Growing Girls' White Oxfords	½ Price
11 pairs Young Ladies' White Sport Oxfords, smoked elk, mahogany trimmed	½ Price
19 pairs Young Ladies' White Sport Oxfords, patent leather trimmed	½ Price
49 pairs Misses' $4.50 Tan Calf Oxfords, sizes 11½ to 2, Half Price	$2.25

All Misses' White Canvas and Sport Oxfords will be sold at Half Price.

36 pairs Young Men's Dark Mahogany Oxfords, with rubber heels	$3.60
72 pairs Men's and Young Men's $7.00 Oxfords	One-Fifth Off

18 pairs Men's and Young Men's $7.50 Oxfords

1-5 OFF

All other lines of Shoes discounted 10 per cent.

Boys' Furnishings---Half Price

50 dozen Boys' Blouses, with collar attached, plain white and colors; all sizes; 75c Blouses	37½c
Only 3 to a customer; $1.50 Blouses	75c
35 dozen Boys' All-Wool $1.75 Caps, Half Price	87½c
50 dozen Boys' $1 Silk Ties, Half Price	50c
250 dozen Boys' 5c White and Fancy Border Handkerchiefs	2½c
100 Children's and Ladies' 5c White 'Kerchiefs	2½c

Not over 1 dozen Handkerchiefs to a customer.

50 dozen $1.25 Boys' Fancy Shirts, collar to match	62½c
15 dozen Children's Straw Hats, while they last	50c
50 dozen Boys' 50c and 25c Belts, will sell at 25c and	12½c
25 dozen Children's Odd Knickerbockers	Half Price
15 dozen Children's Wash Suits, including all short sleeve Suits	½ Price
$1.00 ¾-length English Ribbed Sport Hose, sizes 9, 9½, 10	50c
All 50c Children's Silk Sox, half-price	25c

All other Boys' Clothing and Furnishings (except Overalls and Scout goods) discounted at least 10%.

ALL STRAW HATS HALF PRICE

Broken Lines of Felt Hats, Half Price.

Broken Lines of Caps, Half Price.

All Other Hats and Caps, 10% Off.

BROKEN LINES OF PAJAMAS HALF PRICE

All other Pajamas discounted 10 per cent.

WOOL BATHING SUITS 1-5 OFF

Choice of all-cotton Bathing Suits	$1.00

All Luggage discounted [illegible]0 per cent.

500 50c FULTON AUTO GLARE SHIELDS	25c

Fulton Glare Shields attached to windshields protect against the sun by day and from the headlights of approaching cars by night. It may be the means of saving a life or at least avoiding a serious accident. Easily adjusted. While they last, 25c.

100 BOYS' $4 TO $15 RAINCOATS ½ PRICE $2 TO $7.50

PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

The Store That Does Things

Wayne and Harrison Streets

AUGUST

L 912

A ROCKING HORSE

makes motion but no progress. If you are to be progressive you

Must Not Only Work

but you must save your earnings. It it almost next to impossible for you to be on the standstill, you are making or loosing. The fellow that has gone ahead of you is the man who has grasped the opportunity of sav- his earnings for future investment. He has had

CONFIDENCE IN THE BANK.

and took advantage of their facilities.

YOU CAN DO THE SAME.

Yours truly,

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Try a want ad in the News.

Walter Perkins and family of near Harlan, were Thursday visitors of Joel Bets and wife.

Glenn Bowser ol near New Haven was a guest Thursday and Friday in the R. U. Bowser home.

Gust Hafner and family were dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Brown of Waterloo, Sunday.

GLASSES—$2.50 up. Benj. F. Griest, Eyesight specialist, American Bldg., Hicksville, Ohio.

Jay Keesler and wife and Stanton Osborne and family of St. Joe, spent Sunday with John Moody and family.

Kellar & McCollough have started a Garage in the old Steward & Beams building in Spencerville. All kinds of repairing done and work guaranteed.

Stop at the News Office and get a Magazine.

Roscoe Walter and family and Mrs. Henry Walter, spent Monday in Fort Wayne.

Ercil Steward, who recently underwent an operation, is able to be around again.

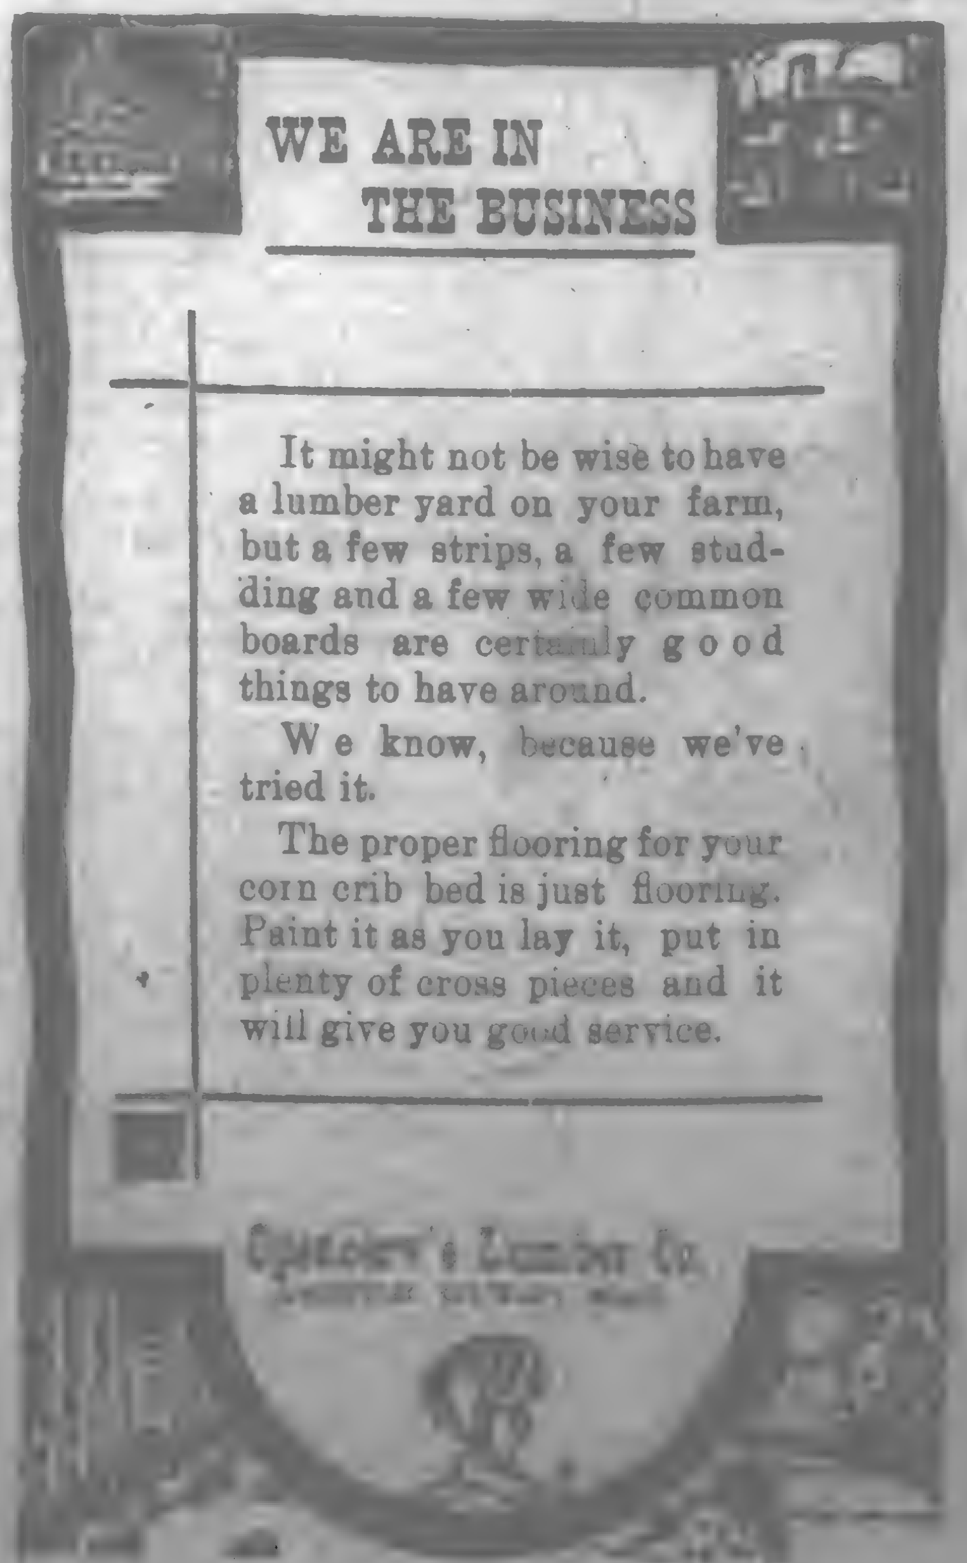
John Provines came Sunday to spend a month visiting his mother and other relatives.

Miss Mary Comesky is visitiny Sarah Koonts and other friends at this place.

Hermon Reasoner and wife left Sunday morning on their vacation. They will spend it at California, Michgan.

Louis Fisher and sister, Meriam, Mrs. Evangaline Fuller and soh all of Pleasant Lake, spent the latter part of the week with their grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Provines.

Charles Brettian and family, Verna Kelley and family, Mort Shutt and daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Markle and children, Ray Baker and wife and Dayton Webb and family, Sundayed at Crooked Lake.



WE ARE IN THE BUSINESS

It might not be wise to have a lumber yard on your farm, but a few strips, a few studding and a few wide common boards are certainly good things to have around.

We know, because we've tried it.

The proper flooring for your corn crib bed is just flooring. Paint it as you lay it, put in plenty of cross pieces and it will give you good service.

[illegible] Lumber Co.

Mrs. W. G. Erick gave a dinner Sunday in honor of the birthday anniversaries of Rev. Steffey and wife and W. G. Erick, also the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Erick.

Marion Steward and wife of Ft. Wayne, were Saturday and Sunday guests of Charles McCrory andwife. Kent and Victor McCrory returned home with them for a week's visit

Time Limit Approaches

Russell M. Mounts, commander of Aaron Scihinger post of the American Legion, states that August 9 is the last date upon which claims of ex-soldiers for disability or for vocational training can be filed with the government.

Mr. Mounts has the necessary blanks that must be filled out and sent to the veterans' bureau at Washington. He will be glad to assist any former service man who was wounded or whose health was impaired during the war, and who wants to file a claim.

NEWVILLE

The W. C. T. U. met recently with Mrs. Ina Traxler.

Dewey Meller and wife moved to St. Joe last week.

The home coming services at the Christian Church was unusually well attended.

Oren Hook and family of Butler ate dinner with John Gillingham and wife Sunday.

Mrs. George Miller is seriously ill at the home of her son Adrian Beree.

C. O. Berry and family of near Auburn were Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

Mr. Yintsman, Elmer McDonald and san Earl, of Butler, were the Sunday dinner guests of John Miller and family.

The funeral of Mrs. Lilian Benninghoff was held in the U.B. church Thursday afternoon, August 3rd. Rev. P. A. Hubartt officiated.

The construction work on the Auburn-Newville road has reached our town and the workmen are camped on the William Seely property.

CONCORD

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Belden, of Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Curt Harris, of Auburn, called on Mrs. Mary Timmerman Sunday afternoon.

Dell Draggoo and family, John Hull and family, Lloyd Draggoo and family, and Miss Gladys Layman spent Sunday evening at the home of James Irwin.

Fathers' and Sons' Day was observed at the church Sunday with a splendid attendance. All enjoy good services and a pleasant time. The occasion also served as a farewell to Rev. C. O. Johnson, our bastor for the past four years, and his family. We wish them success in their new home and may God bless and help them prosper.

Sunday School Report.

The ollowing is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	111	$ 5.85
M. P.	66	6.40
Lutheran	100	5.71
M. E. Spencer	100	5 84
Lutheran	86	4.13
Newville U. B.
Christian	226	10 36
Coburntown	31	1.76
Concord	95	13.69
[illegible]	73	4.38
Mt. Pleasant

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

A number of the members attended [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Obituary

Miss Lille Belle Jones was born November 7, 1871, near Williams Center, Defiance county, Ohio. She departed this life July 26, 1922, at the Lutheran hospital in Fort Wayne, aged 50 years, 8 months, and 19 days.

She was the youngest of four children born to Samuel H. and Angeline Jones. Farher, mother, and a brother who died in infancy have preceeded her to "The undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns."

Two sisters, Mr John D. Fetters of St. Joe, and Mrs. Rosa Camp of near Edon; two nephews, L. G. and J. Earl Fetters of St. Joe, Ind.; and an uncle, George Calendar of Edgerton, O.; many cousins, including Ellsworth Jones of Edon and Dr. Jay Jones of Chicago, with other relatives to mourn her death. Numbered with these is a host of neighbors and friends of this community, St. Joe, Williams Center and Farmer Center and everywhere else that she was known. Her gracious and pleasing personality was accountable for her wide circle of friends. To all these has come a great loss because of her death. This loss is indeed heavy to the sisters and cousin Ellsworth, all of whom were so closely associated with her during her prolonged sickness.

When 17 years of age she united with the U. B. Church at Williams Center, under the preaching of C. E. Kriebel and was immersed Aug. 4, 1889. This record of her eariy faith in God was copied from a scrapbook belonging to her in which she had there written of her conversion.

Soon after the death of her aunt Kate, in 1895, she came to the home of her uncle, James Jones, where through all the years successive to that date she has presided with gracious kindness and practical efficiency.

Upon coming to this community she transferred her religious affiliations to the Valley View U. B. Church, where her worth as a "faithful servant" was speedily recognized. At the time of her death she was a member of the Church of Christ at Edon, O. She was a happy and cheerful participant in the affairs of her Bible class, the Ladies' Aid society and the church while her health permitted. She will be missed from her place here.

Through the illness which eventually culminated in her death she was always cheerful and optimistic. When she worried at all it was only because of the thought that others were having so much work to do for her, which she in turn could not repay because of her physical condition. She felt that with her Master she could say that she had "come to minister and not to be ministered unto." All that medical science and skill could do, and all that loving hearts and hands could think of and provide belonged to her until at last the summons came, and there came—

"Rest for the toiling hand,
 Rest for the anxious brow;
Rest for the weary, wayworn feet,
 Rest from all labor now."

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ Sunday with Rev. J. Denver Driskill officiating and burial was in the family lot at Farmer Center.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors who in our great sorrow assisted and comforted us. We wish to especially thank the minister, the choir and those who gave flowers.

Mrs. John D. Fetters
Mrs. Rosa Camp
Ellsworth Jones.

Fordson

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

$395

F.O.B. DETROIT

This Astounding Low Price is the final answer to the high cost of farming problems.

With a Fordson one man can do more work easier, and at less expense than two men can do with horses.

With a Fordson you can actually raise more crops with less work, lower costs and fewer hours of work.

With a Fordson you can save money, time and drudgery on every power job on the farm—the whole year arouud.

Let us give you the proofs of the great savings made by the Fordson. Call, write or phone today.

Frank W. SILBERG
Spencerville, Indiana

JESS E. MILLER

Jess E. Miller was born in Antwerp, Ohio, May 17, 1889, and departed this life July 24, 1922. He was the son of Jacob and Martha Miller, one of a family of six children.

Born as he was among the upright and thrifty farmers of this prosperous section, it was but natural that at an early age he acquired habits of earnestness and a realisation of his duties toward his fellowmen, setting an example of kindly unselfishness.

He came to Woodburn, Indiana, when twelve years of age, where he lived until his marriage to Miss LaVerge Brace, Sept. 5, 1911, since which time he has lived in this community and had established for himself a respected place.

His untimely death is sincerely mourned by a wide circle of friends. To what extent he will be missed can be known only to those with whom he was most intimately associated, those near and dear in the family relations and the neighborhood around.

"It is only that he has gone before us. Just at the bend of the road he watches o'er us. How we miss his courtesy and smiling face."

Jess was not affiliated with any church in full membership, but as the shadows began to deepen at the last, he embraced his Saviour's love and departed with the testimony, "I am His and He is mine." Left to mourn his loss are the widow, Mrs. LaVerge Miller, his parents, two brothers, Vess the twin brother of Woodburn, and Albert at home, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Hileman of Rockford, Ohio, Mrs. Laura Lindemuth of Woodburn, Mrs. Ethel Wilmot of Harlan. Two sisters preceded him.

THE VOYAGE

"Sometimes, when the tide is low,
 I shall slip my moorings and sail,
While against my ships' worn bow.
 The sea green waters wail.
Like a breeze, my ship of life shall pass,
 Lamented by friends on the beach;
But sweet mem'ries will always last Though their world, mine cannot reach."

Funeral service were conducted from the East Springfield M. P. church, July 26, by Rev. McClain. Interment in Scipio cemetery. Roscoe Walter, funeral director.

Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

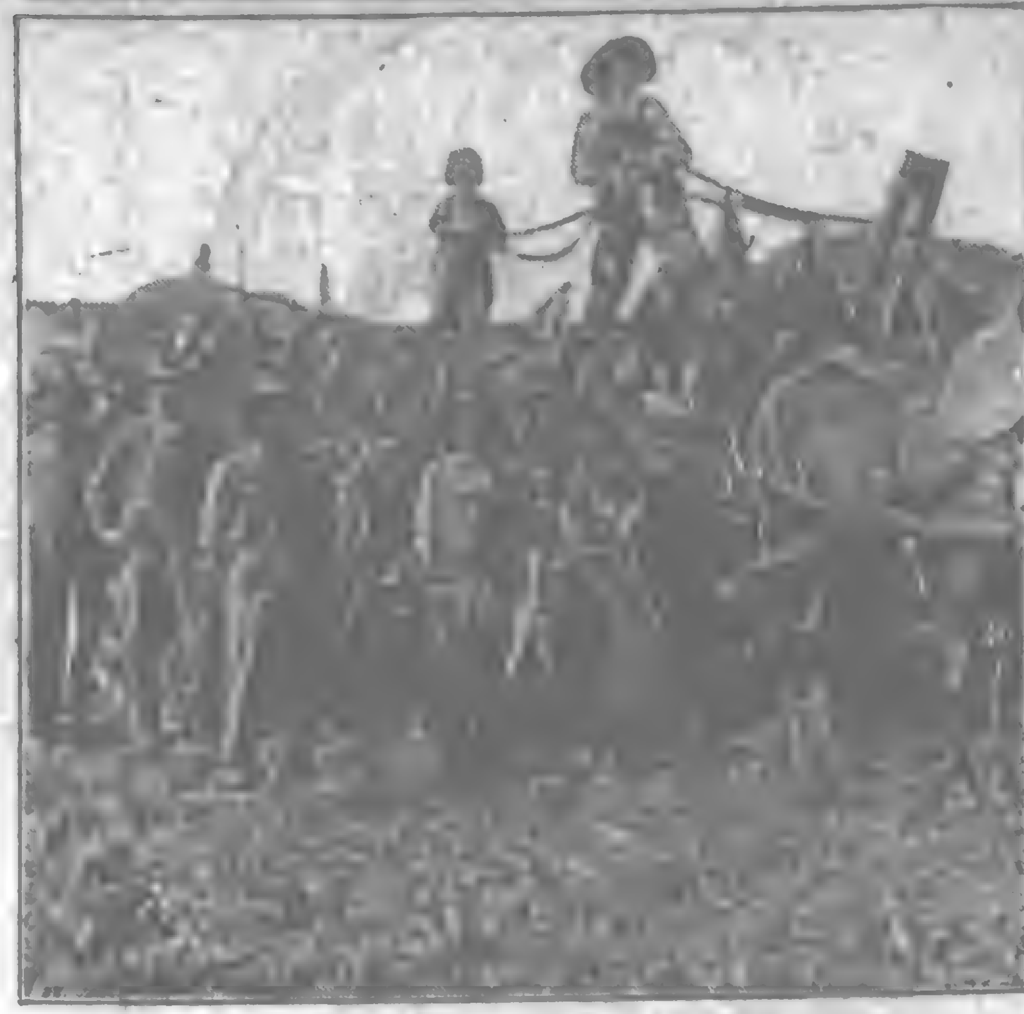
Established 1857

MENS AND BOYS' OUTFITTERS

Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

American Farm Bureau



Candidate for United States Senate Working in Cornfield.

Mrs. Izetta Brown, working in the corn field with her farm hands on "Juneland," her West Virginia farm. Her little five-and-a-half-year-old daughter, June, is standing on the wagon with her. Mrs. Brown has just been announced as a candidate for United States senator from West Virginia. She has for a number of years been prominent in national politics, is chairman of the National Women's party, a member of the women's committee of the American Farm Bureau federation and president of her local county farm bureau.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF BUREAU IN MICHIGAN

So Successful That Four Commodity Marketing Exchanges Have Affiliated.

A second membership campaign for re-enlistment of the thousands of Michigan farmers who built the Michigan State Farm bureau has been announced by Clark L. Brody, secretary-manager of the bureau. Accomplishments of the bureau in the past three years as cited by Mr. Brody include construction of the most powerful farmers' organization Michigan has ever known. It has co-operated with other farm organizations in the state so successfully that the four great commodity marketing exchanges, the potato growers, the milk producers, the live stock exchange and the elevator exchange have affiliated with the farm bureau in the working out of common interests.

Within the past two years the farm bureau has given great stimulus to the co-operative marketing movement in Michigan. It has built the greatest cooperative seed handling agency in the nation, an agency that is a pioneer in guaranteeing all its seed. The bureau also built the largest and most successful state elevator exchange in the United States. It consists of 101 local elevators marketing through a central agency. The bureau's purchasing department, transportation, taxation and legislative departments are declared to have been of great service to Michigan farmers. [illegible]

Clark L. Brody.

[illegible]

BUILDING HIGHWAYS IN VARIOUS STATES

Money Made Available for the Construction of Roads Connecting County Seats.

W. C. Markham, secretary of the American Association of State Highway Officials and representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, completed his work in Washington recently upon the passage of the conference report on the Post Office bill authorizing the appropriation of $50,000,000 for federal aid in road building in 1923, $65,000,000 in 1924, and $75,000,000 in 1925. This bill is a complement to the bill passed last summer providing a scheme for the building of farm-to-market roads which was advocated by the farm bureau. It makes the money available for the carrying out of a system of building highways connecting the various county seats in the states and other important roads. This is known as the seven per cent system in which the state highway commissioners collaborate with the federal road officials in laying out a system of roads for the states. When this seven per cent system of roads has been improved according to the plans promulgated in the beginning, another seven per cent is added, thus insuring the completion of the projects when once started.

Under the rules and regulations laid down by the United States bureau of roads, which administers the disposition of federal funds, there is included not only plans for the building of finished roads, but the expenditure of money for the proper grading of roads with the building of temporary service. This expedites the work where it might be impossible under other conditions.

The postoffice bill merely carries the authorization for the appropriation and the appropriation itself for the next fiscal year may not be made by congress until next December. In the interim between June 30, the beginning of this next fiscal year, and December, contracts will be entered into by the state highway commissioners and approved by the federal authorities the same as though the money actually had been provided for. The secretary of agriculture's approval of any project will be deemed a contractual obligation of the federal government for the payment of its proportion of the cost of construction.

The strong feature about this road legislation is that the federal government makes plans for a three-year program. [illegible]

RADIO

VACUUM TUBE WHEN USED AS AMPLIFIER

It Will Function Thus for Either Radio Frequency or Audio Frequency.

Starting today we shall give a detailed description of the vacuum tube when used as an amplifier. This series, as in the past, is continuous and if clipped out and saved will be convenient for reference.

When the three-electrode vacuum tube was used as a detector, the circuits associated with it were such that where a symmetrical alternating difference was applied to the grid, a symmetrical change in plate current resulted. That is to say, the vacuum tube acted as a rectifier. In addition to rectifying, the tube also amplified. The variation in plate circuit was "K," where "K" is the amplification constant of the tube, times what it would have been in a two-electrode tube, for the same potential impressed on the grid.

By properly adjusting the electrical constants of the circuits associated with a three-electrode tube, symmetrical variations of grid potential can be made to produce symmetrical variation in plate current, which are "K" times the amplitude of the plate circuit variations of a similar two-electrode value with the same applied grid potential. This means that if a three-electrode value be used in the proper circuits in a radio receiver, the signals can be made to appear as though the received signal is "K" times as strong as it actually is. If two tubes are used with their proper circuits in connection with a radio receiver the received signals will appear to be "K" times as strong as they actually are and so the apparent strength of the incoming signal is multiplied by "K" for each additional tube added to the [illegible] straight line, then C-D will equal B-E, or so long as the working range falls within straight line portion of the characteristic curve, symmetrical changes in grid potential will cause symmetrical changes in plate current. From this it can be seen that if the working point "A" be selected near the bend of the characteristic curve, symmetrical changes in grid potential will not cause symmetrical changes in plate current. Since the plate current variation in such case would bear only slight relation to the grid variation in potential, the output of the tube would be distorted.

[illegible]

In applying amplifiers to receiving sets used to pick radiophone stations, distortion is one of the greatest difficulties to overcome. Too strong signals will result in decreased amplification. In Figure 23, if the applied variation in grid potential were 10 times that shown in the example, the plate current would not change 10 times as much, because of the bends in the curve, due to saturation. Finally, a condition can be reached where the use of an amplifier tube will decrease the signal strength because of the saturation of the tube.

The rectified incoming signals would be louder without the use of the amplifier tube, because of the inability of the plate current of the tube caused by saturation to increase in proportion to the signal strength.

There are, in general, two factors that can be taken from the characteristic curve and the second is the length of the straight portion of the curve. The slope of the straight portion of the curve determines the amplification of the tube. The more nearly vertical the straight portion of the curve is, the greater will be the change in plate current for a given change in grid potential, or in other words, the louder will be the response in the telephone receivers corresponding to a given received signal. The length of the straight portion of the curve determines the maximum variation in grid potential that will cause the tube to function properly without distortion.

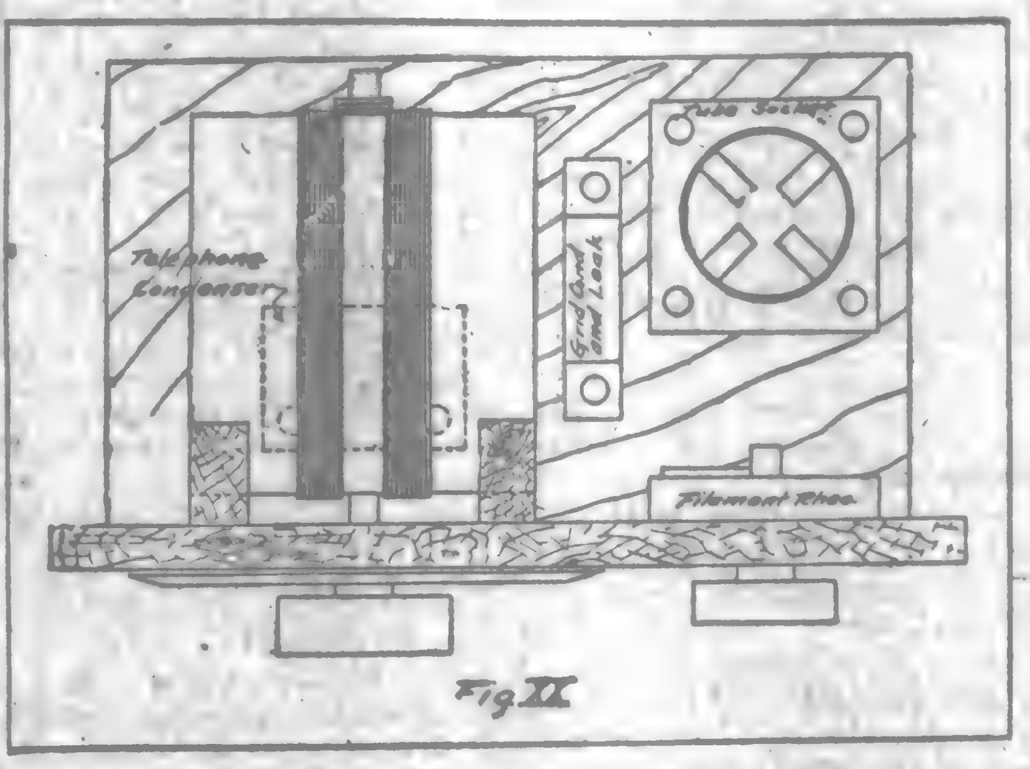

Fig XX

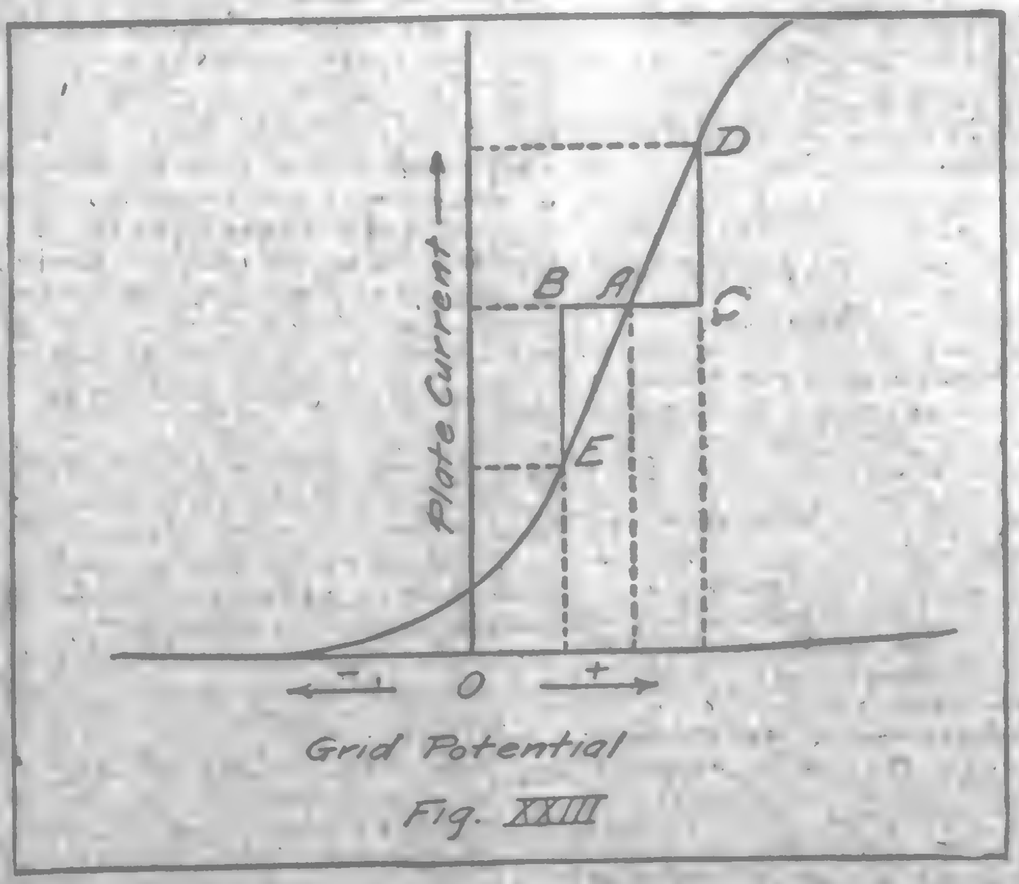

Fig. XXIII

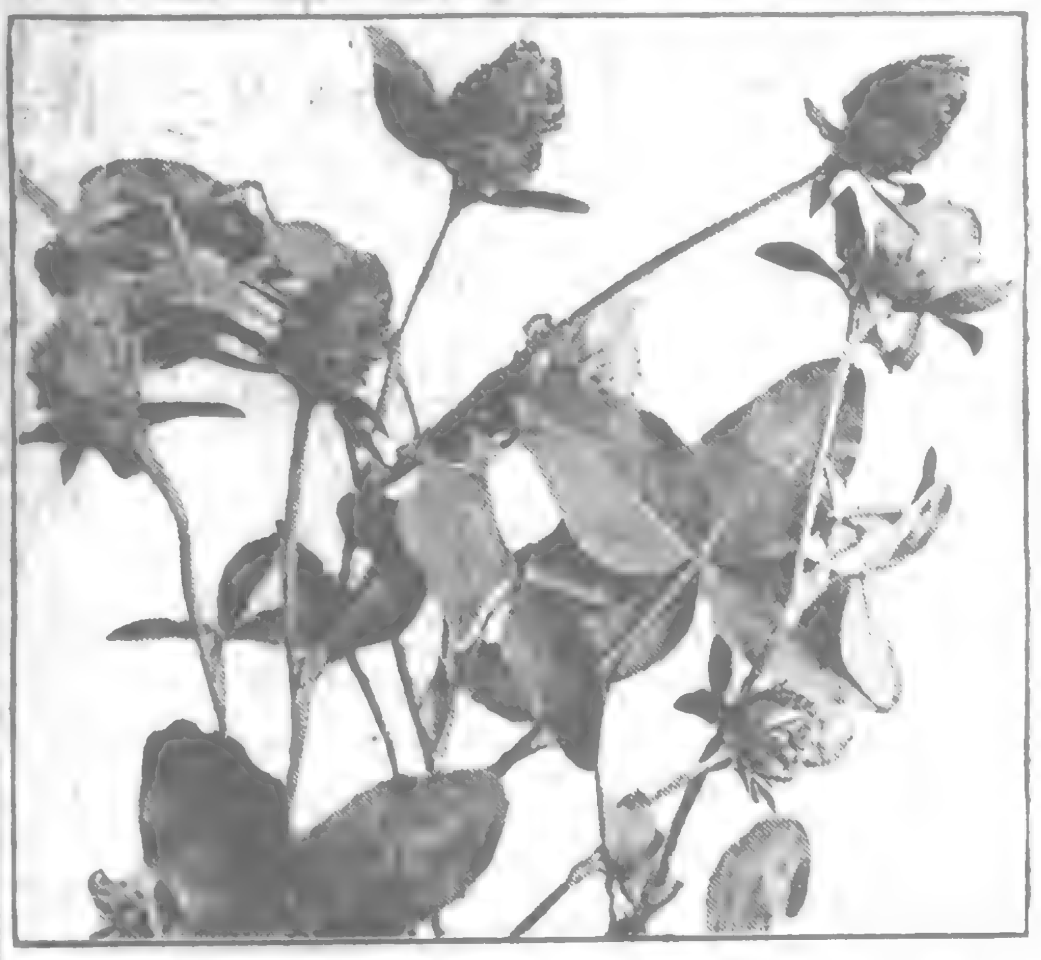
TIPS TO RADIOISTS

At [illegible], Ind., bacon was [illegible] of a radio [illegible] for [illegible]

[illegible]

GREEN MANURING ONE OF OLDEST METHODS USED TO IMPROVE SOIL



Red Clover Ranks High in Importance Among Leguminous Crops.

Although green manuring is one of the oldest methods used to maintain or to increase the productivity of the soil, there have been enough new developments in the practice and in the plants used for the purpose in recent years to make desirable the publication by the United States Department of Agriculture of Farmers' Bulletin 1250, Green Manuring, by C. V. Piper and A. J. Pieters.

The subjects discussed range from a definition of the term "green manuring," which means "the turning under of any crop, while green or soon after ripening, for the purpose of soil improvement," to descriptions of the many crops that are used for land betterment in most regions of the United States and in some other countries. The use of special green-manure crops, says the bulletin, is much more general in the South than in the North. In the semi-arid regions, for reasons made clear, under dry farming green manures are not used, but in irrigated areas in the West orchardists depend upon them to a great extent to increase the yield of fruit.

Crops Benefit Soil.

These crops that are grown primarily as roughage for feeding the soil produce both chemical and physical effects that are of benefit to plants that succeed them. When a green-manure crop is turned under, the various fertilizing elements that have gone into the making of the crop are returned to the soil, and a quantity of organic matter not before in the soil is added, and, in addition to improving the physical condition, serves as food for beneficent bacteria. One of the most important functions of organic matter in the soil is to keep up the nitrogen supply. The bulletin gives three ways in which this is done: (1) Growth of nodule bacteria on roots of leguminous plants; (2) the making of nitrates by soil bacteria from organic nitrogen in the soil; and (3) growth of bacteria and molds that feed on plant waste in the soil and take nitrogen directly from the air. These processes may be stimulated by adopting the proper practices and suitable crops.

Satisfactory Cover Crops.

Legumes are of course the most satisfactory cover crops under most conditions, and all legumes do not have the same strain of nodule bacteria. For instance, that of clover is different from that of alfalfa, and that of the cowpea is distinct from that of the soy bean. These selective associations of plants and bacteria make inoculation of the soil necessary where the crop has not been previously grown, either by scattering soil from a field where the crop to be sown has been grown recently or by using an artificial culture. A strain of bacteria will often inoculate different [illegible] or where the soil is poor and in need of organic matter, a green crop may often be worth more if turned under. It is known that the turning under of a green-manure crop may effect the yield of subsequent crops even to the third year, and this fact should have weight when the question of selling a legume hay crop or turning it under is considered.

A Regular Farm Practice.

Green manuring in some form should be part of the regular farm practice on most of the farms east of the hundredth meridian and on irrigated land elsewhere. Rotations should be arranged so as to work in a green-manure crop between regular crops without sacrificing direct money or feed crops. Preference should be given to a legume if possible. The value of these crops is determined by the quantity of humus formed, measured by the tonnage of the crop, the physical changes brought about in the soil, and the quantity of nitrogen taken from the air and added to the soil. There are probably other factors that are as yet but little understood. It is said that green manure in orchards checks certain diseases and improves the quality of the fruit.

Order of Importance.

The leguminous crops grown in this country listed in the bulletin in order of importance are: Red clover, alfalfa, alsike clover, sweet clover, cowpeas, peanuts, soy beans, velvet beans, crimson clover, field peas, vetch, Japan clover, bur clover, and white clover. A few others, such as beggarweed, grass peas, fenugreek, and horse beans are grown to a small extent in restricted localities. Non-leguminous crops that are considered as useful green manures are grasses, buckwheat, weeds, and some plants of the mustard family that are used more in Europe than in this country.

The bulletin contains more than 40 pages of valuable information on these plants and the ways of handling them; also tables of results that show their value in increasing returns. A copy may be obtained free by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

An Excellent Stand of Alfalfa.

[illegible]

ERADICATION OF ALL WEEDS

One of Most Serious Agricultural Problems Is Prompt Destruction of Noxious Plants.

There is nothing which has a graver menace to agriculture than our noxious weeds. It is all right to think of serious marketing problems and economic [illegible]

[illegible] LITY

AUGUST

The Mardi Gras Mystery

By

H. BEDFORD-JONES

Copyright by
DOUBLEDAY, PAGE AND COMPANY

GRAMONT AND FELL

SYNOPSIS—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansley, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably attired as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansley, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball. Lucie Ledanois, recently the ward of her uncle, Joseph Maillard, is the Columbine. At the ball, Bob Maillard, son of the banker, again proposes to her and is refused. He offers to buy some of her property. A Franciscan monk interests her. He turns out to be Prince Gramont. In his library Joseph Maillard and a group of his friends are surprised by the Midnight Masquer.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

"You money trickster! Do you think I would spare such a man as you? You draw your rents from the poor and destitute, your mortgages cover half the parishes in the state, and in your heart is neither compassion nor pity for man or woman. Bah! I could shoot you down without a qualm!"

In his voice was so deadly a menace that Maillard trembled.

"There is nothing of mine in that safe," he said, his voice a low growl. "I have given it to my son to use. He is not here."

"That," said the Masquer calmly, "is exactly why I desire you to open it. Your son must make his contribution, for I keenly regret his absence. If you are a criminal, he is worse! You rob and steal under shelter of the law, but you have certain limitations, certain bounds of an almost outgrown honor. He has none, that son of yours. Why, he would not hesitate to turn your own tricks back upon you, to rob you, if he could! Open that safe or take the consequences; no more talk, now!"

The command cracked out like a whiplash. With a shrug of helplessness the banker turned and fumbled with the protruding knob of the safe. With one exception all eyes were fastened upon this amazing Masquer. The exception was Jachin Fell, who, suddenly alert and watchful, had turned his attention to Maillard and the safe, a keen speculation in his gaze as though he were wondering what that steel vault would produce.

All were silent. There was something about this Midnight Masquer that held them intently. Perhaps some were inclined to think him a jester, one of the party masquerading under the famous bandit's guise; if so, his last words to Maillard had removed all such thought. That indictment had been deadly and terrible—and true, as they knew. Bob Maillard was not greatly admired by those among his father's friends who best knew him.

Now the door of the safe swung open. The compartments appeared empty.

"Take out the drawers and turn them up over the table," commanded the Masquer.

Maillard obeyed. From the last drawer there fell out on the table a large envelope, sealed. The Masquer leaned forward, seized upon this envelope, and crushed it into his pocket.

"Thank you," he observed. "That is all."

"D—n you!" cried Maillard, shaking a fist. "You'd try blackmail, would you?"

The bandit regarded him a moment, then laughed.

"If you knew what was in that envelope, my dear financier, you might not speak so hastily. If I knew what was in it, I might answer you. But I don't know. I only suspect—and hope. And now, my friends—au revoir!"

The Masquer sprang backward into the hall. The door slammed, the key clicked. He was gone!

Maillard was the first to wake into voice and action. "The other door!" he cried. "Into the dining room—"

He flung open a second door and dashed into the dining room, followed by the other men. Here the windows, giving upon the garden, were open. Then Maillard came to a sudden halt and after him the others; through the night was [illegible], with great distin[illegible] the [illegible] roar of an airplane motor! From Maillard broke a bitter oath:

[illegible]

the search was concluded. "Not a trace of the scoundrel! Here, Fell—can't you help us out? Haven't you discovered a thing?"

"Nothing," responded Jachin Fell, calmly.

At this instant Bob Maillard rushed up. He had just learned of the Masquer's visit. In response to his excited questioning his father described the scene in the library, and added:

"I trust there was nothing important among those papers of yours, Robert?"

"No," said the younger man. "No. Nothing valuable at all."

Henry Gramont was passing. He caught the words and paused, his gaze resting for an instant upon the group. A faint smile rested upon his rather harshly drawn features.

"I just found this," he announced, holding out a paper. "It was pinned to the outside of the library door. I presume that your late visitor left it as a memento?"

Jachin Fell took the paper, the other men crowding around him.

"Ah, Maillard! The same handwriting as that of your letter!"

Upon the paper was penciled a single hasty line:

"My compliments to Robert Maillard—and my thanks."

Bob Maillard sprang forward, angrily inspecting the paper. When he relinquished it, Fell calmly claimed it.

"Confound the rogue!" muttered the banker's son, turning away. His features were pale, perhaps with anger. "There was nothing but stock certificates in that envelope—and they can be reissued."

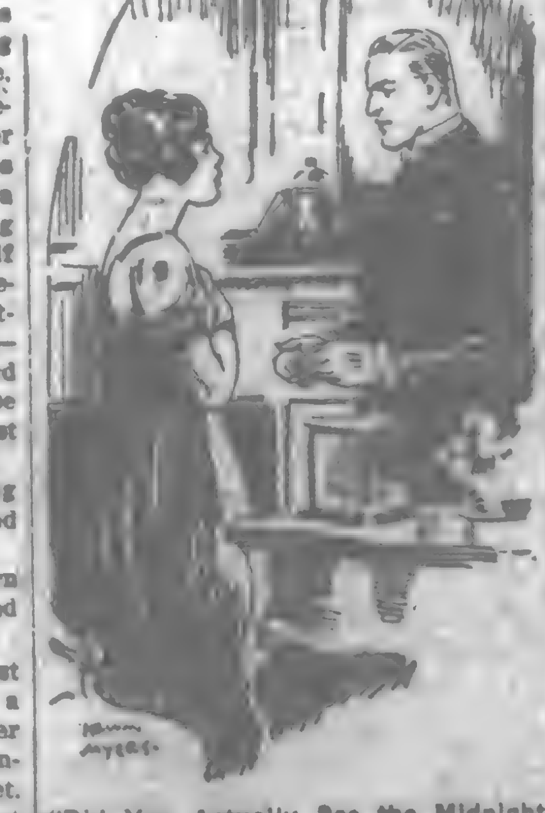
The festivities were not broken up. News of the robbery gradually leaked out among the guests; the generally accepted verdict was that the Masquer had appeared, only to be frightened away before he could secure any loot.

It was nearly two in the morning when Jachin Fell, who was leaving, encountered Henry Gramont at the head of the wide stairway. He halted and turned to the younger man.

"Ah—have you a pencil, if you please?"

"I think so, Mr. Fell." Gramont felt beneath his Franciscan's robe, and extended a pencil.

Jachin Fell examined it, brought a paper from beneath his domino, and



"Did You Actually See the Midnight Masquer Last Night?"

wrote down a word. The paper was that on which the farewell message of the Midnight Masquer had been written.

"A hard lead, a very hard point indeed!" said Fell. He pocketed the paper again and regarded Gramont steadily as he returned the pencil. "Few men carry so hard a pencil, sir."

"You're quite right," and Gramont smiled. "I borrowed this from Bob Maillard only a moment ago. Its hardness surprised me."

"Do you know, a most curious thing—"

"Yes?" prompted Gramont, his eyes intent upon the [illegible].

"That paper you [illegible] paper which you found pinned to the library door," said Fell. [illegible] "Do you know, Mr. Gramont, [illegible] enough there were no pin holes in that paper?"

[illegible]

ers-by, was a small scrap of paper. Mr. Fell glanced at it again, then shook his head and slowly turned away, as though resisting a temptation.

"No," he muttered. "No. It would be sure to fit the paper in my pocket. It would be sure to fit, confound him!"

A little later he left the house, striding briskly down the avenue. When he approached the first street light he came to a pause, and began softly to pat his person as though searching for something.

"I told you that you'd pay for knowing too much about me, young man!" he said, softly. "What's this, now—what's this?"

A slight rustle of paper, as he walked along, had attracted his attention. He passed his hands over the loose, open domino that cloaked him; he detected a scrap of paper pinned to it in the rear. He loosened the paper, and under the street light managed to decipher the writing which it bore.

A faint smile crept to his lips as he read the penciled words:

"I do not love you, Jachin Fell,
The reason why, I cannot tell;
But this I know, and know full well,
I do not love you, Jachin Fell!"

"Certainly the fellow has wit, if not originality," muttered Mr. Fell, as he carefully stowed away the paper. The writing upon it was in the hand of the Midnight Masquer.

CHAPTER IV.

Callers.

